MARINES LAND AT WONSAN—South Korean units raced through Kojan (1) only 18 miles from Manchurian border with 20,000 Marines spearheading landing at Wonsan, for the Allied knock-out drive. Marines were moved by sea from Inchon to the east coast port, picking up the U. S. 7th Division en-route at Pusan. Marines were sent to back up S. Korean forces around Sinju (2) while the 7th Division began moving northeast to support the ROK's north of Tanchon (3). On the northwest coast, British and Yank forces overcame slight enemy resistance at Pakchon and were only 67 miles from Sinuju (4), target city on the Yalu River Frontier. (NEA Telephoto).

Dist Leaders Clash Tonite

Minus shoulder-pads, other heavy protective equipment and some players wearing T-shirts, the Bulldogs ran through a final, light scrimmage yesterday afternoon. The moon didn't quite make it this time as Coach Warden sent the boys in around six o'clock. Most of the easy-going work-out was spent running up and down the field putting that final touch to offensive plays.

Coach had a touch of the flu yesterday and was given a shot of penicillin last night, Coach Warden said. He felt alright and the cold didn't seem to be bothering him too much. He'll be ready to go tonight.

Hamilton comes to Ranger, rated the underdog according to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Ignoring pre-game opinions, Ranger fans look for a hard struggle against the Hamilton bulls.

Reports point to a large following of Hamilton fans invading the Bulldog's home field. And here in

500 Attend Barbecue By Stock Raisers

About 500 persons attended the annual Eastland County Livestock Raisers Association barbecue at the city park in Eastland, Thursday night.

Judge Milburn Long was elected president of the organization at the gathering.

Sutton Crofts was elected vice president and J. M. Cooper was elected secretary.

Leslie Hagaman of Ranger is the outgoing president of the association.

A barbecue supper was served, with the installation of the two service lines at the park allowing those attending to move through to get their food swiftly.

Following the barbecue supper, George Moore, range conservationist with the soil conservation service, from Mineral Wells, spoke on the preservation and growing of range grasses.

Judge Clyde Grissom gave a short history of the county Livestock Association preceding the introduction of the speaker.

It was the sixth annual barbecue of the group. Livestock raisers from throughout the county and beyond were present.

Ranger, the local's side of the stands will probably be packed.

Coach Pete Roach, who has tutored Hamilton for 11 years, and Ted Jones, assistant coach for 3 years, will bring a line averaging 183 pounds. The 20 - pound-outweighed Ranger squad will match their opponents with a faster backfield and more experienced forward wall.

Ranger eyes will be glued on Arbuckle, star lineman for Hamilton, and Tension, their triple-threat quarterback. This game will pit the T-formation of Ranger against Hamilton's double wing.

Both teams work equally well off the split-T, T-wing or spread. Next to the double wing, Hamilton prefers the spread formation. And, like other Ranger opponents they'll probably work off the spread as much as the double and single wing.

Woods, who has been a question mark in the Ranger backfield for the last two games, appears to be ready for tonight's crucial tilt. All other Bulldogs are in playing condition, Coach Warden said.

Harold Green Injured In Car Accident

Harold Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Green of 455 Pine St. Ranger, sustained broken ribs and chest injuries in a car-truck collision near Weatherford at 12:30 this morning.

Harold was brought from a Weatherford hospital to Ranger late this morning and was to have x-ray pictures taken of his chest.

The other occupant of the car was Miss Betty Bumpass of Eastland who suffered a minor back injury and scratches. She will be brought to Eastland today.

Harold was returning to Ranger when his car struck a large transport truck. The passenger car was demolished. The steering wheel was broken when Harold was thrown against it by the collision's impact.

Rep. Burleson Speaks Before HSU Students

ABLENE (Sp.) — There is nothing wrong with America that our governmental system and a trust in God will not cure, Omar Burleson, 17th district representative said in Abilene Thursday.

Burleson spoke to the Hardin-Simmons university students. Burleson gave a word of encouragement about the defense which is being made in the world for freedom, but warned that patience, learning of the truth, the end of political bickering, and a greater faith in what America is trying to do is necessary.

Burleson told his audience that House of Representatives members had warned the western European countries that they must do their share in a common defense. "There is too much thinking in Europe that America has a horn of endless plenty."

Although a strong defense will cause increased regimentation and is a threat to freedom, Burleson suggested that this was better than the spreading of blood. "Korea has reminded us what is before us," he said. The Asiatic conflict has strengthened the United Nations and given it "the start it needed," he stated.

Burleson was introduced to the students by President Rupert N. Richardson as a "member of the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy band." Burleson was a member of that organization in 1925-26.

Koreans Have Wise Proverbs, But Their Jokes Leave Yanks With Blank, Staring Look

By H. D. Quigg
WITH U. S. FORCES, Korea, Oct. 27 (UP) — Some American soldiers who have lived in Korea for some time doubt that the Koreans have much of a sense of humor. However, there is the opinion of the armed forces pocket guide to Korea. It says the Koreans have a keen sense of humor and an earthy common sense. They don't make the baby clothes until the wedding is announced.

Your correspondent had investigated even before hearing these opposed verdicts. The result was rather perplexing. As we walked together down a street in Seoul, I said to my Korean friend, George Suh, "George, tell me a Korean joke." There was a silence for a while and then George said, "what do you mean, a Korean joke?" I said, "I mean jokes that go around, that people tell each other. Aren't there any funny things that people say?"

George thought a long time. Then he said hopefully, "we have proverbs."

Got a lucky number? No—then how's this—3333. Five threes. In a poker hand, the pot would lean your way with those five of a kind.

And the $3,333.33 Community Chest pot is leaning YOUR way, hoping YOU'LL find a way to join Ranger's first combined drive for the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Child Welfare and Salvation Army.

In a town of 3800, the above figure would come to less than a dollar per person. The drive is on. Ranger merchants have responded warmly to the suggestion of one combined drive for welfare services, thus doing away with solicitation by each organization.

And the Community Chest guarantees the donor that he is supporting a legitimate and official organization. Contributions are already coming in and the Community Chest, encouraged by this sign of Ranger's generosity, hopes to surpass the original goal it has set.

For the past 28 years Ranger's Child Welfare Club has provided food for children that might otherwise have gone hungry. The money it obtains from Ranger citizens makes it possible to obtain school lunches, provide medical assistance and furnish clothing for those Ranger children unable to afford those necessities.

The responsibility of investigating and aiding unfortunate families has fallen, for the past several years, upon the Child Welfare Club. Now with the aid of ONE COMMUNITY CHEST, this agency hopes to perform a better and more complete service.

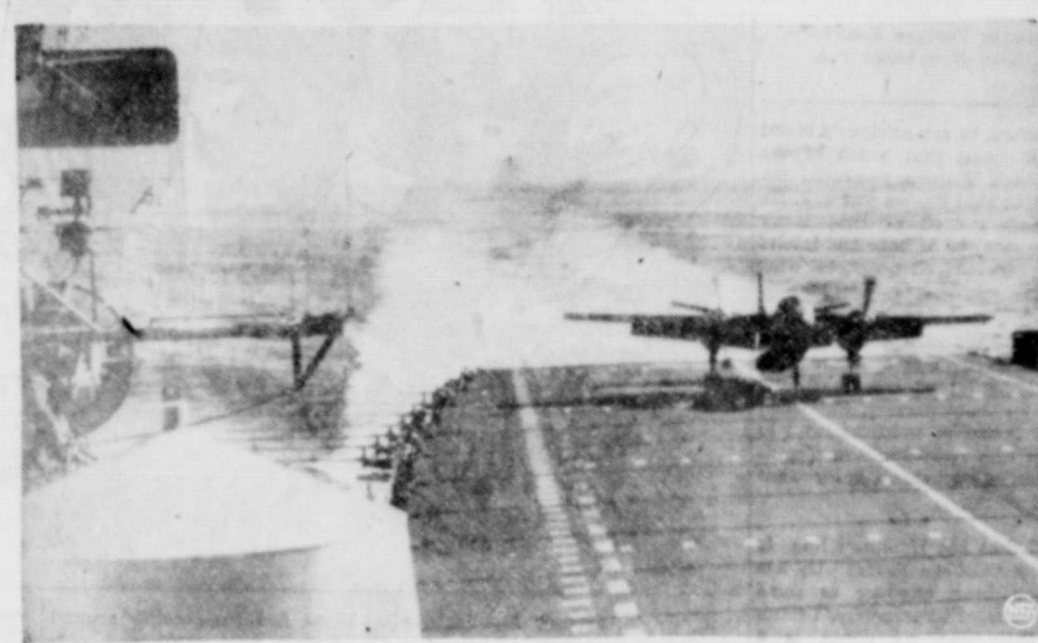

Mrs. P. M. Kuykendall, president of the Child Welfare Club for the past ten years, explained the organization's work. A school's principal is contacted and along with the recommendation of a teacher, and only after the strictest investigation, lunches and other assistance are provided for the needy children.

At Christmas time, women of the Welfare Club personally pack baskets of groceries and deliver them to families. The Child Welfare Agency is not a fly-by-night organization. It is a competent, expertly directed agency, performing a necessary service to the community.

RJC Bounces Back With 21-0 Victory

The point-starved Rangers came back with a vengeance last night, plowing under the North Texas State Fresh, 21-0.

Except for a recovered fumble on the Rangers 12-yard line, the NTSC squad never threatened. Other than the fumble play, they could manage to get no closer than RJC's 35 yard line.

The Rangers scored in the first, second, and third quarters, with L. Boynton converting all extra points. RJC's first drive was stopped shy of a first down by about 6 inches on the NTSC 10-yard line.

Shortly afterwards, Tidmore snagged a punt on his own 35 and behind precision blocking, scooped

Whipped Enemy Will Fight To The Last Man

By Earnest Hoberch
TOKYO, Oct. 27 (UP) — The whipped North Koreans, their shattered ranks reported reinforced by Chinese Communist troops, defiantly proclaimed today they would fight "to the last man."

War reports indicated the new Communist refusal to face up to defeat was a last empty gesture. Overwhelming allied forces stood at the Manchurian frontier, beat down spasms of Communist resistance, and rolled on toward final victory.

South Korean troops burst out of two traps 10 mile apart which the Communists sprang in sudden counter-blows midway between Pyongyang and the Manchurian border. Communist forces reported to include Chinese troops reeled back through the winter's first snows under Republican assaults which broke the temporarily encircling rings.

Fifty miles to the north, the South Koreans broadened their foothold on the south bank of the Yalu river, the frontier between Korea and Manchuria.

A 1st Division spokesman said he believed the road to the border would be cleared by the week-end, enabling the allied forces to sweep northward at will.

Significant of the breakup of the North Korean army and the shift toward guerrilla warfare, the spokesman said there were more Communist troops behind the lines than in front of them.

Two inches of snow fell in the mountains. It contributed to the slowdown of the South Korean Capital Division.

At high allied levels, inquiries about the Chinese Communist reports were met with reserve. Some responsible sources scoffed at the reports.

Yu said he believed China sent troops into Korea largely to protect the many electric plants in Northwest Korea along the Yalu River border.

But he added that the South Koreans intended to take the power plants regardless of any Chinese intervention.

He said the Communist forces who surrounded the 2nd Regiment at Sangkon included at least three Chinese battalions.

SHERMAN JONES OF LUBBOCK IS ONLY SURVIVOR WHEN COMMUNISTS BAYONET, BURN 29 GIS BESIDE PRISON TRAIN

UNSAN, North Korea, Oct. 27 (UP) — The bodies of 29 American war prisoners shot, bayoneted and burned by the North Koreans have been found beside the wreck of the long-sought prison train, a U. S. medical officer said today.

About 180 American prisoners were on the train when it ran off the rails last Monday near the small Chongchon River town of Kujang, 64 miles north of Pyongyang.

Communist guards took 30 prisoners who were too badly wounded or ill to walk, lined them up along the tracks and methodically shot and bayoneted them. Only one man survived—Sherman L. Jones of Lubbock, Texas.

The Reds set fire to the wrecked train and marched off the remaining 150 prisoners toward the Manchurian border. However, two escaped and told the grim story of the massacre to Lt. Wortham B. Robertson of (4506 West Eleventh St.) San Antonio, Texas. The two escaped men, Walter R. Whitcomb of Buffalo, N. Y., and Elmer N. Slater of an unidentified town in Illinois, said that another prison train which ran just ahead of the derailed section, was carrying other American prisoners toward Manchuria.

Among the prisoners on this first section, they said, was at least one high-ranking American officer.

The two sections were believed part of the same train from which Communist guards removed nearly 100 other feeble American prisoners at Sunan, 12 miles north of Pyongyang, a week ago today and machine-gunned them. Nearly 80 were killed, but 21 survived that massacre.

The two survivors of the latest atrocity were found by the U. S. 6th Tank Battalion, which was dashing north toward the Manchurian border in search of the missing train. Robertson said cars of the wrecked train still were burning when the tank forces reached Kujang. The bodies of the 29 slaughtered prisoners were found humped nearby, some of them charred from the fire.

Sixty yards from the wreckage, Robertson said, he found Jones, the sole survivor.

He said Jones told him he was captured July 27 while with Company B of the 29th Infantry Regiment on the southwest sector of the Pusan beachhead. Whitcomb was captured the same day while fighting with Company K of the same regiment. Slater was captured about the same time while serving with Company I of the 24th Division's 21st Regiment.

Both Whitcomb and Slater were taken south to higher military headquarters for medical care, rest, an interrogation.

Color TV Will Finally Show Patient Star

By Elizabeth Toomey
NEW YORK, Oct 27 (UP) — Color television is nothing new to Patty Painter, who's been its leading—if little known—star for four patient years.

Patty, a tiny 22-year-old blonde who came here from Beckley, W. Va., five years ago to model, has spent most of the past four years being photographed for color television, only she's been a star without an audience.

"The most people who ever saw one of my shows was 600 who attended a special demonstration one time in Washington," Patty recalled. "I was so pleased I nearly got the giggles."

Now, with permission granted for the Columbia Broadcasting System to begin color television commercially Nov. 20, Patty's on the verge of fame.

"I'd like a sort of informal interview program, just talking about ball games or fashions or children," she said dreamily, as technicians trained cameras on her for a special demonstration at the national business show.

Her opposition from established T.V. stars isn't worrying her too much. Some of them, she figures, will have a little trouble getting used to color. "The first thing they'll have to do is wash their faces," she said emphatically. "That heavy makeup looks awful in color."

Patty herself has a fragile blonde beauty, accented by pinked lips, just a light dusting of powder, and a faint touch of pink rouge. The pastel striped denim blouse she wore, she explained, has become a sort of uniform.

"It's an old beach blouse I converted because it has all the right colors. They like me to wear something that is not exciting in itself."

"Most of the time I just sit in a folding leather chair in the color laboratories while they photograph me," she said, when asked how she managed to sit out four years of experiments.

"Sometimes I knit, and sometimes I talk about the brightly-colored props they put up in front of me. I just say whatever comes into my head."

In March she signed a five-year contract to appear on color television. She'll no longer be the only girl working with some three dozen men, but there should be other compensations.

"The folks back in Beckley should be able to see me soon, then they'll believe I really am on television," said Patty, who lives in a Manhattan apartment with her mother and grandmother.

"Up to now they've thought I just disappeared into some never-never land."

SCENES AROUND RANGER

Move over, coaches, I'm betting my nails, too. I'm as nervous as a teetotaler passing through Mingo. This is it. Like the guy who said yesterday watching the Bulldogs practicing, I'd settle for a one-point victory, right now. The man next to him agreed and added, "But I'd have to see the game, too."

About the way I feel, it would be so nice to know for sure that we would win tonight but even if I knew, I'd still want to be there. And then I feel as sure as the Ranger power is standing that we'll win tonight, and yet I'm nervous and getting more excited as game time approaches.

Several people already stopped me to ask anxiously about Comanche and that touch of the fra. Coach Warden re-assured me last night that Santos was o. k. He just had a spell of that loggy feeling most of us have had lately. See it play tonight.

Now, after a week of being in the dark, we'll learn just what it is that Arbuckle and Tensionson have to show. They are forced to give us a lot of talk that fans beam up about players. But when you've heard as much about two players like Arbuckle and Tensionson, you're curious to know what they're all about.

And that big Hamilton line. Is it really "College Stuff"? Or has someone been handing us some "scare-gossip"? Personally, I think that their line no doubt is a hard-punching bunch, but stack them up against Ranger's forward wall and the Bulldog advantage will show in spirit, teamwork and hustle.

A big lineman is fine to have on your team. But can he shake that weight around for decisive blocking and tackling? And that's where I believe Ranger's line will outplay Mar-Bac. They are 20 pounds heavier according to someone's statistics but the Bulldog's speed will prove the difference.

Word has been going around the district how rough and rugged Hamilton is. I'm a little inclined to think that may have been started as a psychological stunt to scare opponents into believing they were meeting a bunch of "big brutes."

It isn't the first time Ranger has been outweighed and it certainly isn't going to be the last. Seeing them practice the last couple of days, the Bulldogs looked calm, cool, collected and decidedly ready to play. In fact, I became a little irked at the calm way they went about their scrimmage while I nervously fidgeted around. If I fall out of the press-box it will be my own fault.

While watching the Bulldogs practice each day this week I heard several remarks from on-lookers but the one that perked me up was when a fellow said that Comanche was really rooting for Ranger in this game. Coming from a team you have run over, that's a pretty good compliment of good ball playing.

Writer Picks Rice 21, Texas 19 A&M 40, Baylor 13—Mississippi 14 TCU 7—Vandy 20, Arkansas 13

By Ed Fite
United Press Sports Writer
The University of Texas Longhorns make the first of two "supreme" bids to uphold their pre-season Southwest Conference favorite's role this week with the down-but-not-out Rice Owls furnishing the opposition.

This game, which has grown into a grudge affair in recent years, is the headliner of a "half-and-half" loop card that is made up of two conference affairs and two inter-sectional jousts.

With the current No. 1 team, Southern Methodist, idle this week end, the Texas - Rice game at Houston takes over the spotlight ahead of the Texas A&M-Baylor contest, at Waco, the Arkansas-Vanderbilt clash at Little Rock and the Texas Christian-Mississippi game at Memphis, Tenn.

The boys who specialize in such things have established Texas as a six-point favorite over the Owls, the Aggies are given a 19-point bulge over Baylor, Arkansas seven over Vandy and Ole Miss six over TCU.

Texas must win this one to keep pace with mighty SMU, the next huddle in the Longhorn's path only a week later. Rice, too, must win if it is to keep alive its hopes of repeating as conference champion after being drubbed by SMU last week.

Observers generally agree that Texas wasn't as weak as it appeared in beating Arkansas only 19-14 last week and that Rice was closer matched to SMU than the 42-21 margin by which they lost to the Mustangs.

Superior reserve strength, concentrated in the line, forms the basis for the odds-makers' selections. But, Rice's stout first team has waded through four tough ball games without serious injury and will match Texas in peak physical condition for the game.

The Owls, in Vernon Glass, rate superior to Texas at the quarterback and passing slot, and in Billy Burkhalter, Sonny Wyatt and George Glauser appear to at least match Texas' ground attack built around Byron Townsend.

Having a game-long case of fumbleitis which bothered them in the first half against TCU last week, the Aggies should have little trouble disposing of Baylor despite the Bear's excellent passing on the part of Larry Isbell.

The big Aggie line shapes up as the type which can rush Isbell, just as it did Gil Bartosh and other TCU passers last week, and

A&M's running trio of Bob Smith, Billy Tidwell and Glenn Lipmann is far superior to anything Baylor has to offer on the ground.

Arkansas continues to be a puzzle, looking good one week and only mediocre the next as coach Otis Douglas tries to find a quarterback to make his bulky team move with precision. The Porkers will be catching Vandy on the rebound from an upset by Florida last week.

TCU, at full strength, probably would be a slight favorite over Ole Miss. But, with two first-line quarterbacks out of action and other injuries spotted though, the Horned Frogs will have their work cut out for them.

All things considered, here's how they look from here:
Rice 21, Texas 19.
Texas A&M 40, Baylor 13.
Vanderbilt 20, Arkansas 13.
Mississippi 14, TCU 7.
