Killer Expected To Strike Again

Suspected Slayer Of 8 Persons Reported Afoot Near Los Angeles

EL CENTRO, Calif., Jan. 9 (UP)—Authorities engaged in the West's biggest modern manhunt checked a report today that mass murderer William Cook, Jr., had been seen in southern California and might be looking for another victim.

The suspected slayer of eight persons was reported to have been seen at Buena Park, in Orange County near Los Angeles. Sheriff Jim Musick said Cook was reported to have been traveling afoot.

The report prompted fears that he might kill another motorist to get an automobile.

Earlier, the FBI said a sailor reported meeting a man answering Cook's description at Chula Vista, Calif., a small town near the Mexican border.

The sailor said the man approached him early today and asked to be driven northward to San Francisco. He was driving a 1950 sea-foam green Ford sedan, and was wearing a gray t-shirt, gray trousers and a plain shirt.

The report strengthened the belief that Cook, 21, had re-entered the U. S. from Mexico in his wild flight.

Airplanes joined ground parties in the search, which had spread into the Mexican wilderness south of here.

Authorities all but discounted an earlier report that Cook had been spotted in the vicinity of Vaughn, N. M., traveling eastward toward Texas in a 1946 Chevrolet.

Cook admitted to a deputy he kidnapped that he had killed seven persons. Later, he killed an eighth victim, salesman Robert H. Dewey of Seattle, whose car was found abandoned 95 miles south of here.

Among Cook's victims were an entire family of five from Atwood, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser and their three children, whom the ruthless outlaw slew during his orgy of murder through Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and west to California.

The bodies of the Mossers were still being sought in Oklahoma today.

The manhunt for Cook was developing into a bigger search than those staged almost two decades ago for John Dillinger and Pretty Boy Floyd.

Those cooperating in the hunt included Mexican Police, FBI Agents, California highway officers, Imperial County Sheriff's deputies and all available city police from border towns as well as regular border rangers.

They were under orders to shoot to kill if they spotted the pimply-faced gunman.

Authorities believed that the squatty killer was hiding in the desert but they did not overlook the possibility he had doubled back into California.

But officers admitted they had no concrete clues to Cook's whereabouts since El Centro Police Chief Guy Woodward found the 1947 Buick Sedan which he used as an escape car after killing Dewey. Besides Dewey's luggage, officers found a red shirt belonging to Cook in the car.

Beauties Beat Cisco 26-16 For 5th Straight

Without much trouble the Ranger Beauties, girls' basketball team of Ranger High School, added their fifth straight victory Monday night as they defeated Cisco 26-16.

Smooth ball handling and a deadeye at the basket on the part of the Beauties kept the Cisco squad out of the game. Pounds of Ranger led the way with 18 points and Cisco's Pinerey was high scorer for her team with 9 points.

Outstanding guards for the Beauties were Seay, Robinson, Carter and Holton. Forwards who played exceptionally well for Ranger were Pounds, Hull, Penn and Ewing. The Beauties now loom as a strong contender for the district championship. They have defeated Eastland and Cisco and their biggest hurdles are Hamilton and Comanche.

Coach Sam Aills was well pleased with the performance of his team, adding that there was still a little room for improvement but that the girls had come a long way and were a definite threat to any district team.

Beauties who played at Cisco were: Pounds, Kirkpatrick, Hull, Penn, Ewing, Holton, Seay, Robinson, Carter. Also making the trip were Webb, Crowley and Russell.

Suspect Escapes Police Trap In Hail Of Bullets

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 9 (UP)—A burly Negro who tried to make a telephone date with a teen-age white girl last night blundered into a police trap, then escaped in a hail of bullets when he leaped, handcuffed, from a police car.

Before he was handcuffed he battled with three officers who caught him in a pay telephone booth still talking with the girl. She had told police about an earlier call from him and at their request had called the Negro back at a telephone number he gave. While she was talking to him, police traced the call and overpowered him.

Police said the man is considered a possible suspect in the ice pick murder of druggist Claud Newsum a week ago.

The girl who helped spring the trap was a 16-year-old high school student who fought a Negro attacker near her home last Friday night until her 33-year-old mother came to her rescue. Police said they believed the Negro who escaped last night was the same one.

The trap was set after the Negro called the girl at a drug store where she worked part-time and tried to make a date.

Bulldogs Beat Cisco 45-42 For 1st Dist. Win

Fighting tooth and toenail best describes the ripening rivalry opening game between the Bulldogs and Lobos in Cisco Monday night. Ranger roared from behind a seven point Cisco lead at halftime to win 45-42.

Simpson, Cunningham, Hummel, Cole and Brazda were the mainstays in the high-scoring but tightly played game. Simpson played the best game of his high school career and was high scorer with 18 points. Cole had 9 points, Cunningham 8, Hummel and Brazda 3.

Brazda was the hero of the night. He sank the two points that tied the game with 62 seconds left to play. Ranger was still struggling to improve its free-throw shooting. They sank only 4 of 12 last night. Ranger was behind 19-26 at half time before coming to life and winning their first district game.

The Bulldogs play Dublin here Friday in their second district clash.

THE WEATHER

By United Press

Warmer temperatures and dry, high level clouds spread across Texas today.

The U. S. Weather Bureau forecast mid afternoon temperature readings in the upper 60's. The cloudiness will increase in East Texas, the weatherman said, but he held no hope for rain to break the severe drought.

At mid-morning, temperatures throughout the state were generally 10 degrees higher than those at a comparable period yesterday. However, a 10 to 15 mph wind today made the weather seem as chilly and raw as yesterday's.

The overnight minimum was 21 degrees at Junction and Salt Flat. Other readings included a high of 44 at Laredo, Galveston and Brownsville, Abilene and Amarillo 30, El Paso 25, Houston 34, Dalhart 27 and Dallas 37.

High temperatures yesterday ranged between 66 at Corpus Christi and 48 at Salt Flat. No precipitation was recorded.

8TH ARMY REARGUARD FIGHTS PURSUERS ON SEOUL HIGHWAY

By Earnest Hoberecht

TOKYO, Wednesday, Jan. 10 (UP)—United Nations forces struck back in counter-attacks against Red Troops in the Wonju area of Korea Tuesday after U. S. 8th Army rearguards fought off Communist pursuers on the main highway south of Seoul.

Heavy fighting continued to rage Tuesday night around Wonju, where UN forces are guarding the eastern flank of the 8th Army's retreat south toward the Pusan beachhead.

13 Leave For Air Force As Door Is Closed

55 Volunteers Are Signed In Week By Eastland Recruiter

S-Sgt. Charles Brannon, Air Forces recruiting officer in Eastland, said that he received word from Abilene late Monday to halt recruiting of men for the Air Forces.

Brannon had just completed a week of record recruiting in which he signed up 55 volunteers for the Air Forces, from the Eastland area.

Apparently the reason for the halt of recruiting was that the only Air Force indoctrination station in the Southwest, Lackland Air Base in San Antonio, was overcrowded and could not take more men at this time.

The length of basic training has been cut at the base, Brannon added, in order to allow more men to enter. In the Air Forces, he pointed out, the important training is the technical training.

Thirteen volunteer enlistees left Monday afternoon for Abilene by bus. Brannon said that he did not know if they would be taken in or not at this time.

Included in those leaving Monday were Joe Bob Davenport and Bob Vaught, Eastland; Bryan Butler, Ranger; Lonnie Joe Bennett, Herman Bennett, Oscar H. Lucke, James Burns and Drennon Garner, all of Gorman; Jimmie L. Graham and Virgil Clark, Rising Star and students at Cisco Junior College; Bobby M. Harding, Seep Springs and Cisco Junior College; Lonnie Crosby, Staff and Joe L. Bertino, Mingus.

Brannon said that applications for the Air Forces still will be taken but that no more men can be accepted until further notice.

Fouls Galore As RJC Beats Decatur 64-45 In First Conference Game

Decatur Junior College sent an improved cage team into town last night but RJC, after a slow start, took a 33-25 half-time lead and was never headed as they won their first conference game 64-45.

Decatur, who had lost to Ranger Junior College 65-55 in a pre-conference game, showed signs of averting the defeat. They stayed within ticing distance of the Rangers for half of the first period but faded behind as RJC's fast break began to click.

The gym sounded like a policeman's convention as whistles blew almost continuously to send players to the free-throw line. A total of 57 fouls were called in the game, 26 against the Rangers and 31 against Decatur. Mostly of Ranger and Snidey and Moore of Decatur fouled out while Hammon, Kuykendall and Fry of Decatur and Ferguson, Peary and Harper of Ranger managed to evade the eviction notice with four fouls.

High point man for the night was Decatur's Kuykendall with 18 points but two previously seldom-used players surprised the fans with a fine show of basketball. They were Gordon of RJC and Hammon of Decatur. Gordon came in as a substitute and then expertly proceeded to run all Chinese Communist troops over-ran two 8th Army rear guard battalions 13 miles southeast of Oan but were thrown back after a short, fierce fight. Late reports said the retreat apparently was continuing Tuesday, hindered only by patrol clashes.

At least 5,000 UN troops were hurried against the advancing Reds in central Korea to give 8th Army units falling back from the Seoul area a chance to escape southeast toward the old Pusan beachhead.

An 8th Army spokesman announced that two UN battalions—2,000 men—hit the Korean Reds two miles south of Wonju—the same area where the Allies slaughtered 1,650 Communist troops yesterday after abandoning Wonju.

The battle still raged tonight with unknown results, the spokesman said.

Another 3,000 UN troops battled six miles southwest of Wonju in an attempt to regain the more than two miles they lost to the Reds yesterday. Some ground already has been recovered.

The outnumbered UN forces were fighting to delay as long as possible a full-scale Communist assault on Chungju, 25 miles south of Wonju astride one of the 8th Army's two main escape highways to Pusan.

Several thousand Red troops who by-passed Wonju on the east already have driven within 15 to 20 miles northeast of Chungju, but the sudden UN attacks seemed to have thrown the enemy off balance.

A delayed dispatch from the front reported that the commanding general in the area ordered his forces to "shoot anything that moves" in the final stages of the battle for Wonju to prevent enemy infiltration in civilian clothes.

It was presumed that the order still was in effect.

Elements of 13 North Korean divisions—probably 60,000 to 70,000 men—were reported in the Wonju area and at least 150,000 men of the Chinese 3rd Field Army were moving across the 38th Parallel to back them up.

Wonju lies 45 miles south of the 38th Parallel, old frontier between North and South Korea, and Chungju, 70 miles south of it.

Korean Refugees Are Too Tired, Too Stunned To Complain Of Life

By H. D. QUIZZ
DOWN THE ROAD FROM SEUL, Jan. 9 (UPI)—The refugees don't complain. They don't whimper. They are too tired for that. Too tired, too stunned and too busy keeping themselves staggering along under the burden of bedding and rice on their backs.

As you roll down the withdrawal roads in a jeep, you get a series of flashed pictures of their plight. You are forced inexorably along by the mass of vehicular movement. You don't stop because that would snarl up the jeep and truck convoys behind you.

It's like being on a train and gazing at tragedy out the window and not being able to get out and talk to the people involved or do anything about it.

We had seen the thousands of refugees leaving Seoul afoot and wondered where they would find places to sleep along the way.

"Now you know where they sleep," a man in our jeep said.

They were weary. Many slept by the roadside. Their white-clad bodies flashed by in the night. They lay close together for warmth. They just stopped walking and dropped in their tracks when night came on.

Many of those who were piled on trucks got no sleep because the trucks kept right on rolling. Other trucks pulled into fields beside the road and their occupants dropped off to sleep without moving from their places atop the stacks of their household goods.

Some built fires and stood around them, sleepless but warm. And some kept on walking, shuffling painfully through the night handkerchiefs pressed against nose and mouth to sift the choking clouds of dust raised by the traffic.

We passed a dead man lying on the roadway. He was on his side with his legs bent at the knees, as if he had lain down and died of cold or starvation. The cars of the convoys swerved around the body as they passed.

As our headlights played on the big trucks in front of us, swaying under their load of humanity and baggage like a ship with too much cargo topside, it was hard to see how all the refugees managed to hang on. The baggage was heaped up sometimes 10 feet higher than the cab top and the men, women and children, riding backwards to shield their faces from the stinging cold wind, covered every inch of the baggage.

The trains were incredible. You had to look back after you had passed to make sure of the sight you had just seen. You couldn't believe that many people could be on them. They were heaped even on the tops of the freight cars and on the flatcars. They covered the engine, stood on the cowcatcher and hung on to the sides of the cab.

And once we came upon tragedy compounded. A truck loaded with refugees had lurched and pitched

THE STORY: Sgt. Eddie Engstrom commands a squad of men wired out in action. Only when they find themselves in Westward—do some towns of most of them do they realize they are dead. Only two living beings can see the men: Duke, Eddie's dog, and Margie Lou, the girl Eddie fell in love with after he was dead. Margie Lou can see Eddie when she holds his good luck piece, a Chinese coin, which she found on the bus Eddie used to drive.

"XIN
MARGIE Lou laughed. "Nobody's asked me for a date for almost ever and now I'm all tangled up with two for the same day." She put the lucky coin in her uniform coat pocket.

"What do you say, Margie Lou?" Margie Lou didn't say anything. She didn't act as if she had heard. Eddie waited and then repeated the question.

Someone signaled for a stop and a lady got off.

"When they were rolling once more Margie Lou said, "If you'd really like to see me later would you mind coming to my house? My aunt's sick—I live with her—but we could sit outside on the front steps. Is that okay?"

"Sure," Eddie agreed. "Any place that we can talk."

"Why don't you say something?" Margie Lou asked a trifle impatiently. "I can't be away from home for—"

"She turned her head toward him and stopped suddenly in mid-speech. "Where are you?"

"Right here," said Eddie.

"Where's who?" demanded a stout woman in blacks. "Look where you're going, driver."

"But where's that soldier who was standing just in front of you?" Margie persisted.

"Heck, dearie," answered the overfatted passenger, "I didn't notice if there was a soldier there. What's one soldier when there's so many?"

Margie Lou shook her head. "He must have got off at the last stop."

"If he did his slip showed an inch and he was wearin' a darn funny hat with purple feathers on it."

Eddie tumbled to the trouble of "Take my lucky coin out of your pocket and hold it in your hand again, Margie Lou."

But Margie Lou paid no attention to him. She was inclined to be indignant. She muttered, "He was just kidding me."

"My advice is never trust them soldiers, dearie," said the lady. "They're all alike, string you along with hot air and then stand you up."

Eddie was helpless to do anything about it. He couldn't think of any way to make Margie Lou pick up the telephone again.

"End of the line! All out!" shouted Margie Lou. "Watch your step!"

Eddie stood aside, although that was hardly necessary, as the crowd was emptying itself in front of the brilliantly illuminated entrance to the boatworks.

WHEN the last passenger was gone and Margie Lou was about to close the doors Max Lengel drove up alongside in his battered convertible.

"Hi, Baby," he said gaily. "I thought I could wait out here as soon as your bus did. I wanted to make sure about our date for tonight. Is it all hunky-dory?"

Margie Lou did not close the door. "I had sort of an engagement—"

"Who with?"

"A soldier—he's home on leave."

"Soldiers are a dime a dozen. Don't waste your time on a jerk who's apt to get bumped off before you see him again. I'm going to be here right along. Where'll I pick you up?"

"You'd have to call at the house."

"I get it. Want to pretty yourself up. Don't blame you. I like buffy dresses myself. It's a date."

He drove off before she could say yes or no.

Margie Lou closed the bus door as Eddie bailed out, or maybe a second or two sooner. Eddie was mad. He didn't quite know who he was mad at but he certainly was fit to be tied.

EVERYBODY had to show his or her card as well as the photo-identification button in order to get past the two watchmen at the gate. All but Eddie.

It was a place of considerable activity. Old-fashioned arc lights spluttered in front of reflectors high up on poles. A good many women worked in the jobs where it was only necessary to know which end of a nail to hit with a hammer and how to do it without splattering too much blood from the mashed thumb.

As Eddie remembered it, there had never been more than a score of employees at the boatworks. Now there were hundreds.

Max Lengel, Eddie discovered, was a "set-up man" which gave him sort of a roving commission to inspect and fix machinery all over the yard. He usually made a lot of fussy adjustments which took up a lot of time. He also did considerable boisterous kidding with the younger women. His invariable joke was to warn them not to work so hard or they would be too tired to go riding with him when it was their turn.

"Why, Mr. Lengel," said one of the more shapely laborers, "I don't see how you get the gasoline to run around like you do."

"Easy, if you know the right people like I do. Besides, it don't take much." Max nodded a wink.

"When there's a pretty girl along I always run out of gas a couple of miles out of town. You can depend on that. But I can usually find some to get home on later. You can depend on that. Sister, I've got a lot of gasoline hid all over the county," he boasted.

"Some of it right here in the yards, where the OPA inspector would never think of looking for it. When you need some for your cigarette lighter, just ask me."

TCU Tries For No. 1 Spot In SWC Race

By United Press
Texas Christian's Horned Frogs get a chance to climb into undisputed possession of the No. 1 spot in the young Southwest Conference basketball race.

The Frogs, tied with Texas for the loop lead, play Rice at Fort Worth while Baylor takes on Texas A&M at Waco.

Southern Methodist downed Arkansas, 60 to 45, last night for its second victory in three starts.

Rice was not expected to slow TCU's victory march, and the Aggies ruled favorites over the Bears. SMU's Mustangs roundly outplayed Arkansas last night, opening up with a 13-point basket barrage before the Hogs ever scored a point. The Ponies took a 37-25 halftime lead.

The loss was Arkansas' second in as many conference starts.

Guard Fred Freeman was the big man for the Methodists, pouring in 21 points. Teammate Jack Brown scored 17. Bob Ambler topped Arkansas scorers with 14 points.

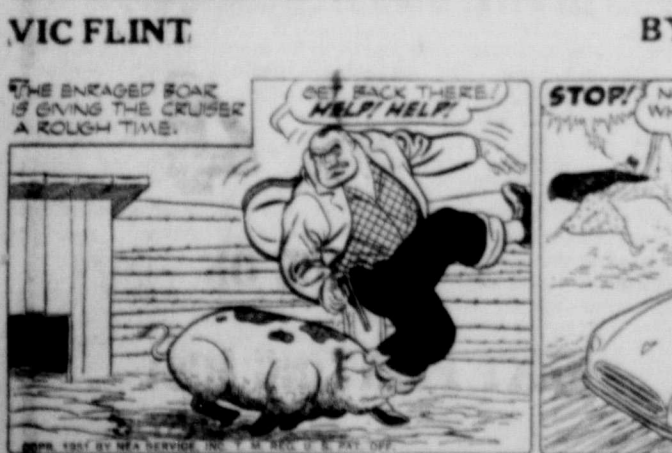

The performance pushed both Freeman and Brown ahead of the field in individual scoring within the conference. Freeman has bucketed 48 points in three games, while Brown scored 40.

Army Plans For Recalling Reserve Officers Told

AUSTIN, TEX.—The Texas quota for the recall to active duty of company grade civilian component officers under the program announced by the Department of the Army this week has been received by the Texas Military District, Col. C. M. Culp said today.

Of the Fourth Army total of 934 lieutenants and captains of all services, Texas will furnish 43 male captains, 170 male lieutenants, 4 WACs (captains of lieutenants), 12 chaplains (captains or lieutenants), and 26 medical service corps officers of company grade. The quota for medical and dental officers has not been allotted at this time. Reporting dates are scheduled for March 1951.

Under this new program National Guard officers and members of the active or inactive reserve in company grades may volunteer. Part of the quota will be filled from a reservoir of officers who volunteered under previous recall program but who have not been ordered to duty.

The Army expects that the bulk of these company grade officers in the arms and services will enter active duty voluntarily as a patriotic duty in a time of national emergency, Colonel Culp stated.

Officers will be ordered to active duty on the following priority basis:

Priority 1: Volunteers.

Priority 2: Members of the ORC commissioned from the ROTC deferred from Selective Service under an ROTC deferment agreement and who have had less than one year's active federal service as officers.

Priority 3: Members of the ORC commissioned from the ROTC who did not execute a deferment agreement and who have less than one year's active federal service as officers, warrant officers or enlisted men.

Priority 4: Members of the Volunteer Reserve.

Priority 5: Members of divisional troop program units of the Organized Reserve.

Civic League To Meet Wednesday

Officers for 1951 will be elected at a meeting of the Eastland Civic League and Garden Club at the Woman's Club, Wednesday, January 10, at 3 p.m.

Hostesses will be Meses, W. B. Pickens, H. B. MacMoy, R. D. Eate, and H. L. Hassell.

The date of Jan. 12, for which the meeting is listed in the club book, is an error, Mrs. James Horton, president said. The club always meets on the second Wednesday of each month.

Shivers Asks Simple Ceremony For Inaugural

AUSTIN, Jan. 8 (Special)—A simple "swearing-in ceremony" here Jan. 16 will start Gov. Allan Shivers on his first full term in the state's highest office.

The Governor will take the oath of office at noon that day on the front steps of the state capitol. It will be administered to both Shivers and Ben Ramsey, Lieutenant governor elect, by J. E. Hickman, chief justice of the state supreme court. Both Shivers and Ramsey will make brief inaugural addresses.

The only state function to be held in connection with the inauguration is a reception at 7 p.m. in the capitol rotunda, where the public will have a chance to meet Shivers, Ramsey and other state officials.

No inauguration invitations are being sent out, as a result of the Governor's request for a simple ceremony.

Because of the international situation, Governor Shivers asked the Citizens' Inaugural Committee to abandon plans for the usual elaborate festivities normally scheduled for a Governor's inauguration.

The inaugural committee had made detailed plans for a long parade, a reception, six balls and other pageantry in connection with the inauguration. About 20,000 engraved invitations were to have been sent out.

Thus, for the second time, Shivers will take the governor's oath of office without fanfare. On July 16, 1949, he was sworn in as successor to the late Gov. Beauford Jester. That ceremony took place on the Shivers farm near Woodville.

"The seriousness of our situation," the Governor told the inaugural committee, "is emphasized by the president's action. As we concentrate upon essential elements of an all-out mobilization effort, an elaborate inauguration would be out of place."

Small Cotton Crop In 1951 Would Be Bad

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 9 (UP)—A small cotton crop next fall would be "a major catastrophe for the cotton belt" and a blow to national security, Harold A. Young, president of the National Cotton Council, warned last night.

Young, of North Little Rock, Ark., spoke at the annual meeting of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association.

Young said failure to produce a 16,000,000 bale crop in 1951 would be "a grave threat to national security." He said 10,400,000 bales would be consumed in the United States this year and 5,800,000 bales exported, thus leaving a carry-over of some 500,000 bales.

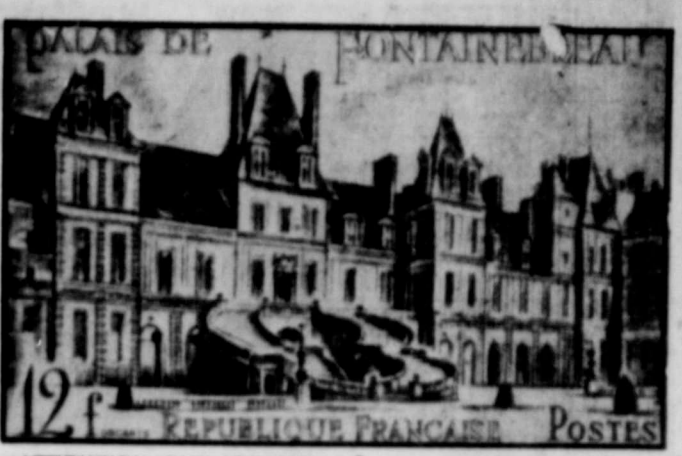

"If we fail to grow the needed cotton, we shall certainly weaken our case against rayon expansion," he said.

"We have been told on good military authority that it will take one-half a bale per man to fully equip our armed forces. It seems conservative to say our domestic needs in 1951-52 will be between 10,000,000 and 11,000,000 bales."

The council president predicted cotton consumption in the U. S. would jump to 11 or 12 million bales annually if Russia should over-run Europe.

"We would face new handicaps in trying to grow a big crop in any war year," Young warned. "The absolute necessity of an adequate stockpile of cotton would be a matter of the greatest national interest."

Ten tons of coal are required to produce the steel used in building and equipping a modern home.

ATTENTION, PHILATELISTS—This is a new 12-franc postage stamp being issued by French postal authorities this month. The dark brown stamp shows a front view of the famous Fontainebleau Palace, former residence of French kings, now the summer home for presidents of France.

Fancy Touches To Brighten Spring Wear

By Elizabeth Toomey
NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (UP)—Fancy touches like rhinestone-studded wool fleece and pearl-encrusted linens make women's clothes seem the brightest thing in the spring forecast.

These were shown yesterday in the first of a week-long series of spring and summer fashions previewed for some 165 visiting fashion editors. The press week is sponsored annually by the New York Dress Institute.

Pauline Trigere lined a grey fleece coat with white shantung taffeta, added a border of rhinestones along the inner edge from collar to hemline, and showed the coat with a white shantung short formal. She also decorated a short white fleece jacket with tiny gold buttons, sewn in an irregular pattern over the entire jacket.

Maurice Rentner, another designer who picked the spring to add beguiling touches of luxury to women's clothes, embroidered a design of pearls on the strapless bodice of a pink linen cocktail dress, with a similarly-embroidered stole.

The "telescope silhouette" is another idea of Rentner's. He has cut skirts, capes and sleeves with a wide flare "that suggests a telescope shape."

Generally, the most wearable clothes in the collections were the slim tailored suits, the dress and jacket ensembles.

Miss Trigere matched sheer wools with wool fleeces in pastel shades for dress and coat combinations. One pale yellow sheer sleeveless dress with a V-neckline was worn with a matching pale yellow fleece full-length coat.

Herbert Sondheim's spring dresses are combined with dusters, jackets, stoles, or even sweaters. For evening wear, he designed a bright pink silk linen sheath dress to be worn with a pink and grey wool plaid duster.

This tendency to add something extra to give a "costume" look to every outfit was present in the Capri original collection also, one of the five previewed yesterday. Fringed stoles to wear with day-time suits, dotted silk on one side and navy wool on the other, were shown with Easter suits.

For junior sizes, Emily Wilkens showed bolero suits, boxy jackets and slim skirts, and those inevitable separates, this time in silk shantung, combining new shades like lavender and wisteria.

The only two things the designers are unanimous about is a natural shoulder line and shorter skirts. The rest is up to your figure.
