Judge Toney Makes an Important Decision in Case Bearing on Corbett-McGovern Contest

Louisville, Nov. 29.—Judge Toney, sitting in chancery, decided the chancery court has no right to enjoin the commission of felony.

Pierce, United States charge d'affaires at St. Petersburg, designating Professor Asser, a member of the council of state of the Netherlands, as arbitrator.

The decision carried with it the opinion of the court that Russia must pay damages, and only left for further argument the sum due in each case.

HAPPENINGS ON THE STREET

Did you ever take a ride on a street car to the stock yards and on your way feast your eyes on a sign on one of the bridges which the car passes over, "Prepare to Meet Your God"? Of course it is an advertisement, although the passenger with the timid mind and weak nerves may find in it something to be fearful of.

A man got on the street car on Main street yesterday afternoon and met the conductor standing on the rear vestibule. He was rather unused to city ways and being also shy on knowledge of the world generally, he brushed up to the nickel grabber and asked the fare to the stock yards. He was told five cents each way. "Well, I would pay for the round trip only I don't know that I would be ready to come back when your car is returning." The conductor grabbed the ten-cent piece out of the man's hand, handed him a five-cent piece in return and disappeared inside the crowded car.

WILL IMPROVE CITY BELT LINE

NORTHERN TEXAS TRACTION GETTING READY

TEN BIG CARS ORDERED

Better Equipment Is Needed for Principal Line of the City and It Will Be Put in Service as Soon as Can Be Secured—No More Interurban Cars Ordered.

The completion of the Jennings avenue viaduct has caused such an increase in the traffic that the Northern Texas Traction company will put larger and better cars in commission as soon as they can be secured. General Manager Haines of the Northern Texas Traction company said yesterday that ten double truck cars, larger than the present ones in service on the City Belt line had been ordered. It is likely that six of these large cars will be put in use in this city and the other four on the company's recently acquired Oak Cliff line.

Mr. Haines said he knew nothing of the current report to the effect that nine new interurban cars had been ordered with the intention of using the old interurban cars for suburban traffic between Oak Cliff and Dallas.

But the congested traffic, especially during the evening and morning hours on the City Belt has made larger cars necessary, and they have been ordered. When they will arrive cannot be said, as they have yet to be built.

Arlington Heights Line.

Along with the report of improvements and extensions of the Northern Texas Traction company's lines in the city according to franchise recently granted by the city council, comes the story that the Polytechnic line to Arlington Heights is likely to be discontinued as a part of the Traction company's system. An official of the company stated the other day that there is likelihood that the company will discontinue operating cars to Arlington Heights sometime, but that it would not likely be soon. From an entirely different source, yet one that is apparently well informed comes the report that the Traction company made a proposition to property owners and those interested in the Arlington Heights line that unless the sum of $25,000 was raised for equipment and repairs, the Northern Texas Traction company would have to abandon the line. It is a well known fact that at present the line can not be operated at a profit and kept in good repair, so the proposition of the company if such a one was made, seems quite reasonable.

It is understood that the sum of $5,000 was raised by property owners interested in the development of Arlington Heights, but there the matter rests.

It is also stated by the same source disclosing the information regarding the Traction company's proposition that there are three men largely interested in Arlington Heights who are quietly organizing a company to take the Arlington Heights line off the Traction company's hands and operate it independently. Public information regarding this project is said to be withheld pending the arrival, sometime in January, of a capitalist residing in New York, who is heavily interested in Arlington Heights. The building of the country club and the revival of interest in that locality is said to be but a part of a plan for general development which will be made early in 1903.

The fair given by the parishioners of St. Patrick's Catholic church, which opened in a storeroom on Main street last Thursday noon, is proving a profitable venture and the attendance is remarkable. The quarters have already proven inadequate. Last night the crowd simply packed the hall and all the booths did a big business. The feature of serving dinner and supper is one on which the ladies in charge are congratulating themselves.

H. C. TOWNSEND IN CITY

General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the Missouri Pacific a Visitor.

H. C. Townsend of St. Louis, for many years general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific, was a brief visitor in the city yesterday. He was accompanied by his daughter and by J. C. Lewis, traveling passenger agent of the Iron Mountain for the southwest.

They went from here to Dallas. Mr. Snyder of the Frisco was in the city a short time on his way to San Antonio, but has not called here on his return.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED IN THE FIRST STAGES.

A Beautiful Girl Saved From Dread Consumption --Other Wonderful Cures.

Miss Amelia Weymer, Appleton, Wis., writes: "Early last summer I contracted a cold which seemed to hang on to me and could not be shaken off. From the head it went to the throat, and then affected my lungs. My mother felt very anxious and as we had used Peruna in the family before, she advised me to try it. I was somehow very opposed but was persuaded to try Peruna. Using it one day convinced me that it was no ordinary medicine, within a week I was much better and in two weeks I was well, and I felt much stronger and in much better health generally. I was perfectly satisfied with the results from the use of Peruna."—Miss Amelia Weymer.

CATARRH CAUSES CONSUMPTION

Pe-ru-na Never Fails to Cure Catarrh Wherever Located. THE medical profession has so thoroughly prejudiced the minds of the people against patent medicines that it is with great reluctance that anyone can be persuaded to try such a remedy at first.

Hundreds of Women Cured of the First Stages of Consumption by Pe-ru-na.

The Following Letters From Thankful Men and Women Tell Their Own Story.

Miss Josephine Stolhammer, Denver, Colo., care of Soderburg Palace Studio, writes:

"My physician advised me to go to Colorado because my lungs were delicate, and I had catarrh of the head which the damp climate East seemed to aggravate. I spent two years here without improving. Reading of the value of Peruna I began taking it and in two months was completely cured and well. This is nearly three months ago and I have suffered no relapse. I consider Peruna very superior to Colorado air for catarrh. If I had known of it before it would have saved me hundreds of dollars."—Josephine Stolhammer.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, Mrs. Adam Staats, Mequon, Wis., writes as follows: "I suffered six years with chronic catarrh. Last year my condition was very bad. I could not speak aloud, had a terrible cough, hemorrhages from the lungs and night-sweats. I expected to die from consumption, as catarrh had spread through my whole body. Through one of Dr. Hartman's books I decided to write to him. He prescribed for me and I followed his directions. I am now as well as I ever was."—Mrs. A. Staats.

Mrs. Gardner, Portland, Ore., writes: "I had coughed for three months and had doctored without benefit, when I learned of Peruna. I was very weak and could hardly walk around the room. I felt better after using Peruna only two weeks, and kept on taking it until I was well. Two years have passed since I was cured and I am still well."—Mrs. Gardner.

Mrs. Mary E. Hoblit, 2501 Clinton avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., writes: "My son suffered for three months with catarrh of the bronchial tubes which threatened to become very serious. The doctors advised that he seek a more favorable climate, but as he had heard of Peruna as a specific for lung trouble he decided to give it a trial before he left his family for an expensive journey among strangers. For six months he used it faithfully and found that the trouble gradually disappeared and blessed health took its place. In two months he was perfectly well and able to perform his duties. You have indeed a grateful mother's thanks."—Mrs. Mary Hoblit.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

HE CALLED THE TURN

A traveling salesman from a neighboring town was here yesterday in search of a former employe—a negro porter. He had reason to believe the aforesaid negro would be found about some of the negro dives in the city, so last night he visited a gambling joint to look about. He failed to find his man, however, but told a "Telegram reporter a good story of some things he saw while there. He said he met the proprietor of the place and made known the purpose of his visit, and was given permission to make himself at ease.

He said he stood for some time by the side of the "look out" at a faro game, and was much interested in the play and the way the "sports" played and conducted themselves. The "stiffest" player in the bunch was "keeping cases." His highest bet was 10 5-cent chips—50 cents. The "case keeper" placed a 50 cent bet on the jack, open. A turn or two was made, and no action. Finally the player turned his head to spit. When he fixed his gaze upon the layout the bet was gone. The jack had not had action.

The "case keeper," in a quiet sort of way, said: "Hold, dealer—the jack has been lost!"

Dealer—"None."

Casekeeper—"Has the jack won?"

Dealer—"None."

Casekeeper—"Then the jack has had no action at all!"

Now, I want to tell you—all of you—I use gwine to spit again, and when I turns my head back and gazes on dis 'layout,' I 'spect to find dat 50 cents right on de bowls of dat jack. The casekeeper never knew who placed them there, but the others about the table saw the man to his right set the chips in their proper place.

"Now, Mr. Dealer, proceed wid your playin' faro bank," quietly remarked the casekeeper.

LAVISH USE OF LACE ON PARIS OPERA FROCKS

ROSE PINK SATIN EVENING DRESS.

Simplicity of line and beauty of detail are the characteristics of this season's opera frocks, and each creation that adds its bit of color to the kaleidoscopic effect is worthy of the most minute inspection.

There is no more magnificent spectacle to be seen anywhere than that which a premiere night at the opera house affords. If the gowns worn last season seemed perfect, in the light of their brilliant successors they are only mediocre.

The coming of the opera on the heels of Horse Show week frustrated affairs in dress-making realms, so for this reason some of the handsomest gowns will appear later on.

Embroidery and lace, the one wrought upon the other, is the favored style of decoration, and the magnificence of the design quite overshadows the gown fabric. All crepe-like materials are used for the foundation, in preference for white, and the lining is as soft and thin as possible.

In striking contrast to the widely flaring skirts seen on the streets, the sweeping lengths of all the newest evening gowns are what might be termed "stinky," they cling so closely to the figure. This effect is partly due to the weight of gold and silver embroideries on soft fabrics.

Large detailed flowers furnish the motifs for many of the loveliest ornaments, and in every case the gown is designed so that the embroidery arranged to suit its individual style. The best houses are getting away from palette effects, and are substituting for them embroidery done in silver or gold ribbon worked over a soft padding.

Bodices usually are cut square, and the sleeves, if there are any, are mere bits of embroidered bands, fastening knots or felts of lace.

One whole year put in on the embroidering of a single gown seems a vast deal of time, yet it required that time to stitch in the silver threads on a lace gown that will be seen shortly at the opera. It is to be worn by Miss Giulia Morosini, who has had some unusually beautiful gowns designed for her this year.

Like all her dresses, this one is cut plain. The overalls, point d'Alencon lace heavily embroidered in silver bullion and filigree work. This is laid over and under a slip of white tulle, and beneath this is another foundation of chiffon-covered liberty satin. The effect, with so many layers of filmy fabrics, is soft and delicate.

The embroidery design is Egyptian. Across the bust there is a large scarab, with silver-wrought wings outstretched, and from the tips of these there fall two long bands of silver embroidery, converging at the waist line and then spreading as they descend to the foot of the dress, so that they produce a panel effect. Two more narrow bands of the silver embroidery start at the wings of the scarab and curve under the arms, then rise so as to cross in a point just below the shoulders.

The entire gown is covered with an Egyptian flower design, which is worked in small patterns on the corsage and then increases in size until at the bottom it expands into large wheels and iris petals. The wings of the large beetle form the edge of the front of the square décolletage, and across the shoulders run narrow straps of silver embroidery. From the armbore start bits of the embroidery so arranged that they converge on the rounded part of the arm in something of a sunburst effect.

Another white gown in which Miss Morosini already has been seen is of pean de cygne, creamy d'Alencon and real torchon laces. This latter is a variety seldom used on frocks, but its beauty and adaptability to certain styles make it a charming addition to the various kinds already in vogue.

About the bottom of this gown is a deep band of the heavy torchon lace in wheel patterns. Its hand wrought meshes are interlaced with heavy white silk embroidery, and appliques of white velvet grapes. In the front of the skirt, just below the knees, is worked a large bird of paradise, all in white.

This gown, too, is princess in style, and at the waist the fullness is deftly disposed in clusters of pin tucks, which curve in toward the center.

The top of the bodice is heavily interlaced with embroidered torchon, and the balero effect is prettily carried out by a series of small tucks, which curve downward from the center of the back, and, passing under the arms, lace themselves beneath the jacket front of the bodice.

As unique as any gown yet seen is a peacock creation. Pale gray liberty crepe de chine forms the groundwork for the gown, which is all in one piece, and across the bust is embroidered a peacock, with wings outspread and tail up. In its eyes sparkle two large, genuine diamonds. The feet of the creature are confined at the waist line under an inch wide strap of gray velvet ribbon, caught down at the ends with jeweled buttons.

The tail of this magnificent bird begins to spread at this point, and the beautifully wrought peacock feathers are worked in heavy gray silk and enhanced with tiny real diamonds. The eye of each feather is wrought over gray tinted Italian fillet mesh and the crepe is then cut away. The effect of this magnificent plumage, all in pale gray and cut steel, which forms a panel in the front of the gown, is lovely beyond words.

About the sides and train of the gown there is an embroidered design of large flowers worked upon a mesh of fillet. The plain part of the soft crepe is closely flecked with tiny cut steel beads, fastened to the fabric in groups of three.

Pink crepe is the material from which another dainty frock is designed, and the wide band of real Irish crochet lace let in across the bottom is effectively treated with raised embroidery done in gold tissue. Both sides of the lace band are bordered with a curious icicle design of gold, and from these points run slender, waving stems topped by golden tulips. Tiny French knots in pink silk furnish a background for the stems, and at the same time serve to blend the gold work and the pure white tint of the lace.

The gold embroidery forms a curve across the bust, and this droops at the sides to finish in a becoming postilion back. Mrs. George Gould, who wears gowns of rather plain lines, has had made a beautiful velvet, against which her gems sparkle with added brilliancy. The gown is elaborately trimmed with heavy hand-wrought lace in pure white. To go with this she has a coat to match of soft velvet in the same shade, solidly interlaced with a pattern of lace to match the gown. The sleeves are of the new half Oriental cut; that is, they are wide at the armbolles, after the fashion of kimonos or coats, and then, instead of falling in straight, shapeless lines, they are held at the elbow under a wide band of lace, and from this point they slope gently into a deep cuff of velvet and lace. The coat itself is long and semi-low, and the sleeves make it particularly agreeable for wear over crinoline frocks.

Many garments of this kind are to be seen in the lobby of the opera house when the carriage rush is on, and it is a noticeable fact that white predominates.

Never in the history of opera going has there been such a fad for white, and invariably the material, whether it is cloth, velvet or soft silk, is lavishly ornamented with lace.

White fox is a desirable trimming where fur is linked, and this has a preference over either ermine or miniver. White chiffon velvet coats are hung upon yoke-like collars and frequently there are collar, stole, cuffs and edgings of fluffy white fox.

Those who choose to alternate their jeweled crowns and tiaras with the wearing of simple head ornaments are showing a preference for elaborate wreaths and sprays of flowers. Some of them are made of gold or silver tissue, and the effect, especially if there is a delicate sprinkling of dew, in the form of rhinestones, very nearly rivals that of real gems. Pearls are having a wonderful vogue, though for the opera they usually are set with diamonds.

ELABORATELY EMBROIDERED EVENING WRAP.

Dessert consisting of either a nice wine jelly with whipped cream or a rich Bavarian cream should be served on your prettiest plates, and with some of the fancy cakes. After this the fruits and the candies and coffee, which latter may be served in the parlor after you have left the table, if you prefer.

The above luncheon should not cost more than $5 for six people.

A Lay Sermon On The Cost Of Mince Pies.

Has there ever been a mince pie built—composed—created—whatever may be the appropriate verb to denote the process by which a mince pie comes into being—has there ever been a mince pie worth $1? The assumption is that the article—the composition—the creation—was of the normal size and produced under the normal conditions governing the purchase of mince-meat, flour and brandy.

Mince pies are sold for a dollar in New York. Therefore, it is evident that there are persons willing to pay a dollar for a mince pie. But what do they think they are paying for. Rich, brown, tender, flaky crust and a melting combination of flavors? Those they might obtain for half the price from worthy bakers. What then? They are purchasing the pleased consciousness of "helping" that deserving creature, the reduced gentleman.

It is the reduced gentleman who charges a dollar for her pies. It is she who charges $15 apiece for life-size rag dolls. It is she whose crocheted slippers sell at a 25 per cent advance over the crocheted slippers of commerce. It is she whose pincushions are impoverishing to their buyers, whose laundry bags need a Standard Oil purse for their purchase, while only the Steel Trust can hope to own her sofa cushions.

But the reduced gentleman is not working primarily to soothe the shopper with a sense of having saved money by buying the reduced gentleman's wares. And one wonders if she is not badly advised by the managers of her emporium when there is so wide a discrepancy between her prices and those current in the commercial world. Those who habitually buy the knickknacks of her manufacture and the pies of her baking must be comparatively few, and they must be actuated by charity rather than by the ordinary purposes of purchase. The reduced gentleman cannot flatter herself that it is the superiority of her work which keeps up its price. She must know that it is largely the patronizing kindness of her customers which causes her to pocket $1 for her mince pies, against the 50 cents of the excellent bakery on the corner.

Of course, she has to pay more for her raw material than the regular dealer, for she buys in small quantities. But the discrepancy between her prices and the normal ones is not explained by this. If she entered into competition with the regular trading places she would have to contend herself with smaller profits on each article for awhile than she now makes, and smaller profits than the maker who buys raw material in bulk makes. But her custom would be enormously increased and in a short time some means might be devised by which she could obtain her materials more cheaply. If the organizations which now manage the exhibition and sale of the pretty trivalities of her making were to buy the raw materials for her work in bulk at manufacturing rates and were to sell it again to her at the same rate, no one would lose by the transaction. And with the influx of new custom which her lowered prices would give her would begin an era of prosperity for the reduced gentleman—a prosperity so great that she eventually might be able to buy a glass of her own jelly or wear an apron of her own making.

A Dainty Luncheon For Five Dollars

Entertaining to the young house-keeper of modest means is always something of a problem, and especially so when the vexed question of servants is to be considered. In the hospitable society of the Indies, the woman the return of civilities shown to her by her own and her husband's friends becomes a pressing obligation, and the first attempt at an entertainment in one's own home is apt to prove a rather trying ordeal. There is no need, however, for this to be so, and by the aid of a little care and trouble and the exercise of a little ingenuity on the part of the hostess, a successful simple luncheon can be given without going to great expense. A luncheon being primarily an informal meal, it is as well to begin by having one for a few of the women whom you feel the least obligation to, without attempting a formal dinner, with its more or less necessary accessories of wines and entrees. Where one has only the one maid to cook, and where, as in many of our younger married people live in apartments, it is foolish to attempt anything elaborate in the way of cooking or to try many courses.

The arrangement of your table need not be difficult. Your pretty silver and glass, and a polished table with a handsome lace or embroidered centerpieces, with the plate dollies to match, is always good form, unless you wish to use a cloth. If you have a pretty fernery you can use it as a centerpiece, with four small silver or glass vases at each corner, filled with a few flowers, such as roses or carnations, and some green ferns; or, if you prefer flowers, choose at this season of the year a silver or cut glass bowl or pitcher in the center, filled with white or pink chrysanthemums and some white flowers in the little vases to correspond. Be sure to have some sweet geranium leaves for the finger bowls, or some lemon perfume slips. A few grape leaves, if you can get them, are pretty to put among the fruit, which you should have a little of on the table—a pound and a half of the California tokay grapes will do, and a few nice oranges and bananas. The fancy cakes which you will use with your dessert are pretty on the table also in some little china or silver dish, and one dish of chocolates or simple candies. Olives and salted nuts in other glass or silver bonbon dishes will quite fill up your table, if judiciously arranged, as it is no longer the fashion to have so many of these small things, many preferring an almost plain effect, to show the beauty of the lace centerpieces and the silver. This is a matter of taste, however, and you can follow your own ideas, only taking care not to make the table look overloaded. For a luncheon of six the menu may be as follows:

- Grape Fruit with Sherry.
- Clam Bouillon, Celery and Olives.
- Creamed Fish in Bakers.
- Broiled Chicken, Salted Almonds.
- Creamed Potatoes, Lima Beans.
- Tomato Salad, with Chopped Celery and Mayonnaise Dressing.
- Roasted Crackers.
- Dessert, Wine, Jelly and Whipped Cream.
- Fancy Cakes, Candies.
- Coffee, Fruit.

The first course, grape fruit, with sherry, is easily obtained at this season, and should not cost over 10 or 12 cents at the outside. Three cut in half are all you need, and you can prepare them yourself. Cut the hard, pithy centers out and take out the seeds; then loosen the pulp a little from the rind at the sides, and in the middle put a teaspoonful of sherry and some sugar; then set them on the ice to cool and serve for the first course. If you wish to make the grape fruit still richer put a little of the Bar de Luc red currant preserve in the place of the sugar, but this will make it more expensive, of course. After the grape fruit, celery and olives should be handed, then the clam bouillon, served in cups, with spoons, dessert size.

The bouillon is made from a quart of clams, with a little milk, and whipped cream on top. Small dinner rolls should be served with it. After the bouillon some creamed fish in small bakers, for which dish you can use either fresh codfish or chicken halibut. Broiled chickens, the next course, with creamed potatoes, and the small lima beans which are now in season, should cost about 18 cents a pound, and a six-pound pair should be sufficient. The tomato salad should be carefully prepared. Select medium-size, firm tomatoes, skin them, remove the center and fill with chopped celery and tomatoes, cover with the mayonnaise dressing, made very smooth and creamy, and have them very cold to serve on crisp lettuce leaves in a pretty china or glass salad bowl. With this salad serve toasted cheese crackers, tablet almonds or pecan nuts.

SWIFT'S SUPERINTENDENT DENIES STORY

SAYS THE PLANT IS READY

Everything Is In Shape for the Officials to Turn a Button and as a Government Inspector Has Been Ordered to Packing Houses Killing Will No Doubt Commence Tomorrow

While Swift officials refuse to admit that killing will be commenced at the packing houses tomorrow, as announced in The Telegram, Friday night, they admit that everything is in readiness and also refuse to deny that animals will be slaughtered there tomorrow to test the machinery.

Over at the new Armour building good headway is being made, although it is predicted that that company will not be ready until the first day of January at the earliest.

Business Slow. Business at the stockyards yesterday was rather slow and seemingly little activity was evident. Saturday is the dull day, as few hogs or cattle reach the markets, and the many buyers return to their home until Monday.

Representative Sales. Representative sales at the yards yesterday were as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Price. Includes Cattle, Hogs, and various weights.

Yard Receipts. Cattle 240, Hogs 98. There were few "drive-ins" yesterday and few came in over the various railroads.

Notes. Marton Allen of Marietta brought in 98 hogs yesterday; R. E. Boyd brought in 34 cattle, and Robertson & Williams of Big Springs brought in 90 cattle over the Texas and Pacific.

Weekly Market Letter. Campbell & Rosson's weekly market letter on market conditions contains the following summary:

Cattle have been rather slow sale this week and common and medium grades have ruled lower. Good fat cows brought $2.50, the same as last week, but other grades are 10c to 15c lower.

TYRANNY OF TEARS IS TAME. A small audience greeted "The Tyranny of Tears" at Greenwall's last night, with Paul Gilmore as star.

After the ice was broken, however (and it was very thick ice), applause came more frequently and the latter ending was greater than the beginning.

DR. C. H. ZINC REACHES CITY

As announced exclusively in The Telegram, slaughter of cattle at the new packing houses in North Fort Worth begins tomorrow morning.

Dr. C. H. Zinc of Buffalo, N. Y., government inspector, arrived in the city at 7:30 last evening and went at once to the Delaware hotel. He was seen in his room late last night by a Telegram reporter and stated that he will assume his duties as inspector of slaughtered animals at the new packing houses tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock.

As to the number of cattle to be killed Dr. Zinc could not, of course, state, as his instructions have nothing to do with that. His work will consist in inspecting the carcasses of slaughtered animals to see if they have any signs of disease. Dr. Zinc was formerly of Kansas City for three years, but he has lately been government inspector at Buffalo, looking especially after the cattle exported from this country.

He comes ready for work and his experience of many years peculiarly fits him for his position here.

HIS FALL WON'T PROVE FATAL

Thomas Elliott the Moran, Tex., ranchman who was injured while alighting from a Belt Line electric car at Fourth and Houston streets Friday at 9 o'clock p. m., will not die of his injuries. His attending physician states that he has recovered consciousness and gives information to the foregoing effect.

WILL NOT BE IN FT. WORTH

An important special delivery message was received late last night by Mrs. W. P. Lane of this city from Miss Adelia A. Dunovan, president of the Texas division of the Daughters of the Confederacy. She will not be here during the state session, and her place will be filled by the first vice president, Mrs. Fannie J. Halbert of Corsicana. Her annual address will be read by Miss Katie Daffan.

Sorrow and grief over the death of Miss Dunovan's brother, Capt. William Dunovan, prevents her coming. She also declines to allow her name to go before the session for re-election, hence the honor must fall on other shoulders.

Miss Dunovan's address, reviewing the work of the division of the last year, will be read at the convention by Miss Daffan.

SECURE DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER FOR LECTURE

His theme next Tuesday night will be "Three Supreme Centuries."

WILL ATTEND MEETING IN DALLAS THIS WEEK

The Dallas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church convenes this week in Dallas, and aside from those who will regularly attend the sessions interest among members of the Epworth league centers in the convention of that body, which meets Friday. The Epworth league members have secured Bishop Mallalieu to preside at the sessions.

Clyde Jack of this city is state president of the Epworth league and Frank Jensen is state secretary. Both gentlemen will attend the sessions of the Epworth league meeting, and besides there will be a number of other delegates.

STOCK SHIPMENTS LIGHTER

The Rush of November Business is Easing Off Gradually.

Sixty-nine carloads of cattle were received here yesterday over the Texas and Pacific. This indicates that the November rush is easing off a little, but there are still hundreds of cattle to be shipped here for reconignment to other points, and the scarcity of cars is by no means over. Sixty-nine cars was a little light for a Saturday shipment, however.

Misses Christina Beggs, Lottie Bartells, Rosa Ellis, Myrtle Davenport, Bessie Ellis, Elizabeth Tarlton, Forrest Croom, Ethel Wilkes, Gertrude Byers, Dove Wadley of Sherman, Orndoff of Russellville, Kentucky, Joe Hornby, Edna Burchill, Lewis Fannie Lang, Nina Blake of Sherman, Lois White, Maggie McLean, Maggie Littlejohn, Catherine Paxton of Denver, Lella Labatt of Cleburne, Grace Fuller of Tennessee, Donna Lee Carter, Boland, Mae Larimer, Grace Hollingsworth, Maidee Callaway, Nita Hollingsworth, Armide Archibald, Jeddie Marklee, Annie Felld, Mabelle Slaughter, Annabelle Pendleton, Mary Terrell, Bernie Newlin, Mary Gilmour of Kentucky.

A most unusual affair for Thanksgiving day yet one of the pleasantest and most enjoyable events of the winter season, was the Old Maid's luncheon, given Thursday afternoon by Miss Ray Saunders, at her home on Henderson street, complimentary to her visitors, Miss Mary Gilmour of Kentucky and Marie Baldwin of Paris.

The luncheon began at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and there were fourteen young ladies attired in old fashioned costumes of about 75 years ago. These represented old maids.

As each one came into the dining-room, which was lighted by wax candles, they had to read a story prepared for the occasion, relating the experiences of their first love affair and why they did not marry the man that proposed to them. There were some very amusing, interesting and entertaining stories read, but it was decided that Miss Mary Gilmour, one of the guests of honor, had the best story, and she was awarded a pair of sterling silver embroidery scissors, and the consolation prize (which was very appropriate, a live kitten in a basket) fell to Miss Mary Terrell.

At the table, underneath the plate of each old maid was a picture of one of the young gentlemen who were going to be present at the evening's entertainment, and the stories referred to above had the names of the young men mentioned therein whose photographs were found under the plates. But the greatest surprise was to come yet, for the young men who had received invitations to the affair, were of the opinion that the entertainment was to be a full dress evening party, so they came in evening dress, and when they were met in the parlor and reception hall by these fourteen old maids.

After the young men had half way recovered their senses from this severe shock, they made merry the hours with the old maids, by enjoying the old fashioned dances; the square dance, the quadrille and the Virginia reel.

Those who were present were: Misses Marie Baldwin of Paris and Mary Gilmour of Kentucky, the honorees, Miss Ray Saunders the hostess and Misses Donna Lee Carter, Ethel Wilkes, Myrtle Davenport, Mary Harrison, Florence Hollingsworth, Lillian Fakes, Lena Evans, and Milligan and Messrs Herbert Glenn Walker, W. W. Wilkinson, J. N. Clements, William B. Paddock, M. E. Martin, Charles Martin, Lewis Malone, Beck, J. B. Craddock, M. B. Loyd, I. J. Irion, Ernest Chilton, Roy Saunders and James Montgomery.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather Monday afternoon, a few of the members of the '93 club, managed to "swim" to the parlors of the Third Christian church on Fifth and Throckmorton streets, and although there was not a quorum present, nevertheless the time was spent in a very profitable manner. A review of the lesson for November 17, on Carlyle's "French Revolution," was participated in, as were also the questions on the Reign of Terror, for the regular lesson Monday.

The following were in attendance: Mesdames John M. Adams, B. C. Rhome, W. H. Callaway, A. L. Jackson, J. D. Covert and Miss Marie Adelaide Roe. At the next session, on Monday, the unfinished program of the last meeting and the one for tomorrow, which are as follows, will be carried out:

Roll call—Quotations on War. Parliamentary law—Exceptions regarding Amendments. Paper—The Mole at Versailles—Mrs. Thomas. Talk—The Destruction of the Bastille—Miss Matlock. Paper—The Rise of Napoleon—Miss Ely. Talk—Napoleon's Victories—Miss Howard. Questions—The First Consul—The Six Coalitions.

Miss Annie Matlock, at her home on West Railroad avenue, will give a dinner today complimentary to H. C. Geddie of Mineola. Among those who will share Miss Matlock's hospitality are Miss Jessie Dibal, Miss Susie Hyman, Messrs. Harold Hyman of Washington and John R. Reeves. The event is given in honor of its being Mr. Geddie's natal day.

The members of the Imperial dancing club will hold a business meeting tomorrow night in their club rooms to decide upon many matters concerning their coming full dress german for Christmas and New Year's, which they will make as one dance, uniting their efforts to make it an elaborate affair.

Spencer, Cora Daggett, Bessie McLean, Elizabeth Tarlton, Elois White, Mae Larimer, Edrington, Fannie Lang, Maybelle Slaughter, Annie Binyon, Virginia Van Zandt, Jeddie Marklee, Nita Hollingsworth and Mary Swayne; Messrs. Pease, Tillman Bibb, Harry Phillips, R. S. Cheatham, Robert Martin, Fred Mills, Ira Kerr, Paul Bishop, Malone Waller, Scott Kretz, Fred Adams, Elias Van Zandt, Ben Clemons, Clyde H. Maddox, J. W. W. Hoote, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. L. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Archibald.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew T. Byers happily celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary, otherwise known as their silver wedding, at their residence in Arlington Heights, Thursday evening. The below named formed the invitation list that shared in the pleasures of this jolly occasion: Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCarth, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harrold, Mr. and Mrs. George Collett, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bunting, Mr. and Mrs. Sanguinet, Mr. and Mrs. Max Z. Smisson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Mattison, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Connerly, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fosdick, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ross, Mrs. Richard Van Zandt, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Belle Sanguinet of St. Louis, Miss Tom Montgomery; Messrs. Alexis Sanguinet of St. Louis, W. C. Bishop, Harry McCarth and J. C. Antonio.

After an elegant dinner of numerous courses served to the guests, some of those present played whist, in which the ladies' prize, a sterling silver candle stick, was won by Mrs. James R. Gray, and the trophy for the gentlemen, a sterling silver clothes brush, was captured by C. W. Connerly. During the course of the evening's entertainment a bridesmaid cake was cut, and Harry McCarth got the button and Miss Tom Montgomery was doubly fortunate in receiving both the dime and ring. The interior of the home was very beautifully adorned with ferns, palms, cut flowers of every description, including chrysanthemums, carnations, La France and bridesmaid roses.

The first prize, a cut glass vase, was captured by Mrs. Harvey Cole after cutting out of it with her sister, Mrs. W. C. Cook, and the second souvenir, a hand-painted Haviland china plate, fell to Mrs. Harry Walton. The refreshments consisted of a salad course, ice cream and cake. Miss Nina Blake of Sherman kept score for the players, and saw that as each participant won a game that her card was punched.

CORNER of Eighth and Houston Streets.

There are as many events for the coming seven days, if not more, than last week, and it can be said that all the affairs promise to be social successes in every particular. The following are some of the events already set for the coming week, and it can be seen at a glance from the list below that there are more than a few.

Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, the meeting of the decoration committee for the coming convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy, at the Third Christian church; Monday afternoon, the regular weekly meeting of the '93 club; Monday afternoon, the meeting of the Monday Book club, at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Buchanan; Monday afternoon, the postponed meeting of the Monday History club, at the home of Mrs. Williams, East Belknap street, at 2:30 p. m.; Tuesday afternoon, the trolley ride, and reception at the home of Mrs. W. Mrs. David B. Keeler entertained with an elaborate Thanksgiving dinner, Thursday evening, at her residence on Ballinger street. The following were those who shared Mrs. Keeler's hospitality: Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Goetz, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Beckham, Miss Josephine Matthews, Miss Florence Goetz and Miss Florence Smith.

After the elegant dinner was partaken of a game of whist was indulged in by the guests, and when the contest was over, it was discovered that Miss Florence Smith had the most points to her credit, and for her skill she was awarded a "plittising." The interior of the house was very beautifully decorated with palms, ferns, roses, chrysanthemums and carnations.

The Imperial club members did themselves proud last Wednesday evening, and were very highly complimented for the manner in which they carried out their full dress Thanksgiving german at the Hotel Worth. The dining-room where the dance was held was all that could be desired of a ball room. The decorations were pretty, yet not extravagant, consisting of palms, ferns and other potted plants.

An innovation in Fort Worth society circles, was made by the club in that no one was admitted to the ball room without presenting his or her admission card at the door; and by the way, let it be said here that this card was not a simple one, but was very uniquely gotten up and artistic, the wording thereon being engraved in small script, and a space being left blank, where the name of the one who was fortunate enough to receive an invitation was written.

Belle Jenkins, Sallie Spencer, Beale Ochsner, Ray Saunders, Ida Crowley, Cora Daggett, Bessie McLean, Carrie Shugart, Mary Swayne, Lella Chalk, Marion Haggart, Aline Humphreys, Jones, Georgia Booby, Peacock, and Messrs. and Messrs. Harry Walton, Guy S. Rall, W. C. Stonestreet, Boyd Wise, E. J. Archibald, Ray Hunter, Clayton Howell, R. E. L. Miller and Mrs. G. H. Croom.

The members of the Imperial Dancing club are planning to give an elaborate affair for Christmas and New Year, and are going to spare no expense to make it one of the most brilliant and costly dances ever given by so young a club in the state of Texas.

Miss Catherine Paxton of Denver, Colorado, Miss Lella Labatt of Cleburne and Miss Nina Blake of Sherman were guests of honor at two affairs last Tuesday. Miss Lottia Bartells entertained for them in the afternoon, and in the evening of that day a whist party given.

A list of those invited for Tuesday afternoon is as follows: Mesdames John Burke, E. J. Archibald, George Ellison, Newt Moffett, W. C. Cook, Edward Burns, Davis, Anderson, Hogyer, J. D. Davis, Dudley Portwood, Taylor, Robert H. Beckman, Robert L. Carlock, Moore, Busby Goodrich, Morton, Clayton Howell, R. E. L. Miller, Mayfield, Montgomery, James J. Parker, Joe Collins, I. H. Burney, E. H. Keller, Bartow B. Ramage, B. C. Rhome, John Homan, Frederick Deitrich, C. W. Connerly, Taylor, and Misses Joe Hornby, Alberta Triplett, Aline Humphreys, Laura Hogsett, Katie Humphreys, Lewis, Mabel Horsey, Tom Montgomery, Ella Hogsett, Tomlinson, Sallie Spencer, Florence King of Oklahoma, Elizabeth Tarlton, Maggie Sturgis of Sherman, Beale Ochsner, Mildred Bennett, Lucille White, Lucy Sigler, Bessie White, Thompson, Edrington, Annie Binyon, Elois White, Marie Baldwin of Paris, Cora Daggett and Minnie Nash.

The first prize for the afternoon, a picture, was captured by Mrs. Davis, and the second prize, the souvenir for the evening, a Haviland china plate, was won by Mrs. W. C. Cook.

Those who were invited to the evening affair were the following: Misses Alice Collier Dallas, Clarence Smith, Mabelle Bradley, Ella Hogsett, Annie Fellds, Maggie Littlejohn, Lillian Callaway, Donna Lee Carter, Grace Hollingsworth and Messrs. Cal Elliott, Sam Henderson, John Elliott, Henry Williams, Bishop, Holman, Luckett, Collett, C. H. Fain, H. I. Gahagan, George Martin, Ben Martin, Stovall of Cleburne, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Kesterson, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Portwood.

The first trophy of the evening, a picture, was awarded to Miss Donna Lee Carter, and the second souvenir, also a picture, was given to Mr. Portwood, who cut for the prize with Mr. Bishop. Those who assisted Miss Bartells in receiving the guests were Miss Elois White and the guests of honor, Misses Blake, Paxton and Labatt. The interior of the home was very prettily decorated with palms, ferns and many cut flowers. The score cards were of very unique design, being round in shape, and each and every one of them having a picture on the Gibson order pasted thereon.

One of the most enjoyable affairs of the winter season was the full dress german given by the members of the Fort Worth Commercial club, in their club room on Main street, Wednesday evening. The event was attended by a large number of visiting young ladies from surrounding towns, there being about forty-two couples in all who tripped the light fantastic until the early morning hour of Thursday. The library room was very tastily adorned with palms, ferns, and white chrysanthemums, and the chandeliers and sides of the walls were bedecked with cedar, which made a very pretty effect.

About midnight the tired dancers were refreshed by an elegant luncheon, which was served in the library room upon small tables, around each of which were seated two couples. The lunch consisted of chicken salad, olives, sandwiches, cheese straws and coffee. There were some very pretty gowns worn by the young ladies, all of them being in evening dress. Chaperones of the evening were as follows: Mesdames Guy S. Rall, James J. Parker, J. H. Davis, E. J. Archibald, W. C. Stonestreet and Ray Hunter.

Among those present were Messrs. Roy Saunders, K. V. Jennings, Ed K. Collett, Ben H. Martin, Hardeman, Scott Kretz, Juan Andrews, Sam Henderson, Henry Williams, A. D. Smith, J. M. Ball, Paul Bishop, W. C. Stonestreet, C. G. Arnold, Lewis C. Malone, James J. Parker, F. T. Reynolds, George C. Martin, Claiborne Adams, Robert Martin, James Davis, W. T. W. Ridgeway, E. J. DELAWARE IS TO BE REMODELED

NEW MANAGEMENT ANNOUNCES EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS.

$15,000 IS TO BE SPENT

Work Will Begin Monday and Will Be Completed by the First of January. History of the Hotel During the Last Thirty Years.

The Hotel Delaware is to be remodeled, refurnished and to be conducted as a strictly European hotel, according to the plans of the new management.

Manager J. W. Bicknell, who has been in full charge for the last two years, has associated with him W. D. Watson of Waco, and the management will hereafter be known as Bicknell & Watson.

Manager Bicknell expects to have the work of remodeling completed by Jan. 1. Mr. Watson, who is associate manager, has successfully managed the McClelland hotel at Waco and also managed the Wootan Springs hotel.

An approximate sum of $15,000 will be expended in the work of remodeling. The dining room on the second floor will be closed after dinner tomorrow night.

The plans provide for a cafe in the old room to the south of the office. This room was formerly used as a sample room. The lavatory will be changed to the other side of the building, and this room will be added to the cafe in addition to the sample room.

Has a History.

The Delaware is the oldest hotel in the city and in its palmy days, when competition was not severe, was "the" hotel of this part of Texas.

In 1895 two gentlemen by the names of McLean and Mudge purchased the property and changed the name to the Delaware.

Every Football Player Receives Injuries in the Contest. Denton, Tex., Nov. 28.—In the football game at the fair grounds here yesterday between the Denton Athletic club and Gainesville every member of each team received slight personal injuries and the injuries of some, it is feared, will prove serious.

Robert Edwards of the home team, brother to W. C. Edwards of the Dallas News and the Denton County Record and Chronicle, got the bridge of his nose broken.

A prominent citizen remarked that the footballists, at the end of the game, each looked like he had been the guest of honor at an Irish wedding.

The dramatization brings into life the most prominent of the characters found in the novel and they are said to lose none of their strength and vitality in the many changes of time and place necessary to produce dramatic effect. The discrepancies are claimed to be few, and the plot a pretty and most impressive one. Mr. Benedict, the proprietor of the attraction announces that he has secured one of the best companies ever under his management and an

The next great event in theatrical circles is the annual engagement of that charming little actress and prime Southern favorite, Miss Adelaide Thurston, whose appearance occurs at Greenwall's opera house, Tuesday matinee and night, Dec. 2. She will be seen in her new play "At Cozy Corners" written with her distinct personality in view, by Pauline Phelps and Marion Short.

Miss Thurston's success last season in "Sweet Clover" was one of the remarkable occurrences of the theatrical year, and she was warmly received throughout the South. Seldom before has an actress made her way so close-the matinee Wednesday, "The Taming of the Shrew" and Wednesday night "Much Ado About Nothing."

The Houston Post said that in two magnificent productions of the "Taming of the Shrew" and "Much Ado About Nothing" Mr. Charles B. Hanford and his company scored heavily in the favor of Houston theater-goers. The Post adds that his talents have been called into play upon the most difficult tasks that Shakespeare assigned to the actor and on each occasion he has acquitted himself with credit, and in his presentation of the "Taming of the Shrew" and "Much Ado About Nothing" he demonstrated that his greater success lies in the role of comedy. Mr. Hanford engenders a thoroughly human and thoroughly natural manner into the characters he impersonates in these two plays, but at no time departs from what has been termed the "Shakespearean atmosphere," a clear and resonant voice, and an original and impressive conception of his characters, all of which equip him to present the creations of the greatest of dramatists.

The Post adds this comment: "Miss Drofna portrayed Beatrice to splendid advantage. She was gay and winsome in the light scenes and met the heights requiring greater powers in a most satisfactory manner. Her improvement, even since appearing in Houston last year, was demonstrated. Miss Rose Curry was especially creditable in the part of Hero. As Dogberry and Verges, Fred Hight and Robert Lee Allen evoked high praise, while Miss Violet Pierson as Margaret did some creditable work."

Quinlan and Wall's Minstrels
The singing in the first part of the Quinlan and Wall Imperial minstrels, that are to be at Greenwall's opera house, Thursday matinee and night, Dec. 4, is pronounced by the great masters of vocal music to be the best ever put on by a minstrel organization. It is refined, artistic, and reaches out and wins the admiration and plaudits of the people. It is away beyond all previous efforts; it makes a distinct moment later a pickle and pie debauch is instituted and they silently slip from their beds to the feast spread up on the floor; Jack Everleigh and Phil Fullerton serenade them, and as a joke enter the dormitory through a window disguised as burglars. Mrs. Dr. Sprowl, the somewhat strenuous president of the seminary unexpectedly appears at this moment, and from then on the fun is fast and furious. Complication follows complication, but in the end all comes right. The cast includes forty people.

"For Her Sake"
An exceptionally large cast and a capable one, a wealth of special scenery, and a plot of engrossing human interest, are among the promises made concerning the new Russo-Siberian play, "For Her Sake," which will be seen at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, Dec. 6. The plot of "For Her Sake," the new Russo-Siberian play, which will be seen at Greenwall's opera house hinges on the love of a prince for a serf girl who has been brought up from childhood in the home of the prince's mother and educated as her daughter. The two, thus associating together, become greatly attached, and the mother, discovering this fact, endeavors to separate the young lovers. She succeeds in having them both

Plays Coming Here
Lewis Morrison's famous "Faust," with its new and magnificent scenery, dazzling electrical effects, new costumes and skillful mechanical devices, will be seen here shortly with Lewis Morrison himself as Mephisto. The scenery, costumes, and effects are said to be the finest ever used in the long career of this play. In honor of Lewis Morrison's reappearance it was decided to surround him with the best that money could procure. This will be realized when the scenery and effects are viewed. From the beautiful prologue to the final scene of the apotheosis of Marguerite everything is new.

Four members of Sylvia Lynden's company this season in "The Gay Lord Quex," are actors and actresses who at one time or another have starred individually. Among them is Alden Base, who for three seasons has been starring in the roles originated by Sol Smith Russell. Before that Mr. Bass appeared as the professor in "Way own East" with James A. Herne, and before that was Mr. Herne's principal support in "Shore Acres." With Miss Lynden Mr. Bass plays Sir Chichester Frayne, an emaciated and malarial officer, aged sixty.

The coming of a successful new star or a great play is always a delight and we are glad to announce the coming of Sol Smith Russell's famous play "A Poor Relation" with the well-known comedian, Mr. Horace Lewis, who for the past five years has been the leading comedian at the Castle Square, Boston. Mr. Lewis has been secured by Mr. Berger to appear in Mr. Russell's part. This attraction is booked for an early appearance here, and will be a welcome attraction.

Very unusual indeed is the play that will bear repetition. Some plays please for the time, but few have real vitality and are lasting. "The Minister's Son" which was presented here last season by W. B. Patton and an admirable company is still associated in many a mind with an evening of extreme pleasure. One rare merit must be granted this play—a merit that is likely to give it enduring popularity—and that is, that the play however often witnessed cannot fail to rouse the keenest interest and to leave the most vivid impression, such interest, such impressions, are not imparted, or of current drama that we can call to mind.

"King Dodo," the jolliest of comic opera monarchs, with Raymond Hitchcock in the title role and Cheridah Simpson, Greta Risley, Flora Zabelle, Margaret McKinney, Arthur Deagon, Arthur Wooley, William Corliss and a peerless choral court of sprightly girls, is booked to hold court here shortly.

"The Belle of New York's" original home was the Casino theater, New York, which is now controlled by Mr. Sam S. Shubert, who is also the owner of "The Belle of New York." Among Mr. Shubert's other musical comedies, which will soon visit the Pacific Slope is "A Chinese Honeymoon." Like "The Belle of New York" it is still running in London.

It is universally conceded that no company on its first season has been received with the same frank enthusiasm as "Weary Willie Walker" during its trip through this territory. A perfect chorus of praise comes from the press of this state to endorse the interest expressed in other parts of the country.

A POLICEMAN'S TESTIMONY.
J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Nashua, Ia., writes, "Last winter I had a bad cold on my lungs and tried at least a half dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians without getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world." Sold by Reeves' Pharmacy, Ward Pharmacy and Arlington Drug Co.

There is no joy in Austin. Beer has gone up, and the free lunch hangs on by a thread.

Clean up your premises. You can't live like a shiftless pig and really be what the Lord intended you to be.

Thanksgiving is over, but the turkeys won't really breathe freely until Christmas and New Year's are past.

Doctor Hillis of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, has taken up the labor problem. The solution is at last at hand.

Don't be a pessimist. Leave all that sort of thing to the people who live in Dallas, Waco, Austin or San Antonio.

The approach of winter has brought an end to navigation of the Trinity river below Dallas. Hundreds of big freighters are tied up at the wharves along the river front at the latter city, and are getting ready to go into winter quarters.

The statement has been made that the price of live hogs in Chicago has declined from 25 to 40 per cent. If any one can observe a proportionate reduction in butchers' prices—in bacon, for instance—he will please rise up and lead the way.

It is no longer fashionable to shake hands. You must kiss the hand instead. What an edifying spectacle this will make when the new regulation goes into general effect. One can readily imagine the scene at Greenwall's when the Fort Worth fashionables turn out in full force for some especially good play.

President Roosevelt holds tenaciously to his right to appoint colored men to office in the South. He may think he knows what he is about in opposing the preferences of 99 per cent of the white people; but it is extremely doubtful if he really does. Or it may be that he knows better, but is naturally so stubborn that he won't turn back from a mistake.

Actual killing will be begun at the Swift packing house tomorrow. It will be in the nature of an experiment, a one day's test of the packing equipment; but it is significant of what is to come. It is only a matter of days now until Texas hogs and cattle will all have the pleasure of being killed at home. There's the sad side of it; for somehow it doesn't look right to kill and eat the harmless creatures of

THE IDLER'S NOTE BOOK

"You're late this morning," remarked the Bookkeeper in the way of greeting to the Table Poet who appeared while the others were at the hash stage of the breakfast.

"Oh, yes," sighed the Poet, "I was out at reception last night and it always wears me. There is so much to think about at a reception, the hurrying crowds of people, the laughter and chatter, the music and the flowers. It is an effort to attend to a gathering of that kind and drink in all the things you hear and see. Yes, I'll take oatmeal this morning," in answer to the Landlady's query.

"What did you say the color of her eyes?" asked the Cynic suddenly, looking hard at the Poet, who flushed up to the roots of his wavy hair and then stammered, "W-W-hose-eyes?"

"O, come now," said the Cynic, "please don't try to tell us it was a girl who made you do all that thinking. Was she pretty?"

"Sir, you insult me," said the Poet, "I really don't know what you are talking about."

"Talking about the girl you say, of course," pursued the Cynic relentlessly. The Cynic had finished his hash and was awaiting the coffee. "You don't mean to tell us you found anything to think about at a reception?"

"Yes," answered the Poet, "in the first place you couldn't find anything to think about at any reception, and in the second place, if you did find something, you couldn't—" he stopped suddenly for he saw a dangerous look in the Poet's eye.

"O, cut it," exclaimed the Bookkeeper. "Come Popsy, give us that little verse you wrote the other night, that one about the eyes; you know, it was all right." "You couldn't," in the way of breaking the bars.

Thus urged, the Table Poet, stopped eating his oatmeal long enough to mutmur:

Eyes of brown or of gray, or blue; I care not how long their lashes be, I only care if their glance be true. And an honest soul in their depths I see

Congratulations came from all around the table, and the Poet in his confusion choked on the oatmeal. When he was restored, the Cynic remarked: "That reminds me of a little poem I wrote myself the other day."

"What book did you copy it out of?" asked the Bookkeeper, but the Cynic did not heed.

"It went something like this," he said hurriedly:

Auburn tresses, or locks of gold, I ask none of these of my ideal; I only ask that her hairpins hold 'Tresses of some kind, just so they're real."

The three old maids rose suddenly and left the table and the landlady glared leily at the Cynic with a look which would have frozen the cream in his coffee, had there been any there.

It failed to affect him, but the rest of the meal was finished in silence.

MISSISSIPPI BUBBLE

A NOVEL BY EMERSON HOUGH.

(Copyright, 1902, by the Bowen-Merrill Company.)

CHAPTER I

The Returned Traveler

"Gentlemen, this is America!" The speaker cast upon the cloth-covered table a singular object, whose like none of those present had ever seen. They gathered about and bent over it curiously.

"This is that America," the speaker repeated, "there you have it, barbaric, wonderful, astounding!"

With sudden gesture he swept his hand among the gold coins that lay on the gaming table. He thrust into the mouth of the object before him a handful of louis d'or and English sovereigns. "There is your America," said he. "It runs over with gold. No man may tell its richness. Its beauty you can not imagine."

"Faith," said Sir Arthur Pembroke, bending over the table with glass in eye, "if the ladies of that land have feet for this sort of shoe, methinks we might well emigrate. Take you the money of it. For me, I would see the dame could wear such shoe as this."

One after another this company of young Englishmen, hard players, hard drinkers, gathered about the table and bent over to examine the little shoe. It was an Indian moccasim, cut after the fashion of the Abenakis, from the skin of the wild buck, fashioned large and full for the spread of the foot, covered deep with the stained quills of the porcupine, and dotted here and there with the precious beads which, to the maker, had more worth than any gold. A little flap came up for cover to the ankle, and a thong fell from its upper edge. It was the ancient foot-covering of the red race of America, made for the slight but effectual protection of the foot, while giving perfect freedom to the tread of the wearer. Light, dainty and graceful, its size was much less than that of the average woman's shoe of that time and place.

"Bah!" Pembroke, said Castleton, pushing up the shade above his eyes till it rested on his forehead, "tis a child's shoe."

"Not so," said the first speaker. "I give you my word 'tis the moccasim of my sweetheart, a princess in her own right, who waits my coming on the Ottawa. And so far from the shoe being too small, I say as a gentleman that she not only wore it so, but in addition used somewhat of grass therein in place of hose."

The earnestness of this speech in no wise prevented the peal of laughter that followed.

"There you have it, Pembroke," cried Castleton, "would you move to a land where princesses use hay for hosiery?"

"'Tis curious done," said Pembroke, musingly, "none the less."

"And done by her own hand," said the owner of the shoe, with a certain proprietary pride.

"Again the laughter broke out. "Do your princesses engage in shoemaking?" asked a third gambler as he pushed into the ring. "Sure it must be a rare land. Prithee, what doth the king in handicraft? Doth he take to saddlery, or perhaps, smithing?"

"Have done thy jests, Wilson," cried Pembroke. "Mayhap there is somewhat to be learned here of this new world and of our dear cousins, the French. Go on, tell us, Monsieur du Mesne—do I think you call yourself, sir?—tell us more of your new country of ice and snow, of princesses and little shoes."

The original speaker went a bit sullen, what with his wine and the jests of his companions. "I'll tell ye naught," said he, "Go see for yourselves, by leave of Louis."

"Come now," said Pembroke, conciliatingly. "We'll all admit our ignorance. 'Tis little we know of our own province of Virginia, save that Virginia is a land of poverty and tobacco. Wealth—faith, if ye have wealth in your end of the continent, 'tis time we English sought ye for it."

"Methinks you English are having enough to do here close at home," sneered Du Mesne. "I have heard somewhat of Steinikrik, and how ye ran from the half-dressed gentlemen of France."

Dark looks followed this bold speech, which cut but too closely to the quick of English pride. Pembroke quelled the incipient outcry with calmer speech.

"Peace, friends," said he. "Tis not arms we argue here, after all. We are but students at the feet of Monsieur du Mesne, who hath returned from foreign parts. Prithee, sir, tell us more."

"Tell ye more—and if I did, would ye believe it? What if I tell ye of great rivers far to the west of the Ottawa; of races as strange to my princess's people as we are to them; of streams whose sands run in gold, where diamonds and sapphires are to be picked up as ye like? If I told ye, would ye believe?"

The martial hearts and adventurous souls of the circle about him began to show in the heightened color and closer crowded the young men to the table. Silence fell upon the group.

"Ye know nothing, in this old rotten world, of what there is yet to be found in America," cried Du Mesne. "For myself, I have been no farther than the great falls of the Outouegre—a mere trifles of a cataract, gentlemen, into which ye might pitch your tallest English cathedral and sink it beyond its pinnacle with ease."

ancient wing for the past two seasons." The face of Wilson gathered into a sudden frown at this speech. "What doth it matter?" he began. "Have done, fellows!" cried Pembroke with some asperity. "Lay wagers more fit at best, and let us have no more of this thumb-biting. Gad! the first we know we'll be up for fighting among ourselves, and we all know how the new court doth look on that."

"Come away," laughed Castleton, gaily. "I'm for a pint of ale and an apple; and beware!" "Tis always my fortune, when I come to this country drink, to win like a very countryman. I need revenge upon Lady Betty and her lap-dog. I've lost since ever I saw them last!"

CHAPTER II

At Sadler's Wells.

Sadler's Wells, on this mild and cheery spring morning, was a scene of fashion and of folly. Hither came the elite of London, after the custom of the day, to seek remedy in the reputed qualities of the springs for the weariness and lassitude resultant upon the long season of polite dissipation which society demanded of her votaries. Bewigged dandies, and jockey-coats of colors well displayed as they strutted about in the open, paid court there, as they did within the city gates, to the powdered and painted beauties who sat in their coaches waiting for their servants to bring out to them the draft of which they craved healing for crow's-feet and hollow eyes. Here and there traveling merchants called their wares, jugglers spread their carpets, bear dancers gave their little spectacles, and jockey-coats conferred as to the merits of horse or hound. Hawk-nosed Jews passed among the vehicles, cursed or kicked by the young gallants who stood about, hat in hand, at the steps of their idols' carriages.

"Buy my silks, pretty lady, buy my silks! Fresh from the Turkey walk on the Grosvenor, and cheaper than you can buy their like in all the city—buy my silks, lady!" Thus the peddler with his little pack of finery.

"My philter, lady," cried the Gipsy woman, who had left her donkey cart outside the line. "My philter! 'Twill keep your eyes bright and your cheeks red for ay. Secret of the Pharos, lady; and but a shilling!"

"Have ye a parrot, ma'am? Have ye never a parrot to keep ye free and give ye laughter every hour? Buy my parrot, lady. Just from the Gold Coast. He'll talk ye Spanish, Flemish or good city tongue. Buy my parrot at ten crowns, and so cheap, lady!" So spoke the ear-ringed sailor, who might never have seen a saltier water than the Thames.

"Powder-puffs for the face, lady," whispered a lean and weazen-faced hawk, slipping among the crowd with secrecy. "See my puff, made from the foot of English hares. Rubs out all wrinkles, lady, and keeps ye young as when ye were a lass. Buy a shilling, a shilling, see! And with the pretense of secrecy the seller would slide up to a carriage of some dame, slip to her the hare's foot and take the shilling with an air as though no one could see what none could fail to notice.

Above these mingled cries of the hangers-on of this crowd of nobility and gentles rose the blare of crude music, and cries far off and confused. Above it all shone the May sun, brightly on the towers of London toward the Thames. In the edge of London town it was, all this little pageant, and from the residence squares below and far to the westward came the carriages and the riders, gathering at the spot which for the hour was the designated rendezvous of capricious fashion. No matter if the tower at the drinking curb was crowded, so that inmates of the coaches could not find way among the others. There was at least magic in the morning, even if one might not drink at the chalybeate spring. Chalked did indeed grow rosy, and eyes brightened under the challenge not only of the dawn but of the ardent eyes that gazed imperiously bold or reproachfully imploring.

Far-reaching was the line of the gentility, to whose flanks clung the rabble of trade. Back upon the white road came yet other carriages, saluted by those departing, or who might not be seen till the night. At the distance, blending ultimately at the edge of the pleasant sky, Merry enough it was, and glad some, this spring day; for be sure the really ill did not brave the long morning ride to test the virtue of the waters of Sadler's Wells. It was for the most part the young, the lively, the full-blooded, perhaps the wearied, but none the less the vital and stirring nature which met in the decreed assemblage.

Back of Sadler's little court the country came creeping close up to the town. There were fields not so far away on these long highways. Wandering and rambling roads ran off to the westward and to the north, leading toward the straight Old Roman road which once upon a time ran down to London. Well-kept enough were the roads of the lanes, with their hedges and shrubs overhanging the highways, if such the paths could be called which came braiding down toward the south. One needed not to go far outward beyond Sadler's Wells of a night-time to find adventure, or to lose a purse.

It was on one of these less crowded highways that there was this morning enacted a curious little drama. The sun was still young and not too strong for comfort, and as it rose back of the square of Sadler's it cast a shadow from a hedge which ran angling toward the southeast. Its rays, therefore, did not disturb the slumbers of two young men who were lying beneath the shelter of the hedge. Strange enough must have been the conclusions of the sun could it have looked over the barrier and peered into the faces of these youths. Evidently they were of good breeding and some station, albeit their garb was not of the latest fashion. The gray hose and the clumsy shoes plainly bespoke some northern residence. The wig of each lacked the latest turn, perhaps the collar of the coat was not all it should have been. There was but one coat visible, for the other, rolled up as a pillow, served to support the heads of both. The elder of the two was the one who had sacrificed his covering. The other was more restless in his attitude, and though thus the warmer for a coat, was more in need of comfort. A white bandage covered his wrist, and the linen was stained red. Yet the two slept on, well into the morn, well into the rays of Sadler's Wells. Evidently they were weary.

The elder man was the taller of the two; as he lay on the bank beneath the hedge, he might even in that posture have been seen to own a figure of great strength and beauty. His face, bold of outline, with well curved, wide jaw and strong cheek bones, was shaded by the tangled mat of his wig, tousled in his sleep. His hands, long and graceful, lay idly at his side, though one rested lightly on the hilt of the sword which lay near him. The rumor of his shirt were torn, and, indeed, had almost disappeared. By study one might have recognized them in the bandage about the hand of the other. Somewhat disheveled was this youth, yet his young, strong body slender and shapely, seemed even in its rest strangely full of power and confidence.

The younger man was in some fashion an epitome of the other, and it had needed little argument to show the two were brothers. But why should two brothers, well-clad and apparently well-to-do, probably brothers from a country far to the north, be thus lying like common vagabonds beneath an English hedge?

WAYS OF FOLKS IN THE LIBRARY

HUMAN NATURE QUICKLY READ BY TASTES OF BOOKLOVERS.

QUEER QUERIES OF SOME

Association of Ideas Is Responsible for Many Curious Blunders--The Queer Wants of People Who Ask Merely Something to Read--The Wishes of Children.

The ways of booklovers at the library are a fund for a philosopher, if the philosopher would take the trouble to study them.

The most common thing noticed is the lack of accurate ideas and a dependence on similar or associated ideas for assistance.

The ordinary mistake of asking the librarian for "Red Potash," when "Red Pottage" is wanted comes from an associated idea in the matter of sound.

On the other hand, the request for "a book about the great flood" when the Bible was wanted indicates a gross carelessness of memory.

Another kind of failing--that of remembering the author's name, but not the work, indicates less carelessness, but is a fault scarcely less grave.

Children Not the Worst. Though children may ask many amusing questions, they are by no means the greatest trouble to the librarian and assistants.

There are a few precocious children who are bothersome by their requests for books decidedly beyond their years.

A little girl of 9 the other afternoon asked for Dante's Inferno, and it required a good deal of diplomatic persuasion to get her to accept Water Babies instead.

An Interesting Matter. Although nearly everyone reads articles about books and libraries for some purpose or other, the following letter received at The Telegram office yesterday afternoon would seem to indicate the contrary:

"It is very evident the appeal made some time ago for a 50-cent donation from all cardholders has reached the eyes of but few.

"From Mrs. M. K. West, Preston, Minn.: I have received surprisingly good effects from using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I gave one-half of my last box to a friend who also suffered from indigestion and she had the same good results.

"From Mrs. Agnes K. Ralston, Cadillac, Mich.: I have been taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I am very much better, and feel very grateful for the great benefit I have received in so short a time.

"Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a certain cure for all forms of indigestion. They are not claimed to be a cure-all but are prepared for stomach troubles only, and physicians and druggists everywhere recommend them to all persons suffering from Nervous Dyspepsia, sour or acid stomach, heartburn, bloating or wind on stomach and similar disorders.

"Starting, But True. If every one knew what a grand medicine Dr. King's New Life Pills is, writes D. H. Turner, Davenport, Pa., 'you'd sell all you have in a day. Two weeks' use has made a new man of me.' Infallible for constipation, stomach and liver troubles. 25c at W. J. Fisher, 502 Main street and 413 Houston street.

INTERESTING FACTS

For Nearly Every Man, Woman or Child

A short time ago we published an article recommending to our readers the new discovery for the cure of dyspepsia, called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the claims then made regarding the wonderful curative properties of the remedy have been abundantly sustained by the facts.

From James Yemmsler, LaCross, Wis.: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are doing me more good than anything I ever tried and I was so pleased at results that I gave away several boxes to my friends who have also had the same benefit.

From Mrs. M. K. West, Preston, Minn.: I have received surprisingly good effects from using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I gave one-half of my last box to a friend who also suffered from indigestion and she had the same good results.

A Man Named Hayes Bound Over to Await Action of Grand Jury on Theft From Personal Charge--Other Arrests and Incarceration for Criminal Offenses

On Thursday afternoon late, nearly or quite dark, Mr. M. F. Compton of North Fort Worth, was held up and robbed by two men, he claims, near the new stock yards Exchange building. He only had a small amount of money with him, and the robbers got it. He claims the men were white, and he feels pretty sure he would know them on sight.

Mr. Compton reported the matter to the officers, and Friday afternoon two men were arrested whom he believes are the men. They were placed in jail as suspects, and will be given an examination. Their names are not given, because the crime has not been definitely fixed upon them.

Surrendered by Bondsmen. A man named Hamilton was on Friday afternoon surrendered by his bondsmen and placed in jail. He is charged with an aggravated assault.

Charged With Robbery. Lewis Clark, a negro, who was indicted on a charge of robbery, has been arrested and is now in jail pending a hearing.

Ed. Hayes Bound Over. Ed. Hayes, the man who was arrested by Detective Zimmerman for having robbed an intoxicated railroad man of $35 and a watch, was given a hearing before Justice Rowland yesterday. Hayes was bound over in the sum of $1000 to await the action of the grand jury. He failed to give the bond and was remanded. When Hayes was arrested, the officers found $20 of the $35, also the timepiece. He admitted it was the plaintiff's stuff, but claimed it was given him for safe keeping. Hayes is a stranger here, and the officers say it is a "good one" from Kansas City.

Claypool Plead Guilty. The man who gave his name as Claypool, arrested Friday by Detective Thomson on a charge of theft from person, pleaded guilty before Judge Milam yesterday and was given one day and $1 and costs--which means about thirty days on the county road.

To the Public. Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better. Three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by N. B. A Fort Worth Girl in Toronto, Canada Studying Music Sings in a Choir

The many friends in Fort Worth of Miss Lucille Wagner will read with great interest the following notice printed in the Toronto Globe of November 17:

"The choir of the West Presbyterian church was yesterday assisted by a pupil of David Ross of this city."

It will also be remembered that Mr. Ross spent some time in Fort Worth at the Academy of Music.

Duck Shooting at Thurber. Messrs J. L. Busby of the Waples-Platter Grocery Company, accompanied by Messrs. E. S. Goodner and J. A. Howell, spent Thanksgiving at the Thurber duck shooting.

They bagged a large number of real ducks, but the information comes direct that Mr. Goodner yanked the loaf on the largest number knocked down. He got in the bunch thirty-two mud hens, and the last seen of him by his Thurber friends he was trying to make a dicker with a Thurber liverman to deliver his "game" at the junction.

He declared that these slate-colored ducks are much easier gotten at than the real ducks, but he did not know the difference until some of the bunch put him next.

BOLD POSSUMS AT AUSTIN. Are Numerous and Daring in the Mountains Near There. Austin Statesman: "Possums are quite numerous in the mountains just west of Austin and have become so bold that the hill-billys who cut wood in that district are in constant danger of being attacked. Mr. Chopigny, one of the most influential woodcutters of this country, who came in town yesterday for a fresh supply of whisky, says he was desperately chased nearly all the way by a big black 'possum with yellow eyes, and that he was only saved from destruction by following his faithful dog, which valiantly fled when the 'possum leaped from the tree."

HE COULD HARDLY GET UP. P. H. Duffy, of Ashley, Ill., writes, "This is to certify that I have taken two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure and it has helped me more than any other medicine. I tried many advertised remedies, but none of them gave me any relief. My druggist recommended Foley's Kidney Cure and it has cured me. Before commencing its use I was in such a shape that I could hardly get up when once down." Sold by Reeves' Pharmacy, Ward Pharmacy and Arlington Drug Co.

A Thanksgiving Dinner. Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach, exposing the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach.

There is no cough medicine so popular as Foley's Honey and Tar. It contains no opiates or poisons and never fails to cure. Sold by Reeves' Pharmacy, Ward Pharmacy and Arlington Drug Co.

Director of Social Science Club.

2068 Eastern Avenue, CINCINNATI, OHIO, May 20, 1902.

Consider Wine of Cardui a most excellent woman's remedy. It is certainly a specific as a uterine tonic and regulator. For eight years I suffered with female trouble and irregularity. I had intense pain in the back and head, leaving me so weak that I was unable to stand at times. Medicine did not seem to help me, but after all remedies had failed me Wine of Cardui proved my one great friend. What a relief I experienced. It was only a few days after I started taking it. I used it faithfully for four months and gradually grew stronger and better. My menses which had been irregular and painful now were regular to the day, and for the past two years I have enjoyed blessed good health and hardly know when I menstruate. I certainly wish every sick and suffering woman could know of your blessed medicine, how much pain and suffering it would prevent, and what a difference it would make in thousands of homes where there is sickness and sorrow today. If they had Wine of Cardui it would bring relief and joy instead.

Margret Greenmyre

THERE are thousands of women who on account of female weakness are half living, half existing. They are unable to fully discharge the duties that give that true significance to the name of "mother". A healthy mother is the soul of a home. And when she is sick she leaves a vacancy which no other can fill. With such a responsibility as this no mother has a right to be sick when it is within her power to be well. No mother, sister or daughter has the right to rob the home of her influence when such a remedy as Wine of Cardui is curing so many sufferers. Wine of Cardui is a medicine that has cured a million women, but it is a mild medicine that may be taken by a child without harm. It is a never failing regulator of the menstrual flow, accomplishing many astonishing cures of chronic complaints that have baffled doctors for years. Thousands of doubting women who have given up hope of ever being well again have tested Wine of Cardui and have been joyfully surprised by returning health and strength. They have taken it because the trial costs only the price of the medicine and involves no costly doctor's fees, nor any danger of the operating table. A woman does not need to go to a doctor to tell her she has female weakness. She knows it sooner than anyone else without a doctor's holding—a humiliating local examination. Every woman should know that Wine of Cardui always does the same thing and it can be relied on. Wine of Cardui will stop the wasting drains and cutting pains of menstrual troubles, and it will cure ovarian troubles and banish the sharp agonies of bearing down pains and give suffering women health and strength. Wine of Cardui is offered to you with all its power to relieve and cure. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui. Accept no substitute.

PLUMBERS MAY ASK MORE.

Prospect That Example of Dallas Journeymen Will Be Followed Here. The plumbers of Dallas, it is understood, will make a demand for an increase in pay of $1 per day, making the regulation pay for a journeyman plumber an even $5 per day for eight hours work.

Should this be a fact, the business in Fort Worth will correspondingly be affected, for the same demand will be made by the local craftsmen.

It is understood that the demand must be granted by the first of the year, and if the advance is not forthcoming there may be a strike. There is not an oversupply of journeymen plumbers in this city at present, and should the men make such a demand it is reasonable to believe that their request will be granted, as the employers have no possible means of avoiding the difficulty.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless aperients in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and pure blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

THE CHILDREN HEAR OF HERA.

Talk on Greek Art Given by Mrs. Robert Buchanan is Interesting. A large number of children attended the meeting of the Children's league yesterday morning at 10:30. Mrs. Robert M. Buchanan of the Wednesday club spoke on Hera (or Juno) of the Ludovisi Villa, describing the famous statue and telling why the Greeks so much admired it. Following her address she asked the children many questions and received as many interesting answers. The lectures on Greek art are promoting an interest among the children and causing them to make greater demands on the library's works on the subject each week.

Music

Jacob Schreiner.

Considerable has been written and said of late concerning the artist singing German opera, Wagner for instance, as compared to the older Italian schools. It is important for the singer of Wagner to have so perfect a technique that the artistic use of his voice has become second nature to him, that he can rely upon it, and give himself up, when rendering a part, to the highest inspiration of the work, knowing that the vocal organ will respond in just the right degree to the demands upon it. Now, just this vocal technique is what is so often lacking in the German singers. Their voices are fine, but many of them are comparatively untrained; indeed, a voice, which is almost raw material, is not infrequently heard in the greatest roles on the German stage. The organ naturally suffers even as any part of the physical organism would, were it called upon to perform great exertion without the proper previous training. In fact, the Germans in their vocal school seem to lack a fine sense of tonal beauty as such; this might also be said of their violin school as compared to the French and Belgian. Yet they have what is more important, a noble reverence for their work, a whole-souled love of art, deep sincerity, and a serious and earnest effort to express truth. The old Germanic conscience is felt in all they do. Miss Amy Fay tells how Tausig once exclaimed in exasperation to an unfeeling pupil: "But, child, there is a soul in this piece! Don't you know there is a soul in it?" It is this appreciation of the soul in art that gives the German singers a place which many singers with better-trained voices cannot hope to fill.

The greater artist believes that truth finds its highest expression in beauty. The German singers, so faithful in their delineation of character, so convincing in the drama, but so lacking in the external beauties of vocal expression, have been the ones, of course, to introduce Wagner to foreign countries, and we have naturally conceived the idea from them that Wagner must be sung as they sing it. A constant use of the glottis, the abuse of the portamento, and the absence of legato are among the commonest faults of the Wagner singer. These artists, working for a certain ideal far beyond what the former idea of vocal art contained, use their voices badly, chiefly through ignorance. Their defects should not consciously be emulated and their vocal style adopted as the standard of Wagnerian singing. Wagner is coming more and more to belong as much to humanity as does Shakespeare. And, as interpretative art develops, we shall, in the future, no more sing Wagner as did the original Wagner singers, than we should now play Julius Caesar in Elizabethan costume. A musician is not less true to the soul of Beethoven's piano-sonatas because he performs them on a modern Steinway grand, instead of on the which she spent "eight strenuous years" in America.

A German paper, from which is quoted the foregoing passage, gives a sketch of another chapter which is full of valuable practical advice to pupils and operatic aspirants. Especially valuable to many Americans is her advice not to be in too great a hurry. No one can, after only one or two years' study attempt grand roles, and the agents and directors commit a sin when they suggest to young singers such ruinous exertion as these parts require.

The book of this highly experienced artist will be of great value to all engaged in studying music written for public performance or for teaching.

The following telegram from Paris, France, dated Nov. 29, speaks of the foremost American pianist: Mrs. Bloomfield-Zeissler of Chicago, the pianist, scored a notable triumph at the sixth subscription concert given by the famous Lamoureux orchestra at the Nouveau theater this afternoon. The appearance of a foreigner was a considerable innovation, as only once before has an American been permitted to take part in the program of this exclusive organization.

When Mrs. Zeissler appeared on the stage a noisy anti-foreign demonstration occurred, necessitating the intervention of the municipal guards on duty at the theater to suppress it. The artist won her way into favor, however, in spite of the demonstration, the audience rising in enthusiastic approval, with the Composer Moszkowski leading the "Bravos" at the close of her performance.

A program consisting of talent of talent of the Fort Worth university was given Thursday evening at the residence of Miss Emma Zancotti.

Roland M. Pease gave one of his series of vocal recitals at the St. Paul's Methodist church Friday evening.

Leandro Campanari, at one time director of the violin department of the Cincinnati College of Music and under whom quite a number have studied from his state and section of the country, has returned to America locating at San Francisco as conductor of the Symphony orchestra.

The Euterpean club will give a musical program Thursday evening at the residence of Miss Emma Zancotti.

Fort Worth seems to be a mecca for come opera, judging by the number of attractions that have been given here of late.

Cured of Piles After Forty Years
Mr. C. Haney, of Geneva, Ohio, had the piles for forty years. Doctors and dollars could do him no lasting good. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. Invaluable for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, lacerations, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, and all other skin diseases. Look for the name DeWitt on the package—all others are cheap, worthless counterfeits.

Lights and Shadows In City Police Circles

Hot Time at City Prison
There are about 35 prisoners, of almost every nationality in the city prison. Thanksgiving day they were not forced to work, remained in doors, enjoyed a good turkey dinner, and to all intents and purposes retired early in the evening for a good night's rest.

Officer Tom George is doing a term as night clerk this month, and he, too, was invited out on Thanksgiving day for dinner, and accepted. He did full justice to his host's board, and was resting peacefully in a big arm chair placed conveniently to a desk telephone, and was complacently reading The Telegram's superior telegraphic and local news columns.

It was just 11 p. m. The mounted officers had rung in their "all's well," and Tom had resumed his reading. Suddenly he became aware of a terrific commotion, and as he sprang from his chair and rushed through corridor to the prison cells the doors of the cells flew open as though at some preconcerted signal, and about 35 desperate prisoners with picks, shovels, spades, crowbars and pick handles rushed at him cursing and they came. Cone and Thomson had just a few minutes before locked up a prisoner and were not yet out of the corridor, but both fled, after taking one glance at the situation. It therefore devolved upon Officer George to face these desperate men alone. However, he was equal to the terrible emergency. He drew his pistol and commenced firing over the prisoners' heads. He fired three shots, and then, realizing that he had but three more shots, he ran back to where the city hall fire-house is located. He seized the muzzle loader and unloaded a sufficient quantity to answer his purpose, and in a much quicker time than it takes to tell it, with one hand began playing the mud-blinding water upon the jail breakers, while with the other hand he continued to fire his revolver.

It seemed an age, though doubtless it was not all more than a few seconds. The last charge had been shot from Tom's trusty side arm, and he hurried the empty, smoking revolver at the leader's head, while the strong deluge of mud from the fire hose drove the baffled rabble back for a moment, and then—

Tom half turned his head to see the heels of Patrol Driver Moss, who sleeps on a cot in the corridor, hot-footing toward the engine room for safety. He looked again, and this time he saw Assistant Chief Allen, Detective Thomson and "Swede Joe" rushing in from the front entrance to the corridor, having been attracted by the shots. The prisoners were cowering in the patrolmen's "locker" room—then Tom faded, having stood to his post till relief came.

He knew no more until an hour later he "came to," and became conscious that Assistant Chief Allen was bending over him pinning a medal upon his breast.

"You won the fight," said Chief Al-madam, and if this man when he comes home does not toe the mark, we'll attend to him," remarked the judge.

The poor woman pulled her thin shawl about her and walked out. She gazed pathetically at the man who had sworn to love and keep her in those years so long ago as she passed out, and wiped away tears with her shawl.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years had supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. Jumped On a Ten Penny Nail.
The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by N. E. Grammer, druggist.
