15 Year Old Takes Joyride In Stolen Bus

LAMPASAS, Aug. 29 (UP)—A 15-year-old boy stole an inter-city bus and drove it at high speed for 100 miles through rugged hills before abandoning it, officers said today.

"I kept it up around 60 miles an hour when I could," the five-foot youngster told deputy sheriff H. J. Sharp.

Sharp said the boy took the 29-passenger coach from its parking space near the Lampasas bus station because he was "mad at the operator of the bus station cafe."

Reports of a widely-driven bus poured into the Lampasas county sheriff's office soon after the vehicle vanished early yesterday.

"A Mexican reported a drunk man or something almost ran over me with a speeding bus" near Longhorn Cavern," Sharp said.

"I'll never know how he squeezed that big bus through some of those tight places in the hills," Sharp said. "That's awfully rough country and the curves are plenty sharp."

The 120-pound Lampasas lad told Sharp he had never driven a bus before, but he had operated his father's truck.

He covered the 100 miles through Lampasas and Llano counties in three hours. He abandoned the slightly-damaged bus near the home of his brother at Llano. The boy was arrested at the brother's home and returned here. Juvenile authorities were called in to handle the case.

"The boy stuck mostly to back roads but occasionally took a whiz along highways," Sharp said. "It's a wonder he didn't hit someone."

"He knocked over two or three cattle guards when the bus got out of control a bit. He also ran through some brush at times."

The red Arrow Lines coach had a smashed fender, brush scratches and a rock-slashed-tire when found.

"He thought the cafe man short-changed him out of a quarter and he wanted to get even," Sharp said. "He believed the bus was owned by the cafe man so he stole it."

The youth is well known to local officers, Sharp said. "He's been in trouble several times before."

Gas Kills Well-digger

TYLER, Aug. 29 (UP)—Charles Anderson, 53, was asphyxiated yesterday while digging a well near Bullard, Texas.

Anderson, a resident of Laissa, Cherokee County, had worked in the well three hours during the morning, fender, brush scratches and a rock-slashed-tire when found.

Five Doctors Help In PTA Health Check

The annual Parent Teachers Association Health Round-up was held yesterday afternoon at the High School building.

Five Ranger doctors donated their services for the check-ups for the children. Drs. Kuykendall, Watkins, Brazda, White and Harris were the doctors conducting the examinations.

The children that have not had inoculations that are needed for entering school will get them free of charge at their doctors office.

This pre-school health check was for the children that will enter school for the first time this year. More than 30 youngsters had reported to the high school for their examination.

Dr. W. L. Downtain and Dr. Marshall Jolly will give the children free dental and eye examinations at their respective offices.

This free health round-up has been sponsored in Ranger by the PTA for a number of years. One woman assisting in the check-up said that she had had a child in school for twelve years and that this had been done all that time, she knew. This is a very valuable service to the children and people of Ranger.

Betty brought home the "bison" in the form of two sets of lamps made from cedar and ginger ale bottles. She covered the shades of these lamps with a grass grown in the South Pacific islands, the grass was varnished after it was put on the frames of the shades. Her husband, High School principal, H. L. Coody, was given the mental task of varnishing the lamps. Betty said that the lamps were made at a saving of about $70 of their retail price.

Betty was also taught how to use lineal block to print colored designs on cloth. This is done by making the different colored sections of the pattern on individual blocks and applying the different colored parts of the design one at a time.

The class in art was taught metal working and stenciling among other things. Betty made an aluminum tray and set of copper ash trays as her projects in this course. For the stenciling she drew the family initials in Old English letters and made a stencil of them. She then gave a set of pillow cases a very personal touch by stenciling these letters on them in green ink.

Most education is of theory in nature but Mrs. Coody can show you some very concrete examples of her summer's learning.

The ladies who are preparing the meal are expecting a large group of men for the meeting—let's don't disappoint them.

An old fashioned "sing-song" will be held as an introduction for the occasion. This will be a great time for members and their guests of the Methodist Men's Club.

Fit Of Anger Ends In Death

WILMINGTON, Calif., Aug. 29 (UP)—Twenty-year-old George Geiger bit his head against a wall and killed himself in a fit of anger because his mother refused to give him candy before lunch, police reported today.

The mother, Mrs. Marian Geiger, told officers the child was sitting in his high chair yesterday when he began begging for candy.

When she told him he could not have candy until after lunch, the mother said, George jumped from the high chair and butted his head against a wall until he knocked himself unconscious.

The little boy died at Wilmington Hospital.

First Bale Of Cotton Is Brought To Ranger Gin

D. J. WEST WINNER OF THE 50 DOLLAR PREMIUM OFFERED

D. J. West's 1900 pounds of lint cotton brought to the Ranger gin yesterday evening at 6:20 won for him the fifty dollar premium offered by the Ranger Chamber of Commerce this year.

West was given the check for fifty dollars by R. V. Galloway, manager of the local chamber of commerce, at the gin this morning.

West, upon being presented the check, appointed Galloway a one-man committee to thank the citizens and merchants of Ranger that had made this premium possible.

West said that "as badly as he needed the money, he appreciated the spirit and interest shown by the people of Ranger, in the farmers of this area." He stated that it is worth a lot for the farmers to know that the people are interested in them.

West has 35 acres in cotton this year along with 28 acres of peanuts. He said that the drought had not helped to make the yield any better, but that it is not too late for a rain to help the younger cotton. A rain right now would "make the peanuts" according to West. This is the first year that West has grown cotton commercially. He said that he had helped his father with cotton in years past but that this was his first crop.

West used a poison spray to control insects and prevent their damaging the cotton.

This cotton came from his farm about one mile north of Morton Valley on the Eastland Highway. The cotton had not been ginned at the time the check was presented to West. But the operation was due to start today. Operators were making last-minute adjustments on the gin. The gin recently underwent repairs and changes to make it as modern as any in this part of the country. Some five thousand dollars has been spent on the gin to give the upmost in service to the cotton farmers of this area.

T. D. Lauderdale, one of the best operators in Texas, will operate the gin again this year.

In a late report from the gin, T. L. Lauderdale, operator, said that the 1900 pounds of seed cotton weighed 565 pounds after it was ginned. He said that this was amount of lint, and that it would probably grade out as middling burr cotton.

Ranger Will Be Minus Number One Football Fan

EDITORS NOTE: Wayne Lingle, a very loyal Bulldog fan has moved from this area and will not be able to appear at the Bulldog games this year but wrote and said that he will just have to read about them in the Ranger Times. Wayne was always on hand for all the games and most of the practice sessions. Football for him never went out of season. Below is a letter from Wayne: Ranger Daily Times, Ranger, Texas

I won't be seeing the Bulldogs in action this year but I can at least read about them. I am hoping for a successful season. Your friend, Wayne Lingle.

Craft Course Is Profitable For Mrs. Betty Coody

Mrs. Betty Coody got more than theory from school this summer.

While she was attending East Texas State Teachers College, majoring in art this summer, Betty enrolled in a craft course.

The instructor in this course not only gave the students the theory of craft work but made them apply their knowledge to projects.

Betty brought home the "bison" in the form of two sets of lamps made from cedar and ginger ale bottles. She covered the shades of these lamps with a grass grown in the South Pacific islands, the grass was varnished after it was put on the frames of the shades. Her husband, High School principal, H. L. H. C. Henderson of Ranger is one of the nine district trustees for this parsonage.

Galveston Scene Of Many Raids

GALVESTON, Aug. 29 (UP)—Galveston county attorney Raymond MaGehee resumed raiding activities last night and swooped down on seven softly-lighted liquor lounges here.

MaGehee said today, however, he directed his latest series of raids by remote control—from a swivel chair in his air conditioned office at the county court house.

After each raid, a top lieutenant, Jules Damiani, assistant county attorney, phoned the boss to ask where to hit next.

Over a two-hour period, MaGehee's raiders visited the Anchor Club, The Screwball Club, The Bamboo Room, the Oasis Lounge, Omar Khayam, the Ping Pong and the Howl Clubs.

The county attorney said he will file charges of operating open saloons against operators of the seven clubs today.

Methodist Men's Club Will Meet Tonight At 7:15

Members and friends of the Methodist Men's club will observe their August meeting with a dinner and program in the basement of the church at 7:15 this evening.

Members of the Dorothy McConnell Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service will prepare and serve the meal which will be composed of baked ham, pineapple salad, potatoes, green beans, rolls, iced tea and desert.

The Rev. Leslie Seymour, District Superintendent, will give the inspirational message which will be brief and to the point. Members of the club are invited to bring along a friend. The results of a very heated contest between the "reds" and "blues" that has been going on for the past month will be brought to light. By general agreement, the losers of this contest will shine the winner's shoes at the close of the contest.

The ladies who are preparing the meal are expecting a large group of men for the meeting—let's don't disappoint them.

An old fashioned "sing-song" will be held as an introduction for the occasion. This will be a great time for members and their guests of the Methodist Men's Club.

UN Planes Make 318 Sorties Against Red Buildup Areas

8TH ARMY HEADQUARTERS Korea, Thursday, Aug. 30 (UP)—Allied planes attacked railroads in northwest Korea from before dawn until dark Wednesday, striking at supply lines along which the Communists are building up their battle line.

By 6 p.m., in 318 sorties, U. S. Air Force and Marine tactical planes had destroyed or damaged 51 railroad cars, three locomotives and one bridge and had cut the rails in 43 places.

The attack was concentrated along the 45-mile stretch of the main line railroad running northward from Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, to the important Kanuri Junction.

In far northwest Korea, 20 American Sabrejet fighters clashed briefly with an estimated 40 Communist jet fighters along the Manchurian border some 30 miles from Sinanju. Neither side scored hits.

In ground fighting the United Nations forces stormed the last Communist-held hill on Bloody Ridge, where the Reds lost 8,905 dead and wounded last week.

Two Bulldogs In Hospital Watch Daily Practice

Billy Ferguson and Herbert Williams may not be present on the football field with the Bulldogs, but they are witnessing every practice the boys have.

Through the thoughtfulness of Dr. Brazda, Bill and Herbert were moved to a room on the top floor of the hospital where they could view the team from a window with a pair of binoculars given them by Dr. Brazda.

The team on the practice field knows that they are getting the "eye" from two of their buddies and that they will have Herbert and Bill's wrath on them if they don't hustle.

Kinsey Says Sex Rings Are Normal

BLOOMINGTON, IND., Aug. 29 (UP)—Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey said today he could see nothing remarkable about teen-age sex rings disclosed recently in several Indiana towns.

Kinsey, author of "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male," said there is "no evidence of an increase in juvenile sexual activity."

"It has always existed," he said. "The only increase is in the amount of publicity such cases have been getting lately."

In the past year and a half, disclosures of sex parties among youngsters have shocked the towns of Monticello, Kokomo, Bluffton, Decatur and Plymouth.

Kinsey, a University of Indiana social science who rose to fame through his study of sex habits, estimated that there are 420,000 illicit sex experiences in Indiana each week.

Therefore, he said, he cannot get disturbed when he reads of such cases in the newspapers.

Girl Thrown From Auto Is Killed

KILLEEN, Aug. 29 (UP)—Dorothy C. Sites, 21, of Belton was killed yesterday when she was thrown from a speeding automobile which skidded 72 feet and overturned.

front carried the battle of Bloody Ridge into its 14th day. Another nearby hill taken by the Communists in a counter-attack was recaptured by UN troops yesterday.

North Korean Reds threw eight separate counterattacks ranging in strength from company to battalion against Bloody Ridge Tuesday, but all were repulsed in heavy fighting in rain and mud.

Allied artillery took a heavy toll of the attacking enemy.

An 8th Army briefing officer said the Communists lost 8,905 dead and wounded in similar counter-attacks against the ridge from Aug. 18 through 24.

Action along the rest of the ground front Tuesday was brought to a near halt by the heaviest rains in a month.

In the all-jet six clash northeast of Sinanju, both Sabrejets and Communist MIG-15 jet fighters made firing passes at each other in a dog fight that ranged from 42,000 down to 13,000 feet.

Farther southeast, 24 American F-84 Thunderjets bombed and strafed Communist anti-aircraft positions in the Sinanju and Suncheon areas prior to a strike by medium bombers.

OLD AGE BAD HABIT—Bernarr McFadden, white helmet, has his parachute unstrapped as he relaxes in a motor boat after his parachute jump into the Hudson River near Alpine, N. J. The 83-year-old physical culturist, jumping from 2,000 feet landed safely in shallow water about 15 feet from shore. He made the jump to prove that "old age is just a bad habit." (NEA Telephoto).

CAUCASIANS REPORTED WITH KOREANS—Red forces (white arrows) made a stiff probing assault north of Yanggu (1), and eastward Allied field commanders reported that communist units had infiltrated UN lines in the Inje area (2). Heaviest patrol actions were southeast of Kumsong (3) where Reds put up heavy fight to keep UN troops away from a communist buildup area. UN Intelligence officers reported that the communists were bringing in "Caucasians" (either Russian or satellite) troops to help in the Korean war. (NEA Telephoto).

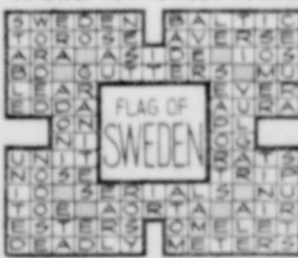

A HORSE ON CONGRESS—Samuel Riverberg, Washington, D. C., restaurant owner, is angry because Congress failed to uphold price controls on cattle. He expressed his displeasure by offering horsemeat "filet mignons" to members of the "Horsemeat Congress."

"Look at Me - Both Hands!"

KILLER'S PACE

BY JULIUS LONG

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

LARRY STONE dropped resignedly into a lounge chair "split-second to a door at his right I grinned and crossed to the door and opened it."

"Hello," said Sonya Sareeta "You do get around, don't you?"

She inhaled on a cigaret as she carried a highball glass into the room. She wore a show costume that made her deep-V special look like Elsie Dinsmore's graduation dress.

She smiled nonchalantly. "I picked up the wrong glass, didn't I? I didn't notice my mistake until it was too late."

"The mistake was mine," I turned to Larry Stone. "I hate to interrupt but I came here for an answer."

Stone glared. "You're a fool, Marshall. I don't know the answer you want."

I took a step toward him, the pistol aimed at the second button of his smoking jacket.

His eyes widened. "You—you wouldn't dare!"

"Wouldn't I? I took an awful rap on the head this afternoon. Star could spring me in a breeze with an insanity plea."

"Drop it, Jim," Sonya held the little .25 calibre automatic. I didn't get the switch, but I did get the business-like look in her eyes. I let my gun thud on the rug.

I kicked it as Stone belatedly reached for it. Sonya picked it up with her left hand, still training the little gun on me.

"What's your game, Sonya? Why don't you love just for once?"

I tried to duck then, but it was too late. Stone had come out of his chair like a catapult, and he had loosed a haymaker at my jaw. I moved just enough to keep him from winning by a knockout, but I decided to take a short count before I came up.

STONE wasn't waiting for me to come up. I rolled just before the toe of his shoe grazed my ribs.

"Stop it," Sonya said, turning the gun on Stone. "I'm not kidding."

"Me either!" said a new voice. Al Nanabarro and Lou, his bodyguard, both carrying short-barreled guns with gaping muzzles, came into the room. I got to my feet and they ignored me.

"How did you get in?" Stone demanded.

"I set the lock," Sonya told him. "I was once an escape artist, you know. But I never got out of a spot like yours."

"Well, you played me for a sucker!"

Nanabarro grinned with clenched teeth. His eyes fell on my gun in Sonya's hand. "Give that thing to me, Sonya, Marshall's gun!"

Sonya nodded and held out the weapon. Nanabarro took it and cocked his revolver. He grinned at me. "If there's any shooting, Mac, your roll'll get credit for it! I'll teach you to mind your own business." He asked Sonya: "What was he doing here?"

"He barged in. I had to stall till you came."

"Well, I got here!" He faced Stone.

"I just found out something tonight, Stone. I found out from Sonya that you were with Rose Bidault the night Barney was murdered."

Stone managed to put up a front. "So she told you that? I suppose Marshall told her. He says Rose told him—but I don't think a judge would let either of them tell a jury!"

"Maybe not, but I'm no jury. Sit down over there, Stone. You're on the witness stand. Sit down. I'm going to listen to you talk."

Stone retreated to the lounge chair indicated.

"You were with Rose that night," said Nanabarro, convinced that he had made his point. "You were the first out of the room, you're the guy that got the confession off Barney's body. I want it."

"Listen!" screamed Stone. "You got to believe me! I don't know anything about a confession!"

Nanabarro's answer was to take the gun barrel across Stone's face. Stone screamed so loud I was sure the neighbors would hear.

"We've got all night," said Nanabarro, as Stone sat whimpering and trying to mop the blood from his nose. I figured the nose would be broken. "The building is sound-proofed—they advertise that fact."

STONE screamed in sheer desperation. He appealed to me. "Do something, Marshall!"

I didn't feel that I owed Stone anything—except maybe a kick in the teeth. But I said:

"Could he be telling the truth, Nanabarro. No use gridding him to hamburger if he actually didn't get the confession."

"You keep out of this!" snapped Nanabarro out of the corner of his mouth. "This is my party. One more chance, Stone! Are you going to turn it over?"

"How can I turn it over when I haven't got it—I when I don't even know what it is?"

This time Nanabarro knocked him completely out. While they sprayed him with seltzer water, Sonya spoke speculatively to me:

"Well, yourself. Pulling a gun on me like that."

"I knew Al and Lou were about due. It wasn't a case for joint control. I knew you'd be squeamish, and there's nothing squalid about Al. He'll get the truth out of Larry."

Houston Schools Get First Ag. Classes In 1951

HOUSTON, Aug. 29 (UP)—Two senior high schools in the South's largest city are adding agriculture to their curriculum for the first time this year "by popular demand."

Glenn Fletcher, director of industrial arts and vocational education for the Houston Independent School District, said today Jefferson Davis and Milby Senior High Schools will be the first in the district's history to offer courses in vocational agriculture.

Bridging the past with the present is often necessary in modern warfare when battles are fought in far off corners of the earth. American industry and the Armed Forces are teaming up with technical know-how and Yankee initiative to keep the nation fully prepared for defense.

Just received a news release stating that the supply of anti-freeze this year will be large enough for everyone to get all they need to protect their cars. It says that short shortages may arise but that the black market will only be a shadow of its former self. How can anyone think of things like anti-freeze with the mercury hovering around one hundred degrees.

The Saturday morning quarter-backs are already on the job with the Bulldogs. The heat won't even keep them away from their favorite sport.

A word of thanks should be given to the volunteer firemen for their timely handling of the traffic at the scene of the accident Saturday night. D. A. Hulcy Honored At Palestine PALESTINE, Aug. 29 (UP)—D. A. Hulcy, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, labeled a test of strength between democracy and totalitarianism "inevitable" yesterday in a speech here.

Hulcy, also president of the Lone Star Gas Company of Dallas, was honored at a barbecue given by citizens of Palestine, his home town.

In the highlight address, Hulcy said he believed a clash between the two governmental systems could not be avoided, but he added, "whether this test will culminate in all-out war, no man can foresee."

While driving through Wichita, Kan., on a vacation trip, she stopped "just on a hunch" and looked through the city directory. She found two "William S. Smiths" and thought one might be one of the missing brothers. The first one she called was her brother.

A family reunion followed.

Two Ships Sent To Aid Flood Areas In Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 29 (UP)—President Miguel Aleman dispatched two corvettes today to Mexico's flood-stricken east coast with 500 tons of supplies for thousands of homeless refugees.

Aleman's orders to captains of the Uribia and Porter to steam toward the rich port of Tampico turned the nation's greatest mercy mission into a land-air-sea operation.

Special trains, commercial and private vehicles were commandeered after rains borne by a killer hurricane turned 15,000,000 acres of Mexico into a watery wasteland last week.

During the past two days, an airlift of 15 military and commercial planes has flown two tons of food and medicine into the disaster area extending north and east of Tampico.

Two helicopters owned by a private company were placed aboard a tanker at Veracruz, to the south, for use in rescue operations.

Gov. Horacio Teran of Tamaulipas state said Tampico's present problem was "food, housing and clothing."

"The danger of malaria and typhoid is great," Teran said. "Communities elsewhere in the state are in even worse shape."

A Mexican reporter who has flown over the expanse of water estimated 2,500 were homeless in Tampico alone.

"Eastern Tampico is inundated with five feet of water and it still is rising," he said. "Many persons are refusing to leave their homes despite the increasing danger."

Senators Call For Cotton Stockpiling

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (UP)—Southern senators called for an explanation from munitions board officials today as to why they are not taking advantage of "cheap prices" to stockpile cotton.

The senators, worried about falling cotton prices, also wanted to know when the army is going to step up its buying of cotton textiles.

Targets of their questions were munitions board chairman John D. Small and Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, Army Quartermaster General, who were called before a senate armed services subcommittee (at 2:30 p.m. EDT).

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. John C. Stennis, D., Miss., is studying proposals that the on how many persons had drowned in the floods. At least 55 were known dead in Mexico, and most of them drowned when an eastern dam collapsed last week at Cardenas, in the foothills of the Sierra Madre Oriental Range west of Tampico.

Health authorities said workers were spraying swamps and ponds to fight outbreak of malaria. Tampico's chief health officer, Dr. Saturnino Guzman, said every known method was being used to combat "surging epidemics" of typhoid fever, diphtheria and dysentery there.

Iran Wants To Reopen Oil Talks With England

TEHRAN, IRAN, Aug. 29 (UP)—Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi called U.S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady to a meeting late today in a new effort to reopen Anglo-Iranian oil talks.

Informed sources said the Shah was eager to get negotiations resumed as soon as possible. They were suspended abruptly a week ago.

Opposition newspaper increased their campaign against Premier Mohammed Mossadeq for his failure to obtain an oil settlement. Mossadeq himself was home in bed with a recurring heart ailment.

The independent newspaper "Tolou" declared today: "The Mossadeq government is a government without a (oil) plan—a chapter from the Arabian Nights entertainments. His only sensible course is to resign."

Informed sources said today Britain will keep 320 of its technicians in Abadan indefinitely to protect the world's largest oil refinery there and to run essential services for the city's 120,000 population.

Remaining British personnel will be evacuated, beginning early government buy cotton immediately for its stockpile.

Southern senators, who are plugging the proposals, are interested in pushing up cotton prices—or at least in preventing any further price slump—as this year's big 17,000,000 bale crop floods to market. The price of cotton in the last six months has dropped from 45 to 34 cents a pound and now is just about two cents above the support level.

At the subcommittee's opening session yesterday, Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan said the stockpiling proposal is "under active study" by his department. But he said he is not ready to recommend it to President Truman.

Brannan said there are arguments on "both sides of the question" and he is moving cautiously. He said stockpiling might boom cotton farmers.

Married Men Next On The Draft List

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 (UP)—Thousands of childless married men are due to receive induction notices from their draft boards in the near future.

The childless husbands are about to lose their draft deferments and be called to military service.

The new draft law passed in June requires that these men be classified I-A available for military service—unless they qualify for deferment on some grounds other than marriage. Previously, next week, the informants said. Britain ordered the mass evacuation after oil negotiations with Iran over its nationalization program broke down a week ago. Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee declared, however, that the Abadan refinery would be held indefinitely even if it required force.

all married men were placed in a S-A classification regardless of whether they had children.

Selective service headquarters has never said how many men would be affected by this change in the law, but congressional experts estimated that some 230,000 married men would lose their deferments.

Salzburg's Fortress Going Down Hill

SALZBURG, Austria (UP)—Feste Hohensalzburg, the great castle which has dominated this city for almost 1,000 years, is sliding down hill. Engineers are building a steel "girdle" to keep it in place.

The huge pile which rises more than 480 feet above Salzburg has slipped more than two feet in the last few centuries, the engineers said. They fear it may come tumbling down into the city some day.

A crew of 60 men is boring deep holes along the face of the castle's outer walls. Steel bars sunk in concrete are being anchored to the bed rock to stop the sliding.

Water seeping from the well the castle builders sank as a precaution against sieges weakened the foundations and started the slipping, the engineers said.

The castle was started in 1077 and was strengthened until it was considered impregnable. Only the advent of modern artillery made it vulnerable to attack.

During a 16th century revolt of peasants, the archbishops who ruled Salzburg and the surrounding area retired to the castle and lived comfortably for months until the rebellion was put down. The castle is now a museum and landmark of the Salzburg music festivals.

MORE STATES AID LOCAL SCHOOLS

CHICAGO (UP)—The Council of State Governments reports that several states have moved to help local school districts relieve the critical shortage of school buildings.

The shortage was brought on partly by the war-time increase in the birth rate.

Following the lead of Pennsylvania, several states have created special school building authorities designed to help local districts finance new buildings or expand old ones, the council said. Among them are Georgia, Indiana and Maine.

The Pennsylvania public school building authority was established in 1947 to construct, improve, maintain and operate school buildings.

Most of the other plans adopted by various states this year are patterned after the Pennsylvania plan, the council said.

Nebraska has a larger percentage of its land in farms than any other state.
