

Missouri River Continues Record Breaking Rampage

Flood Called "Greatest White Man Has Ever Seen"

The crest of the Missouri River is rolling down through Iowa and Nebraska, dumping "The greatest flood white man has ever seen" in the Upper Missouri Basin.

That's the way Lieutenant General Lewis Pick, chief of Army Engineers, describes the flood that already has forced more than 65,000 people from homes in eight states. He says, it's a "terrifying sight."

Officials at Omaha, Nebraska, predict that the water will roll through residential areas up to 16 feet deep if the City's battered dike fails to hold.

The muddy Missouri's crest is now racing through Sioux City, Iowa at a stage of 24 and three-tenths feet. That's more than five feet above flood stage, and the highest level on record.

Residents below Sioux City have either fled to higher ground or strengthened dikes running around their towns in the hope they will stem the water.

When the crest hits Omaha it's expected to be at 31 1/2 or 32 1/2.

above flood stage, and five feet more than the levees are built to stand. Engineers have hastily built levees up to meet the expected crest.

Meanwhile the Mississippi River to the east is also on the rampage. It has poured through the Metropolitan area of St. Paul, Minnesota, at a record rate. And it has poured through a dike at Winona, Minnesota, almost making an island of the city.

The Red Cross at St. Louis says the crest along the Mississippi, from St. Paul to Hannibal, Missouri, threaten to be from one to four feet higher than any in history.

Government officials in Washington say congressional economy is partly to blame for the terrible damage wrought by the flood along the Missouri.

They say the record crest "could have been checked" by the network of 190 dams planned under the Missouri Basin Project.

According to A. O. Babb of the reclamation bureau, only 19 of these dams have been finished.

He says congress approved the plan in principle, but has not appropriated enough money to finance it.

NEW INDUSTRY

(Editorial)

One of the most important reasons why you should vote for the Water Bonds, is that by so doing you encourage new industry. It doesn't take a large city to attract a manufacturer, but on the contrary the small and medium size cities and villages many times offer more than the great cities.

Several things are essential when it comes to attracting industry from the outside, and the first is "WATER". No manufacturer will take a second glance at a city or town where water is a problem. This may be one reason why Eastland county cities have few manufacturing plants. Water IS our "PROBLEM". Build that dam, and watch manufacturers flock to the area. Why?

Because we have everything else that is necessary. We have an abundance of fuel—oil and gas, and it is cheap, because it is produced right here at home. So far as the average manufacturer is concerned, the city capable of offering cheap fuel, and an abundance of "commercial water," will get plenty favorable comment and attention.

Building sites are many and varied, and property prices are lower than in large cities.

Transportation facilities are as good as can be offered, both rail and truck.

As the matter now stands we have "everything" but the water. And this water is coming up. Voters in Eastland and Ranger will go to the polls on April 22, and put over the bond issue. This will guarantee water for everybody and everything. It will mean there will be no more water rationing. It will mean you may water your lawns and your gardens. And water prices will NOT be increased, but in time will likely be REDUCED.

Manufacturers will visit us, and will locate plants in this county. This will mean new faces, new citizens and new money. It will be a financial gain for most every individual in the county.

Everything hinges on the Water Bonds. VOTE FOR THE BONDS and we shall collect our birthright.

Fourteen Crew Members Dead In B-36 Crash

SPOKANE, Wash., April 15 (UPI)—A B-36 crashed and burned while taking off from Fairchild Air Force Base near Spokane, Washington today. Officers say 14 of the 16 men aboard were killed.

Two men escaped the flaming wreckage of the intercontinental bomber by crawling through the nose of the huge ship after it crashed on a deserted stretch of farmland.

A CAA official at Geiger Field, one mile from the scene, says officers at Fairchild base told him there were 16 men aboard.

The official says he saw the plane take off, that it barely cleared the ground, glided along for a short distance, then crashed and exploded. He says there was a series of bright flashes after 1 1/2 a crack-up, apparently caused by wing tanks exploding.

The B-36 is the largest military aircraft in production in the United States. It has six main engines which are supplemented on the newest model by four turbojet engines mounted in pairs under the outer wings. The craft has a wing span of 230 feet and is 162 feet long.

Senate Probing Steel Seizure

WASHINGTON, April 15 (UP)—In the steel dispute, Wage Board Chairman Feinsinger is scheduled to testify before the Senate Labor Committee this morning.

The committee is holding public hearings on President Truman's request to okay seizure of the steel industry by passing a law that spells out conditions for government operation.

Elsewhere in Washington, top business and industry leaders meet today to blueprint an attack on Mr. Truman's seizure order in a session called jointly by the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

In one other steel development, C.I.O. Steel union officials and management representatives are scheduled for another bargaining session today in an effort to work out a settlement that would permit return of the steel industry to private control.

Conservation Methods Give 19 Bushels Peanuts Acre In Drouth

N. and E. B. Doss averaged 19 bushels of peanuts to the acre on their farm last fall. With the drought we had last year this is a mighty good crop.

The Doss Brothers are conservation farmers. They believe in taking care of their land. With them conservation is not a one time thing; they know that their land must be protected constantly.

The Doss Brothers have been cooperating with the Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District since 1949.

E. B. says, "It is a shame to see a farmer turn under a fine crop of vetch and then plant his peanuts without stripping them. When that crop comes off the land will be bare and the wind will soon blow out all of the humus and fertilizer. Good sandy land has got to be taken care of if you want it to produce. You have got to put a lot of humus back in the soil and you have got to protect it from blowing."

E. B. says a lot of people thought they were very foolish last fall when they combined their peanuts and put the hay back on the land. He says that is all right though, just watch what happens to those fields where the hay was hauled off, take a look at them after the wind gets through with them this spring.

The Doss Brothers have 190 acres planted to cover crops of rye, vetch and Austrian Winterpeas. All of this cover crop was fertilized. They made sure, too, that their legume seed was inoculated.

They have learned by experience that it pays to be sure that the legume seed is well inoculated. One year they had some vetch planted, side by side, one patch was inoculated and the other was not. Where the seed was not inoculated the vetch made hardly any growth. The vetch that was inoculated made such a growth they had trouble getting it turned under.

By experience and close observation the Doss Brothers have learned that conservation has to be planned and coordinated. Hit and miss conservation will not get the job done. On a sandy farm like theirs they must use strip cropping, return a lot of humus to the land, apply fertilizers, and they must plant cover crops that have been properly inoculated. The land must be protected from the ravages of the wind.

Shivers Says He Doesn't Aspire Connolly's Post

AUSTIN, April 15, UP—Governor Allen Shivers says he does not aspire to Senator Connolly's job but he would not say whether he could be drafted. Shivers spoke last night in Dallas at the founders day dinner of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

Still working for an uninstruced Texas delegation to the Democratic National Convention, shivers had little to say about his personal ambitions. He said he does not seek any office outside of Texas.

In a brief speech to the fraternal, the governor said the Texas delegation at the convention should look for the best man and the best platform that can be found. By that, he said he meant the best for Texas.

The answer, he says, is that Straus runs the Bureau of Reclamation for its maximum publicity and propaganda effect, applying to dam building and power production some of the same drum-beating showmanship that P. T. Barnum once gave to gaudier but somewhat less colossal enterprise.

Under his irrepresible leadership, the Reclamation Bureau has grown to the point where its annual budget is nearly half the total appropriation for the Department of the Interior and is said to think of itself as the tail which wags the department dog.

This golden jubilee of the reclamation law passed in the Theodore Bureau supplying 9,000,000 people with water and power by means of 96 dams 16,000 miles of canals and over 3,000 miles of electric transmission lines. It is called the world's largest single producer of electric power.

Those desiring transportation from Ranger to the car pool are asked to contact Dr. Dick Hodges.

RANGER RATE CASE HEARING CONCLUDED; DECISION WITHHELD; SETTLEMENT URGED

Defense and plaintiff rested their case Saturday on the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's petition in the 91st District Court to set aside ordinances of April 1948, and another ordinance passed, but not effective, on April 8, 1952. Judge Davenport stated that he would require a few days in which to study the hearings before his court and investigate legal information surrounding the hearing.

The judge addressed the members of the counsel of both the telephone company and the city of Ranger upon completion of testimony and final arguments and expressed his appreciation for the manner the hearing had been presented.

Immediately after he had expressed his appreciation to the counsels he expressed an opinion to them. This opinion amounted to his desire to see the telephone company and city officials attempt to make a settlement before he brings his decision in the next few days.

The judge stated his dislike and futility of lawsuits of this nature and urged that both parties meet and try to iron out the differences remaining between a settlement before the court rules.

The court's address amounted to a "verbal spanking" to the telephone company for not attempting further negotiation with the city after the city had shown they were willing to make adjustments by their ordinance passed April 8.

The court seemed to be of the opinion that very little difference remained to be settled between Ranger and the company, and that there exists in the telephone company's

Counsel for the defendants (Ranger) sought to prove through cross examination of witnesses during the afternoon that the company was not fair in their estimate of what constituted a fair value on their property in Ranger.

Attorney Cyrus Frost got an admission from one of the telephone company's witnesses that were depreciation reductions yearly deducted from the cost of the Ranger telephone exchange the property could be depreciated in nearly 20 years, but that this had not been done and that factor of depreciation had only been taken into consideration for purposes other than determining a fair value upon their property in Ranger for rate cases.

Frost also told the court that there exists in the State of Texas a void in the telephone company's

SEEN OR HEARD

You read where this guy, or someone else, caught a mess of whoopers, at such and such a lake, with very little trouble. Most of the time those catches were made in some of the big lakes out of the range of local fishermen—who may have only a few hours in the evening to do his fishing.

After April 22 we may be doing something other than reading about it—we may be putting such a lake and good fishing in our backyard.

The way we understand the situation we will be able to drive seven miles and pitch in our hook. After that the size of the catch depends upon the ability of the individual sportmen.

28,000 acre feet of water is a lot of moisture. And not only can we fish in it, but we'll probably be able to get in some swimming time. Some of the more adventurous may try water skiing as a change from the usual routine in this vicinity.

Better yet we will be able to have all we want to drink, water our lawns, offer to new industry, and fill up a tub in the front yard to let the kids play in, or turn the sprinkler on them in the summer.

Last summer our neighboring city of Eastland got so short on water they banned the use of air conditioners, other than the one's with pumps that re-use the water over and over.

Sometime when you have nothing to do, drive around town and look over the watershed where your water now comes from, that you drink.

As an added thought to voters here that may be out of town Tuesday, April 22, you can vote now by taking advantage of the absentee ballot, but very little time is left to do that.

J. D. Nichols at Burton-Lingo said he would be out of town on the voting day and must do that.

We know of several Rotarians who will be in Wichita Falls during the balloting, and probably many others who have not thought about missing one of their few remaining freedoms—the ballot.

Ranger Judging Team Takes 7th At Region Meet

The Ranger High School FFA Dairy Judging Team took seventh place at a regional FFA meet at Stephenville and assured themselves a place in the state competition to be held later this year at Texas A & M College. The top ten per cent of the teams entered at Stephenville were notified they would be able to compete in the state contest.

Ranger's team, competing with at least seventy others at Stephenville, was composed of Tommy Harper, Jimmy Ferguson, and Jimmy Arrendale.

Vocational Agriculture teacher Beverly Dudley stated the team made a fine showing in view of the amount of time they had put in on judging. Classroom instruction was the limit of their preparation.

Another judging team for livestock, James Falk, Fred Harper, and Rex Barnhill took 14th in their division, but will not be able to compete in the state meet.

Ranger's team in dairy judging, other than Gorman was the only one in Eastland County winning a berth for the state meet. Gorman took fourth place in the dairy division at Stephenville.

However, Strauss is reported to relish a bare-knuckle fight and today takes gleeful pleasure in the fact that some of his erstwhile Congressional enemies "don't work here any more."

They did succeed in getting him off the payroll for five months, but he came right back and has been going strong ever since. Last year he blossomed globally with a 26,000 mile round-the-world tour of foreign reclamation sites. His principal stop was at New Delhi, India, for an international conference on dams, an assignment many thought should have gone to a technical man.

Strauss is one up on other bureaucrats in that for twelve years he has lived in a Government house on Government property in Washington, something which has resulted in three separate investigations.

As one of the very few original New Dealers left in a top Government post, Strauss is widely admired by other bureaucrats in Washington for being able to survive nineteen years, Healy concludes.

"His enemies have given up on getting rid of him under Truman. However, if there is a GOP victory at the polls next November, they now think one of the first orders of business will be separating the Interior Department from its laundries and least reputable mouth."

It was reported today that Mrs. G. M. Jacoby is ill at home.

Intrastate accounting to procedure, that in his opinion leaves a void of income not reportable to any source, especially as income on the Ranger exchange.

Frost had hammered and cross examined telephone witnesses all during the trial to bring out accounting procedure breakdowns that would have let the telephone company show more income in Ranger had it not been for their procedures. He reminded the court that in Texas there is no governing body for their intrastate operation, namely long distance.

One telephone company witness testified the company had not taken into consideration for rate purposes the enormous amount of yearly depreciation on the exchange in Ranger, while giving the fair value of this property they reported some of the equipment as high as ninety per cent as good as new. Some figures quoted were either higher or lower than this.

Frost in his final argument asked that the court take all these factors into consideration when handing down their decision.

Aircraft Worker Dies In Apartment Blaze

DALLAS, April 15, UP—An apartment building fire in Dallas yesterday killed a 41-year-old aircraft worker, Benjamin F. Paschal. Paschal apparently suffocated in his upstairs bedroom by smoke from a fire on the first floor.

Officials believe Paschal dropped a lighted cigaret on an overstuffed chair downstairs before going upstairs to the bedroom to lie down.

He spoke several times, with Hugh Steiger of Dallas and Seaberry of Eastland pleading that the court pass only on the testimony and evidence that the company had lost money in Ranger the past year and would continue to do so in the coming year if they were not granted the temporary injunction allowing them higher rates temporarily, until the case could be heard on its merits before a jury.

Frost also charged in his final argument that the telephone company wanted a "moral victory" against a small "country town" and had presented their case with "sterile anxiety" to gain that victory. Attorneys for the company denied this.

At Training Union Sunday evening was another record attendance with 76 present.

A large crowd attended the evening service when Rev. Horace Crowder, a youth preacher from Howard Payne College, brought

New Jersey Bell Workers Respect Other Pickets

By United Press
The voice with the smile apparently won't be back for a while in New Jersey despite a settlement of the plate telephone strike.

CIO operators and the New Jersey Bell Telephone company signed an agreement shortly after midnight that calls for weekly wage increases ranging from $4 to nearly $4.50.

But the phone operators' return to work hinges on the nationwide strike by Western Electric workers who are fellow union members.

The striking Western Electric Workers have posted picket lines around the phone exchanges. Operators say they will observe them.

And a spokesman for the New Jersey Bell company says just how much service can be restored will depend on the way pickets are set up and how many operators cross the Western Electric lines.

A similar situation prevails in Michigan and Ohio. The operators have signed wage agreements technically pending their walkout but Western Electric pickets have kept them away from their jobs.

Another attempt to settle the eight-day-old Western Electric strike will be made today. Negotiations are scheduled in New York. Yesterday, union officials were pessimistic about an agreement being reached. They reported the company and union were "as far apart" as they were a month ago.

Lem Rushing

Brotherhood Of First Baptist Served Breakfast

The Men's Brotherhood of the First Baptist Church, under the leadership of Lem Rushing, president, served breakfast to the membership and visitors at the early morning devotional hour for the past two weeks during the revival at the church.

Lem Rushing has recently been elected to the position of president to fill the vacancy created when Allan Smith resigned due to his leaving town. Mr. Rushing has taken over in good style and has handled the activity very well, states Bill Bullock.

During the first week of the revival an average of 80 persons, per morning were present for breakfast and remained for the morning message. The second week the men served an average of 100 each morning. The morning meal and responsibility for it was assigned to the various table captains of the organization and a splendid job was done each day.

A report of the activities of this group is on its way to the State Department of Fraternity Work and recognition will be given the organization for the splendid manner in which the work was carried on and the results that were obtained. The group contributed much to the success of the revival which was in progress.

Report Of The Revival At The 1st Baptist

By Bill Bullock
Educational Director First Baptist Church

"Three weeks of revival meetings came to a close at the First Baptist Church on Sunday evening with one of the finest spirits prevailing that has ever been present in the church. Not only were the visible results good, but the results in the strengthening of the church organization was good.

There were twenty-one baptisms during the meeting and six candidates are awaiting baptism, there were eight additions by letter, and 250 rededications.

Rev. Tilson Maynard, visiting evangelist, praised highly the spirit of the church as well as the work being done by the local pastor, Rev. Ralph Perkins. He also stated that he felt sure the revival fire had been started in such a way that it would not end with the scheduled meetings, but would be felt for some time in the spirit of the people. He also had much to say about the early morning breakfast which the Men's Brotherhood of the church prepared for the membership and that he was not only going to tell his people about it, but see if they would not try such an endeavor in his church. He said that his people had believed that such a thing would not be successful.

Surely it was a revival that will not soon be forgotten in the church and will no doubt be felt by the whole community."
