44TH YEAR RANGER, TEXAS, THURSDAY, APRIL 30, 1953 PRICE FIVE CENTS No. 133

Walter Winchell points out that the 1768 Encyclopedia Britannica has 4 sentences on the atom and 5 pages on love. The current Britannica has 9 pages on the atom and nothing on love at all!

Well, the really big phase there'll probably be an appeal and other procedure to come—of the dramatic trial of Donald Hawkins Brown for the brutal New Year's Eve slaying of Ranger's Edwin Joseph Campbell is over. One man's opinion, but we heartily agree with the grim-faced jurors in their verdict returned in big D late Wednesday afternoon. We like this means of acknowledging the personal messages and phone calls regarding The Times' thorough coverage of this bizarre news event. We have done our best to keep our readers as fully informed as possible. A reminder to all of you guys in this audience: "Mother's Day" is just around the corner—Sunday, May 10. Let's not forget. Heavy comes from a family of writers. He writes songs nobody will sing, his sister writes stories nobody will read, and his brother writes checks that nobody will cash. Quoting Congressman Omar Burleson as appeared in the Breckenridge American—"I have a great deal of confidence in President Eisenhower and the Democrats." . . . Tain't good! A news note in our mail today from the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington predicts that for a few months they'll get for the next few months. It said that grocery store price tags will remain "close to the current level" through mid-summer at least. Food prices have been declining slowly since last summer—until very recently when they began to creep back upward.

Spring is here— For love we hunger— The young grow old! The old grow younger!

Arthur Jimenez, 12-year-old lad who lives at 507 Cypress Street, invalidated our sanctum Wednesday to show us a mighty odd-shaped hen's egg. It was long and narrow—like a peanut, only much larger. Arthur says the unusual egg was dropped by a Rhode Island red hen—his own bird, incidentally. The egg was 2 1/2 inches long. Arthur says the family has a flock of 29 chickens. He's a student at Hodges Oak Park School, P. S.—He didn't eat the egg. . . . When a woman has everything to gain and nothing to lose, she's probably making a bet with her husband. . . . Was thumbing through this copy of The Times a few minutes before you picked it up and noticed a couple of big "Ward Week" ads inside. Plenty of leaf values on the two pages. Look inside—and see for yourself. . . . Know how to handle your car in case of a blow-out? "Hang onto the wheel and keep your head!" is the first advice of expert drivers. If it's a front tire, the car will swerve toward the side of the blow-out. If it's a rear tire, the back end will start to sway from side to side. Concentrate on keeping the car going straight. Don't take your foot off the accelerator. On the contrary, increase your speed slightly. That will pull you out of the swerve. When you're certain you have the car under control, apply brakes lightly. . . . We'd like to remind you out-of-town folks to come to friendly Ranger Saturday to shop and save. Yes, and—maybe, if you're lucky—to share in the five awards totaling 100 crisp new "Ranger Bucks" which will be given Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. The "Ranger Bucks" are really worth a buck at merchants cooperating in the weekly Trades Day drawing.

"My wife is a regular buck worm." "You mean book worm." "No, buck worm. She's always saying—Hand over another buck worm."

New Administration Will Take Over Friday

Ranger's new city administration—headed by Mayor-elect Dr. Calvin W. Harris—will take over the reins of municipal government here Friday night following formal installation ceremonies at the City Hall, Lester Crossley, city manager, said this morning.

The swearing-in ritual is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock. Prior to the installation rites, Rev. Garland Lavender, pastor of First Methodist Church, will lead the group in prayer.

After Mayor-elect Harris has been administered the oath of office, he will swear in four new commissioners. The new mayor and commissioners were chosen by Ranger voters during the recent city election here on April 7.

Mayor-elect Harris, who succeeds present Mayor Price Crawley as city head, was unopposed in the municipal balloting. Crawley was not a candidate for re-election due to a recent appointment by Gov. Allan Shivers to the board of directors of a state college.

Ranger's new commissioners who'll be sworn in Friday night: L. T. (Len) Kushing, police and fire commissioner. He succeeds Herbert Angus who was not a candidate for re-election. Lee Cantrell, water commissioner.

Dr. Kuykendall was in the house of delegates and served on the Civil Defense committee and the reference committee. Mrs. Kuykendall was chairman of revisions and served on the State Executive Board and the nomination committee.

Dr. George Turner, of El Paso, was installed as president and Dr. F. J. L. Blasigianis, of Wharton, was selected as president-elect, and will succeed Dr. Turner at the May 1 convention in San Antonio. Mrs. E. W. Coyle was installed as president of the Auxiliary.

Spot Check Made This Week—

Food Prices Are Climbing Again After Short Drop

After a steady—and very welcome—decline for eight months, retail food prices in the Eastland County area have started back upward.

A check this week of 28 staple grocery items showed that their total cost has gone up 79 cents in the last month, reaching $12.28.

It was the first monthly increase since September, when the 28 items started a gradual downward trend. During the first part of the year, the total had fallen below pre-Korean prices.

Many of the staple items advanced slightly with the end of price controls. In the last month, 18 of the 28 items went up; five were down and five remained unchanged.

Rev. F. Terrell, Episcopal minister of Terrell, officiated during the final rites, and interment was in the Merriman Cemetery.

Mr. Higdon's body arrived in Ranger at 11:38 a.m. today from McKinney where he passed away early Wednesday morning in the Veterans' Hospital.

Ex-Bus Driver Judged Guilty Of Brutal Gun-Torch Slaying Of Joe Campbell, Ex-Rangerite

After less than two hours of deliberation, a jury in Judge Henry King's Criminal District Court in Dallas late Wednesday afternoon voted the death penalty for Donald Hawkins Brown, 24-year-old ex-Dallas bus driver, who was judged guilty of the brutal gun-torch slaying of Edwin Joseph Campbell, 25-year-old Dallas finance company collector and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Campbell of Ranger.

Young Campbell was severely beaten, shot four times in the head with a .25-caliber revolver, his body saturated with gasoline and set afire in a flaming automobile, owned by the finance company, in a South Dallas residential area on New Year's Eve about 10 p.m.

The jury's verdict at 4:37 p.m. yesterday climaxed nine tense, suspense-laden days of courtroom drama. Selection of the 12-man jury to hear the bizarre murder trial took six days during which prosecution and defense counsels examined more than 200 prospective veniremen. Testimony got under way Monday morning and was wound up yesterday.

Case of the state was based on circumstantial evidence and testimony, and the final jury verdict marked the first time in years that a death penalty had been voted in Dallas entirely on circumstantial evidence.

Jurors, led by Foreman L. C. Walker, remained close-mouthed about their fallings-out.

Defense Attorney Harvey Lindsay indicated in Dallas early this morning that an appeal will be filed shortly.

Climax of the sensational slaying trial came before a packed courtroom Wednesday afternoon.

Brown was calm when Judge Henry King read aloud the word "death." His slim young wife, red-eyed after the ordeal of a nine-day trial, clutched at Brown's lip and buried her face in his coat.

"Oh, no," she whispered. Brown's mother, Mrs. O. E. Park, reached across Mrs. Brown toward her son.

The bedlam broke loose in the courtroom.

Brown's wife and mother began to scream as Brown, on a signal from Deputy Sheriff John Massey and Jeff Budjenska, arose to go downstairs with the officer to the entrance of the Dallas County jail.

The women begged him and then refused to let go. Relatives and deputies tried to pry them loose.

"My baby—they're going to kill my baby," his mother wailed. Mrs. Brown roared wordlessly. Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Elbert Dutton, staggered her away, but continued to scream.

Deputies cleared a path for Brown and he went downstairs under guard.

After a moment at the jail desk, he walked down the corridor to the elevator, still guarded although he was well inside the jail doors.

"How do you feel, Don't?" he was asked.

"All right," he said firmly. "Then the elevator door closed behind him."

Outside the jail, Mrs. Brown was still crying for her mother to turn her loose, so she could go to her husband.

"Can't you understand?" she demanded of her mother.

Brown's wife and mother, each surrounded by relatives who sought to quiet them, caught up with each other at the corner of Main and Bevard and wept with (Continued On Page 1)

RANGER FFA TEAM TO VIE IN STATE MEET

The State F.F.A. Judging Contests will be held at Texas A&M College on Saturday, May 2. According to Henry Ross, Professor of Agricultural Education at A&M and Chairman of the State Contests, the Ranger FFA Chapter of Ranger High School has one team entered in the State Contests, under B. S. Busley, Jr., the chapter advisor and vocational agriculture instructor.

Judging will be done in five separate contests, Ross said. The Livestock Judging Contest, under the supervision of Dr. G. L. Robertson, will be held at the Beef Cattle Center. The Meats Judging Contest, under the supervision of Professor J. G. Moffitt, will be held at the Meats Lab in the A&I Building. The Poultry and Egg Judging Contest, under the supervision of Professor E. D. Parnell, will be held at the Poultry Center. The Dairy Products Judging Contest, under the supervision of Dr. A. V. Moore, will be held in the A&M College Creamery. The Dairy Judging Contest, under the supervision of Professor A. L. Darnell, will be held at the Dairy Center.

Only the top judging teams over the state will take part in these contests, Ross added. Eight or nine teams from each of the ten areas over the state will judge in each of the contests. This makes a total of 80 or 90 teams in all the contests except meats and there will be only 40 teams in the contest, making a grand total of 275 to 280 teams of over 1125 contestants, Ross reported.

Results will be announced in a general assembly in Guion Hall on the campus of A&M at 5 p.m. May 2. A student talent show will be held at 1 p.m. in Guion Hall prior to the results announcements, Ross said.

Dr. M. T. Harrington, president of Texas A&M college, will be host at a coffee in the Memorial Student Center for the 250 FFA chapter advisors whose students will take part in the contest. This coffee will be given at 9:30 a.m. on May 2 and all advisors are invited to attend.

First place winners in meat, livestock and poultry and eggs will attend the national judging contest in Kansas City at the Kansas City Royal in October. First place winners in dairy cattle and dairy products will attend the national judging contest in Waterloo, Iowa, this week.

The members of the Ranger Dairy Cattle team are Roy Barnett, Alonzo Stevens and Jimmy Long.

Try-Me Cafe In Olden Destroyed By Fire Today

The Tri-Me Cafe in Olden, which was operated by Mrs. Doris Cooper and her mother, Mrs. C. L. Langston, was totally destroyed by fire at 2:15 a.m. this morning. The Langston home, adjoining the cafe was also destroyed.

Origin of the fire is unknown. The cafe was erected during oil boom days by E. J. Allen and it was used as a service station. However, it was made into a cafe some 30 years ago. Mr. Langston has owned the property for about eight years.

Eastland and Ranger fire departments answered the call, and while they were hampered because of the lack of water, they rendered very effective service, according to Mr. Langston.

The property, which was almost a total loss, was partially covered by insurance.

HOMICIDE CAPT. WILL FRITZ of the Dallas Police Department and District Attorney Henry Wade built the strong circumstantial evidence case which convinced a Criminal Court jury Wednesday that Donald Hawkins Brown, 24-year-old former Dallas bus driver, was guilty of the brutal gun-torch murder of Joe Campbell, Dallas finance collector and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Campbell of Ranger. Here Capt. Fritz, at left, and DA Wade examine their No. 1 exhibit of evidence—a blood-stained pair of Brown's trousers. Dist. Atty. Henry Wade and Assistants James K. Allen and Ray Stokes brought into court twenty-one witnesses whose testimony pointed to Brown as the killer. But no one said he saw the murder. And the gun that killed Campbell, a .25-caliber automatic pistol, never was found.

These were the strands of evidence that the prosecution wove into a tight fabric:

1. The fact that Brown was behind in his car payments to the Pacific Finance Company on Dec. 31, 1952, the day of the murder.

2. The undisputed evidence of an eye-witness who saw the two men together that afternoon in Campbell's car in front of Brown's apartment at 3302 Eilhu.

3. Testimony by Brown's young sister-in-law and a friend that Campbell had come by looking for Brown that afternoon, before the men were seen together.

4. Testimony by Pacific Finance Company officials that Campbell had been asked on Dec. 31 to see Brown about his delinquent payments.

5. The fact that Brown and his family fled Dallas the day after Campbell's body was found in his flaming gasoline-soaked automobile on Gunter Street, a block and a half from Brown's apartment.

6. Testimony by Pacific Finance Company officials that Campbell had been shot three times in the head. The Browns took an apartment in Fort Worth under an assumed name.

7. A pair of bloodstained trousers belonging to Brown, which detectives found in the attic of the Eilhu Street apartment building.

8. A half-charred wallet similar to one Campbell had owned which was found in the back yard of the Fort Worth apartment rented by the Browns.

9. A caked blood pool in the driveway of the Eilhu Street garage found by detectives. Analysis by Dr. Morton F. Mason at Parkland Hospital, showed that the blood was Type O, so was the blood that stained Brown's trousers.

10. An empty red-leather Charge-Plate case found by detectives under a pile of clothes in the bathroom of the Eilhu Street house. Analysis by Dr. Mason brought out the imprint of Campbell's name and address on the inside of the case.

11. Campbell's briefcase, full of Pacific Finance account records, found by a detective on the rafters of the Eilhu Street garage. More Pacific Finance records, which also were brought into evidence, were found under the garage's plank floor, a detective testified.

12. The undisputed fact that Brown had bought a .25-caliber pistol last summer.

13. A leather key holder, which a detective found in the bathroom at 3302 Eilhu. It bore the stamp of the Leveille Motor Co. partly owned by Campbell's father, who testified he had given his son a key case just like it a few days earlier.

Against this powerful line-up of circumstances, Defense Attorneys Harvey Lindsay and Joe McLemore were able to marshal only the testimony of Brown, his wife and his mother.

Brown admitted "tight, but said he fled only to avoid his past-due car payments. He said he had been with Campbell, but that he had paid him $50 that day and made an appointment for the next day. He said the blood on his trousers (and, inferentially, on the driveway) was his own blood, spilled when a wrench that he had been using to change a tire slipped and hit him in the mouth. His wife should not be saved for special occasions only. "There is still a Puritanical strain in American women which makes them believe that it is slightly immoral to smell good all day," says Miriam Gibson French, head of the "Fragrance Foundation in New York. But actually they should use perfume all the time, and Mrs. French likes to point out that the finest perfumes can be had for as little as the cost of a daily newspaper.

From the time when beautiful Cleopatra saturated the sales of her barges with perfume, right up to the present, the concoctors of perfume have realized that they were dealing with a product that has great psychological and emotional impact. Far down in the scale of animal life the odor of the female is sensed as excitement to the male, and in 1953 very few men can honestly say they dislike perfume when it is used with good choice and in good taste by a woman. Proof of this is the fact that in America alone the perfume industry takes in $25,000,000 a year.

"What man can say beyond a doubt that his life or his courtship was not influenced in some way by the heavy scent of honeysuckle or a lilac bush which added its lastimpulsion to a summer night and a girl's soft laughter?" asks Edouard Courmand, one of the leading importers of French perfume in this country. And in fact that's exactly what the men who work in the perfume industry do to try to create new bouquets: they attempt to recapture in fragrance some mood of beauty they have experienced.

"There are three types of perfumes," continues Courmand. First are the kind most stimulating to men: those whose fragrance comes from flowers which release their heaviest odor at night, such as the gardenia, jasmine, rose and hyacinths. From these flowers come the oils which the perfume industry calls the "slinky" types. Second is the class known as "soft and gentle," and last is the type described as "light and floral." Each of these classes gets its basic fragrance from flowers, but it is the animal musks and secretions which give them depth and capture all the floral elements into one distinctive bouquet.

Folks - Housecleaning Season's Here!

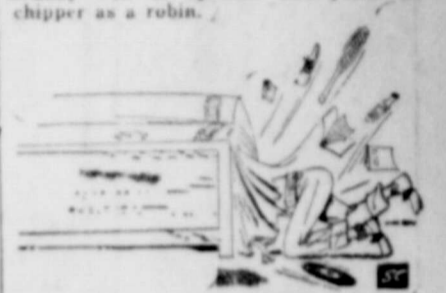

You see a crocus ... you sniff the breeze—and Ambition has you in its grip! But don't go, full tilt, at your Spring housecleaning. Take it easy. Take advantage of materials and methods that save time and effort, advises Winifred S. Carter, Director of Procter & Gamble's Household Information Service. She says to rub cream into your hands—around the nails, especially—before you start scrubbing, and to bind up your hair before you start dusting. It's wise to have an apron bristling with big pockets, for brushes, hammer, dust cloth, etc. Do test the step ladder for steadiness, and wear low heels when you climb. But most of all, check your supply of cleaning materials, before the frenzy seizes you.

Have you been thinking the woodwork, or even the house needs painting and shuddering at the cost? If so, are you dead sure it needs it? Mrs. Carter suggests washing a small corner with Spic and Span. You may find that painting isn't necessary this year. But whatever your specific cleaning chores, remember that doing things the hard way often isn't the best way. So take it easy. Schedule your duties. Let everybody help. And first thing you know every nook and cranny will be spotless and you'll be chipper as a robin.

Warned About Plant Poisons

In the spring a young man holding a lighted cigarette near it fancy lightly turns—if it's to picnic, let's hope a dose of poison ivy or poison oak won't be the consequences.

Wise picnickers choose a spot free from underbrush. Even so, some, perhaps wearing shorts, may wander through fields of woods containing poison ivy or other annoying plants. They should shower or bathe with plenty of soap and hot water right after being exposed, being careful not to let clothes that touched the plants rub against the skin. Rubbing alcohol or a soothing lotion may ease itching. In severe cases, however, medical care may be needed.

Another annoying feature of weeds and brush is that ticks and other insects may lurk there. Certain ticks may carry Rocky Mountain ticks may carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever. It may cause death. For this reason the following method of removing ticks is recommended: Applying ether, chloroform, or acetone to the insect or carefully holding a lighted cigarette near it may cause it to loosen its hold. Otherwise, tweezers should be used, grasping the tick as close as possible to the point of attachment and pulling gently to keep from leaving the mouth parts embedded in the skin. Every effort should be made to keep from crushing the tick thereby getting its contents into the bite. Once the insect has been removed, use soap and water on the area where it was attached.

For a bee or wasp sting, a paste made with baking soda and water can be applied after the "stinger" is removed. Victims of large numbers of bee or wasp stings may offer terrible pain and be very ill.

Not many black widow spider bites are fatal, but a small child may die because of the relative disproportion between the amount of poison and his body weight. Anyone who may have been bitten and who complains of pain in the abdomen, even though he does not remember a prick, should be rushed to a doctor.

Senate Group Is Sleeping On Job, Is Charge Made

Charge that a willful, handful of state senators "are idling away precious legislative time while Texas burns from its fourth successive year of drought" was made today by Guy C. Jackson of Anahuas, president of the Texas Water Conservation Association.

The water group official referred to filibustering tactics in the state senate against the proposed Amendment by Senator John Bell Curoe which would levy a nominal fee on water users to create a state fund to build dams and store waters on Texas streams for drought emergency.

For the Men Who Succeed—

... and for those who will some day succeed them, our suggestion is that they invest part of their earnings in real estate. Wise investments in real properties have yielded fortunes to many people. And those who succeed in this venture never gamble on the title. They buy only quality abstracts made by those who have themselves invested wisely—in their plant—in their personnel—and in their responsibility to the public.

to accept delaying tactics and sit back and wait another two years for another legislature to give them, the people, an opportunity to vote on some water legislation," Jackson said.

Jackson praised the senators who "sweated through long hours of filibuster until 4 o'clock in the morning, in order to keep the bill alive."

"This group apparently not only wants to deprive the people of Texas from getting an opportunity to vote on this water measure but also is trying to keep the state senate from voting also," Jackson charged.

"The Governor's committee of 101 Texas citizens, the Texas Water Conservation Association, the Texas Society of Civil Engineers and other authoritative groups after long study, research and public hearings have recommended Senator Bell's amendment. We are ready to let the people of Texas decide what they think about the amendment at the polls. We believe a great majority of the members of the senate and House are willing to let the voters of this state decide and leave it to their judgment. We believe the people of Texas are in no mood
