

Pilate's Report

(Editor's note: This is part 2 in a four part series.)
Being too weak to suppress an insurrection, I resolved upon adopting a measure to restore the tranquility of the city without subjecting the praetorium to humiliating concession. I wrote to Jesus requesting an interview with him at the praetorium. He came. You know that in my veins flows the Spanish mixed with Roman blood—as incapable of fear as it is of weak emotion. When the Nazarene made his appearance, I was walking in my basilic, and my feet seemed fastened with an iron band to the marble pavement, and I trembled in every limb as does a guilty culprit,—though the Nazarene was as calm as innocence itself. When he came up to me,—"I am here," though he spoke not a word. For some time I contemplated with admiration and awe this extraordinary type of man unknown to our numerous painters, who have given form and figure to all the gods and the heroes. There was nothing about him that was repelling in its character, yet I felt too awed and tremulous to approach him.

"Jesus," said I unto him at last—and my tongue faltered—"Jesus of Nazareth,—for the last three years I have granted you ample freedom of speech; nor do I regret it. Your words are those of a sage. I know not whether you have read Socrates or Plato, but this I know, there is in your discourse a majestic simplicity that elevates you far above those philosophers. The Emperors is informed of it, and I his humble representative in this country, am glad of having allowed you that liberty of which you are so worthy. However, I must not conceal from you that your discourses have raised up against you powerful and inveterate enemies. Nor is this surprising. Socrates had his enemies, and he fell a victim to their hatred. Yours, are doubly incensed against you,—on account of your discourses being so severe upon their conduct; against me,—on account of the liberty I have afforded you. They even accuse me of being indirectly leagued with you for the purpose of depriving the Hebrews of the little power which Rome has left them. My request I do not say my order—is that you be more circumspect and moderate in your discourses in the future, and more considerate of them, lest you arouse the pride of your enemies, and they raise against you the stupid populace, and compel me to employ the instruments of law."

The Nazarene calmly replied: "Prince of the earth, your words proceed not from true wisdom. Say to the torrent to stop in the midst of them mountain gorge; it will uproot the trees of the valley. The torrent will answer you that it obeys the laws of nature and the creator. God alone knows whither flow the waters of the torrent. Verily I say unto you, before the rose of Sharon blossoms the blood of the just shall be spilt."

"Your blood shall not be spilt," said I with deep emotion; "you are more precious in my estimation on account of your wisdom than all the turbulent and proud Pharisees who abuse the freedom granted them by the Romans. They conspire against Caesar, and convert his bounty into fear, impressing the unlearned that Caesar is a tyrant and seeks their ruin. Insolent wretches! they are not aware that the wolf of the Tiber sometimes clothes himself with the skin of the sheep to accomplish his wicked designs. I will protect you against them. My praetorium shall be an asylum, sacred both day and night."

Jesus carelessly shook his head, and said with a grave and divine smile: "When the day shall have come there will be no asylums for the son of man neither in the earth nor under the earth. The asylum of the just is there," pointing to the heavens. "That which is written in the books of the prophets must be accomplished."

"Young man," I answered mildly, "you will oblige me to convert my request into an order. The safety of the province which has been confided to my care requires it. You must observe more moderation in your discourses. Do not infringe my order. You know the consequences. May happiness attend you; farewell."

"Prince of the earth," replied Jesus, "I come not to bring war into the world, but peace, love and charity. I was born the same day on which Augustus Caesar gave peace to the Roman world. Persecutions proceed not from me. I expect it from others, and will meet it in obedience to the will of my Father, who has shown me the way. Restrain, therefore, your worldly prudence. It is not in your power to arrest the victim at the foot of the tabernacle of expiation."

So saying, he disappeared like a bright shadow behind the curtains of the basilic to my great relief, for I felt a heavy burden on me, of which I could not relieve myself while in his presence.

To Herod, who then reigned in Galilee, the enemies of Jesus addressed themselves, to wreak their vengeance on the Nazarene. Had Herod consulted his own inclinations, he would have ordered Jesus immediately to be put to death; but, though proud of his royal dignity, yet he hesitated to commit an act that might lessen his influence with the Senate or,—like me,—was afraid of Jesus. But it would never do for a Roman officer to be scared by a Jew. Previously to this, Herod called on me at the praetorium and, on rising to leave, after some trifling conversation, asked me what was my opinion concerning the Nazarene. I replied that Jesus appeared to me to be one of those great philosophers that great nations sometimes produced; that his doctrines were by no means sacrilegious, and that the intentions of Rome were to leave him to that freedom of speech which was justified by his actions. Herod smiled maliciously, and, saluting me with ironical respect, departed.

The great feast of the Jews was approaching, and the intention was to avail themselves of the popular exultations which always manifests itself at the solemnities of a passover. The city was overflowing with a tumultuous populace, clamoring for the death of the Nazarene. My emissaries informed me that the treasurer of the temple had been employed in bribing the people. The danger was pressing. A Roman centurion had been insulted. I wrote to the prefect of Syria for a hundred foot-soldiers and as many cavalry. He declined. I saw myself alone with a handful of veterans in the midst of a rebellious city, too weak

I am married, have two children, Rocky, age 10 and Tommy, 8 years of age. We are an ordinary family and we belong to various organizations that help to strengthen a community.

May I take this opportunity to thank you for the decisions you have made in sending the public officers you have to the courthouse to represent you.

It has indeed been a pleasure to work with the county officials and employees.

It is with great hope that I get to meet each of you personally before May 5th. If I don't, I will greatly appreciate your vote and influence.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD HEN?

Commercial egg producers demand a bird that will produce a dozen quality eggs at the lowest possible cost, says Bill Cawley, assistant extension poultry husbandman. To meet this requirement, a line or strain of birds must have certain qualifications.

One of the most important of these qualifications is a high rate of lay, says Cawley. The strain should average 65 percent or more production for at least twelve months. Along with this, the strain should maintain high feed efficiency and produce a dozen eggs on four pounds of feed.

High livability is also important. For the first year of production, the strain should have an average laying house livability of 90 percent or better. There are many good strains that will meet or exceed these standards, points out the specialist. After obtaining good stock, the producer has the responsibility of developing their maximum potential. Good management, a sound vaccination program, adequate equipment and housing, and good feeding practices are the producer's responsibility, emphasizes Cawley.

JERRY JORDAN

Misses Patricia Craighead and Jerry Jordan, outstanding home economics students of the junior class of Carbon High School, have qualified for State Degree Honors, which will be conferred at the State meeting of Future Homemakers to be held in Dallas, April 27-28.

The girls have been chosen by the present degree committee of Area IV to serve as committee members this coming school year. This decision was guided by leadership qualities shown in the degree workshops and in the materials they submitted. Jerry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Jordan. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jordan have taught in the Carbon school system and Mr. Jordan is still teaching there where he has been employed for number of years.

 opportunity to express my appreciation to you for the honor of serving you in this important office, and I want to thank each of you personally for the trust that you have placed in me, and for the many courtesies and favors that you have extended me while serving as your District Clerk.

When I first asked you for this important office, I told you that if elected I would render you the most efficient service possible. I have tried to make that promise good, and I welcome an investigation of my record, and when you have done this and considered the experience I have had, I hope you will help me again in this campaign.

During my tenure in office, we have filed and processed over six thousand cases, which exceeds by far, the number of

Scott Bailey

 of Texas. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Bailey of Route 3, Cisco.

Bailey is a 31 year old veteran of the Korean Conflict, having served for 16 months as an enlisted man in Korea. He was educated in the public schools of Cisco and Cisco Jr. College. He holds a BS degree from North Texas State University, where he majored in Education and Government. Before his election to the Texas Legislature, Bailey taught High School and Jr. College. Bailey is a member of the Lions Club, as well as other Veterans and Civic groups. He has long been active in Professional organizations of the teaching profession and a member of the University of Texas Ex-Students Assn.

As a first term member of the Texas House, Bailey holds membership and seniority on five highly important House Committees. He is now serving on the following Committees: Agriculture, Banks and Banking, Education, Game and Fisheries, Municipal and Private Corporations, and The Interim Committee to Study School Finance. Bailey has been the Author and Sponsor of Legislation of State-wide importance and the sponsor and co-sponsor of local legislation affecting this area of West Central Texas, he said.

Bailey was the Co-Author of HB 24, the Water Pollution Control Bill and took an active part in the fight to get it enacted into law. Bailey voted for tax measures that he deemed to be the least punitive and discriminatory. He was on the losing side, however, and Texas now has one of the most burdensome and confusing tax laws in the United States. Bailey voted against final passage of House Bill 20 in the first Called Session. The Abilene Reporter News carried this vote and printed Bailey's objection to the bill. You will recall that HB 20 as finally passed is the Present sales tax law. It also raised the fee on our drivers license and a number of other things that are too lengthy to mention.

He voted for legislation that would call for the removal of the unfair provisions of the "so called" merit rating plan in our auto insurance law. Bailey supported and worked for the passage of the school improvement bills. The past Legislature has done more to help the Independent and Common School District than has been done in the last ten years, Bailey said. He also supported legislation to improve the status of our Senior Citizens and to aid unfortunate people who must have help from the State. Bailey has received recognition as a leader in field of Veterans legislation and has always voted to give Women Equal Rights.

In making his announcement, Bailey said, "This office that I hold belongs to you, the People. You are entitled to have it exercised according to your will. If you see fit to return me to Austin, to Speak for the People, I will continue to attend to the duties of this high office with dignity and decorum; remembering at all times that a public office is a

Two years ago Scott Bailey asked you to support him for public office. He knew very well what the job paid and he sought your trust with that knowledge in mind.

But . . . On January 11, 1961, less than 24 hours after being sworn into office, Mr. Bailey—in his FIRST official act on a House Bill—raised his own pay at the expense of the taxpayers!—check the record—January 11, 1961 House Journal, page 30—

Would you like for your dollars to be used by a politician to help finance his next campaign??

Mr. Sam Wood in THE AUSTIN AMERICAN newspaper, Thursday, August 24, 1961 said that Scott Bailey had 2,500 pieces of "campaign propaganda" printed for personal use "at the expense of the taxpayers."
