Setting the Pace in Automotive Luxury

Know-how of the American automobile industry, world's most enterprising, now makes the features of custom cars, once only possible for royalty, available to nearly all American families. This new 8-passenger Packard custom limousine, with the largest wheelbase in the industry, 149 inches, is now making its appearance. It has all the innovations for easier, more enjoyable motoring and these features can be had in Packard Clippers, large cars at medium prices, or the standard luxury Packards, new choice in fine automobiles. Return to production of custom cars is part of the revitalized program. Once the major quality car producer, Packard is now building two complete lines. Prices range from just above the least expensive cars to custom models like the limousine being admired above by Rhonda Sherwood and Betty Thomas.

The Ohio legislature in 1851 gave city councils the right to regulate the speed of a railroad locomotive through their cities, providing that the rate required be not less than four miles per hour.

However, the percentage of employed was not so high as it soared in three World War II years. Employment last year was only slightly above 1951, but was considerably over the 1950 figures.

The bureau estimated the monthly average of civilian employment in 1952 at 61,291,000, which was 97.3 per cent of the estimated labor force.

The 1952 employment average compared with average monthly employment of 61,905,000 in 1951 97 per cent of the labor force, and with 59,957,000 in 1950, or 95 per cent of the labor force.

Employment reached its peak in the United States in 1944, when 98.8 per cent of a labor force of 64,630,000 were at work.

The Old and the New Go Together

Creating artistic table theatricals can be a gay hobby these days, for it is no longer considered "proper" to have everything in one single period of design or style. The old and the new go together... beautifully, if you but bear in mind that you must have harmony in color and balance. Here charm has been achieved by accompanying an antique plate with a modern glass on a crisp, white organza place mat. Old world violets in purple and white repose gracefully on a sleek leaf-green modern dish. With it, the perfect choice in silver... ENCHANTMENT (1881) (R) Rogers (R.) correct in size, and blending the curves and scrolls of the old masters into the bold, simplicity of present-day artistry. Thus, the old joins the new in a glorious tableau.

Congressman
17th District

In the absence of Congressman Burleson, who is now back home, the column for this week is being written by his office staff.

After the Congressman's visits with his mother in Anson, he will cover as much of his district as possible. He said before leaving that he expects to at least visit in all the County Seats of his twelve-county district, and in as many of the other towns and communities as time will permit.

The Congress recessed on April 2nd until Monday, the 13th. According to those who set the order of business, there will not be very much activity during the week of the 13th, although there is a possibility that the Appropriations Bill for the Interior Department will come up for consideration during the latter part of the week. It is Mr. Burleson's expectation to remain back home during this week and return about the 18th of April.

Public Urged To Keep Hands Off Wildlife

The Executive Secretary of the Texas Game and Fish Commission asked the populace to "keep their distance" during the Animal Kingdom's rearing season.

He said Texans can contribute mightily to the wildlife family by not trying to make pets of wild creatures or by trying to domesticate eggs of any kind.

"The sad part of the mistakes people make in molesting the birds and beasts," said the Executive Secretary, "is that they think they are helping out. Well, there are rare cases when they can. I repeat these cases are very rare.

"Any baby animal or bird deserves a chance to be restored to its natural protectors, if it actually does get lost or does seem to need help. People see stray creatures, such as a fawn. Maybe they are overwhelmed by an irresistible impulse to 'save' the fawn. Generally if left alone, the animal will be found by its mother. Of course there are extraordinary instances children, took part in the fun. White House gardeners report that the lawns will recover from the eggshell barrage, and state that the grounds will be mowed, improved for their egg shampoo. Few casualties were reported, and kids "missing in action" were quickly returned to their anxious parents by the White House police force.

It was the first Egg Roll in 12 years. The practice was discontinued during the war years, and the period of White House renovation. The event was so successful, it will likely be brought back again next year by popular demand.

Visitors in Washington this week from the 17th District include Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Shell, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Cloninger, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Shell, Mr. and Mrs. Bedford Butler, all of Gorman, and Mr. E. E. Blackwell of Ranger. These folks were in town attending meetings of the National Peanut Council. Mr. Johnny Ammons of Roby and Mr. J. E. Matthews also were most welcome guests.

Texas' lovely representative in the pageant was Miss Betty Ann Kilday, eighteen-year-old daughter of Congressman and Mrs. Paul J. Kilday of San Antonio.

Visitors report that the affair was just perfect—except for one small detail. It seems that in scheduling the festivities, the planners completely overlooked Mother Nature and her "mind of her own." The unprecedented warm and wet weather brought forth the blooms a full two weeks before they were expected, and little was left of their loveliness by the time of the festival.

The younger generation, too, had "their day" in the Nation's Capitol last week. On Easter Monday, President Eisenhower revived an old and honored Washington custom and threw open the gates of the White House for an "egg roll."

The "ticket of admission" was a basket of colored eggs, and no adult was admitted unless accompanied by a youngster. Some 19,000 guests responded to the President's invitation to roll eggs on his lawn, and both he and the First Lady, as well as their small grand-where the mother deer is killed by a car, or some such, where a fawn may be saved. But even then if they do survive and are raised as pets, they usually become a nuisance and sometimes harmful. Furthermore, it is unlawful to pick up fawns." The Executive Secretary said taking or handling or even "looking at" wild bird eggs may be disastrous. Some birds, such as wild turkey, will not return to a nest which has even been approached by humans. He added that although eggs placed under a domestic bird do hatch, the incident merely circumvents nature since anything hatching under such circumstances invariably is lost to the cause of wildlife.

Murder she yelled

By Joseph Shellit

THE STORY: Police are probing the gangster murder of an unidentified man found near High Hill, a summer resort, Midge Burleson, a gun-theft fanatic, was later upon seeing a newspaper photo of the dead man, reminded Eddie Fields, an entertainer, that they once saw the man when he was alive.

EDDIE blinked. He took the newspaper out of Midge's hands. He sat down and spread the paper on his knees and stared down at the photo of the dead man. He blew out softly. "It does look like him."

"It's he, Eddie, I'm sure of it," Midge said.

"Funny I didn't notice it before. But you can't tell for sure from this fuzzy picture."

"What's this all about?" I butted in. Midge's little nose flipped disdain at me. Eddie squinted at the picture, shaking his head enthusiastically.

"We were out canoeing," he said. "When was it, Midge?—about six, seven days ago. The kid was feeling blue!"

"I was not feeling blue!" Midge blazed at him.

"She was not feeling blue," Eddie said. "She wanted to canoe with Eddie. We went clear across, around the island, right to the other side of the lake. There's a guy sitting there, fishing. 'Say,' he says, 'like to make some fast dough?' 'Sure,' I say. 'How?' 'Come on up here and I'll tell you about it,' he says, winking like he's joking. Then he bends over to put down the fishing rod and I see he's got a gun under his arm. I holler out, 'I got to take the lady home—be right back,' and we paddle out of there, thinking we're going to hear fireworks any minute. Nothing happens. But this little girl—she wasn't scared at all."

"I certainly wasn't—I don't scare that easily. I mean, except if there's a body—I feel a little funny about a body. I didn't go near enough to see the face. But this is the same man—I'm sure of it. Let's go see—"

"Nope," said Eddie. "I don't mean look at the body. I mean the police'll have a clearer photo and—"

EDDIE rolled up the paper and stuck it under her arm. "I should get mixed up in this—clean-cut boy like me?"

"What're you acting so coy about?" I said. "Go tell the cops what you know—maybe it'll help them find this guy's friends and identify him."

"Me tell them?" Eddie slapped his hands against his chest. "Me? Look—don't you know what's happened? The guy's been bumped off. Buried. You want me to go tell the cops where to hunt for his friends, the friends that bumped him off? You want me to get my name in the papers so his friends can come visit little Eddie?"

"The cops'll keep your name confidential."

"Yeh? You think the reporters wouldn't dig it out of them? Look"—he stood up and put his hands on my shoulders—"you tell the cops. You're a bachelor—you got no worries. I got a wife to support. I couldn't do it so good with a hole in my head."

"Okay, Midge," I said. "Let's take a ride down to Stroudsburg." She looked up at me.

"Make sure you keep my name out of it," Eddie said. "You hear?" "I hear," I said. "All right, Midge."

She stood up, her gray-green eyes working, trying to figure out whether to be suspicious or enthusiastic. She couldn't just be neutral, take things as they came. Everything had to be wonderfully right or dreadfully wrong.

SGT. FRANKLIN HEALEY, sitting behind his desk at the State Police sub-station in Stroudsburg, held up a glossy photograph.

"That's the man," Midge said promptly.

"Have a seat," he said. Sergeant Healey was a wiry, tightly knit chap, smaller than usual cop proportions, but thick-cheeked and thick-wristed. He also had a dimple. I suppose there must be other cops with dimples, but I'd never met one before.

Midge told him the story. She told it pretty much as Eddie had told it, though she left him out of it. Healey asked her a little about herself. Where did she live? Midge gave an address in Merion, Philadelphia's swankiest suburb. How old? Midge said 23, and blushed for some obscure reason.

"I've been wondering about something," I said. "The place across the lake where Miss Burnett saw this man was apparently part of the land belonging to G. O. Griscomb. Well, yesterday I happened to be walking up the dirt road in back of our place, not far from where you later found the body, and I came across Griscomb wandering around. Interesting coincidence, isn't it?"

Healey smiled sympathetically. "I happen to know Mr. Griscomb. Everybody around here does. He comes from an old family in this section—I understand one of his ancestors helped build the original fort here in Stroudsburg, back somewhere around 1776. Anyway, what I'm getting at is that Mr. Griscomb isn't the kind of a guy who pals around with boys in the racket."

"The dead man was a racketeer?"

"Small-time. We just got the identification a little while ago. He goes—went—under the name of Rocky Silone. Four arrests in New York—two for bookmaking, one for peddling untaxed liquor, one for stealing a car. You see what I mean. It's hard to picture Mr. Griscomb tied up with a bird like that."

"The young lady saw him on Griscomb's land."

"I'm not saying she didn't. But that doesn't mean the guy couldn't have just moseyed into the place to do some fishing."

Mail Box Week Be Observed In Rural Sections

The Post Office Department has designated the week ending April 18, 1953 as "Rural Mail Box Improvement Week."

Boxes which are not properly erected or in good serviceable condition retard the delivery of mail and expose it to damage from the weather.

It is the desire of the department to encourage patrons of the rural delivery service to provide suitable mail receptacles and to erect them so they will be readily accessible to the carrier and present a neat appearance.

It is especially desirable that the boxes be maintained in a condition that will assure proper protection to the mail placed therein, that the names of box owners be inscribed on the side of the boxes visible to the carrier as he approaches them, and that the boxes and their supports be kept painted. Few improvements will add more to the appearance of a rural home than a properly erected, neat appearing mail box at the front.

A simple and practical support for the purpose consists of a board erected on posts firmly planted with the height of the shelf upon which the boxes are

CHURCH NEWS

WSCS Met On Tuesday Morning

The W.S.C.S. of the First Methodist Church met at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 14, for the fifth session of the mission study on Africa. Mrs. Arthur Deffebach conducted a short business session, after which Mrs. C. E. May Sr. presented the main program, the main idea of which was "The Spirit of Humility Must Prevail with Missionaries and Christian Workers in Africa, if We are to Gain the Confidence and Good Will of the Natives."

Mrs. A. J. Ratliff, who was the delegate from the Ranger society, gave her report of the annual conference of WSCS held recently in Olney. The main theme was, "To Serve the Present Age."

Mrs. Garland Lavender discussed the conflict that exists between the white and black races in the Belgian Congo—what their contention is in the sunlight of the world, as at present. She read a poem entitled, "In Christ there is No East or West."

Mrs. Stanley McAnelly gave a talk on, "The Man-Mau Rites in Their Government in Kenya." Mrs. Vernon Deffebach gave the devotional on humility.

It was announced that next Tuesday will be the sixth and last session of the mission study on Africa. The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Arthur Deffebach.

Big Revival Continues At Church of God

A revival meeting now in progress at the Ranger Church of God, Strawn Road, and will continue indefinitely, according to Rev. R. A. Ratchford, pastor.

The minister reports the interest in the revival campaign is showing a notable gain and the attendance is increasing.

The inspiring messages are being brought by Rev. R. P. Danley of Indiana. Rev. Danley and his family are also talented musicians and singers, adding much to the meetings which are held nightly at 7:30 p.m.

Barney Smith is director of the Church of God choir which also is heard each evening.

Bandits Take Over Carrousel In New Jersey

"There's one merry-go-round in the country that offers a change of pace this year.

"Rodeo" is the name they've given the new ride at Palisades Amusement Park in New Jersey. Basically it is the carrousel, which hasn't changed much through the ages, but here is a sort of shooting gallery attached.

"Instead of reaching out for the old-fashioned brass ring," explained Irving Rosenthal, owner of the park, "the children are armed with toy electric-eye pistols with which to shoot at bandit figures in the center of the carrousel. When a hit is scored, a bell rings."
