MINIATURE NAVAL BATTLE Two Squadrons of American Navy Pitted Against Each Other in Atlantic.

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 21.-The New England coast from Portland Harbor to Cape Cod is on a war basis and will be for some time to come. The men who are the most interested are the officers and crews of the vessels of the North Atlantic fleet which Rear Admiral Higginson commands.

To put the situation in a few words is to say that some where in the Atlantic is a fleet supposed by the North Atlantic squadron to be a hostile one which by strategy purely intends reaching the New England shore. On the other hand Rear Admiral Higginson is to use his fleet to stop the enemy. It is a war game to be worked out with real men manning actual fighting machines under unavoidable conditions of wind and wave with the probabilities and fog and storm and what is more important, the ever present danger of disaster on the reefs and shaols which naturally guard much of this coast line.

The war game began at noon when fleet out of the harbor of refugee here and went in search of the enemy. Tonight the picket line has been established and mimic war without the burning of gunpowder may begin at any moment.

All was activity on the defending squadron, although the night was one of the most beautiful of the summer making it almost certain that Commander Pillsbury would not be so rash as to attempt to run into the coast when his craft could be seen miles away.

HOME OF NOVEL DEVICES.

How Everard B. Wilton Runs His Household by Electricity.

There is a home in Shore View Park, Jamaica, in the borough of Queens, New York, where nearly all the household work is done by electricity, says the New York Herald, Everard B. Wilton, a retired hardware dealer and an inventor, occupies the home, and it was his cunning hand that devised and set in operation the many electrical appliances that evoke both the admiration and awe of his neighbors.

His meals are cooked by electricity. his baby is rocked by electricity, his rooms are swept and dusted by electricity, his doors are opened and shut by electricity, his house and grounds are lighted by electricity, the opening and closing of his front gate are controlled by an electric button in the house, telephones are in all the rooms and connected with his stable, where his horses are curried by electricity. There is an electric spanker to which the youngsters are at times introduced, factional differences in the Republican and even the movements of a flock of party. Cecil A. WORTH TELEGRAM PAUL'S FAMOUS SERMONS TO THE ATHENIANS

Preaches the Living God, to Them Unknown.

THURSDAY.

A DAILY CHAPTER FROM THE BIBLE.

OW while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry.

Therefore disputed he in the synagogue with the Jews, and with the devout persons, and in the market daily with them that met with him. Then certain philosophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountered him. And some said, What will this babbler say? other some, He seem that de a setter forth of strange gods; because he preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection.

And they took him, and brought him unto Areopagus, saying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

For thou bring st certain strange things to our ears: we would know herefore what these things mean.

(For all the Athenians and strangers which were there spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some new thing.) Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars' hill, and said, Ye men of Athens,

I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye. ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you. God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dweneth not in temples made with hands. Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation: That they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and nd him, though he be not far from every one of us:

For in him we live and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said. For we are also his offspring. Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device.

And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent: Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in ign cousness by that man whom he hath ordained; wherefore he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

The president. M. Fauvel, arrives and he and Bertomy accuse each other of the robbery. M. Lecoq and his assistant, Fanferlot, take up the case.

After failing in his attempt to solve the case alone Fanferlot goes to his chief and the two consult over a scratch which Fanferlot had noticed on the door of the Fauvel safe. They decide that two persons were at the door when the robbery was committed. one of whom tried to prevent the deed. Lecoq orders Fanferlot to hire himself to Count Louis DeClameran as coachman and valet. For lack of evidence Prosper is released from jail, with the cloud of disgrace hanging over his name.

Arriving at his lodgings, Prosper finds a stranger (M. Lecoq), who introduces himself as M. Verduret, a friend of Bertomy's father, and offers his help in finding the true robbers in order to clear Prosper of the disgrace. While they are talking M. De Lagors, a rich but fast friend of Prosper, and one whom Verduret suspects of complication in the robbery, is announced and Verduret conceals himself behind a curtain to hear the conversation.

Prosper's portrait of M. de Lagors had not been exaggerated. So hand-"The reporters—ought not to—the some a face and manly a figure could | ued seriously, "we have devoted master of himself, governed only though Raoul said that he was twenty- be good enough to change your dress, never would he have the patient per twenty. His first impulse was to throw himself into Prosper's arms. "My poor. dear friend!" he said, taking Prosper's hands. "My poor Prosper!"

But beneath these affectionate demonstrations there was a certain constraint, which, if it escaped the cashier, was noticed by M. Verduret.

"Your letter, my dear Prosper," said Raoul after being seated, "made me ill, I was so frightened by it. I asked myself if you could have lost your mind, Then I lett everything to come

"You must not feel discouraged," continued M. de Lagors. "At your age you may commence life anew. Your friends are still left to you. Rely upon me. I am rich. Half of my fortune is at your disposal."

This generous offer, made at a moment like this with such frank simplicity, deeply touched Prosper.

"Thanks, Raoul," he said, with emotion; thank you! But unfortunately all the money in the world would be of no use now."

"Why so? What are you going to do? Do you propose to remain in "I know not, Raoul. I have made no plans yet. My mind is confused." "I will tell you what to do," replied Raoul quickly. "You must start afresh, Until this mysterious robbery is explained it will never do for you to remain in Paris."

"And if it is never explained?"

"Only the more reason for your remaining in oblivion. I have been talkother day for stealing $90 from a man's ing about you to Clameran. You are pocket. There I would make a fortune and return to erush with my millions those who have suspected me."

This advice offended Prosper's pride, but he said nothing. He was thinking of what the stranger had said to him. "Well?" said Raoul.

"I will think it over. I will see. I would like to know what M. Fauvel "My uncle? I suppose you know

Raoul shook Prosper's hand and left the house. Prosper remained immovable, overcome by disappointment. He was aroused from his gloomy reverie by the red whiskered man, who came from his concealment. "So these are your friends."

"Yes," said Prosper, with bitterness. "You heard him offer me half of his fortune?"

M. Verduret shrugged his shoulders with an air of compassion. "That was very stingy on his part." he said. "Why did he not offer the

He went into the next room and closed the door. There he found Prosper, who had heard the bell ring and was anxious to know what was going on. "Here is a letter for you," said M.

Prosper at once tore open the envelope.

Some bank notes dropped out. He counted them. There were ten. Prosper's face turned purple. "What does this mean?" he asked.

"We will read the letter and find out," replied M. Verduret. The letter, like the address, was composed of printed words cut out and pasted on the paper.

It was short, but explicit: My Dear Prosper-A friend who knows the horror of your situation sends this succor. There is one heart, be assured, that shares your sufferings. Go away. Leave France. You are young. The fu-ture is before you. Go, and may this money help

As M. Verduret read the note Prosper's rage increased. He was angry and perplexed, for he could not explain the rapidly succeeding events which were so calculated to mystify his already confused brain. "Everybody wishes me to go away!" he cried. "Then there must be a conspiracy against me." M. Verduret smiled with satisfaction.

"Yet," said Prosper, who could not explain this certainty on the part of his protector-"yet"-"There is no yet about it. I have the

A. J. Montgomery, Puxico, Wayne ing after a Latin prefix as the grower

In other countries and in bygone years things were different as to the monetary rewards for successful growing of floral monstrosities. This was notably the case in the Netherlands during the early part of the seventeenth century. The country went mad over the tulip, and large bonuses in cash were offered for the production of perfect specimens of the different varieties, especially a true black. plant.

While the growing of these floral freaks has always been a matter of much interest to botanists, it has been a luxury with which the commercial florist, no matter how enthusiastic. could not afford to toy. He is mostly concerned in the successful raising of varieties for which there is a well known public demand. Thus experimentation has become a monopoly exjoyed by private botanical students and those at the head of botanical gardens and the conservatories attached to private estates.

New Way to Smelt Steel.

Success has attended the experiments of the method of smelting steel by electricity discovered by Herr Kjellin, a Swedish engineer. Tests were made on a large scale at the iron factory of Gysinge with perfect success. It is declared that electro steel of superior quality can be produced at the same cost as ordinary steel. The Gysinge factory is driven entirely by water power, and it is thought that the abundance of water power and iron ore throughout Sweden is certain Chicago, Ill. The sleeping-car that leaves Fort Worth on our night train is ready to receive passengers at NINE o'clock, each evening, and this car is set out at Colorado Springs for guests to vacate at their leisure. The place where the car waits is only about six miles from the mountains, and a beatiful sight greets the wakers from that long, refreshing Colorado sleep-under blankets.

This night train also has a sleeper that goes into Denver, reaching there at a comfortable rising time.

Both of our daily THRU TRAINS have those sleepers with "Large, Ladies' Dressing rooms," also meals served in our own Cafe Dining cars,a la carte service, 25c and up per individual. These special features of distinguishing excellence are among the characteristics that have, now for some time, made appropriate the "Only-One-Road" - and "You-Don't-Have-to-Apologize" verdict of persons who are capable of appreciating good service and making distinctions.

ELABORATE SOCIETY EVENT PRO-POSED TO BE HELD HERE THIS COMING FALL

Promoters Expect to Interest Principal Citizens and Enlist the Ladies in the Enterprise - Will Have Seating Capacity for 4,000 People

O. W. Mathews, Stuart Harrison, V. S. Wardlaw and Ireland Hampton are or the first of November and which fatal. will be a feature among all entertainments ever given or contemplated in this city. Negotiations have been entered into for the erection of seating capacity for from 3000 to 4000 people and for securing a large circus tent, one big enough to cover a good sized for the above number of visitors. The promoters are forming a corporation with the purpose of handling the enterprise and are of opinion that stock in it will be readily disposed of. It is not a commercial affair-that is it is not to be a place for the barter and sale of horseflesh, but will be for entertainment. It is the intention to it a society event. Lovers of fine horses can exhibit their thoroughbreds and enjoy the pleasure to be derived from the exhibitions of others, while the ladies-well, the ladies are strictly in it and know well how to secure the greatest amount of happiness and pleasure from such a swell affair as an elaborate display at a horse fair. It is believed that such an enterprise will meet with great interest on the part of many citizens and will be made a grand success. It will be a novelty for this section and if successful this season it may be made an annual affair as it is in the larger cities throughout the country.
