TRIAL FOR LOUIS DISBROW FOR DOUBLE MURDER BEGINS TODAY

ACCUSED OF THE DEATH OF CLARENCE FOSTER AND SARAH LAWRENCE AT GOOD GROUND, L. I. ON THE NIGHT OF JUNE 9, LAST

(Special to The Telegram.) NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Louis A. Disbrow, charged with the murder of Clarence Foster and "Dimple" Lawrence, was put on trial for his life in the supreme court at Riverhead, L. I. today.

Clarence Foster and Sarah Lawrence, whose friends called her "Dimple," met violent deaths on the night of June 9 last or early on the morning of June 10 in Tiana bay, near Good Ground, L. I.

Sarah Lawrence was 17 years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lawrence of Hempstead, L. I. She was a fair-haired, blue-eyed girl, with an exquisitely clear pink and white complexion.

Foster was a stultified fellow, 22 years old, a sort of rustic Adonis. He was married, but he was noted among the young men about Good Ground for his popularity among women.

FORT WORTH, TEX., JAN. 12, 1903.

Senator Hoar's anti-trust bill has not the ghost of a show to become a law at the present session of congress.

The probate valuation of Bret Harte's estate at $1,800 is cited as an illustration of the small financial reward allotted to literary success of the highest type.

The Reading Railroad has adopted a pension system for the benefit of its old and faithful employes which includes in its benefits three classes—those who have attained the age of 70 years after thirty years service; those who have reached an age between 65 and 69 years after thirty years service and have become incapacitated, and those irrespective of age or length of service who, through accident or ill-health, have become unfitted to do their work.

Next month New York will celebrate the 250th anniversary of the beginning of municipal government in that festive town, and Gotham's harshest critics must admit that she has a good deal to celebrate.

The Champion Elevator Gate company has found such a demand for its output that the present year will see a large increase in its capacity.

Fort Worth people should give Captain Paddock the joyful smile and the glad hand these days because of the good strokes he is putting in for the city.

The business outlook at the beginning of the new year is not unpromising, according to Henry Clew's financial circular. It says:
A look into trade conditions shows that the volume of business continues on an enormous scale.

uries in demand by the wealthy. The spirit of lavishness is abroad in sharp contrast with a former spirit of economy; and this alone is a tremendous trade stimulant.

WHAT MARCONI CAN DO

Signor Marconi makes the following positive affirmations concerning wireless telegraphy:
1. Wireless messages can never be obstructed in transmission.

2. Thirty words a minute has been demonstrated and higher speed is probable.
3. Distance has no effect either on the certainty or speed of transmission.

4. Land or sea are alike for wireless purposes. A message can be sent as well from New York to San Francisco as from Glace Bay to the Cornish coast.

5. Light and darkness make no difference, except that the electric vibrations are 50 per cent stronger in the night.

6. Secrecy of the message, though not fully assured, can be safely anticipated.

7. Only $200,000 is needed to establish a wireless system between any two points, however far apart, either on land or sea.

8. Wireless messages can be certainly sent across the Pacific, the Atlantic, or any other ocean or from coast to coast of any continent, at rates as low as are now charged for messages between New York and Philadelphia.

Vessels at sea with Marconi equipment can, the inventor adds, be easily supplied with a full daily or hourly news bulletin service from any shore station.

TOO CONSCIENTIOUS

The advice not to look a gift horse in the mouth is, it seems, either too homely or too ancient for New Orleans socialists.

A resolution passed at a meeting of the Socialist club states that the man who accepts charity confesses by his act that he has not the power to provide for himself.

Therefore, remembering the Home-Steal riots, the armor plate scandals, and other acts of Mr. Carnegie and his partners, we hold that it would be an infamy to perpetuate the name of Mr. Carnegie in our midst, and that it is impossible for the city of New Orleans to accept the gift tendered without dishonoring its manhood and without lending its aid to the army of wrong.

"We appeal to our fellow citizens, and especially to organized labor, to spurn as an insult the charity of one whose millions are reeking with the plunder of government, and whose gold is stained with the blood of innocents."

There is undoubtedly an underlying truth in the foregoing, but the rant and unnecessary verbiage of the resolution almost hide it from view.

From Messenger Boy to Cattle King in 5 Years

Chicago Inter Ocean: In 1897, a uniformed messenger, mounted on a bicycle, aged 18; six months later a tramp with 25 cents in his pocket; in 1902, aged 23, a young cattle king, on the high road to wealth, is the history in a nutshell of Bert Moore, who came into the stock yards at South Omaha last week bringing with him several carloads of fat steers from his Wyoming ranch, and after disposing of them at a good price, walked up to the Western Union Telegraph office in Omaha to inspect the place where he had spent four years as an ordinary delivery boy.

The brilliant career of the young man, who, without friends and without money, made such a rapid rise in the world, show the opportunities which still exist in the west for a boy or young man of ability and pluck.

For three years Bert McCune, messenger No. 12 of the Western Union force at Omaha, was the best known messenger in the city. His true name was "Moore," but at that time he was called by the name of his foster parents, McCune. Bert was ready and willing to work, and was a favorite with customers all over the city.

All this time he continued work at the "T Bar Z," investing every cent he obtained in livestock. Buffalo Bill, who had a ranch in situated in that country, began taking an interest in the earnest young fellow and assisted him in many ways.

One year Bert secured possession of the homesteads of his two cowboy friends, which, together with his own claim, gave him 480 acres of fine grazing land. On this land he built himself a sod house and, giving up his position with the "T Bar Z," struck out for himself.

PROPERTY VALUES ARE INCREASING

SOME RECENT INSTANCES OF FT. WORTH'S STEADY GROWTH

SOME LARGE INCREASES

Boom-Day Prices Are Exceeded and Yet the Prices Do Not Seem Unreasonable — Increased Valuation Means More Revenue for the City in the Coming Year

"People are paying higher taxes than ever this year, and aren't grumbling about it either," remarked Deputy City Assessor and Collector T. P. Le...
Increased prices, increased values, increased rentals, increased taxes, all have come so steadily that while many noted the statement that since the beginning of the present city administration, property values in Fort Worth have risen from about $12,000,000 to nearly $20,000,000, just how that enormous valuation increase has been effected has not been the cause for so much thought.

Perhaps the greatest increase is in business houses and suitable locations for buildings in the business center.
Some Recent Deals
A well informed business man yesterday called attention to the fact that business and residence rentals are alike soaring, yet they do not seem unusual, because of the fact that the prices now being paid for property exceed by far anything in the history of the city.

This business man, who is with a Houston street establishment, gave the following instances of business changes as proof of his statements:
Hyde Jennings is said to have refused $12,500 the other day for the building occupied by the Herald Shoe company on Houston street.

George Mulkey, who purchased the corner at Second and Houston streets, now occupied by W. H. Tanner, the grocer, for the sum of $42,500 a year ago, has refused $75,000 for the property, it is said.
It is reported that W. J. Boaz has refused an offer of $8,000 for a building next to the corner of Second and Houston streets, offered for sale eighteen months ago for $3,500. It is said to be valued at $10,000.

It is also said that T. J. Boaz has leased for five years a building on Main near Second, the rental being $75 a month for the first two years and $100 per month for the next three years. It is said the same building could have been rented on a five-year contract, less than a year ago, for $40 a month. The same building in Fort Worth's palmiest days never rented for more than $60 per month.

To sum up the conditions, it is safe to say that the valuation of business property in the city has advanced 40 per cent in value during the past year, while residence property has advanced 25 per cent in the same time. There is no rentable property to be had on either Main or Houston streets. Rents have advanced 25 per cent on both houses and business properties.

It is little to be wondered at that outside capital is being freely invested in local real estate and business blocks.
DALLAS MAY SECURE PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE
DALLAS, TEX., Jan. 12.—A mass meeting will be held at the Commercial club tonight for the purpose of determining whether or not Dallas is to make a substantial offer for the Presbyterian university. The local committee has been at work during the past week and it is understood that they will have something to report of a substantial nature.

AND SO
She Found How the Coffee Habit Could Be Easily Left Off
"My husband had coffee dyspepsia for a number of years," writes a lady from Dundee, N. Y. "Coffee did not agree with him, as it soured on his stomach, and he decided to stop it.
"We felt the need of some warm drink and tried several things, but were soon tired of them. Finally a friend told me of the good Postum Food Coffee had done her family and I ordered a package from the grocer.
"We have used it for three years with splendid result. It agrees perfectly with his stomach and dyspepsia has entirely left him. I find in talking to people who have used Postum and not liked it that the reason is that they do not let it boil long enough. When prepared according to directions it makes a beautiful, clear, golden-brown beverage like the highest grade of coffee in color.
"We let the children have Postum every morning, and it agrees with them nicely and they thrive on it. I am sure that if everyone using coffee would change to Postum that the percentage of invalids would be far less than it is at present." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It is easy to change from coffee to Postum and the benefit is sure and quick, for Postum is composed only of the grains intended by nature for man's sustenance and it goes to work in nature's way to correct the disorders caused by coffee and rebuild the broken-down blood and nerve cells. A ten days' trial of Postum will prove this to the most skeptical.

VETERANS ADDRESSED BY MRS. JOHNSON

Robert E. Lee camp, United Confederate Veterans, held a largely attended meeting yesterday afternoon in the Forty-eighth district courtroom. An address by Mrs. Cone Johnson of Tyler, department president of the Daughters of the Confederacy, was listened to with interest by the Confederates and veterans. She was introduced by Commander Taylor and spoke largely on the management of the Confederate home at Austin, urging that the accommodations at that institution be enlarged and improved. A further appropriation of $12,000 toward the maintenance of the home was urged. The hospital department was declared to be inadequate. In conclusion Mrs. Johnson asked for the co-operation of the Sons and Daughters in the work.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT

Street Fakers
Editor Telegram: I was very much interested in an article of last Sunday's issue relative to street fakery and their removal from street corners, etc. It is conceded, and no fair-minded person with the city's welfare in mind could object. Perhaps it is a question lying in the domains of sociology why all such and many others of the begging class should be excluded from the streets plying their trade. The maimed, the deformed, however needy they may be, should be barred from public exhibitions of their deformities, whether congenital or accidental. I know it is yet an open question with scientists whether these hideous sights react prenatally. The unborn should be given the benefit of the doubt and thus prevent hideous possibilities.

Another of the begging class—the blind. I have been observing one woman with babe in arms and a young child constantly with her. I inquired the length of her blindness. With a great deal of gusto in her voice she informed me: "Twenty-six years." Here comes a question of sociology that demands legislative interference. That our marriage laws are too lax none will deny; that such a woman, born into poverty should be allowed to marry and bring children into the world is a travesty upon civilization. These children are being reared as paupers, living off the dole of the passer-by. What ideas will they acquire of their responsibility of citizenship or as producers in the world's workshop.

What ideas will they acquire of their responsibility of citizenship or as producers in the world's workshop. Heretofore there is a place provided where such woman victim of a false estimate of "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness" can be placed and cared for and her children reared rightly she should be sent there. If she has a husband let him support her and keep her and the children from the cursed stigma of pauperism. If there is no place there should be one. While lawmakers are so busy making laws let them make the restrictions heavier upon who shall or shall not marry. We may deny prenatal influences, but we cannot deny heredity or outlive environment. ELLEN LAWSON DABBS, M. D.

A Query
To the Editor of The Telegram.
Will "Optimist," who writes so pleasantly in Sunday's issue, give us the exact amount of money and the exact amount of work the city has expended on Houston, South Main streets, Pennsylvania and Jennings avenues, to which he refers? And can he furnish us an estimate of what this should cost when done economically. Constant travelers on these streets fail to note anything the city has done, except occasionally drop a load of gravel or rock in a hole, and not even these when sorely needed. All else has been paid for by others.

He might also explain how much the city will have gained when, in spite of all our sophistries, we stand convicted of attempted repudiation before the courts of our country. Was it a crime to have bought our notes (bonds), and must he be a "shylock" and "plutocrat" because our representatives begged him to invest in our securities? The fault is not there. If there be any fault, it was in our own citizens who indorsed the policy by their votes under which these bonds were issued. It is refreshing to note that the courts insist on the same standard of honesty for municipalities that we demand of individuals. A trifle more extension of these principles into all departments of municipal life could work us injury in the long run. "HONESTY."
