Pups Play 2nd Game In Three Days Tonight

Ranger's undefeated Pups are so anxious to play that they will be in Breckenridge tonight for their second contest in three days. Probably one of the few if not the only unscored team in Texas, the Junior High squad will try to get their second win this year over the same team.

Earlier the Pups defeated Breckenridge in Ranger, 7-0. It was the closest game they've played so far. That unscored record of theirs is putting them on the spot with their opponents. The Pups have now scored 171 points for an average of 34 per game. James, the lineman who was hurt in the Mineral Wells game, sustained a broken foot. PeTrin missed school Wednesday because of a broken nose received in the same game.

A. Z. Myrick Named President Of Eastland County Farm Group

A. Z. Myrick of Cisco was elected president of the Eastland County Farm Bureau at a meeting in the conference room of the Texas Electric Service Co., at Eastland, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Other officers elected at the meeting were Howard Ingram, Nimrod, vice-president; Joe Bob Browning, Gorman, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. J. F. Moseley, Olden, reporter.

E. E. Blackwell is the outgoing president. Myrick was elected president for the past year.

Directors named at the meeting included W. B. Starr, Cisco; E. E. Blackwell, Ranger; Lloyd Freeman, Pioneer; Roy L. Palmer, Gorman; John Love, Ranger; George Bennett, Eastland; J. F. Moseley, Olden; Herman Schaefer, Nimrod; and Lee Starr, Cisco.

The meeting was held in the form of a county convention. Love announced that there were 127 paid members in the county at this time. He said, however, that a number of others were to be added to the list. He also reported on the finances of the organization.

Mrs. B. B. Freeman, Ed Steele, Jr., and Roy L. Palmer were chosen as the nominating committee to nominate the officers for the year.

All the nominations were approved. It was voted to present a resolution at the state convention stating that a peanut farmer, if desiring to do so, might get his peanuts graded a second time without any charge. The action was made because some farmers had been dissatisfied with the first grading and had taken their peanuts to another grader, had received a higher grade, but were required to pay $1 per ton charge.

Members also voted to present a resolution asking that a bonded and licensed weigher weigh all livestock sold at the small public livestock

Secret Service Agents Hunt In New York Slums

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 2 (UP)—Heavily-armed police and national guards seized Nationalist Party President Pedro Albizu Campos, alleged master mind of the attempted assassination of President Truman, and up to 30 other Nationalists and Communists today.

Police announced that those arrested included Ruth Reynolds, a veteran Nationalist Party member from the U.S. mainland, Francisco Matos Paoli, secretary general of the Nationalist Party, and Communist Party chieftain Cesar Andreu Iglesias.

Troops and insular police swooped on known Nationalists and Communists from dusk to dawn, driving some of them into custody with tear gas bombs and rifle fire. They said the drive would continue throughout the island.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (UP)—Secret Service agents and police hunted among 300,000 Puerto Ricans in this city's teeming slums today for two missing conspirators in the attempt on President Truman's life.

Mrs. Rosa Collazo, 40, defiant wife of one of the two fanatic rebels shot down in the Washington assassination attempt yesterday, was arraigned early today on charges of conspiracy and jailed on $50,000 bail.

Two mystery men, arrested when they appeared at the Collazo apartment in the East Bronx shortly after midnight today, were being held for investigation. But officials refused to discuss who they were or where they were being held. It was known one was carrying a gun and a letter from the rebel Communist-inspired Nationalist Puerto Rican movement to liberate the island from the United States.

Mrs. Collazo's arraignment shortly before 2 a.m. EST, climaxed a hectic 12 hours following the assassination attempt in which Ricans were seized in lightning raids by Federal agents, then released after questioning.

A black-shirted Nationalist rebel tossed a homemade gasoline bomb into the Broadway office of the Puerto Rican Labor department office. The bomb did not explode. The thrower escaped.

Four Puerto Ricans were wounded by a mysterious shotgun blast while they sat on a front porch only three blocks from the Collazo home. Police were not sure whether the shooting was linked to the assassination plot.

A swarm of police searched the steamship Puerto Rico after a report that a bomb had been placed aboard. Officials were reticent about the search. However, it was believed that no bomb was found. A detachment of police later were stationed aboard the vessel to guard it while it remains in port.

The dark-complexioned Mrs. Collazo defiantly told reporters in broken English before her arrest that "I am not surprised and I am not sorry" about the part her husband, Oscar, played in the assassination attempt yesterday.

NEWS PHOTOGRAPHER HEARS SHOTS FROM 200 FEET AWAY

Charles Corte, Acme-NEA photographer in the Washington Bureau saw the shooting. Here is his story:

I was in my car stopped for traffic light about 200 feet from Blair House when I heard shots. I grabbed my camera and rushed behind a concrete post across the street from Blair House. I saw one White House policeman kneeling in the middle of the avenue. He was wounded, I saw, but he was firing. I saw a figure lying at the bottom of Blair House steps.

Then there were more shots. I could hear the whine of bullets. I rushed over and made pictures of the man lying at the bottom of the steps. Nobody had yet touched him. He looked dead. His face and stomach were gory. I then took a picture of the police helping the wounded officer. He seemed to be breathing and alive although he was still. He was the man who I first saw shooting.

A Secret Service man grabbed me and said "there's another one behind the bushes". In front of Lee House, which adjoins Blair House. He was lying crumpled on his face with a pistol near his hand. It looked like a German luger. There was a hole in his hat and blood streaming down from the side of his face. His eyes were half opened and although he was lying there very still he seemed to be alive.

Bulldogs Run Thru Spirited Practice Wed.

Thoughts were all concentrated on the DeLeon Bearcats yesterday afternoon at Bulldog stadium. It was one of the most spirited scrimmages that the Bulldogs have run through. If a frame of mind is any indication, then the Bulldogs certainly looked ready for DeLeon.

Bill Yung pretended to be the Bearcats' Herman Johnson, 226-pound guard and half-back, as he gave his team mates a preview of what to expect from the DeLeon player.

Hummell's ankle was still swollen but the tackle suited out and took part in practice. Comacho who had played the Hamilton game with a fever and had been sniffing from a cold all week seemed about cured of the head cold and was running in his old style again.

Time was taken up mostly with defensive play against the DeLeon offense. A short session was held on punting and extra point kicking.

It was learned today that back Charles Masages sustained a slight concussion in Tuesday's practice session. Charles was in bed this morning with his face blacked from eyebrow to cheek, his mother said.

The concussion occurred above the eyebrow and Charles also suffered hemorrhage of the eye. Coach Warden was in Eastland this morning and no information could be had about Charles being able to play in DeLeon.

SEVEN US PRESIDENTS HAVE BEEN TARGET OF ASSASSINS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (UP)—Seven U.S. presidents have been targets of assassins. Three were killed and one wounded.

But until two Puerto Rican nationalists tried to shoot their way into Blair House yesterday, no killers ever had sought out a president in his home.

The other six attacks were made during public appearances, usually when crowds shielded the gunmen until the shots were fired. Abraham Lincoln was the first president to die by an assassin's bullet. His death prompted the secret service protection which saved President Truman's life yesterday.

Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth on April 14, 1865, in Ford's Theatre, about seven blocks east of the latest attempt on a president's life. Booth shot Lincoln in an effort to help the dying Confederacy.

James A. Garfield was shot in the Baltimore & Ohio station here

Six feet away from him on the sidewalk was another White House policeman. He was bleeding but was being assisted by two White House employees, and he seemed to be alive. About that time, motorcycle cops began arriving from all directions. They began to clear the area of a large group of passers-by who began milling around. Many of the passers-by ducked behind trees and posts while the shooting was going on, and they were rushing to the scene about that time when the shooting was apparently all over.

There was a lot of confusion and shouting. Everyone was trying to find out exactly what happened. One man yelled, "did they get the man." He was referring to the President. That was the big question everyone wanted to know. Was the President hurt. I knew the President was in the Blair House because we were to pick him up in front in a motor convoy to ceremonies at Arlington cemetery. I felt sure he was safe in Blair House because I saw a Secret Service agent, who usually drives for the President, outside, helping one of the wounded cops.

Another Agent told me that a third wounded policeman had been taken into Blair House. I did not see him. In about seven minutes, the whole area was crammed with ambulances, Washington police cars and fire engines. Secret Service men took charge of the crowd and a cord was forced around the whole block. The area was then cleared.

Meantime, the wounded policemen had been put into ambulances and taken away. Someone had turned over the body of the man at the bottom of the Blair House steps, loosened his belt and tie. He was obviously dead.

About the same time, they were lifting the man who was lying behind the bushes into the ambulance. Somebody shouted, "He is still alive!" I rushed through the crowd, luckily got a cab and raced back to the office.

Assassins tried to kill Andrew Jackson and Theodore Roosevelt. Franklin D. Roosevelt was the target of Joseph Zangara, an anarchist, at Miami, Fla., on Feb. 15, 1933, just before he took office for his first term. A woman deflected Zangara's arm and the bullet fatally wounded Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago.

Four of the assassins died for their crimes—Booth, Czolgosz, Guiteau and Zangara.

It is believed that as production increases, the company will further extend its gathering facilities.

CPS Receives Top Honors In Safety Contest

For the second consecutive year, top honors in the Public Utility Division of the National Safety Council's annual National Fleet Safety Contest have been won by Community Public Service Company for the lowest accident rate among trucks and pick-ups. Safety Director, W. J. Millican, of the firm's General Offices in Fort Worth, received the award on behalf of his company at a luncheon held at the La Salle Hotel in Chicago on October 19.

Lee Dockery, local manager of the Community Public Service, said the safety record was established in the section which included Ranger.

Community Public Service Company's fleet of trucks and pick-ups which established the fine record were driven a total of 2,901,506 miles from July 1949, through June of this year, with an accident rate of only .39 per 100,000 miles. Under contest rules, the slightest scratch or fender dent is considered a reportable accident.

Almost 1,500 fleets throughout the United States completed the contest, driving a total of 2,928,130,000 miles with only 1,866 accidents per 100,000 vehicle miles. This rate represented a 40 per cent improvement over the rate for last year's contest. CPS Co.'s rate was 5 last year, against .39 this year, representing an improvement of 22 per cent.

Commies Surround American Battalion

WITH U. S. 1ST CAVALRY DIVISION, Korea, Nov. 2 (UP)—Attempts to rescue an estimated battalion of American troops surrounded near Unsan were abandoned tonight, at least temporarily.

By Earnest Hoberrecht TOKYO, Nov. 2 (UP)—Two of three American battalions encircled by the Communists fought their way to safety to lay and re-joined United Nations armies battling desperately to restore the collapsing northwest front in Korea.

Rampaging Chinese and North Korean troops still held a third battalion in an iron grip near Unsan, 55 miles from the Manchurian border. A rescue column was six miles away.

All three battalions—totaling up to 3,000 troops of the 1st Cavalry Division—were tapped early today in a powerful enemy armored attack down both sides of Unsan in a bid to cut the allied line in two.

The massed enemy tanks, self-propelled guns, mounted troops and infantry pushed at least four holes in the allied defenses and sent the 1st Cavalry and South Korean 1st, 7th and 8th Division reeling back to new positions. Late front reports said the allies were holding firm in their new positions and then enemy attack was slackening. A 1st Corps spokesman called the situation "a little brighter" this afternoon.

A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported that the Reds had thrown elements of four North Korean divisions and three brigades against the hinge of the allied line at Unsan. A 1st Corps spokesman in Korea said at least one Chinese division—the 3rd—also is in the attacking force.

A Red breakthrough there would cut the allied line in two and cut off U. S. 24th Division vanguards driving along the highway only 14 miles from the border.

Part Of Winning War Includes Cargo Planes Carrying, Condensed Milk, Spam, Ammunition Over Mountain

By H. D. Quigg
WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA, Nov. (UP)—There's no glory in jockeying 7,000 pounds of condensed milk or ammunition or spam over the Korean mountains in a cargo plane every day.
But the job is as important to winning the war as that of the combat soldier. For a soldier cannot keep fighting unless he is supplied.
Come along on a "routine flight" with a Brooklyn pilot, a Massachusetts co-pilot and a Texas crew chief who are part of the gloriolous war. There is a workaday, thankless job moving of cargo, troops, supplies, and mail—but they're the guys who wear the Korean war as much as the fighting troops did.
You go to Seoul municipal airport. It's a bumpy strip of brown grass. You ask the first officer you meet if there's a chance to ride to Pyongyang. He says to go down to where some C-47s are picking up equipment.
"Sure, I'll take you," says the first man you approach. He turns out to be the pilot of one of the C-47s, Lt. Herbert Drew, 28, of Brooklyn. He is a native of Brooklyn but while he is overseas his wife is living in Columbus, Ohio.
Inside the silvery C-47 bags and wooden boxes are piled to the ceiling. They are the personal baggage and records and office equipment of a "mosquito" outfit which is being moved by air to Pyongyang. The weather is cold but the pilot, co-pilot and crew chief sweat at the labor of tying down the cargo. They lash piles of heavy wood on boxes with rope so they won't shift during the flight.
"This outfit is a troop carrying squadron—forty planes and 160 men—but they call us the 'Kyu-shu Gypsies' because we've moved bases six times in four months," says the crew chief. He is S-3 Sgt. Robert L. Peacock, 28, who comes from 9111 South Adams St., Dallas, Texas. His wife and daughter are living at (21904 Harpelle Lake Drive) Saint Clair Shores, Mich.
The co-pilot is Lt. Donald F. Witkos, 25, of Gilbertville, Mo.

The pilot sits down to take a big roll which is covered with rice straw matting that is used for padding in the Far East. In the sleeve pocket of his flight suit there's a plastic spoon for use in gobbling hurried meals from cans while aloft.
"This is the most thankless job in the Air Force," he says. "We took part in that big paratroop drop north of Pyongyang recently but they didn't say anything about us in the papers. They only talked about the C-119s. Come on, you can ride up front with us."
Just before the takeoff the sergeant comes up and says a couple of soldiers have been put aboard with their baggage. That's the usual thing—move cargo and cans aboard at the last minute.
Drew guns the two engines. You bump down the runway, engines growling, brown sod undulating under you like a choppy sea. A harder bump and you're in the air. The Han River and mountains drop below.
"This is the kind of a haul I hate," says the crew chief, pointing to the lashed boxes. "You can't rearrange your load." He's a sandy haired, friendly Texan wearing a green cap with the bill yanked down over his right ear. He picks up a mathematics textbook entitled "superfonic flow and shock waves." Some day he says he hopes to get an engineering degree.

The C-47—the workhorse of the air in two wars—plods along at 165 miles an hour over rugged Korean mountains. Drew sits with a map in his hands, earphones pushed back off one ear, one foot propped up while the co-pilot handles the plane. These men are in the air about 7 hours a day for 30 days and then take two days off.
Pyongyang shows up ahead—brown fields mottled with shadows of rain clouds. The plane skimming down. Another grass field comes up to meet you and the plane bumps along it.
"Well, that's that," says Drew. "The only standby made another trip. This is a light day—we're going to get back to the base before dark."

BOYCE HOUSE SAYS

Isadore was converted to Christianity and he wanted to visit the Holy Land and see the places where the Savior had been. So he went there and when he came to the Sea of Galilee.
He asked a boatman, "How much to go out on the water?" The boatman said, "No charge at all."
So Isadore got in the boat and was taken out to the middle of the Sea of Galilee. He sat there in reverent thought for a while and then said, "All right, let's go back to the shore." The boatman said, "That will cost you $25."
Isadore shouted, "Twenty-five dollars! No vunder Jesus walked!"

SCENES AROUND RANGER

It's taken me four days to get over that Hamilton game — and now like the Bulldogs — Ranger Bulldogs, that is — I'm ready to start hunting some 'Farcats', as Coach Aills calls DeLeon in true backwoodsman style.

And I'm ready to do some figuring about Ranger's chances of sneaking into the district throne room. Coach Warden explained to me the 1000-1 outside chance that might just, barely, accidentally, happen. If — and I use that word with discretion and respect — IF Cisco or Dublin beats Hamilton and Ranger wins the rest of their games, that would throw the district into a three way tie among Ranger, Cisco and Hamilton. Then — and the odds get larger all the time — then a coin would be flipped to decide the district representative in the play-offs.

I don't like to think about sweating that out — it's too nerve wracking. I have a better solution. And that is for Dublin and Cisco both to defeat Hamilton and then Cisco and Dublin lose another district game, while Ranger is winning the rest of theirs, giving them a clear-cut district championship.

It sounds hopeless, but there is still a bare possibility that something of the sort MIGHT happen and as long as there is a chance, even a 1000 to one chance — from here on out I'm walking with all fingers and toes crossed.

There were a lot of empty seats at the Pup-Mineral Wells game Tuesday night. The people that didn't fill them missed a good game. The junior size Bulldogs have one of the smoothest clicking passing attacks that I've seen for boys who are just supposed to be getting experience. And that unscored on record can be credited only to a line that has smothered all opponents to date.

I went to the game really expecting to relax and see every play for a chance without worrying about statistics. But when Mineral Wells was down on the Pups' 19 yard line I was jumping up every time they carried the ball wondering if they would cross Ranger's goal. The game at Breck-

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Edith Flood, the former Miss Frey, under the terms of her father's will is in charge of Frey & Company, an advertising agency, especially with Morn-Glo soap, an account that the firm might lose. And she has troubles with her brother Jeffrey, who resents the terms of his father's will, although she has been running around with a middle-aged man, Ed's husband, has asked for a divorce. Returning home late one evening she finds all the lights on in the house and footsteps sounding upstairs. She also finds Jeff in an alcoholic stupor in his room.

XXI

THIS time Edie was able to locate the source of the pacing footsteps. She came from Myron's room. She marched to his door and rapped peremptorily.

The pacing stopped. A second passed. Then the door opened.

"Oh—er—hello, Edie," Myron said uncertainly.

Edie surveyed him irritably. He was in shirt sleeves, with his tie loosened at the collar. His light hair was rumpled. There was a perplexed and worried look on his face.

"Will you tell me," she said, "what is going on in this house?"

"Why, why, nothing," Myron blinked at her. "Nothing at all."

"Then why are you pacing around like a caged lion?"

"No reason at all. Just—just getting some exercise."

This, Edie decided, hit the absolute top in weak explanations. She gazed at Myron, her eyes narrowed. "All right then. Don't tell me about yourself. But why is every light downstairs going full tilt and why is Jeff Frey passed out in his room?"

"Oh," said Myron indifferently. "Passed out, has he? Well, I told him he'd get plastered if he kept on drinking."

"What's the matter with him?" Myron shrugged. "I wouldn't know. Ask him."

"It's impossible," said Edie, "to ask him anything now. I'm asking you."

"And I'm telling you that I don't know."

Edie modulated her voice. "Look, Myron," she said. "A child could see that something's wrong here. What is it? Did you and Jeff have a fight?"

Myron gestured impatiently. "For Pete's sake, no. Jeff started to drink and I told him he was a fool, but he wouldn't listen."

"It's a good thing you don't have to make your living by lying, Myron," Edie snapped, her eyes angry green disks. "You're rotten at it."

"Okay," Myron's mouth was setting in a stubborn line. "I'm a Bar. But that's all that happened."

"I don't believe you," said Edie. "But if you won't tell me, you won't." She switched the subject abruptly. "Where's Jenn?"

Myron had the answer for that. "Out," he said, "with that party-waist she goes with."

"That's probably the first true word you've spoken since I came in, Myron," Edie said. "Now suppose you run downstairs and switch off a few lights. Then come back and help me put Jeff to bed."

WHEN Myron returned he offered to handle Jeffrey alone. "You'll have to help me get him from this chair to the bed, though," he said. "He's out like a light and he weighs a ton."

It was no easy job, but they finally managed it. Edie looked down disgustedly at the prone and inert figure.

"I don't understand it at all," she said. She turned to Myron, appeal in her voice. "Myron, please! What did go on here to-night?"

Again the set stubborn expression came over Myron's face. Edie looked at him for a moment, then went out, leaving him to deal with Jeffrey.

Convict Escapes On Mule In N. Mex. Mts.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 2 (UP)—Somewhere in the Canyon mountains, a posse of prison guards and state patrolmen hunted for a bony old mule today.

The officers wanted the mule because on his back he was carrying an escaped convict, Adolph Kappel, 36.

Kappel, sentenced to 99 years imprisonment for murdering his wife with an axe in 1947, escaped aboard the mule yesterday from the New Mexico State Penitentiary. He spurred the beast into something resembling a gallop as he rode bareback toward the Apache Canyon area five miles south of the prison clay pits.

Guards spotted Kappel in the foothills and fired at him but missed the target in their excitement at the sight of the convict bouncing around on the mule's back as it pounded toward the mountains.

The United States now has more than 21,000,000 acres of privately owned forest land dedicated to continuing production of forest crops.

HOLLYWOOD (NU)—Jeff Chandler has succeeded to the title of the king of Hollywood commuters.

There have been actors who have commuted from the wild west locations to city jobs in Hollywood and there have been some who have commuted briefly across the country.

Chandler has done all that. He finally won the crown by commuting every week end from Hawaii to Los Angeles, a 10-hour flight each way.

Twentieth Century-Fox took Chandler to Hawaii for two months to play a native role in "Bird of Paradise." He scored a hit as an Indian in another 20th picture, "Broken Arrow."

"I had a previous contract to do my weekly radio show, so it was up to the studio to get me back in Los Angeles every week end," Chandler explained. "I think that gives me the record for long-distance commuting. Fortunately, my planes were always on time."

Europe Too Far
Chandler has had to commute to Hollywood weekends when he has been on location in Arizona and New Mexico as well as on trips to New York.

"I went to Europe once, but that was too far away," he said. "They wrote me out of the script for three weeks."

"Bird of Paradise" was filmed on the islands of Hawaii and Kauai. Chandler said it's almost a documentary report of the lives of the peaceful islanders 100 years ago, before they all had radios in their kitchens and army jeeps in their garages.

"Nobody hurries there, and nobody worries," he reported. "They get all they need to eat by growing a little plot in their back yard and catching fish in their front yard."

"We talk to some Hawaiians who had come to California. They got jobs there, but they couldn't stand the pace. They were happier fishing and playing the ukulele at home.

"I wasn't tempted to stay over there, however. I guess I'm just used to the fast tempo here."

Thieves Fall Out
FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—M. C. Akin, testified before a county grand jury against Clyde C. Hopkins, accused of taking 612 pounds of brass. The jury then indicted Hopkins, and also Akin, the latter on a charge of receiving and concealing the brass.

Fire Calls Curtailed
BLUFFTON, Ind. (UP)—Mayor J. A. Johnston has asked Bluffton residents; not to report fires to the fire department. Johnston said alarms should be given to the telephone operator. Calling the fire department or police clogs telephone lines and prevents the volunteer firemen from calling in to find out where the fire is.

Fraley's Follies Pick SMU Over Texas; Rice Over Texas Tech; Baylor Over TCU; Aggies To Lose

By Oscar Fraley
NEW YORK, Nov. (UP)—A comedy of errors played straight, Fraley's Follies and the week-end football winners.

Game of the week — SMU over Texas — power, versatility (and Kyle Rote) over just plain power. But this should be not only the game of the week but one of the best of the year, with the Mustangs winding up on top by a touchdown or less.

The East.
Army over Penn — Wearing 'em down in the last half.
Notre Dame over Navy — three in a row is too much.
Cornell over Columbia — revenge at will, and they'll win a lot.
Princeton over Colgate — rather easily.
Holy Cross over Harvard — by three touchdowns.
The Midwest.
Ohio State over Northwestern — and a true line on the buckeyes.
Minnesota over Iowa — a come-back against a goner.
Illinois over Michigan — a real tossup.
Purdue over Wisconsin — on a hunch.
Michigan State over Indiana — on a week's rest.
The South.
Georgia over Alabama — could be about face.

Duke over Georgia Tech — overpowered.
Kentucky over Florida — another for Purill.
Tennessee over North Carolina — could be tough.
Mississippi over LSU — spot for an upset.
The West.
Washington over California — the blue-plate special.
UCLA over Oregon State — it figures.
Washington State over Oregon — by two or better.
Stanford over Southern Cal — throw out the odds here.
The Southwest.
Arizona over Texas Aggies — pick 'em.
Baylor over TCU — off and running.
Rice over Texas Tech — bouncing back strong.
Also: Arizona over New Mexico; Wyo. over Texas Western and Tulsa over Oklahoma Aggies.

Dog Goes In For Jazz
FRANKFORD, W. Va., (UP)—There's a dog that dotes on Dixieland jazz in a Frankford household. It's a prize beagle named Bench, which stands in front of the radio and keeps time with broadcast music, waving its tail like a director's baton.

Boyce House Gives You Texas

Forty years is a long time to work in one place but that is the record of my friend, W. E. Tyler, president of the First National Bank of Rising Star. The Record says that when Mr. Tyler became connected with the bank, he and the late William Koonce, cashier and manager, were the entire force.

Mr. Tyler recalls that he worked the first month for nothing and then he was started off with the princely salary of $25 per month, says the record. Among his duties were carrying in bucketsful of coal for the fire, sweeping out of mornings, cleaning the clinkers out of the stove and carrying drinking water from a cistern. Life was simple in those days and living costs were low. Good board and room were had for $12.50 per month, leaving him an equal amount to spend on himself or maybe a girl friend.

Friends here recall that Will started his career in this vicinity as a young country school teacher, teaching at Macedonia, Union Grove (then known as Ignorant Hollow) and finally a job in the Rising Star School where he was employed when he was tempted to enter upon a career of banking. The bank at that time was owned by the Continental National Bank of Fort Worth with a few local minority stockholders.

The officials of the Fort Worth bank were evidently pleased with Mr. Tyler's work, for within a few years, when Mr. Koonce resigned to take over the management of the Higginbotham store, he was elected to the place of cashier and manager, which place he held until some years ago when he bought the majority stock in the bank from the parent bank in Fort Worth and became president of the institution. Bill states that if he had his life to live over he would still prefer to be a "Country Banker." He laughingly tells of being offered a place as a state bank examiner and fell for it. He held the job just three weeks until he handed in his resignation and headed back to Rising Star and his old job.

In recent years he has been quite successful as an oil operator in West Texas, owning and operating a number of wells in partnership with D. Breeding, former local operator, but outside of an occasional trip to West Texas to look the situation over, he stays with the bank. A few years ago he and Breeding purchased a concession stock farm in the Okra community, which he has developed into a model project of its kind and is giving it a lot of his time and attention.

On the farm he has placed the latest improvements, best fencing and latest cultural methods. He also has a number of cattle, some hogs, goats, etc., and also goes in for peanut growing. He is a firm believer in old Mother Earth and thinks farm land in this section is a good investment and has put quite a little money into it. In banking he goes on character about as much as collateral and says that it is not often that he sizes a man up wrong and that his percentage of bad loans is low.

Trainer Ike Hill of the University of Illinois football team estimates it takes 12,500 yards or 7.1 miles of tape to keep a major football team for a season. He said most of the tape is used in the daily taping of players' ankles.

Marylene Griffin, Bride Elect Of Jack Cole, Honored In Eastland With Pre-Nuptial Gift Tea

Wine, winter pink and blush was the color theme carried out in Tyler roses and other decorations Saturday evening in the palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hoffmann, 903 South Seaman Street, Eastland, when a group of friends honored Miss Marylene Griffin.

Miss Griffin is the bride-elect of Jack Weldon Cole of Ranger. Mrs. Hoffmann greeted guests and presented each to Mrs. M. H. Griffin, mother of the honoree, Miss Griffin, the honoree, Mrs. Odell Cole of Ranger, mother of the prospective bridegroom, Miss Joyce Cole, his sister, and Ila Jean Griffin, sister of the bride-to-be.

Mrs. Will Van Geem presided at the register and registered more than 100 guests, who called during the hours seven til nine.

Mrs. Evans Hood and Mrs. Lon Horn invited guests into the dining room, where the bride's table was resplendent in its white cutwork linen cloth. The center piece was of pink roses arranged in an antique silver bowl, placed upon a reflector. Two love birds hovered over the flowers and a three-pronged candelabra, holding wine, winterpink and blush candles flanked each side. Cranberry crystal and silver were used in table appointments. Meses Harold Dur-

Cray, Glenn West, H. A. Shockey, P. C. Long, E. F. Langston, Walter Arterburn, Allen Smith, O. L. Robinson, Roy McCleskey, Lloyd Clem, T. J. Anderson, Jim Houghton, J. B. Houghton, Sr., Lee Cantrell, Ralph Perkins, A. Kirk, Paul Mathis, J. T. Belknap, A. N. Warford and Miss Ethel Adams.

Following the program a short business meeting was held.

Refreshments were served to Meses. Pat Thomas, James Townsen, Fries Crawley, Jimmy Phillips, James Ratliff, J. D. Drennan, Dean Crawley, James Sanders, Paul Rogers, Joe B. Scott, and the hostess, A. L. Rainwater.

Gladys Betts Circle Has Discussion Of Near East At Meet

The Gladys Betts Circle of the Womens Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, met in the home of Mrs. A. L. Rainwater, Monday October 30 at 4:00 p.m.

The program was a continuation of study on the "Near East". Those taking part in the program were: Mrs. Pat Thomas, Mrs. James Townsen, and Mrs. A. L. Rainwater.

ham, J. W. Sledge and Lee Horn presided and were assisted in serving by Mary Katherine Hoffmann, Mrs. Don Doyle, Mrs. Bill Arther, Gladys Womack, Betty Pickens, Mariya Wittrop, and Mrs. Joe Anderson.

Many lovely and useful gifts were displayed in the sunroom and were presided over by Mrs. H. G. Blair.

Mrs. S. L. Bourland said the good byes at the exit door.

Roses of deep red, shaded to the palest, bluish pink, wests used in profusion throughout the house. Other decorations were candles in the same colors, (chosen by the bride-elect), and red geraniums.

Mrs. E. L. Wittrop furnished a background of music throughout the party.

Out of town guests included Meses Gorman Morton, J. F. Donley, Ed Eubank, Felton Brasher, James P. Morris, P. M. Kuykendall, C. B. Pruet, W. F. Creager, G. C. Boswell, A. W. Braza, Ronnie Jones, Ted Bott, Alex Roberson, Carl Heinlen, Mammie Ruth Hamrick, Meses Melba Creager, and Elaine Braza, Mrs. S. B. Baker, Mrs. J. J. Kelly, all of Ranger, and Mrs. Coke Martin of Breckenridge.

Hostesses were Meses Wittrop, Van Geem, Lee Horn, Lon Horn, Blair, Fred Maxey, Durham, Hood, W. W. Walters, J. W. Sledge, and Hoffmann.

Members of the Intermediate Sunday school department of the First Baptist Church was entertained with a festive Halloween party on Monday evening at 7:30.

As the guests entered they were greeted by spooks dressed in Halloween costumes, arranged by Mrs. Walter Arterburn.

During the evening the King and Queen were elected: Queen Betty Ewing; King Jimmy Cole. The Court will have a Prince and Princess from each class to represent the King and Queen.

A picture of the King, Queen and Court will appear in the Baptist Training Magazine in the next few months.

A social hour was then held with stunts and games, which added to the evening's enjoyment.

Halloween decorations were carried throughout the Fellowship room, corn stalks with shucks, black cats, black and orange streamers, skeletons in various places, and all of the usual symbols of the season, which proved to be a most colorful event.

Other decorations used on the refreshment table with fixed yellow and orange garden flowers and favors of Halloween characters carrying all-day suckers. Cold drinks, chili, hot dogs and Halloween squares were served to approximately fifty guests.

Mary Ann Elder and Betty Howell assisted with the decorations.
