Come November the Democrats are gonna be in like flint. After you Republicans and borderline Democrats have thought that over we'll tell you how we came to that conclusion.

We've had the same idea all along, but had never taken any undue pains to substantiate the idea. We've been aided in that department by Mr. A. W. Warford of the Social Science Laboratories whose business and hobby is keeping up with the latest trends of political parties in the United States.

Mr. Warford offers this as an expression of his reasoning as to why the Democrats will win in November:

First—they'll carry the solid South consisting of and the number of votes: Alabama, 11; Arkansas, 9; Florida, 8; Georgia, 12; Kentucky, 11; Louisiana, 10; Mississippi, 9; New Mexico, 4; North Carolina, 14; Oklahoma, 10; South Carolina, 8; Tennessee, 11; Texas, 23; and Virginia, 11.

Those states, if they vote Democratic in November, will give the party 150 electoral votes to start with toward the presidency.

There is a possibility, but not too probable, that one or two of these states might go Republican in November. If they should that loss could be overcome, as we shall show later.

Secondly—that if all the states vote Democratic in this coming election that did so overwhelmingly in the past, another 116 votes will go to the Democrats and make a total of 266 votes which is enough for the nomination.

The total electoral vote is 531. Those states were: Illinois, 28; Massachusetts, 15; Missouri, 15; Massachusetts, 16; Washington, 8; Colorado, 6; Rhode Island, 4; Arizona, 4; West Virginia, 8; Wisconsin, 12; and Montana, 4.

Third—the Democratic nominee is a midwesterner and will most assuredly influence votes in that region for the Democratic party.

Fourth—Michigan with 19 electoral votes, Ohio with 25; and Pennsylvania with 35, were "borderline states" in the last presidential election. And should any one of these states go Democratic in November it would offset a loss of three of the smaller states in the "solid south."

Fifth—that no mention is made nor are the four big vote states considered in the calculation. Meaning New York, California, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. Other than the latter two being borderline states and a possibility that they might go to the Democratic corner.

The farm, labor, and small vote will prove to be too much for the famous general and his followers come November.

The American people as a whole are in what is termed a prosperous period and do not desire to stick a pin in the bubble, less they start another depression. While it has been said that the "money" favors a change in the hopes that money would rise in value from its present one-half status on the dollar.

There it is. Anyone having contradictory opinions that are within the bounds of reason can have them published herein at our discretion. I will write yours truly a letter and we'll take the necessary action.

Southwestern Bell Telephone has invaded our neighboring city of Strawn with mercenary motives we have learned through the Strawn Tribune.

According to that publication that follows a 25 per cent raise granted the company some two years ago in Strawn.

The request was on the same basis as those presented here and other places—rising wages, costs, etc.

Under the newly requested rates their business phone would only be $6.00 per month—?

Slum Studies Grant Made—WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (UP)—Housing and Home Finance Thursday approved a preliminary advance of $70,500 to San Antonio for slum clearance studies. A capital grant of $1,970,360 was earmarked June 30, 1950 for San Antonio under the slum clearance program.

First '52 Bale Cotton Ginned

The first bale of 1952 cotton has been ginned at the Ranger Gin and 550 Chamber of Commerce toward for the first bale each year given to Kenneth Brown of Gorman, Route 3.

Brown brought in 1850 pounds of burr cotton that ginned out 480 pounds for the first bale of the year.

The bale was brought in and ginned Thursday.

T. D. (Tom) Lauderdale will operate the local gin again this year Mr. W. F. Creager said this morning that the plant was in first class condition and ready to go, but that he expected little cotton to be produced in this area this year. The gin turned out 596 bales last year.

Creager said that rain before the first of September and a late frost could materially improve the cotton crop outlook in this area. Should this occur he said, "We might have some cotton" this year.

Cotton was said to be selling now for about 35 cents here, and a little higher on the New York market.

Service Clubs Dine In New Splendor Now

Wives of Lions and Rotarians better keep on their toes from now on. And we'll tell you why. They meet in the small banquet room of the Gholson Hotel and some outstanding changes have been made within.

First, indirect lighting has replaced the glare of the direct type. Making the atmosphere more applicable to dining and enjoying their service club meetings.

Secondly, it has been completely redecorated with the addition of the indirect lighting. New wallpaper makes the dining room more "homey" to go with the excellent meals the Lions and Rotarians have been receiving lately.

Yes, sir, the Gholson is another local business that is keeping pace with the time and trends in making their quarters and services as attractive as possible.

Red Registration Depends On Ruling By Control Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15—Government efforts to force the Communist party to register with the Justice Department—and thus put a crimp in Red activities—now hinges on a decision of the Subversive Activities Control Board.

After 16 months of exhaustive hearings, a board panel finally has completed the taking of testimony and is drawing up a finding. If the board's verdict is that the Communist party is foreign controlled—and it is upheld by the courts—the Reds will be forced to open their membership lists to the government and individual members of the party will be subject to limitations.

The case is the first to be tried under the McCarran Internal Security Act passed in 1950. The law is aimed at curbing activities of Communist and Communist-front groups without actually outlawing the party.

Final oral arguments before the panel were completed Thursday when both government and Communist party attorneys summed up their position in day-long debate. The government claimed it has proved without a doubt that the party was still under domination of the Kremlin and that the party wants to destroy the present U. S. government system.

Lawyers for the Communist party denied that the government has proved any of the allegations against it. Furthermore, they said, if anything has been proved against the party it is death with actions prior to passage of the McCarran act therefore cannot be used to prove the present case.

Camacho Not Listed As Starter For East All-Stars Friday Nite

CHILDRESS, Aug. 15 (UP)—The West, with a 199-pound line and a 184-pound backfield, was a slight favorite Friday for the third annual Greenbelt Bowl football game in Childress Friday night.

West Coach Jack Mitchell of Texas Tech and East Coach Dixie White of Midwestern both said they would use the two-plateau system. The West team boasted 10 all-state players.

Mitchell said his starting backfield would include Charles Prewer of the Class 4-A champion Lubbock team, along with halfbacks Billy Davis of Pampa and Jerry Jeffries of Childress or Cleburne Bybee of Borger, and Pat Greer of Paducah at fullback.

Mitchell named the following starters for his offensive line: Don Jones of Lubbock and Choppy Spencer of Borger at ends, Langford Sneed of Levelland and Jerry Walker of Pampa at tackles, Stanley Coker of Midland and Mack Terry of Shamrock at guards and Billy York of Shamrock at center.

Jones was the only player expected to perform on both offense and defense.

Other defensive players named by Mitchell were Bobby Jones of Tulsa at end, Farrell Kent of Wellington and Tom Cadenhas of Lubbock at tackles, Bud Carter of Phillips and Jack Gouiding of Dumas at guards, Fred Way of Amarillo and Johnny Tatum of Lubbock backing up the line, Hoot Gibson and George Crews of Childress at half and either

Willie The Mooch Troubles Mount

FORT WORTH, Aug. 15 (UP)—Willie the Panhandler, whose success would have amazed even "Minnie the Moocher," was down on his luck Friday—faced with possible loss of his 1952 Lincoln and wondering where next winter's meals were coming from.

"I've already had to let my chauffeur go," complained Willie, a 34-year-old crippled Negro beggar from Dallas. Now he's faced with a $300 repair bill on his car and a $141 monthly payment coming up Aug. 24 on his auto.

Willie, who last name is Covens, was towed into town Wednesday by a pickup truck after his car broke down some 200 miles from Fort Worth. He was on his way to his home in Dallas after having a tough run of luck with cops in Oklahoma City and El Paso.

One of the first things he did upon arrival was to call up Police Chief R. R. Howerton and assure him he wasn't going to "operate here 'cause I know what you'll do to me."

But, Willie added, "I just got to keep working to make enough money to meet those debts."

Howerton agreed that Willie, a self-styled "panhandler who made good" may have some heavy overhead. "But he's not going to make expenses here," the chief added firmly.

Besides his heavy expense, Willie was worrying about how he was going to make enough to eat this winter. He hinted darkly that he might have to go relief this winter.

Willie, who propels his wretched frame along on a small wooden cart whenever he's not riding in his $35-a-week chauffeur, tried to line up Oklahoma City. There police became suspicious when his $35-a-week chauffeur tried to cash $55 worth of nickels and dimes into currency.

Then they learned about his new car and chauffeur. Less than three months ago, Willie admitted he owned only a 1950 Ford.

The group had two vocalists with the musical group from the ranks of the Wolters Air Force Band.

The Lions seemingly enjoyed their efforts with generous applause.

Coach Sam Aills of the Bulldogs and Coach Boone Yarbrough of the Rangers, along with Arthur Deffenbach were guests at the Lions Club Thursday.

Location POW Camps Handed Over By Reds

PANMUNJOM, Aug. 15 (UP)—The Communist advisers to the United Nations Friday have established one new prisoner of war camp, expanded two more and moved two others to different locations.

The information was contained in a letter from North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist truce delegate, to Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied delegate.

The letter was handed over at a brief meeting between liaison officers. The high-level truce negotiations are recessed until Aug. 19 when the delegates again will take up the problem of exchanging prisoners of war.

Nam said the Communists established a new prisoner of war camp at Yul. Camps 11 and 13 have been expanded, he said, while No. 12 has been moved from Sinschang to Jaedong and No. 14 from Kipsong to Anju.

Communist liaison officers also handed over maps showing the location of the new and transplanted camps.

Harrison has pressed the Reds several times for the location of various camps in which they are holding UN personnel to prevent any accidental bombing of the stockpiles by Allied warplanes.

Three AFL Locals Face Ouster For Gangster Control

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 15 (UP)—Three union locals may be ousted from the American Federation of Labor on the basis of a report by a committee which investigated the alleged infiltration of racketeers into the trade union movement.

The executive council, winding up its five-day quarterly meeting here, will hear Friday the report from the three-man committee which investigated the charges.

The racketeers allegedly have been exploiting both union members and employers.

It was reported the investigation, which lasted three months, uncovered three such cases, at least one of them in New York, and that the committee probably would urge revocation of the charters of the locals involved.

The committee, headed by AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meany, worked hand-in-hand with heads of affiliated AFL unions in its drive to root out the criminal element in labor's ranks.

Other members of the committee were David Dubinsky, president of the Ladies Garment Workers Union, and William McFetridge, head of the Building Service Employees Union.

The executive council met in closed sessions Thursday to iron out election year plans and prepare for the national AFL convention in New York next month.

Young Woman's Murder Story Proves False

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 15 (UP)—A manish-looking young woman who said she was a well-known abstract artist who had murdered a friend, turned out Friday to be a telephone operator who hadn't killed anybody.

Cathy Ruth Thompson, 18, self-confessed "murderess" who identified herself as Paul Davul, 22, was committed to Highland hospital for psychiatric tests.

Police learned that Leer Larkins, 52-year-old Detroit artist, whom Miss Thompson said she had shot in the stomach, had been seen alive in Oklahoma.

They also found out that Janet Robinson, 20, of Dallas had not driven off with the "victim's" body. Miss Robinson was working as a clerk in a drugstore at Cabot, Ark.

Miss Thompson touched off a widespread search when a h e walked into police headquarters here and said she had shot and killed Larkins in an argument over her friendship with Miss Robinson.

Subsequent checks showed that the "body" was very much alive in Oklahoma and that Miss Robinson was in Arkansas, both unaware they were principals in the "killing."

Noted Pilot Dies

Mockingbird Has Registered Hate For T.V. Program

Apparently mocking birds don't care for T. V. reception in these parts, for at least one of the species has been offering vigorous protests.

Kenneth Brown of Olden, says a mocking bird has just about ruined his antenna. Each day the bird appears on the scene, lights on the antenna arm, a small aluminum bar, and begins jumping up and down. He has moved it down about 10 inches, but continues to work. He may be trying to stop in into the ground, or may be just registering his disgust. At any rate he feels his music is better than the snowy, squaky stuff produced by the television.

New Hog Disease Gets Attention

A hog disease with symptoms like those of foot-and-mouth disease has shown up in the Midwest, says Copper's Farmer.

The disease, vesicular exanthema, has been pestering California swine men for years, continues the nationally-circulated farm magazine. It jumped the Rocky Mountains in June.

"Symptoms of 'V. E.' are so similar to foot-and-mouth that it takes lab test to tell the difference. Blisters appear on the soft tissue just above the hoof and on the pads of the foot, causing lameness. They may also appear on the snout or nostrils. Hog usually have high temperatures, which drop to normal soon after the blisters rupture. There is little or no mortality.

"No prevention cure is known at the present time for vesicular exanthema. Livestock sanitary commissioners from 9 states and officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry have conferred in Washington and made those recommendations:

"Eradication should be the ultimate goal.

"Since raw garbage factor is the spread of the disease, all garbage should be cooked by uniform methods before it is fed to livestock. Hogs or infected premises should be cleaned thoroughly and disinfected before they are restocked. Farmers who find symptoms should notify a local, state or federal veterinarian."

investigation, worked on the "Mad Butcher" case for seven years. During this period in a run-down building at the city touch at Kinney street, Thompson were found with their hands off or otherwise mutilated.

Although one man was arrested by the Tulsa police and committed to jail in 1931, Meryle and other police believe the real killer left when the hue and cry got on him.

29 Unsolved Tulsa Murders
Meryle said that since the first of the Kinney-Bas killings in 1931, there have been about 20 times unsolved town murders in various parts of the country.

"I'm convinced that most of them were done by the same man," Meryle said.

Meryle was especially interested in Miss Stevens' death, because the letters RAY were carved on her abdomen.

In 1948, Meryle said, the body of a man was found in a basket in McKee Rocks, Pa., and the word NAZI was carved on his abdomen.

"The letter 'A' was very oddly carved," Meryle said, "and I'm curious if the same letter on Miss Stevens' body matches 'up with it."

Meryle said he had written police in Oklahoma for a photograph of the carving on the waitress' abdomen.

Interested in Decapitation
He also said he was interested to learn how the girl's head had been served. He said most of the torso victims who had their heads cut off first had their jugular veins severed and the decapitation done by a sharp knife with the blade and fourth vertebra.

Meryle said that in 1942 he got a letter from the railroad YMCA in Albany, N. Y., in which the writer asked if there was a reward out for the "Mad Butcher."

"The letter was printed," Meryle said, "and all the 'A's' in it matched the letter found on the boxer victim's body."

Meryle went to Albany but the man disappeared. The ex-detective, who said he is still working on the case "because I can't get it out of my head" described the man he is looking for as "a degenerate, between 50 and 55, who smokes marijuana and has blonde hair."

Fluid Fabrics Soft Lines Fall News

BY GAILE DUGAS, NEA Woman's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The stress placed upon softer lines in fall fashions means, of course, that there's a new softness in fabrics.
To interpret the softer silhouette, designers have turned to softer fabrics. Thus, we'll see much of the chiffon weolens, either woven or knit. This includes chifon tweed, since tweed is always with us in some form, come autumn.
Similarly, tweed is developed in the fluid, readily molded fabric called tweed jersey. Such tweeds are equally at home in town or country, are readily teamed with the sophistication of black velvet or black suede.

Dress in tweed jersey (left) by Eisenberg has full, gathered skirt with slit hip pockets. There's a dolman cut for the sleeves, which are cuffed in the black velvet used for the vestee, and the roll collar with deep V neckline. Wide belt is in velvet, too.
Chifon tweed is used (right) by this same designer for a dress that buttons down the front. Dolman sleeves end just below the elbow. Soft fullness is achieved through two loose panels with slash pockets that begin at the neckline, are belted in by black suede, and fly out from the waistline.

Alias Basil Willing

By Helen McCloy

Copyright 1951 by Helen McCloy Dresser, printed through permission of the publisher, Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Jack Duggan, a private detective who had been using Basil Willing's name, is murdered and Miss Katherine Shaw dies under mysterious circumstances following a dinner party at the home of a psychiatrist, Dr. Zimmerman. In spite of the death, Dr. Zimmerman decides to resume his gathering and Basil asks Miss Charlotte Dean to attend and report on what occurs. But late that night there is a call from Perdita Lawrence who attended the dinner with her father, Stephen Lawrence. Perdita thinks her father is dying and wants Basil to come at once.

XXIII
A GATE blocked an archway between two apartment buildings on Barrow Street. Light from a street lamp showed a number over the arch itself. The gate was unlatched. Beyond Basil found a great court walled with apartment buildings on four sides. He crossed flagstones and pulled an old-fashioned bell rope. Footfalls clattered down a short stair. The door was jerked open. Perdita, eyes wild in a pale face, dressing gown awry, came flying to a door. Now they were in an attic bedroom with sloping walls and another fireplace. Perdita paused at the foot of an army cot. "There are so many more things I wanted to say to him, to ask him..." The cry was torn from her. "Now, I shan't be able to ever. I didn't realize it would be like this."

For a moment, Basil thought he was too late. Then exploring fingertips traced a thread of pulse. Perdita sobbed. "He seemed all right when we left Dr. Zimmerman's, but..." "Later. Bring me dry mustard, lukewarm water. Start a pot of strong coffee."

Basil hurried away. Perdita took a hypodermic out of his bag. After a moment Lawrence's eyelids fluttered. Basil put an arm around his shoulders and pulled him up in the bed. "You must make an effort. You must keep awake."

Lawrence looked at Basil with bleared eyes. "Why?" "For your daughter's sake." "Are you sure she wouldn't be happier—if I were gone?" "If you go like this, she'll be tortured by a sense of failure and guilt all the rest of her life."

LAWRENCE looked into Basil's eyes for what seemed a long time. Actually it must have been no more than 30 seconds. Lawrence sighed and closed his eyes. "Clever. The one thing—that would make me go on." "Of course, it takes more courage to live than die," answered Basil. "But you have courage." The eyes opened again. "What if I did this myself?" "I didn't hear a word of that," lied Basil as Perdita came back with mustard and water. Lawrence began to mutter incoherently to himself. "Should be glad... dispatch himself... further suffering... free self... prison... rack... torture. Perdita. The lost one. Lost. Wandering in Limbo. All supposed to know each other. Rosamund. Rosamund. Rose of the World. 'Belle Dame Sans Merci.' No. Not Keats. Coleridge."

"Is death that woman's mate?" Her lips were red, her looks were free. Her locks were yellow as gold. Her skin was white as leprosy. The Nightmare-Life-in-Death was suffering... free self... prison... rack... torture. Perdita. The lost one. Lost. Wandering in Limbo. All supposed to know each other. Rosamund. Rosamund. Rose of the World. 'Belle Dame Sans Merci.' No. Not Keats. Coleridge."

Horror filled Perdita's eyes. She whispered, "His mind... wandering..."

Basil looked at her keenly. "I wonder..." "After the second vomiting, Basil sent Perdita for the coffee." "Take a cup yourself," he told her. "You look ghastly." "Never mind me." "Doctor's orders. I can't have you collapsing while I'm busy with him."

She obeyed. Lawrence sipped coffee slowly. His lips became less blue. "Now you must walk," said Basil. "Walk?" Lawrence blinked drowsily. "I'll hold you up, but you must make the effort yourself." "I'm sleepy." "That is why you must walk."

LAWRENCE leaned heavily on Basil, shuffled over to the window, back to the bed. Perdita watched, eyes wide, tearless, bright.

Basil looked at her. "You're not strong enough. Physically or mentally. Better leave us." She went out. With a sigh, Lawrence sat on the edge of the bed. "You can't rest yet."

"I'm so tired." Basil slapped his face smartly. Astonishment opened Lawrence's eyes. Anger brought him to his feet. Then he smiled. "Thanks."

"Where is your bottle of codeine pills?" Basil asked him. "The bathroom." Lawrence stumbled as they crossed the bedroom. In the bathroom, he stretched a shaking hand toward a bottle on a glass shelf. The bottle crashed to the tiled floor, splintered in shreds. Lawrence stumbled again, caught the washstand to steady himself, trampling the pills.

Hollywood Film Shop

By Aline Mesby HOLLYWOOD Aug. 11 (UP)—It's the Texas oil millionaire—not the movie star—who are the big spenders in Movietown days.

The film folk stick home by their swimming pools and save their pennies to pay their shopping income taxes to Uncle Sam.

But a new breed of playboy has taken their places. The "oil-millionaires" don't have such high taxes. So they're pouring into town to keep the cash registers busy in the glittering nightclubs and expensive shops of the plaster city.

Even the custom tailors of Beverly Hills say they turn out their $400 sport jackets for Texas oilmen. Actors say they can't afford them any more.

Martin-Lewis To Highlight Fair

DALLAS, Aug. 15 (The State Fair of Texas is bracing itself for 16 days of bedlam, Oct. 4 through Oct. 19, when the comedy team of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis bring their inimitable brand of lunacy to the State Fair Auditorium.

The two zanies, who catapulted from obscurity to the top attraction in show business in three short years, promise something new in idiosyncrasy for State Fair visitors. Joining forces as a team, they threw the rule book of the window, insulted customers, ran through audiences in their underwear and in, short, created bedlam. After leaving eastern night clubs in shambles, the two madcaps descended on Hollywood and that city, accustomed to unusual and bizarre antics, is still reeling from the stunts of the twin cyclones.

When bent on entertaining an audience nothing is spared. Props are demolished, the cast is knocked from the stage, clothing is generally left in shreds, and after the customers leave, exhausted from laughter, the Vitamin Kid were apt to do a complete show in the lobby of the theater.

Mail orders for the mammoth Martin and Lewis show which will open Sept. 1.

Duck Hunt Dates Seem Reasonable

AUSTIN, Aug. 15 —The Executive Secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission returned from conferences in Washington with word that a more liberal waterfowl season is in prospect for Texas.

He said that the details will not be available until the United States Fish and Wildlife Service assembles date and makes the formal announcement.

The Executive Secretary expressed pessimism over the likelihood of having Texas zoned for waterfowl, but he foresaw compensating allowances.

The Game and Fish Commission, in making its annual recommendations, asked that Texas be zoned for waterfowl and that if zoning were not allowed, that a statewide season open on October 31. The theory then was that a season longer than the 50-day 1951 shoot was in prospect.

The Executive Secretary said he obtained the impression in Washington that any liberalizing in the waterfowl regulations would be in a longer season. He said this could be the outgrowth of increasing influence which the Council of Flyways has been conceded by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Executive Secretary, who represented the Central Flyway at the Council meeting, said the Council authorized the Washington authorities to assign a Federal coordinator to each flyway to work with the state's game administrators and technicians.

This would be a key part of an entirely new approach to the regulatory problems within the Flyways. It would provide greater sensitivity to the needs of agricultural interests along the Flyways and in the winter feeding areas, and to the rights of the hunter.

"We are heartened by the reception our plan received," he said. "We are confident that a large state's part in the waterfowl decisions will provide for better conservation and for a more equitable harvesting of the annual crop of waterfowl."

The Executive Secretary predicted that Texas hunters generally will be satisfied with the 1952 regulations, contents of which he was assured by Federal authorities and by representatives of the northern waterfowl breeding states that the waterfowl will be available in substantial numbers this fall.

Rhee Takes Oath For Another Term As Korean Leader

By Warren Franklin

SEOUL, Korea, Aug. 15 (UP)—Syngman Rhee took the oath of office Friday for another four-year term as president of South Korea and promised his countrymen to jettison seven million Koreans "bleeding" and agonizing under Red tyranny.

Rhee was inaugurated in a ceremony before the shell-scarred capitol building in Seoul, Korea's traditional seat of government. The temporary capital is now at Pusan.

Nearly 200,000 Koreans thronged the streets for the fourth anniversary of the republic's birth and Rhee's inauguration. The war raged only 30 miles north.

"Seven million of our sisters and brothers in the North are bleeding and agonizing under the Red tyranny," the 77-year-old president said, "and we cannot rest in peace until we have rescued them."

Mother Gets Kids, Ministers Actions 'Not Plausible'

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15 —A minister "went beyond his call of duty" when he removed his clothes while comforting an upset woman but she is a fit mother of her two children, a judge has decided.

Mrs. Ursula Erika Creel, 24, former German model, had not neglected her children, Superior Judge Lewis Drucker ruled, and was given their temporary custody Thursday pending outcome of a divorce suit between Mrs. Creel and her husband, Beverly, 26.

Creel charged that he found his wife nude in bed with the Rev. William Uphold Jr., former pastor of a Manhattan Beach church, who was wearing only an undershirt.

The Rev. Uphold said that he had been asked to come to the home by Mrs. Creel who was upset. After she went to bed, he said, he dozed off in another room but was awakened by her groans.

ed them."

He said "our lives are not our own" until the fate of Korea is settled.

While Rhee was speaking, soldiers on the capitol roof sat behind machineguns watching a crowd of 5,000 in the capitol enclosure. The crowd was orderly and quiet.

Rhee said the first duty is to settle the war, then "to bind up our nation's bleeding wounds and to render whole again that which the cruel foe has broken apart."

"There is scarcely a family left in all Korea without its private sorrow and its own special reason for demanding that our ruthless enemy be punished for these sins and driven back from our hallowed land."

Present at the inaugural ceremonies were Gen. and Mrs. Mark Clark, UN officials and Allied ambassadors.

Rhee is the first popularly-elected president in the young republic's history. He recently forced through the national assembly a change in the constitution that took the presidential voting from the national assembly and placed it with the people. He obtained an overwhelming majority in the Aug. 5 elections.
