GOSSIP OF THE REUNION

YOUTHS TAKE BACK SEATS WHILE VETERANS PAY HOMAGE

POLICEMEN ARE WEARY

ARMY OF EMPLOYEES WHO HAVE BEEN ANSWERING QUESTIONS FOR MONTHS TIRE OF IT

ENTHUSIASM IS ABUNDANT

Governor Heard Starts the Shouts of Applause and Thereafter Stirring Cheers Greet All the Speakers, Who Picture With Fiery Eloquence the Deeds That Have Made Their Cause Famous.

NEW ORLEANS, May 19.—The popularity of New Orleans as a convention city has brought with it some unfortunate attachments. It is evident that the policemen, motormen hotel and restaurant employes are tired of visitors. The 150,000 people who are in attendance on this great reunion are being made to suffer for the New Orleans temper and patience that has been working overtime for the past two months.

At the St. Charles hotel, which is the storm center of the reunion, there is a well defined suspicion that the attaches of information bureaus, believing that the reunion is the better part of valor, have incontinently fled and though the speaker for the information they are supposed to have charge of may seek in vain there is at least no ruffled temper on either side, and the admiration of the dapper old boys in gray uniforms, and the multitude of fair sponsors, receives no untoward check.

For be it known that the Confederate reunion has two great objects. One is, as is well known, to keep alive the spirit, to emphasize by force of numbers and unanimity the fact that difference of conviction does not mean shame, disgrace or dishonor for the loser. This is the one most heard of, but there is need of an amendment that will read something like this: "It will be the object of this organization to cause, create and encourage the gentle art of admiration by the wearing of raiment known as Confederate gray, and adorned by much gold braid and brass buttons to seek, select and secure the comliest of young women throughout the South and transport them to the scene of reunions and there let them bedeck themselves with gorgeous gowns and wear many streamers of red and white ribbon to ensnare the hearts of susceptible men."

But there is little chance that such an amendment would get a hearing—at least in this time.

SPONSORS MANY

The numerousness of the sponsor and maid of honor is not altogether pleasing to many of the veterans. But just what they are going to do about it remains to be seen. It is noticed that the most liberal sponsor is one of the old boys with white hair, or no hair at all, and who is wearing a uniform of gray. The old man who has forgotten the gallant days of youth in the struggle of living is the one who is frowning upon Miss Sponsor and her wiles and smiles. The young man is standing aloof watching the old boy and trying to get at the secret of making himself as agreeable as the occasion demands. When he learns he will monopolize Miss sponsor and the old boy goes back to his comrades and swabs tobacco and warms (some war time habits have been most pernicious), and the sponsor question will be settled.

FERVENT ORATORY

The assembling of the veterans at the fair grounds auditorium brought but fervent oratory. The setting for it was worthy in design and inspiring in its execution. The decorations were extremely beautiful, the hunting and traps, both Confederate and effective, being draped with flags and varied by pictures of the men of the Confederate soldier delights to honor.

The Southern soldier may have been a fighter in time of war, following his gallant commander with matchless loyalty. Now, in times of peace, he lives oratory and follows with eager interest the glowing panegyrics and pictures describing his deeds and the cries of his commanders, and at every opportunity expresses his approbation of the like of which were first heard in the war whoop of the Western Indians.

The opening speeches of the reunion, these peace whoops had plenty of exercise for their frequency. Governor Heard of Louisiana got the outbreak and when once those who got to working there was a continuous succession of vehement approval.

NEGRO VALET IN A CONSULAR ROLE

Black Servant of an Antwerp Family Fools Even New York Papers By Falsely Signing a Passenger List

NEW YORK, May 22.—A negro valet named A. L. Allen, in the service of an Antwerp family, was allowed a vacation some time ago in order to go to Washington to see his family, according to an Antwerp dispatch to the Herald. On his return from New York he allowed himself to be booked on the steamer Kroonland's list as "United States vice consul at Antwerp," and was thus placed at the head of the first-class passenger list. Much attention was paid him by the personnel of the steamship.

Several New York papers announced the departure of "A. L. Allen, U. S. consul general at Antwerp, on the Kroonland."

On arriving at Antwerp the valet resumed his duties as bootblack, doorman and general utility man at his former master's.

The sentence was not completed, and Mr. Kruttschnitt caught his own point. He is not from the Emerald Isle, either, but a nephew of Judah P. Benjamin.

Mrs. Behens was received with cheers when she came on to speak of the memorial association, of which she is president. There is nothing remarkable in cheering a woman on such an occasion, but when the man have cheered Mrs. Behens forty years ago? Truly, the lesson of the war has wrought marvelous changes!

A TIP FROM GORDON

All that any ambitious politician who wants to go to congress or to be president or something, has to do is to watch General John B. Gordon, and see how he does, and he can turn the trick with one hand, the other being tied behind him. The commander-in-chief is about the quietest old chap alive. Cute is the word, but if anybody has a better one he is at liberty to use it.

The speech that went into the papers was his speech, just as Hamlet would be Hamlet with Hamlet left out. There were parts of the speech that gold type could not produce.

"We are growing old, boys, but all mankind must know that we still stand for constitutional liberty," which, from such a finely reconstructed man, sounded strange enough.

HOGG WAS THERE

During the changing of speakers, one man asked a Texan who a certain very large man was who was seated on the stage. The Texan did not know. The big man proved to be Governor Hogg. The ex-governor is one of the old boys with white hair, or no hair at all, and who is wearing a uniform of gray. The old man who has forgotten the gallant days of youth in the struggle of living is the one who is frowning upon Miss Sponsor and her wiles and smiles. The young man is standing aloof watching the old boy and trying to get at the secret of making himself as agreeable as the occasion demands.

There are no evening meetings, but trips to West End, vaudeville or the Yulane and the Crescent ball at armory of Washington artillery, reception at private houses and trips down the river on the training ships furnish plenty on (Continued on page 2.)

PRINCE RUPERT WILL BE INCOGNITO

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The state department is advised that the approaching visit to the United States of Prince Rupert of Bavaria and his wife will be made incognito and that consequently they do not expect any official recognition. It is probable, nevertheless, that the couple will visit Washington and that some semi-official entertainment will be provided for them. Newport in all probability will be visited by the royal couple when the season at that famous resort is at its height.

Prince Rupert and his wife, who is a daughter of the noted oculist, Prince Dr. Carl Theodor, are an interesting royal couple and all the more so as they are destined at some future time to sit on the throne of the kingdom of Bavaria. The prince and princess have been on a scientific tour to the Orient. The tour has been an extended one. They sailed last December from Genoa for India. There they were royally entertained by Lord Curzon and by a number of Indian princes. In Java, it is said, they explored three volcanoes. From there they sailed to Taiku, and then they went to Peking. At Pao-Ting-Fu they were received by the empress dowager of China. They are now in Japan and are expected to sail soon for San Francisco.

ST. PETERSBURG, Saturday, May 6.—Paul Mikulov, former professor of history at Moscow and Sofia, and the author of "Sketches of Russian History," will leave here for Chicago within a week. He was selected by Charles Crane a year ago to deliver twelve lectures at the University of Chicago this spring.

Thapal Pumpelly, who has been charged by the Carnegie Institution with the exploration of Russian Turkestan, has arrived here with his son, R. W. Pumpelly, to procure the necessary permission. They will join Prof. W. H. Davis and Elsworth Huntington of Harvard and Prof. Richard Norton, director of the American School of Classical Studies of Rome, at Baku. The party will search for remnants of the once flourishing civilization of the basin of the sea of Aral, and will investigate the climatic changes that have taken place there in historical times and will seek to discover whether such changes have been sufficient to cause the present decline of this region and whether or not it is due to economic and political changes, such as the interruption of the old caravan route by the Arabs and Turks, the devastation of the country, the settlement of a population unused to agriculture and the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope route to India. The party will remain several months, some of the members perhaps longer, future work being determined by the results of the present reconnaissance.

STUDENT IS GONE CAUSE A MYSTERY

(Special to The Telegram.) ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 22.—Albert A. Patterson, vice president of the senior medical class, has mysteriously disappeared, and is either the victim of one of the most sensational tragedies ever recorded or is a prince of jokers.

Patterson left a letter stating that when in San Antonio in 1897 or 1898 he wandered into the Mexican part of the city, where he was caught, gagged, tied, blindfolded and initiated into an organization. Soon after he came north and heard nothing more of the organization until he received notes of warning that he had forfeited his life and would be killed.

This morning his white crush hat was found on the lawn under his window. There was a hole in it and it was spattered with blood.

Patterson is a graduate of DePauw University, Green Castle, Ind., and served in the hospital service in the Spanish-American war. He disappeared shortly after a visit to his fiancée, Miss Maude Hinman, who also is a medical student. It is said he was also engaged to Miss Laura Flower of Green Castle, and this report lends interest to the mystery.

ROOSEVELT IS NOW IN FAR NORTHWEST

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 22.—President Roosevelt reached the Puget Sound country today after an enjoyable trip from Portland through one of the most beautiful and picturesque sections of America. Chehalis was reached shortly after noon and the president addressed a large crowd from the famous "McKinley stump," near the railroad station. The next stop was at Centralia, where another immense crowd was on hand to greet the chief executive. Olympia was reached on schedule time and the distinguished visitor found the capital city bedecked in his honor and thronged with visitors from miles around. The stay was limited and immediately after the ceremonies the party boarded the special train and continued the journey to Tacoma.

ARRANGEMENTS AT TACOMA

TACOMA, Wash., May 22.—President Roosevelt is scheduled to reach Tacoma at a late hour this afternoon and will be received by a police and military escort. After a drive through the north end the president is expected to deliver an address at Wright park. Tomorrow morning the presidential party will embark on the naval steamer and be conveyed to the naval station at Bremerton and later to Seattle. The special train will be run empty from this city to Seattle.

BRITISH LION IN SYMPATHETIC ROLE

PEKIN, May 22.—Great Britain, although willing to accept payment of her indemnity on a silver basis for nine years and in gold thereafter, leaving the question open whether China shall ultimately pay the difference, has not yet made definite proposals to China. Great Britain is endeavoring to enlist the co-operation of other powers in the compromise owing to the hardships China has incurred by the depreciation in the value of silver.

NEW MINISTRY IS MORE COMPASSIONATE

SOFIA, May 22.—The new ministry has made representations to the porte on the severities practiced in Macedonia, urging their cessation as a means of bringing about more cordial relations between Turkey and Bulgaria. The Bulgarian government will also appeal to the powers for their mediation.

FIRST BAND CONCERT PROVES BIG SUCCESS

The public grounds committee of the pleasure-seekers that took advantage of the opening concert last night enjoyed their outing thoroughly. There are only a half dozen benches in the park in condition to be used and so nearly everyone present occupied grass seats, but next week the seating arrangements will be improved and the bandstand will be ready. Last night there was a handsome canopy at the main entrance, where the tickets were sold at 10 cents, each, the materials for the canopy being donated by The Fair, Parker-Lowe and G. Y. Smith. All the receipts of the concert aside from the pay of the musicians will be expended in beautifying the park. The ladies who have worked so hard to make the plan a success are entitled to the thanks of the people of Fort Worth, as also are the various firms that are helping it along by contributions.

RARE BOOKS SELL FOR LARGE SUMS

BOSTON, Mass., May 22.—Notably high prices have been paid at the auction sale of books at Libbey's, there being sold some rare and choice first editions and the first complete copy of the New England "Psalm Singer" ever offered. The "Psalm Singer," by William Billings, with frontispiece and music engraved on copper by Paul Revere, printed by Edes and Gill, Boston, about 1770, was sold for $225 to Mr. Hantrant.

MONTREAL LIKELY TO HAVE STRIKE

MONTREAL, May 22.—It is feared that unless the steamship men immediately come to terms another longshoremen's strike will be started. One of the conditions of the settlement of the recent strike was that the independent labor bureau would be abolished. The longshoremen have learned that the labor bureau is still engaging non-union men for wharf work by the dozen, and they sent for J. G. O'Neill of Duluth, who engineered the last strike. He is here and has attended several conferences with representatives of steamship men and stevedores. The situation, as far as can be ascertained, is critical.

The plan is reversible by the company at its will, and in the case of men individually it is conditional upon faithful and good work. At the present time 257 men are qualified to receive the bonus.

WILDER STORY SENSATIONAL

HIS DETAILED ACCOUNT OF WALTER MILLER'S MURDER

MELTON SAYS IT IS A LIE

HIS RECITAL IMPLICATES CHARLES MELTON, WILL STONE AND JOE WOLF

IS FORGER AND BIGAMIST

Wilder, Now Facing Penitentiary Sentence, Tells Remarkable Tale in the Examining Trial—Witnesses Say His Story is False From Beginning to End

On the witness stand in the courtroom of Justice of the Peace John L. Terrell, yesterday afternoon and this morning, Joe Wilder or Joe Boyd-Wilder, as he is frequently called, unfolded a startlingly dramatic story in which he professes to be revealing for the first time the full account of the killing of Walter Miller on September 11, 1900, in the Rock Island yards here. His story, if true, is a remarkable one; if it is false it is still more remarkable for its boldness and the detail into which it proceeds. It is depicted from end to end and even laughed at by the parties implicated.

Joe Wolf, at present in jail awaiting trial on the charge of killing Jim Wilson here last January; Charles Melton, with whose sister Wilder recently eloped, and Willie Stone, who is the foster brother of Wilder, are implicated by him in the killing of Miller.

Wilder was arrested at the time of the killing on suspicion, but was turned loose, because there was not sufficient evidence to warrant his retention in custody. Melton and Stone are entirely new to the case.

DECLARE IT FALSE

Melton declares that his name is dragged in by Wilder simply because Wilder wants to "get even" with the Melton family. He says that he never met Wilder until about a month ago, after Wilder had run away with his sister, Miss Sue Cunningham and Miss Lizzie Melton, whose names occur in Wilder's testimony, declare that his story is false and say they will have no difficulty disproving it. Melton said today to a Telegram reporter that so far as being the confederate of Joe Wolf at the time of the killing, the truth is that he never has met Joe Wolf in his life, never knew him and doesn't know him now.

WILDER'S STORY

Opposed to this statement is that of Wilder, against whom there is a charge of bigamy. Wilder told part of his story at the examining trial of Melton yesterday afternoon, and the rest of it this morning. He said yesterday that he and Miller, the murdered man, were warm friends and associates. They were invited by Willie Stone to accompany him to the home of some girls over in River-side on the night of the murder. When near the Rock Island yards—the three men being in a buggy which they had borrowed from Mrs. Kitty Bayles—they met Melton and Wolf. Stone knew Wolf and called to him. Accompanied by Melton, whom Wilder says he had known for several years before that, Wolf approached the buggy. Stone and Miller left the buggy to walk across the yards to the house where they were going while Wilder was left in the buggy to drive around by the road.

HEARD PISTOL SHOTS

When he was about a hundred yards from the four men he heard a pistol shot and, turning, saw the four men scuffling. He jumped out of the buggy and went back toward the scene of the shooting. He was met by Stone, Melton and Wolf returning from the scene of the scuffle. He could see Miller lying in the road. He says that the three men told him that the best thing he could do was to turn back without investigating the matter. This, he says, he did. When asked why he did not tell of the murder he answered that he kept it secret in order to shield his foster brother. He says that Stone is either in Pueblo or Cripple Creek, Col., at this time.

HIS TESTIMONY THIS MORNING HE SAID THAT HIS FOSTER BROTHER LOST A WATCH DURING THE SCUFFLE; IT WAS A GOLD-FILLED WATCH THAT COST ABOUT $35. SUCH A WATCH WAS FOUND NEAR MILLER'S BODY.

"I think Miller had a pocketknife. I don't know the kind of knife. One of these men had a watch. Willie Stone had a watch. It was about a $35 gold-filled watch. He lost the watch that night. I suppose he lost the watch in the scuffle. He said he did. I did not report it because I did not want to get Willie Stone into trouble. I got no part of the money taken from this man. "W. H. Paul was with Lizzie Melton when I met her. I spoke to her at that time. I can't say how many times I met her after meeting her at Arlington. I was on friendly terms with her. After the killing I saw Lizzie Melton. She was living on Broadway and we went over there. We stood out at the gate and stood there a few minutes talking. This was east of Hemphill and south of the college. The ward school is there. I know it was on Broadway. She came out to the buggy. She was crying and wanted to know how come his so bloody, and I don't think he told except that we had been in some trouble and to keep quiet. He said he had probably killed a man down there and that he was going to leave the country. Joe Wolf left us at the T. & P. depot.

"I saw Melton after that at the T. & P. depot. It was about a month ago. This was the first time that I had seen him since the killing. I left Fort Worth the next day after the killing. I was introduced to him when I met him. When I first met him he came into the M. K. & T. train going over to Waco. He and Jack Melton and Frank Behme and Joe Wyssel.

"I went from here to Galveston. I lived there I think about one year. I worked for R. W. Wolfson and on the ranch. The next time that I met Lizzie Melton after the killing she was standing near the Glenwood street car line talking to Bill Lavender. I just spoke and walked on. I don't know whether she was the killing or the pistol after the killing or not. I have seen Joe Wolf in Beaumont after the killing. He and Will Paul came to my house and ate supper there. I next saw Lizzie Melton about two months ago. Lizzie Melton knew that I was a married man. She and I had several conversations about the killing. She wrote a note and sent it over to the mill. I don't know where the note is. She told me to come on Sunday. She sent it by one of Mrs. Wood's little boys. I had a conversation with her. She asked me where Stone was. I said I thought in Colorado. She said she had found out all about that trouble he got into. I think she said Charlie Melton was coming back and asked me if I thought there would be any danger of his coming back. She said she got her information from Joe Wolf. That he had been there. She said she was under the impression that the man was cut to pieces, but had gotten over it. My brother, Will Stone, was waiting on Miss Sue Cunningham. I think he had known her about one year. At the time of the killing Stone was staying on Bessie street. She asked Stone what was the matter and he told her that he had been in a row down in town. And she went and got him a shirt.

"This morning's testimony
When the examination of Wilder was resumed this morning he said:
"When I left the home of Mrs. Roberts the night of the killing I went back to Mr. Bayles'. I hitched the horse and buggy at the first house west of Mr. Bayles' on First or Second street. It was where his house burned down. I think a musician lived in the house at that time. This was about 10, 11 or 12 o'clock. I did not tell them that I had returned the horse.
"I first got acquainted with Miss Sue Cunningham on Main street. I did not see her at the postoffice and follow her up to Main street. I saw her several days afterward at the postoffice, in front of the same. She knew me. I did not walk up to her and tell her that I was the brother of Willie Stone, with whom she was acquainted, and that I had a letter from him and also a picture. I afterwards visited her at her house during the next month several times. She was at the house that I was rooming at several times, the Patterson house. She and I sat out on the gallery together several times. I was not endeavoring to marry her at that time. I never asked her to marry me in my life. I was not in love with her. She asked me for a picture of Willie Stone and I gave her one of him while he was in the army. I don't think I ever gave her one of my pictures.
"I never tried to kill myself about her. At the time I got my throat cut Jim Givens did it. I never saw her but once after this, for about two minutes. It was on the corner of Main street that I had my throat cut. They never ordered me away at any time. Mrs. Roberts telephoned to the Patterson house several times and asked me to come over there. I never went but once. I was married at that time and she knew I was married. I did not commit the forgery, but I passed the forged check. I passed it on Mr. Martin. There were two cases. I lived with Lizzie Melton after I married about four days. There was no unpleasantness between us during that time. I don't remember writing to Miss Sue Cunningham. I don't think that I ever gave her this picture.

"I never lived in Arlington. I don't know any one that lives there, that I know of. Charlie Melton is not the only man that ever lived that I know. I know a man by the name of Mansfield there. I know Mrs. Mattie Wright that used to live there. I think she is Mrs. Youkum now, living in St. Louis. I have not been in Arlington in a long while. There may be lots of people that I know there. This killing occurred on the 11th day of September, A. D. 1900.
REDIRECT BY THE STATE
"My mother's name was Mrs. Kate Gordon. She is living at Albuquerque, N. M. There are other members of the family; Little Lindsey is one. Emma Stone was living here then; she is a sister of Willie Stone. She was about 16 years old at that time. I had no idea that Walter Miller was going to be killed when I started down there. Nor where we went across the yards. I did not know that we were going to meet Joe Wolf and Charlie Melton down there. The first thing that attracted my attention was a pistol shot. I heard Miller holler. He just hollered, 'Oh!' I turned the horse loose when I jumped out of the buggy. I saw these three men around the body of Miller. There were Walter Miller, Charlie Melton, Joe Wolf and W. E. Stone. I saw them scuffling. When I got down they were all in a bunch. When I got within about thirty or forty steps of them I was crippled at the time—they were turning coming back. I met the three of them coming back. They were Wolf, Melton and Stone. Stone caught hold of my arm and said, 'Come on and go back.' I asked him what was the matter. He said there was no use in it. The other men said that the best thing that I could do was to come away. I did not notice them leaning over Miller. These men never told me what they got. Melton had Miller's six-shooter. It was a Colt, forty-four, black handle, blue barrel. It had four notches on the cylinder barrel.

Sweet Singer Has Nothing Save Her Annual Income Which Will Revert to Her Daughter, Princess Faucignay

NEW YORK, May 19.—An hour or two before Sibyl Sanderson took the steamer to return to Europe after her brief visit to the United States in 1902-3 she met a few friends by accident at a place where she had gone to secure bills of exchange.

She had sung a few days before at the Metropolitan opera house, appearing as Juliet. There were moments during that performance when the great company gathered at the opera house had good and pleasing evidence that Paris had not judged mistakenly when her critical audiences had applauded this American singer.

She spoke in that brief meeting prior to her departure sadly, as though she were very weary. She seemed despondent, and yet as ambitious as she was when a young California girl she had sailed for Paris to learn the lessons of the grand opera stage.

There were hints of her former beauty, but only hints, although it seemed to those who saw her as though the ravages that had been made were due to physical suffering.

Mrs. Terry, as she was in the last years of her life, had no income excepting a life interest in one-half of the income of Eugene, and was herself the trustee. Had Mr. Terry lived a few years longer than he did he would probably have had no estate, for he seemed to possess as little business sense as Sibyl Sanderson herself had.

He expended nearly $500,000 in what he was told was the choicest of furnishings and bric-a-brac for his Parisian home, but after his death it was discovered that he had been outrageously swindled by many of the dealers. His estate at his death yielded about $20,000 income, and a personal friend in the United States was one of the trustees. Ten thousand dollars has been paid to his widow, but this payment now ceases, and the whole of the income, $20,000, will go to the Princess Guy de Lucinac Faucignay. The princess was a daughter of Mr. Terry by his first marriage, and was herself married less than a year ago to the prince of this aristocratic name, representing, as it does, royal blood in France, and also the royal blood of Italy.

Sibyl Sanderson's tragedy is as pathetic as was that of another Western girl, Marie Litta, although the pathos of Litta's career was due to mistake of time for which she was in no way responsible.

IMMENSE CROP

The berry crop, especially dewberries, of this county is phenomenal this year. There is not a day passes but what parties of berry pickers leave the city and return with the same story of the remarkable yield. One of these parties left here at 6 o'clock in the morning, went down on the Brazos river, picked fourteen buckets of dewberries and returned home by 7 o'clock in the afternoon. Tom Treadway, who was one of the crowd, says he never saw so many berries in his life. They are not only plentiful, but large and luscious.

TO USE WILD GRAPES

Immense crops of mustang grapes grow wild all over this county, and large quantities of them are gathered and converted into wine each year by planters and others. This wine is of a superior quality, too. It is proposed that when Brenham's new jamming factory is erected this grape should be converted into jelly and marmalade for which it is in every way suitable.

***** FORT WORTH BALL CLUB SIGNS NEW SHORT STOP ***** DALLAS, Tex., May 22.—George Reitz, short stop of the Dallas club, was released today and signed at once with Fort Worth. He accompanied the Fort Worth club to Paris, where he will begin playing an infield position this afternoon.

A fly which Buchanan let slip through his hands in the first inning of the game at Dallas yesterday, while he was playing left field in place of Barrett, who is nursing a split finger, enabled Dallas to tally four runs. After that inning Sorrels settled down and Dallas scored no more.

DEALERS TO FIGHT DRIVERS' UNION NEW YORK, May 22.—In return for a boycott of the labor unions on a lumber yard in Brooklyn, the Lumber Trades association has decided to close the yards in Brooklyn and Queens and, with those now closed in this city, will practically tie up the lumber markets. As a far vaster business is done at the yards in Brooklyn than in this city, this latest move shows the intention of the dealers to defeat the Material Drivers' Union, even at great pecuniary loss. Phillips, it is alleged, went into a Chinese restaurant on Main street and ordered his breakfast. The proprietor refused to feed him. PADDING SKELETONS That's Postum's Job The rivalry with which pure food and drink will win a hard battle against ill health makes people stare sometimes. The most wonderful medicine in the world may be tried without success so long as the body is slugged with coffee. After being 10 months in bed from his third attack of jaundice, a gentleman of Bridgeport, Vt., recovered his health almost entirely in two weeks by leaving off coffee and drinking Postum Cereal Coffee at meal times. He says: "I was reduced in weight from 130 to about 100 pounds and thus remained a near, helpless skeleton for eight months notwithstanding my physician's liberal prescriptions, besides many boxes and bottles of extensively advertised remedies and dozens of bottles of malt and other tonics. "Finally in April I stopped using coffee and other drugs, and meditated of every kind and adopted a diet of plenty of Postum and Grape-Nuts. To my surprise in a short time I was able to eat and digest soft boiled eggs for breakfast and beef steak for dinner. I gained flesh and strength rapidly. "On the afternoon of June 9 I walked out of my residence for the first time in ten months and lived days. Two weeks later I left for the city of my boyhood's home in the old Green Mountain State, where I am now living in better health and strength than I have had since my first attack of jaundice in 1892. I regard my case as having been hopeless so far as medical science was concerned, by reason of heart failure, nervous prostration and, as my physician termed it, nearly total paralysis of certain internal organs, but found all this was caused by coffee drinking. "Before I found Postum I was 70 years old, now I feel 70 years young." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE OTHER LESSON

Terrible as were the atrocities of the massacre at Kishineff, April 29 and 31, it is little wonder the whole civilized world shudders at the unparalleled crimes that were committed by the fiendish Russian mob which swept through the fair Bessarabian city, leaving all the dreadful spectacles of unbridled lust and passion in its wake.

And yet from all the hideous sights pictured by the dispatches from the various sources that have yielded up the details of the massacre, there comes but the reiterated story of human passion and its consequences when unrestrained.

Kishineff is a beautiful city, we are told. Their thrifty Russian Jews who made their home within its borders were not unlike their kinsfolk elsewhere in the world. They were industrious, frugal, watchful of their copecs and roubles, and as a result accumulated savings of no small amount. Their homes were well furnished, and altogether the colony was a thrifty and prosperous one.

They had neighbors, less prosperous, less thrifty, less frugal and less industrious. The neighbors were of the lower Russian classes, who toiled for a living perhaps as did the Jews. Perhaps they were loafers—the dispatches fail to say—but at any rate they were less well off.

FAMILY BIFF HALL

Friends of the late to nearly every yard in Brooklyn and on Saturday, at 11 o'clock, a young lawyer has to undergo in winning his way to fame and fortune. Now, Shaw and Thurston are fond of the poetry of John Godfrey Saxe, the Vermonters, whose verses have cheered many a country household.

It was the beginning of the massacre of Kishineff. Anti-Semite hatred, we are told, was the real cause for the attack, but anti-Semitism at its commencement was but jealousy and envy.

It was the passion that let loose the furies and caused the horrors of the massacre, the like of which has not been equaled in modern times.

A crime committed by some drunken Jew, the dispatches say, started the outbreak. That story has not been verified, but doubtless it was some minor incident that gave the envious Russian mob an excuse for its formation.

Great marked its first work. Its members wanted only the wealth of the Jews and so robbery was the first crime in its progress. The terrified Jews attempted escape, hiding, subterfuge, to save their possessions, but the first taste of pillage had quickened the appetite of the mob and beatings for luckless Jews who attempted resistance, or who concealed their property, followed the first simple robberies.

The mob's passions warmed quickly. From beating and flogging there was but a small step to murder and then the sight of blood led to another floodgate of passion and the horrors had begun in earnest. Lust was with the mob when it started, and wantonness marked its path. The pillaging, the floggings, even the murders, were nothing to the horrors of the unchecked lusts of human brutes. Wanton murders followed horrid crimes that grew too black for repetition, till the fury of the two days' slaughter could attain no higher climax and then the mob, sated with lust, blood and blood, melted away, while the scores of dead and wounded victims lying about the streets were alone left to tell the story to the world.

And yet the first chapter dealt only with what we are pleased to call minor weaknesses—greed, envy and jealousy.

Kishineff has other lessons than that of Russian despotism or anti-Semite hatred. The world shrinks back at the murders of the mob, pines and aids its victims, then demands that justice be meted out; but will it learn the other lesson?

WITTHOLD JUDGMENT Not the most unusual, but certainly one of the most interesting phases of the recent sensational developments in the courts of the city, has been the widespread interest manifested by the public regarding these developments and their bearing on the cases at issue.

In one instance, interest was suddenly developed to the highest pitch by the testimony of a local attorney before the court, while very commonplace proceedings—arguments for a new trial in damage suit—were in progress. Previous to that time the public had not been greatly concerned regarding the case. The public was not much interested in the prospect of a re-trial of the same case. But a single bit of evidence introduced threw the whole matter in bold relief. Added to this incident, the one of yesterday brings the matter afresh before the public, and since that time the case has furnished the principal topic for talk in the city, as well as in the surrounding towns where acquaintance with some of the parties concerned give an added tinge in curiosity as to the outcome.

In the second case which has furnished a sensation within the past forty-eight hours, a man accused of murder on such circumstantial evidence as to cause the first twelve men who heard the testimony to disagree, is placed more prominently than ever before the public by the accusations of a fellow-prisoner.

It must be admitted that in both cases the incidents bringing them in a striking manner before the public were in themselves sensational; yet, nevertheless, the proposition must also be accepted that a commonplace chain of circumstances may be made wholly different in aspect by the addition of a single link. The public mind is blessed or cursed with the ability to associate ideas.

Therefore, it often occurs that rapidly formed opinions coming from a too quick massing of the facts presented in a case, result in the crystallization of biased judgment, varying in degree of harshness with the stubbornness of the individual mind. The danger from a biased judgment in such cases as are now the topic of discussion throughout the city, is harmful prejudice that will linger long after the final outcome of either has been reached.

A word of caution to bear in patience with the course of justice is in order, and the expression of opinion as to the merits of either case should be marked with conservatism and a strict regard for the really few facts that have been presented in both.

When the courts have announced their decision is soon enough for the public's expression of opinion as to the right or wrong of either of the questions at issue.

Asparagus has been on the markets for a week and hundreds of crates have been sent northward; the early tomato crop is also on the way; strawberries are becoming an old story with the shippers; carloads of potatoes are being moved daily from Brenham; The Telegram's correspondent at Tyler notes the first shipment of peaches from there; the consignment of onions from South Texas, as fine as the Bermuda variety, has already been noted—you'll get lost if you try to keep up with the list of fruits, vegetables and farm products with which Texas is supplying the rest of the country, every month in the year.

The Mobile & Ohio strike has been settled by a compromise. The Telegram noted at its beginning, from the statements issued by the leaders, it made a fair bid for becoming an admirable example for the conduct of future strikes elsewhere. Both railroad and employes are satisfied and the prediction has been fulfilled.

The pupils of the Fort Worth High school are raising funds in order to be able to raise a flag on a new 94-foot flag pole which has been presented to them. It is a fund worth helping swell.

Yes, and a Fort Worth man was elected national councillor of an order that has lodges in every state of the Union, at San Francisco yesterday. Fort Worth is hard to lose.

It would seem that when the farmers of Denton county have any spare time on their hands, they just get together and organize. Good plan.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE STORY OF A STORY

BY CLAUDIA ASHTON (Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst. Great Britain rights reserved.) Continued from Thursday's edition.

"Only my name was on it, and what does 'Barbara Ellison' convey to any one? I wrote a letter with it, of course, but I tore that up as soon as I got out of the office and there was nothing on the envelope. No, you shall never see 'Out of a Broken Rib' again. It is no good. You know how hard I tried, Mollie."

Mollie was more cheerful. "Well, if it is lost it is, I suppose," she remarked, "but you might try to write another story with the same title. Anyhow, it's no good to bother me more about it tonight. Let's go to bed. Something may turn up. Some long-lost uncle of whom we never heard may die in New Zealand and leave us a fortune."

The next day, however, there was no question of Barbara being able to write or do anything else. She had caught a severe chill, which finally developed into pneumonia.

It would be impossible to describe all that Mollie suffered during her sister's illness. Fortunately their landlady was a kind hearted woman, who said nothing about the long owing rent and looked after the invalid with a certain amount of tenderness and skill. But things were very black for the two girls, and in spite of all Mollie's efforts the cloud of debt around them grew thicker and thicker. At last a day came when the worst of the illness was over, when the doctor said Barbara had nothing to do but get strong again.

She was lying on the sofa one dreary December afternoon, looking for Mollie's return, and wondering whether their particular cloud had any lining except of the blackest hue, when Mollie suddenly dashed into the room, her face wreathed with smiles, her eyes dancing with excitement.

"A most wonderful thing has happened, Barbara," she gasped, breathless with hurry and eagerness. "You could never guess, so I will tell you. Look here! Look! See! Do you know why I bought the Monthly Library, though it cost one shilling, and we have only five shillings in all the world?" And she flourished the purple covers of the well-known magazine in her sister's face.

"I don't know, Mollie. Tell me!" "Why, your story is in it! Your story. 'Out of a Broken Rib,' you know—your story! Just before you were ill. Here it is, published, printed, with your name to it, and a note by the editor asking for your address. Why, your Monthly Library! You see, I was right when I said that Knapsack man was an idiot!"

She was incoherent with excitement. As for Barbara, she could hardly believe her eyes when she saw on the first page of the magazine, in the best-known writers of the day were proud to find their work, her story and her name. Above it were a few lines: "The editor will be greatly obliged if Barbara Ellison will communicate with him at once."

"I must go," she said. "I must go and see him. I am in a hurry, and I must go first thing tomorrow. But tell me, Mollie, how did you find out my story was in this? And she fingered the magazine lovingly.

"Why, it was all luck or chance, or whatever you like to call it," answered Mollie, who was darning round the room to let off her excitement. "I was having my lunch at that A. B. C. shop near the Adelphi, you know, and two gentlemen were sitting at the same table, and one of them said: 'Have you seen that clever story in this month's Library?' It's called 'Out of a Broken Rib.' Of course I picked up my ears and then he said,

The seventy-two-page edition Sunday of The Fort Worth Telegram would be called a peach if it had been grown in Delaware or Georgia. In Texas, it is called a hot number or a warm baby.—Kansas City Drivers' Telegram.

Texas is shipping packing house products all over the country—and that is as it should be. Texas is the greatest producing state in the union, and Texas should ship the beef out dressed instead of in stock cars, to be dressed at foreign packing houses. The same thing applies to cotton. Texas is the great cotton producing state, and we should send out the cotton manufactured into fabrics, instead of shipping out the raw material.—Denison Herald.

And now it is claimed that Texas beats Bermuda raising Bermuda onions. Next thing Texas will be beating Cuba raising tobacco and China raising tea. Nothing is impossible in grand, expansive Texas.—Youthum Times.

BRIEFLESS BARRISTERS ONCE Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and former Senator Thurston of Nebraska are very warm friends, and like to swap stories of their earlier days. Both are natives of the Green Mountain state, and were raised in towns that appear as mere dots on the state map. Both have practiced law out in the West and know what vicissitudes a young lawyer has to undergo in winning his way to fame and fortune. Now, Shaw and Thurston are fond of the poetry of John Godfrey Saxe, the Vermonters, whose verses have cheered many a country household.

Shaw and Thurston met at a banquet the other night, and the former was moved to recite a favorite poem of Saxe. He said, fixing his eyes on Thurston, that it was particularly appropriate to the occasion. When he came to the words "briefless barrister" in the text, Mr. Shaw hesitated for a moment, looked up at the ceiling, as if seeking to recollect something, then turned, and with an expression of appeal to Mr. Thurston's memory, leaned over and almost touched the former senator. "Thurston," he said, in mock pathos, "did you ever know what it was to be a 'briefless barrister?'"

WOULDN'T CHANGE He is familiarly known to his friends and patrons as Otto, and he keeps a beer saloon downtown, a saloon that long antedates the high license law. A young man of the neighborhood recently secured a position as a book agent, and having met with considerable success in unsuspected quarters, he approached Otto. He stated his mission in a little set speech, enumerating the books that he had at his disposal; but Otto was busy with other matters, listening only in a desultory way, without quite catching the drift of the conversation. "Now, there's Shakespeare; can't I sell you Shakespeare?" persisted the young man. "No, no," said the old German, waving him away. "I don't want to make a change. I had used Schimmel's beer for twenty-five years, and that is good enough for me." "You don't understand me," replied the amateur canvasser. "I am talking about books." "Books, books!" exclaimed Otto; "I want no more books. I get my book from Schimmel, too!"—Philadelphia Record.

The Denison Herald protests against its exchanges using its paragraphs without credit. Most every paper with any snap in it has to put up with such things. The News has during its career of thirty-four years, made reputations for a good many papers because they persistently purloined its matter. United States Warrant Charges Fraudulent Use of the Mails—The Doctor Has Contracts and Legal Papers Which He Feels Will Clear Him

Dr. Robert E. Carlyle, who arrived in Fort Worth for a little more than a month and had gone to El Paso on some business. He says that he was not aware of any trouble, and, aside from his wife, who also met him at the station, was perhaps the most surprised person in all that throng.

DR. CARLYLE'S STORY The history of the affair, as told by Dr. Carlyle, is as follows: A man by the name of A. F. Zell is organizing a dramatic company, the object of which is to make a tour this summer, presenting its attractions under canvas. According to a contract in the possession of Dr. Carlyle there were interested in the company, besides Mr. Zell, W. E. Wilkinson of El Paso, $200; E. L. Bandy, $125; S. R. Wallace, $160. The contract provided that Dr. Carlyle was to organize the company and conduct the

THE NEW LEADER OF COTTON MARKET

Something of W. P. Brown of New Orleans Who Is Opening the Eyes of the Wall Street Brokers

New York Commercial: W. P. Brown of New Orleans, the leader of the interest that has been for the last week or so the dominant factor on the bull side of the cotton market, arrived in New York yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Brown will remain in New York for some time and will assume personal charge of the campaign which he took up when Daniel J. Sully began to draw the support of the interest he represents from the market.

At the Waldorf-Astoria Mr. Brown said: "I have just arrived in New York and will be here some time, and I must decline to enter into a discussion of the cotton market on the moment of my arrival. I notice that the New York papers contained a whole lot of bombastic stuff, all of which was foolishness."

"I naturally had confidence in the cotton market, but I have not come to New York to teach the Wall Street brokers how to bull the cotton market, or to exploit myself."

"We had a very lively cotton market at New Orleans last week, it is true, but I do not care to enter into a discussion of it at this time. I am simply a cotton merchant. Our firm is a large exporter of cotton, and, of course, is very much interested in the market, and that is why I am here."

Notwithstanding the modesty of Mr. Brown's statement, he is the central figure in the cotton market, and whether or not the great fall movement is to be carried on to the end of the crop season, and possibly into the new crop months, depends largely on himself and those who are interested with him. Shortly after his arrival the story went out that he is not looking for financial support here, but has come here with all the backing he is looking for.

Mr. Brown is a square shouldered, middle aged man with a black moustache and a pleasant Southern manner. He has a keen eye and is not at all nervous.

AN OLD HAND

He is by no means a new hand when it comes to cotton speculation. He started into cotton speculation once with $600 and ran it into an independent fortune. After this he lost his money in cotton speculation, and then went to work and built up another fortune in the same business. He is well known in New York as well as New Orleans as a most daring and successful speculator, even if he is "simply a cotton merchant."

Mr. Brown has been a feature in the cotton situation ever since the very beginning of the great bull movement, and although he has not withdrawn from the market, as has Sully, his paper profits as the market stands are large. He is long on July—very heavily, however—so that his campaign has but really commenced where Sully's ended.

Coupled with the announcement that Brown is here to assume the leadership of the bull crowd comes the statement that Daniel J. Sully is planning to sail for Europe on June 3. Of course there is plenty of time between now and June 3 for Mr. Sully to change his mind, and he has declined once or twice before to be rumored out of the country.

He has been rounding up his campaign for some time, however, and probably has his deals in May in a shape to suit him, and, with little risk, indulge himself with a short vacation. Still, he is much interested in the July option, and will be much interested in the market until the close of the crop season.

WILL BE ENGAGED ON MANY MODELS

NEW YORK, May 22.—E. Wellington Ruckstrop, vice president of the Municipal Art Society of New York, and exhibitor of sculpture of the St. Louis exposition, will sail for Europe next week and remain abroad until the fall of 1904. His studio will be located a dozen miles from Paris and there he will be busily engaged on models for several monuments.

One model will be for the McKinley monument, which will be erected in Washington by private subscription. Another model will be for a colossal national peace monument, which will be 700 feet high, and will be erected on the Hudson river. This undertaking was outlined at a meeting of the National Sculpture Society three years ago. Since then plans have been perfected and Mr. Ruckstrop recently received such assurances that the $2,500,000 necessary will be raised by private subscription that he will devote himself to the work on the model as closely as possible.

The monument will be in the shape of an immense column, about 500 feet high, resting on a double-story building about one hundred feet cube, the whole resting on a platform about three hundred feet square. There will be elevators running to the top and a glass globe on the top about forty feet in diameter.

DR. BALDWIN IS MASTER OF ORGAN

At the Broadway Presbyterian church, last night, Dr. Minor C. Baldwin fulfilled the pledges made for him by his interpretations of the music of the masters on the great pipe organ. Under his touch the organ was as responsive as a babe to its mother. By request he rendered "The Old Kentucky Home" and "Dixie" in a manner new and delightful. Other mer-
