FEAR OF PARACHUTING KILLED EMBASSY STAFF

RAMSAYVILLE, Ont., March 29 (UP)—Fear of parachuting from their burning plane killed U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt and four other Americans, the lone survivor who jumped to safety said today.

U. S. and Canadian Air Force officers investigating the crash of the twin-engine plane learned from Master Sgt. Gwynne A. Long, 25, how a last second refusal to jump from the plane yesterday cost the lives of the veteran American diplomat and other members of his Canadian Embassy staff.

The transport plunged out of a sun-lit sky a few minutes after taking off from Ottawa's Rockcliffe Airport at 8:20 a. m. EST on a flight to New York and Washington. It crashed in flames on a snow covered farm 12 miles from the airport.

Long, of Vannoy, N. C., said the "port engine blew up." He said that "nobody made a move" when he relayed the bail out order of the pilot, Capt. Thomas C. Archibald, 34, Union Springs, Ala.

The crew chief Sergeant said he buckled parachutes on all of the passengers but they seemed to be afraid to go over the side and somebody shouted, "No, We'll never make it at this height."

Long dove out from a height he estimated at about 1,000 feet and suffered a severe knee injury. He landed about 400 feet from the burning wreckage.

Steinhardt, 57, was a veteran of 17 years of foreign service.

Women Needed For Housing Survey Work

R. A. Steele of Austin, representative of the Foster Company, is here to direct a survey relative to low-rent housing needs in Ranger and has asked for assistance from Ranger women.

He stated that he will need about 20 women and that they will be paid for their work. Those who wish to assist in this survey are asked to be at the Chamber of Commerce at 9 o'clock in the morning. The work will require about a week or ten days to complete.

Steele stated that the women will be asked to call upon Ranger families and fill out survey blanks as to housing conditions, incomes and the size of families.

The questions to be answered will cover such items as sanitary facilities, cooking and heating facilities, the number of rooms in homes, state of repair of the buildings and the amount of rent and utilities paid each month.

The questions in the survey blanks are designed to determine the extent of the need of a low-rent housing unit in Ranger, Steele said and urged the cooperation of persons contacted in giving the information to the workers.

Patman Backs Brannan Plan

PEORIA, Ill., March 29 (UP)—Rep. Wright Patman, D., Tex., thinks the Brannan farm plan is "the only workable method" of supporting farmers' income.

Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, views it as bringing more regimentation to the farmer and higher costs to the taxpayer.

The two men debated the proposals made by secretary of agriculture Charles Brannan on a town meeting of the Air Broadcast by the American Broadcasting Company last night.

Seven thousand persons, a large number of them farmers, heard the discussion in the fieldhouse of Bridget University.

Liberty Bell Duplicates To Be Used In Drive

DALLAS, Tex., March 29 (UP)—Residents of 75 cities and towns in Texas will see and hear a duplicate of the famed liberty bell during the Independence drive of U. S. Savings Bonds sales, May 15-July 4.

The Bell, one of 49 to be furnished for the drive by the American Cooper Industry, will be mounted on a decorated truck. The vehicle will travel 2,500 to 3,000 miles, with appropriate ceremonies by local savings bonds chairmen scheduled at each stop.

Nathan Adams, state savings bonds chairman and Dallas banker, said the bell will be virtually identical with the original liberty bell which proclaimed American freedom in 1776—even to the tone.

The original bell is preserved in Independence hall in Philadelphia.

The Roy D. Martin Lumber Company, The Ranger Lumber and Supply and Burton-Lingo Lumber Company have agreed to furnish materials for tables with benches attached. The city will construct barbecue pits in the park and will keep the park policed and cleaned.

Patman called for enactment of the Brannan proposals in order to help "the family sized farm, not the big industrialized absentee owned farming enterprise."

"Federal funds," Patman said, "should not be used to increase the number and size of these industrialized factory-type farm enterprises."

The Congressman charged that big farm operators are campaigning for a sliding scale of support prices so that the family farmers can be pushed into bankruptcy as prices and parity payments fall.

"Then big business landowners can buy up farm lands at depression prices," Patman said.

Kline disputed Patman's claim that the Brannan plan would be less costly than the present farm program. Kline said he was in favor of a flexible price support plan.

Haylift For Blizzard Bound Cattle Studied

CHICAGO, March 29 (UP)—The Federal government today considered appeals for an emergency haylift to save starving cattle in blizzard-ravaged North Dakota.

A district official of the General Service Administration hurried to Bismark, N. D., today to investigate farmers' reports that their livestock, floundering in 30 inches of new snow, were starving to death.

"Cattle already weak from the hard winter are dying, and mud under the snow makes opening of roads difficult," Gov. Fred Anderson said in a telegram to federal officials in St. Paul, Minn.

"Heavy further livestock losses are indicated," he said.

The high spring storm which dumped the snow on the Dakotas and northern Minnesota moves across Canada today, and weather conditions improve in the U. S.

Snow fell from northern Illinois to the eastern Great Lakes and light rains were reported in the south, but elsewhere across the country skies were generally clear and temperatures seasonable.

The attorneys are Felix Stanley and Russell Bonham, who yesterday posted $2,500 bond for Patton.

Patton said he resorted to the attempted bank holdup Monday because he had no job and his wife and three children were hungry.

Patton's scheme was foiled by Alert Bank Teller Harry Rogers, who spotted the grenade as a "phony."

People Come To Aid Of Farmer Who Lost Suit

LOCKHART, Tex., March 29 (UP)—The small wage earners of Texas dug into their pockets today to rebuild the life savings of an aged, illiterate farmer lost because another man's mule caused a highway accident.

William Hagedorn, a 77-year-old farmer who does not read or write English and speaks with a heavy German accent, was forced to pay $2,632.20 although even the Supreme court of Texas agreed the stubborn mule was not his.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Alexander of Austin, Tex., filed suit against Hagedorn two years ago after they swerved into a ditch in front of Hagedorn's farm house to avoid hitting the mule.

The final step in the lawsuit ended yesterday when the money Hagedorn had saved over a 52-year period for his old age was taken on a default judgment granted on a legal technicality.

The judgment, which had been set aside by District Judge J. R. Fuchs, was upheld by the Supreme Court because Hagedorn did not appear in court to deny he owned the mule.

When the case was set originally Hagedorn appeared in court, but proceedings were delayed, Hagedorn said he asked a court clerk to tell him when to return but was never notified.

As the news spread through the state, the little people of Texas spontaneously came to the farmer's aid. Last night he had contributed $300.

Allen Duckworth, a Dallas Morning News staff writer who detailed Hagedorn's troubles in six front-page dispatches, said most of the money was in $1 and $2 contributions.

Judge Fuchs advised the proud Hagedorn yesterday to start a new bank account with the contributions.

He had called the frail farmer and Mrs. Hagedorn into Lockhart yesterday to hear the proceedings.

Fuchs discussed the findings in the case in English first. Then, in German, he told Hagedorn he must surrender the bank account.

"You have a clear conscience," Fuchs said. "You have done no wrong and many thousands of Texans now also know of the injustice. Many Texans want to help you. You must take the money. It is because the people of Texas want to help you."

Rangers Ordered To Laredo For Two Elections

AUSTIN, Tex., March 29 (UP)—Texas Rangers today will probably be ordered to Laredo to prevent possible violence during city elections to be held next Saturday and the following Tuesday.

Col. Homer E. Garrison, head of the Department of Public Safety, indicated last night he would probably comply with a request from Laredo officials that the Rangers be on hand as a preventative measure.

Following a conference yesterday in Laredo with Sheriff J. C. Martin and Ranger Captain Alfred E. Ailee, District Attorney E. James Kazen asked that Rangers be placed on duty from Friday through next Wednesday.

Four Scientists Pocket $6,000

HOUSTON, Tex., March 29 (UP)—Four scientists pocketed a total of $6,000 today for achievement in their fields during 1949.
The awards were announced last night at a meeting of the American Chemical Society.
Dr. Herman E. Ries, Jr., of Sinclair Refining Company's research laboratories at Harvey, Ill., received the $3,000 Ipatieff award for work in the field of catalysis and high pressure chemistry.
Other awards amounted to $1,000 each.
William Shive, University of Texas professor, received the 1950 Eli Lilly & Co. award in biological chemistry for discovering a new group of B-vitamins which may be used to treat anemia.

Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer, director of research for the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, won the Precision Scientific Company's award in petroleum chemistry for research in nuclear energy.

I. M. Kolthoff, University of Minnesota professor, won the Fisher Award in analytical chemistry.

Dr. G. G. Oberfell, vice president of the Phillips Petroleum Co., at Bartlesville, Okla., was principal speaker at the meeting. He charged that American anti-trust laws threaten to "sabotage the national security" by hampering industrial research.

William E. McKenney, "Mr. Bridge" to millions of American card players for the past quarter century, died Sunday of a heart disease at his home in New York. He was 59. McKenney was one of the founders of the American Contract Bridge League, its executive secretary for 18 years, a director of tournament play throughout the U. S. and one of the nation's top authorities on card games. For more than 20 years he wrote a daily bridge column distributed by NEA Service, Inc., to more than 650 newspapers. Only one thing was more important in Bill McKenney's life than bridge — his charitable work for crippled children, young cancer victims, underprivileged children and war orphans. As president of the War Orphans Scholarships, Inc., he conducted two nationwide fund-raising contests and provided educational help for more than 200 children of slain servicemen. (NEA Telephoto).

ful again for that! Now look at this print of Moody's hand. It's taken from the bronze cast. Contrast it with my fingerprints taken from the felt on the base of the telephone. See how the fine matted hairs of the felt, and the soft fuzz affect my finger tips.
There was no questioning the marked difference in the textures of the prints. Queripel went on: "Now here are the fingerprints of Moody labeled 'telephone base.' Can't you see the hard metal of a bronze surface showing through? Isn't it exactly the same as those prints of Moody's labeled 'from the bronze cast'?"
Queripel shook Stivers' world still further. "Here are my finger tips on a felt base. See what force I put on them, because I had to grip it hard to hold it. That shows in the prints, doesn't it? Now where is there the least similarity with the prints of Moody marked 'telephone base.' His prints show no pressure, no soft fuzzy felt, but only the light pressure of one who rests his hand softly on a bronze object."

Stivers laughed. "Your friend Moody may not be so grateful."
"Oh, but he will. And so will that wonderful girl, Azalea," said Stivers. "I took her prints, you know. But why should she be grateful? I thought she was engaged to this guy Moody."
"See it. And I'm glad she came to me with her scars for the veracity of fingerprints."
"Thank God!"
"Thank God?"
"Thank God for giving us fingerprints 'all unlike.'"

FINGERPRINTS Dont Lie By Rupert Hughes

THE STORY: Private detective Martin Queripel is trying to clear Paul Moody, a young sculptor, of charges in the murder of Wendell Palmer, father of Moody's fiancée, Azalea Palmer. Fingerprints on the base of a telephone lead to a dead-end. Queripel needs to find another lead. He finds a woman who had been substituted for those of the real murderer of the crime. Queripel and Stivers now have gone to Palmer's home to make a further check. Queripel is certain that the real murderer is Pete Kelo, another police detective.

Stivers waited while Queripel studied the enlargements of his own finger-tip patterns. He watched while Queripel put alongside them the eight prints of Paul Moody's labeled "telephone base." Still saying nothing, Queripel covered a large table with the different prints taken in Moody's studio. As he peered at them, and studied them with a microscope, he seemed to be shaking with excitement. Finally Queripel said, more to himself than aloud: "Thank God!"

"For what?"
"For giving us fingerprints 'all unlike.'"

Stivers laughed. "Your friend Moody may not be so grateful."
"Oh, but he will. And so will that wonderful girl, Azalea," said Stivers. "I took her prints, you know. But why should she be grateful? I thought she was engaged to this guy Moody."
"See it. And I'm glad she came to me with her scars for the veracity of fingerprints."
"Thank God!"
"Thank God?"
"Thank God for giving us fingerprints 'all unlike.'"

FINGERPRINTS Dont Lie By Rupert Hughes

THE STORY: Private detective Martin Queripel is trying to clear Paul Moody, a young sculptor, of charges in the murder of Wendell Palmer, father of Moody's fiancée, Azalea Palmer. Fingerprints on the base of a telephone lead to a dead-end. Queripel needs to find another lead. He finds a woman who had been substituted for those of the real murderer of the crime. Queripel and Stivers now have gone to Palmer's home to make a further check. Queripel is certain that the real murderer is Pete Kelo, another police detective.

Stivers groaned as Queripel went on:
"Cheer up, man. You did your work perfectly. But you couldn't be expected to distrust another member of the police force. Yet it's the old Latin saying all over again. 'Who will guard the guards?' We have guardians, and most of them are willing to risk death at their task. But you can't guarders to that all Kelo will or that all of them are honest. The very honesty of the honest ones works to protect the crookedness of the crooks."

From his utter misery Stivers spoke:
"You're accusing Kelo of murder and of destroying the evidence against him. That's a pretty serious charge, Queripel. You haven't an iota of evidence against him."
"That's all too true," said Queripel. "You've got to start all over and get it."
"Get it? Where?"
"I'll admit the trail is pretty cold by now. Kelo probably destroyed the prints you took from the telephone, if my theory is correct," said Queripel. "But when you collected your specimens from the Palmer home, did you take any from the back doors or window sills or other places the killer might have entered?"
Stivers sighed. "Of course not," he said. "I suppose you'll

Soviet Magazine Flays Treatment Of Gubitchev

MOSCOW, March 29. (UP)—The Soviet magazine Literary Gazette said today that "American intelligence officers and the State Department acted like professional gangsters" in the deportation of Valentin A. Gubitchev.

(Gubitchev, convicted as a spy in an American court, arrived in Southampton, Eng., aboard the Polish ship Batory yesterday on his way back to Russia.)

Literary Gazette said Gubitchev, a member of the Soviet United Nations Delegation, "was delivered to his ship by a reinforced convoy, with the whole way from the courtroom to the pier teeming with gendarmes."

"When the ship finally sailed, it was escorted by police vessels, including one warship," the magazine said.

Here's Elegance in the Outdoors

For a touch of elegance in outdoor living, here's a suggestion for your barbecue pit. The decorative panel done in Mosaic tile as illustrated above is only one of the many ways in which you can give your outdoor fireplace that little "extra"—that something to draw "Ohs" and "Ahs" from your guests. As a conversation piece alone, this mural in tile is worth its weight in small talk. Since most outdoor barbecues have little in themselves to make them distinctive, a colorful and ingenious use of tile will set your fireplace as much apart as your imagination will allow. For example, in place of the decorative panel as pictured here, you may prefer to create a personalized coat of arms in tile mosaic and have it set in your new barbecue fireplace. Or, after the manner of the Egyptians, you may prefer to tell your story in make-believe hieroglyphs. In any event, here is an idea you may want to explore further. For more information, just drop a card in care of this newspaper or write direct to the Mosaic Tile Company, Zanesville, Ohio.

FOREIGN JAYCEE TO STUDY LIFE AT AMARILLO

ABILENE, March 29. On March 29th, the Amarillo Jaycees will receive as their foreign guest Eric Geiger, Salsburg, Austria Jaycee. Geiger will visit in the homes of Amarillo Jaycees for a period of two weeks, observing their way of life, business practices and Amarillo industries for a clear cut view of the free enterprise system. This is the culmination point of the Amarillo Jaycees Universal Understanding Program.

The plan started a year ago when the Amarillo Jaycees began corresponding with the Salsburg Jaycee club and through an extensive exchange of letters between the two organizations, a strong friendship was thus created. The final phase of the plan called for the Amarillo Jaycees extending an invitation to the Salsburg club for them to send a representative to Amarillo for a period of two weeks to observe the American way of life, with the main hope that the impressions of the visitor would be carried back to his native land and told to his organization, friends and relations, the advantages of a free and democratic nation such as America. The plan is general in scope to promote a better understanding between our nation and those abroad.

E. M. Kirkpatrick, Jr., President of the Texas Jaycees, said that "This program has far reaching international implications and will do much to foster the ideals of democracy in foreign countries and especially those who are subjected to approaching communism." In Salsburg, Geiger is employed in the Utility Section of the U. S. Occupation Forces as personnel manager. Geiger will be a guest at the Texas Jaycees 23rd State Convention in Fort Worth, April 15-16.

All of Geiger's expenses, including air transportation to and from Salsburg, Austria is being borne by the Amarillo Jaycees. He will return to Austria by plane on April 17. Geiger arrived New York City by plane on March 27 and will be greeted by Jaycee officials there, as well as Chicago and Kansas City while enroute to Amarillo, Texas.

Other foreign countries which Texas Jaycee clubs are now participating with in this program include: Turkey, Belgium, Ireland, Cuba, Australia, Mexico, Greece.

Dan Higgins, Amarillo, is state chairman for the Texas Jaycees Universal Understanding Program with Frank Storm in charge of the Amarillo Jaycees program including arrangements for Geiger's visit.

CORTISONE WORTH MORE THAN WEIGHT IN GOLD

(Editor's Note: The following dispatch, third of a series, reports on progress made on the production of the rare hormone, cortisone.)
By Paul F. Ellis
United Press Science Editor
NEW YORK, March 29 (UP)—Cortisone, the wonder hormone, is worth 100 times its weight in gold.
An ounce of gold sells for $35 if you can get it. An ounce of cortisone costs $3500, and the demand is increasing every day as medical scientists discover the effectiveness against disease.
Cortisone, now made synthetically to a degree, originally cost $200 a gram, then $150 and now $135. More reductions undoubtedly will be made when a complete synthesis is completed.
Research scientists at Merck & Co., Rahway, N. J. hope that the story of cortisone may compare to that of two of the wonder drugs—penicillin and streptomycin. The initial price of penicillin was $20 for 100,000 units. The wholesale price is now 12 cents. Streptomycin sold originally at $15 per gram. It is now less than 50 cents a gram.
The reduction in the cost of penicillin came as a result of improved and more economical ways to produce the drug.
The first quantities of cortisone were made available by Merck late in 1948. In those days, supplies measured only a few grams. During 1949 production steadily increased and the supply was measured in hundreds of grams. Today, the supply can be measured in thousands of grams produced monthly.
But the shortage of the hormone continues; in fact, is greater in a way because of a scramble among medical men and laboratory experts to get their hands on any amount of the substance. Discovery that cortisone and another hormone, Acth, has an apparently significant role in the health of man has brought medical science to the threshold of a new era.
But why the difficulty in getting cortisone on a mass production basis?
In the first place, the only known practical method of making cortisone starts with two chemicals, known as cholic and desoxycholic acid. They are obtained from the bile of cattle, and it has been estimated that 40 cattle are required to make enough cortisone for one average dose.
But even with the starting material, the road to cortisone still is long. The Merck scientists are now concentrating on ways for a total synthesis of cortisone, and they believe they will succeed.
Meanwhile, potential starting

Our goal, of course, is service for everyone—the kind he wants, when and where he wants it. For the time being, though, in many neighborhoods we must continue to say:

materials other than that from bile of cattle are under investigation. They include vegetable sources, cholesterol from wool fat, and substances from various special plants, including the Mexican yams.
The Merck scientists point out that successful total synthesis of cortisone may require development of new techniques and procedures now unknown in the realm of organic chemistry. Such problems also faced the makers of the atomic bomb, but the problems were solved.
The scientists, confident of ultimate victory, are pushing three attacks in the battle to increase cortisone production. They are: 1. Improvement of present processes; 2. Discovery of more abundant and less costly starting materials for partial synthesis; 3. Total synthesis of cortisone from inexpensive and readily available materials.
