RALLIED SUPERBLY YET DID NOT WIN

FORT WORTH LOST TO PARIS SEVEN TO FOUR

Locals Batted Bateman from the Box, but McKay Stopped Them—Poindexter's Costly Tumble—Sorrels Twirled a Fair Game, but Hits Followed Errors

After winning in whirlwind fashion from Paris, the league leaders, on Friday by magnificent rallies in the eighth and ninth innings, Fort Worth lost to the same club yesterday afternoon. Paris outbatted and outfielded the locals, so a long search is not necessary to find the cause of defeat.

grounded down to Lucid, who let it flutter through his legs. Pennell cracked a hard safe drive into right field and two runs scored giving the game to Paris beyond peradventure.

The two shortstops did brilliant work all afternoon. Disch was robbed of a couple of hits by fast fielding. In the eighth inning he cracked a hard liner over Kelly's head that would have tied the score if it had got past that young man. Kelly grabbed it, however.

Sorrels pitched a good game. He was fairly effective at all times, but unfortunately the hits came after errors were made.

The rally in the eighth was the star event of the game, and as hit after hit went out the crowd fairly went wild with enthusiasm. Disch started it with a double. He scored on McMurray's single.

"Mac" took second on the throw home and scored on Combs' single. Combs took second on the throw home. Poindexter and Fiedler went out, but Lockhead, Sorrels and Barrett hit safely. With four runs in and two on the bases, Lucid drove a hard liner into left center, which Mulkey clutched after a sharp sprint. The scores:

NOTES OF THE GAME Buchanan and McKay will oppose each other in this afternoon's game, which will be started at 4 o'clock instead of at 3:30 as heretofore. There was another shift in the infield yesterday. Moynihan went back to oblivion; Disch returned to short, Lucid to second and Fiedler to first. Lockhead patrolled right and had nothing to do. Disch is a great favorite with the fans. They all like him. When he makes an error it is set down to hard luck. He had two of them yesterday, but they were forgiven almost as soon as they turned up. But when Lucid made one, when Ted Sullivan yesterday received a telegram from Tom Loftis asking him if he had a man that could play second or short in fast company; if he did to name the price and put the goods on the first train. "The only man in the league that I could send is Disch," said Ted. He turned the telegram over to Manager Ward. "I guess we'll keep Disch," said that gentleman.

ZOOK PUZZLED DALLAS DALLAS, Texas, May 9.—The home players hit Zook safely only three times in today's game, while Corsicana did three times as well against Railing, and won easily. The fielding of the Dallas men was ragged. Zook's effective pitching, however, was the principal factor in the defeat of the locals. The scores:

would, with their families, make a city in themselves. The establishment of these works at Fort Worth means a large and substantial increase in the business of that city. It also means much to the farmers and stock raisers of Northern Texas, Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. It means a shorter haul to market, less shrinkage and better prices for live stock. And with the unequalled railroad facilities of Fort Worth, she now having eleven main trunk lines, there is no reason why she should not be the largest and most important business center in Northern Texas. And if her business men are all like those we met, she will be, as a more energetic lot it would be hard to find.

ECHOES OF THE IOWA EDITORS' TRIP

This is the way the Wayne County Democrat of Corydon, Iowa, speaks of a portion of the recent visit to Fort Worth of the Iowa editors:

"We reached Fort Worth a little after noon and were met by a committee of reception, who escorted us to the Hotel North, where we were entertained with a sumptuous dinner as the guests of the Commercial club and the ladies of the city. It seemed like home to the editor, as on the reception committee were the following former Iowa friends: George Johnston, formerly of Benarpe, now superintendent of train dispatchers at Fort Worth; C. D. Reimers, formerly of Centerville, now of the Fort Worth Telegram; Hon. T. O. Walker, a former well-known Iowa editor and at one time reading clerk of the United States senate, now Wallace's Farmer, and J. A. Trigg of the Fort Worth Register, and our son, A. Z. Stirling of the Live Stock Reporter.

morning's session of the national conference of charities and correction. The general subject was "Colonies for the Segregation of Defectives," upon which the committee's report was submitted by Alexander Johnson of Fort Wayne, Ind. A general discussion upon matters relating to the segregation of feeble-minded and insane was participated in by Miss Mary E. Perry of St. Louis, G. S. Robinson of Des Moines, Iowa; W. E. Spangling of New York, Dr. F. A. Arnozon of Fairbault, Minn., and Daniel B. Murphy of Rochester, N. Y. The conference held no session in the afternoon.

ARCHBISHOP KAIN MAY NEVER RETURN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 9.—In hopes of restoring his health, Archbishop Kain will leave St. Louis Monday to enter St. Agnes sanitarium at Baltimore. His stay in the east will be indefinite and the archbishop says he may never return. In fact, his departure is equivalent to resignation from the St. Louis archdiocese. Bishop Glennon of Kansas City, secretary and coadjutor to Archbishop Kain, will arrive in St. Louis today and assume active management of the archdiocese.

COTTON CLIMBING BECOMES A HABIT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Still higher records for the season were reached in the cotton market today. July, August, September, October and December all reached new high levels. July sold at 10.32 cents, August 9.39 cents and September at 9.20 cents, exceeding the previous high prices by 10, 13 and 22 cents, respectively.

lounge, which her employer found after the garment was done and the seamstress departed.
Another did nothing but thread the needles for the lady who employed her.

It is a business which holds great possibilities of success for any ambitious, determined young woman. I have known two or three who pursued the vocation with a purpose, increased their knowledge and prices, and rose to the head of successful establishments.

Others beg me to use my influence to get them on the stage. They have been assured by friends that they possess dramatic talent, and if they can only get a hearing with the public they know a brilliant success awaits them.

It is a most distasteful and unpleasant occupation to many.
Yet those who do attempt to make it a business should go about it with an earnest purpose to excel; and rather than be a poverty-stricken, obscure fourth-rate "artist" or "actress," importuning editors and managers and strangers for influence, it would seem that any sensible and self-respecting girl would prefer to overcome a distaste for sewing and to be a successful, first-class seamstress and have people with money importuning her!

Each Sex In Its Place

By Max O'Reil

(Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
THINK the best regulated community is that of a farmhouse. There you see men work with shovel, pickaxe and plough, till the fields, reap and mow the corn, lead cattle, carry big weights, while women cook, sew, spin, weave, make cream and butter, pick fruit, milk cows, look after the poultry; that is to say, you see men do the heavy work and women the light. In the farmhouse everyone seems to be in the right place, and the consequence is that, I believe, there is no place where happiness and contentment so generally reign as in a farmhouse.

But, in the large cities of Europe at any rate, what do we see? Great Heavens! If there is one sight that sickens me, nearly makes my blood boil with indignation, it is that of men, young, healthy, strong men, who sell to women, in the large dry goods stores, gloves, handkerchiefs, lace, silk, ribbon, flowers; why, even in the shoe and the linen departments do we see men; they are everywhere.
In many Paris shops the cashier is a woman, but very few women are employed as clerks in French offices. Steady women, with a good hand and quick at figures, stenographers and typewriters, ought even to be preferred to men in government offices and commercial houses, inasmuch as philanthropy should always remind us that nothing is more injurious to the health of a woman than to be standing for hours and hours every day. Clerks, secretaries, cashiers, should be women almost everywhere.
Is there also a more pitiful sight than that of young girls working, in penal-servitude fashion, in the factories of Europe, pale, emaciated, careworn-looking! Why, in Lancashire, England, women are coal miners!

AN EXERCISE TO MAKE YOU GRACEFUL MASSAGE FOR THE NECK AND SHOULDERS HER NECK SHOULD BE FULL AND ROUND RESTING ARMS AND FEET EXERCISE TO DEVELOPE THE BUST

The most prudish woman cannot avoid going to bed on certain occasions; neither can the thin woman, nor the most badly formed.

By the exigencies of fashion a fair woman who would object to showing her bare foot to the shoemaker will exhibit her shoulders and chest to a miscellaneous crowd without a thought.

It is all right if only they are pretty—if only her bust is white and firm and well proportioned to the rest of her figure. There are many things to assist in beautifying the bust. Some of them have been extensively used. Here are a few that have not:

To keep the bust firm it should be bathed every day in astringents and tonics. These should be manufactured upon a basis of alcohol and sulphate of alum. A foundation of zinc is also excellent, and I recommend it highly.

The lotion should be used on the neck and shoulders and chest and bust, which should be bathed for five or ten minutes.

After this treatment the parts should be well rubbed with a dry flannel glove. I may say that every woman would do well to follow this treatment in her daily toilet, the perfectly formed one as well as the imperfect.

The question of whiteness cannot be called one of health. It belongs more properly to the catalogue of woman's coqueries.

In order that her skin may be white and at the same time velvety, I recommend the following course of treatment:

In the morning, at least an hour before her appearance in a toilette gown, I would advise madam or mademoiselle to bathe her chest and neck and shoulders with a little of the solution given below, and let it dry without wiping:

Orange flower water 200 grams
Glycerine 15 grams
Oxide of zinc 5 grams
Borate of soda 2 grams

Then powder the neck with the following:

Rice powder 100 grams
Indian meal 100 grams
Starch 100 grams
Calomel 20 grams
Essence of thyme 10 centig
Essence of bergamot 10 centig
Essence of geranium 1 gram
Essence of iris 15 centig
Essence of cloves 10 centig

From the day when it was first invented the corset has been a lasting and charming acknowledgment of woman's coquetry. Physicians and scientists have inveighed against it, protesting that under its strings lie all sorts of ills. So they do, if coquetry goes too far.

The introduction of the corset to French women is laid at the door of Catherine de Medici. They have clung to it since 1532, with slight variations of form.

Rioliom, Catherine de Medici's famous physician, called it a fatal instrument. Montaigne condemned it; so did hundreds of others, all men. The women continued to adore it. It grew in size.

In early Greek days it was a band. In the middle ages hands were abandoned for a sort of corsage that fitted the figure.

At the end of the fifteenth century whalebones were in fashion. With the eighteenth century the full-fledged corset had come to stay, health advocates to the contrary.

As I am interested chiefly in beauty, I am a friend, a great friend, of the corset. I do not admire the pointed instrument of Marie Antoinette's day, nor the steel tortures that bound the women of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but for the modern corset I have the most sincere admiration.

A good corset, which is of course, the one I admire, must follow the lines of the figure. It must not seek to compress nor diminish any organ. It should merely protect and assist in moulding.

Under no condition should a woman ever lace her corsets tightly. Besides spoiling her figure, destroying its suppleness and grace, it will give her a bad complexion—red and blotchy.

When you are dressed you should be able to slip your two hands under your waist. You should have plenty of room to breathe.

To insure a perfect fit, one that follows the lines of your figure, never buy a corset ready made. Have it moulded to you. Every figure is different. Correct your faults, but preserve your individuality.

No woman is ever properly gowned without some sort of hand or corset. Its support is indispensable to the child, the young girl, the woman. Her skirts will never hang properly without it.

A corset should never be too long over the stomach nor too high over the bust. It should be a support, not an armor. It should widen and narrow with the outline of the figure.

It should be felt nowhere especially and everywhere generally.

It should be yielding, not stiff.

It should be unlaced every night and laced carefully every morning.

A woman who is conscious of her corset has not secured the proper ones.

If she longs to shed them at every opportunity they do not fit her.

A sign of relief should not attend their undoing.

Under her corset strings, it goes without saying, she should leave room for her meals.

Last, but not least, the presence of her corset should never by any chance be detected when she is gowned. She should give the impression of absolute ease, of exquisite suppleness, of freedom from any stiffness attendant upon whalebones.

Presented in a sleeve the arm of almost any woman may be made today to appear well formed. Hundreds of devices are at her command. The under sleeve will at once make it seem stouter. Elongating it so that it falls on the hand will give an appearance of length.

But as she must appear in a low neck gown on certain occasions, just so surely must she reveal her bare arms.

The question is, how a thin woman may make hers presentable. While she is striving to enlarge them by a persistent use of dumbbells and by such exercises as I have already described in these pages, she should be careful somehow to drape them, with lace or net.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has said that when she was notably thin she invented the Mousquetaire glove. It immediately gave size to her arm.

If your arms are very thin, wear Mousquetaire gloves, but at the same time let some coiffeuse massage them thoroughly. He can mould them from wrist to shoulder. He can also make the flesh firm. With exercise you can help his work.

If your arm is too large the massage should be given with some of the iodine soap I have already recommended, and the exercises should be much more violent and of longer duration.

Miss Chapelle & Says

ADVICE TO... THE LOVELORN

Dear Miss Chapelle: You would greatly oblige me by giving me a good recipe for whitening the hands.

A. C. W.

Mix two ounces of fresh oatmeal with a quarter of an ounce of powdered borax and one pint of rose water. Permit this to stand three days and then strain it. After straining an ounce of alcohol should be added to keep it sweet. Use this lotion on your hands a couple of times each day and they will soon become white and soft.

Dear Miss Chapelle: I would like to have your help. It is for itching of the feet. I have been troubled for some time and suffer a great deal, and will thank you in advance for your information.

READER.

Bathe them daily in a strong solution of soda water. Washing soda is the best for this purpose, and just a piece as large as an egg into a gallon of hot water. Permit your feet to remain in this a half hour. If possible, do it twice a day. Also be very careful about your hosiery. You should wear clean stockings every day.

By Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a young man working in a supply office at one of the coal collieries.

Some time ago I met a young lady, a hotelkeeper's daughter. I called on her several times, but the boys joked me, saying I only went for the free luncheon, so I discontinued my visits because they teased me at work.

I am sorry now for doing what I have done, and I would like to call again, as I think she still cares for me. Please tell me how I could become reconciled with her.

You should have been more brave in the first place and not have been influenced by the silly jokes of your fellow workmen. The only thing you can do is to call on her, and if she receives you in a friendly spirit you may assume that your friendship is to be revived. She may be a little cold at first, as no girl is pleased at being neglected. However, be as nice as you can and perhaps she will be kind to you.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I have known a young man for nearly four years. I was only going with him about one year when he became engaged. I loved him with all my heart and was true to him. I thought of nothing but to buy him presents and have him to save his money.

Finally about a year and a half ago he went to England without telling me. Then he wrote me he thought we could never be anything to each other. It nearly killed me.

Last September he came back and went to work where I am engaged as a book-keeper. I had given him a ring before he went away that cost $18, and while away he lost it. When he came back I replaced it, and at Christmas gave him presents.

He keeps me worried and says he will tell me in February or March what he will do. I can't wait because I can't bear hearing that he goes with other girls.

Now, would you advise me to go away and not wait, or try to have patience. I love him as I can never love any one else and I believe it would kill me if I had to give him up.

MOLLIE.

Child, child, where is your pride? Don't you see this man is only keeping up the friendship for the sake of the presents you give him? You are simply waiting his pleasure as to whether or no he will consent to marry you. Let him go. He is not worth keeping.

You say he has broken the engagement once. He is quite likely to do so again. He feels so sure of you he says he will let you know in February or March if he will marry you. He does not have to ask; he merely has to hold out his hand and you are ready to drop into it, and that is all wrong. Let him go; you will be very glad some day and he will think twice as much of you. You are too easily won.

Never were wash materials more extensively used for shirt waist suits and full gowns than this year.

Butcher's linen is very popular and can be purchased in the dark, serviceable shades as well as in white.

The heavier weaves in dark blue and green are particularly stylish, and with a touch of coarse lace either on the bodice or skirt are very attractive.

Some of these are embroidered with French knots. Some of the waists have pretty flower designs down the front embroidered in white floss, and if carefully laundered will look like new every time.

Heavy cotton chevrets make stunning shirt waist suits, and a new cotton cloth much resembling basket cloth is very pretty. This comes in a shade a little deeper than pongee, and combined with Bulgarian embroidery in the soft colors is very smart.

Three pretty wash gowns are shown in the picture.

The one on the right is a watermelon pink butcher's linen. The skirt is cut tunic and finished with rows of tucking about an inch wide. The yoke of the bodice and tops of the sleeves are tucked and piped with white linen. White lace appliques in a grape design ornament the bodice.

A cluster of pink tufts at the shoulder throw fullness sufficient for the bishop sleeves, which is brought into a wide cuff, tucked and piped.

The gown on the left is delft blue butcher's linen. The skirt is perfectly plain, nine gored, and finished at the bottom with a wide hem. The waist is cut on the plan of an ordinary shirt waist and has a very short bolero which is edged with a wide band of linen torchon lace. The cuffs and collar are likewise trimmed.

The center gown is white pique with a fine satin stripe. The skirt is laid in clusters of wide tucks, which are left open a little way from the bottom, throwing a pretty flare into the bottom of the skirt.

Each strip of tucking is finished at the bottom with a square lace medallion. The waist is bloused and trimmed with the medallions.

Nothing is prettier than an all-white gown. It always looks so cool and clean.

A pretty black and white gown is shown. The material is a fine quality of silk linen. So sheer and soft is this that it strongly resembles liberty silk.

This is a pattern gown, and is hand-embroidered in white wash silk floss. The skirt has a panel front and graduated flounce tucked at top and bottom. These gowns are shown in blue and white also, and are made over thin lawn slips.

A stylish early spring suit is pictured. The material used is a very light weight broadcloth. The seams are piped in satin taffeta and ornamented at the bottom with strappings of the same.

The coat has a stole collar trimmed with fancy braid and edged with straps of the silk ornamented with cut steel buttons. The jacket is lined with light weight white satin, and the skirt has a deep accordion-plated flounce. Such a suit makes a serviceable traveling costume or is pretty for street wear at any time. A skirt of such a suit can always be worn with vestry-shirt waist.

PLAN OPPOSITION SCHOOL TO UNIONS
 NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 9.—According to a resolution recently reported to the senate, a commission is to be named by the governor to aid young men to learn mechanical trades. Senator Tracy of Waterbury, the chairman of the committee that reported the resolution, said that he expected in the next two years this state will undertake an extensive free institution for the instruction of apprentices to various trades, which will to some degree offset the present tendency of labor unions to cut down the number of apprentices in the trades.

APPRENTICES LIMITED.
 "With the unions limiting the number of apprentices," said Senator Tracy in explaining the bill, "the time is shortly coming when Connecticut will have to look outside the limits of the state for a new generation of skilled artisans. The proposed free public academy or college for young trade apprentices will furnish yearly young men capable of going into any trade and equip them with an education much superior to that of the average workman of today."

INCLUDES AGRICULTURE.
 It is estimated that fully $40,000 a year will be necessary to carry out the ideas of the new trades school, if the 200 or 300 young men who are expected to enter are to be accommodated. About $18,000 will be taken from the fund granted to the state by the United States for agricultural and mechanical education, which is about half of the money that now goes to the Connecticut Agricultural college, though only farming is taught the students of that institution. Under the wording of the congressional grant the new school will legitimately receive half of the money now given to the Agricultural college, and it is planned to divide the grant in this way. The state will then be expected to meet the other bills.

FATALLY INJURED BY A PILE DRIVER
 HILLSBORO, Tex., May 9.—Last evening Roy L. Price, while working with the pile driver of the Trinity & Brazos Valley railroad, was hurt so badly by an accident that the physicians say he can't recover. He was holding a bar upon which the light rests when not at work and when the machine started and the weight rose preparatory for the drop, he failed to draw the bar back far enough. The weight struck the end of it and the end he was holding flew around violently, and hit him on the head, crushing his skull. He is rational, but the physicians say there is almost no chance for his recovery.

LAST SESSION OF SCHOLASTIC YEAR

CITY TEACHERS HOLD A PROFITABLE MEETING

Well Prepared Papers by Mrs. Maud Henry and Professor W. M. Moore Are Read and General Discussion Follows. Program of Music

The teachers of the city schools assembled at the high school building yesterday morning at 9:30 for their last monthly meeting for the current scholastic year.

The grade meetings were held first, as usual, in the several rooms of the building, and at 10:30 all the teachers were called together in the chapel, where the program for the day was carried out. Superintendent Alexander Hogg presided. There was a large attendance; nearly all the city teachers were present, and there were several visitors.

The high school quartet, consisting of Roscoe Smith, Homer Mulkey, Robert Myers and Paul Montgomery, sang a humorous selection, which was received with great applause, and the young men responded to the encore.

"IRRESPONSIBLE CRITICISM"
 Mrs. Maud Henry read a carefully prepared paper on "Irresponsible Criticism of Teachers." Among other things, she said: "Irresponsible criticism has been heaped upon teachers more than upon people of any other profession; for an outsider to speak adversely of a lawyer, physician or preacher, is a sad breach of etiquette, but there are all sorts of self-appointed critics of the teacher. Sometimes the logic of a six-shooter has been employed to show the teacher the error of his way, and the public sometimes constitutes itself prosecuting attorney, judge and jury in case of the teacher, who is not even allowed the benefit of counsel.
 "Among the things spoken against the teacher are: 'He or she is narrow minded,' 'is a dreamer,' 'Not consecrated to the work,' 'Dresses too well or ill,' etc. One of our ablest defenders, Edward Howard Griggs, says: 'Teachers are a picked group in the community, second only to the ministry in consideration to their calling.'
 "Tolerant patronage is the heaviest burden teachers have to bear, and dictating to them puts more on their shoulders instead of taking off any of the weight."

THE PAPER DISCUSSED
 Mrs. Henry's paper was discussed by Superintendent Hogg, Professor McGee, Mrs. Joseph C. Terrell, a quondam teacher; Professors Harris, Hammond, Williams and Daffron and Mrs. Hendricks and Miss Hattie Peacock. The chief points made in these speeches were: Critics do not always know what they are talking about; if criticism is well founded, we should bear it and do better service in future; reasonable discontent is a source of progress; teachers themselves are not free from fault-finding; they are sometimes afraid to praise others of the profession because it might deduct from themselves, and if teachers would have parents visit schools often a great deal of unfavorable criticism would be obliterated.

 Miss Follette, an alumna of the high school, favored the gathering with a banjo solo.
HONOR OF STUDENTS
 Professor W. M. Moore spoke on "The Student's Ideal of Honor." His remarks were to the effect that pupils have a separate code of honor from the rest of humanity; that an appeal to their sense of honor is often more effective than any other way of disciplining them, and that teachers might secure better moral results in pupils by trusting them more.
 Professor Moore's ideas seemed to be quite generally approved. Superintendent Hogg and Professor Hammond made brief speeches upon the topic treated.
 Miss Nadine Spooner, a pupil of the high school, played a violin solo with piano accompaniment by Miss Mary Malone.
 After a few announcements by the superintendent and the expression by him of great gratification over the very pleasant relations that had been maintained between the teachers and himself and among the teachers themselves the meeting adjourned.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes Cured

University Chemist Acting as Judge.
 Irvine K. Mott, M. D., of Cincinnati, O., demonstrated before the editorial board of the Evening Post, one of the leading papers of Cincinnati, the power of his remedy to cure the worst forms of kidney diseases. Later a public test was instituted under the auspices of the Post, and five cases of Bright's Disease and Diabetes were selected by them and placed under Dr. Mott's care. In three months' time all were pronounced cured, one of the five in less than a week. She has found out how to get good streets. She has also acquired the secret of the art, most prominent universities in the United States having been chosen by the Post to make examination of the cases before and after treatment. Anyone desiring to read the details of this public test can obtain copies of the papers by writing to Dr. Mott for them.
 This public demonstration gave Dr. Mott an international reputation that has brought him into correspondence with people all over the world, and several noted European are numbered among those who have taken his treatment and been cured.
 The doctor will correspond with those who are suffering with Bright's Disease, Diabetes or any kidney trouble, either in the first, intermediate or last stages, and will be pleased to give his expert opinion free to those who will send him a description of their symptoms. An assay which the doctor has prepared about kidney troubles and describing his new method of treatment will also be mailed by him. Correspondence for this purpose should be addressed to IRVINE K. BIG MUSIC HOUSE SOON IN ITS NEW BUILDING.

In a few weeks the publishing house of M. Whitmark & Sons will be prepared to welcome visitors and patrons to its handsome new building just off Herald Square in New York.

The building is large enough to accommodate two or three of the ordinary publishing houses, consequently each department will have a floor to itself.

The main floor will be occupied by the business offices of the heads of the house, luxurious ladies' parlors and private rooms, in each of which there will be a pianist who will be glad to try voices, rehearse songs and arrange repertoires for singers who are in search of suitable material for stage and concert work.

One of the unusual features in the new building will be a large room in which there will be private desks for a number of prominent managers and producers of the day. Every possible ingenuity for facilitating business has been incorporated into this handsome new structure.

DON'T RESPECT OLD AGE

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies, no matter how severe and irrespective of old age.

Look Out for a Chill.

However slight, at this time of year and in this climate, it is a forerunner of Malaria. A disposition to yawn and an out feeling comes even before the chill.

Herbine kills the Malaria germ in its very first stages, or cures the disease at any stage. There are no narcotic poisons in it - a purely natural remedy and absolutely harmless. At druggists, 50 cents per bottle.

WILL VISIT NEXT IN THE LAND O' CAKES

BY PAUL LAMBETH. (Copyright, 1933, by W. R. Hearst)

LONDON, May 9.—The King will hardly have landed on British soil once more after his visits to the French, Italian and Portuguese capitals...

now the price sometimes reaches as high as 25 cents for a good skin. "Ladies are having moleskin muffs, stoles and jackets, and even motoring coats."

BUYS ANOTHER CASTLE.

Mr. William Waldorf Astor, formerly of New York, now a subject of the King, is making a firm foothold for himself on English soil.

Not content with the lovely riverside domain of Cliveden, he has just purchased the historic Hever Castle, in Kent, near London.

This ancient place, which is reputed to be the birthplace of Anne Boleyn, is one of the most picturesque of all England's "stately homes," and has attracted numbers of the most eminent artists.

Six or seven years ago the members of the Royal Academy club paid Hever a visit, and thirty years earlier the old rooms, in which it is said Henry VIII. courted Anne Boleyn, were for a whole summer tenanted by a joyous body of painters and their friends.

In 1866 Hever was taken jointly by the late P. H. Calderon, R. A., D. W. Wynfield and W. F. Yeames, R. A., now the librarians to the Royal Academy.

These were the hosts, and as Mr. Yeames, then recently married, brought his bride, Calderon's wife and young family, and Wynfield (a bachelor), his mother, they formed, with the addition of their servants, a tolerable large party.

BARONESS'S BIRTHDAY. Another birthday which has just been honored is that of the venerable Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who entered her eighty-ninth year.

The Baroness, besides being a peeress in her own right, a privilege enjoyed by only eight other Englishwomen, is perhaps the richest and most practically benevolent woman in England.

Her great wealth is, of course, derived from the great bank founded by her ancestors.

She married, very late in life—1841 was the year—Mr. W. L. Ashmead-Bartlett of Brooklyn, who acted as her secretary, and has since entered parliament as member for Westminster.

He is the brother of the late lamented "Silomo," and is now known as Mr. Burdett-Coutts.

In appearance he is more like the typical guardsman than a civilian member of parliament, or even an American, being tall and slender, with a military mustache.

His aged wife is a spare little old lady, and still quite active for her years.
