ENTIRE MARTINIQUE ISLE BEING SWALLOWED UP

Total Destruction Sure to Overtake the Island

GUADELOUPE IN FEAR

PEOPLE OF THE TOWN TREMBLE AND AWAIT AN IMPENDING FATE

ERUPTIONS MORE VIOLENT

Mouth of the Great Crater is Gradually Enlarging and the Burning Chasm is Perceptibly Widening Every Day—A Sorrowful Spectacle

Pointe a Pitre, Guadeloupe, Sept. 5.—It is generally believed that the entire island of Martinique is doomed to total destruction and the fear is that when the catastrophe comes Guadeloupe will be visited by an all destructive tidal wave.

Business is absolutely at a standstill. Few shops are open and if it were not for the efforts of a small number of more valiant souls, hundreds would starve to death here because of their fear of a more terrible day.

Eruptions Grow More Violent. Details that have been received during the last two days prove that the eruption of Mont Pelee of August 30 was far more violent than any of the earlier explosions.

As the eruptions continue, the mouth of Mont Pelee grows in size. It is now of enormous proportions. Morné Lacroix, one of the peaks that reared skyward from the side of the Pelee has fallen bodily into the crater and has been completely swallowed. There seems to be a side pressure in the crater and the burning chasm widens perceptibly every day.

Clouds still hang about the crest of Mont Pelee. The terrific heat seems to drive everything away. The column of flame and smoke rises directly into the heavens, so that its top is lost to sight. In the darkness of the night it has the appearance of a stream of molten iron standing fixed between heaven and earth. From Morné Capote the relief troops were compelled to make a quick retreat, although they succeeded in taking out a few wounded.

The entire country nearly to Fort de France is buried under a deep cover of ashes. This has made it almost impossible to find the bodies of those who have perished while fleeing to the seacoast.

Woman Gives Warning. Constantine Carra, one of the five who succeeded in escaping from Morné Rouge after the explosion, found refuge on the steamer Esk. She was with 12 others in her house when Pelee gave its first warning of the disaster which it was about to pour upon the village. She said that the first explosion destroyed many houses. She was hurried with great force against the wall of the room in which she was sitting.

Even at Fort de France, the most stout hearted have lost courage. Colonel Lecouer has reported to his government that in his opinion the entire island of Martinique will have to be abandoned. He asks for assistance in transporting the inhabitants to the other islands of the West Indian group.

London, Sep. 5.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Castries, St. Lucia, has given the following account of a phenomenon witnessed at the time of the recent outbreak of Mont Pelee on Martinique: "Between 8 and 9 o'clock on the evening of Aug. 30 a spectacle of terrible grandeur was witnessed from here. A pitch black cloud hung over the island of Martinique through which shot at intervals pillars of flame high in the sky, which broke in fantastic showers of fiery sparks. About nightfall in the clouds sparks were darting about like millions of fireflies, and above all these large aureoles appeared in the sky."

The correspondent then proceeds to confirm details of the eruption as already known, and says: "There was tremendous earth rumblings and explosions. The ground rocked and nothing could stand on the tables or shelves. Boats for St. Pierre were unable to reach the town owing to the fall of hot ashes, and a tidal wave destroyed the whole sea front of Le Carbet."

MONT PELEE DISASTER. Castries, B. W. I., Sept. 5.—The zone of destruction of Saturday night's eruption of Mont Pelee, Island of Martinique, paralleled that which destroyed the town of St. Pierre in May last, but it spread some five miles more eastward. The projection of destructive matter southward from Mont Pelee was almost identical with that of last May. The area embodied Morné

WHAT SOUTH AFRICAN WAR COST ENGLAND

London, Sept. 5.—An interesting parliamentary paper giving the military forces employed in South Africa from the beginning to the end of the late war has been issued. The garrison August, 1899, consisted of 318 officers and 9,622 men; reinforcements sent between then and the outbreak of hostilities, October, 11, 1899, totalled 12,546. Thereafter the troops sent up to May 31, 1902, reached the grand total of 386,081, besides 52,414 men raised in South Africa. The final casualty figures are: killed 5,774; wounded 23,029; died of wounds, or disease 16,168.

Rouge, the southern spur of Mont Pelee on which beautiful hill was the sanitarium of St. Pierre, dividing the Capote and Champs Dore valleys on the east and Ajoupa Bouillon and Metrie Reine on the west, the market gardens and cattle farms of which supplied St. Pierre. The inhabitants were removed from this area and several villages of Lorraine and Basse Pointe at the base of Mont Pelee after the May catastrophe, but they were sent back by the government last week. The gendarmes of Martinique officially report that 1160 persons were killed and 1500 injured by the latest showers of fiery hail.

Warships and steamers are taking the inhabitants from the coast villages, where people from inland places also have gathered for safety.

Survivors who have reached Fort de France describe the eruption as being the most violent yet experienced.

The detonations were heard at the Island of St. Kitts. The St. Vincent volcano, the Soufriere, was in eruption simultaneously. Awful detonations were heard along the southern islands at Trinidad.

VOLCANO DUST OUT IN SEA. Kingston, B. W. I., Sept. 5.—The German steamer, Castilla, which has arrived here from St. Thomas, D. W. I., reports encountering a heavy fall of volcanic dust while 800 miles at sea. She also reports the coast of Haiti completely obscured by the haze caused by the dust.

CORSICANA TO BE FORTUNATE Will Have Seven New Free Mail Delivery Routes

Corsicana, Tex., Sept. 5.—L. A. Thompson, special agent and examiner of the rural free delivery service, is here for the purpose of inspecting seven rural free delivery routes from this place, for which petitions have been in the hands of the department some time. Examinations have been held for applicants for the position of carriers. There will be at least be a number of routes, and there will be seven carriers. About 175 miles will be covered and mail will be delivered to about 3,500 people. The pay-roll of the local postoffice will be increased $4,200 a year.

Over Two Thousand Acres of Cotton Being Raised

Gonzales, Sept. 5.—Four hundred hands are at work on the big Willow Springs farm, probably the largest farm in southwestern Texas, gathering the cotton crop from 2,200 acres. The crop will reach about 700 bales. About 22 bales are being ginned daily at the Willow Springs gin. The entire farm has 13,000 acres of which 3,112 are cultivated. Three acres of tobacco peppers were raised last year but more will be produced as soon as a picking plant can be established on the farm. Water for the farm is furnished by twenty-three artesian wells.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES IN GREECE

Classic Hills Robbed of Verdure by Flames

London, Sept. 5.—In a dispatch from Athens the correspondent of the Times says destructive forest fires have occurred recently in every part of Greece. Some of the fires were from natural causes, but they were mostly of incendiary origin, the peasants firing the forests in order to clear arable land, or the shepherds doing the same thing to extend their pasturage.

WIRELESS IS WORKING WELL

London, Sept. 5.—It is reported here that a regular exchange of "Marconigrams" is proceeding directly across between the Italian warship Carlo Alberto, at Cadiz, Spain and Italy. FORT WORTH A HEALTH CENTER

SHOWING MADE FOR AUGUST IS QUITE SATISFACTORY

For a Population of 32,000 the Death Rate is Remarkably Low—Figures That Tell the Story

The healthy condition of Fort Worth is emphasized in the report to be made tonight by the city physician and sanitary officers to the city council.

August, usually, in all cities, is a month to be most dreaded of all the summer months, but the showing made in this report is certainly most satisfactory.

The number of patients treated in the hospital during the month was eight. Three of these were brought over from July. The amount of money paid out was $101.25. The drug bill for out-of-door patients amounted to $15.13.

The number of births for the month was 46—white males, 23; white females, 20; one male negro and two female negroes.

The deaths were 36—white males, 12; white females, 17; negro males, 4; females, 3. Fourteen of this 36 were non-residents, leaving only 22 residents, adults and children. In this 22 are included 2 babies found in the river and five deaths by violence, heat and excessive drink. This cuts the actual rate to 15. Take the conceded population of 32,000 into consideration, and it being the month of August, there are few "health resorts" in the United States that can make a better showing—or one as favorable.

No epidemic exists. "OX-HORNS" WAS CONVERTED

Salvation Came Free But Expenses Were Large

When Edward Payson Hammond, the great revivalist, passed through Illinois in the late sixties he did not neglect Galesburg, says Lippincott's magazine; he felt that Galesburg generally needed him, and that Ox-Horns Marshall needed him in particular.

A crown of glory awaited any revivalist who could win to the heavenly way John Marshall, the Galesburg tailor, whose store sign was a pair of huge, wide-curved horns, arching above his door. No one in Galesburg who knew of Marshall and his record put any faith in the old saw that it takes nine tailors to make a man. It was generally conceded that Ox-Horns Marshall, when he was properly loaded and carefully aimed in the direction of serious trouble, could attend to any nine men of the vicinity, near or remote. The ox-horns, which were his crudely improvised heraldic device, were acknowledged to be no more than justly typical of his prowess and of his strength in such bickerings as the Illinois of that clamorous day provided.

With Hammond, religion came to Galesburg. And as it came to Galesburg with its wrath and its repentance, it came to Ox-Horns Marshall. He reformed.

Galesburg, dazed at first, at last accepted the wonder of his reformation; but it hastened its evening meal in order to go to church and gaze with awe upon this child of evil from whom the blackness had been washed out. The glory of his amendment spread in undimmed radiance from town to town, and traveling salesmen—roystering friends of his in the unregenerated days—attended the revival meetings in order to see Ox-Horns Marshall bow that terrifying front of his in earnest, humble prayer.

There were four of one night, when of the reformed one felt the time had come for him to play a Christian's active part. He walked forward, seized the plate, and began to take up the collection. He did not see his friends of sin until he came directly to their pew; he was suffering from stage fright which seizes every man to whom that solemn plate is first introduced with all its stern responsibilities. Their presence took him by surprise. But his courage rose with the emergency.

"Chip in, boys!" he whispered hoarsely, "Salvation's free. But, oh, dear friends, remember it costs like hell—I to run a Methodist church!"

A LYNCHING AT HEMPSTEAD

A NEGRO IS STRUNG UP TO A TELEPHONE POST

ASSAULT, HIS CRIME

Five Hundred Citizens in an Orderly Manner Wreck Waller County Jail and End the Life of Jesse Waller

Hempstead, Tex., Sept. 5.—Jesse Walker, a mulatto about 22 years of age, was taken from the county jail in this city at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night by about 400 or 500 citizens of Waller county and strung to a telephone pole in the middle of the public square. The crowd was orderly, and not a shot was fired. The county jail is a complete wreck.

The revolting crime for which this negro was hanged was criminal assault on Mrs. H. C. Loggins, near North Station, in this county, last Sunday night. Walker was arrested Thursday and placed in jail, and was fully identified by both Mrs. Loggins and her little daughter, Mrs. Loggins, when shown the brute, identified him positively and fell in a faint, and is now very ill. The negro just before being hanged made a full confession. He made three confessions altogether, all of which were the same.

The mob was composed entirely of citizens of Waller county, and the mob did not attempt to hide or secrete themselves. Every act was done openly and in the full glare of a number of lanterns.

NO AUSTRALIAN BALLOT

City of Beaumont Goes Back on Old System

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 5.—The county commissioners in regular session have done away with the Australian ballot system and registration for this city and dismissed the registrar appointed for the last city election. The action has occasioned considerable comment among the citizens, who were more than pleased with registration, and as there is not the slightest doubt that Beaumont has a population of more than 10,000 people, it is contended that the county commissioners are in duty bound to have a registration of voters prior to an election.

SOME TEXAS STREAMS ARE HIGH

Lampasas in the Center of Very Wet District

Lampasas, Tex., Sept. 5.—Showers have been falling in this vicinity for the last two days, and Thursday the downpour was unusually heavy, causing all the creeks and branches to rise and a rise in Sulphur creek of about seven feet. The rain was much needed, it being the first since July 23. Another crop of forage, such as cane, Johnson and Colorado grasses, is assured, but it is generally thought by farmers that the rain came to late to benefit cotton.

Freight Wreck on International

Palestine, Tex., Sept. 5.—A very serious freight wreck occurred on the International and Great Northern near Troupe and traffic was suspended for several hours on the north end. The wreck was a head-end collision of two freight trains. The engines were pulling heavy trains and both were badly smashed and several box cars were demolished. Engineers Schnoor and Pittman were pulling the trains and escaped injury, as did their firemen.

Suit for Damages

Dallas, Sept. 5.—A suit was filed in the Fourteenth district court here today for $20,000 damages from the Rapid Transit Railway company and A. K. Bonta. The plaintiff, J. P. Burns, alleges that on Aug. 19, 1902, his wife was injured permanently while alighting from one of the defendants' cars by the cars being stopped at such a place that she stepped into a depression in the ground and fell.

BRINGS SUIT FOR OIL LANDS

Valuable Property in Beaumont District in Dispute

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 5.—A suit which involves valuable property has been begun in the district court here by Anna W. Roberts and Matthew Cartwright of Kaufman county against the Arlington Realty company and the South Beaumont Land and Improvement company. The petition is notable for its unusual brevity. It alleges that on Sept. 1, 1902, the plaintiffs were the owners and possessors of a tract of land in the David Brown survey, in Jefferson county. It is also alleged that upon that day the defendants unlawfully entered upon and dispossessed the plaintiffs of said land, thereby damaging them to the amount of $100,000. Restoration and such other relief and such damages as the court may declare the plaintiffs are entitled to are asked.

Rejection Restraining Sale

Paris, Tex., Sept. 5.—At the spring term of the Paris federal court last year final judgment was rendered against Sidney and Bud Burch, charged with cattle theft, and against James Matthews and Chas. Smith, their sureties, on a forfeited bond, for $1000 and costs. The execution was placed in the hands of the United States marshal for the southern district of the Indian Territory, who levied on property of the surety Chas. Smith and advertised it for sale. On a showing made by Smith that one of the bondsmen was insolvent and that the enforcement of the judgment against him along would bankrupt him, Judge D. E. Bryant in chambers at Sherman granted an injunction restraining the marshal from selling the property pending compromise negotiations for a settlement.

Negro Disarms an Officer

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 5.—While Special Police Officer Blevins was marching a prisoner whom he had arrested for beating a woman before him, with his pistol in hand, the prisoner turned on him suddenly, knocked him down, kicked him into insensibility, took the pistol from him and cracked him several times over the head with it and escaped. The pistol was left in a nearby saloon, and Blevins was picked up and given medical attention. Beyond a severe scalp wound he is not seriously injured.

Shot by His Son-in-Law

He was still alive Thursday morning, but no hopes of his recovery are entertained. After the shooting Sam Ashley, his son-in-law, went to Forney, where he surrendered.

The President's Double

If the president had been seeking a double of himself, he could not have come more closely to the mark than in the man selected for Secretary of the Navy, and while the resemblance may be very striking, there is no more possibility of his being taken for the Executive than there is of success in palming off a substitute remedy for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It has become so well known as a cure for headache, nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, and malaria that many unscrupulous dealers will refill the bottles with a bogus article and offer it as the genuine. Beware of such counterfeits. The genuine Hostetter's Bitters has their Private Stamp unbroken over the neck of each bottle. Don't fail to try it.

ONE STRIKE AT AN END

WEST VIRGINIA DIFFERENCES ARE SETTLED

WORK WILL RESUME

All of the Old Miners Will Be Taken Back and They Have Ratified the Agreement — Railroad Men Want Arbitration

Huntington, W. Va., Sept. 5.—It is now believed the coal strike in West Virginia is practically at an end. At a mass meeting of the miners of all the coal fields along the Norfolk and Western railroad here Thursday it was almost unanimously agreed to end the strike provided the operators would take back all the old miners and they have signified their intention of doing this. The miners have agreed to return to work next Monday morning. President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers advised the strikers to return to work, as he realized that winter was near at hand and the miners in this field could not hold out much longer as almost every one was dependent upon the union for food and clothing.

It is thought the strikers in the New River and Kanawha fields will soon follow the action of the strikers on the Norfolk and Western. The Pocahontas mine continues to burn, but the operators think they will soon have it under control.

APPEAL TO STONE

Want a Special Session of Legislature to Pass Arbitration Law

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 5.—Gov. Stone was waited upon by a committee from the state legislative board of railway employes of Pennsylvania Thursday evening and requested to take immediate steps to bring about a settlement of the strike in the anthracite coal regions and if necessary call an extra session of the legislature for the enactment of a compulsory arbitration law. The committee made a signed statement setting forth that the strike is causing much distress among the anthracite miners and their families, hardship to millions of people and proving disastrous to the business interests of the state. The committee stated that railway employes depend upon coal traffic for four-fifths of their living and that they were not making as good wages as before the strike. He said the board was preparing a bill, which its members believed would end the strike and prevent strikes in the future if it should become a law.

Wisconsin Democrats Turn Down the Kansas City Platform

Milwaukee, Sept. 5.—The Democratic state convention smashed many of the slates which had been prepared. One of the sensations of the day was an attempt to induce John W. Wattawee, the nominee for lieutenant governor, to withdraw from the ticket because of certain rumors concerning him. Mr. Wattawee refused absolutely to entertain the proposition and the conferees then set about to fix a slate for the balance of the ticket which to their minds would be a winner. In this they were far from being successful for with two exceptions more than one name went before the convention. The biggest surprise and a sensation just before the convention adjourned endorsing the national platform. While the delegates gave a respectful hearing to its reading, it was not entertained for an instant.

Two Americans Killed

Washington, Sept. 5.—The acting adjutant general has received a cable message from General Chaffee at Manila, saying that James Foley and Henry C. Varr of the Twenty-seventh Infantry were killed in the engagement at Vicks Camp, island of Mindanao, in a recent engagement, and that Otis Van Dora was seriously wounded and Peter Christenson was slightly wounded on the same occasion.

Could Not Get Work

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 5.—Because they could not get work James B. Taylor and his wife wrote a letter to the public blaming the greedy corporation and trusts for their failure. They then turned on the gas, and when found the husband was dead and the wife dying in their room at a boarding house.

The Wife's Health

Helps to Pluck the Evil From Our Nature

Has much to do with the attractiveness and happiness of home. If she is physically healthy and cheerful, she will be the more human to her companions, never get peevish and cross. Men do not want angry, but wives who are too bright or good. For business, socially, home, pleasures, simple joys, trials, blame, love, kisses, tears and smiles. To keep husbands loyal, affectionate and home-loving, wives must be companionable, cheerful and kind. Any woman can be simply a bore—the marriage ceremony settles that—no woman who endures afflictions should be a bore. Her greatest danger lies in her inability to special arrangements from which she is exempt. G. F. P.'s Female Balm is a wonderful and safe remedy for all such ailments. It is sold at drug stores and by mail. These statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

INDIANS WORTH THOUSANDS

Quinaults' Reservation to Be Allotted to Them

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 5.—The happiest Indians in the Northwest are the Quinaults, who own an immense but fertile and heavily timbered reservation in Chehalis county, skirting the Pacific Ocean. The tribe now numbers 111 members, every one of whom has been made worth individually from $5,000 to $7,000 by the decision of the Interior Department to allot them lands in severalty and open the remainder of the reservation to settlement by whites.

The Quinaults have lived chiefly by fishing and clam digging. Few of them have engaged in farming in previous years. Now every member of the tribe has staked out a claim of the fertile bottom lands along the Quinault river. They will probably receive 320 acres each. Many Quillayute Indians from Clallam county are joining them, and will claim a right to the allotment. In staking claims preparatory to the allotment the Indians have left untouched the heavy timber belt, which would make them a still greater fortune. There are no mills in that section, and they do not appreciate the value of the timber. The government is now having the reservation surveyed preliminary to making the allotments.

HAYTI SITUATION SERIOUS

Business Suspended and no Settlement of Trouble in Sight

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—Letters received from Hayti says that the situation in that republic is becoming more complicated. In the chamber of deputies as now constituted, M. Pierro, one of the candidates for the presidency, has a majority over his rival, M. Pouchard, while H. Firmin's revolutionary party is making headway in the field. No settlement of the difficulties is in sight, business is entirely suspended in the chief towns and the public employes are leaving their work because they have not been paid since General Sam resigned the presidency and left the country.

Morris secured the home for him and while the boy is delighted to go, he regrets leaving his church, Clerk Newby. "Andy" had a great desire to don a uniform and Clerk Newby was arranging to have one of his old uniforms made over for the boy. "Andy" came to the station saying he had neither parents or relatives, and asked to be allowed to remain there and do errands until a home could be found for him. He is a bright, honest little fellow, and the boys about the station became much attached to him, and he to them. Mr. Morris will take him to Childress within the next few days.

RESULTS OF CHEERFULNESS

Helps to Pluck the Evil From Our Nature

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." And, conversely, as a man appears to be, so will he think in his heart. In other words, if one is happy and cheerful and kind, he will smile, he will speak cheerfully, he will do acts of kindness. On the other hand, and this is just as important, to smile and to speak kindly and in a kindly tone, even if one feels unhappy or angry or discouraged at the moment, so reacts on the man's inner being that he begins to feel what he has been stimulated. This is a good thought and it points to a plain duty. We should never allow ourselves to look press outwardly by word or by look, any unkind or unhappy thought or feeling. To do so is only to tend and foster that feeling, to make it grow and get final hold on the character. But by affecting the helpful virtues we will dwarf and finally pluck out altogether the evil in our nature, and we become in character the good things we have caused to appear in our countenances and in our voices.—Woman's Home Companion.

Shelbyville, Ky., Sept. 5.—Fisher Millon, a negro who was indicted in 1901 for vagrancy, and who has been at large since, was captured in Lawrenceburg and tried here before Judge Davis in the county court. Mercury and Polash

ONLY SERVE AS A MASK FOR CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

They hide its repulsive form, and this serpent disease, stupefied by these drugs, lies dormant until the effects have worn off or treatment is discontinued, when it breaks down the mask and becomes as full of life and venom as ever. Mercury and Polash may dry up the sores and eruptions, but at the same time they drive the poison back into the blood and system, where it feeds upon the tender tissues, membranes and nerves, finally breaking out in most disgusting sores, and even destroying the flesh and bones.

Mercury and Polash cannot accomplish a radical and permanent cure. They have a palliative but not curative effect upon this treacherous snake-like disease. These drugs produce mercurial Rheumatism, destroy the teeth and corrode the membranes of the stomach and bowels, causing inflammation and dyspepsia, nervousness and general derangement of the system.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, Sept. 5, 1922

In nearly every city there is one bank which is advertised in the newspapers according to modern ideas—just as any other wide-awake business concern is advertised. The head of such a bank at Pittsburg says: "There are some bright men building up financial institutions through the use of newspaper space just now and the next few years will see great advances in this field."

Advice to Admiral Schley: See Fort Worth and live.

David B. Hill says he has never kissed a woman. Gee!

The viaduct is growing. Three rivets were put into place this day.

The bicycle trust is reported to be in bad shape. Needs blowing up.

It's no wonder "Teddy" escaped unhurt from that street car-drag collision. He did it by the skin of his teeth.

If the type that has been set about the Jennings avenue viaduct, were all put together, it would make a modest little viaduct of its own.

The Republican central committee has appointed its sub-committees to take care of the convention. We fail to note a committee on harmony.

The eruptions of Mont Pelee and Soufriere would do good work, if they would far some of those heathenish names out of shape so that they couldn't be used again.

Fort Worth has one of the finest libraries buildings, thanks to Mr. Carnegie, in the South. It still, however, lacks sufficient funds with which to keep the book shelves properly filled. What are we going to do about it?

"What can I do to help Fort Worth?" A practical question that should be put by every Fort Worth citizen to himself. And then there should follow a bit of coat shedding, some rolling up of sleeves and a determination to carry out the answer to the question.

Much telegraph toll has been paid on the story of a shooting scrape in which the divinity who flutters about the Collins P. Huntington kitchen, was probably fatally shot by a gardener assistant at the same place. Considering the high social standing of both parties, it is a wonder the scandal crept into print at all.

The rival candidates for congressional honors in the Fifteenth Texas district, Hon. John N. Garner and Hon. John C. Scott, are to meet in joint debate at Floresville tomorrow. Mr. Garner is the Democratic nominee. He has a large following in his district, is a man of fine attainments and deservedly popular. He will not come out second best in a debate on the issues of the campaign.

ROOSEVELT'S ACCIDENT. Sometimes it requires a crisis to measure a man. It more often requires a critical period in his history to determine his standing with the people. It is to be regretted that in many places, the worth of the late President McKinley was not fully appreciated until death had claimed him.

The accident which befell President Roosevelt and nearly ended fatally for the nation's chief ruler, has brought out expressions that otherwise would have been unsaid. And after all the fun that has been poked at the "rough rider" chief of the republic, there is underneath an honest

JOHN, ON PATMOS, HATH A WONDERFUL VISION

And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse; but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him: And they shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun: for the Lord God giveth them light; and they shall reign for ever and ever. And he said unto me, These things are faithful and true; and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be done. Behold, I come quickly; blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book. And I John saw these things and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things. Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not; for I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God. And he saith unto me, Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book; for the time is at hand. He that is unjust, let him be unjust still; and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still; and he that is holy, let him be holy still. And behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter into the gates into the city. —Revelations 22; 1-14.

A FEW STORIES

While General Sherman lived in New York he occupied one night each week the proscenium box on the south side of the stage of Daly's theater. It was called "Sherman's box." The gentle German who played the bass viol whispered to his fellow musicians that the general's tobacco juice was destroying his fiddle. The old soldier spat in a sort of spray that sprinkled things in the neighborhood of the big fiddle. "Why don't you complain to Mr. Daly?" asked the leader of the orchestra. "Complain of General Sherman? Never! He was my commander in the war and I would not complain if he spied ebery nide in my face!" was the reply.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia college, and who was given a degree last commencement day by the University of Pennsylvania, was recently engaged in talking with a friend about the careers of various Columbia graduates who had gone ahead in the world. One of two alumni whose names had come up had been recently created a judge; the other a bishop. "Well," said President Butler's friend, "the latter has the better position, I think. A judge, at the most, can say only: 'You'll be hanged,' but a bishop can say 'You'll be damned.'"

General Sir William Olpherts, recently deceased, otherwise known as "Hell Fire Jack," a celebrated British soldier, was famous for his blunt language. During a critical period in the Indian mutiny one of the Irish regiments complained because it had no potatoes. Olpherts, who was in command of the district, heard of the trouble and ordered the regiment out on parade. "Now, my men," he shouted as he rode in front of the lines, "I hear you want potatoes! Is that so?" "We do, we do!" howled the regiment with its thousand throats. "Then you won't get 'em," replied Olpherts. "You're good enough soldiers, I'll admit, but if you think that Providence is willing to grow potatoes for your benefit on the dry plains of India you're blundering fools than I take you for." The demand for potatoes ceased.

Justice Brown of Joplin has rendered a decision which will win for him the gratitude and admiration of every man who uses the weed. The city is trying to compel its merchants to keep their stores closed on Sunday. The law permits the necessities of life to be sold on the Sabbath. During the trial of a test case it was proved that a grocer had sold chewing tobacco. His attorney immediately raised the point that chewing tobacco was a necessity of life, and the court sustained him, and said the man had a right to keep his store open to sell that indispensable commodity. Oh, wise judge.—Kansas City Journal.

Beware of the Knife No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cures quickly and permanently. Unequalled for cuts, burns, bruises, wounds, skin diseases. Accept no counterfeits. I was so troubled with bleeding piles that I lost much blood and strength," says J. C. Phillips, Paris, Ill. "De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me in a short time." Soothe and heal. San Antonio Express: Texas Republicans seem very slow to learn that they cannot hold their party together by bolts.

Texas Stockman and Farmer: Every farmer can raise a hundred dollars worth of hogs on his place each year from products that generally go to waste.

El Paso Times: Appreciation of a good joke is sufficient excuse for reproducing the following from platform of Illinois Populists: "Wee look on the Republican party with its gold standard and its banking policy as our open enemy, with no intention of concealing its purpose. We look on the Democratic party as a party of barter and sale, its principal object being to get office, with its history of fusion, broken promises, intrigue and deceit, as the secret enemy of the Populist party. While the Republican party does something and raises hell, the Democratic party raises hell and does nothing."

Weatherford Herald: "Goose-neck" Bill McDonald is about the only prominent Republican in this state who has no designs on the chairmanship.

Houston Post: Secretary Wilson thinks the price of beef should decline because of the big corn crop. The people would like to see it decline because of their big appetites.

A RIVAL TO CARNEGIE

Cash Awards to the People Instead of to Libraries Andrew Carnegie, Scotchman, American and philanthropist, has given away millions to build libraries that the people may be benefited. Up to a few months ago he stood without a peer. His philanthropy was of the peculiar kind that only a man with a fortune similar to his own could indulge. But from the serried ranks of business comes a challenge to Carnegie liberality.

Carnegie might smile if he were told his generosity had been rivalled by the American Cigar company. But if he were informed that this company had decided to disburse $142,500 among its patrons it would furnish him a theme for serious thought. That is why the American Cigar company is engaging in this specific bit of philanthropy. It wants the American public to think.

Cigarmaking is by no means an occupation devoid of improvement. The American Cigar company has shown this, and it is adding to the mass of evidence every day. The public has no argument against this assertion. It knows the various brands of cigars the American Cigar company proudly refers to as its record of achievement in a popular field as the best and largest selling brands of cigars in the world. These various brands the American Cigar company made to satisfy the taste of every smoker seeking a high-grade smoke at 5 cents are the Crema, Chiffon, Cubanola, Floradora, etc. There is more than 5 cents worth of value in every one of them.

There are a very large number of these cigars sold. There can be more sold. The American Cigar company is willing to give $142,500 to stimulate this sale.

It wants the public to think now many cigars bearing a tax of $3 a thousand the United States will collect taxes on during the coming month of December. And it will pay $142,500 to these thinkers next January.

This is the acme of business progressiveness. To step across this line is beyond the power of any organization of business people, save that of the American Cigar company. As yet there has been no one to even share a position with this company.

There can be no doubt of the popularity of such an enterprise, for people all over the country are showing an interest that means something. Enthusiasm of this sort betokens good for those toward whom it is aimed. In this case the American Cigar company is the bull's-eye of the target. The people, of whom there will be 35,213, will benefit handsomely by the plan, and the American Cigar company will be glad to see them prosper.

FASHION HINTS

The fashionable summer wrap is quite a costly garment, as the latest models are of pale fawn and biscuit Arabian lace mounted on glass silk and adorned with ruffled and plaited frills of chiffon. The sack or palmeto shape is universal in these models, and a similar coat in cream white renaissance or luxelle lace is smart for evening wear. The long sack coat in putty or fawn tints decorated with cream lace and velvet straps is useful on cool days or for driving and motor wear. Young people still patronize the short sack bolero which reaches barely to the waist, and this set in broad plaits and stitched half way down is an up to date model in black or mastic tones, with the inevitable touch of lace or velvet.

The dress shown is of gray crepe de chine. The waist is collarless and is trimmed with a yoke and wide bands of lace. The fullness at the sides is shirred on both waist and skirt. The latter has a long train edged with lace applique. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Johnson's Peculiarities. Dr. Johnson was a eulogist of London, and it was down Fleet street that he took his daily walk, which, owing to the series of tasks he made compulsory on himself, was a really curious performance. First every post required to be touched as he passed; next it was a point of honor to step exactly in the middle of each paving slab, and, lastly, as he approached his destination a series of graduated strides had to be employed in order to reach the door with one particular foot.

CASE By... Emile Gaboriau

During the last few minutes Raoul had managed to approach the door, hoping to escape while no one was thinking of him. But M. Verduret, watching him out of the corner of one eye, stopped him just as he was about to leave. "Not so fast, my pretty youth," he said, dragging him into the middle of the room. "Let us have a little conversation before parting. A little explanation will be edifying."

The jeering words and mocking manner of M. Verduret made Raoul turn deadly pale. He started back as if confronted by a phantom. "The clown!" he gasped. "The same, friend," said the fat man. "Ah, now that you recognize me, I confess that the clown and myself are one and the same. Yes, I am the jolly clown of the Jandrier ball. Here is the proof."

And, turning up his sleeve, he showed a deep cut on his arm. "If you are not sure, examine this scar," he continued. "I imagine you know the villain that gave me this little decoration that night I was walking along Bourdaloue street. That being the case, you know I have a slight claim upon you and shall expect you to relate to us your little story."

But Raoul was too terrified to utter a word. M. Fauvel listened without understanding. "Into what dark depths of shame have we fallen!" he groaned. "Reassure yourself, monsieur," replied M. Verduret. "After what I have been constrained to tell you little remains. I will finish the story."

He then told how Louis Clameran had concocted his plot to palm off Raoul as Mme. Fauvel's son with a view to extort money from her. "Can this be possible?" cried Mme. Fauvel. "Impossible!" cried the banker. "An infamous plot like this could not be executed in our midst."

"All this is false!" said Raoul boldly. "It is a lie!" M. Verduret turned to Raoul and, bowing with ironical respect, said: "Monsieur desires proofs, does he? Monsieur shall certainly have convincing ones. I have just left a friend of mine, M. Palot, who brought me valuable information from London. Now, my young gentleman, I will tell you the little story he told me."

"In 1847 Lord Murray, a wealthy and generous nobleman, had a jockey named Spencer, of whom he was very fond. At the Epsom races this jockey was thrown from his horse and killed. Lord Murray grieved over the loss of his favorite and, having no children of his own, declared his intention of adopting Spencer's son, who was then but four years old.

"Thus James Spencer was brought up in affluence as heir to the immense wealth of the noble lord. He was a handsome, intelligent boy and gave satisfaction to his protector until he was sixteen years of age. Then he became intimate with a worthless set of people and turned out badly.

"Lord Murray, who was very indulgent, pardoned many grave faults, but one fine morning he discovered that his adopted son had been imitating his signature upon some checks. He indignantly dismissed him.

"James Spencer had been living in London about four years, managing to support himself by gambling and swindling, when he met Clameran, who offered him 25,000 francs to play a part in a little role which he had arranged."

"You are a detective?" interrupted Raoul. "The fat man smiled grimly. "At present," he replied, "I am merely a friend of Prosper Bertomy. It depends entirely upon your behavior which character I appear in while setting up this little affair."

"What do you expect me to do?" "Where are the 350,000 francs which you have stolen?" "The young rascal hesitated a moment.

"The money is in this room," he said. "Very good. This frankness is creditable and will benefit you. I know that the money is in this room and also exactly where it is to be found. Look in the back of that cupboard."

Raoul saw that his game was lost. He tremblingly went to the cupboard and pulled out several bundles of bank notes and an enormous package of pawnbrokers' tickets. "Very well done," said M. Verduret as he carefully examined the money and papers. "In this you have acted wisely."

Raoul had counted on this moment, when everybody's attention would be absorbed by the money, to make his escape. Softly he stole toward the door, opened it, slipped out and locked it on the outside. The key was still in the lock.

"He has escaped!" cried M. Fauvel. "Naturally," replied M. Verduret.

without turning his head. "I thought he would have sense enough to do that."

"But—" "Would you have this affair become public? Do you wish a case to be brought into the police court in which your wife is the victim?"

"Oh, monsieur!" "Then let the rascal go free. Here are the 350,000 francs. Here are receipts for all the articles which he has pawned. We should consider ourselves fortunate. He has kept 50,000 francs. So much the better for you. This sum will enable him to go abroad, and we shall never see him again."

Like every one else, M. Fauvel submitted to the ascendancy of M. Verduret. Gradually he had awakened to the true state of affairs. Prospective happiness was possible, and he felt that he was indebted to M. Verduret for more than life. He was not slow in expressing his gratitude. He seized M. Verduret's hand, as if to carry it to his lips, and said, with emotion:

"How can I ever find words to express my appreciation? How can I repay the great service you have rendered me?"

M. Verduret reflected a moment and then said: "Since you feel under obligations to me I have a favor to ask of you."

"A favor of me? Speak, monsieur. You have but to name it. My fortune and life are at your disposal."

GEORGE GOULD GOES TO CATCH FISH IN IDAHO

On His Return Will Probably Spend Two Weeks More in Colorado—He May Not Now Come to Texas It Is Thought

Railroad officials were anxious yesterday to learn just where the George Gould party was, and whether or not they were headed for Fort Worth, or over Texas. Usually in such cases the officials are given little warning in advance and they are naturally worried sometimes by the conflicting stories which appear.

The Gould party has left Pueblo, Col., for Salt Lake City and will probably stop off a few days in Idaho for a fishing excursion. On their return, Mr. Gould will spend two weeks in Colorado, so there is little prospect of his coming to Fort Worth soon.

In the party are Mrs. Gould and two sons, President Jeffrey of the Rio Grande, General Manager Russell Harding of the Missouri Pacific and Vice President C. G. Warner and Traffic Manager W. C. Smith of the same road. The party travels in three special cars.

While in Pueblo Mr. Gould issued a positive denial that he is interested in Colorado Fuel and Iron company's stock and stated that the only object of his tour was pleasure and inspection.

NOT WORRIED OVER REDUCTION

The Frisco Officials in St. Louis Talk of Cuts

A special to the Houston Post from St. Louis says regarding the cut of Frisco rates: "Frisco officials at the St. Louis headquarters do not appear to be worried over the action of the Texas railroad commission in issuing an order reducing all current commodity and class freight tariff on the Frisco line in Texas 20 per cent."

"This reduction," stated an official today, "which amounts to about 30 per cent, only affects a small portion of our business. The meaning of the order is that the rates will be effective over, for instance, the three companies operating with separate headquarters in Texas, south of the Red river, just as if the three lines were under one set of officials."

"We have considered that as we have to maintain separate headquarters for each one of the stretches of track in Texas that form a second line, we should be allowed to make rates for each separate line. But the commission holds that, although separate headquarters are maintained for each of the divisions or separate companies, the whole make up the Frisco system in Texas and that the rate should be made to cover the entire distance covering the three lines. The new rates won't affect anything except local business in Texas."

"This official does not think that the action of the commission is to punish the road for an alleged cutting of rates on salt or interstate rates from St. Louis and East St. Louis to Texas points."

SANTA FE'S VALUABLE RIGHT

Definite Announcement of M. K. & T. Concessions to Be Made

Some time ago it was rumored that the Santa Fe had secured concessions from the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, for the use of the latter's line from Gainesville to Sherman, via Denison, but nothing has been heard of the proposition for some time.

This morning it was learned from the best of authority that this move on the part of the Santa Fe has been accomplished and definite announcement of the fact will be made in a few days.

The Santa Fe crosses the Missouri, Kansas and Texas at Gainesville, too far west to make practical, the running of a stub to either Sherman or Denison. The securing of the right to run over the Missouri, Kansas and Texas line lets the Santa Fe into a valuable territory in Grayson county and gives the advantage of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas triangle. The new addition to the Santa Fe's facilities is expected to be put in use very soon.

The contest for the naming of the Rock Island's new train has ended with the selection of the "Golden State Limited," from 7000 titles offered. The name was offered by T. H. Davies, who is connected with the Denver office of the New York Central, who gets the $100 prize offered.

The ten trains required for the service have been completed and will be in operation Nov. 1, running via the Rock Island system to El Paso and thence over the Southern Pacific.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT IS CALLED

$35,000 Is Asked from Cotton Belt at Tyler

(Special to the Telegram) Tyler, Tex., Sept. 5.—The big Bolton damage suit against the Cotton Belt route has been called for trial in the district court here. The suit is for $35,000 for personal injuries and dates back 15 months, when Pearl Bolton, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Hilliard, was struck by a Cotton Belt passenger train, about two miles from here. It is alleged that the child sustained permanent injuries. The suit was filed May 2, 1901, by Johnson & Edwards for W. C. Bolton, next friend and guardian of Pearl Bolton. Marsh, McIlwaine & Fitzgerald represent the railway company.

HOSKINS' CONDITION SERIOUS

Young Man Injured by Falling Door Still Ill

At the Protestant sanitarium Oram Hoskins, the young man injured by a falling freight car door at the Frisco depot, still lies in a serious condition. While strong physically, his mind still seems to be affected by the concussion his brain received at the time of the accident. The surgeons in attendance are unable to say whether or not his mind will regain its normal condition soon.

A PILFERING COVENE

Caught By His Aunt in Effort to "Develop" Her Purse

Officer Speight was called to a house on Calhoun street this morning at 6:45 o'clock to take charge of a boy, aged 13, named Archie Kelly. Archie's aunt made the complaint, and opposite the boy's name on the register is the word "theft."

The aunt of the boy has been missing money from her purse for several days, each morning a small amount of change failed to appear in her purse, and she suspected that Archie was guilty of pilfering. Last night she placed her purse in the mattress of her bed, and this morning about 6 o'clock she discovered Archie under her bed cutting away at the mattress in an effort to secure the hidden purse.

The boy was brought over to the station and locked up. He has the reputation of being a bad boy.

MAY MAKE THE STATE MONEY

Big Sugar Mill at Convict Farm in Brazoria County

The big sugar cane mill being built on the state convict farm of 8,000 acres in Brazoria county, will be ready for work about November 1 according to reports, and it is believed that the mill will handle the crop of the 2,000 acres that have been planted in cane. The buildings for the mill are all up and the expert workmen are installing clarifiers, rectifiers and vacuum pans. The whole factory is worked by about 250 convicts. A cheap grade of molasses and sugar will be manufactured. It is expected that the sale will result in some profit to the state. The mill will cost the state $269,000 and will be up-to-date in every respect.

TWO DAMAGE SUITS FILED

One for $10,000 and one for $800—Basis for Claims

There were two damage suits filed last yesterday afternoon in the district clerk's office—one for $800 and the other for $10,000. The first was by J. W. Reed, who claims the International and Great Northern railway in coming near his property situated on the South Side has damaged him to this amount. The second suit is styled Kate Danklefs vs. E. P. Weirnach, and is a suit on a liquor license, and alleges defendant has sold liquor to some one in violation of the law.

NICK OF TIME

A Discovery at the Right Moment

The importance of finding the right food is invaluable when the stomach revolts and the nourishment of the body becomes a problem.

Mrs. Fannie Hall of Orleans, N. Y. was an invalid for over ten years, hardly able to drag herself around the house and nothing she ate seemed to nourish her. She had chronic diarrhoea, her food did not digest and she was so nervous she could not bear the least noise or excitement.

She writes, "About a year ago I was looking over a paper when the name of Grape-Nuts caught my eye and I determined to try them. I sent for a package and I have never been without them since; they seem to be the thing I need."

When I commenced eating Grape-Nuts I weighed 115 pounds and now I weigh 145 pounds and am well and do my own work."

My children think they cannot get along without them and I use a package a day.

The whole family eat them for dessert with cream, in preference to anything else. When I go away I always take a package with me as no other food agrees with me as well. I at ways call Grape-Nuts the "lucky food" as I think I owe my life to them."

PROCLAIMED THE GOSPEL

REV. CHARLES W. HOLDEN IN CORPORATION COURT

Said He Was Sent by Christ to Rescue the Sinners of the Acre from an Impending Hell—Exhorts From Housetop

There is one thing the builders of Fort Worth have neglected to provide—a mountain. Because of this oversight, Rev. Charles W. Holden was forced, he claimed, to utilize a house top from which to proclaim the gospel to the multitude. Another deviation from Bible precedents is noticed in Mr. Holden's actions in exhorting at the unusual hour of 3 o'clock a. m., and for this breach of practice the multitude protested. Acting upon this protest an unredemmed bluecoat named Clark proceeded to escort the exhorter to police headquarters last night and locked him up. The specific charge was "disturbing the peace"—a remarkable feature of the charge being in the fact alleged that the peace of the Acre denizen was "disturbed."

The evidence before Corporation Judge Stewart showed that Holden had rented four rooms over a saloon at the corner of Eleventh and Rusk streets for a period of two weeks. At joining this building is a one-story shack, and from the top of this one story structure the preacher exhorted late and early. If he felt that he should call the multitude together at 3 a. m., he proceeded to do so from this housetop.

He was in the dock at police headquarters when his name was called this morning. He sat erect and dignified, looking with scorn and pity, mingled with evidences of outraged pride, upon those who stand in the dock.

"Charles W. Holden, stand up, sir!" demanded Judge Stewart, adjusting his glasses and eyeing the tall figure as it stood erect.

"Charles," said his honor, "you are charged with disturbing the peace—what do you plead, guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, sir. I am a minister of the gospel."

"A what?" gasped the court. "A minister of the gospel in this court? My, my, sir, you are very much out of place here. Come down and tell me about it."

"Yes sir, yer honor, I am a minister of the gospel. I was sent by Christ to preach two weeks in Hell's Half Acre, to rescue those people from an impending hell. I was called by Christ two years ago, but only recently got the Acre assignment. I was delivering His message to these people last night when that blue-coated sinner over there disturbed me and brought me to this vile place and locked me up. It was an outrage, yer honor, and I demand satisfaction."

"Oh, you'll get satisfaction—never fear," retorted the judge. "Here, Mr. Officer, tell me—tell me about this man."

Officer Clark explained that Holden had for several nights been exhorting at the corner mentioned and would do so from the house top adjoining the rooms he had secured. He was not molested when they were aroused at any other hour after midnight.

The reverend gentleman at this juncture proceeded to deliver a harangue in attempted explanation of his conduct, saying he had instructions direct from Christ, and protested against police or judicial interference with his work.

The court rapped the exhorter to order and demanded the floor, and admonished him to desist from conducting his services at such unreasonable hours. He was told to go, and assured that a repetition of the offense would not result with so much consideration.

RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE NEWS

Postoffices Ordered Established and Discontinued

Attention is called in the last general order issued from the office of Superintendent Gaines of the railway mail service, to the careful handling of daily papers by clerks of the department. The postal laws and regulations call for as much care in handling newspapers and periodicals addressed to regular subscribers, as in handling letter mail.

A clerk of class 2, eleventh division, has been suspended one day for excessive use of twine and a clerk of class 4 has been suspended five days for carrying mail past its destination and requesting the clerk who received same not to report it.

Kiowa, Lipscomb county, is the only new postoffice established in Texas this week. Offices discontinued are Finley, Dallas county, send mail to Kit; Hartburg, Newton county, (in effect September 15), send mail to Deweyville; Pustus, Moore county, send mail to Mission; Sycamore, Wise county, send mail to Decatur. The following offices are to be superseded by rural free delivery: Elroy and Garfield, Travis county and Kenton, Bastrop county. Mail for the last three should be sent to Delvalle.

At Wijk-aan-Zee, a watering place on the Dutch coast, the municipality is giving prizes to the children who build the best sand castles.

RULES GOVERNING THE CITY TEACHERS

Some Specific Stipulations Set Forth by the Superintendents and School Board for the Term

At the recent meeting of the board of school trustees the following rules governing, together with course of study, prescribed text books and distribution of work was given out for the guidance of teachers:

For the greater convenience of teachers, and that there may be a greater uniformity of results obtained, the work has been outlined by quarters, each quarter representing eight weeks' work. The last month in the year is to be devoted to a review of the entire year's work and to the final examinations. It will be found that the division of text book work indicated by the pages mentioned, coincide with important division of the subject matter.

The number of recitations in each grade has been reduced so that there may be more time for study under the supervision of the teacher, and that it may not be necessary to assign more than one lesson, possibly two in some cases, to be prepared at home. It is suggested that spelling and reading or history be designated as the "home lessons" in the first seven grades.

Principals must see that the provisions of this outline are carried out, and to this end should require, in addition to personal inspection of the work, reports from the teachers in their respective buildings at the end of each quarter and hold uniform examinations once a quarter in all grades above the second

Teachers in charge of the first and second grades should divide their pupils into three sections; other teachers, in charge of grades below the high school, into two sections. These sections are to do substantially the same grade of work. The high and low sections, and the A, B and C sections are to be discontinued.

All teachers must provide themselves with attuning fork or pitch-pipe and copies of the text-books in daily use in their respective grades.

The general plan of the work and statement of the results to be obtained are set down; the working plans and methods will be left largely to the teacher's own choosing. Accuracy and thoroughness rather than exhaustiveness should be the aim of the teacher. Errors in a pupil's work should not be corrected in such a manner as to give greater prominence to them than to the correct forms.

Teachers are reminded that moral training is an important part of their duties. Such virtues as punctuality, order, obedience, truthfulness, honesty, politeness, self-control, cleanliness, attention, perseverance, self-reliance, decision of character and systematic habits should be judiciously and effectually inculcated.

In the OLD STEINE ROAD

By Zoe Anderson Norris

Copyright, 1901, by Zoe Anderson Norris

It often happens that a friend and an enemy wear the same face. It was a friend who advised me to go to that boarding house for ladies in the Old Steine road at Brighton. Later I came seriously to question the sincerity of her friendship, if not to doubt it altogether.

Hesitatingly I stopped in front of the portico—a portico with four pillars and steps recently scrubbed to so exaggerated a whiteness that they should have warned me. They did not. I walked on up.

A boarding house for ladies! The enormity of it never once struck me until I gazed upon those two long tables filled with old blue china and flowers and surrounded by ladies—middle-aged ladies, ladies past middle age and ladies old—old as the china, if not older—and so wrinkled that I hardly dared look at them for fear they would break. And not a man!

Fortunately I found a kindred soul who had drifted there accidentally, as I had done. She flashed dark eyes at me from across the table. Her name was Jane.

When tea was over, I arose, passed a sideboard upon which some rare bits of Wedgwood almost compensated for the weakness of the tea, and met her at the door. We went up to my myrie together. I asked her in. We stood at the dressing table reading the notices to guests.

"Please wipe your feet on the mat," came first.

"No gentlemen allowed," came next. "No guest must stay out later than 10 o'clock. If it is absolutely necessary that she should stay out, notice must be given to the principal."

"Who is this principal?" I demanded to know. "Is she the young woman with blue eyes that match the china who sits at the head of the table?" Jane shook her head.

"There is probably no such person. She is a scarecrow, a bugbear. Here, what's this? 'Butter must not be eaten with meat or marmalade or cheese.' Then what in the name of goodness is to be eaten with?"

"By itself perhaps, or not at all." I walked away from the rules to the window.

"I want to go home," I said. "This place stifles me." Jane had followed me. She leaned out.

"There is a splendid view of the sea from here," she exclaimed—"a birds-eye view! And look at the green in front! By and by a band will begin to play. They illuminate the park and play there till 10 o'clock."

"I suppose the principal won't let them play any later."

"I suppose not. Shall we go out on the sea front?"

We went. It swarmed with people coming and going in a steady stream.

"Boys have the best of it," she declared, "from the time they are little children." After a long while, "They don't have to wait."

Once more we rose and walked through the crowd, which had increased.

The ladies were mustered in long rows at supper when we arrived. We took our places in a shamed, truant manner and listened meekly to the conversation going on. The dovecot was in a terrible way. There had been a bullfight at Boulogne. English travelers had patronized it. To think that English travelers should patronize a bullfight! Horrible! They elevated their eyebrows; they rolled their eyes.

"I should like to see a bullfight," I said defiantly.

"Should you?" There was a flutter of wings, a pluming of combs, and settling down with difficulty, they observed me out of blazing eyes lavish of scorn.

down and dusted me. I had been on the shelf so long, he said.

"I didn't mean that," I hastened to affirm. "You are young, very young. I didn't mean that."

"I am twenty-eight," she told me, with a straightforward frankness which was convicting. "That is not so very young."

"I thought you were twenty-one or twenty-two," I said; "not more."

She searched in her pocketbook for a shilling, which she tendered me. I pushed it gently but firmly aside.

"No extra charge," I assured her. "Three years," I ruminated. "And all the time you have kept him in your heart? There has been no other?"

"I love him," she answered simply. "And he? How many sweethearts do you suppose he has had?"

What a careless question! An instantaneous and deep regret filled me that I had not kept a still tongue, a shut mouth.

She was silent. Repentantly I awaited her reply. Her face was quite white, a dead white, like marble, or was it the reflection of the purplish blue skies which had slowly replaced the gold of the sun?

"I never thought of that," she murmured by and by. "Not once."

I arose. "Shall we go on toward the boarding house for ladies?" I asked. As we walked through the crowd I said, "Don't think of it again."

"It isn't that I, too, haven't had attention," she said presently, apparently apropos of nothing. "I have all along. But I have not cared for any of them; not in the least. There is a young man who wants to come after me Saturday and wheel back to London with me. He is very fond of me."

"Let him come, then," I advised.

The sea had turned to a delicate purple. The white sloops showed exquisitely against hazy skies. The Skylark, manned by a jolly crew, hove to. We could hear the captain's voice giving stentorian orders.

"Would you?" she questioned.

"It is just as well to have two strings to your bow," said I.

A group of small boys leaped into the sea. A lifeboat veered around toward them watchfully. Climbing into the stern, they dived gleefully into the sea.

"Boys have the best of it," she declared, "from the time they are little children." After a long while, "They don't have to wait."

Once more we rose and walked through the crowd, which had increased.

The ladies were mustered in long rows at supper when we arrived. We took our places in a shamed, truant manner and listened meekly to the conversation going on. The dovecot was in a terrible way. There had been a bullfight at Boulogne. English travelers had patronized it. To think that English travelers should patronize a bullfight! Horrible! They elevated their eyebrows; they rolled their eyes.

"I should like to see a bullfight," I said defiantly.

"Should you?" There was a flutter of wings, a pluming of combs, and settling down with difficulty, they observed me out of blazing eyes lavish of scorn.

"Why in the world did you do that?" exclaimed Jane outside in the hall. "Do you want to get yourself disliked?"

"It is so weary here," I complained. "It pleases me to get up a little excitement. If I stayed, I should purposely shock them periodically. What's more, I should deliberately throw an occasional bomb in the shape of a proposition to introduce a man."

Jane threw up her hands. "A man!" she repeated hoarsely. Then she laughed.

"Only Two Gas Jets to Be Burned at Once."

I faced Jane exhaustedly. "What's all this?" I begged to know.

"Don't ask me," said she grimly. "It's the way they have of talking to you. It's that invisible principal who does it. She is a mind reader. The other day I thought I would bring my sewing downstairs, where there was more room. I had hardly settled myself comfortably when, looking up, I spied a sign, 'No Dressmaking Allowed in the Drawing Room.'"

"I can't stand it!" I groaned. "Come upstairs with me. We can look out the window there and look at the sea and breathe the atmosphere without a special written request to do so."

This was how it happened that Jane and I came to live in the open air, like birds. We ate and slept in the Old Steine road. That was all. Frequently I found it impossible to go back to eat. We went into little restaurants instead, where we had a skate or a fried sole or some other toothsome fish fresh from the sea. We sat on the sea front and watched the clouds. We took a sail in the Skylark. We went to sea in a skiff owned by an old weather-beaten sailor, who, finding that we were able to row, left us with the sculls and, ensconcing himself in the stern, lit his pipe and fell fast asleep. We had paid for an hour's rowing.

While he slept we made straight for the horizon, from whence it took him two mortal hours to row back. We strolled along the beach, where the fishermen were mending their nets, asking them questions, to which we received answers totally incomprehensible to landlubbers early. We took rare baths early in mornings, dragged into the waves by the curious little wagons and out again.

We took a trip on the sea car, visiting the home of Rudyard Kipling. Going, Jane concluded she would marry the youth who was to wheel back to London with her on Saturday.

Coming back the skies shone with splendor. They mingled with the soft blue of the sea. "Perhaps he is sailing home to me now," she breathed. "Who knows? I will wait for him."

"Good!" said I. "Do."

She took my hand and held it. "I am sorry you are going away tomorrow," she sighed. "You are sweet."

I was pleased.

Late last night we sat together at the window in my room listening to the moan of the sea. It took on an added note of sadness, or was it the pending separation from the girl who, like a fair white sloop, was about to pass me in the night?

There were two narrow beds in my room. I wished to have her sleep in one, to be near, but on the landing we found a mysterious sign reading, "No Changing Rooms or Occupying the Same Apartment With a Friend Even For a Night."

It was as Jane had said. They were mind readers, those people who ran the boarding house for ladies in the Old Steine road.

Toward dawn I awoke from a dream of Jane. I thought I saw her waiting, waiting, for that lover of her in Australia. I thought I saw her gray, toothless, bent double with age and ready for the grave. Still he came not.

The next night I left without telling her my dream.

She accompanied me to the station, juggling my satchel all the way uphill. "I shall be so lonesome without you," she wailed. "I believe I shall have to let him come for me, after all, for company."

"I should if I were you," said I inadvertently, absorbed with the fear of missing my train. In that event I

THE LADIES WERE AT SUPPER WHEN WE ARRIVED.

I THREW MY ARMS ABOUT THE GIRL.

WE STOOD AT THE DRESSING TABLE READING NOTICES TO GUESTS.

She walked on and on to the west pier, where we sat in a small circular temple fitted up with benches and looked out at the sunset.

I turned and looked at Jane. There were golden lights in her dark eyes—soft, mellow lights.

"I was thinking of him," she said, "and how far he is away."

"How far?"

"In Australia."

She paused to let the distance sink into my mind.

"It's a long, long way," she sighed, "and he has been gone for three years—three long years. I promised to wait for him a year, and he has been gone three."

"It is a good while to wait," I mused, "particularly in the days of your youth. They pass quickly, those good days, and they never come again."

"I know. And you get old waiting. When my brother came home from the Transval last summer, he took me

STILL NO CHOICE AT CLEBURNE CONVENTION

DEADLOCK IN TWELFTH DISTRICT CONTINUES

BALLOTS NUMBER 7000

ALIGNMENT IS THE SAME AS IT WAS WHEN FIRST VOTE WAS CAST

ALL CAUCUS TO STAND FIRM

Supporter of Riddle Makes Sensational Statement That Time Has Come for Candidates to Act One Way or Another

Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon 6861 votes had been cast in the Twelfth Congressional district deadlock without a nomination or change. The voting is as follows:

Gilispie-Tarrant and Parker counties—25.
Riddle-Comanche, Brad, Hood and Somervell counties—22.
Poindexter-Johnson county—22.
It now looks as though the convention will remain until a nomination is made. The Riddle and Poindexter forces joined in defeating the proposition for blanket primaries, and had not the motion made by a Parker county man for a free-for-all been withdrawn they would have voted it down. At the situation stands it is a deadlock and no solution in sight.

At 4:15 p. m. 7000 ballots had been taken without a change in result.

(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—At the noon adjournment today of the Twelfth District Congressional convention 6800 ballots had been cast.

There was no change in the result and rumors are many as to what the afternoon may bring forth.

Last night a number of close causes were held by the Poindexter and Riddle people. The latter, so a leader said this morning, are firmer than ever in their intention to remain without a break.

It is announced that Comanche county hereafter believed favorable to Gilispie has consented to no change until Riddle withdraws.

Gilispie people caucused yesterday and passed a resolution to remain in the fight until the convention acted otherwise.

A feature of the morning session was the speech of Collin George of Brad county, supporting Riddle, who arrived this morning. He said the convention was locked because the personal ambition of the candidates had made it so that balloting had continued without change for two months and the time was at hand for the candidates to act one way or the other.

After a few more ballots a motion by Collin George prevailed instructing Chairman Barry to appoint one member from each candidate's support to confer with the candidates and ascertain if they could agree upon a solution.

The chair named R. L. Carlock of Fort Worth for Gilispie, Judge W. J. Oxford of Stephenville for Riddle and Marion Sanson of Alvarado for Poindexter. The committee was instructed to report at 1 o'clock to which hour adjournment was taken.

Upon reconvening this afternoon Marion Sanson, chairman of the committee, reported a conference had been held with the three candidates and owing to their inability to agree, the committee had no recommendations to make.

J. S. Richards of Parker county presented a resolution declaring for blanket primaries the second Saturday in October to determine the nominee. He gave notice that after 25 more ballots he would ask its adoption.

At the proper time the resolution was called up. The ruling that none but Democrats be allowed to participate in the primary, but those who had participated before, brought a discussion.

M. A. Spooner of Fort Worth wanted the primary to include all Democrats who would support the nominee. The motion of R. L. Carlock to refer the resolution to a committee of two men from each faction was refused by 36 to 28. Tarrant and Parker voting in the affirmative.

RICHARDS' RESOLUTION LOST.
On taking up Richards' resolution the vote stood 24 against and 28 for it, Tarrant and Parker being in the affirmative. Howard Martin of Weatherford offered a motion to place the names of the three candidates on the Democratic ticket in general election, making the race free for all. Judge Oxford of Brad asked twice to go into caucus. A recess for 10 minutes followed.

Parker county in the caucus opposed the motion, causing Martin to withdraw same.

The convention proceeded to ballot and at 4 o'clock p. m. had cast 6861 without change.

GAVE A SPLENDID WELCOME

Hon. W. F. Ramsey Tells Delegates Cleburne Is Glad to See Them

(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—Hon. W. F. Ramsey of Cleburne, who gave the convention a welcome on yesterday spoke in part as follows:

"You are assembled here today, after a contest almost without parallel in the political annals of the state, to select a standard bearer for the Democratic party in this great new congressional district. For the first time we find ourselves met together for that purpose, and yet we are no strangers. We have a common faith, a common history and let us hope, the same common and glorious purpose. The past, as Webster said, at least is secure. Nothing can take from us the proud remembrance of the heritage of Wellborn and Abbott and Burke, and nothing can rob you of the west, of the honor and distinction of having been so long and ably represented by Bell and Lanham. We feel and know that in yourselves and as representatives of the Democratic hosts in your several counties, you have and hold approved credentials and pass-ports to our highest esteem and consideration. Your proven fidelity and unwavering loyalty to your convictions and preferences stamp you as men of the most unshakable integrity and highest honor. Evidently you are entitled to be called 'stayers.' If you must continue to 'stay,' let me in the name of a people as brave, as loyal and tender and true as the knights here of the lost cause for whom our city was named, invite you to stay with us."

"Mindful as I am, I hope, of the proprieties of the occasion, I trust that as a Democrat in private station, you have followed ever without hope or expectation of reward, the flag of the party, all the days of his life I may be permitted to express the hope that, after a reasonable time for consultation and conference, you will choose a candidate whom we all can unreservedly and cordially support. It would in my judgment be an unseemable calamity for this proud and imperial district to be represented in congress by a Populist, a Republican or a snare-worm. In saying this I speak in no such a derogatory way for the good both of the party and country."

"And may I not urge upon you, in a spirit of conciliation and patriotism, in a spirit of fairness and fidelity to the party's welfare, to give us a nominee? If in the wisdom of the convention you should conclude to name as the standard bearer Cleburne county's unchallenged choice, Lee Riddle, we may and will remember with pleasure that he was reared almost within the borders of our county. If in your judgment the honor should fall on Tarrant county's favorite son, George Gilispie, we can and will also remember that he, too, laid the foundation for his splendid career at the same school, in the sight of our eastern line, where so many of our people have obtained their education. Or if, as our delegation and people have so much desired and have so long hoped, the choice be of the grace of God and providence of politics, falls to Johnson county, there will come joy to thousands of our people, a new light will illumine the land, and I give you the pledge of a fighting Democrat, that not one of the more than 5000 Democrats in Johnson county will falter, hesitate or halt in their duty to him or fealty to the party."

NUMBER OF BALLOTS NOW 6505

First Session Without Incident and of Little Real Interest
(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—The afternoon session of the Twelfth District Democratic convention was without incident. Although it was late in opening adjournment until this morning was taken at 5:30 o'clock, the total number of ballots being 6505. The afternoon was indulged in speaking, some humorous, some serious.

ANXIOUS FOR A DECISION

A Desire For a Wind-up Is in the Under-Tow
(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—Candidate Riddle of Graybury says he has been placed in a false light before the convention delegates with reference to the much talked of free-for-all.

"I have been quoted as saying," said he to The Telegram, "that the only solution appeared to be in the release of all candidates before the people. This is incorrect. I believe a nomination should be made if it takes time to do it, but in event such cannot be done, then I would not be afraid of a free-for-all race."

Dr. Yater, who is one of Judge Poindexter's warmest supporters, has had a hard time seeing his name in print spelled properly, save in his home papers. After the reporter writes it, the printer sets it, and when the proof reader gets through with it, Yater is liable to be anything from Yater to Blater, Bater, or Gates.

Capt. J. C. Terrell is for a nomination if it has to be made by the aid of a wheel of fortune. He declared the "lot" system to be the best.

"In Biblical times" the selection of an apostle," said he to the convention yesterday, "was in doubt for a time, and a decision finally reached by lot. If in Oklahoma the government used a lot system in distributing land and why can't the Twelfth Congressional district find a congressman by the same method?"

Dr. Barry of Weatherford, permanent chairman of the convention is the most wanted of all convention attendants at the moment if the roll call. He frequently urges a change to be made in the vote, promising something will come of it. Heretofore he has been in the habit of making the announcement that no choice is made when the result of a ballot is made known, but on yesterday he varied somewhat, and when the secretary said, "same result, Mr. Chairman," he replied, "same announcement."

The doctor declared he will hold an autopsy upon the convention when it dies by reason of making a nomination, for the purpose of determining the character of its protracted illness.

CLEBURNE'S ROYAL WELCOME

Delegates Are Shown the Town and a Good Time
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—The citizens of this place provided royal entertainment for the delegates to the Twelfth District Democratic convention, which stood in marked contrast to that presented by other towns. The convention was invited to assemble in the district court room of the Johnson county court house, the same having been brushed up almost to a point of brightness. A full cooler of ice water did duty with a brace of tin cups, and the Cleburne brass band played lively music as variations. When the train arrived bearing the delegations from Tarrant and Parker counties, Dr. William Yater and other citizens were at the depot with badges. When the convention adjourned at 5:30 o'clock carriages and buggies were drawn up to the court house and the delegates given a drive over the town.

"The convention has an invitation to stay all fall," said Judge Moore, "and if any one is tired of his present town he will be welcomed here as a permanent resident."

CAPT. TERRELL AND OLD TIMES

Talks of the Days When Texas Had Only Two Congressmen
(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—Capt. J. C. Terrell of Fort Worth was here yesterday "reminiscing." He told how they used to do it soon after the state received its first apportionment, when Texas was allowed only two delegates to Washington, and they chosen at large.

"In those days," declared the captain, "a party of 30 or 40 of the best citizens would get together and name the candidates. During the period to which I refer, successful ones were Jack Hamilton of Austin and Gen. T. N. Wall, then residing in Galveston, but now living near Ft. Worth. Hamilton was a leader, and as soon as he arrived on the ground his name was proposed for speaker of the house. After balloting a while the Texas was defeated by N. P. Banks by a margin of three votes.

"In those days people would not have known what you were talking about had you talked of a convention taking 6000 ballots without change in the vote."

TALK OF A FREE-FOR-ALL

Names of the Three Candidates may Go on the Ticket
(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—Some question has been raised as to the convention's authority in ordering a free-for-all should it be decided no nomination can be made. It has been charged this gathering has no ground for handing down orders to the general election. Those who know say the question is a useless one, for the executive committee of the district may place the names of the three candidates on the ticket and allow the voter to make his selection.

This in effect will be a primary as well as a general election. The candidates, however, would be confined to those now before the convention.

TALK WITH POPULIST LEADER

Candidate Walllett Says He Will Make No Set Campaign
(Special to the Telegram)
Cleburne, Tex., Sept. 5.—J. M. Walllett, editor of the Johnson County Watchman, candidate for governor on the Populist ticket, announced today there would be no set campaign made by the party this year. He spoke last week in Weatherford, and next week will go to Grayson county, the campaign—what there is to be of it—opening at the latter place.

"I would gladly meet Colonel Lanham on the stump in joint debate," said he to The Telegram, "but I have received no invitation. Personally I would appreciate the opportunity. It must be borne in mind that we have no campaign fund, hence are not in position to make an extended canvass of the state."

The congressional convention holding here does not appear to worry the Populists. While they are happy over the difficulty of making a nomination, believing it will ultimately disrupt the party, they are not talking much about a congressional ticket of their own. A meeting is to be held in Weatherford Sept. 15, when the idea of putting a congressional candidate in the field will be decided.
