'Danger Forward' Is One Of Many Code Names Of Army Units In Korea

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, March 7. (UP)—Anybody who is writing a book about the Korean war and doesn't name it "Danger Forward" is missing a good bet.

Of all the coded road signs along the winding, desolate earth-ways of Korea, danger forward is the most magnificent, the most stirring in its phraseology and implication and actual meaning, and generally one of the oldest. The Communist know it well.

"Danger" is the code name of an outfit which, to speak mildly, has been associated with the Korean war for some time. The "Forward" part of the sign means the "up front" section of the unit.

As in all wars, these code signs which point the way toward the locations of various units, are nailed to trees along the highways which have borne the traffic of battle. The names, with arrows pointing, are clustered on posts on road junctions, fixed against the mud walls of street-corner shacks in deserted villages, stuck on stone terraces and rock cliffs and river banks.

Advancing Communist troops must have wondered at times at the sheer number of these signs at some corners.

They blaze the trail of the main supply routes. They mark the stream of traffic on advances and retreats up and down Korea. In a

'Mr. X' Of Cage Scandal Nabbed In New York

NEW YORK, March 7 (UP)—The arrest of the mysterious "Mr. X" of one of the Madison Square Garden basketball fix rings was announced today by Bronx District Attorney George De Luca.

He was identified by De Luca as Sol Leon Rappaport, a dapper 25-year-old gambler, who was picked up when an alert detective spotted him getting out of an automobile last night in midtown Manhattan.

The curly haired Rappaport had been sought by police since the abortive attempt to fix the Manhattan College-DePaul basketball game in the Garden last Jan. 16. Police had referred to him only as "Mr. X" or "Stanley."

Rappaport was charged with bribery and conspiracy, the same charges on which two former Manhattan co-captains and three gamblers already have been indicted in the ring.

De Luca said that, on the eve of Jan. 16, Manhattan-De Paul game, Benjamin and Irving Schwartzberg, brothers with criminal records, Rappaport and Henry Poppe, one of the former co-captains, held a meeting to plan their strategy.

Poppe already had approached Julius Kellogg, six-foot eight-inch Manhattan center, with the gambler's bribe offer of $1,000 to throw the game, but the tall Negro reported the incident to Coach Ken Norton.

Norton reported the bribe attempt to police but told Kellogg to pretend to play along with the gamblers. Manhattan won, 62-59.

The Schwartzbergs and Poppe were arrested the day after the game along with Jack Byrnes, the other 1949 Manhattan co-captain, and Cornelius Kelleher.

Rappaport dropped out of sight immediately after the Manhattan-De Paul game, but detective Howard Phelan spotted him last night getting out of an automobile in the city's garment center. He arrested Rappaport and took him to a Bronx station for questioning.

section which has been so much fought over as that part of Korea from Seoul to Taegu, many of the signs have remained posted long after their outfits have moved elsewhere. You're likely to find "Danger Forward" staring you in the face in some section which long since has ceased to be a combat area.

Sometimes you find the old signs still posted along roads which have been United Nations property three times and Communist property two times, as the battle pendulum swung back and fourth along its north-south path. And in this sense, these signs from a sort of immediate history of the fighting.

As you jeep along it's as if the weathered and outdated signs are saying "my outfit fought and died here once and took part in the push that won this sector."

'51 CHRYSLER WINS SPEED TITLE AT 100 MPH

Tom McCahill, featured automotive writer for "Mechanix Illustrated" (center), receives trophy emblematic of the 1951 official unmodified stock-car record from Bill France, President of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing. The record of 100.13 miles per hour was made at Daytona Beach, Fla., in a Chrysler New Yorker four-door sedan, powered by the new 180-horsepower V-8 FirePower engine. McCahill entered the trials on the spur of the moment with a car that had been driven only 400 miles and that had been given a special tune-up. W. Brewster Shaw, Jr., Chrysler dealer in Daytona Beach, shown standing at the right, loaned him the vehicle, taking it off the showroom floor.

Ancient Egyptian Corpse Dup Up After 5,000 Years Lying In Sand

By Zaki Salama
United Press Staff Correspondent
EL-QATTA, Egypt (UP)—The unearthing of a 5,000-year-old tomb is something to see.

It was no monumental grave; just a yard-square hole in the ground. The body was there—a human body crouched with knees against chest as it had lain in the sands of an ancient necropolis for 5,000 years.

The tanned, sun-helmeted excavation expert, Shafik Farid, kicked the sand with his foot, called a foreman named Mahmoud and said: "let's dig here."

"Why this particular spot," this correspondent asked.

"See this line" and he pointed. "On that side the sand is dry, crisp, whitish. But on this side it's somewhat dark and sodden—that's the effect of the body underneath. That's how we know where to dig."

The sun beat warm and bright on the high, sandy plateau of this ancient necropolis on the edge of the desert, 35 miles northwest of Cairo. Far down in the east lay the fertile fields of the Nile delta. To the west rolled the sand dunes of the western desert.

Mahmoud, the foreman, dug through the surface sand with a hoe to bring out the sharp outline of a square tomb, then scooped the sand with his deft fingers. For 12 years he has lived by digging up the dead.

Now the grave was more than a yard deep. The fingers worked more slowly, softly.

A round, soft, bleached object appeared. It was the forefront of a skull.

"They buried their dead with the head to the north and the face looking west where the sun went down into what they believed was the dark underworld," Shafik Farid explained.

The foreman produced a soft, long-haired brush. Now even the touch of gentle fingers would be too harsh. Painstakingly he brushed the sand from the rest of the skull.

From behind the sandy veil of fifty centuries a face appeared. Over the rest of the body the brush moved tenderly. The ancient Egyptian's body lay in a crouched position, the knees bent in front of the chest.

"This is the primitive type of burial, belonging to the archaic period about 3,000 years before Christ," Shafik Farid said.

CUT THIS OUT AND PASTE ON CARDBOARD FOR REFERENCE

First objective in planning a Liberty garden production schedule is to get a maximum yield out of the space devoted to it. This requires that the land be kept busy all season, and the most efficient vegetables be grown, subject of course to the family preference.

"Efficient vegetables" is a term taken from a report by the University of California on a study of the returns in vitamin and mineral content and calorie value, as related to the garden space and hours of work required to grow various vegetables.

The most efficient vegetables are those of which the roots, stems, leaves, or seed pods are used for food. Right at the top rating are all the greens and salad leaves and broccolis. The least efficient, giving the lowest return in food value for the space they occupy, are reported to be melons, cucumbers, squash, sweet corn, peas and radishes.

Beans, carrots, beets, parsnips and onions all give heavy yields for small space; while tomatoes are efficient because of their long season, and the fact that when staked they take up little ground space.

The vegetables which require special thought are the ones which give a short harvest. They are also the earliest ones, which may begin to yield in May or June, but which are at their best table quality only a few short weeks.

Many can be enjoyed throughout the summer, if you plan so that one short harvest follows another, and as soon as quality begins to deteriorate in the first sowing, you can begin picking top quality beans, or beets, or sweet corn from the next, until frost interrupts the sequence.

To plan the correct number of sowings, give a few minutes study of the table shown herewith. It lists twelve of the short-harvest crops which home gardens grow.

In the table column 1 shows the days it requires a vegetable to reach table size, from seed sown in the garden. Since there are quick and slow growing varieties of most vegetables, look in your seed catalogue to find the exact time required by the varieties you will sow.

Column 2 gives the time a crop remains in good condition for the table. Column 3 gives the space in a garden row to produce one serving for a family of four. If beans are to be served twice a week, for example, since one sowing of beans provides a harvest for four weeks, eight feet in the row should produce all the beans the family can use from one sowing. A new crop should be ready every four weeks through the garden season, to keep the table supplied all summer.

Of most crops enough sowings should be made to insure a sixteen weeks' harvest, which will carry you into October.

Around the neck and waist were beads of various colors. They were scattered in the soft dust. The strings had long since disintegrated.

The excavator bent low over the body. With hesitant fingers he reached for a heavy, weakly-closed head of the skull.

"Here it is," he said, withdrawing a small round coin, grey-green with time.

"This is the fare for the ferry boat to bear the soul across the river into the other world," he said.

Around the skeleton lay faintly discernible traces of the basket that had once contained the body. At the slightest touch they crumbled into powder.

Along the edges of the tomb were alabaster vases, bowls and other containers. In some was a greyish dust that once had been wheat.

"Food for the soul in the underworld," said the excavator.

A black beetle, living image of the sacred scarab that to the ancient Egyptians symbolized immortality, emerged from nowhere and crawled slowly toward the skull.

Walcott Tries 4th Time For Crown Tonight

DETROIT, March 7 (UP)—(UP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, 37-year-old father of six children, will make his record-breaking fourth attempt to win the world heavyweight crown tonight in a synthetic $100,000 fight with champion Ezzard Charles at Olympia Stadium.

This return 19-round bout will usher in a new era of fight-television guarantee; for their video sponsor has guaranteed that their purses will equal those derived from a $100,000 gross gate, regardless of the actual crowd and actual receipts at the Olympia.

However, advance ticket sales indicated that Detroit's indoor record of $83,522 for a fight, set by the Ray Robinson-Chuck Taylor bout in 1947, would be topped anyway.

Men, Women Show Off Flowers At Garden Meeting

NEW YORK, March 6 (UP)—Orchids are blooming like dandelions at the International Flower Show being held this week in the heart of Manhattan.

One of the first gardens to greet you when you enter the four floors of flowers is described as an India orchid garden, complete with a tame cockatoo, a waterfall, pool stocked with gold fish and two coconut palm trees and 110 orchids.

"We're only showing the cymbidium and cypripedium orchids," explained Mrs. Ira Haupt, who grows orchids with her husband in West Deal, N. J. She was wearing a small gold cymbidium orchid (spray orchid to the layman), but the highlight of the garden, she said, was the rose-colored spray orchid named for Mahatma Gandhi.

Garden clubs as well as individuals compete for hours in the annual flower show. This year, for the first time, the men's garden club of the veterans hospital at Northport, L. I., joined the show. Their vegetable and flower garden, laid out in neat rows, adjoined the annual exhibit of the men's garden club of New York.

"More men are getting interested in gardening, I guess," commented Victor Greiff, of Neponset, L. I., president of the men's club. "We get all ages and all kinds."

Greiff confirmed that about the rarest house plant in their display was the "spathiphyllum," a member of the calla lily family. "Our early American water garden is pretty unusual too," he said, pointing to an old-fashioned China pitcher and wash bowl planted with umbrella palm, Chinese evergreen tradescantia and dracaena.

In another corner of the men's display was a small bowl of green that was bringing shy chuckles from the men. "I insisted that it be labelled 'stellaris media,'" Greiff said, nudging another member in the ribs, "but it's really chick weed—it grows everywhere."

The Garden Club of America composed of both men and women members, laid out an entire model main street, including store fronts, play grounds and a school.

IF YOU DON'T FEEL GOOD

Don't Put Off Finding Relief

HADACOL May Bring the Relief You Are Seeking If Your Condition Is Due to Lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron.

If more folks would remember the old saying, "Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today," there's no telling how much better off they'd all be. And the worst thing about it all is that folks usually put off the most important things until a later date. For instance, there are a lot of folks who don't feel like they should who put off doing something about it. Luther Harris, 516 Chestnut St., Bowling Green, Kentucky, didn't feel good for a time, but he acted when he heard how HADACOL was helping people suffering from nervousness, aches and pains and run-down conditions caused by deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Nicotin. Yes, Mr. Harris started taking HADACOL and now he says he feels good.

Here is what he says: "For quite some time I was nervous and run-down, and I suffered from aches and pains. I was weak, and I could hardly do a day's work. I started taking HADACOL and from my first bottle I felt better. Now I feel good, and I can do a good day's work. I am still taking HADACOL and I wouldn't do without it. I praise HADACOL very highly."

HADACOL Attacks Real Cause

Remember, HADACOL is not a quick-acting product that only attacks the symptoms of your ailments, but actually relieves the real cause of these disturbances when due to such deficiencies.
