Football Boys Are Getting Into Top Shape During Their Summer Vacation From School

It may be a wee bit early to start talking about football but before the pigskins will be floating across the air over the gridiron.

When Coach "Stubby" Warden returns from being a student for the summer, he will notice several boys who have really packed on the weight in the way of solid muscle. Jimmy "Rip - Roaring" Corniche has gained about 15 pounds of solid beef this summer and leads the crew in weight gained. This season will probably be his best year yet. The high school football hero says that he is just living for football season. Indications are that he hasn't lost any speed or razzle-dazzle with his increase in weight but has acquired more speed along with it. Watch him this year—that boy is going to be plenty good.

Was talking with Jimmy Cantrell the other afternoon at the swimming pool. Jimmy seems to have put on a little weight too. He

Yarbrough Wins Second Flight

Boone Yarbrough, head coach at Ranger Junior College, teed off at the Breckenridge Invitation Title Golf Championship and ended up with first place in the second flight after defeating Paul Smith of Breckenridge.

Veteran golfer Russell "Rusty" Crowther, golfer for two decades won the championship flight in winning from Ed Hopkins of Abilene, Darrell Tuffy, Dallas golfer was victor in the first flight.

A number of Ranger golfers were in Breckenridge for the affair and followed the golfers around the course. Other Ranger men aside from Yarbrough entered the contest but were out of the runners after hard-fought games.

Ranger Residents Will Get Chance To Compete In State Examinations

Ranger residents will have the opportunity to compete in examinations for positions in the Texas Employment Commission and the State Department of Public Welfare August 11. Whether the exams will be offered in Eastland County will be learned later. However they will definitely be held that morning in Abilene.

Chas. S. Gardiner, director of the Merit System Council in Austin, announced today that the examinations may be given in as many as 45 different towns.

For Good Used Cars (Trade-ins on the New Olds) DeBorne Motor Company, Eastland is another boy that will be a nice resting place for eyes who enjoy good, clean, hard-fought and rugged played football.

J. L. "Bulldozing" Barbes is working as a carpenter's helper in Mineral Wells this summer and looks as though he has added a few inches to the arms and chest. He was a pretty rugged boy last year and will probably be a lot rougher this fall.

Don Varner appears also to have picked up a little weight. Looks solid enough to push some body around a bit. Don is one of the boys out of whom Coaches Warden and Ails are expecting a lot. Bobby "Choo-Choo Jr." Justice is also a pretty hot prospect for the 1951 season. He showed up as well as any boy in spring practice and has real potentialities. Bobby has picked up a couple of pounds weight in the wrong places but a little running in the Ranger sun will soon cure that. He ought to win state-wide acclaim this year.

Don't overlook Herbert Williams as a big gun in the Ranger attack this fall. He is big, fast, rugged, and a clean sport. He is a likeable guy that really knows his football.

The team will lose Tilman Sharp who quit school just when he was looking like a real hot prospect for the '51 squad. Sorry to see that. Chico Mendoza will possibly fill his slot this fall at end. Chico could be a good player.

Wayne Hargraves is another kid who will be much needed when opponents try to run over that line. When they start in there and hit a solid brick wall of Hargraves, Williams, Justice and Rushing oh-oh, watch out for the fur to fly. They won't fare much better if they hit on to John Rush, Lee Hill or "Fats" Smith. Lee is really getting into shape. He is working pretty hard at operating his own service station for the summer. He has gained several pounds and an extra inch. He is located

Bench Warrants Issued Today

NEW YORK, July 2 (UP)—Bench warrants were issued today for four of 11 convicted American Communist leaders when they failed to appear in Federal Court for commitment to prison.

The four were Gus Hall, Ohio Chairman of the Communist Party; Henry Winston, National Organization Secretary; Gilbert Green, Illinois Party Chairman, and Robert G. Thompson, Party Chairman in New York State.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, who issued the warrants, also ordered forfeiture of their bail which totaled $50,000.

PROPOSAL IS TURNED DOWN

By Edgar E. Clark
United Press Staff Correspondent
TEHRAN, Iran, July 2 (UP)—United States Ambassador Henry F. Grady announced today that Iranian Premier Mohammed Mossadeq has turned down a new American compromise proposal designed to ease this country's oil crisis.

But he added that future American efforts would be made to seek alternative suggestions that might keep Iranian's oil flowing to the west.

Grady told a press conference he offered Mossadeq the compromise in a half-hour meeting this morning. It involved endorsement of receipts by Tanker Captains for oil loaded at the big port of Abadan, and was designed to prevent shutting down of oil supplies for the west. The receipts would carry a stipulation barring any prejudice against the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's legal rights.

The billion-dollar British owned Anglo-Iranian firm was nationalized by Iran over Britain's protest and has been the center of a growing dispute between the two countries.

Grady explained that Mossadeq thought the compromise over signing of the oil receipts would invalidate the receipts and allow firms taking the oil to evade payment.

"I am reporting this to London and Washington with the expectation that the London Embassy will present the situation to the company and see if there are alternative suggestions," Grady said.

"I am still trying in my naive way to see if I can do something about this oil problem."

Grady added that the U. S. Consul Basra, Iraq, had reported that the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's Abadan Refinery was down to half production and its storage capacity was sufficient for only nine more days.

Soldiers Dead But No Shorts

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, July 2 (UP)—This is the story of a knight with shiny white drawers.

The hero—Pfc. Roi B. Knight, 21, son of Mrs. Tabitha Knight, Portal, Ga., a mortar gunner with the 3rd Battalion of the 8th Cavalry Regiment.

One dark night recently Knight heard the steady clip-clip of horse hoofs on a valley floor below his position on a rugged hillside.

The Georgian went to take a look-see, with permission.

In the valley he worked along a ditch beside a dirt road. The sounds of horses and equipment became louder. Two hundred yards along the valley road he found a dozen Communist horse-drawn ammunition wagons. The horses were being watered.

Thinking fast Knight stripped off his clothes and hung his white shorts on a bush facing his mortar position. He scrambled back up the hill and reported to his commander. The officer heard him out and then pointed out Knight he had forgotten his clothes and was naked.

But, Knight was too busy. He "zeroed in" on his shorts and his company followed, pouring out a stream of explosive.

A check the next day showed—eight wagons, 20 horses, five soldiers killed. There was no sign of Knight's shorts.

Houston Youth Killed In Car

ARCOLA, July 2 (UP)—Stanley Jay Harris, 18, was killed yesterday when the car in which he was riding went out of control and overturned three miles south of here.

Young Harris of Houston and two other youths—Marvin A. Rich, 19, also of Houston, and Joe Erlichman, 19, of Cleveland, Ohio—were en route to Freeport on a fishing trip when the accident happened.

State Highway Patrolmen said Rich apparently lost control of the car when he dozed off for a moment. Harris was thrown from the car and landed on the pavement. Rich and Erlichman were injured slightly.

Delegates Will Meet July 7-8

Delegates representing 3,500 Legionnaires of the 17th Congressional District will meet in Breckenridge Saturday and Sunday, July 7 and 8, to elect a new district commander and a vice commander.

District commander Louis F. Jordan of Abilene, now on active duty at Fort Hood, expects some 250 Legionnaires and Auxiliary delegates to attend the convention.

Secretary of State John Ben Shepperd, a former National president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and now State Legion Americanism chairman, will be the principal speaker on the joint session program Sunday, Jordan said.

Election of the district officers will be the top order of business activity. The successors to Jordan and district vice commander Clinton Cox of Stephenville will take office at the State Legion Convention in San Antonio August 17-18-19. Term of office is two years.

Delegates and alternates to the National Legion Convention also will be elected, Jordan said.

The 17th District at its spring convention in Mineral Wells went on record as endorsing the candidacy of Department vice commander Charles C. Gibson, Amarillo newspaperman, for department commander.

A. J. Buchanan, general chairman of convention arrangements, said that delegates will be entertained by a stag party Saturday afternoon and a dance Saturday night by the hosting Bernice Coles Post. A barbecue is slated for Sunday.

Cotton Crop To Set Record

WASHINGTON, July 2 (UP)—World cotton production in the 1951-52 season will exceed world consumption, the international cotton advisory committee estimated today.

The committee said the present outlook is for a world cotton crop of about 35,000,000 bales, with consumption running about 33,000,000 bales. The excess production will make possible a "moderate increase" in the world's depleted cotton stock, the committee said.

American Newsman Reported To Have Confessed In Court

There are no American, British or French representatives of Western News Agencies or newspapers in Prague. The trial of Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis is being covered for the United Press by Ivo Berounsky, who is a Czechoslovak National employed by the UP in its Prague office. His copy is telephoned to Frankfurt, Germany, or London.

It is not subjected to censorship, but as a Czechoslovak citizen, he is subject to Czechoslovak laws.

FRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 2 (UP)—Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis confessed at the opening of his trial today that he had acted as a spy.

He told the Communist State Court in Pankrac Prison that he used a number of Czechs as "informants."

"Did you carry out espionage?" the President of the court asked.

"Yes," Oatis replied.

Oatis, an American, and three Czechoslovak employees of the AP are being tried on charges of political, military and economic espionage and complicity in the murder of a Czech officer.

BULLETIN

Robert Gans, RHS Music Department Head, said today that his students will hold the first summer recital tomorrow night at the band hall at 8 p.m.

According to records at the Eastland County Courthouse, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Wieser have sold the Gholson Hotel, Ranger, to Ralph Oakley of Abilene on the 30th day of June, 1951. Records show that the hotel was purchased for a certain sum but revenue stamps indicate that the business was sold for a higher figure. L. A. Fabian, Amarillo, will manage the hotel.

Mrs. Jackson Passes Away

Mrs. Alice M. Jackson who was living in Mineral Wells at 2216 9th Avenue passed away July 1, 1951. She was born in Missouri April 10, 1871.

Mrs. Jackson had lived in and around Ranger for 70 years and was a member of the New Hope No. 3 Baptist Church.

In 1886 she was married to Willie Jackson who preceded her in death on January 22, 1923.

Services will be held in the New Hope Baptist Church if it is raining and if not raining, at the Macedonia Cemetery at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

She is survived by two sons, Jim Jackson of California and Ennis Jackson of Mineral Wells; two sisters, Mrs. Addie Ashmore of Ft. Worth, and Mrs. Lucy McInland of Fort Worth.

Funeral arrangements are being made by Morris Funeral Home.

Administration May Draft Gals

WASHINGTON, July 2 (UP)—Women had better start thinking about the possibility of being drafted.

That was the advice yesterday of Selective Service director Lewis B. Hershey. However, Hershey said he himself is not now among those who "believe we should do very much affirmatively about actually drafting them."

In an interview with commentator Hazel Markel over the Mutual Broadcasting Network, Hershey said it was "conceivable" that the government might have to draft women some time in the future.

ORDERS HAVEN'T CHANGED WITH PROPOSED ARMISTICE

By Earnest Hoberecht
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Tuesday, July 3 (UP)—United Nations and Communist Troops fought grimly on today with orders to "kill the enemy" while their leaders attempted to arrange a cease fire meeting.

A message from UN Supreme Commander Matthew B. Ridgway, accepting a Communist proposal for a meeting in the Kaesong area, was expected shortly.

But an 8th Army spokesman said that meantime: "Our orders have been to kill the enemy wherever we find him. These orders have not been changed."

"Mercilessly annihilate the enemy and shoot down his planes." The North Korean Communist Radio admonished Red Troops. A Red communique said 1,900 UN troops were killed or captured on the Eastern Front Saturday and Sunday.

Allied Artillery and planes kept up a drum fire of death all along the front while patrols stabbed into the enemy lines.

It was predicted at headquarters that Ridgway's reply to the Communist suggestion for a meeting near Kaesong might be sent between 6 and 8 a.m. today (2 and 4 p.m. Monday CST).

Ridgway, it was suggested, would accept the Kaesong Area as the meeting place. But he was expected also to suggest that talks begin sooner than the July 10 to 15 period suggested by the Communists.

There was no big scale action on the front. The war as a whole seemed petering out. But men were still dying and the 8th Army spokesman said UN forces would keep killing Communists until an actual cease fire order came.

KANSAS SOLDIER AWARDED THE MEDAL OF HONOR TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 2 (UP)

M-Sgt. Stanley T. Adams, Olathe, Kan., has been awarded the Medal of Honor for leading a 13-man force in a night bayonet charge that routed more than 250 attacking enemy in Korea, the Army announced today.

During the engagement, enemy hand grenades bounced off Adams' body and he was wounded by machine gun fire.

Adams is the 26th Army hero to be awarded the nation's highest military decoration for bravery in the Korean War.

Capt. Charles T. Sialley, Scottsboro, Ala., Adams' company commander, said his leadership and action "undoubtedly saved the entire battalion from disaster."

Bailey, an eyewitness, said the enemy struck about 11 p.m. on the night of Feb. 3, driving a wedge between companies B and C of the 24th Division. Adams, with Company A, was in a platoon holding an outpost 200 yards in advance of his company.

Bailey said about 250 enemy attacked this platoon position about 1 a.m. after 45 minutes of holding action, the platoon leader

Adams realized, Bailey said, that the ground his platoon just vacated would be a perfect approach to his company's positions and would split the other two companies.

Adams leaped up and called to the other men to follow him with fixed bayonets.

"He was so intent on his mission that he did not notice that only 13 men were following him," Bailey said.

"As he approached within 50 yards of the nose (of a ridge), the enemy observed his approach and opened fire. He was immediately hit in the leg with a sub-machine gun slung and driven to the ground."

Ignoring the wound, Adams jumped up and "continued his dash toward the enemy."

"The enemy began throwing hand grenades, several of which bounded from his body before exploding," Bailey said. "Four times he was slammed to the ground by the blast of these grenades, but each time he was quickly back on his feet and driving toward the enemy."

Adams and his 13 men finally drove into the enemy, slashing with bayonets and pounding with rifle butts until the enemy troops broke and ran. Then, Bailey said, Adams covered his 13 men with rifle fire as they moved back to newly-prepared positions.

Later, 50 enemy dead were counted in the area of the engagement.

Adams, 29, a World War II Purple Heart Veteran, was born at De Soto, Kans. His wife, Wava June Adams, now resides at Kansas City, Mo.

Simmons Rites Held In Cisco

Funeral services for Noel C. Simmons, Sr., 53, Cisco oil field worker, were held Saturday at the Cisco Church of Christ.

Simmons died Thursday at the Graham Hospital in Cisco after an extended illness. He had been a resident of the Cisco area for more than 50 years.

Survivors include his widow, the former Irene Sublett of Eastland; two sons, R. G. and Noel Simmons, Jr., both of Cisco and a daughter, Mrs. J. M. Eudy of Moran.

Slammin' Sammy Snead Is Favorite To Take The PGA Golf Championship

By STEPHEN SNIDER
United Press Sports Writer

OAKMONT, Pa., July 2 (UP)—Slammin' Sam Snead says his game isn't what it used to be but he was a heavy favorite to reach the finals of the PGA Golf Championship today in a 36 hole match against 29-year-old Marine Charley Bassler of Cantonville, Md.

The slender cluster from the West Virginia hills was the last of the tournament pros still alive in the 33rd PGA title scramble, for the other semi-final match tired old Edworth Vines of Los Angeles, the former tennis champ, against Chunky Walter Burkemo of Franklin, Mich., a twice wounded GI who now prefers the quiet life of a teaching pro to pressure on the tournament trail.

Snead, worried about his game since he broke his hand last winter, he donned battling Jackie Burke of Houston, in the quarter-finals, 2 and 1.

"I'm winnin'," he shrugged. "But every day the work gets harder."

Bassler promised to make it plenty tough today. The handsome Marylander, who saw Pacific action at Pelileu and Okinawa, Cooly knocked over Al Brosh of Garden City, N. Y., on the 36th green in the quarter-finals. He's the gent who eliminated Ed Furgol and then Jim Turnesa on the opening day of match play last Friday.

Snead fired a record-tying 68 at Burke on the morning round and was four up at lunch time. But the plucky young Texan, displaying an amazing putting touch that admittedly gave Snead the shakes, whittled that lead to one as late as the 33rd hole. Snead erred on the 34th but so did Burke and the Texan's best chance of getting even slipped away.

Bassler put together 74-73 against Brosh and never was worse than even after losing the first hole of the morning round. Bassler was two up as late as the 32nd but Brosh drew even on the 34th with a birdie two. The New Yorker lost the 35th, however with a bogey as he put his send on a trap to go one down. They

Herbie Flam Plays Well

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 2 (UP)—Young Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., fired the latest salvo in the U. S. tennis fight against Australia today when he met top-seeded Frank Sedgeman in a vital Wimbledon quarterfinal.

The other two surviving Yanks, Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., and Art Larsen of San Francisco, met one another in the second bracket match. In the lower bracket, Ken McGregor of Australia played Leonard Bergelin of Sweden and Eric Sturges of South Africa faced Armando Viera, of Brazil, the upset conqueror of 17-year-old Ham Richardson.

Flam, the second ranking player in the U. S., was a decided underdog against the pigeon-toed Sedgeman, who was one of the chief tormentors of the Americans when Australia copped the Davis Cup last season. But young Herbie has played confident, almost flawless tennis in this tournament and could uncork an upset.

halved the closing hole and that was the match.

IT'S A STEEL—There's just no reason to have the shapely gal up there except to make you look at the picture. When you do that, you're supposed to notice that she is standing on a sheet of solid steel, supported by a wooden block resting on a sheet of stretched steel. That's supposed, according to the Wheeling, W. Va., manufacturers, to prove that the stretched metal is stronger than the solid. The expanded steel is made by slitting and stretching sheet steel.

TIM REESE, coldly hostile, said nothing in reply to Mr. Panciera's greeting.

"I am Paul Panciera," the man went on easily. "And you, I'm sure are Mr. Reese. Miss Roland has described you so often, it is almost as if I know you, Mr. Reese."

Tim stayed silent, antagonistic. Tim's antagonism toward Mr. Panciera was not because he doubted Jean, or was it because Mr. Panciera had taken credit for designing the Dress of the Year. It was because Mr. Panciera kept intruding on Tim's dream. Now the man was in Jean's apartment, behaving as if he belonged there and with the key to the door in his hand.

Mr. Panciera went on: "Jean—Miss Roland went to very happy to see you, I can assure you of that."

Mr. Panciera, with the apartment key in his hand, knew the reason for Tim's hostile silence and knew he was facing a critical problem. Now Jean, too, was nearing ruin. If she was found out, they both were lost. The firm of Jean Paul was lost.

To make things worse, the secret of the designer was out. Indeed, about then Miss Major would be revealing it to Cochet. Cochet would offer this Tim Reese much richer rewards than Tim had ever dreamed of. And Tim could certainly not refuse to do designing for Cochet, especially if he found out about Jean.

Paul Panciera faced the problem audaciously.

"Miss Roland and I usually have our morning conference here over coffee. Privacy is practically unknown downstairs, as you can imagine." He held the apartment key up, smiled brightly. "Business permits me, an old friend and partner, the privilege."

Tim relaxed a little. "I saw you at the Empire last night, Mr. Panciera," he said. "You seem to have quite a time of it taking bows for my work."

"It was your evening, of course. Yours and Miss Roland's." Mr. Panciera was as spontaneous as he could be. "If I had known you were in town, I would have certainly had you on the platform to receive the award. Taking bows is one of my chores. I'm the front here, to use a cheap but apposite expression. I shall be very happy to turn the chore over to you from now on."

"Thanks," Tim said flatly. "And if you can turn that little gold mannequin over to me, too, I'll appreciate it."

"Why, of course, Mr. Reese! It's yours, after all," Mr. Panciera was all graciousness. "I'll have it sent to you immediately, if you wish. Or, if you're going to stay in town, I'll fetch it to you."

"Fine," Tim said, flatly again. "I'm over at the Corona. You can send it to me there."

MR. PANCIERA, a trifle ill at ease now, looked toward the passageway that led into the rear of the apartment. "Did Miss Roland know you were coming?"

He shook his head. "I thought I'd surprise her."

"But she knows you're here!" Mr. Panciera asked quickly.

"The maid told her, I'm sure."

"She is probably preparing a beautiful entrance." He lowered his voice. "She is very fond of you, I suppose you know that. Indeed, she is very much in love with you."

Tim was immediately interested. "How do you know?"

"She told me so, and in no uncertain terms. Her positiveness surprised me, I must say."

Tim softened. "Why?"

"You know her, how lovely she is. Her loveliness makes her so subtly self-sufficient. I could never picture her declaring her need for any man. It was hard for me to believe she had fallen in love." He smiled his admiration.

"You are one of our time's great conquerors, Mr. Reese."

"It just sort of happened, I guess," Tim said, vaguely remembering Madeira's words.

"DON'T underrate yourself, Mr. Reese," Mr. Panciera was comradely now. "You have genius, youth, good looks. I have always considered you and Miss Roland's meeting one of heaven's nicest interventions."

"She certainly is beautiful," Tim went on that night when he saw her. "I couldn't believe anyone could ever be so beautiful. I felt kind of reverent, I guess that's the way to put it."

"Other-worldly is the only way to describe her," Mr. Panciera, feeling his problems were being solved, was expansive. "Other-worldly."

"There's no way to describe her," Tim said.

"Perfectly said. Perfectly said." Mr. Panciera now very much at ease decided it was time to get down to bread and butter. "By the way, Mr. Reese, I suppose you know that Miss Roland and I are very anxious to have you as a member of the firm. Indeed, since meeting you here, I've been entertaining the idea of a three-way partnership—you and Miss Roland and I."

Tim was amused. "I've been thinking of a firm of my own."

Brush-Off of Harry Matthews Is Year's Big Boxing Mystery

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The biggest mystery of the fight racket, or what's left of it, was: Why the brush-off of Harry Matthews? Knowing well that matchmakers have their feuds and favorites, I took the case right to the top brass.

"Why not match Harry Matthews and Ezzard Charles, and get rid of these matches for the Senior Championship?" I asked James D. Norris.

"You can't do business with Jack Hurley," said President Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club, who controls the champions, arenas and ball parks.

It was recalled that Manager Hurley's only objection after Matthews' smashing Madison Square Garden victory over Irish Bob Murphy last March 2 was his having to settle for $2250 as the Idaho Hot Potato's share of the broadcasting and television take.

Matthews weighed 175½ pounds chopping up and belting out Freddie Besore in Milwaukee the other night. Not a few schooled observers would give him a grand chance against Charles, whom he wants most.

So why not the stylish Matthews and a fresh light-heavyweight and heavyweight deal? "Not with Hurley," said Norris, in no uncertain tone. It was obvious the big fellow had bowed his neck.

"Suppose Matthews won the heavyweight championship?" he asked. "Where would we be with Hurley?"

CHAMPIONS, especially the heavyweight, have been tied up by overlapping contracts since the days of the great Tex Rickard, and regardless of how poor the cauliflower crop, the One Big Happy Monopoly doesn't intend to run the risk of any of them slipping from its grasp, paving the way for a new major promoter.

"Just because the New York Managers' Guild made the mistake of selling out for peanuts is no reason why Matthews has to go along," squawked Hurley.

PAUL PANCIERA's comment on Tim's announcement that he had been thinking of forming a dress design firm of his own was immediate. "Naturally, Mr. Reese," he said. "With your talent for design you will have no great difficulties. Especially if you have Miss Roland with you." Then, Mr. Panciera added casually, "Only the business end might possibly prove a problem."

"I imagine you can always hire someone for a job like that," Tim Reese replied.

"The right man is not always at hand, I am sorry to say. If you saw a place for me in the firm—if firm there is going to be—I could very well conduct the business end for you."

"I might be able to use you at that," Tim, looking him over carefully, nodded. "I'll probably need someone to front for me. That's not in my line."

Mr. Panciera disguised his elation. "I shall be happy to be at your service, Mr. Reese," he said with a little bow.

At that instant, as Mr. Panciera was speaking, Tim, glancing about the room, discovered the tiny gold mannequin on the table where Mr. Panciera had put it the night before.

Dramatically, the little mannequin held his gaze. This was what Mr. Panciera was going to send him, while here it was before him, here where apparently it belonged. The gold mannequin was a small thing, but as Tim stared at it, it grew until it hugely and brutally dominated his entire consciousness. Slowly, it became for him a massive corroboration of the suspicion of lying and deceit he had entertained at the Ball.

NOW, gradually, Tim saw the man in the room, something he had not seen at first because of his fascination with the rinky pictures of Jean Roland.

Now Tim saw the man's easy chair by the table that held the gold mannequin. He saw the cedarwood cigar humidifier on the lower shelf of the table. He saw the book of sporting prints near the humidifier. He saw other fastidious awards on the mantle of the fireplace beyond the chair. He saw the man himself standing before him, the key of possession in his pocket.

Now Jean's lies and evasions crawled out from the dark into the light and he recognized them for what they were.

Now, he knew why she had made light of Mr. Panciera on her visits to the hospital, why she hadn't telephoned him on her return from Europe, why she hadn't told him of the Ball. Now he knew why she had feigned affection for him and why she had not wanted him to come to New York. Now, he knew why he had been kept such a secret.

There had been no place for him, the man in the wheel chair, in their romantic and luxurious life. He had been the meat ticket and something of a necessary nuisance, and that was all.

Mr. Panciera, unaware of Tim's realization that he had been the dupe of an elaborate deception, talked glibly and happily on, giving his ideas of the new firm with a three-way partnership as he saw it.

But Tim could not hear him. He could not hear him for the roar of his dream world crashing into pieces within him.

Nor, turned toward the fireplace, grimly seeking out new evidence of deceit, did he see Jean Roland, every hair in place, radiant in a voluptuous morning robe, making a smiling entrance.

Jean, discovering Mr. Panciera, frowned her displeasure. But he, eager to remove any misconceptions, went quickly to her.

"Good morning, Miss Roland. I dropped in for our morning conference and found Mr. Reese here. I took the liberty of telling him how highly you think of him." He turned to Tim. "Here is your beautiful lady, Mr. Reese."

But Tim, unheeding, was laboriously getting to his feet.

Jean suddenly saw the dark intensity on his face, flashed a questioning look at Mr. Panciera. But Mr. Panciera, having just discovered Tim's intensity himself, was as bewildered as she.

Tim, walking awkwardly and with difficulty, went to the table by the fireplace. He picked up the tiny gold mannequin, stared down at it.

Jean, disturbed now, went swiftly to him.

"Tim, darling! You're walking without shoes!" She was reproving. "It's wonderful! Wonderful!" He looked slowly up at her. His jaw was taut, his eyes burning. She was startled.

"That—that mannequin—" She tried to interpret his hostility. "—that's from last night. That's yours."

TIM REESE'S jaw stayed hard, his eyes continued to burn. Jean Roland saw the hurt and resentment on his face.

"You're angry?" She was fearful of the worst. Her voice broke a little. "Why? Why, Tim?" Mechanically Tim turned the tiny gold mannequin over in his fingers. Paul Panciera diplomatically slipped out the door, closing it noiselessly after him. Neither Tim nor the girl was aware of his going.

Tim's silence became a reproach more overwhelming than words.

Jean Roland was uncomfortable. For the first time in the company of Tim Reese she had come face to face with a situation she did not understand and could not handle. Jean did not know what happened between Tim and Mr. Panciera, but she did know that the gold mannequin Tim held in his hand was the cause of it.

She moved close to him. "I love you, Tim," she whispered, suddenly. "You're the only man I've ever loved."

PLUG 'N TRIGGER

By J. Fred Eder
United Press Outdoor Consultant
Fishing and hunting are in greater jeopardy from unreasonable exploitation today than at any previous time. No true sportsman would oppose the inescapable use of all our national resources as we throw our full strength into defending the nation.

Such emergencies, however, demand a close vigil by sportsmen to prevent heading wrecking of the very things some of our hunting and fishing pals are fighting for in Korea.

What kind of victory would it be in military or political fields if we exhaust some of the most precious things we possess, for one, our national heritage—hunting and fishing?

This heritage is not imperative in national defense. It is certainly possible and wise to carry on defense efforts so that the least damage may be done to the basic economy of the country and its natural resources.

Unless we have comparable consideration of our wildlife resources during periods of national emergencies, hunting and fishing soon will disappear from this land.

Outdoor living is beyond price. Sportsmen do not measure what they get out of hunting and fishing in dollar terms. There is a treasure found in the great outdoors which is not measurable by dollar standards.

At the same time every sportsman realizes that now more than ever our wildlife organizations, federal and state game departments must have money to fight against plain greed and exploitation of our natural wealth—the facilities that produce our game and fish.

The U. S. Senate committee on interstate and foreign commerce has postponed consideration of the bill which seeks to amend the present duck stamp act so that the portion of monies derived from the sale of duck stamps earmarked for enforcement be increased from the present 10 per cent to a maximum of 25 per cent.

Only an immediate and nationwide demand to this committee and to the representative in both the Senate and House will move this bill in time to be operative this year.

Your reporter believes this committee should be reminded that the increase of the duck stamp price from its former $1.00 to $2.00 would never have been possible if the sportsmen had not been assured that at least 25 per cent would be earmarked for increased enforcement.

Two Games Are Made To Halt

The weather and a time limit curfew halted a pair of Big State League games last night.

Rain washed out league-leading Gainesville's home appearance against Sherman-Denison, but it took a 11:55 p.m. curfew to halt the Texarkana at Wichita Falls game with the score tied at the end of the 12th, 5-5.

Texarkana shot the game into overtime with a three run flurry in the top of the ninth, and from then on neither team could dent the plate.

Do You Know the Answer—
... to the little boy's question—"Daddy, what is an abstract and what kind of an abstract do we have to our place?" That's a searching question. If the answer is—"I don't know." All abstracts are about alike and one is as good as another—it isn't a satisfactory reply. But if the answer is—"Son, we have a dependable abstract because I know the people who made it are dependable, and we won't worry about the rest", that's a good answer.

TWENTY DIE VIOLENTLY

At least 20 persons died violently during the week-end in Texas.

Twelve of them were victims of traffic accidents, five drowned, two were killed in a plane crash and one was shot.

Near Edcouch, Baldomero Ozuena, 14, drowned Sunday in Delta Lake while swimming with a group of playmates.

Near Kilgore, T. C. Choise, 28, of Tyler, was killed early Sunday when his automobile plowed into a pickup truck which had been abandoned in the middle of the Tyler - Kilgore highway. Just before the fatal accident, another car, driven by Dale Redman of Beckville, had crashed into the truck from the opposite direction without anyone being injured.

The driver of the abandoned truck was charged with drunkenness and parking on a highway.

Stanley Jay Harris, 18, of Houston, was killed Sunday near Arcola when the automobile he was riding in went out of control and overturned. He and two other youths were enroute to Freeport for a fishing trip. Police say the driver apparently went to sleep at the wheel.

Clarence Stevens of China, Tex., was killed near Sheldon in a three-way collision involving a light truck, a trailer truck and an automobile. Pvt. Norman V. Starkey of Fort Hood lost his life Sunday night near Round Rock when a convertible coupe rammed a highway bridge abutment.

A head-on collision of two automobiles on a hill near Matador killed three youths, all of Lamesa, and left another person in critical condition. Dead were Raymond L. Hanson, 20; Harlan E. Grissom, 19; and Annette Lovelady, 17.

Another teen-ager Brubars Ann Alsop, 18, of Dallas, was killed Saturday when the automobile in which she was riding hit a culvert.

HD Agents Assist In Activities At Round-Up

Mrs. Ethel Sparks, county home demonstration agent and her assistant, Miss Evelyn Bigby returned Saturday from College Station, where they attended the 4-H Club Round Up, which was followed by the annual meeting of the County agents and home demonstration agents.

Mrs. Sparks assisted in the 4-H club activities by working with the council on the introductions of the speakers and Miss Bigby assisted on the program of "World Wide Understanding" of District 8.

In the program, in which Miss Bigby participated, many representatives from foreign countries were presented.

Ike's Political Colors May Show

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP) Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's political boomers expect him to return to civilian life in mid-winter as a candidate for the Republican Presidential Nomination.

ARCADIA
THE TEXAS RANGERS
George MONICOMERY
Ole STORM

They have agreed in the meantime to keep the Ike-for-president movement on a strictly informal basis. This strategy was adopted here about a fortnight ago in a meeting of Eastern and Mid-Western Eisenhower boosters.

East and west have disagreed on campaign strategy. Brownell and other Easterners want to bring the Eisenhower campaign forcefully into the open in a manner which would put the pressure on Ike to identify himself as a Republican.

Catfish Waters Are Opened Up

AUSTIN, July 1—Some of the best catfish waters in the state have been opened to trotline fishing under a new law, according to the Executive Secretary of the Game, Fish & Oyster Commission.

Under the act, trotlines with a maximum of 20 hooks are permitted from the mouth of Bull Creek in Lake Austin to the headwaters of Buchanan Lake in San Saba and Lampasas Counties. Not more than 20 hooks in the aggregate may be used by one person at any one time. Throw lines and rod and reel equipment are limited to six hooks each.

The Executive Secretary pointed out the law affects Lake Travis, Roy Inks Lake, Buchanan Lake and most of Lake Austin, and all other waters of the Colorado River within the boundary prescribed.

He said this area abounds in the three principal kinds of fresh water catfish. They are the flat-head or yellow cat, the blue channel cat and the southern channel cat.

The law also specifies that none of the devices authorized in the measure "shall be attached to any other trotline or fishing device by use of buoys, jugs or other means."

The law also makes it unlawful "to place or set any trotline in the vicinity of any boat dock, boat or bathing pier, or bathing beach or any place commonly used as a swimming and bathing area."

Fines up to $200 are authorized for violations.

The "Dun" in Jordan, river of Biblical fame, comes from the same Dun as in the phrase, "Dan to Beersheba." Once these two settlements marked the northern and southern limits of Palestine.

near Dallas. And in another automobile accident near Dallas, Edd Wilhoit Stevens, 17, died when he was pinned beneath his car after it failed to make a curve and overturned.

Sgt. Alfredo Sanchez, 30, of Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio was killed Saturday when his truck overturned near Laredo and L. D. Hagler, 24, of Stuttgart, Ark., died in an automobile crash at Grand Prairie.
