

Rev. Ralph Perkins Resigns To Serve In Mission Field

Rev. Ralph E. Perkins made his resignation to the First Baptist Church of Ranger Sunday, Aug. 13, after serving 11 years as pastor. These 11 years represent half of Rev. Perkins' ministry.

For the past four years, the direct mission department in Dallas has asked him to enter mission work, and at Glorieta on June 18, Rev. Perkins made plans to serve in the missions. On July 10 he told the deacons and his resignation will be effective on Sept. 15, as that will end the eleven years of service.

The deacons recommended to the church in conference, and the recommendation was passed, that Sept. 15 be set aside as Ralph Perkins' Day. The following committee was selected to make arrangements: W. A. Lewis, chairman, Wilson Guest and Lee Russell.

Rev. Perkins came to Ranger, Sept. 15, 1950, and during these past years, he has served four years as moderator of the Cisco Baptist Association, five years as District Training Union Director, and has held many district and state committees. At the present time he is a member of the State Executive Board, trustee of Hendrick's Memorial Hospital, Abilene, district Training Union director, and an approved consultant for the Training Union Department of Southern Baptist Convention. He is a member of the Ranger Ministerial Alliance and has served in church has also raised $462,888 for missions, of which $62,339 has been sent through a corporate program to mission causes.

In 1953 the church organized the Eastside Baptist Chapel under the leadership of Rev. Perkins, and in the fall of 1956 it was organized into a church.

Rev. Perkins has conducted numerous revivals in Texas and has been a guest speaker at the Centennial in Jamaica in 1955. He has also conducted with the Missions Wisconsin Evangelical Crusade and the Irish Crusade.

When the pastor first came to Ranger in 1950 he organized the Baptist Student Union at Ranger Junior College. He is a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, and Masonic Lodge and for a number of years he was a member of the Ranger Volunteer Fire Department and Lions Club.

Through the years, Rev. Perkins has been a great supporter of Ranger. He assisted in the organization of the Little League, and he is a supporter of both Ranger Junior College and the Ranger Public School System. An ardent football fan, he says that his hobbies include water skiing, hunting and ceramics.

During World War II, Rev. Perkins served as Chaplain, and he obtained the rank of captain.

Mrs. Perkins, a graduate of Hardin-Simmons University and Southwestern Seminary, is an untiring worker in both the church and community. Last year she taught school in the Deadwood High School. The Perkins' have four children: John, Bill, Pat and Kay.

Sixty-five RHS Band Members Report Mon.

The Ranger High School Bulldog Band began rehearsals Monday morning, Aug. 14, with 65 members, including 26 rookies, reporting for the first rehearsal. This number is 10 short of the goal set for the band, but several band members who are out of town or are working will report later. The junior high and elementary school hands will not start rehearsals until school starts.

The day's work Monday began with drill instruction of a squad of eight drill instructors, who will instruct the band in the basic fundamentals of drilling. The squad includes Teddie Neeley, Ruth and Bobby Owen, Dale Penney, Terry Hatfield, Frank Miller, Jay Dell Baker and Jack Noth.

The band started issuing uniforms Monday, and Bill Auvenshine, band director, stated that for the first time in years the uniforms fit.

Rehearsals each day this week include one and a half hours of playing and one and a half hours of marching. Students will spend next week memorizing music, and the following week regular rehearsals will be resumed, and the band will start work on its show for the first football game Sept. 1. Auvenshine states that interest is good and members are willing to work and are hard workers. The 26 enthusiastic freshmen starting rehearsal are green, he says, but they desire to grow and are eager to learn. The band is working hard on basic fundamentals for the whole year's work.

Auvenshine will attend a convention of the Texas Band Directors Organization in San Antonio next week. He will be meeting with 600 other band masters of the state. Convention features will include clinics in new music and marching.

29 Boys Report For Workouts

Twenty-nine Ranger High School boys reported Monday morning for the first day of football practice for the 1961 Bulldog season despite the fact that the weather could hardly be called football weather, August 14 being one of the hottest days of the summer.

Practice time Monday morning was spent punting, passing, and doing general drills for getting in shape. Monday afternoon the boys reported to the field house at 5 p.m. and donned pads and uniforms for scrimmaging and going over all basic plays, a plan to be followed for the August workouts. The boys will be working each week as though they were getting ready for a game Friday night. Stress for the next two weeks will be on teaching the fundamentals of football.

Coach Ace Prescott said, "Most of the older boys seem to be in good condition for the start of the season. The spirit is high and things are moving along at a fast pace." He also stated that there is a possibility of several more boys coming out for practice.

The boys, eager and full of spirit are working hard, but sweating in the August heat Monday, they suggested that Coach Bill Young do a rain dance so that he might get things cooled off.

The first game of the year is with the Rotan Yellowhammers on Sept. 1 in Rotan, and the Coaches think that the boys should be ready to go by then.

Patty Fritz was found fully clothed, but the other girl was nude. Officers said that there was no evidence of a struggle. The bodies were taken to the West Funeral Home in Carlsbad, and Dr. James Fred Haynes was called to perform an autopsy.

The girls had been shot through the head with a small caliber gun. The bodies were found at 12:45 p.m. Sunday, by two rabbit hunters, Willie D. Blair and Bill Melton, both of Carlsbad. The men said that they turned their car off U. S. Highway 285 onto State Road 137 and had driven about a half mile when one of them saw a pair of red shorts in the brush alongside the road. They went to investigate and found the bodies.

Officers who were called to the scene had been conducting a search in the Carlsbad area since girls were first reported missing Friday.

David B. Allsup Completes Course In Science at O.U.

David B. Allsup, biology instructor of Ranger Junior College, has returned to Ranger after completing an eight-week's course in science at the University of Oklahoma.

Allsup was one of a class of forty science teachers, 8 women and 32 men, receiving grants from the National Science Foundation for special study in biology this summer at O. U. The teachers enrolled represented all states between Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains.

Three regular professors served as instructors in the field of geology, botany, and zoology, one from the University of Oklahoma and two from the University of Arkansas. In addition there were several visiting lecturers of note during the term.

The field trips for the purpose of studying the plant and animal life in all parts of Oklahoma were the most interesting feature of the course in ecology, according to Allsup. The group traveled 5,000 miles, covering every town and every county in the State of Oklahoma and visiting all the state parks of Oklahoma.

Allsup's family divided their time during the summer session between Norman and Ranger.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

Jack London, destined for fame as a short-story writer and novelist, (many of his tales have their setting in the Far North), arrived in Alaska in '97 and went out in the fall of '98.

While there, he was stricken with scurvy and lost his teeth. There is a story about that, years later, when he was a correspondent in the Orient, he heard cheering, came out of his hotel room to the balcony and bowed, thinking the greeting was in tribute to his novel. At last, by signs, he learned what was wanted. Evidently, a servant had told the other natives about it. The throng wanted him to remove his set of false teeth, which he did, to great applause, and he gave several encores.

Many of the fortune-seekers hired Indians to pack their belongings over the dreaded Chilkoot Pass, paying as much as $1.50 per pound. But the young, broad-shouldered, good-natured Jack London did his own packing and kept pace with the Indians. Along with his supplies, he carried copies of Darwin's "Origin of Species," Spencer's "Philosophy of Style," and Milton's "Paradise Lost."

Jack did a little prospecting and caused a "rush." He struck shining metal in a creek-bed and, at his shouts, the miners came running—and then began to laugh. What he had found was only mica. But from the old-timers, he drew their stories, which later he wove into his books. Thus it was that Jack London struck gold. He is said to have received the highest rate per word of any writer in the history of America.

Elam Harnish was Jack's partner over Chilkoot Pass and he remained in Alaska. Harnish remembered Jack vividly, especially the difficulty he had in getting him up of a morning to hit the trail. London put him in a novel and called him "Burning Daylight" but Harnish said that was not his nickname in real life but was derived from the expression he used in urging London to get up, "Come on, Jack; you're burning daylight."

In one of his magazine articles, London said an old-timer expressed the view that the land was in avarice a large part of the year "because God goes away and leaves it to itself." London also quoted an old-timer, perhaps the same one as speaking of Alaska "as frigid and burning and lonely and apart," and as being an insane asylum given over to the worst cases.

"Now and then," the philosopher continued, "some poor insane creature comes to his senses in those awful solitude and, in wondering joy, escapes from the land and hastens back to his home. But most cases are incurable."

David prayed, "Hear my prayer, O Lord . . . Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God . . ." (Ps. 143:1; 10). It is no wonder that God said, "The Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart." (I Sam. 13:14). God selected David because he knew he would "fulfill all his will." (Acts 13:22). It seems strange that God has required man from the beginning of time to DO HIS WILL that he might receive the blessing of God, and that punishment was given to all offenders, that man today can conceive the idea that the blessings of God today come as a result of "FAITH ONLY". Many times I have heard preachers say, "If you will ONLY believe God will save you." Such preaching has never caused anyone to realize his DUTY to the Lord. One thing I have noticed about all men is that they are very quick to assert their "rights", but very slow, and sometimes never, to assert their "duties". The sinner will be saved upon the conditions set by God, that is, that he does God's will. (Mat. 7:21). The child of God will be saved eternally—if he keeps the Lord's commandments (Rev. 22:14). So when you hear someone telling about his rights and privileges remind him that he has none with God until he "does" His Will. "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Mt. 6:33). Your boss or company may grant you certain rights, but you have a duty to perform. We have "rights" as citizens of our nation, state, and community, but we also have "duties" toward them in every case. It is no different with God. There will be blessings for the obedient and punishment for those that do nothing (Mt. 25:14-30). The "one talent" man did nothing bad—he did NOTHING.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—We ordinarily think of the United Nations as dealing only with the matters we read most about in the newspapers. It does, however, deal with a multitude of international problems, among which is an attempt to control the traffic in narcotics.

In 1953 an agreement was worked out which would require all nations to report on the production and shipment of opiate drugs. Since that time, the situation in this country has considerably improved.

However, the matter has been reopened, and unless something is done, there is danger of relaxing existing regulations.

Among other changes proposed, one would permit countries not previously engaged in opium export an unrestricted production up to five tons annually, without accounting. It would relax the requirement that a demand on the exporting nation for explanations and reports be made. Nation members which first agreed to present limitations would no longer be obligated to observe import quotas which have been established.

The United States should oppose these changes and insist that more strict controls be agreed to, rather than that those now in effect be relaxed.

It is, of course, necessary and desirable that drugs be imported for medical purposes, but the strictest possible control should be placed against opiates finding their way into the hands of smugglers and criminals—and so on into the United States where the prices and profits of the racketeers would be greatest.

I have been offered the appointment as one of the Delegates representing the Congress in the regular session of the United Nations this fall. While other great issues such as Berlin may be a part of it, should I accept, it would be my desire to participate in this matter of controlling the traffic in illicit drugs. No greater evil exists in the world today than the illegal transaction in narcotics.

how positive we can sometimes be about things we are not sure of.

Mrs. W. H. Todd and sons, Davy and Bill spent Friday, Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kay.

Austin Report

The U. S. Senate, on Aug. 9, passed my amendment calling for a maximum death penalty for plane hijackers. The Senate action was by voice vote, without dissent.

Under terms of the amendment, the jury would have a choice of the death penalty, life imprisonment or a term of not less than 20 years.

Why is such a law needed? Let's look back a few months at what has been happening in our air lanes, and the answer becomes obvious. There have been six hijacking incidents since May 1, four of them involving Communists Fidel Castro's Cuba in some way.

Here is the record on those four: On May 1, 1961, a National Airlines Convair 440, enroute from Florida to Key West via Marathon, was hijacked by a Puerto Rican, armed with a gun and knife.

The Puerto Rican forced the pilot to fly to Havana. There, the hijacker made some vague statements about wanting to assassinate Castro. The aircraft with its three crew members and seven passengers were permitted to return to Key West the same day, and Cuban police held the hijacker.

On July 2, an Eastern Airlines Lockheed Electra enroute from Miami to Tampa with 33 passengers was hijacked by an American citizen of Cuban birth. The plane, valued at $2,500,000 was held by Cuba. Castro has offered to surrender it to the United Nations Security Council.

On Aug. 3, a Continental Airlines B-707 was hijacked by two men while enroute from Phoenix to El Paso. The hijackers, an American father-son team, ordered the crew to fly to Havana. The pilot persuaded them to let him land for fuel and the plane was held on the ground at El Paso by Border Patrol, FBI and local police who punctured the tires with sub-machine gun fire.

The hijackers said they wanted to take the airplane to Havana to sell to Castro. The elder of the two hijackers and an arrest history dating back to August, 1941.

This is the day I introduced the amendment providing a death penalty for hijackers. At first the sentiment in the Senate was divided, with some favoring an amendment for life imprisonment. Support for the life imprisonment provision seemed to be gaining favor because nearly everyone wanted some stringent action that could be agreed on quickly.

Then on Aug. 9, a Pan American World Airways DC-8, enroute from Mexico City to Guatemala City, was hijacked by a French citizen who formerly worked in a New York City restaurant. The plane was flown to Havana, Cuba. The hijacker had been in the United States since 1956 and had a long history of reform school and vagrancy.

The plane and passengers were allowed to return to the United States. Probably the reason Cuba's arrogant ruler has been so quick to yield up passengers and planes lately is that he is getting the message from the American people: "We are sick and tired of Castro."

I have taken the position in Senate debate that Castro should be faced with an embargo and blockade — backed up by ships and planes — if he does not release the hijacked planes and kidnapped passengers safely and quickly.

TRACTOR TALK

Air Cleaner Neglect Can "Foul Up" Plugs

Got a tractor in which carbon-fouled spark plugs seem to present a continuous problem?

Could be you're using spark plugs of too cold a heat range, but chances are it's more apt to be a clogged up air filter that's causing the trouble — especially if the filter hasn't been serviced for a long time.

According to service engineers at Champion Spark Plug Co., a badly clogged tractor air filter not only can cause the entire set of spark plugs to become carbon fouled, but also may result in diluting the crankcase oil as well as in the formation of sludge, piston varnish and other gummy deposits within the engine.

Why? Because a clogged filter prevents the engine from breathing the way it should and results in not enough air reaching the combustion chamber to burn the gasoline completely. The incomplete combustion causes an excessive build-up of carbon in the engine which collects on the firing ends of the spark plugs and causes them to "misfire."

Also, since a clogged filter causes less air to enter the engine, you may find you're spending more money for gasoline, but getting less acreage plowed, since the engine is receiving a richer mixture than it should.

Just how often a tractor air cleaner should be serviced depends on the type of conditions the tractor is operated under. However, you might keep in mind the fact that there are over a million particles of dust in just one cubic inch of air; also the fact that over a thousand cubic feet of air are required to burn a single gallon of gasoline. Then, it's easy to appreciate the enormous amount of dust which must be removed from the air before it enters the tractor's engine.

(Remember, dust and dirt in an engine mix with the oil to form a grinding compound which works on rings, valves and cylinder walls just as effectively as a piece of emery cloth.)

The air filter on your tractor has the task of removing the dust from the air before it enters the carburetor. It does this by employing either a paper type element or an oil mesh element which traps the dust but allows the air to pass through.

As the filter remains in use, however, it gradually becomes clogged with the dust and dirt it removes from the air, making it more difficult for air to pass through.

Eventually, air flow through the filter is reduced to the point where the engine simply can't get all the air it needs for efficient combustion and, hence, the gasoline doesn't burn completely.

This, of course, results in excessive carbon build-up inside the engine and on the spark plugs. And, since carbon is highly conductive, the plugs may misfire if the deposits are sufficient enough to allow the high-voltage electricity to "leak" away before it jumps the spark plug gap.

If all the spark plugs in your tractor's engine contain black carbon-like deposits, have the plugs thoroughly cleaned in an abrasive spark plug cleaner by your neighborhood garage man.

And be sure to check the air filter before considering the installation of "hotter" spark plugs.

Clean Fuel Storage Tanks
If you're storing much tractor gas around the farm, better remember to drain and clean the storage tanks at least once a year to remove sediment and metal chips which flake off the inside of the tank.

Tilting the tank or drum slightly to the rear will prevent the residue from collecting near the spigot. Also, make sure you cap the hose nozzle when not in use to keep dust from getting into the tank.
