SAFE BLOWN

Another Safe Cracked Last Night By An Expert.

MORRIS GROCERY

LOST ABOUT $100 IN CASH THAT WAS IN THE STEEL BOX, BUT UNLOCKED

MAN SEEN BY NEGRO WOMAN

She Suspected Him to be Member of the Firm Working Late—Entrance Gained Through Side Door—No Arrests Made Yet

Safe blowers got in their work last night at the Morris Grocery company's store, corner of Park and Elizabeth streets, just east of the Houston and Texas Central freight depot. The door of the safe was blown open and all the cash in it, amounting to about $100, was taken. No checks or other papers were taken, and in fact other papers of value in the safe were undisturbed. The money was in the chilled steel box, but the box was not locked and was easily opened.

Mr. Morris says that he went to the bank yesterday at noon with $180, so that only the afternoon sales and collections were in the safe, otherwise his loss would have been nearly $300. He was called up town on another errand and thought he might as well go to the bank and make a deposit at the same time. He further said that all the lights were out this morning except one in the rear. They usually keep all the lights in the store burning during the night.

The burglar or burglars first tried to enter a rear door on Park street, a hole bored through it near the lock showing the attempt they made. This failing they then tried the other east door near the front of the building and succeeded.

The work appears to have been done by an expert, nothing about the safe having been disturbed and no damage done to that except blowing the inside of the door off. It was not even blown off its hinges. The combination was knocked off with a hammer and a hole drilled near the front upper corner of the door where the charge of powder was inserted, above the lock. The inside casing was blown off and the filling broken up into chunks. The safe is a small one and never was guaranteed as burglar proof.

A negro woman passing the store about 1 o'clock says she saw a man in there, but thought nothing of it, supposing it was one of the firm, or one of the clerks, working pretty late. No arrests have been made yet.

THIRTY INDIANS WILL PLAY AT POLO

Two Exciting Contests Will Be Pulled off at the Base Ball Park at 4:30 O'clock Today and Tomorrow

Polo with all of its attending excitement as played by red men will be played at the base ball park today and tomorrow, starting at 4:30 o'clock each afternoon. Thirty full blooded Indians are included in the company which is giving exhibitions on their way to an Eastern tournament. These native Americans play with all the attending excitement occasioned by blood curdling war cries as they press on to victory or struggle against defeat. Each side has 13 players, all of whom are in perfect physical condition.

Two poles, 100 yards apart, are to be hit by a rubber ball covered with buckskin. The side which first scores 12 points wins. The players are provided with sticks at the end of which are cups in which the ball must be caught and propelled on its way. The scientific points are doubtless familiar to all polo players in the city and for this reason an explanation is not given. A contestant may be struck out, but in that event he will not again enter the game.

Each side has a cunger who is quite an important personage as the game cannot proceed during their absence, owing to superstition. Chief Black Wolf, one of the cungers is a natural orator and speaks fluently. The tribe includes May Tubbe who while under a death sentence was permitted to run at large for six weeks and returned on time for the execution. Without a murmur he stepped to his place to be shot but a full pardon arrived before the sentence was carried out.

Prospects Were Never Better for a large crop of cotton in the state of Texas. Therefore, while ginners and cotton dealers are laying in a stock of supplies for the coming busy season, bear in mind that Whitmore's Plomo Belt Dressing, the standard of all Dressing, is an article which should not be overlooked in making out your demands. The old price prevails, 40c per pound, f. o. b. Address all communications "Plomo Specialty Mfg. Co., No. 303 Main St., Dallas, Tex."

NEW SHORT STORIES

"Miss Meredith's Present."
The tragic death of the novelist Paul Leicester Ford has recalled to those who knew him many anecdotes of his ways and somewhat quaint sayings. Kate Douglas Wiggin, who was one of his most intimate friends, both of them being associated in work in the college settlement and the day nurseries, says:

"I remember when Mr. Ford first moved over to New York. Before that he had lived at his father's home in Brooklyn, where I have frequently entered the great book lined library only to think the servant must have been mistaken who had told me that the master of the house was at work there. He was so diminutive that it did not take a very high desk to hide him completely from view. Well, when he moved over there it was 'Janice Meredith' that had made him the money sufficient to build the house on Seventy-seventh street, and he always referred to that home as 'Miss Meredith's present to me.'"

Another of the man's queer habits was that of having three or four desks in the room where he did his writing. Whenever he grew tired of his work, or when perhaps the inspiration ceased to move him, he would get up, light a cigar, move over to some other desk and go ahead with fresh interest and success.

Grant and Pettus.
An interesting war time story is told by Senator Bacon of Georgia. It is about Senator Pettus of Alabama.

"I MUST DECLINE TO ANSWER."
who, as everybody knows, was a gallant officer in the Confederate army. In one of the battles before Vicksburg Senator Pettus, then a colonel, was captured and carried as a prisoner before General Grant.

"Colonel," said Grant when the prisoner was brought before him, "what are those troops out in front of me?"

"General," replied Pettus, "I must decline to answer that question."

General Grant looked him in the eye for a moment. "You are right, colonel," he said. Then, turning to an officer near by, Grant said, "Take this gentleman to the rear and treat him kindly."

Senator Pettus has never forgotten that interview with General Grant—Washington Post.

Magic In a Name.
The old saying that the good which men do is oft interred with their bones does not hold good with the memory of the late Amos Cummings, as two members of the congressional delegation which went over to his funeral can testify.

These members, hailing a cab uptown in New York, were driven down to the Cortlandt street ferry to take a train for Washington. The cabman charged them $3. They protested, and the dispute was referred to a nearby policeman. The officer decided in favor of the cabman. "Pay the $3," he said to the two statesmen, "or I will take you to the station."

The two representatives became angrier every minute. The policeman was firm. "When you come to New York for a good time," he said finally, "you must expect to pay for it."

"Good time?" echoed one of the congressmen. "We came over here to help bury our old friend, Amos Cummings."

"Amos Cummings," repeated the policeman. "God bless him! Cabby, take a dollar and get away from here quick!"

So the congressmen gave the cabby a dollar and came home.

Door Opened the Wrong Way.
This story is told of Miss Evelyn Millard, an English actress of prominence:

She was playing in a melodrama, and in one of her scenes she was alone with the villain, who locked the door and then announced in the usual style, "Aha, proud damsel, you are in my power," etc., etc. Miss Millard rushed at the door, beat upon it violently and was immediately precipitated out of sight of the audience, while a voice in the wings said loudly, "Bless me, I forgot to warn the lady that that 'ere door opened the wrong way!"

Potato Souffle.
To make potato souffle, add to two cupfuls of smooth and well seasoned potatoes yolks of two eggs; stir over fire until eggs are heated through; when cool, beat in lightly whites of eggs beaten stiff; turn into pudding dish and brown in hot oven.

THE "EARLY-DAY" BUNCH

COMPLETE ROSTER OF COMPANY F, NINETEENTH TEXAS CAVALRY ORGANIZED FORTY YEARS AGO

Now in Possession of "Uncle Dan" Parker, a Citizen of Fort Worth, and Who Was a Member of the Company

"Uncle Dan" Parker, residing in Fort Worth, has a copy of the list of soldiers who composed Company F, Nineteenth Texas Cavalry, organized at Weatherford in 1862 by Capt. F. R. Ball and P. H. SOME FOUL GUTTERS

Complaint Made by the Public in Regard to the Condition of Streets in Some Places

Complaint is made about the foul condition of gutters in various places on principal thoroughfares, among them the horribly filthy condition along the west side of Houston, between Seventh and Ninth, and the east side of Main between Tenth and Twelfth, where it is said green scum accumulates. Street Commissioner Lahey says that the Ninth street trouble will be remedied as soon as the street car track work has been completed.

Complaint is also made of the street car work from Houston and Tenth to the Federal building in that it blocks each side of the street at intervals and the point is made that on side at least, should be kept clear for public use while the improvements are being made.

WHEAT'S ROOF GARDEN

One of the largest audiences of the roof garden season witnessed "The Country Girl" as put on the boards by the Ethel Tucker company last night.

The production was pleasantly interspersed with songs and monologue by specialists, leaving no tiresome waits between acts.

"The Jack of Diamonds" will be presented tonight, and there will be an entire change of bill each night for the remainder of the week.

Tricks of the Fahyaha.

The Fahyaha have a trick which is performed in this manner: They take a small cup, put it on the ground—all feasts are performed in the open air—and place in it a small bulb, which is then covered with sand. Taking a small fan from their waist and standing about two feet away, they fan a rosebush from the cup at least two and a half feet high, bearing quite a number of roses, one of which they will give for a piece of silver. The flower withers away into ether in twenty minutes. I have seen a peach, a pear and a plum tree grow from seed, bear fruit and wither away again in five hours. I have seen these Fahyaha throw themselves upon broken glass held in a large box that it would be impossible for any one else to touch without receiving a wound and never get a scratch.

Admiral and Chaplain.

On the return from a long cruise Admiral Goldsborough's chaplain was asked by the admiral whether or not he considered the result of his labors satisfactory from a clerical standpoint. "Yes," he answered, "the result has been in the main most satisfactory. The only serious impediment to progress with the sailors has been that it is impossible to prevent their swearing when they hear the officers guilty of the very fault for which I correct them." "Tut, tut, man, that is not to be helped. The officers all swear," replied the admiral. "I do it myself sometimes, but I don't mean anything—not a bit more than you do by your praying."

Saved by His Wits.

The Duke of Wellington once met by accident an officer in a state of inebrity. "Look here, sir," said the Iron Duke. "What would you do if you met one of your men in the condition in which I find you?" The officer drew himself up, gave the military salute and replied with great gravity, "I would not condescend to speak to the brute!" His wit saved him his commission. MILITIAMEN GOING HOME

FT. WORTH, ABILENE AND QUANAH COMPANIES AND BAND ARRIVED THIS MORNING

Foreign Attachments Spending Day Here Under Command of Captain, D. E. Ducker — Top Sergeant Brown Won in Individual Drill Contest

The Fort Worth Fencibles, commanded by Capt. B. C. Carter, the Abilene infantry, commanded by Captain Lassiter, the Swearingin Rifles of Quanaah, commanded by Capt. D. E. Decker, and the Fourth Regiment band of Bowie, arrived this morning on a belated Santa Fe train from Austin. The detachments going to Abilene, Decatur and Bowie, failed to make connections and are spending the day here. Captain Decker being the senior officer is in charge of the militiamen. He speaks well of this year's meeting, which was only made disagreeable by the rain. Captain Decker is nominee for the State senate from the Quanaah district.

Captain Carter and Lieutenant Hendricks of the Fencibles are both highly enthusiastic over the encampment, and Top Sergeant Brown is especially so for he carried off the prize, a medal and $20 in cash in the individual drill contest. There were about 50 men in the company, and during the encampment they had a taste of real campaigning, as it rained much of the time and they'd awake at night with the water soaking around them. Captain Carter says that one night his cot was afloat and he had to rig it up to the tent poles to get above high tide. The sham battle on Monday was one of the great events of the encampment, in which the Fencibles covered themselves with glory. There were four troops of cavalry present at the encampment from Fort Sam Houston which showed the boys touches of the real life. In the rifle practice Captain Carter scored 34 out of a possible 50 at 600 yards range and has been receiving congratulations on his marksmanship. During their stay but two of the Fort Worth boys got into the guard house, one of them for wearing his bayonet in town. This also speaks well for the discipline of the Fencibles. Captain Carter is wearing a fresh wound on his forehead, won not on the field of battle but in a runaway between the camp and the city. One man sustained a broken leg and others were badly bruised, but Captain Carter escaped very luckily.

SHREVEPORT MAN MADE HIGHEST BID

The rumored trouble between brick masons and the packing companies in North Fort Worth yesterday has been greatly exaggerated. Yesterday a contractor appeared to secure men to go to Shreveport, and offered them $5 per day, which is $1 above the scale. Eight from the works of Swift & Co. and a small number from the works of Armour & Co. left their places. The brick work on both plants has been suspended off and on for several days on account of the rain, but the contractors announce full time will be resumed tomorrow. Other classes of workmen are busy. Both plants are paying to brick masons $5 per day.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Thomas Hardy has refused to allow the publication of a pocket edition of his novels. Miss Williams, a sculptor of Atlanta, Ga., has just finished a bust of Cardinal Gibbons and has placed it on exhibition in New Orleans. Booth Tarkington says that when he returns from his bridal tour to Europe he will turn farmer, as he wants the rest and quiet that only the country can give. Mrs. Lily Martin Spencer, the artist who died recently, was prominent fifty years ago, the critics having nothing but the highest praise for her work. She was the daughter of a political exile from France and was a student at the New York Academy of Design. A French painter of historical pictures, M. Henri Dupray, has finished fifty-two battle scenes in which Englishmen are engaged, beginning with the battle of Hastings and ending with the relief of Peking in 1900. The pictures are exhibited in the Dore gallery, London.

Products From Bones.

The economy which is practiced in the average boarding house has become proverbial, but it is extravagance to the standard of economy practiced at a "bone mill." The chief product from bones is glue, and among other materials which are obtained from them are soap, glycerin and fertilizers. Nothing is wasted. Even the most economical boarding house has a few parings and husks to throw away. There are no parings and husks in the disposition of the bones. Ambitious. "I have no room for you at my office, my boy." "Don't yer want somebody dere when yer goes on yer vacation?"—New York Journal.

A VISION OF LIFE

[Original.] I stood on a bridge, beneath me gently flowing water, on one side a declivity, on the other a meadow wearing that shade of pale green which belongs to early spring. Across the meadow above a clump of oaks was a spire. The sun was peeping above the horizon, tinting the fields, the hills and the water a soft yellow glow, while the cross on the spire shone like burnished gold. Birds were on the wing hunting a breakfast, now and again sending forth a soft, musical piping. The sky was a pale azure. There was not even one fleecy cloud floating over its great, domelike surface. Suddenly from a clock in the church spire came a stroke, a harmonious blending of chords that I had never heard in earthly music. It seemed to me a fitting signal from heaven that a child had been born, a new soul launched on earth. While its entrancing melody was still filling my senses with a freshness that recalled the pulse of childhood a little girl emerged from the oaks which hid the spire and came quickly along the road leading to the bridge. She held in her hand a few wild flowers and stopped now and again to gather more. Coming on to the bridge, she passed me, tossing her ringlets and turning upon me a pair of blue eyes full of interest and wonder. "Is it not a beautiful world?" she said. "I am going to the hills. They are so mellow. I shall love to play on their grassy slopes."

She did not stop, and as she receded the last word seemed to come from an infinite distance. The scene changed. Where there had been fields there were dwellings. Trees had been cut away. Others that had been mere sprouts were casting broad shadows. The sun stood high in the heavens. The clock in the spire struck 2. There was a deeper, more intense melody in the strokes than before, both joyous and solemn, giving me an impression of great happiness blended with a sense of great responsibilities. The sound had not died away before there came from the hills a merry shout, and I saw a wedding procession moving toward me. The bride walked alone, followed by her family and friends. Reaching the bridge, she crossed it with a firm step, and when she turned her eyes to me I saw in them traces of the look I had seen in the little girl and knew that she was the same. She passed on, with her retinue, and was soon lost in the oaks that hid the church. Then there was a hush, and the strains of a wedding march burst forth. In another moment variegated tints were to be seen moving through openings in the trees. The married pair, followed by their friends, had left the church and were going to their home. The clock struck 3.

This time there was a mellow sound in its tones suggestive of autumn. On the hills hung purple grapes. Orchards were ruddy with fruits. Here and there flashed a scarlet leaf. The sun stood midway between the meridian and the horizon. Up the road came two figures, a woman and a youth. She was resting her hand affectionately on his shoulder, and it was plain that he was her son. The earnestness accompanying the words she was speaking to him, the sad look on her face, mingled with pride and hope, told me that she was sending him out into the world to play his part in life. At the bridge she embraced him, and he went on, while she stood looking after him. Turning, she fixed her eye momentarily on me, then slowly retraced her steps and was soon shut out of sight by the oaks. I had seen her for the third time. A single stroke broke upon midnight, a wail, a dirge, an essence of infinite misery. I looked about me and through the darkness saw that it was winter. The stream beneath me was congealed. The hills were white with snow. As the vibration of the bell came on they lost their melancholy, swelling slowly into strains of heavenly music. As the first stroke had signaled the birth of a child, this was a greeting to a soul that had trodden its earthly path and was being welcomed in heaven. I looked up into the dark vault studded with stars, and fancy showed me one more picture, a face in which were blended the child, the bride, the mother. In it there was neither youth nor age, but a sexless spirit of rare beauty, flickering like an aurora. It faded, and I saw my bedroom lighted by the faint glow of a night lamp. The vibration of the stroke I had last heard ended in the tones of the tiny bell of my repeater under my pillow. Reaching for the watch, I touched a spring, and it struck the hour of 1. I had gone to bed and to sleep at a few minutes after midnight. In less than an hour the musical strokes of my watch had given me in four pictures a vision of an entire life. The first stroke at the quarter had brought me the child hastening to enjoy the beauties of the world. Two strokes for the half had painted her entering upon the duties of life at her marriage. Three strokes for the third quarter had shown her starting a new generation over the course she had trodden in maturity. The fourth stroke for 1 o'clock was a funeral bell changing into a welcome to a new existence. There is no such thing as time. Between the strokes of midnight and 1 o'clock had I dreamed for an hour or lived a lifetime? J. A. MITCHELL.
