HST Calls Advisors For Emergency Plans

Troops Still Face Possible Dunkirk

By Ernest Hebercht
TOKYO, Dec. 11 (UP)—The last of 20,000 U. S. Marines and Army troops escaped a Communist death trap in northeast Korea today as Gen. Douglas MacArthur paid a flying visit to the Korean front.

Tanks bringing up the rear of the 1,000-vehicle American breakthrough column rolled across the coastal plains toward Hamhung and a possible Dunkirk evacuation of all 60,000 United Nations troops in northeast Korea.

Behind them, the retreating Americans left at least 20,000 dead Chinese along the 50-mile road of retreat from Yudam on the western edge of Chosin reservoir.

Aided by a rescue column from the south, the 20,000 members of 1st Division Marines and 7th Division Infantrymen hacked their way through six Chinese divisions totaling 50,000 men in one of the bloodiest battles of the Korean war.

Three whole Chinese divisions and a regiment of each of the three others were destroyed in the two-week battle.

Anti European Riots Break Out In Singapore

SINGAPORE, Dec. 11 (UP)—Thousands of natives staged one of the worst anti-European riots in Singapore history today, demanding that a 14-year-old Dutch "jungle girl" be returned to her Moslem husband.

Authorities ordered all whites to keep off the streets as native rioters dragged Europeans from their cars and beat them, overturned and burned automobiles and attempted to storm city hall.

The natives demanded that "jungle girl" Bertha Hertogh be taken from her Dutch mother and turned over to her Moslem husband and the native woman who nursed her in the Malayan jungles when her parents were captured by the Japanese.

Police and Gurka troops fired pistols into the crowd and threw tear gas bombs when the rioters attempted to rush city hall where a British court had ruled that the Dutch mother was to have custody of the child.

One United Nations jeep, belonging to the international children's emergency fund, was burned.

Bertha, despite her youth, was permitted by her "native mother" Che Aminah, to marry the young Moslem while her parents were still prisoners. At first, the girl fought against the parents but later turning her to her parents and was willing to leave her Moslem husband.

India, Confident Reds Will Stop At 38th, Draft Cease Fire Plan

By Bruce W. Munn
LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 11 (UP)—India, which reported assurance from Communist China that its troops will not cross the 38th Parallel, drafted a resolution today that was expected to call for a general cease fire and United Nations buffer zone in Korea.

Shri Benegal Rau, chief of India's UN delegation, denied that Peking had given any flat assurance that its troops would not drive into South Korea. He said only that Gen. Wu Hsiu-Chuan, Chief of the Chinese Communist delegation, had told him that the UN would be able to judge for itself from events on the battlefield.

His government's intention toward the Parallel.

But other high and reliable diplomatic sources insisted that Wu had told Rau in a conference last Saturday that Peking had no intention of crossing the Parallel.

Wu said he had added that Mao Tse-tung's government would not put this pledge in writing because "it would weaken our moral stand."

Diplomatic observers felt that Communist China hoped to strike a bargain, and that their bargaining position would be better if Peking's troops, having wrested North

South Koreans Will Not Accept A Compromise

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 11 (UP)—President Syngman Rhee said today his government would not accept a compromise with the Chinese Communists even if they halted their drive south at the 38th Parallel dividing line between North and South Korea.

Rhee, said he had cabled instructions to the Korean ambassador in Washington to tell the United Nations that "after heavy sacrifices of men and material to check Communist aggression and to unify the country it would be unthinkable to accept any such proposal."

The South Korean President also told a press conference that Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the U. S. 8th Army, had told him the South Korean capital of Seoul would be defended.

But he did not give any indication of the extent to which it might be defended.

Rhee plainly indicated his dissatisfaction with the action taken on Korea at the UN, saying that "while Rome burns the statesmen talk."

He said he had called a mass meeting for Wednesday and would tell the people of Seoul to stand and fight.

"I am going to tell the people... if we have no weapons let's stay and fight anyway," Rhee said.

He said the government did not plan to move and that all men subject to conscription were being held in the city.

Meteor Explodes Over St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11 (UP)—A meteor exploded last night in the sky almost directly over St. Louis.

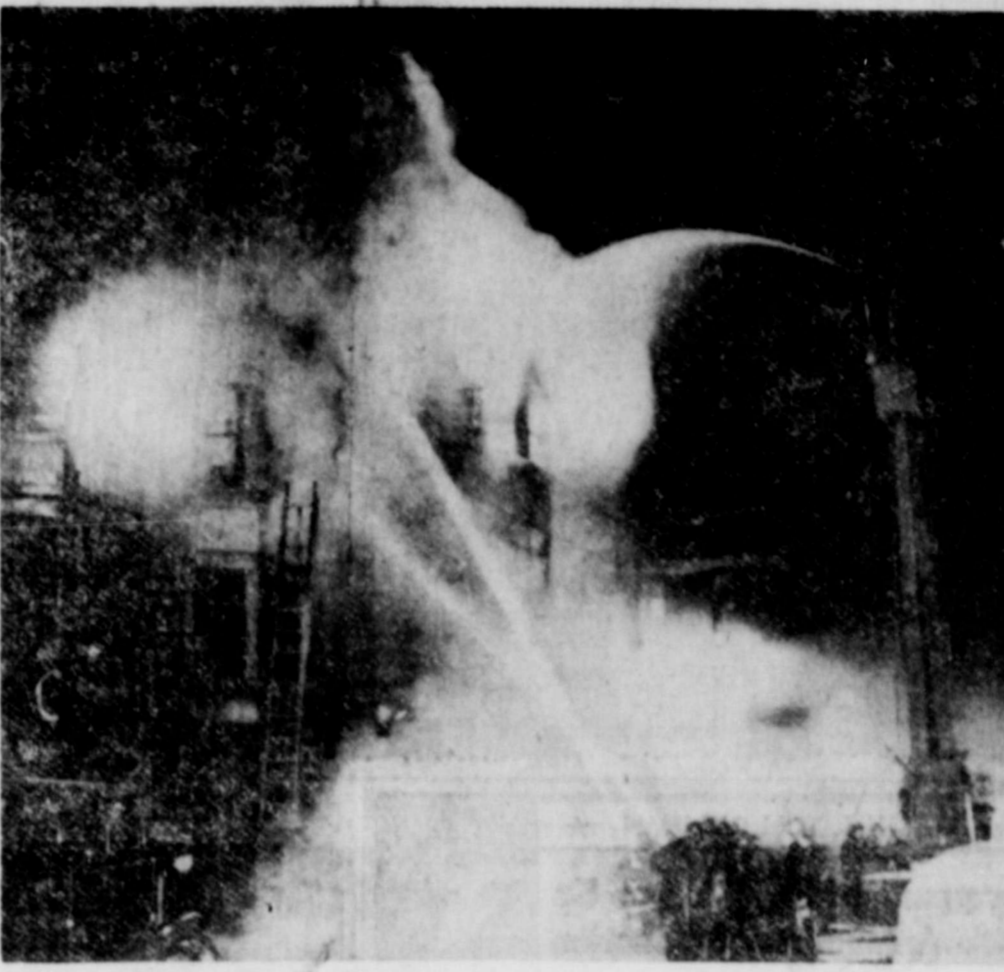

Trans - World Airlines Capt. said he was flying above the overcast when the fireball burst directly in front of his plane and at a higher altitude. Several passengers aboard the TWA ship also saw the phenomenon.

The meteor apparently was part of the annual November shower of fireballs, known to astronomers as gemini.

The St. Louis amateur astronomical society had been scheduled to watch the gemini phenomenon but called off their field trip due to a heavy overcast. However, the flash was so great from the meteor that it was seen through the overcast.

The society president, Stuart L. O'Byrne, said that at the time of the meteor's explosion, however, he heard a noise "with which I wasn't familiar," supporting the claim of some residents that they heard a blast at the moment the meteor broke up.

The flash was seen by Missouri state patrolmen as far south as Popular Bluff near the Arkansas border.

BATTLE FIVE-ALARM BLAZE—Firemen fight with hoses and water tower (right) against flash fire sweeping through five-story rooming house in Chicago's once-famous South Side. At least eight persons were killed in the five-alarm blaze and more bodies were expected to be found as firemen searched the ruins of the tenement. (NEA Telephoto).

Battle Over President Truman's Latest Letter Still Goes On

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (UP)—The battle over President Truman's latest letter raged on today.

Rolling drums and alarms robed official Washington.

Heavy sniping was reported from Capitol Hill. Dull cannonading was heard in the outskirts.

A negotiated peace was attempted. The battle started when music critic Paul Hume of the Washington Post belittled daughter Margaret's singing at her concert here last week. Mr. Truman read the "Lousy review" and got off a blistering letter threatening to blacken Hume's eye and misplace his nose.

The issue was still in doubt, but the President got at least a two-to-one edge in yesterday's skirmishing.

Staunchly defending the President was Rep. Adolph J. Sabath, D., Ill., fiery 84-year-old dean of the House, and Irl Allison, president of the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Austin, Tex.

"The country would be better off," said Sabath, "if we had more fathers as ready as Mr. Truman to stand up for their daughters."

He conceded that Mr. Truman's letter might have been "a little too strong" but he said the President had "unusual provocation" and was under unusual strain.

Sabath said he had heard all the great artists of the last 70 years and he was sure that Margaret will be a "great artist" in few years.

Allison said Margaret's voice has a "nice quality" and blasted critics for attacking "defenseless people who propose to entertain."

He said he plans to start a fund to bring lawsuits against newspapers that "damn aspiring artists by printing one man's opinion."

A counter-charge came from

Joseph R. Reno Receives Staff Sgt. Promotion

KAENA AIR BASE, Okinawa,—Joseph R. Reno, whose wife is the former Elizabeth Caraway of Ranger, was recently promoted to Staff Sergeant at 1841th Airways and Air Communications Service Group Headquarters, Okinawa.

As personnel and Records Clerk of Headquarters Squadron Sergeant Reno maintains and processes the correspondence, assignment and pay records, and all allied papers pertaining to personnel of Group Headquarters.

Although he has only served with the 1811th AACPS Group for three months he received his promotion when eligible in keeping with the policies of the Airways and Air Communications Service.

Enlisting in July 1947, he chose Administration as his career field. Having made his choice, he was assigned to school for technical training. This training included counseling on the Airman Career Program and the opportunities it presented to the ambitious.

Utilizing this knowledge in conjunction with the "on the Job Training" program in effect throughout the Air Force and off-duty study schedule he has qualified step by step for his present advancement.

With his assignment to the 1811th AACPS Group he became a member of the team furnishing radio facilities and navigational aid to aircraft in the Guam-Okinawa-Philippine area.

Mrs. Reno and daughter Betty expect to join Reno on Okinawa as soon as housing and travel is available to dependents.

PRESIDENT CONSIDERS GIVING RADIO ADDRESS THIS WEEK

By Robert F. Loftus
WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (UP)—President Truman got set today to proclaim a national emergency—possibly this week—by calling in top economic advisers and leaders of both parties in Congress for advice.

The White House indicated that only the final details remain to be worked out.

Mr. Truman asked Sen. Robert A. Taft, R. O., to attend the series of top-level conferences for the first time in what was described officially as a step to strengthen a bi-partisan approach to preparing the nation for more sacrifices.

In rapid-fire actions, Mr. Truman: 1. Summoned his top economic advisers to a 3 p.m. (CST) meeting today.

2. Invited both Democratic and Republican leaders of both House and Senate for talks at 9 a.m. CST Wednesday.

3. Let it be known that he is considering a radio address to the nation sometime this week. No final decision has been reached on this.

4. Met this morning with his Democratic "big four" congressional leaders to go over the matter of national emergency methods of applying wage-price controls.

Besides giving the President extra powers to lead the nation toward a war crisis footing both economically and militarily, the proclamation was expected to be used to jar the nation from any business-as-usual outlook in fighting worldwide Communism.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn said after today's talk with the President that the emergency is now in the consideration stage and the decision will come after Wednesday's meeting when the President has a cross section of congressional views.

"The President is particularly anxious now, as always, to continue and strengthen the bi-partisan approach to these matters," the White House said.

Taft was not included among the conferees who saw the President prior to his important talks with British Prime Minister Clement Attlee. The Ohio Senator is chairman of the Republican policy committee.

Those invited to Wednesday's talk were leaders of both parties in House and Senate and chairmen of the foreign affairs, armed services and appropriations committees. These will be the most concerned with all crisis legislation.

Emergency measures slowly were moving into the nation's economy. The latest was a big cut today in civilian use of natural rubber for January and February.

The national production authority urged that motorists start an austerity program of their own by recapping worn tires instead of buying new ones.

The White House said Mr. Truman's call to the congressional leaders was to "discuss matters concerning the proclaiming of a national emergency and related matters." His talk with the Democratic "big four" from congress this morning concerned methods of applying wage-price controls as well as the emergency declaration.

Government Hopes to Step Up Nation's Aluminum Production

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—World War III—if this is it—is being ushered in just like World War II. Before the last war, there were big surpluses that there would be enough aluminum for all defense needs. Instead of which, there was an initial shortage. Here it is again. U. S. government agencies are now trying desperately to have aluminum production stepped up by 50 per cent or more.

This is one aspect of the National Production Authority's 35 per cent cutback order on aluminum use which is not generally understood. What the government is now trying to do is get aluminum supply in such condition that the NPA cutback order can itself be cut back, if not completely repealed.

Present production capacity of the U. S. aluminum industry is around 750,000 tons a year. It is divided (roughly) in this manner: 50 per cent Kaiser Aluminum Co. of America, 30 per cent Reynolds Metals, 20 per cent Kaiser Aluminum.

Discussions between this big three and U. S. General Services Administrator Jess Larson have been aimed at increased annual production of at least 325,000 tons, for the first bite. More, maybe, later.

One important point on this proposed expansion is that the entire $450 million cost would be borne by private industry. There is still some snarl up on terms. Producers have wanted a guarantee that all metal produced would be bought by the government. They have wanted escalator clauses in the contract, guaranteeing that higher prices would be paid if labor or other costs went up. They have wanted guarantees on profits.

So far, the most the government has been willing to guarantee is the private bank loans to finance the expansion.

OUT of these discussions, however, has come an appreciation of the need to get a few more companies into the production of aluminum. While the so-called "monopoly" held by Alcoa before the last war has been broken by court action, there is considerable opinion in government circles that the industry needs still more competition.

This presents tremendous problems. It may require 100 per cent government subsidy. No small company can undertake the big investment necessary to get into aluminum production on its own.

Approaches have been made to companies like Olin Corp., Anaconda Copper and American Smelting and Refining, but there have been no deals closed with them.

Two companies have gone into the business in a modest way. Apex Smelting of Chicago has bought one line of rectifiers for a new plant in Arkansas. Harvey Machine Co., of Torrance, Calif., has also bought one line of rectifiers for a new plant near Hungry Horse Dam, Mont.

WITH these installations, the last of the government-owned aluminum production equipment which was considered surplus at the end of the war will be again in operation.

More production can't be put in the Pacific northwest for lack of electric power. Any new plants will have to be built near new sources of cheap power as well as cheap water transportation for movement of bauxite and alumina. This limits expansion to such spots as the Gulf Coast area, the navigable Mississippi valley system, or to regions near coal or natural gas deposits where steam power can be generated at mine site or pipeline terminals.

One other possible source of supply is Japan. Before the war, Japan had aluminum capacity of 100,000 tons. Up to half of that is still left. Some repair would be necessary to get it back in production. But if Japan could supply say 35,000 tons, it would greatly reduce the need for the present cutback order.

The recent Canadian production offer of some 400,000 tons turned out to be something of an exaggeration. Only 20,000 to 35,000 tons could have been available this year. The rest was to come from capacity still to be built, financed by U. S. capital.

Xmas Shoppers Hunting For Unusual Gifts

By Elizabeth Toomey
NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (UP)—The originality of some of this year's Christmas shoppers astounded gift-buying experts.

There was the woman, for instance, who came to the personal shopping service of one department store to order a cocktail collar for her dog.

And the phone call that came into the telephone shopping service of a famous sporting goods store requesting a brush for a fur coat.

"What kind?" asked the shopper in some confusion. "Mink, of course," came the haughty reply.

June Caruso, the young lady at Abercrombie and Fitch who took the phone call, said shoppers this year seemed to be searching harder than ever for unusual, in fact practically unheard of, gifts.

"We've had quite a few requests for radio-active golf balls. I guess they have been invented, but I don't know where you could buy any," she said.

A special Christmas shopping section in a Fifth Avenue department store had to dig up the exact measurements of this year's Miss America to fill one request. Seems two visitors from Europe wanted to buy some clothes for a young lady back home. She had the same measurements as Miss America, they said, but they couldn't remember what those were.

One wife called the shopping service to ask about a nightcap (the cotton variety) for her husband. And another devoted wife insisted on getting a Mr. and Mrs. set of red flannel nightshirts for her husband and her.

"It's sort of gratifying in a way to know that so many people try to find something besides the same old neckties and socks and perfumes," reasoned one harried gift shopper. She had just finished searching for a perfume atomizer with a horse's head stopper. A man wanted to buy it for his niece, who, he said, "is the horsey type."

Pillows for the bathtub and vacuum cleaners for the hair are two popular gift items at one specialty shop. The vacuum cleaners actually are a combination vibrator and suction machine.

Here's Why You Get Kissed Under Mistletoe

Have you ever stopped to wonder, come Christmas time, why we kiss under the mistletoe? Mademoiselle magazine tells the gory but beautiful story in its December issue.

According to legend, Frigga, the goddess of love and beauty, gave Balder, her son, a charm which secured him against all injury stemming from the four elements: fire, water, air, earth. Loki, an evil spirit, hated Balder. So he snaped an arrow from Mistletoe, for it did not grow from any of these elements.

This Mistletoe dart struck Balder to the ground. Frigga wept—and her tears became the Mistletoe's white berries. Then all the gods united to revive Balder. And Frigga decreed that Mistletoe must never again serve a wicked purpose.

Since she was the goddess of love and beauty, and since her joy was boundless at the restoration of her son, Frigga, to this day, bestows a kiss upon anyone who passes beneath the Mistletoe.

TOKYO HOSPITAL BEGINS TO PREPARE FOR GI CHRISTMAS

By H. D. Quigg
TOKYO, Dec. 11 (UP)—The Tokyo army hospital is a huge tan building with a large stone cross on the top. Long buses with red crosses painted on the sides rumble through the streets around the hospital and its big annex several blocks away.
Inside the buses you can see the wounded, pinioned on sling stretchers, tilting their heads up grotesquely to take a curious look at the big buildings and hurrying pedestrians and clogged automobile traffic—quite unfamiliar to a man who has been a long time in Korea.
The population of the hospital has been around 1,500, with about 80 per cent of that figure being battle casualties from Korea. But it's growing now. Many of the new patients are victims of frost bite in frozen trenches.
They're beginning to get ready for Christmas at the hospital. There'll be a Christmas tree in every ward. There'll be special Christmas and New Year's Eve dinners. And on Christmas Day every ward will have a party.
The big windows on all four floors at the front of the main building will be painted with religious Christmas scenes. A plywood Santa Claus and reindeer will gallop across the top of the mess hall. At the annex, there will be a manger scene in the front yard.
In charge of Christmas arrangements is Lt. Col. Ellis Arkus, assistant hospital inspector, of Queens Village, N. Y. Just to show you what a small world this is—Arkus asked me where I lived in

New York City, then asked if I knew the drug store on the corner of Fifth Avenue and 8th Street, half a block from my house, and then informed me he had opened that drug store in 1929.

Arkus said the Christmas celebration for the individual patients is being planned by the Red Cross. On Christmas Eve, each patient will get a stocking filled with small gifts and candy.

During the two weeks preceding New Year's Day there will be entertainment, quiz and guessing games, Christmas music by orchestras and choral groups, and shows by Japanese magicians and jugglers.

Patients will help "gray ladies" and other assistants in decorating the trees and the wards. There will be prizes in the form of special parties for the most typical and most humorous decorations.

And throughout, the Red Cross will continue its patient activities—writing letters to anxious families in the states, giving information about soldiers' injuries and helping solve family and personal problems.

They're doing the best they can for Christmas.

'One Man Army Of Bataan' Goes After Big Nora

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Dec. 11 (UP)—The "one-man army of Bataan" will take the former gangland queen of Wichita Kan., back to her home state today to face trial.

"Big Nora" Fugger, discovered to be the wife of a meek druggist here who didn't know her past, will be returned by Lt. Col. Arthur W. Wermuth, much-decorated army hero of World War II.

Wermuth, now a Kansas State Marshall, arrived Saturday but was delayed in obtaining papers for Big Nora's extradition.

"Just an ordinary job," Wermuth said. "Don't need any more guns. Just my six-shooter."

Kalamazoo police, not so confident, had kept Big Nora under extra guard since her arrest last week. She turned out to be the wife of C. H. Witters, soft-spoken druggist who learned of her criminal background only after 18 months of marriage.

She is wanted in Wichita in the beating and robbery last year of William S. Menefee, Kansas used car dealer. He was left to die in a wheat field but later recovered, and Big Nora had been sought across the nation.

Big Nora, who was on parole from a safecracking sentence at the time of the Menefee attack, denied any connection with it.

Cops Continue Probe

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 11 (UP)—Police said today they would continue their questioning of two out-of-state men in the auto bomb deaths Nov. 22 of Nelson Harris and his wife, before turning them over to Dallas authorities.

BUY SEVEN-UP

BUY SEVEN-UP
BY THE CARTON

Back in Genesis, the 23rd Chapter—

... there is recorded one of the early-day real estate transactions. Sarah had died at the age of 127, and Abraham bargained for and finally bought a field containing a cave for her last resting place. While there is no direct mention of an abstract, the evidence is clear that Abraham got a good title in the purchase. Time changes many things, for better or worse, but the caution used by Abraham still prevails. The title was important then, it's more so now.

Faye Emerson Barries Third Husband Tuesday

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (UP)—Actress Faye Emerson, of television's plunging neckline fame, and disc jockey Lyle Cedric (Skitch) Henderson fly to Mexico today to be married.

Miss Emerson will wed the former orchestra leader, her third bridegroom, at Cuernavaca, near Mexico City tomorrow. She will not wear a low cut gown.

Miss Emerson has been to Cuernavaca before. It was there she ditched Elliot Roosevelt, husband No. 2.

The newlyweds will honeymoon in Mexico City for a few days and return to New York Saturday. They will be married again next Sunday for Miss Emerson's family at her home.

The honeymoon will be brief because both have television commitments here.

Miss Emerson's first husband was William W. Crawford of San Diego, Calif.

Henderson, son of a career diplomat, was a child concert pianist in Europe before he came to the U.S. at 14. He later became a popular orchestra leader and more recently a disc jockey and TV emcee.
