PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS: The seven days beginning July 7th, and ending July 14th, has been set as clean-up days in Ranger by committees from Service Clubs, the Volunteer Fire Department, and the City of Ranger, and

WHEREAS: The health of our citizens is directly affected by the sanitary conditions existing in our town, and since those conditions can be regulated by the time and work we individually put in on our own premises, and

WHEREAS: There are many of our citizens who are unable, due to age, physical disability, and other reasons, to keep the alleys adjacent to their homes as clean as they would like and as they should be kept, and it behooves those of us who are able to be a good neighbor and go a little further than our property lines in such cases, and

WHEREAS: A clean-up drive such as this can only be as successful as we as individuals make it and if everyone does his or her part the success of the drive will be assured and Ranger will be a better, cleaner place in which to live,

NOW THEREFORE, I, Calvin W. Harris, M. D., Mayor of Ranger, Texas, do hereby proclaim July 7 through July 14th as official "Clean-Up" days in Ranger, and do sincerely urge and beseech each of you to begin by cleaning your own premises and then to aid in every way possible the designated leaders in this co-operative drive for better health and living conditions for the citizens of Ranger.

Given under my hand and the seal of the City of Ranger, Texas, this 7th day of July, A.D., 1953.

Office Yule Parties Drop In St. Louis

That annual office blow-out, the Christmas party, is losing favor in St. Louis, and most firms feel the reason is that there's too much travail in the wassail.

A survey by an industrial association revealed that more than 24 per cent of the firms that formerly sponsored Yuletide parties have stopped the practice.

Various reasons employees listed for this decline were: cost, loss of time, accidents, and effect on morale.

But drinking and the varied results therefrom topped the list of reasons for dropping the Christmas get-together.

Get Ringside Seat for Eclipse

HOUGHTON, Mich. — Hotel men in this small northern Michigan community thought there must be some mistake when several prominent astronomers wrote recently for reservations in June, 1954.

However, after checking with their prospective guests they discovered this area is central in the path of a total eclipse scheduled shortly after sunrise June 30, 1954.

There won't be another total eclipse anywhere near Michigan until 2144 and the astronomers don't expect to see that one.

UNLUCKY

LONDON — James Partridge, 17, fell into a river at Oxford and was rescued by his workmates at a ship-building yard. His foreman told him to go home and change his wet clothes. A few minutes after he cycled away, Partridge was knocked down and killed by a truck.

Ranger Eagles Top Wells Nine, 8-7, Last Night

Manager J. A. Estes and his Ranger Eagles, American Legion youth nine, bagged another 1953 diamond victory last night at Mineral Wells when they topped a hard-playing Resort City crew, 8 to 7, in a close 7-inning battle.

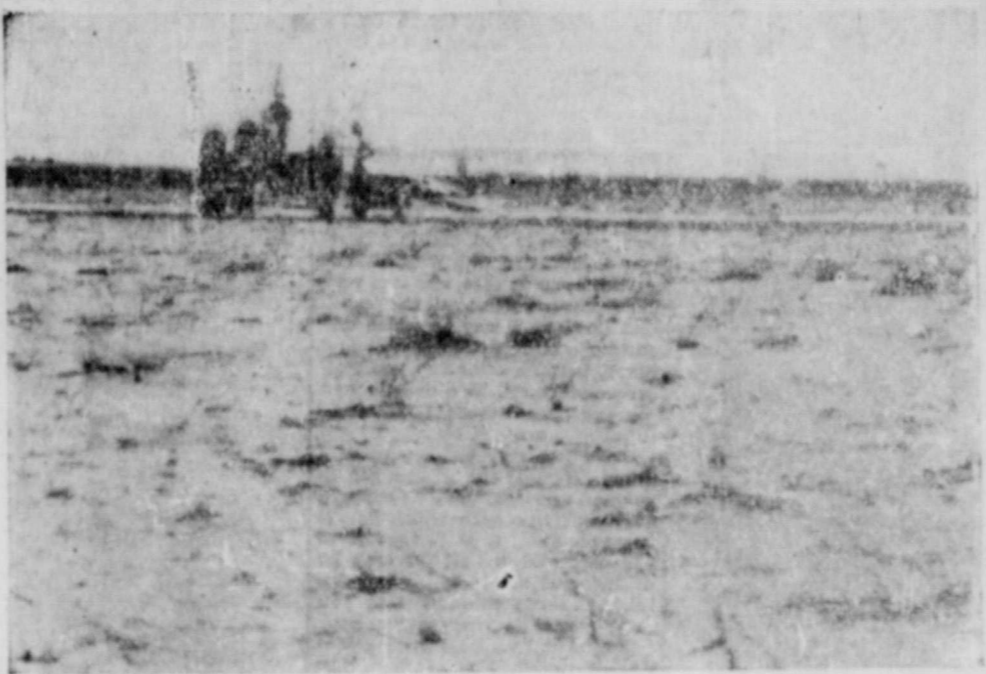

The Rangers were trailing their hosts until the top of the fifth frame when they exploded with four runs and jumped into a 7 to 4 lead. The Ranger lads pushed across another tally in the final seventh for their total. They collected 11 hits off three Mineral Wells hurlers.

The Resort Citizens scored a pair of runs in the first, one each in the second and fourth and managed to count three more in the bottom of the seventh before their final rally was quelled.

Eddie Morris went the route on the mound for the Eagles. He was touched for 7 hits, fanned 9 batters and yielded four bases on balls.

The three Mineral Wells pitchers fanned nine and gave up seven passes to first.

The Eagles were charged with three errors and Mineral Wells committed four fielding miscues.

DESTROYED—Workmen lay a sprinkler irrigation pipe along the side of cotton field destroyed by sand and lack of water in Western Dawson county near Lamesa. Pres. Eisenhower has promised aid for drought stricken areas of the state.

Southwest Polio Cases Decline

The Southwest is the only area in the nation having fewer polio cases this year than last.

There have been only 753 cases this year compared to 1,417 in 1952 in the Southwest states of Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, the Dallas chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis reported today.

In nine other regions in the nation the 1953 incidence far exceeds 1952 figures, the chapter reported.

Despite this, Texas with 487 cases so far this year ranks second only to California with 877.

The Sykes Gospel Singers will present a concert of Negro spirituals Friday night at 8:00 p.m. in the Ranger First Baptist Church. The program is being sponsored by the Ranger Ministerial Alliance and the public is extended a cordial invitation to attend.

Maybe, Maybe—SHOWERS... BUT IT'LL BE HOT TODAY

Clear to partly cloudy and continued hot weather was forecast for the Eastland County vicinity today and Thursday by the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Although there was a possibility that the parched, heat-ridden section, along with other portions of the area of the state, might receive badly needed rain, weather men said the possibility was "very remote."

"They predicted a 'slight chance' for showers this afternoon."

"The maximum mercury readings for today and tomorrow, according to the Weather Bureau, will be 100 or better with tonight's low around 80 degrees."

For North Central Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and hot Wednesday and Thursday.

The West Texas forecast calls for partly cloudy today a d Thursday with widely scattered afternoon and evening thunder showers; no important temperature changes.

Cisco Event Winds Up Today—

200 Boys From Six Counties At 4-H Camp

Two hundred boys, their county agents and adult leaders assembled Tuesday morning at Lake Cisco Park for the opening of an annual two-day, six-county 4-H club camp.

The camp session will wind up late today.

The annual event was started more than a half dozen years ago, with boys from Stephen, Eastland, and Palo Pinto Counties as participants in the original camp. Since then Shackelford, Callahan, and Jones Counties have joined the group in the order named.

County agents who originated the camp were Ralph Lindsey of Palo Pinto, J. M. Cooper of Stephens, and now of Eastland, and Floyd Lynch of Eastland, now State 4-H Club leader of the Texas A&M Extension Service.

The current camp chairman is Bryan Swain, Stephens County agent, who directed the organization of the campers and adults at noon Tuesday.

The youngsters elected Joe Bob Jackson, Breckenridge 4-H Club, as camp chairman; A. H. Roberts of the Anson 4-H Club as vice chairman; Ray Green of the Putnam 4-H, Jerry Weldon of the Sturdivant 4-H of Palo Pinto; Robert Bell of the Seranton club; and Marvin Schokke, Albany Club, as camp officers.

These, along with the agents and adult leaders, supervise the program of the two-day camp, which includes swimming, baseball, track, horse shows, washer pitching, pole pillow fighting and a Tuesday night entertainment program at which each county furnished some sort of a number.

The camp is organized so that all of the boys are constantly taking part in some activity. Because there is something going on all of the time, several of the boys who have attended district 4-H encampments rate the Cisco camp much more interesting than the district set-up.

The boys, working from a suggested list of items to bring, supply their own food Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McEee of the Mangum Community, south of Eastland, are serving as camp cooks, a job they have performed for the last several years.

Their cooking services, along with a small admission to the swimming pool, and to provide such items as paper plates, ice, salt and pepper, come from a modest camp fee which each youngster is required to pay.

At the conclusion of the camp Wednesday, ribbons will be awarded to the groups or individuals winning the various contests.

Tuesday night District Agents R. G. Burwell of Stephenville of District 8 and J. A. Schofield of Vernon of District 3 were special guests. W. I. Glass of Denton and District 4, the other area involved, sent word that he would be unable to attend.

Among the adult leaders assisting are Callahan County Agent Glen Green and adult leaders John D. Isenhower of Putnam, "Smoky" Gary of Admiral, and "Smoky" Edwards of Baird.

Jones County Agent Bill Lehnberg and adult leaders, Howard Roberts, Hollis Brown, Gene Seebe, and Kenneth Martin.

Shackelford County Agent Swain and adult leader, A. B. Knight.

Eastland County Agent Cooper and Assistant County Agent Hob Williams and adult leaders, Travis Wheat of Eastland, Alton White of Cisco, and B. Maynard of Rising Star.

Palo Pinto County Agent Lindsey and adult leader, C. S. Puryear.

Curly Hays of the livestock and agriculture department of West Texas Utilities Co. is also assisting with the camp.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

JURY SERVICE IS CIVIC DUTY Jury service is one of the highest attributes of our American citizenship...

Suppose Mr. Jones and Mr. Smith have a lawsuit. They may be strangers to you, and in a sense you do not care who wins...

John Doe may be accused of a crime. He may be a stranger to you and you may never have heard of the offense with which he is charged...

Here are some tips to follow when serving on a jury: Hold yourself aloof from all persons (except other jurors) in any way connected with the trial of the case...

Do not discuss the case nor permit others to mention it to you or in your presence during the trial.

Do not commence your deliberations until you have heard all the evidence from both sides, the argument of the lawyers, and the court's charge.

Do not become a private investigator. All properly admissible evidence will be brought before you.

Be attentive to the evidence as it is presented. If you are to properly aid the other jurors in settling the fact questions, it will be necessary to listen carefully to all evidence presented.

Do not guess at the judge's opinion of the facts. You are the judge of the facts. He is not allowed and will not try to invade your province.

You should not mention or discuss your own personal experience, or any knowledge that you may have of similar transactions.

WATCH AIR-CONDITIONER AS TOO MUCH HUMIDITY MAY BE CAUSE FOR SUMMER COLDS

In many movie theatres and business houses and in most homes with air conditioning, temperatures in summer are kept many degrees too cold for health and real comfort, warns the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co.

Going from a 90 to 95-degree afternoon into a 70 or 75-degree chill invites summer colds, sore throats and digestive upsets. Returning to the outside heat from such low temperatures demands too wide an adjustment to expect the body to make so quickly; one is especially vulnerable to heat effects at such a time, the insurance doctors say.

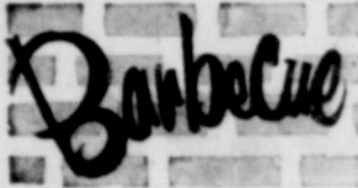

An air-conditioned interior should be kept no more than 10 degrees cooler than the outside weather, the insurance men advise; cool comfort is mainly achieved by reducing the moisture content of the air. An ideal "summer comfort" temperature for air-conditioned rooms is 80 degrees with 50 per cent humidity. Actually, humidity control is the most important function of modern air conditioning equipment, say the doctors.

Forcing a room down to 70 or 75 degrees in hot weather without reducing the moisture content of the air merely creates a chilly sweatbath, high unhealthful, the medics state. They add that attempting to hold any fixed temperature over a period of weeks or months by means of air-conditioning is unwise; instead the inside temperature should be allowed to drift upward with the hot weather, keeping the recommended 10 degrees below outside temperatures.

The reason "it's not the heat but the humidity," the health warning explains, is that on the average the human body gets rid of about 50 per cent of its excess through cooling effects of evaporation of moisture from the skin. The other 50 per cent is given off through radiation and by "convection"—the circulation of air past the body.

Each pound of perspiration gets rid of approximately 1,000 BTU's—British Thermal Units—of heat. If the surrounding air already contains nearly all the moisture it can hold, perspiration does not evaporate readily and so heat is given off too slowly. The heart then labors to pump more blood to the surface in an effort to get rid of more heat by radiation. One therefore feels hotter at 80 degrees with 80 per cent humidity, for example, than at 90 degrees with 50 per cent humidity.

THE STORY: Pete Morrison, a scout, believes he has learned the whereabouts of Betty, the lost daughter of Nat Wilkinson, leader of a California-bound wagon train. Betty, unaware that Zad Barnes, a renegade, kidnapped her when she was a child, is living at Barnes' ranch near Two Rivers, meanwhile, another woman, Cass Dean, has joined the train. She is Pete's former sweetheart, with whom he quarreled just before the War Between the States.

VII
The presence of Cass Dean meant trouble—she had always meant trouble for Pete—yet he found himself eager to see her, while at the same time wishing she were a thousand miles away.

He had to see her, for he knew that she would see him one way or another if her mind was made up. He rode into the town of Echo Junction early in the morning, although he expected to have to wait. She had always been a late riser. Meanwhile, Nat would be fuming.

He stopped at the hotel where she was staying to ask for her, and was told that she was having breakfast in the dining room. He went on back, and saw her alone at a table at the side of a room. She didn't see him at once, and he had a chance to study her. If she had changed in the five years since he had seen her it was for the better, and she had always been a beautiful woman; tall, with glorious chestnut hair, and almost classic features.

She looked up as Pete strode toward her table, and a smile broke over her beautiful face. "Pete Morrison!" she exclaimed. "Pete, it's wonderful to see you." She stood up, extended her hand, and then as though it was the natural thing to do, kissed him. Pete felt his face growing hot. The last time they had met she had been ready to slap him. "You're looking fine, Cass," he said. "Aren't you going to say that you're glad to see me?" "No."

Washington

CONGRESSMAN
17th District

Following the Easter recess in the House of Representatives, 80 per cent humidity, for example, than at 90 degrees with 50 per cent humidity.

there has been very little legislative business, and Congressman Burleson has decided to take advantage of the lull and spend a few extra days visiting with the people of his district.

In a long-distance telephone conversation with the Congressman, he stated to us that he planned an early return to Washington, and that he would resume his newsletter in next week's edition of the paper.

Mr. Burleson reports a most pleasant and thoroughly beneficial visit in the district. He finds folks in high spirits and was happy to meet with a prevailing attitude of hope and confidence wherever he went. Seemingly the one sour note is the big problem common always, and those soft white hands didn't indicate hardship. He asked, "What have you been doing?" "I was a nurse during the war. My mother died, and my two brothers were killed. I'm alone in the world, Pete, except for a married sister. We lost our money, too."

"You don't look as if you were broke."

"I'm not—exactly, but I don't have much."

"Look, Cass, why don't you go back home? This country is no place for a girl like you. Maybe we can work things out—later."

"I've got no home to go to. Even if you throw me over again—"

"I like that. You threw me over."

"Well, even if we don't make a go of it I'm staying in the West. There's opportunity here. You can't stop me."

"I can try. Look Cass, I'm leaving here right away. Believe me, there is nothing out here for you, Wilkinson and I are going to a place that is inhabited only by outlaws and Indians, and there'll be danger every minute. I couldn't take you down there if I wanted to."

"I'm still going," she said. "Not with me," Pete said grimly. "Then with Wilkinson. And if I got with him I'll go alone. I've got to make you understand, Pete, that I'm just as tough an anybody else. I can stand anything that you can stand."

Pete stood up. "I've got to be going, Cass. I'm sorry that I can't see things your way, but this is no country for a woman like you—and it's the only country for me."

He held out his hand, and after an instant of hesitation she took it. "I'll be seeing you," she said. He walked out, and he was no sooner out of sight than Cass Dean got up and walked over to the man he had said was one of Zad Barnes' outlaws.

Congress. His annual questionnaire, of course, has been most helpful to him in determining the general thinking in the 17th District, but certainly he feels the benefit derived from a personal visit at home cannot be measured.

It was a disappointment to Mrs. Burleson not to be able to accompany the Congressman on his trip, but she has been spending the period visiting with two elderly aunts in Gordon, Ga.

Big news in Washington this week—and over most of the nation—was, of course, the official opening of the baseball season.

Interrupting a brief holiday at Augusta, Ga., President Eisenhower flew back to Washington long enough to toss out the first ball, to the delight of baseball fans the world over. Vice-president Nixon and Supreme Court Chief Justice Vinson were present to witness Ike's major league "pitching debut."

Just prior to his attendance at the ball game, the President addressed a luncheon group of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, who were in convention here.
