

Truman, Stalin Playing For Keeps Today

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Foreign News
Editor

President Truman and Premier Stalin are playing for keeps today on the checker board of diplomacy.

It's Stalin's move.

He may ponder for quite a while before he makes it, for the stakes are high—the risk of an atomic war. Any small incident might convert the Korean war into a world war.

And he may delay his move because he now finds himself in an unfamiliar tactical position. Up until now the Russian strategy in the Cold War has been to make a bold, sudden move that puts the other fellow on the defensive. That's the technique Moscow used in the Berlin blockade, the seizure of Czechoslovakia and the conquest of China.

But this time Truman made the bold, sudden move. He ordered air and sea support for South Korea, and most of the non-Communist nations rallied to him. And today Stalin has in front of him an American note calling on him to help halt the Korean war by using his influence with the Korean Reds.

That note puts the issue squarely up to the man in the Kremlin, and the world waits breathlessly for him to move. There are three broad courses of action Stalin can take.

1. He can sit tight and say nothing for a while. If the Korean Communists lose the war, the Kremlin then can say that it had nothing to do with the invasion, and, in fact, didn't know anything about it until it happened. If the Korean Reds win, Moscow then can hail the establishment of another "peoples Republic" and start making more plans.

2. Stalin can tell Truman Russia is not involved in the war, but at the same time send secret aid to the Korean Reds. The way that probably would happen is that some "volunteers" would join the fighting in Korea. They wouldn't be able to speak very good Korean, but they would know how to maneuver a yak fighter plane and be familiar with the inside of a tank. The chances are they would speak pretty good Russian.

3. Moscow could take the big gamble and throw the Red Air Force and the Red Army openly into the war. If that happened, World War III probably would be here. Once American and Russian pilots began falling in flames through the Korean skies, it would be almost impossible to localize the war.

While Stalin has not spoken officially as yet, the Russian propaganda machine has gone into action. The Moscow radio today broadcast an attack on Truman, saying he had "taken direct acts of aggression against the Korean People's Republic."

The official propaganda line from Moscow is that the North Koreans were peacefully minding their own business last Sunday morning when suddenly they were attacked by bloodthirsty aggressors from South Korea. The Korean Communists, such in the manner of the minute men of the American revolution, grabbed their guns and began defending themselves. They continued to defend themselves until they had smashed their way into the South Korean capital of Seoul.

Seoul Falls; MacArthur Rushes Into Korea, US Planes Bombing

By Ernest Hoberrecht
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Thursday, June 29 (UP)—North Korean Communist forces have captured the South Korean Capital City of Seoul and are pressing Southward in pursuit of Republican troops reported fleeing in hopeless confusion.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced early today that the U. S. Air Force had carried out its first "successful" bombing of North Korean concentrations. The Americans suffered their first plane losses—an F-82 fighter and a B-26 assault bomber destroyed aground by strafing after they made emergency landings South of Seoul.

The U. S. air attack was concentrated on Munsan, 22 miles north of Seoul. North Korean troops, truck convoys and rail yards were pounded and gunned at this key supply center of the invaders.

The Northern forces already were 10 miles beyond Seoul and 53 miles inside South Korea with seemingly little prospect of meeting any ground resistance short of the Im river, another 60 miles to the South.

Front reports said broken elements of the Seventh and Second divisions, defenders of Seoul, were fleeing South in hopeless confusion, all their heavy American equipment lost.

The U. S. Air Force smashed at the North Koreans' Russian-made tanks with bombs, rockets and bullets in an all-out effort to stem the advance.

F-80 Shooting Star jet fighters and A-26 attack bombers were taking off in relays from Southern Japan to hammer the North Korean communication lines.

U. S. forces which set up headquarters at Suwon, 20 miles South of Seoul, only yesterday expected momentarily to get orders to leave. Kimpo airfield, 17 miles North-west of Seoul, fell to the North Koreans during last night and Suwon is the last effective air base in South Korea.

American officers blamed the South Koreans' fear of tanks and far-ranging 120-millimeter guns for their collapse.

The South Korean government under President Syngman Rhee fled Seoul to Taegon, 85 miles to the south, just ahead of the advancing Communists.

First reports of the city's fall came from the Seoul radio, now operated by the Communist invaders, and the North Korean government radio at Pyongyang, the Northern capital.

They reported that Red troops had "liberated" government offices, the U. S. embassy, the radio station and newspapers in Seoul and completely occupied the city.

Confirmation came later from Rutherford Posts, United Press staff correspondent who flew from Southern Japan to Suwon with the U. S. Air Force.

An Air Force spokesman said that up to last midnight Korean time (10 a. m. EDT) nine North Korean fighter planes had been shot down—eight by American-manned U. S. fighters.

American planes covering the air evacuation from Kimpo airfield shot down five. Three were shot down by U. S. fighter planes in the vicinity of Seoul. Another was destroyed in aerial combat.

Polio Strikes 107 New Victims Last Week In State, Hikes Total For 1950 To 824, Officers Say

AUSTIN, June 28 (UP)—Polio struck 107 new victims in Texas last week, hiking the total for 1950 to 824, State Health Officer George W. Cox reported today.

A total of 96 cases were reported for the preceding week. The added toll for the week ending June 24, marked the seventh consecutive week in which the polio rate has climbed.

Dallas led all counties on the last county with 19 new cases. Cox warned that the worst had not been reached.

Polio, he said, would hit its peak "in the next couple of months."

The 824 cases thus far this year compared with 570 during the comparable period last year, a 12-months that shattered all previous polio records for Texas.

The latest report brought polio into 116 counties of the state's 254. In the same time last year, the disease had been reported in 89 counties.

Ten new counties joined the ranks last week.

They were Cochran, Colorado, Henderson, Kaufman, Knox, Lamb, Leon, Marion, Polk and Van Zandt counties. Each reporting one case.

The latest report marked the first week in 1950 that 100 mark had been cracked, comparing with 106 cases for the same week in 1949. The same week marked the first over-100 week last year.

Other counties reporting included:

Tarrant, 11; Bexar and Harris, 9 each; El Paso and Jones, 5 each; Navarro, 4; McLennan, 3; Ellis, Harde-man, Hidalgo, Jack, Nueces and Wichita, 2 each; Bee, Dawson, Foard, Freestone, Gray, Harrison, Lamar, Lubbock, Midland, Pecos, Reagan, San Patricio, Smith, Taylor, Tom Green, Victoria, Wharton, Wheeler, Williamson and Wise, 1 each.

Russo Official Newspaper, Pravda, Charges US With Direct Aggression Against North Korean Republic

By Henry Shapiro
United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, June 28 (UP)—The official newspaper Pravda charged the United States today with "a direct act of aggression" against North Korea and the (Communist) Chinese People's Republic. The newspaper demanded: "Haven't they gone too far?"

Pravda said President Truman's announcement that the U. S. Navy and Air Force will help protect Formosa and South Korea violated the United Nations charter. The U. S. acted as if the UN did not exist, it said.

But Pravda did not indicate what Russia intended to do about it.

(Russia is bound to Communist China by a 30-year treaty of friendship, alliance and mutual aid, signed in Moscow last February. It binds either country to give immediate help to the other if it is attacked by Japan "or any state allied with her." Although no Soviet North Korean alliance has been announced, Russia set up the Communist government in North Korea and trained and supplied its army.)

Pravda said President Truman's order to the Seventh Fleet to protect Formosa constituted "factual occupation of part of China's territory by the American armed forces."

Both Pravda and the government newspaper Izvestia reported President Truman's announcement in 24 lines on the third from the last page and cited the "New York radio" as its source.

Only Pravda commented editorially on the announcement.

"Who authorized the U. S. government to take such a step?" Pravda demanded.

"In deploying its armed forces, did the United States government conform its policy with the UN faithfulness, which President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson are proclaiming?"

"When did the Security Council decide to untie the hands of the U. S. government so as to undertake direct aggression?"

"As is well-known, neither the UN nor any other international organization authorized the U. S. government to undertake those actions—by undertaking this open aggressive act, the American government obviously intended to present the accomplished fact before the UN."

Pravda said that Korean events "reveal with all clarity that the imperialist war-mongers will not stop half way." It contended that the American-supported South Korean Republic started the war in Korea by invading Northern Korea.

UN Diplomats Fear Russian Armed Help

Other Countries May Help America

By Bruce W. Munn
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., June 28 (UP)—United Nations diplomats feared today that Russia may send fighting aid to North Korean Communists and withdraw from the United Nations.

That will be Russia's retaliation to back that the U. S. is guilty of aggression and its blunt answer to military sanctions voted against the Northern Koreans last night by the security council, various delegations believed.

Few delegations felt that the Soviets would go as far as declaring war.

To file formal aggressor charges against the United States in the world organization, Russia would have to end its six-month boycott of the Security Council.

But the council already has sided with the United States by voting 7 to 1 to take military sanctions for the first time in UN history. And there already were indications that Great Britain, France and Australia may soon have air and naval units fighting beside those of the United States.

It was reliably reported that those three powers had taken such action under serious consideration. Developments might be forthcoming later today when the UN's military staff committee holds a closed meeting in Manhattan.

The vote which invited other countries to join the U. S. in shooting aid to South Korea came at 10:45 P. M. EDT yesterday after a five-hour delay to permit India and Egypt to get instructions from their governments.

In the end, however, those two countries reserved their position as the council approved an American resolution inviting all UN members to "furnish such assistance to the republic of Korea as may be necessary to repel the armed attack" of the Northern Korean army.

The lone opposition vote was cast by Yugoslavia. India and Egypt asked that it be noted specifically that they had neither voted for or against the resolution, nor had they abstained.

He served eight years as state representative, eight as state senator, president of the Texas Senate, and acting Lieutenant Governor for seven months following the death of Governor Beauford H. Jester.

Eastland Plans Big Fourth Of July Celebration

EASTLAND, (Special)—Eastland's biggest and best Fourth of July celebration since pre-war days is planned for next Tuesday, when an all-day party, to be concluded by a bathing beauty revue, fireworks, and a square dance, will be held on City Park Hill here.

People from Eastland and nearby counties were invited to attend the celebration by Bob Gilchrist, Eastland Oil operator who is general chairman for the affair.

The day's festivities will begin with a free breakfast at the park at 6:30 a. m. Then will come swimming and diving events, band concerts, games and contests, a show by six Air Force jet planes which will be over the park some time during the day, the bathing revue at the park pool, the fireworks display, featuring hundreds of dollars worth of spectacular illuminations, and the square dance in the American Legion Hall adjacent to the park.

"It will be real old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration without the duller events and with modern touches added," said Gilchrist. "We're expecting just about everybody in this area to be in Eastland for the Fourth."

Golfers Start Qualifying In County Meet

Qualifying for the county-wide invitational golf tournament to be held in Eastland July 2 and 4 will begin immediately, Jimmy Harkrider has announced.

All Eastland county golfers are invited to enter the tournament. "We want everybody in the county who can hit a golf ball to enter," Harkrider said.

Harkrider stated that for linksmen who do not live in Eastland but are interested in playing in the tourney officials will accept qualifying scores from the Ranger, Cisco or Breckenridge courses, if those players find it impossible to qualify on the Eastland course.

Qualifying ends at 7 p. m. Saturday and all entries must be in by that time. Entry fee for the meet is $2.50. Harkrider announced that there will be no barbecue or Calcutta pool at the tournament. Several nice prizes will be awarded flight winners.

Match play in the tourney will begin Sunday, July 2 at 7:30 a. m. There will be two matches Sunday with no match play Monday. Semi-finals and finals will be held Tuesday, July 4, in connection with the mammoth celebration in Eastland that day.

The greens are in excellent shape according to Harkrider. Two men are working daily on the fairways and one man waters the greens each day.

National Guard Asks, "Boss Can You Spare A Man" For Two Weeks

In a few weeks, some thousands of your fellow-citizens will have begun a sudden transformation. They will have shed their mailman's uniform, their butcher's apron, their mechanic's coveralls, their business suits. And they will have donned khaki cotton uniforms. They will have abandoned their mailbags, their cleavers, their tools, their desks, or their schoolbooks, to manhandle heavy guns into towing position behind prime movers, to heave duffel bags and field ranges and other martial gear into GI trucks or baggage cars.

No, the cold war hasn't suddenly turned hot—it's just a phenomenon of American life that has been repeated every year for decades, barring the years in which actual shooting wars were going on. It's the preparation for the National Guard's annual field training period.

Between early June and early September, this activity will have taken place in thousands of communities across the Nation, and upwards of 300,000 National Guardsmen will have put in their 15 days of Summer camp as a means of rounding-out their preparation for defense of their homes and yours, their country and yours.

That two weeks is the climax of a whole year of two-hour once-a-week drills back home. In their armories, the troops have done their classroom and drill floor work. But that is only the first step, comparable to the football team's "skull sessions." But it is only in field training that they can learn through their various plays and learn to function—and fight, if it becomes necessary again—as a team.

That, after all, is their mission. Those men cause us no concern. They're doing their job and their duty. But there will be blank spaces in many of the squads and gun crews—spaces that would be filled out but for one little hitch: The absentee's boss "couldn't spare" him from his workaday job. It leaves his company or battery in the same fix as a football team which finds that some of its most promising stars of the practice season, can't turn out for Saturday's game.

You—the boss—have problems galore. Each one of your workers has specific duties to perform, or you wouldn't have hired him. And when he's on vacation, someone else has to take up the slack. And if, on top of that, he's going to be let off for 15 days of field training, it's that much more of a problem.

The National Guard is asking that you exert that extra effort, to make the additional adjustment. One man, more or less, does make a difference to a squad or a gun crew—at least as important a difference as it makes to the operation of your business. It makes a difference in the status of training, ad operational efficiency, of the man's own outfit. Multiplied by 5,000 units, it makes a difference in the relative readiness of the whole National Guard which is striving to fit itself for a potential M-Day mission in the defense of the Nation.

Whether you are an industrial magnate, a merchant prince, or the proprietor of a three-man shop, it is important that you back up the men who are sacrificing much of their own time in the interest of preparedness. You can do this by letting them go to camp at no sacrifice of earnings or vacation rights.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS BY MERRILL BLOSSER

ALLEY OOP

BY V. T. HAMLIN

The National Guard does not expect you to denude your establishment of male employees every time field training season rolls around. It does ask you to encourage a reasonable portion of your workers—and this may vary among different businesses, or among various departments of a large concern—to join the National Guard and to attend summer camp without losing normal vacations or ending up financially out-of-pocket.

And when you do adopt such a policy, please see that "the word" is passed all down the line, so that everyone knows about it, and knows that you mean it. It will mean that much more of a contribution to the safety of your home, your family, your business, and your country.

Peace Or War Put Squarely Up To Russia

WASHINGTON, June 28
(UP)—Peace or World War
III was squarely up to Russia's leaders today.

That was the cold analysis of top-flight American officials who participated in the American decision to counter the Communist advances in Asia with American-manned planes and ships.

They were unanimous in their opinion that Russia holds the key to the fate of the world at this critical crossroads.

Russia's first official reaction came in a Moscow radio broadcast monitored in London. The official Communist party newspaper, Pravda, was quoted as saying the U. S. action "signifies that the U. S. government has taken a direct act of aggression against the Korean Peoples' Democratic Republic and against the Peoples' Republic of China."

Implications of the action wer certain to unfold later today when President Truman, Defense Secretary Louis
Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Acheson make speeches or face open questioning here.

Government Prepares For Price Control

WASHINGTON (UP) — June 28 (UP) — The government is ready with plans for reviving rationing and for controlling prices, wages and jobs if the Korean action draws the United States into a real war, but—

Officials are keeping their blueprints on ice on the assumption that they will not be needed.
The plans have been drawn up by the National Security Resources board, which has the job of coordinating all military, industrial and civilian war plans and of recommending specific actions to President Truman.

"We are alert and waiting for instructions from the White House," a spokesman said.

The instructions would be to lay its plans on the President's desk. This is not expected unless Truman first asks Congress for emergency war powers to put the recommendations into effect. He has no plans to do that now.

The recommendations would cover wage, price, job and production controls, production schedules, rationing and civil defense.

American Bishop Charges Spying In Bucharest

BUCHAREST, Romania, June 28 (UP)—American Catholic Bishop Patrick O'Hara was charged today with being the leader of an underground in Romania engaged in espionage and plotting to overthrow the government.

(Bishop O'Hara was appointed Charge D'Affaires of the Papi-Nuncio in Bucharest in January 1947. Prior to that he was bishop of Savannah-Atlanta, Ga., and, earlier still, Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia. He has been denounced in the Romanian press in the past on charges of stirring up political activity among the bishops.)

The accusation was made in the indictments of seven Romanians on charges of high treason, espionage and smuggling, and helping persons to flee the country. The death penalty was demanded for all seven by the prosecution when the trial opened here today.

The indictment also named Capt.
Eugene F. Karpe, former U. S.
Naval attache here, who was killed under mysterious circumstances
Feb. 23 while traveling through Austria on the Orient Express.

"Mutang" that had been turned over to the South Koreans.

A MacArthur spokesman said that as far as he knew the North Korean forces have not received any reinforcements.

Without revealing any specific details, the spokesman said that MacArthur is getting military equipment to the South Koreans as quickly as possible. He would not estimate when it would get to the battlefield.

The spokesman said that the loss of Seoul and its Port of Incheon left only the Port of Pusan, about 450 miles to the Southeast, for the delivery of U. S. aid by sea.
Pusan does not have as good facilities as Incheon.

The Air Force spokesman said that all U. S. planes still are operating out of Japan and that none are based in South Korea. No word had been received here of casualties.

Had Neuritis Pains So Bad His Fingers Swelled—Shoulder and Hip Pains Almost Unbearable

Until HADACOL Relieved the CAUSE—Lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in His System

Mr. A. Kramer, Marrero, La., really had it bad. He was having a tough time of it because he suffered so from neuritis pains—or what is sometimes known as rheumatism pains caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin. Mr. Kramer had pains so bad that his fingers would swell and he could hardly use his right hand. Such pains in his shoulders and hips were almost unbearable. He even had his teeth pulled but got no help.

Then this lucky man discovered HADACOL. Now he sings as he plows his fields. He says that he'll never be without HADACOL, and he takes it every day. Now there's a smart man because he wasn't satisfied going through life continuing to suffer. He did something about it. And he wasn't satisfied with symptomatic relief. Mr. Kramer finally relieved the REAL CAUSE of his trouble—lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in the system. And HADACOL supplies your system with more than its daily needs of these vital elements plus helpful amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese. HADACOL will start you on the road to feeling better within a few days' time if you have such deficiencies. AND CONTINUED USE OF HADACOL not only gives complete relief but also relieves frequent such tormenting aches and pains from returning. That's why people troubled with such deficiencies should try HADACOL if they want to experience honest-to-goodness freedom and relief from such misery.

Sold on Strict Money-Back Guarantee

You have wonderful health benefits to gain—not a penny to lose when you buy HADACOL. It must help you or your money will be returned, act now. Trial size, only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50.

Boswell's Son-In-Law Teaches One Of First Business History Courses Offered In US Colleges

AUSTIN (Sp.)—The University of Texas is pioneering in the teaching of the business history of the United States.

"Business know-how is America's chief contribution to the history of the world," says Dr. Joe B. Frantz, now teaching one of the first courses to be offered in the South in UN business history.

Dr. Frantz is a frequent contributor to historical and business magazines.

Dr. Frantz is the son-in-law of Ranger Superintendent of Schools Dr. G. C. Boswell.

"Some may argue that America has contributed comic books and jazz to the world, but when looked at from the vantage point of the year 2500, it will be business acumen that the people of the US will be noted for," Dr. Frantz believes.

The Universities of Georgia and Oklahoma are the only two schools in the South which are starting similar courses. Only 20 schools in the country are offering it.

Dr. Frantz says the reason business history has been so long away from the curriculum is that business men are not usually interested in history and historians are not usually interested in business men.

Thirty students are in Dr. Frantz's class this summer. He considers this a large class because of the senior standing and tough prerequisites required.

One of the reasons some are taking the course is to learn how to write business histories. Until now large American businesses were so busy making money, opening new plants and inventing new products they had little time to look back and take stock of their growth.

"The Humble Oil Company," says Dr. Frantz, "is one of the first to hire a really good, comprehensive biography written about itself."

Dr. Frantz is expecting other Texas companies to follow this example.

Business men need to know the history of business and its evolutionary aspects. "If business men knew history better, they might avoid now some of the pitfalls of the past," the professor says.

He emphasizes that business lives in a world of people. "Business should know how best to serve people so people can serve it," Dr. Frantz says.

In the fall Dr. Frantz and Dr. Frank Knapp, will teach a sophomore course in the business history of the US. It will be primarily for business administration majors and will satisfy the University's requirement of a course in US history.

Dr. Frantz received his doctor's degree in history from UT in 1948 with a dissertation written on Gall Borden, founder of the evaporated milk industry.

Last year with a post-doctorate fellowship Dr. Frantz studied at the Harvard Business School. While there he wrote a case history of the Borden Company which is used by Harvard in its teaching of business history.

Dr. Frantz is a frequent contributor to historical and business magazines.

The Copey oak, dominating forests that border the Inter-American Highway in Central America, is a white oak that was unknown to science as a distinct species until 1942, says the National Geographic Society.

Truman is a politician. It is his job to know the sentiment. He's got a staff of experts feeling it out, and he's been in the game long enough that he should almost automatically feel the pulse-beat of the American people.

If that pulse-beat seemed so weak to him that he doubted whether the people would support Korea he should have withdrawn long before this.

With the increasing sophistication of America there is an apparent weakening of moral courage.

When the US was a 'four letter word' weaker than now, Monroe

Ranger Rambling

Truman two days too late, probably, got around to order the United States air and navy arms to take effective action in the Korean war.

No government should ever be caught flat-footed as the administration was Sunday and Monday.

Even if you're one that doesn't think the U. S. should defend Korea, you can't defend the administration's dilly dallying.

I don't know how they did it in Missouri when Truman grew up. But back in the Oklahoma hills where I got my raising, a kid knew where and when he was going to fight.

If a kid didn't know that, he was bullied out of school, out of his playground and off of the sidewalk.

Most kids know enough to be able to pick their place to fight, scratch a chalk line with their toe and stand their ground. When a kid doesn't know that, he gets chased from one end of town to the other.

But the administration run by guys who ought to know the basic rules of getting along, hasn't got as much common sense as Johnny.

If we didn't intend to hold Korea, we shouldn't have been there. If we did intend to hold Korea, we should have let the world know it.

And when the Reds decided to invade Korea there should have been no need of two-days-long conference to decide what we should do.

Now there's those perhaps that might defend Truman's policy or lack of policy on the ground that he didn't know what the sentiment of the American people would be.

Truman is a politician. It is his job to know the sentiment. He's got a staff of experts feeling it out, and he's been in the game long enough that he should almost automatically feel the pulse-beat of the American people.

If that pulse-beat seemed so weak to him that he doubted whether the people would support Korea he should have withdrawn long before this.

When the US was a 'four letter word' weaker than now, Monroe was able to chalk a line with his toe and tell the world where to head in with a Monroe Doctrine.

Andrew Johnson after the Civil War, with the country still split up by reconstruction and with his seat in the presidency not so firm, still had the moral integrity to tell France to scram out of Mexico.

But apparently we are now getting so strong, so big and so smart that we've forgotten how to draw that chalk line.

I don't know whether the pulse-beat of Ranger is typical of the pulse-beat of the US. But I was mighty surprised to find so many people ready for us to use troops to defend Korea.

There was no Shilly-Shallying around Tuesday morning when I got on the phone to find out what a few people thought about the Korean war.

On ninety per cent of the stories I have done of this type, I've had to dig like a rotary rig in hard granite to get a 50 per cent straight answer.

Tuesday, I asked them to commit themselves as to the use of troops and they did so.

Too late for the paper was Brann Garner's comment—"I think we ought to eat them blood raw." And Tuesday afternoon, I did a little more pulse feeling and came up with the same answer though not in those words.

Anyway it almost makes you want to vote Republican—except that old party doesn't seem to have as much policy as the Democ. So where is the leadership this country ought to have?
