

Counting sleep at night brings little relief to insomnia induced by counting calves in the daytime.

Here's a news dispatch—some when an off-the-beaten-path story which appeared in The Mineral Wells Daily Index the other day:

"A Parker County man faced two charges of perjury Wednesday, growing out of statements made to District Judge Bill Oxford about the amounts he had paid for child support to his child and divorced wife.

"The woman testified before the judge that her former husband had given four checks recently, for one dollar, three dollars, twenty dollars and eight dollars. The husband brought cancelled checks to show that he had paid his wife, in checks, $100, $300, $200 and $700, or a total of $1,300. The judge was puzzled about the 1,268 difference in the statement of the two people.

"Sheriff Fred Foreman was ordered to go to the bank and make a check of the amount drawn for the checks—and it was alleged in the perjury charge that he got them back from the bank, the $100 check to $100.00, the $300 check $300.00; the $200 check to $200.00.

"It was then that the District Judge ordered the man charged with perjury before his court.

"The mother and child live in Mineral Wells, the former husband in Weatherford. Wednesday afternoon the man was seeking to make bond in the two cases filed.

"I'll take six boxes of mothballs," he said to the pharmacist.

"You must use an awful lot of them, Mr. Johnson. Only yesterday your wife bought 10 boxes."

"Yeah," said Johnson. "Our sin is way off. We've thrown at least a thousand balls and haven't hit a moth yet!"

There's plenty of food for thought for some of the wives and mothers in our audience in the following paragraphs by Mrs. Walter Ferguson, popular female columnist whose "Women's View" appears in newspapers of the Scripps-Howard chain.

Her topic: HOW TO BE HAPPY.
And she writes:
"Maybe I'm just simple-minded," she said, "I enjoy every day routines. I love commonplace things, like walking to the grocery."

Brown Trial Is Set For April 20

WTCC BOARD OKAYS EIGHT WATER BILLS

The board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce have endorsed eight bills and a proposed constitutional amendment dealing with surface water that are before the Legislature.

The bills were prepared and introduced as a result of work of the governor's State-Wide Water Committee, headed by J. B. Thomas, Fort Worth. The WTCC worked with the governor in organization of the committee and participated in the deliberations of the committee. The WTCC directors accepted the recommendation of the organization's Water Resources Committee which voted in a Big Spring meeting recently to urge that the regional chamber support the measures.

The proposed constitutional amendment would enable the state to collect fees for the right to divert or use fresh surface water. The funds thus obtained would be used to secure not to exceed one-third of bonds or other obligations issued by cities or other political subdivisions, to finance diversion or use of public surface waters.

The amendment specifically would prohibit collection of fees for use or diversion of percolating ground waters or waters covered by riparian rights, such as private stock tanks.

The proposed fees per acre would be: for irrigation, 10 cents per acre; for hydro-electric power and other non-consumptive and non-diversionary uses, five mills per acre foot; for all diversionary rights of use other than irrigation, 10 cents per acre foot.

J. A. Littleton Rites Set For This Afternoon

Funeral services for James A. Littleton, 74-year-old former Abilene banker who died Thursday morning at the home of a son in San Angelo, will be held at the First Baptist Church in Eastland this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Rev. Millard A. Jenkins of Abilene will officiate during the rites. He will be assisted by the Rev. Melvin Rathel, pastor of the Eastland church.

Interment will be in the Eastland Cemetery with the Hammer Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Littleton was cashier of the Citizens National Bank, Abilene, prior to his retirement, and his death early Thursday was attributed to a stroke suffered last October.

For the past three months, he had been staying with a son, Bill Littleton, at San Angelo. He had previously made his home at Cross Plains.

The body was taken to Eastland Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Littleton was born Jan. 10, 1879 in Hartsville, Tenn. He came to Texas in 1922 and lived at Sipe Springs and Eastland before moving to Abilene in 1920. He was married to the former Minnie Bond in 1903, while living at Eastland.

He was a charter member of the Abilene Rotary Club, and a former secretary of the club. He was associated with the Citizens bank in Abilene for many years, before moving to Cross Plains in 1949.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Bill of San Angelo and Lowell Littleton of Orona; a daughter, Miss Aubrey Littleton of Vernon; three brothers, Lee Littleton of Eastland, J. Henry Littleton of Landers, and R. C. Littleton of Corpus Christi; three sisters, Mrs. W. A. Stephenson of Abilene, Mrs. O. J. Cotton of Plainview, and a granddaughter, Mrs. S. E. Ross of Paris, Tex.

Thanks, Says Castleberry

Feeling as I do, that my brother has done an excellent job as Commissioner of Precinct No. 1 for 6 years and three months, I intend to do the work as nearly as I can as it should be done and as he would have done it.

I appreciate this courtesy extended to me by the Commissioner's Court and the County Judge, Frank Castleberry.

The Air Force pilot was a native of Woodbury, N. J.

In addition to his widow of Ranger, Capt. Meredith also is survived by two twin sons, Davey and Rickey Meredith, also of Ranger; his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. Wilson of Ranger; his mother, Mrs. C. D. Meredith of Woodbury, N. J.; and one sister, Miss Marian Meredith, also of Woodbury, N. J.

2 Dallas Men Buy Callahan Oil Production

Jack Frost and C. T. Porter of Dallas have purchased the oil properties of F. J. Callahan south of Putnam in Callahan county, it was reported by Borman and the Dallas operators.

The purchase covered 21 shallow wells and 420 acres of leases. Other purchases included some 2,500 acres of other leases.

Porter and his wife have moved to Cisco where he will make the center of his operations. He said that plans call for the drilling of a number of wells on the Callahan County leases and the water flooding of a part of the producing area.

Borman has been an independent operator in the Eastland-Callahan County area for many years. He has announced no plans for the future of his business.

AREA TRAFFIC DEATHS SHOW SHARP DROP

Traffic deaths in the 13-county Abilene district of the State Department of Public Safety—including Eastland County—were down one-third what they were a year ago on this date, it was reported in Abilene.

Only seven persons have been killed in the district in 1953 as compared with 23 in 1952.

No wrecks were reported in Stonehall County during the month of March. At the same time, Throckmorton County's lone wreck reported in March was its first for the year.

Captain G. L. Morahan of the Abilene district says favorable weather may be partly responsible for the good record.

"Traffic is off at this time of year, too," he said.

He pointed out the fact that highway patrolmen have noticed a more cautious attitude by drivers.

"Speed is still giving us the most trouble," he said. "It's always the number one killer. There may be other factors, but speed is the primary cause of most accidents."

Taylor County led the Abilene district during March for the total number of accidents, (16). Eight persons were injured and property damage totaled $6,032.50.

The incumbent members of the Strawn City Council were re-elected to their posts on the city governing body during a recent municipal election.

Council members re-elected by Strawn voters during a light balloting were Clyde Scott and L. F. Fuston.

The Strawn council is headed by Mayor Paul Lamar Stephen. Other hold-over members are R. L. (Bob) Stagg, Perry Horton and Frank D. Phillips.

Busy Building For 7-A Title Bid—RHS Charges Eager In Spring Grid Toil

The big campaign is still several months away, but a hepped-up band of Ranger High Bulldog griders, toiling nightly every afternoon out at Bulldog Stadium, already have their stout hearts firmly set on the 1953 District 7-A football championship.

Coaches O. C. (Stubby) Warden, chief mentor, and his crafty assistant, veteran Boone Yarborough, are lashing their eager charges through a rigorous spring conditioning campaign with stiff sessions.

All the basic fundamentals, with accent on bone-crushing blocking, rock 'em and sock 'em tackling, and sharp-shooting in the passing and punting departments, are being stressed in building the squad up into a formidable grid machine for the schoolboy grid campaign next fall.

The Maroon & White offense is being sprung from Warden's tricky T and split-T backfield setups.

The 1953 Bulldog juggernaut will be built around nine returning lettermen, practically every one of them stellar performers during the heart-breaking '52 campaign, and seven returning squadmen who saw valuable duty during last fall's double-A drive.

The RHS lettermen are led by Charles Masegee, halfback, Chico Mendoza, end, and Bobby Justice, guard, all juniors and all three-year veterans.

Other lettermen are Fullback Bill Brazda, junior and two-year campaigner; Billy Browning, halfback of one year's experience and a junior student; John Boyd Rush, two year vet at center and a soph; Jimmy Wheeler, junior, and Eddie Jones, sophomore, two-year letterman at tackle; and Tommy Hinds, flashy wingman and junior who is a one-year veteran.

In addition, the 24 other promising prospects who're toiling during the daily drills are showing improvement and promise to bolster Bulldog strength next fall. Many of the eager newcomers to the Maroon & White varsity ranks are veterans of junior high grid combat under Coach Warden's tutelage.

The current spring drill period will be climaxed with an intra-squad contest to be unveiled at Bulldog Stadium on Friday night, April 24, at 8 p. m.

Atom Scientist Now Developing Bumpless Bump

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Chancellor Arthur H. Compton of Washington University, who is better known as an atomic physicist, has applied his talent to developing a bumpless bump.

The physicist, who helped develop America's first atom bomb, turned his efforts to designing a "smooth" bump when student drivers complained that bumps in campus roads—placed there to retard speeders—caused too much of a jolt even at slow speeds.

Compton went to work at his drawing board and came up with a bump which will still slow down speeders while being easier on moderate drivers.

The bumps will still be seven inches high but will be graded more smoothly and placed in pairs.

Barn Planning Cuts Work, Ups Profit

Farmers are streamlining their production methods to combat high costs and labor scarcity, according to a review of agricultural information. The trend towards increased efficiency is affecting methods used in all types of farming, but perhaps most strikingly illustrated by the manner in which dairy farmers can make more money by planning operations so that they cut down on work in providing the cow with room and board. This is being accomplished in both the traditional stall barn and the relatively newer loose-housing systems. Full data for such labor-saving arrangements has just been compiled and published by the Agricultural Extension Department of the Great Lakes Steel Corporation's Stran-Steel Division, Detroit, Mich. The new handbooks are available to qualified farmers through Quonset dealers.

Murder she yelled

By Joseph Sheltz

WHEN Kitty Lane started down the train steps, Eddie Fields let out a loud wolf whistle. "Just giving her a break," he explained. "She don't get much of that any more."

I stepped out of the station wagon, walked across the platform and took the two big suitcases out of her hands.

"Such service," Kitty Lane said. "I never in my wildest dreams imagined—"

"Why not? I said, "You know we all love you."

"Sure," said Eddie Fields, rolling his little knob of a body out of the car. "I was so lonesome while you were away, I got out your picture every night and cried on it, when my wife wasn't looking."

"Cut it out and give me a cigarette," said Kitty.

Eddie fumbled a crumpled pack out of his pocket.

Kitty slid into the front seat while I slung her iridescent aluminum luggage in the back of the station wagon. "Feels like you did a bit of shopping," I said.

"Had to, Dan," she said. "I've been wearing the same dresses in so many of our shows, the guests were starting to kick. Even the motes were getting bored."

"Hey, I'm supposed to make the crack," Eddie rumbled, getting in beside her. "You're the singer—remember? Trying to hog the act?"

"I wouldn't say that word hog, if I were you," said Kitty. "It makes people think of ham."

Eddie's thin lips smashed together. "Sharper and sharper. I'll be scared to step on the stage with her."

I closed the back door and walked around to the front. What a load this station wagon had. Talent! Eddie Fields, the m.c. of High Hill Lodge, and Kitty Lane, the singer of sad songs, and me, the razzle-dazzle athletic director. This was what our vacation booklet was talking about when they said "star-studded social staff." It was a rash thing, putting us all in the same car. Just one skid on the mountain highway, and what would High Hill Lodge have left? Grass.

"You see, we let her go to New York," Eddie said. "Four days on Fifth Avenue, and she's got her nose so high, she has to wipe it through an oxygen mask."

"Yeah," said Kitty, blowing out a long drift of smoke. "I needed that vacation, bud. I could have used a lot more than four days in New York."

"I see—you don't like it at High Hill," said Eddie. "Mountain resort—hick stuff. You want lights, Broadway—all that crazy scramble, the noise, the rat race." He paused. "So do I."

Kitty wreathed the windshield with smoke as I drove up the incline out of the station, and what the only one that likes it here is Dan Morrison," Eddie said. "That right, Morrison?"

"Maybe," I said.

"See that, Kitty? Don't you wish you were young and innocent like Dan Morrison?"

I DROVE through East Stroudsburg, past the tidy frame houses that looked like a row of parsonages, past the little stores and the few small factories.

"Take in any shows in New York?" Eddie Fields asked.

"South Pacific," she said. "And don't start choking—it isn't as hard as you think. If you just want a single, that is." She was friends again, now that they were talking shop. "I also went to the Paramount and took in the Frank Raleigh show. My old partner."

"Your old—? Are you kidding?"

"Nup—Frank's my old partner, all right. Raleigh and Lane, 'Songs as You Like Them.' Played most

"I almost fell over this pile of leaves and dirt—and a hand sticking out of it."

of Philly's spots before we broke up."

"Why the break-up?"

"Hah, hah." Her little laugh had rough edges. "Just because Frank's rich brother obligingly died and left him fifteen thousand bucks."

"I see," Eddie said.

"He took off like a bird," Kitty said. "Went to New York and hired the Bart Jamison firm to beat the gods for him. It blew most of his wad, but zingo—it got him top bookings."

I made a sharp right turn off Main Street and started up the concrete highway into the mountains. Kitty kept talking:

"You can sing at small clubs till you're 60, you can have a voice like seven angels, and nobody'll hear about you—nobody'll matter—unless you get yourself some build-up. You've got to get everybody talking about you, to crack all the columns. Who arranges all that?"

"Somebody like the Bart Jamison outfit. Pay them enough and they can make you sound like the biggest thing to hit town since King Kong."

"I've already told Mr. Kemmer," she fluttered. "He's out there now. I've been waiting for you for ages."

"Where did you say this body was?"

"Out there. In the woods." She pointed a shaky finger up the road past the women's cottages.

"Excuse us, Kitty," I said. Eddie I was bringing in a new male guest. Off to the left was the road leading to the men's cottages, which formed a curve around the edge of the lake. On the right was the road leading to women's country, a row of 10 pastel-colored cottages which we tagged Chicken Alley.

Kitty's room was in Cottage No. 9. I started to make a right turn, but she caught my arm. "Let me off at the office. I want to talk to Al."

I drove across the cinder turnaround, I passed the recreation hall and stopped 20 yards away at

"It was all on account of one of those volives," Midge said, getting breathless again. "I said I'd go for a walk with him, and we went up the road here, and he started getting fresh, and he wouldn't stop, and I ran away into the woods—and I ran far in so he wouldn't find me, and I almost fell over this pile of leaves and dirt—and a hand sticking out of it!"

A MODEL of the USS Nautilus, nuclear powered submarine, on display at the Electric Boat Company, New London, Conn.

There speaks a happy woman. She isn't simple minded, but wise. And lucky too, because she evidently belongs to that small group of human beings who are predisposed towards happiness.

A good many of us enjoy being miserable. You can't avoid that conclusion as you look at people and listen to them talk. What a recital of petty woes can be heard! What grim long faces we carry around with us. And how easy it is to fall into the habit of feeling like we look and talk.

A woman who has lost her husband is often shocked at the number of wives she meets who never seem glad they can hear footsteps coming in the door at evening. Some who complain about traffic jams at 4:30 also appear to forget that a beloved figure is waiting to be picked up on a certain street corner. They cannot imagine how empty life will be when that chauffeur-chore is over for good. Or how sad the days are when you know that you'll eat dinner alone. Something ought to be done to shake smug women out of their complacency.

The ones who have husbands and children, good health, good neighbors and friends are truly fortunate, although some of them do not seem to know it.

The great blessings of life are usually unappreciated until we have lost them. And the dear, simple things are never counted as blessings at all. Who remembers to give thanks for clean sheets, the smell of breakfast, bacon or the dent in the pillow beside her own on the unmade bed?

The person who can say at the end of a normal, busy day, "I'd like to live it over again," is making the best prayer.

Pop: "Where is that son of yours?"
Mom: "He's A. W. O. L."
Pop: "Whaddysya mean - AWOL?"
Mom: "After women or liquor."

DEVOR POINTERS

for home painters

What to do with paint leftovers—don't throw away. If full of lumps, strain through old nylon or silk stocking before using again.

How to apply varnish or enamel quickly—use a roller coater and finish by smoothing lightly with tip of brush.

Easy way to wipe up paint spatter—slip a pair of old socks over your shoes and "skate-up" paint drops on floor.

Tip for painting chairs and tables—Drive a nail part way into each leg-end. This prevents smearing the floor.

How to keep can clean while painting—Drive several nail holes into lip of can, so paint flows back when brush is wiped on can edge.

For painting masonry surfaces—use a nylon brush for longer wear. Better ask for a "Super-kleen" Nylon brush.

If paint runs down brush handle when painting ceiling, you're dipping brush too deep. Also don't "press" too hard—use tips of bristle.

How to keep window screens from staining house—paint copper or galvanized screens with Devor Zinc Dust Paint. One coat prevents staining for years.
