Ranger Splits Games With Eastland Teams

Two hotly contested and well played basketball games in Eastland last night saw the Beauties defeat the Eastland girls 31-26 and the Bulldogs lose in the last seconds 29-31.

It was a well officiated game and both teams played good, clean basketball. The Bulldog-Maverick tilt was a hair-raiser. For four quarters the two teams stayed within a basket of each other. At the end of the first quarter, Ranger led 8-6. Then Eastland grabbed the lead at the half, 10-17. They kept it when the third quarter ended by 25-23 and came within inches of losing the district tilt.

At the end of the first minute of the final period, the score was tied 25-25. Cole then sank a set shot to put Ranger ahead. A fast crisp shot by Simpson pushed Ranger four points in front, the 25-25, and it looked like the Bulldogs were pulling the game out of the fire as the Mavericks seemed to be tiring and were becoming sluggish.

Then Stephens dropped in a set shot to close the gap to 20-27. A few seconds later, Wommack who played a good game of snagging rebounds, bucked a one-handed set shot to tie up the game 29-29. The game was only a few minutes away when Haines flipped in the winning field goal.

Eastland's Haines had 12 points for high scoring honors. Cole was second with 10 points. Other Ranger scorers were Hummel, Cunningham, and Carter with 4 points each, Simpson with 5 and Massee with 2. Stephens tallied 7 points for Eastland.

Keeping in step with the close tempo of last night's games, the Beauties made a last quarter surge that pulled them away from the threatening Eastland girls. With the score 29-26 late in the game, Kirkpatrick sank a crisp shot to clinch the Beauty win. The Beauties boasted a 27-19 halftime lead but after Penn Pounds and Hull fouled out in quick order, Eastland caught up in a hurry. Hazzard, Eastland's long-shot specialist, scored 22 points for top scoring honors for the night. Penn led the Beauty scorers with 13 points followed by Pounds with 11, Hull 5 and Kirkpatrick with 2.

Round Robin Golf Meet Slated Feb. 4

It has been decided at a meeting between Eastland, Cisco, and Ranger country club representatives that a round robin match, starting Feb. 4 will be played. The schedule will be played as matched, except in case of bad weather. Should a match be postponed, it shall be played off after the full schedule has been played.

Each player at each match is to play up 25c, which will go to buy trophies for the winning team. If this team can win the trophy two times in a row it will belong to them. If not, the trophy will rotate.

Ranger and Cisco stated that they would not promise at first to put over 15 players on the field, but hoped they could build this up to 20 or 25 players before the matches were completed. Matches will be scheduled according to ladders, 1-2-3-4, etc. This does not mean that the first 15 players on the ladder is the team. Some of them cannot be present and will have to be filled in by those below 15.

Also, Cisco and Ranger may have 20 or more show up for the match and it is desired that Eastland have enough players on hand to match all opposition.

There will be no green fee for the matches with the 25c fee for trophy's the only charge.

The schedule is now set as follows: Cisco at Eastland, Feb. 4; Eastland at Ranger, Feb. 18; Ranger at Cisco, Feb. 25; Eastland at Cisco, March 4; Ranger at Eastland, March 11; Cisco at Ranger, March 18.

8 Degrees In Ranger Wed. Morning; Officers Warn Against Driving

Only penguins and eskimoes had an excuse to be out in weather like this. Everyone else just forced themselves to brave the bone-chilling freeze.

Streets were fast freezing over and becoming hazardous from the light sleet that fell on Ranger this morning. Highway patrolmen who had been to Ft. Worth yesterday said road conditions were getting worse and advised motorists not to travel unless absolutely necessary.

Ranger had a teeth-chattering 8 degrees Wednesday morning—the third consecutive day of below 10 degree weather. No serious traffic accidents had been reported around Ranger this morning but several frozen cars were being pushed or towed.

No relief was in sight. Gray clouds still hung over Ranger at 11 a.m., hinting at more sleet or some snow before the day ended.

Old man winter, which has been "toying" with Texas for three days, cut loose in earnest today.

An arctic cover in the form of snow, sleet or freezing rain, or a mixture of the same, fell on virtually every one of the 263,644 square miles of the nation's largest state.

For the second straight day sub-freezing temperatures gripped the entire state, and added to the fears of cattlemen and farmers that losses from the unusual siege would amount into the millions.

And, no relief was in sight. Latest forecasts called for continued snow, sleet or freezing rain through tomorrow with virtually no moderation in temperatures except possibly slightly above freezing on the immediate coast.

At dawn, snow was falling at Dalhart, Amarillo, Childress, Wichita Falls, Lubbock El Paso, Marfa, Wink, Midland, Salt Flat and intermediate points. Sleet was reported from Abilene, Mineral Wells, Dallas, Fort Worth, Lufkin and San Angelo and freezing rain or drizzle elsewhere.

The sleet had turned to snow by 8 a.m. in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Temperatures were about constant with the lows and highs of the past two days. It was six above at Dalhart, seven at Amarillo, 13 at Abilene and Wichita Falls, 15 at San Angelo, 16 at Fort Worth, 17 at Waco, 18 at Texarkana and Dallas, 19 at El Paso, 20 at San Antonio, 25 at Laredo and Corpus Christi, 27 at Houston, 28 at Brownsville and 30 at Galveston, the highest reading in the state.

The snow started around midnight in West Texas and if it continues during the day will help alleviate to some extent serious drought conditions which have plagued practically all of the

Gen. 'Fireball' Ferenbaugh Is One Tough Soldier; He Wants Answer Not Tonight, Tomorrow, But Now

WITH THE U. S. 7TH DIVISION, Korea Jan. 31 (UP)—Brig. Gen. Claude E. (Fireball) Ferenbaugh, new commanding officer of the 7th Division, is a blunt man, and he's tough.

If he asks one of his staff officers a question, he wants the answer pronto. Not this afternoon. Not tonight. He wants it now!

If he doesn't get it, that officer is in for a "chewing out" he'll remember for a long time.

Ferenbaugh's blunt and often embarrassing questions at division briefing sessions have caught some of his officers unawares. Once caught, they become so obviously thorough that their close-cropped hair creates the impression it too is trying to stand at attention.

It was only a short time after Ferenbaugh took over from Maj. Gen. David G. Barr that he earned the nickname "Fireball." Barr, an older man, instilled discipline and cooperation through a fatherly, soft spoken approach.

"Fireball" is his exact opposite. His language is colorful and loud.

At his first briefing, Feren-baugh asked each member of his staff when they had last visited the regiments in the front lines. The next day, regimental commanders reported the greatest influx of brass in months.

Ferenbaugh, of San Francisco, stands over six feet tall and tips the scales past the 200 mark, every pound of it solidly muscle. He believes in keeping his men on their toes and makes no secret of how he goes about doing it.

He knows what he wants and asks his staff to get him the answers in as concise and correct form as possible.

"I don't care what you hope or what you believe," he told a Colonel one morning. "I want you to know."

At one briefing session, it was determined that an engineer Captain was at fault in constructing approaches to a river ford.

"Tell him he wants to jump real high the next time he pulls anything like that because his tail is going to be caught in a real thick crack," Ferenbaugh told his staff engineer.

state this winter. However, it takes approximately 10 inches of snow to equal an inch of rain or eight inches of sleet to measure out the same.

City bus service was suspended at Austin, where ice made its hilly streets virtually impassable. The same was true of highways in that vicinity. Airport runways also were glazed over and airlines were skipping the capital city.

The University of Texas postponed its registration deadline for the second semester from tomorrow until Saturday and opening of classes from Friday until Monday because of the weather.

Greyhound bus service to the west and north of Houston was cancelled last night, but the company said it hoped to resume some runs by noon today to Dallas, Austin and San Antonio. Its routes to the east were still operating.

In the sheep country of West Texas, the prolonged cold and freezing rain and snow was beginning to threaten lambs.

State Studies Bill Prohibiting Tex. Income Tax

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 31 (UP)—A house committee studies a proposed constitutional amendment today prohibiting a state income tax in Texas.

The proposal, authorized by Rep. Marshall O. Bell of San Antonio, was expected to highlight an afternoon session of the house committee on constitutional amendments.

Committee members also will consider an amendment, sponsored by Rep. Cloyd Young of Linden, which would ask voters to approve issuance of $75,000,000 in bonds for the Veterans Land Board. Approval of the amendment would raise total funds provided for the program to an even $100,000,000.

Lawmakers, fighting a tight schedule of committee meetings, cleared morning sessions in both House and Senate in less than an hour yesterday.

Gov. Allan Shivers told newsmen the Texas financial picture was looking brighter although new taxes still were urgently needed.

The chief executive said he had been "studying the situation," and indicated the new tax load might be lighter than $110,000,000, as had been estimated.

Shivers said the recent increase of 117,000 barrels a day in Texas' crude oil allowable would add some $8,000,000 per year to the state's revenue. The allowable may be pushed up further by military needs, he added.

Bayonet Fighting Flares Between UN, Commies In Raging Korea War

By Earnest Hobrecht
TOKYO, Thursday, Feb. 1 (UP)—Both Communist and United Nations commanders threw fresh forces into the raging Korean battle Wednesday but the UN troops of at least eight countries continued their advance, blasting out new gains on the road to Seoul.

A new section of the front erupted into flaming action at dawn when the U. S. 9th Corps jumped off in the central sector and collided with heavy Red defenses in the Wonju-Inchon area.

Air reports said the Reds had thrown 15,000 to 20,000 new troops into the area nine miles northeast of Kumsong.

The Reds also were reported feverishly building a two-mile-long string of foxhole defenses on the north bank of the Han River near there.

New Zealand artillery and British tanks joined the battle Wednesday for the first time since the retreat from Seoul, supporting UN soldiers who were digging entrenched Red out of their holes with bayonets and grenades.

One spearhead lunged nine miles north of Suwon, 16 miles south of Seoul, for the deepest penetration toward Seoul since the week-old offensive began.

New destruction was rained on the Communists on Korea's east coast. A terrifying Allied armada led by the mighty Battleship Missouri sailed 20 miles north from Kamsong and began pouring explosives into the town of Kamsong.

Red resistance stiffened all along the line and hand-to-hand fighting flared at points. Front dispatches told of American and Puerto Rican infantrymen prying Reds out of their foxholes with bayonets.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 31 (UP)—A stubborn general alarm fire raged through seven stores in the heart of the downtown district today and threatened to engulf the entire block. Two others of the 11 businesses in the block suffered smoke and water damage.

Fire Chief C. A. Middelkuf said at 10 a.m. three hours after the fire broke out, that the flames "have been slowed down."

"But you can definitely say the fire is not under control yet," he said. "However, we believe we can keep it from spreading."

The fire was located on the west side of the 600 block of Main Street, just a block from Houston's towering skyscrapers. The Rice Hotel at Texas and Main was just across the street from the fire.

It was not endangered, however, but its lobby was turned into a first aid station.

Police estimated at least four persons have been injured fighting the fire, including district fire chief M. M. Henry who was severely burned when a tongue of flame leaped from a window as he climbed an icy ladder.

More than 100 firemen and all fire equipment was pressed into the fight. Icy streets and sub-freezing weather hampered firemen, and delayed one company answering the alarm for 20 minutes. Traffic in the downtown area was still jammed.

BULLETIN

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 31 (UP)—A violent earthquake shook Lima at 10:30 a.m. (CST) today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (UP)—President Truman will ask about $10,000,000 in higher taxes in his special message to Congress Friday, congressional sources said today.

They said a recommendation for another $6,000,000, 000 increase will be made later.

Other businesses in the area had to delay opening due to the smoke and traffic jams in the area.

Clouds of heavy black smoke billowed up hundreds of feet from the burning block. This also hampered firemen who had to climb ice-coated ladders to reach the fire.

In many cases, firemen were forced to leap 20 feet for their lives as a wall crashed or buckled.

A series of fires added to the woes of shivering Texans today.

A raging blaze which razed the three-story J. C. Penney building in downtown Lubbock was controlled last night at 11 o'clock by firemen working in 15-degree weather. No one was reported injured.

Store officials said the fire, causing damage estimated at $400,000, may have started from a gas leakage.

Firemen from several Panhandle cities and towns fought yesterday to conquer a pre-dawn million-dollar blaze at Childress which destroyed the First State Bank and seven other downtown business establishments.

In another early morning fire yesterday, the Hickory Hollow Night Club in northeastern Amarillo burned to the ground. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

The 14-room grade school building at Idalon, near Lubbock, was destroyed yesterday at a loss estimated at $75,000. Classes were scheduled in churches until a new building is constructed.

A fire late Monday destroyed the gymnasium at the Trenton (Fannin County) High School. A faulty pilot light on a heater was blamed for the blaze, which caused damage estimated at $40,000.

The Lee Dunavin family of Fort Worth fled their home in bitter cold when it caught fire. The parents and their six children suffered from shock and cold.

The high school band's first formal concert will be held Monday, Feb. 5, at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Admission will be free.

★ WASHINGTON COLUMN ★

They'll Argue and Argue And Argue and Argue and . . .

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Crux of the big gab fest on foreign policy is whether the President has the power to send U. S. troops to Europe under the North Atlantic Treaty, and whether the President has such power to send U. S. troops to Korea under the United Nations resolution. President Truman thinks he has that power. Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio thinks the President does not have that power.

Both can cite the Constitution as their authority. Senator Taft cites Article I, section 8, paragraph 8: "The Congress shall have power . . . to declare war . . ."

That means that the President doesn't have the power to declare war. But the circumstances in today's situation are that the President has not declared war against the North Koreans nor against the Chinese Communists nor the Russians. And no declaration of war is involved in sending additional U. S. divisions to Europe.

The two divisions in Europe now are there as Army of Occupation, because peace with Germany has not been concluded. The President's asserted power to send more divisions to Europe stems from Article II, section 2, paragraph 1 of the Constitution:

"The President shall be Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States . . ."

The President also has the authority to conduct foreign relations. The Constitution gives him the authority to make treaties and send ambassadors abroad, subject to confirmation by the Senate. Both the United Nations Charter and the North Atlantic Treaty were so ratified by the Senate.

BUT in this connection, Senator Taft makes two points: 1—There is no legal obligation for the United States to send troops to Europe. Article 3 of the North Atlantic Treaty merely provides that the United States is obligated to go to war against any country that attacks one of the Atlantic Pact nations. The United States is left free to decide how it will fight that war, how much and what kind of aid it will give the European countries.

2—The act passed by Congress to implement the United Nations Charter provided for the commitment of troops only after a special military agreement to set up an international police force had been made by the Security Council. This agreement was specifically to be made subject to later ratification by Congress.

International lawyers, Constitutional lawyers, senators and everybody else can and probably will argue interminably on the legal points that Senator Taft has raised. Unquestionably, the senator has a case, from a legal standpoint.

The other side of the argument is that the President as Commander-in-Chief has control over the armed forces of the United States to carry out his foreign policy. The power to send these forces outside the country is not dependent on Congress and it has been exercised without approval of Congress many times.

SINCE the Revolution, the United States has been in only five wars declared by Congress: The War of 1812 against England, Mexican and Spanish Wars, World Wars I and II.

But 85 instances are recorded in which the President has ordered U. S. land and sea forces into action against foreign powers without prior approval of Congress.

Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin and ex-Sen. Warren Austin of Vermont have both stated their belief that the President has the power to carry out U. S. commitments in relation to international policing under the United Nations.

But the debate on this question is just beginning. Sen. Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska and others think the President should send no U. S. troops abroad without prior, specific approval by Congress.

Louis Insists He Can Thump Charles in Repeat Performance

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—If Ezzard Charles continues to look bad enough long enough, he's sure pop to get another crack at Joe Louis and vice versa:

Louis insists he can thump Charles in a second edition, and rating Ezzard the Gizzard off his performance against the heavy-weighted pedestrian, Lee Oms, the old general might.

Charles is as good a reason as any for Louis' persistence. Fighters back into matches nowadays. They're running the beak-busting business backwards, upside down.

Charles cut up and stopped Freddie Besnore, so the Harrisburg Hamburger Steak got Louis.

Oms was knocked out 16 times, once last year, dropped 10 decisions, so they matched him with Charles.

Oms outgalled Bob Satterfield, so the Chicago Negro drew a New York main event with Elkins Brothers, who, by the way, is just one guy.

Brothers' biggest achievement was the outpointing of Omelia Agramonte. For that meritorious feat, Agramonte, the Cuban, was presented with a Madison Square Garden semi-final supporting a world heavy-weight championship engagement, or what passes for one these dizzy television days.

FASTENING a headlock on his golden opportunity, and throwing it for a fall, Agramonte was twice dropped in dropping a unanimous eight-round decision to Clarence Henry. That's all he had to do. He was immediately richly rewarded with a chance at Louis at the Miami, Fla., Stadium, Feb. 7.

Conceding weight, Ray Robinson took four out of five from Jake LaMotta, so now the Bronx Bull gets to defend the middleweight championship against his neighbor at the Chicago Stadium, Feb. 14.

Having lost the National Boxing Association's version of the heavy-weight leadership to Charles, and more recently been pummeled by young Layne, the ancient and honorable Jersey Joe Walcott, is to have another go at the champion, in Detroit, March 7.

Joey Maxim has thrice lost to Charles. The Cleveland delicatessen proprietor has also twice been repulsed by Walcott. The way things are done today, that gives him priority over Louis, who was cuffed around by Charles only the one time.

So Maxim is slated for a crack at the heavy-weight crown, in Jersey, which puts Louis off until September.

Maybe He's Trying To Set an Endurance Record

Perhaps unique in the history of college instruction is the Perkins School of Theology Quadrangle on the campus of Southern Methodist University. School officials believe that it is the first theological seminary plant designed and brought to completion in one continuous operation. Costing approximately $3,500,000 the seven-building quadrangle will be dedicated to the training of ministers and Christian workers on Feb. 8. Show in the aerial view are, left to right in the foreground of the quadrangle: Kirby Hall, the Perkins Chapel, and the Bridwell Library; rear, left to right: E. B. Hawk Apartments, Paul E. Martin Apartments; S. B. Perkins Dormitory, and A. Frank Smith Dormitory. Insets show Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Perkins of Wichita Falls, for whom the school is named. They are long-time benefactors of SMU and principal donors to the development of its theology school facilities.

KIRSTEN had used the slight pause to moisten her lips and to breathe deeply a couple of times. Now she held up her hand for attention.

"I did not have to tell you this and this man—Max Lengel is his name—would not have told you if I had agreed to do as he ordered me. Therefore you can see it is very important to me to urge you to pay no attention to those who tell you to slow down. I am making it impossible for me to continue to live among you in this town that I love. That's how important it is."

"Because it is so important that this talk about doing less should cease I am going to tell you even more than this man, Max Lengel, would have told you. What I am going to tell you is that the reason I shall some day have a baby which is not my husband's is because the man with whom I was assigned to ride to work did not take me home one night but instead drove me out into the country and, when I struggled against him, he knocked me unconscious. I do not know how an enemy soldier acts with an American nurse whom he has captured but I think it is probably much the same."

There was a low, menacing growl from the old hands down front. Kirsten had her audience back.

"We can't stop working for anything or anybody. Don't listen to those who try to persuade you. We mustn't even have such people around. So I am going to tell you who is the father of my baby. Guard your wives and daughters from him. Never let them be alone on the streets at night while he is in your town. And don't forget his name. It's Max Lengel!"

Westwaygo was not a lynching town. That was one of the reasons why Max finally escaped with only a severe community beating—not a bone broken, just some of them bent a little. Two other factors contributed to his luck if you could call it that. The men who would have been the roughest with him had fists that he couldn't feel and boots that did not bruise. The final thing that saved Max's life was the fact that the whistle blew. The swing shift went to work.

MAX LENGEL'S convertible was parked inside the wire stockade which enclosed the bootworks property. The guard at the gate looked at him curiously as Max went in, located his car and drove it out, but he made no effort to stop him. He, the guard, had seen what had happened to Max but from a considerable distance and he didn't have a chance to take a poke at him personally, a matter of some slight regret. Max had one eye swollen shut but it seemed as if that were not quite enough.

Max had a couple of passengers—Eddie and Joe. They didn't have much else to do. Duke elected to run along beside the car.

"I want to know where the louse is going," Edging explained. "He might bother Margie, Lou."

"Not likely," said Joe. "There's nothing like a good beating up to calm a man down."

Max drove the convertible to a filling station. "Fifteen gallons," he told the attendant, "and put it on the cuff, George, until pay day."

George, who had the gasoline hose in his hand, hung it up again. "No cuff, Max. There ain't no to be any next pay day for you—not in Westwaygo."

Max scowled. "Wotta y'mean?"

"I've got a telephone," George nodded toward the little office. "The wire has certainly been siz-zlin'. I've heard how you got that shiner." George laughed, not very pleasantly.

Max told George what he was as he started his motor and left the driveway. "This guy has got to do some thinking," said Joe after looking at the fuel gauge. "Not much gas, no friends, broke and very little credit."

Max stopped at the first tavern and sat down in a dimly lighted booth. Eddie and Joe occupied the bench across from Max. The waiter, an elderly man who had obviously been unearthened to fill in during the labor shortage, wiped off the table with the tail of his apron and asked, "What'll it be?"

"An old fashioned," replied Joe promptly. "Not too sweet."

"Mine's beer," said Eddie. "Bourbon, straight," ordered Max.

"One slug of whisky," shouted the waiter to the bartender. "Didn't hear our orders," observed Joe glumly.

Time passed. Max drank more whisky and got just quarrelsome enough so that when the elderly waiter suggested that he settle for what he had already had Max made a row which was compromised in his favor as a measure of safety for the bar fixtures.

"Things are looking up," Joe decided. "This reminds me of that western movie we saw in camp last week."

A BOY brought in the Westwaygo News. Max found a nickel and bought one, but left it lying on the wet table without reading it. "Just about a lot more suckers getting killed," he said contemptuously to the waiter. "Another shot and make it snappy. I gotta go someplace as soon as I can remember where."

Eddie and Joe read the headlines. The ceremony at the boatworks rated second place. The big ship was about a battle in the Pacific.

"WESTWAYGO MEN LAND" The war correspondent, himself wounded, had filed an eye witness account of the beachhead battle and, by a miracle of relaxed censorship, had named some of the units engaged. There had been heavy casualties.

"Gee, that's us," said Eddie. (To Be Continued)

Life Expectancy Of Wage Earners Is 68.2 Years

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 31—The expectation of life at birth among American wage earners and their families rose to an all-time high of 68.2 years in 1950, according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, chief statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This is a half year higher than in 1949. The expectation of life has increased 2 1/2 years in the past four decades and has doubled in little more than two generations.

Progress in extending the average length of life has been more rapid in the industrial population than in the population as a whole. Forty years ago the expectation of life at birth among the industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the United States was about 6 1/2 years less than in the general population of the United States whereas now the figures are practically the same for both groups.

Dr. Dublin attributes the gains in longevity to advances in medical science and public health administration, and to the rising standard of living which has particularly favored the industrial population.

SCENES AROUND RANGER

Much more sleet and streets will become dangerously slick. The frozen pebbles played a tattoo on Ranger housepets early this morning and motorists and pedestrians were cautiously feeling their way to work. It was a light fall of sleet, about .15 inch.

Today's low of 8 degrees marked the third straight day that Ranger has shivered in weather below 10 degrees. Tuesday's low was 5 and Monday's 6 degrees. In comparison, last year saw a low of 24 degrees on Jan. 29, 22 degrees Jan. 30 and 24 Jan. 31.

The poll tax deadline came today. Ranger has been a little slow in buying its ballot receipts. They are available at 214 W. Main St. which is open until 6 p.m. today selling poll taxes.

TCU Grabs 2nd Place With Win Over Baylor

By United Press
The high-flying Texas Longhorns will be out to keep their spot atop Southwest Conference basketball standings tonight when they tangle with an ambitious squad from Texas A&M.

Texas is undefeated in four starts in title play. The game, at College Station, is the only one scheduled tonight.

Texas Christian's Horned Frogs grabbed undisputed possession of second place in the conference chase last night by spilling Baylor, 60 to 48.

The victory was TCU's fourth in five conference starts and pulled the Frogs out of a tie with Texas A&M.

The Bears played near-even basketball in the first half, which ended with the Frogies leading by a scant, 31 to 28 margin. However, teamwork paid off in the late stages as TCU pulled ahead for keeps.

Forward Ralph Johnson of Baylor plunked 19 points through the basket to gain a measure of comfort for 2,000 partisan fans at Rena McClean Marrs gymnasium on the Bruin campus. His left-handed jump shot proved especially deadly.

Woman Named To Internal Security Comm.

BY ELIZABETH TOOMEY
NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (UP)—Anna Lord Straus probably would be the apple of her great grandmother's eye if that famous Quaker woman were alive today. Miss Straus is the vice chairman, and the only woman member, of the President's Internal Security Commission. Her great grandmother was Lauretta Mott, a fiery fighter for women's rights a century ago.

Asked to talk about her new appointment, which she termed "a complete surprise to me," Miss Straus pointed out that the first meeting hadn't been called yet, so details would have to come later.

"But we will be dealing with a tremendous subject, that involves the rights of individuals as well as internal security. I think the attacks on individual rights by congressional committees have been dangerous," the former national president of the League of Women Voters said. "It is my hope that the commission will establish sound principals to protect these rights."

"My great grandmother started fighting for women's rights because they wouldn't accept her as a woman delegate to an anti-slavery convention in London," Miss Straus said. "She had a contribution to make, and she wasn't given a chance to make it."

Now that women have the right to vote, she gently suggested that too many were neglecting their responsibilities. "It sometimes is harder to make a contribution, being a woman, but it's becoming less and less so," she said. "My appointment as vice chairman of the commission is proof that women are given a chance now."

She's no newcomer to government committees, having been a member of the Consumer's Advisory Committee, to the OPA, and a delegate to the first meet-

The lone woman member of the commission is a plainly-dressed, athletic person of 51, with bright brown eyes and short white hair brushed straight back from her face. When she isn't busy with a committee or a full-time job, she spends her time ice skating, playing tennis, squash, golf, and "almost any sport, I like them all."

She's no newcomer to government committees, having been a member of the Consumer's Advisory Committee, to the OPA, and a delegate to the first meeting of the food and agricultural organization in Quebec. Her "Quaker conscience," she said, was one reason that started her on active career, though she was born into a well-to-do family. "I suppose my religion partly accounts for my simple taste in clothes too," she added with a smile, "though I don't think I'd be the type for ruffles anyway."

She was wearing a grey flannel jumper and a simple white blouse with no jewelry.

Announcements and Reports From Various Groups of Baptist Church

Walter Arterburn, Training Union Director at the First Baptist Church, presided over an interesting and important meeting of officers and departmental counselors, and leaders Monday evening at the church. Those in attendance worked in departmental groups to plan programs and activities for the month of February then met as a whole to share ideas and plans in a brief inspirational period before they were led in a closing prayer by Joe Graham, Associate Director.

These present were Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Arterburn, Joe Graham, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Carter and Janis, A. H. Williams, H. A. Shokey, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pruet, Helen Williams and Mrs. Milcy Williams.

Members of First Baptist Church will meet for the regular Wednesday evening services according to a new schedule beginning January 31. Choir rehearsal will be at 6:45 p.m., Sunday School teachers' and officers' meeting at 7:30, and a prayer meeting at 8 o'clock.

The new order of services is to make it possible for W. F. Couser, music director of the church, to practice with the choir since he will teach night classes at the college and cannot meet at the former hour.

G. B. Rush, Chairman of Visitation, and Rev. Perkins urge

Sunday School teachers and officers, as well as everyone who is interested in visiting the unsaved and the spiritually unenlightened of the town, to meet in the Intermediate Department at First Baptist Church for a short period of prayer and counsel together before going out in two' or three's to visit prospects.

These services will not be held this evening because of inclement weather conditions.

Couple Married In Ceremony At Aleo Church

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bearden's wedding was held at the First Baptist Church in Aleo, recently with the Rev. F. B. Haynes, officiating. The bride is the former Miss Verna LeRue Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Shaw. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bearden of Ranger. Mrs. Bearden is living at her parents' home while her husband is stationed temporarily at Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

Miss Betsy Dearing and J. J. Dearing, Jr., attended the couple. Bobby Farmer and Bobby Bennett were the ushers. Clifford Farmer, pianist, accompanied Charles Brinkley, who sang.

Luncheon Held At Baptist Church

A luncheon was held in the Fellowship Room of the First Baptist Church on Tuesday, January 30 from 12:00 until 1:00.

Those attending from the pastor's cabinet were: Rev. Ralph E. Perkins, chairman of Deacons, T. J. Anderson; Sunday School Superintendent, C. B. Pruet; Training Union Director Walter Arterburn; W. M. U. President, Mrs. Lee Mitchell; Brotherhood President, F. P. Brashier, Sr., and Music Director, W. F. Couser.

Others attending were members of the Building Committee, W. A. Lewis, Carl Page and J. H. McKinney.

The guests of the hour were Rev. H. H. McBride, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Breckenridge and W. A. Satterwhite, also of Breckenridge.

Charles Surbrook, who has been confined to the Veterans Hospital in Dallas for some time is reported to be improving.

O. R. and Charlie Cooper of Kilgore and Tyler are visiting Mr. and Mrs. V. V. Cooper.

Postponements For The Baptist Church Groups

The choir rehearsal, Sunday School Teacher's Meeting, prayer meeting and the cabinet meeting of the Brotherhood of the First Baptist Church have been postponed because of weather conditions. They were supposed to meet tonight at the church.
