

SEEN OR HEARD

The Ranger Junior College Rangers travel to Kerrville tonight to play the second game of the Pioneer Conference double-round-robin with the Schreiner Mountaineers.

About the only thing at stake will be a tie for third place if the Rangers can beat Schreiner and then go on and defeat Tarleton again next week.

The high school Bulldogs have a chance at upsetting the apple cart in 2A-10 basketball tonight when they tangle with the Comanche Indians.

First game of the twin bill will be at 7:30 p.m. The Beauties will meet the Comanche girls in the opening game of play, but the conclusion of that contest.

At the present time the game with Comanche tonight could throw the title race three different ways.

First—Ranger could beat Comanche and give Cisco the title; second—they could lose and Comanche and Cisco would be tied; third—either Cisco or Comanche could win the playoff for the tie. Cisco has the better chance as the Bulldogs have greatly improved their basketball in the closing weeks of play, but the Comanche still has a well organized bunch of boys and will be going all out to tie the race.

The game will be worth seeing whatever the outcome may be.

About all you can hear if you get around where there are two or more members of the Ranger Police Force gathered are the merry "bo-y" radio.

"Bo-y" are completely sold on them and wish that they could sell a few more people on them—sell enough people to get some for Ranger.

They said they sure take a "ribbing" when they meet a member of the police force from Cisco or Eastland, and the Sheriff's department. Seems both of those towns and the sheriff have their radios on order and will have them in operation within the near future.

All members of the force agree that they would be twice as effective in their safeguarding of property and life in town if they had this modern means of communication.

Anyway—don't be surprised if the whole bunch of them ends up in the county jail by reason of trying to lift the Sheriff's or Eastland's police two radios when they get them.

RJC Presented Trophy Case By Relations Club

On Thursday, Feb. 7, the International Relations Club of Ranger Junior College presented a new trophy case to Ranger Junior College. The case is made of oak and is the second one given to the college by the International Relations Club, the first having been given during 1950-51 term.

During the 1949-50 term the club presented an electric drinking fountain to the college. The gifts are all in the Administration building of the college and are a source of pride to the students and faculty. They represent a monetary value of about $400.

Mr. R. L. Willis, head of the Social Science Department of Ranger Junior College, is sponsor, and Charles Lane of Eastland is the president of the club.

Lions Show Film Korean Truce Talks

T-Sgt. James Hendricks, recruiting sergeant from Eastland, presented the Lions Club with a program consisting of a film of action in the peace talks in Korea at Kaesong. Mr. Saul Perstein brought Sgt. Hendrick here for the program.

The film mainly showed the Communist action at the peace talks and how they violated the Kaesong truce agreement with their armed guards.

Pictures of guards were shown at the door of the conference room at Kaesong. Also shots of armed troops in the city and other groups of armed Communists or North Koreans as they were hastily removed from the scene by officers of the Communist delegations. Plainly showing the Lions that the efforts for peace in Korea was only half-hearted on the part of the Chinese and North Koreans.

An actual account of the stopping of the United Nations countries correspondents by the Communists and the refusal to let the reporters get on-the-scene coverage of the peace talks was shown. This was later remedied by General Ridgway denouncing the tactics of the Reds. They allowed their own correspondents and photographers to cover the scene and used pictures of our delegation showing armed Red guards for pictures of a "defeated enemy" in the Asiatic pro-Red nations.

C of C Gains 24 New Members; 9 Teams Reported

With about one third of the membership teams reporting the Ranger Chapter of Commerce has gained 24 new members.

Total annual pledges for the new members is $488; cash collected yesterday by the teams from the new members totaled $208.

Several of the memberships were secured through persons voluntarily coming to the Ranger Chamber of Commerce office and joining.

Chairman H. C. Henderson and co-chairman W. F. Creager of the membership drive were highly pleased with the results of the undertaking this far. They also urged that all the teams reports as quickly as possible in order that final results of the drive be tabulated.

The teams consist of two members of the chamber who were given the names of three prospective new members. They are urged to conclude the drive as quickly as possible.

John Hart Asks Second Term As County Judge

Judge John S. Hart has authorized this newspaper to announce to the voters of Eastland county that he is again a candidate for the office of county judge. He is now serving his first term, and feels that if his administrative acts, during the past year have been satisfactory he is within his rights to ask for the second term.

The Judge is well and favorably known to the voters of this county, and there is really nothing we could say that would either help or hinder him in the campaign. He is a Democrat, and his candidacy will be governed by the action of the July primaries.

Connally Proposes Diplomatic Break With Hungarians

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (UP)—The administration turned a deaf ear today to Sen. Tom Connally's demand that the United States break diplomatic relations with Hungary to punish the Communist satellite for jailing four American airmen.

Officials said both the State and Defense Departments oppose such a move at this time because they fear it might do more harm than good.

Connally, chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee, introduced a resolution yesterday calling on the Senate to prod the president to break relations.

"Unless we show more determination to defend our rights, compliance in this case will encourage other hand-minded governments to demand similar blackmail," the Texas Democrat said.

The United States paid $129,000 "ransom" two months ago after Hungary convicted the four airmen on trumped-up spy charges. The fliers were forced down in the Red satellite Nov. 19 after they got lost on a flight to Yugoslavia.

The State Department has been studying possible ways to retaliate but so far it has ruled out a diplomatic break on the grounds the United States has more to gain by keeping observers behind the Iron Curtain.

But the question of severing relations with Russia and all of her satellites has been under consideration and will come up formally next month in Paris at a meeting of U. S. diplomats from eastern Europe.

Farmers Union Blast Grain Shortage Setup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (UP)—The National Farmers Union charged today that private grain handlers have "extorted hundreds of millions of dollars more" from farmers than from the government.

In a letter to the Senate Agriculture Committee, the union suggested a federal loan program for cooperative storage facilities to help eliminate misuse of government grain by private warehouses as well as assist farmers in storing crops.

It charged that private warehouses refuse farmers storage space at harvest time and force them to either sell grain under the government support level or dump it.

The farm group "strongly urged" an investigation of government grain losses to expose the "real culprits" and to show the need for an "entirely new type of commodity storage facility program."

Cop Slayer's Wife Released

FORT WORTH, Feb. 15 (UP)—Mrs. Doris Faye Barber, who with her husband has been charged with murder in the fatal shooting of a Fort Worth detective, was free on a reduced bond today.

District Judge Dave McGee lowered her bond from $7,500 to $2,500, and it was posted by Mrs. Ethel Olinger, a Dallas apartment house owner.

Mrs. Barber's husband, ex-convict Robert Hugh Barber, is recovering from gunshot wounds received in the battle in which detective H. E. Cleveland was killed last week and two other officers wounded when they called at Barber's home to question him in a Dallas robbery. Barber is held without bond.

Dallas attorney Bert Ashby filed application for a writ of habeas corpus for Mrs. Barber's release, but Judge McGee dismissed a hearing on it when the bond was reduced.

Mrs. Barber was not on her release yesterday by her father, William Paul Aikens, a Dallas night-watchman.

Near Agreement Reached On The POW Exchanging

PANMUNJOM, Korea, Feb. 15 (UP)—Allied and Communist truce negotiators have reached an agreement on nearly every point regarding the exchange of war prisoners except the issue of repatriation, United Nations spokesmen said today.

On that point, the Reds insist stubbornly that all prisoners must be returned regardless of their own preferences.

"In the main, the two sides are close together," a staff officer said. "It is now largely a question of wording except for the question of voluntary repatriation."

At tomorrow's talks the Communists are to present the allied team with a new proposal on a full-dress Korean peace conference to follow the conclusion of an armistice.

Royalty From Over World Present For Last Rite Of English King

By Robert Masek United Press Staff Correspondent WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15 (UP)—King George VI was brought home to Windsor Castle today and buried among other great sovereigns of British history.

The King's coffin arrived at Windsor station at 1:10 p. m. (8:30 a.m. EST) from London, where it had been borne in a majestic funeral procession past 2,000,000 grieving subjects, many of them weeping openly.

An estimated 200,000 persons waited in the castle town to receive their King for the last time. His coffin, draped in the Royal Standard and topped by the bejeweled Imperial Crown and Golden Sceptre and Orb, was taken to ancient St. George's Chapel for the funeral service.

Guns at Windsor boomed out 56 times—once for each year in the King's life—as the cortege wound uphill through the town to the castle. In London, Big Ben tolled 56 times at intervals of a minute each during the funeral procession.

Queen Elizabeth II, her young face hidden by a heavy veil, rode behind the King's coffin in a glass windowed closed carriage driven by livermen in brilliant scarlet. Beside her were her widowed mother, Princess Margaret and the Princess Royal.

Behind them walked the Dukes of Kent, Windsor, Gloucester and Edinburgh. Their faces were pale and solemn. Windsor looked particularly youthful and made a slight, elegant figure in the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet. His sword rested in a gold scabbard.

A single deep chime from Big Ben atop the Houses of Parliament at 9:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EST) signalled the start of the proud and sorrowful farewell of Britain and the empire to George VI, "The Well Beloved."

Ten Grenadier Guards reverently carried the King's coffin from east Westminster Hall—where George VI had lain in state for three days—to the same polished gun carriage which had borne Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and George V to their funerals.

Promptly at 9:31 a.m. (4:31 a.m. EST), the cortege moved slowly away along Whitehall to the muffled roll of drums, the poignant shrill of bagpipes and the funeral music of massed bands.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, representing President Truman, marched in the procession amid such prominent mourners as the Kings of Denmark, Greece, Sweden and Iraq, the presidents of France, Yugoslavia and Turkey, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery and Earl Mountbatten.

In a window of the mansion stood old dowager Queen Mary. Her doctors had decided the ordeal of the funeral of her son might be too much for the 84-year-old Queen and she reluctantly agreed not to take part. The coffin was lowered into a vault in St. George's Chapel here after a stately funeral procession through London's wintry streets. George VI and his father, George V, now rest together.

For two minutes after the King's coffin was brought into the chapel silence claimed this island from Land's End to John O'Groats in the north, from Dover's White Cliffs to the Cornwall Coast. The period of silence was at the request of Britain's new monarch, Elizabeth II, who bowed her head today at the last rites for her father.

The Archbishop Canterbury was waiting at the chapel doors with other prelates. Richly arrayed heralds, Pursuivants, Kings-at-Arms and members of the armed forces flanked the doors. Choir and clergy led the procession through the carved stone of Canterbury the opening of the burial service: "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord—"

Ahead of the coffin through the nave, which was brilliantly adorned with the banners and crested helmets of the Knights of the order, walked the high ceremonial officials of the Royal Court.

Queen Elizabeth II walked directly behind the coffin, followed by other members of the Royal family and foreign dignitaries. The 25-year-old Queen took her place at the foot of the coffin. Soft lights glowed back from the dark oak carving of the choir stalls and the delicate tracery of the carved stone ceiling.

The Archbishop of Canterbury intoned the prayers and the choir sang: "I Heard a Voice From Heaven,"

The Lord's Prayer and responses, and two prayers from the burial service followed.

Queen Elizabeth II, in her attire of deep mourning, sprinkled earth over the coffin from a silver bowl.

The coffin was loved into the vault.

In a gesture of affection for her widowed mother, Queen Elizabeth, the young sovereign walked out of the chapel step by step beside her. Under royal ceremony, the Mother Queen should have been a step or two behind her.

The funeral service was witnessed in hushed silence by some 1,500 of the greatest of Britain's royalty, nobility, statesmen and soldiers, and by distinguished foreigners from all over the world including Kings, Queens, Princesses, Presidents.

Voluntary Enlistments And Selective Service

By T-Sgt. Jim Hendrick

It has occurred to me that only a small percentage of the parents really understand the advantages of the voluntary enlisting in the Armed Forces. The evidence to support this point of view is all around us; men voluntarily enlist every day by the thousands. They must have a season—and a good one.

If your son is of military age and not physically disabled he is vulnerable for service in the Army or Marine Corps for two years. When he is released, he is obligated for additional years of reserve service, subject to call at any time. Therefore, he should make the most of his military service by benefiting from certain specialized occupational training offered now to volunteer enlistees.

Other programs such as Officer Candidate School, the Army band, the Air Force and several others, may be his for the asking if he meets certain qualifications. Some of you folks, before sending your sons to civilian schools investigate their facilities to determine whether they offered certain advantages; why not look into the military service in the same manner?

A few moments at the U.S. Army and U.S. Air Force Recruiting Station will get you the answers. Incidentally Selective Service registrants who have received their pre-induction examinations but are not yet notified to report for induction have until March 31 to enlist in the service of their choice.

Aviation Cadet requirements have been eased, too. Civilians with two or more years of college may now enter Air Force pilot or observation training without taking the five-hour mental examination formerly required. Applicants need only to bring their credit transcripts and birth certificates to the Army and Air Force Recruiting Station and make application. Those who meet other requirements as to age (20-26 1/2) and are unmarried citizens, will be sent to government expense to a nearby air base for physical examination. The final processing consists only of aptitude tests at Lackland AFB, San Antonio training center.

If accepted, early assignments to training will be made and they will become cadets with pay of $105 per month, uniforms, housing, food and medical care, plus $10,000 free insurance. Graduates will be appointed Second Lieutenants in the Air Force and awarded silver pilot or observer wings. It's a great life, fellows. Give it your careful consideration.

Special Tricks Noted To Save Your Shrubby

Trees and shrubs can't step inside out of the cold, but some do the next best thing. Nature has endowed them with special tricks to foil Old Man Winter.

Many of the rhododendrons respond so quickly to drops in temperature they are fairly accurate outside thermometers, according to M. J. Hooper, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. They roll their leaves when the air gets below freezing. The lower the mercury drops, the tighter they close. In this way, less and less surface area is exposed to the chilling wind. This reaction is so dependable, the home owner can simply glance outside his window and get an idea of how cold it is.

Leaves of spruces, pines and other narrow leaved evergreen species do not have the ability to curl. Nature has provided them with a heavy coating of waxlike material, called cuticle, that makes cutting unnecessary. Hardy deciduous trees also take protective measures. Buds are tightly sealed and protected by many layers of bud scales. Younger twigs that might evaporate excess moisture are heavily coated with the same wax-

Other kinds of trees and shrubs, such as privet, are protected by making their type interchangeable. That is, temperature frequently will determine whether privet plants are evergreen or deciduous. Some of these are deciduous in northern climes, but normally evergreen in the deep South. Another plant that performs this same miracle, but to a lesser degree, is the American holly.

Another form of natural protection is snow, which acts as a much to keep out frost. It is considered the finest of all protection. Fallen leaves are also a part of nature's protective system.

All signs fail, when West Texas' weather conditions are evolved it should have been cold, snowy and freezing for the past six weeks, but it has not. On the other hand it has been hot, dry and sultry.

West Texas Now Suffering From Wind Erosion; Continued Dry Weather Could Prove Serious

FORT WORTH, Feb. 14.—Recent high winds sharply expanded western Texas areas undergoing moderate to severe wind erosion damage, the Soil Conservation Service reported today following its periodic survey of land cover and wind erosion conditions.

Hardest hit single area reportedly was in the vicinity of Big Spring where battering westerly and northerly winds on February 2 and 3 reached 58 miles an hour and scooped out great quantities of dry, loosened soil. Regional Director Louis P. Merrill of the SCS places the new total in acreages which have been damaged to a moderate or severe extent this blow at 901,000 acres. Oklahoma acreages undergoing moderate or severe damage have totaled 154,000 acres.

The reports of SCS District Conservationist, W. S. Goodlett of Big Spring, Jesse Jenkins of Lamesa and Z. C. Dameron of Pecos, to Merrill said residents of those areas described the blowing of the past weekend as the "worst since 1934." Dry, unprotected fields in Big Spring area blew down to plow depth in many areas. Goodlett placed the acreage undergoing severe damage at 21,500 acres. According to SCS definition, "severe" means that soil is blowing out from two inches to plow depth or that the surface is covered by more than six inches of hummocky accumulations. Goodlett said the storm added 155,000 acres to the areas in the Big Spring vicinity which have suffered moderate to severe wind damage. Only two inches of rain have fallen in that area since Sept. 1950, Goodlett reported.

Approximately 400,000 acres in the Big Spring area are now without enough plant or residue cover to prevent wind damage, Goodlett said. Other areas reporting increased damage from the recent storms include Lamesa, with 265,000 acres; and Pampa, 8,500 acres. At Gayman, Okla., SCS District Conservationist John F. Bailey reported 150,000 acres in the moderate to severe damage category, a gain of 25,000 acres in the last two weeks. Merrill estimates the amount of emergency tillage done by Texas farmers alone as an erosion preventive measure at approximately 2,000,000 acres. This practice, he explained, halts soil movement by winds for a time, but it is only an emergency measure at best and can not be depended on to last vision of soil conservation districts in the wind erosion areas are through a blow season. The survey working with the Soil Conservation Service to get a more effective long range program of wise land use, plant and residue cover, and grass on too-hazardous lands.

At Lubbock District Conservationist Homer Taff said only scattered fields in his area blew during the recent storm. Well over three-fourths of the cotton lands in that area have been protected temporarily by emergency tillage, he said, but he added that the tillage may not be effective much longer. Winter wheat, however, has improved rapidly in that area as a result of January moisture. Conditions to the west and south of Lubbock remain critical.

Whooping Cough May Increase In The Next Month

AUSTIN — Inasmuch as the incidence of whooping cough in Texas is expected to show an increase during the coming months, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, released a statement today urging that strenuous efforts be made to control the spread of this debilitating childhood disease. There were 1273 cases reported during the first 5 weeks of this year.

"Whooping cough can only be contracted by direct exposure to the disease, and isolation of cases must be universally practiced if the incidence is to be controlled," Dr. Cox stated.

"The infectious agent or germ of whooping cough is transmitted by droplets expelled in coughing, sneezing, or speaking," Dr. Cox said. "The discharges from the

"The first symptom of this disease is usually a dry cough, which persists day and night and tends to become increasingly severe. The disease is fully developed when vomiting of food and whooping accompany the paroxysms of cough. Dr. Cox stressed the fact that children who have whooping cough should not attend school or come in contact with other children until three weeks after the appearance of typical signs of the disease.

Young People Honored With A Sweetheart Banquet Thursday

"It's good to be a part of the younger set of the Ranger community" was an oft repeated statement coming from many of the more than 50 young people who enjoyed the Sweetheart Valentine banquet held in the basement of the Methodist church last evening. The various committees did an outstanding job in "setting the stage" for a most successful and enjoyable occasion. The semi-formal get-together allowed the young ladies to wear what they wished, and made them feel perfectly free and at ease. Many of their escorts had white boutonnieres pinned on dark coat lapels. The group gathered at 7:00 p. m. with Florence Ashcraft at the piano, the youth began the festivities in the true spirit of Valentine by singing, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Bill Brazda served as toast master; Betty Lou Hagaman gave the invocation. Then followed a most delicious meal of fried chicken, new potatoes, peas, congealed salad, hot rolls, butter, cherry pie a la mode, and iced tea. After the meal, Denna Publey conducted a musical romance in the form of a contest. Betty Lou Hagaman and Pac Taylor tied for the prize. Miss Jeanne Crawley gave a reading on "diplomacy", which, according to her interpretation, was just another way of giving castor oil. The piano numbers, given by Mr. G. M. Wilson from Graham met with the full approval of everyone present.

Rev. Mike Pattison, pastor of the Methodist church at Gordon, and student in Perkins School of Theology at SMU, gave the principal address, using the first 10 minutes for jokes and wisecracks which kept the crowd in an uproar. He then turned the attention to the serious business of Young People and their job in being completely Christian in the world in which they find themselves. The benediction was given by the pastor of the church.

Special recognition was given to Mrs. J. D. Drennan, whose untiring efforts made the banquet such a success. Of course the mothers who cooked and served the food came in for a lion's share of praise from the youth. The decoration committee also did a splendid job in arranging the tables so differently from the usual way of doing it. The red darts and hearts and japonica blossoms gave color to the occasion. Betty's Flower Shop furnished the arrangement of carnations for the speakers table.

Valentine napkins were used and red hearts with scriptures on love printed inside of them were at each plate. These were read audibly and several commented on their scripture.

Mrs. C. R. Mansfield directed the singing of "Jesus Is Love". Mrs. Frank Head, O. G. Lanier, Morris George and Mansfield rendered two vocal numbers, "Have Thine Own Way" and "Be With Me, Lord."

Party For Those With Birthdays

The Adult Department of the Training Union of the Second Baptist Church met Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m. in the recreation room at the church for a social hour honoring those who have had birthdays in January and February.

As the group gathered, the names of Bible characters were pinned on their backs and worn until they could identify themselves by asking questions about different characters. Rev. Jasper Massee directed the games which included stunts, tricks, active games and sing-songs. The period came to a close with the reading of a scripture and "Happy Birthday" being sung to a large number present.

The refreshment table was laid with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow jonquils and lacy fern in a crystal bowl. Four beautifully decorated birthday cakes were served to thirty-five members, with coffee and hot chocolate.
