AN ELECTRICAL STORM

It Passed Over Oyster Bay and Damaged a House. NEW YORK, July 15—During a severe electrical storm accompanied by hail and wind, which passed over Oyster Bay, L. I., the summer home of President Roosevelt, a bolt of lightning hit the Thompson cottage where Assistant Secretary Barnes is staying.

Mr. Barnes was at his office at the time James Thompson, owner of the cottage, received a severe shock. An Italian laborer outside was also prostrated. Many trees in the vicinity were splintered by lightning.

ONE HUNDRED AND ONE. Cynthia Hendrix, 101 years old, is dead at her home here. Mrs. Hendrix had been in good health up to a month ago. She celebrated her birthday June 18, and on the following day slipped on the doorstep and fell. The shock caused her death.

Dr. J. D. Forrest, professor of sociology and political science in Butler College, has started with his wife and his friend, Mrs. C. A. Allen of Indianapolis, for a horseback vacation trip through the mountains of Kentucky. They intend to penetrate the wildest parts of the blue grass state, where the Kentucky mountaineer is to be seen at his worst. Professor Forrest will make a close study of conditions and persons as he finds them.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW COMET?

It Is Barely Visible in the South-Southwest and Has Two Tails

"Have you seen the comet?" If you haven't you can see it tonight by looking at the sky and turning toward south-southwest about 9 o'clock and gazing at the constellation Cygnus, which will be about half way between the horizon and the zenith.

The constellation Cygnus is situated in the milky way and is between the constellations Lyra and Cassiopeia. It is composed of about ten stars, which are visible to the naked eye on a clear night and five of which are very bright.

Professor W. W. Campbell at the Lick Observatory states that he thinks that it will be the brightest comet in years. As it is now, there have been several bright comets, but this one is distinguished by all the time. Of course it is hard to tell just how much such a celestial body will increase in brightness, as it is hard to determine its orbit and tell how near it will come.

The orbit of this comet seems to be shaped like a parabola, which would approach nearest to the sun on August 27, when it will be 31,000,000 miles away. At present it is 100,000,000 miles from the sun and 200,000,000 miles from the earth.

Professor W. W. Campbell at the Lick Observatory states that he thinks that it will be the brightest comet in years. As it is now, there have been several bright comets, but this one is distinguished by all the time. Of course it is hard to tell just how much such a celestial body will increase in brightness, as it is hard to determine its orbit and tell how near it will come.

PARTS OF A COMET

A full-fledged comet has three parts to it, a nucleus, a coma and a tail or a tail. The nucleus is a star-like point of light, which in the telescope looks like a small, ill-defined planet. The coma is a cloudy or nebulous light surrounding the nucleus, and growing brighter toward the center. The tail is a trail of light, generally fan-shaped, more or less curved, and always extending away from the sun.

SOME GREAT COMETS

As a general rule about twenty forty comets appear in the naked eye during each century. This makes them appear on the average about once in every three or four years. Every year, however, six or seven are found with the telescope, most of which are new ones.

The comet of 1842 was remarkable for its near approach to the sun. A very slight change in its direction would have thrown it into the sun itself.

It was this latter comet that gained so many disciples for William Miller. In 1841 he began to announce the end of the world in 1843, and when this comet appeared along with several earthquakes many people began to believe him and donned their ascension robes and climbed to the highest eminences in order to wait for the end.

EXPERIMENTS

Learn Things of Value. Where one has never made the experiment of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum it is still easy to learn all about it by reading the experiences of others.

Drinking Postum is a pleasant way to get back health. A man of Lancaster, Pa., says: "My wife was a victim of nervousness and weak stomach and loss of appetite for years and was a physical wreck, although we resorted to numerous methods of relief one of which was a change from coffee to tea. It was all to no purpose."

We knew coffee was causing the trouble but could not find anything to take its place and cure the disease until we tried Postum Food Coffee. In two weeks time Postum was put in place and used Postum almost all of her troubles had disappeared as if by magic. It was truly wonderful. Her nervousness was all gone, stomach trouble relieved, appetite improved and above all a night's rest was complete and refreshing.

This sounds like an exaggeration, as it all happened so quickly, but we are prepared to prove it. Each day there is improvement for the better for the Postum is undoubtedly strengthening her and giving her rich red blood and renewed life and vitality. Every particle of this good work is due to Postum Food Coffee.

Ice cold Postum with a dash of lemon is a delightful "cooler" for warm days. Remember by purchasing by mail of extension of time on the $7.50 an order contest for 75¢ money prize.

Halley's comet covers a period of seventy-five years between its appearances, and according to the calculation of astronomers, it will appear again in 1911. It is the most important comet of the last time, 1872, when it was in two parts. It had a short period of revolution and the next time after that it appeared as a shower of meteors, known as the Andromeds, as they appeared in the constellation Andromeda. This shower has appeared several times and is the one that created so much interest last year.

HUMOR AND PATHOS IN POLICE COURT

Innocence and Guilt of Hattie Buck—How Pearl Steele Went Free

She wore the whitest big sunbonnet, decked with white ruffles and ribbons, and was in a fresh, pink gingham gown; deep brown curls clustered around her forehead and formed a frame for an innocent face and a clear white-and-pink complexion, in which were set the shyest and clearest blue eyes that were almost hidden by their long lashes.

Hattie Buck was the name she gave the police. "You are charged with being drunk," said Judge Brewster. "Guilt, your honor."

"A dollar and costs," said the judge, laconically. COOK AND DISHWASHER CASE Pearl Steele's case, which was referred to yesterday, was the next one called in the corporation court this morning. Pearl is "the poor brown lady" who was accused of disturbing the peace of a cook and dishwasher in a chophouse near the Santa Fe depot by swearing.

Pearl began to cry when she was commanded to stand up and take the oath. Then an attenuated shadow, with large pop eyes, who gloomily announced that his name was Jimmy Bates, was brought in. He was the dishwasher whose peace was disturbed.

"Did you hear this woman swear at you?" was asked. A melancholy silence greeted the question.

After about a minute the witness stilled slightly and blinked, showing that he was alive. "Ah didn't hear huh cuss?" "Didn't you tell the officer that she called you a—?" "Yassah, but Ah took duh cook's wud to it."

Judge Brewster discharged Pearl. She didn't hear him at first, but when she was made to understand she jumped up and fairly shouted for joy.

"Thank you, Marshe, than you, Marshe," she repeated until she was out of hearing.

UNUSUAL CHARGE Joe and Newt Campbell and another negro with an unspelling name that sounds something like the Jews in dark-skinned Kansas where the Jews recently were massacred, were in court on a charge of blocking the sidewalk.

Prosecutor Roy explained to the court that he was having trouble to find an ordinance that exactly fitted their cases. He argued for some time about various laws in an endeavor to get some light from the court.

"What were they doing when arrested?" asked the court finally. "They were playing guitars and mandolins on the street," said Mr. Roy. "I guess you would better pass the case over a day or two, if that is the charge," said the court.

Becky Williams was charged with vagrancy. Becky is ebony-hued and she wore a wide-spreading picture hat of solid bright red. She succeeded in having the charge against her passed until Saturday, when she promised to pay a fine.

PATHOS HERE An unusual case developed when the name of Henry Smith, charged with disturbing the peace, was called.

Smith is tall and old and infirm and blind. "I admit I was cussin', your honor," he said, "but the trouble I have with my wife is enough to make any man forget what he's doin'. She's insane and sick and hungry and I am old and blind, and I am tryin' to get back to the place where we were married, and where we can be taken care of. When I ask her to get up out of bed and come with me she refuses, and then I get mad. If you will send an officer with me she'll get up all right. She'll obey the police, but she won't pay no attention to me."

The judge instructed an officer to accompany the old man to the house where his wife is stopping. Dancing Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, Lake Erie Auditorium, 1000 feet of veranda overlooking Lake Michigan, 150 outside rooms, 10 min. downtown. Booklet free.

HABEAS CORPUS IN JOE WOLF CASE

One of the men whom I have been consulting with reference to making bond for Joe Wolf is out of town and will not return for several days, until which time it is doubtful if I will be able to get my client out of jail, said Judge B. D. Shropshire today.

It will be remembered that Judge M. E. Smith yesterday fixed Lawrence's bond at $4,000. Judge Shropshire expresses the utmost confidence that he will be able to furnish the required sum.

He further announced today that within a day or two he will sue out a writ of habeas corpus for Joe Wolf in connection with the murder charge against that prisoner in the Hendricks Long case.

SWORN PAID CIRCULATION OF THE FORT WORTH TELEGRAM FOR MONTH OF JUNE, 1903

Table showing circulation statistics for the month of June 1903, including daily and total circulation figures.

THE ROCK ISLAND PLANS

The Houston Post, commenting upon the Rock Island-Central deal, has this to say: 'The railroad public of the state is still in a state of expectancy in regard to the resuscitation of the Rock Island. Talk of a calling off of the deal is not uncommon. Numerous reports have originated from Fort Worth to the effect that the Rock Island has become discouraged and has refused to engage in further negotiations. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat is also the authority for a similar statement. And yet, while there has been some cause for delay, it appears that the report is entirely without foundation. It is true that rumors of such character have originated at Fort Worth, but upon the best authority such reports are denied. It does not appear reasonable that the Rock Island would purchase half the stock of the Central, as it admitted before the railroad commission it had, and surrender the valuable property because of a temporary interference by the railroad commission. Judge Storey, chairman of the commission, is in favor of allowing the contracts to be approved, and in emphatic language he has taken issue with his associates upon the commission. He does not see a violation of organic law in such an arrangement as is proposed, and points out that no danger can come to the people. The statement that the contract is off is not confirmed from any quarter. Commenting on this question, the Railway Age says: It appears that without waiting the unnecessary approval of the Texas authorities, the Rock Island company will immediately take over the Houston and Texas Central and the Houston East and West Texas roads, although in deference to sentiment against ownership of competing lines, it will omit the Dallas-Sabine line of the Texas and New Orleans from this new combination. While the latter line, although starting from a point on the Houston and Texas Central, does not run geographically parallel to the latter, as its terminus is nearly a hundred miles east from that of the Houston and Texas Central at Houston, yet both roads were operated by the Southern Pacific in a common interest, and it must be admitted that joint ownership would not be likely to result in any great competition for traffic or in rates on through business. If the popular contention in Texas that lines even remotely competitive in location should not be permitted to be associated in ownership is correct, then the Rock Island's plans might bear watching. But whether or not the ownership of one road by the Rock Island and the other by the Southern Pacific means the actual and rate-cutting competition which the Texas people like to see may be a question. The reasoning of the Railway Age is very good, but the last sentence is not according to fact. The people of Texas do not like to see rate-cutting competition or they would not allow the rate-making trust which operates at Austin in the form of a commission fixing minimum rates.

The indications are that after all Texas will be represented at the St. Louis world's fair. While the determination of the men who were at the head of the commission has never been doubted, and they were known to be enthusiastic, it was feared that after the legislature failed to make any provision whatever and absolutely refused to allow state archives to be used in an exhibit, that it would be an encouragement to the general public to turn down the requests of subscriptions. The general public delights in discussing public subscriptions, but never overlooks an opportunity to avoid "getting on the list." However, the report of the meeting at Dallas yesterday indicates that Texas will have representation and that the star-shaped building will not be the most obscure place on the grounds.

Mr. Sanger has retired from the fighting department of the government. He is the genius who shared with the English lady the pleasures of a social function when the American navy was playing at war on the North Atlantic coast not so many months ago. The battle was stopped, the maneuvers were interrupted, that a proper reception should be accorded the special lights from Newport.

Hopkins county boasts a citizen 99 years of age who can lead in prayer, sing gospel hymns and cultivate a small crop. If some of the present generation could be encouraged to use their younger limbs for honest labor, they would make better citizens. The example of this old man is a magnificent one, and should be a lesson to the thiftless boys of today.

While the mercury is climbing in the thermometer, the average of the Fort Worth baseball team is likewise seeking a higher position. The baseball boys are at a disadvantage, however, in the contest. They have something more than a vacuum to work against.

It appears that President Roosevelt is disposed to "march down again" in the matter of the B'Nai Brith petition. His "march up the hill" when he first announced that he would transmit the petition to the czar, was with bluster and bravado talk. It would be rather embarrassing for him to retrace his steps with no result accomplished.

Reports from west Texas are of fine crops and excellent business. That section of the state has homes for many, and the returns from energetic endeavor to cultivate the soil promise to be bounteous.

If the text-book board does not get busy with its work, the successful bidders will hardly have time to get the books for Texas out in time for the opening days of school. School opens in September, and the publishing houses should have sufficient time on the work.

Just remember that when The Telegram offers you advertising space it does so with its claim of large circulation yet undisputed. Advertising seed sown in the columns of a paper with a good circulation result in a harvest of good trade.

Since the resort at Handley has been established, Fort Worth young folk can better appreciate the sentiment of that old song, "When 'Tis Mornlight on the Lake." Has Russia promised the president a couple of open doors in Manchuria if he will fail to send the petition of the B'Nai Brith, not interfering with the massacre of the Jews.

IN COOL COLORADO: A. W. Grant, managing editor of the Fort Worth Telegram, the leading afternoon paper of north Texas, is spending a few days in Colorado Springs. Mr. Grant is one of the best equipped young newspaper men in Texas and is enjoying a well-earned vacation. He brings the pleasing information that Messrs. T. R. Tingle and W. J. Scott, both formerly well-known newspaper men of this place, but who are now connected with The Telegram, are doing well in their new homes.

Among the little-known relatives of the famous is Orestes P. Chaffee, brother of Major General Chaffee, who has just visited Washington. He is a vigorous, small man, with seventy years and many adventures behind him—a Confederate veteran, for twenty years a resident of South America, but for a long time with the military department in Cuba.

CLEANINGS FROM... THE EXCHANGES

If the game laws of Texas are enforced for five years, the people of this state can live in a quiet and rest for the remainder of their lives. Texas is the natural home of the porridge, and he will naturally thrive and rapidly increase here if given a chance.—Denison Herald.

A closed season for quail and an open season for bull weevil and prairie dogs, will make Texas the garden spot of the universe.

The people of Throckmorton county have voted to exterminate the prairie dogs. The vote was practically unanimous, only three voting against the proposition. The dogs must be killed within a year or there will be trouble. The county is a regular prairie dog town and some thing had to be done or they would begin to eat on the wire fences.—Mineral Wells Index.

Voting to exterminate and succeeding in doing so by two different propositions. Prairie dogs do not exterminate on a vote of the people.

The person who does not want to work must be very industrious these days to escape the farmer who is looking for help in the field.—Terrell Transcript.

The person who does not want to work is a "vag" and is a bad citizen for any community. Keep him going.

The invincible and only James Hays Quarter is not plainly seen in the Fort Worth Telegram, which isn't sparing a bit of money to build up a newspaper of which Texas may be proud.—Brownwood Bulletin.

These improvements necessary to make a first-class daily paper come high, but The Telegram must have them. Don't forget there is a color press coming and a new building going up.

The "long distance" injunction is having quite a run in Texas just now. When a county goes pro, the next thing in order is to find a district judge who will "hold up" the publication of the fact until the case can be heard on its merits. This is strictly legal. At the same time, it is almost ludicrous for a district judge at El Paso, for instance, to interfere in the concerns of the people at Texarkana.

An "anti" suit suppress a smile, not the regulating sort, either. But a decision by Judge Surratt, upheld by the higher courts, can be used to shut off the "long distance" fellows as fast as they show up. The local district judge can dissolve the grip of the outsider and it will stand. For instance, the district judge at Texarkana can write "n. g." across the face of an order from the El Paso district judge, the former territory being involved, and it's all over—the game is up. The injunction is dissolved.—Waco Times-Herald.

There is something "written in Water" when attorneys go scouting about the country trying to locate a judge who will grant the restraining order. It looks to the unlearned in law that the jurisdiction in such matters should be restricted as it is in civil suits. The manner in which it is being done is a prostitution of the bench.

General Miles doubtless stepped at Fort Worth in an effort to discover how the place is getting along in its fight for recognition.—Dallas Times-Herald.

Your inference is wrong. General Miles had heard of Fort Worth and came this way. He did not even know such a place as Dallas exists and as he was traveling on the main line of a railroad, with no intention of taking a trip over branch lines, there was no chance for him to get to Dallas. This recalls the fact that Dallas is now located on a branch of the Fort Worth street car system.

A trip over the state shows the southwest to be the best section of it today, in so far as the crop conditions go.—San Antonio Light.

It is not the best section in Texas, but it is better this year than ever before. Come look at North Texas.

Up in Iowa a few days ago a lawyer tried to get out an injunction against a hanging. Probably the next attempt will be to get out an injunction against a lynching.—Dallas Times-Herald.

If the judge does not act faster on such an injunction than judges usually do in matters brought before them, the injunction against the lynching would be served on a pile of ashes. Lynchers do not hesitate.

Student and a Pony

Two-Bit Quadruped Traded for an Acre of Oil Land

There is a story going the rounds which is one of those living examples that "truth is stranger than fiction." It is vouched for by the Austin Tribune. Several months ago James Cochran, a young student at the University of Texas, won a Texas pony in a contest wherein chances sold for 25 cents. Cochran kept the onery little beast more because he had him than for any actual service he realized from him. Shortly after the close of the present college year Mr. Cochran decided to go to Sour Lake. Some one advised him that when he went it might be a good opportunity to get the 25 cents worth of good animal cost him out of the Mustang and so with Mr. Cochran the pony went to the oil fields. Shortly after Cochran and his dun-colored, flea-bitten, spavined, mongrel quadruped got to Sour Lake the rains came up and walking was mighty difficult. "I say Cochran, I'll give you an acre of ground for that horse of yours," said a water-wound operator one rainy day as Cochran rode by him in the oil. "What's your land worth?" asked the owner of the Mustang. "Oh, I guess 'bout $50. What's your boss worth, 50 cents?" "A little more parley and the horse was swapped for the $50-acre of ground. Ten days later the ground had advanced to about $60. Last week a gusher was struck within 400 feet of Cochran's acre, and as the trend of discovery is in that direction, one more gusher will send the land up to several thousand dollars. It's a case of 'holy being a rich man with a star of a lucky number'—a Mustang pony in oil field and a rainy spot. Quiser elements, they seem but they are a winning combination, Cochran says.

GRAUSTARK

By GEORGE BARR MCCUTCHEON

Copyright, 1901, by Herbert S. Stone

Greatly Lorry, a wealthy American globe-trotter, stumbled into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair got left at the station when the Flyer stops for repairs in West Virginia. Lorry writes ahead to hold the train at the next town. He hires a wagon to drive him to the intervening four miles. They catch the train. Lorry learns the young lady's name is Miss Guggenlocker and her companions are her uncle and aunt. They arrive in Washington and Lorry is asked to breakfast with the trio. They leave for New York. Lorry spends a day trying to work, but gives it up and rushes to New York, hoping to catch a farewell glimpse of Miss Guggenlocker before she sails. Just as the Kaiser Wilhelm steams away he catches sight of her and throws a kiss from the tips of his fingers. To his great surprise the gesture is returned. Lorry joins his old friend Harry Anguish, an American artist in Paris. Graustark and its central, Edgewood, are located by a guidebook. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenlockers there. Lorry sees his chaperon driving in a carriage with a beautiful companion of her own sex. He gets a glimpse of recognition, but the carriage rolls on, leaving the mystery unsolved. Later he receives a note at his hotel, signed Sophie Guggenlocker, inviting him to visit her next day. In the evening Lorry and Anguish ramble about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the Princess of Graustark. They overhear a plot to abduct the princess and resolve to capture the plotters red-handed.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed

"The two men began the breathless ascent of the stone steps. The top was reached, and far ahead, down a narrow hall, they saw the three men and the dim light moving. Two of them wore uniforms of guards. Keeping close to the wall, their followers crept after them. Up another flight of steps they went and then through a spacious hall. The Americans had no time and no desire to inspect their surroundings. The wide doors at the far side of the room opened softly, and here the trio paused. Down a great marble hallway a dim red light shed its soft glow. It came from the lamp at the foot of the broad staircase.

The cook pointed to the steps and then gave his thumb a jerk toward the left. Without the least sign of fear Geddos and Ostrom glided into the hall and made for the staircase. The watchers could not but feel a thrill of admiration for these daring wretches. But now a new danger confronted them. The cook remained standing in the doorway watching his fellows in crime! How were they to pass him? There was no time to be lost. The abductors were creeping up the steps already, and the cook must be disposed of. He had blown out the light which he carried and was now a very dim shadow. Lorry glided forward and in an instant stood before the amazed fellow, jamming a pistol into his face.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed. "Don't move!" came another whisper, and a second revolver touched his ear. The cook, perhaps, did not know their language, but he certainly understood its meaning. He trembled and would have fallen to the floor had not the strong hand of Lorry pinned him to the wall. The hand was on his throat too.

"Chloroform! My Harry, and don't let him make a sound!" whispered the owner of the hand. Anguish's twitching fingers succeeded those of his friend on the cook's throat, his pistol was returned to his pocket, and the little bottle came again into use. "I'll go ahead. Follow me as soon as you have finished this fellow. Be careful and turn to the left when you come to the top."

Lorry was off across the marble floor, headed for the doorway, and Anguish was left in charge of the cook, of whom he was to make short work. Now came the desperate, uncertain part of the transaction. Suppose he were to meet the two conspirators at the head of the stairs, or in the hall, or that the other traitor, Dannox, should appear to frustrate all. It was the most trying moment in the whole life of the reckless Lorry. When near the top of the steps, he hugged the high balustrade and cautiously peered ahead. He found himself looking down a long hall, at the end of which, in his mind, he first impulse was to cross and open the door leading to the next room, surmising that it would be unlocked, but he remembered Anguish, who was doubtless, by this time, stealing up the stairs. It would require two steady, cool heads to deal with the villains. It was not one man's work. As he turned to leave the room he thought how wonderfully well they had succeeded in the delicate enterprise so far.

His knees struck the door, and there was a dull thump, not loud in reality, but like the report of a gun to him. A sudden rustle in the darkness of the room, and then a sleepy voice, soft and quick, as of a woman awakening with a start.

"Who is it?" His heart ceased beating, his body grew stiff and immovable. Again the voice, a touch of alarm in it now: "Is that you, Dannox?" She spoke in German, and the voice came from somewhere in front and to his right. He could not answer, could not move. The paralysis of indecision was upon him. "How is it that that outer door is open?" This time there was something like a reprimand in the tones, still low. He almost could see the wide open, searching eyes.

CHAPTER X. YETIVE.

THERE could be no further hesitation. Something must be done, and instantly. He gently closed the door before answering the third question. In his nervousness he spoke in English, advancing to the middle of the room. Impossible to see the woman to whom he hissed this alarming threat, he only could speculate as to its effect: "If you utter a sound, madam, I shall kill you. Be calm, and allow me to explain my presence here!" He expected her to shriek, forgetting that she might not understand his words. Instead there was a deathly silence. Had she swooned? His heart was leaping with hope. But she spoke softly again, tremulously, and in English: "You will find my jewels on the dressing table. Take them and go. You will not hurt me?" "I am not here to do you injury, but to serve your princess," whispered the man. "For God's sake, do not make an outcry! You will ruin everything. Will you let me explain?" "Go! Go! Take anything! I can be calm no longer. Oh, how can I expect mercy at your hands!" Her tones were rising to a wail of terror.

"Sh! Do you want to die?" he hissed, striding to the canopy bed, discernible as his eyes grew accustomed to the darkness. "I will kill you if you utter a sound, so help me God!" "Oh!" she moaned. "Listen! You must aid me! Do you hear?" Another heart breaking moan. "I am here to save the princess. There is a plot to abduct her tonight. Already there are men in the castle, perhaps in her room. You must tell me where she sleeps. There is no time to be lost. I am no thief, before God! I am telling you the truth. Do not be alarmed, I implore you. Trust me, madam, and you will not regret it. Where does the princess sleep?" He jerked out these eager, pleading words quickly, breathlessly. "How am I to trust you?" came back a whisper from the bed. "Here is a revolver. Take it and kill me if I attempt the slightest injury. Where are you?" He felt along the bed with his hand. "Keep away! Please! Please!" she sobbed. "Take the pistol! Be calm, and in heaven's name help me to save her! Those wretches may have killed her already!" The revolver dropped upon the clothes. He was bending eagerly over, holding the curtains back. "My friend is in the hall. We have traced the men to the princess' door, I think. Be quick! Under your wish to see her stolen from under your eyes?" "You are now in the princess' room," answered the voice from the bed, calmer and with some slattery. "Is this true that you tell me?" "As God is my witness, and you—you are you the princess?" gasped the man, drawing back. "I am. Where is Dannox?" She was sitting bolt upright in the bed, the pistol in her trembling fingers. "He is one of the conspirators. One of the cooks and two other guards are in the plot. Can you trust me enough to leave your bed and hide in another part of the room? The soundreels have mistaken the door, but they may be here at any moment. You must be quick! I will protect you—I swear it! Come, your highness! Hide!" Something in the fierce, anxious whisper gave her confidence. The miracle had been wrought! He had composed this woman under the most trying circumstances that could have been imagined. She slipped from the bed and threw a long, loose silken gown about her. "Who are you?" she asked, touching his arm

"Who is it?" His heart ceased beating, his body grew stiff and immovable. Again the voice, a touch of alarm in it now: "Is that you, Dannox?" She spoke in German, and the voice came from somewhere in front and to his right. He could not answer, could not move. The paralysis of indecision was upon him. spirit of God, they are the sons of God." He said a true Christian believes in God and Christ and lives up to the full measure of duty as far as possible for him to do it.
Stonewall Jackson, the man of prayer, though timid and backward and halting in his speech, yet insisted upon leading in public prayer because he felt it to be a Christian's duty to do so. One is sometimes in doubt as to his acceptance with God. If we have a home and there is a cloud on the title, we are much concerned to have the title made clear. And so should everyone be with regard to his title to the inheritance above.
The test of our religion is in our life. Christianity does not consist in ordinances merely—they represent graces. But Christianity is living a life led by the spirit, turning from evils we once loved and turning to virtues we once hated. Religion is the apprehension of the truth as it is in Jesus, and a determination to do the right. This is exemplified in Paul's question upon his conversion. "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?"
To do the right and live the right, not only in church and on the Sabbath, but at home and on the street every day—that is living a Christian life.
The good Christian will yield to the spirit's call to duty, whatever that may be. If it is a call to the ministry or to be a foreign missionary, he is ready to obey.
There was another accession to the church last night, and quite a number have manifested an interest. The service this evening will begin promptly at 8:15 and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

DALLAS SHUT OUT BY FINE PITCHING

Buchanan Holds the Visitors Down to Five Hits and Struck Out Fifteen Men

Fort Worth took the game from Dallas yesterday in a hollow kind of a style. Only in the first two innings did the visitors have even a show of a score. Fort Worth scored almost at will, although in two innings the last man struck out with the bases full.

Dallas went to bat first and the first man up drove the first ball out toward the left field fence. Barrett went after it on a dead run and just as he reached the fence he jumped and caught the ball with only his gloved hand between it and the fence. His heels hit the fence and it sounded to the spectators as if it were the ball hitting the boards. Barrett also struck out the next two batters, and when he scooped out on the ground in front of him while he was coming forward as fast as he could run.

Hogsett, a Fort Worth amateur, occupied the right garden in place of Poindecker. He did not have chances to catch the ball to the fence, which Barrett knew what to do with the ball. At the bat he got credit for two sacrifices, but no hit. He ran bases rather slowly and was put out at third once when some other of the team would have been easily there.

Dallas could do nothing at all with Buchanan's pitching. In each of the first six innings he struck out two men. In the remaining innings three more fanned, making a new record of fifteen strikeouts for Buchanan. Added to that, only five hits were made off him, and they were scattered.

Dallas started in the first inning as if they wanted a run. The first man drove the ball to the fence, which Barrett caught. Curtis, the next man, hit the ball along third base for a single. Ury, the third man, knocked one to Reitz, which was dropped. Curtis going to third. Buchanan steadied down then, and struck out the next two men.

That was the only time that Dallas proved the least bit dangerous except in the third inning, when two men hit safe after two outs, but the third man struck out again.

Fort Worth scored first in the fourth inning. Ditch, the first man, hit safe to left field. McMurray bunted the ball, and then beat it out. Buchanan bunted also, the ball going to the pitcher. It was too late to catch him at first, so Railing threw to third in order to catch Ditch, but he was there some time ahead of the throw. Reitz came up with the bases full and no outs. He swung hard at the first one, but failed to connect. He tried the next one with the same result. Then came a third one, straight over the base, and Reitz hit hard at it. This time the ball hit the bat and started for the upper. It was one of those hits known as a Texas leaguer and dropped safe between the second baseman, the right fielder and the center fielder. Meanwhile the runners held their bases. When they saw that it was to be a safe hit everyone ran, but Ditch was the only man who could score. Here Railing started in to pitch and both Combs and Barrett bunted. Reitz hit a slow one fast out of the reach of the pitcher who threw to third to catch Buchanan, but again he was too late, and another run was scored.

The next inning looked something like a farce, as Railing hit one man and allowed two bases on balls. No runs resulted, as poor base-running put two men out and the last one struck out.

In the seventh Railing passed Combs. Peer bunted and beat it out again. Hogsett sacrificed both on a base. Barrett flied out and Ditch stepped up amidst cries of "Home run!" and then after missing the first two he slammed the ball over the left fielder's head for two bases. Both men scored.

Two more runs were added in the seventh on a two-bagger by Combs, a base on balls, an error and two men hit by the pitcher.

Waco defeated Corsicana yesterday by a score of 5 to 2. That game put Fort Worth in second place, one game behind Dallas. Another victory over Dallas today will tie the two teams for first place. The summary of yesterday's game is as follows:

STEINFELDT A SLEEP-WALKER

A New York paper contains the following story, which concerns Harry Steinfeldt, the Fort Worth boy who guards the third cushion for Cincinnati. There was great confusion and fuss for a few moments along a certain corridor in the Hotel Marlborough, New York, Sunday morning. Through the transom of the room occupied by Steinfeldt and Morrissey of the Cincinnati team there came a dark brown torrent of sweat words in Texas accent. Harry, the Reds' third baseman, was making things lively, while Morrissey, too, was doing a little fussing.

There was finally a lull in hostilities, then came shrieks of laughter. Morrissey was performing now. In vain did the other Reds hurl epithets at the sleep-disturbers, and when the air finally came out they were dumb as owls. But murder will out. It developed that Steinfeldt, who is a great lover of diamonds and who also walks in his sleep, had that night got out of bed in a dream and, taking his new $500 sapphire from his finger, had hid it from himself. The first noise was when Steiny waked and found the ring missing; the second outburst was when Morrissey found it under a corner of the carpet.

What made the matter additionally funny to those who know Steinfeldt was that it was on what he calls his "combination finger." The ring was made for this finger, which is marked and knobby, the victim of many line drives. Harry had it made in Cincinnati and had to have each of the joints measured. He passed it over the first joint in an inverted position and, twisting it half way around, he pushes it a little farther on, then by a succession of forward and backward twists, he gets it over the big knuckle. The third baseman has prided himself that there are none save himself who can put the ring on or take it off. After he recovered it on Sunday morning, he, by a succession of "It's a guardian star for Harry. When I go to spelling the combination out in my sleep it's time to do something."

DENISON WAS DEFEATED

DENTON, Texas, July 15.—A very interesting game of baseball was played between Denton and the Denton Athletic Club at the Denton Athletic Club park in this city yesterday afternoon, resulting in 5 to 3 in favor of the Denton Athletic Club. Denton has a splendid amateur team, but like all other amateur teams that the Denton Athletic Club has been pitted against lately, it was overmatched and received a drubbing, as others have been doing.

WEATHER AND CROPS

FINE LOCAL RAINS
STRAWN, Texas, July 14.—There were fine local rains in the country Sunday afternoon, but crops are suffering in some parts of the country. Some crops of cotton have been entirely destroyed by grasshoppers, in Stephens county.

IN CALLAHAN COUNTY

Some Rain Has Fallen, But More is Needed There
BAIRD, Texas, July 14.—We have very warm weather here now, the thermometer registering 95 in the shade today at 2 p. m. It was at 98 Sunday.

A portion of Callahan county had a good rain about ten days ago, and that portion will make a fine corn crop. But unless it rains here inside of a week the balance of the county will have only about two-thirds of a full crop.

Wheat thrashing is going on in many places in the county and the average yield is probably about sixteen bushels to the acre. Tom Kolbinger watered down today and said his 150 acres of wheat would probably turn out twenty-two and one-half bushels to the acre, judging from what his neighbors, who have thrashed, have made. The price of wheat in Baird is now 45 cents.

Cotton is doing well, but is later than usual. It will soon need rain.

HE DIES OF LOCKJAW

Anti-Toxine Helped Him For a Short Time
NEW YORK, July 15.—Despite the fact that his skull was trepanned and anti-toxine injected into the brain, Willie T. Graham, a Mount Vernon boy, is dead from lockjaw.
The palm of Graham's hand was lacerated by a blank cartridge July 4. Lockjaw set in but was relieved by the anti-toxine. In a few days the effect of the operation wore off and the lockjaw returned.

DOUGAL HANGS FOR A MURDER

Perpetrator of the Moat House Tragedy Is Executed Five Years After the Crime Was Committed

BODY IS FOUND FOUR YEARS LATER

Execution Closes the Happenings in One of the Most Celebrated Cases Which Has Ever Been Known in Annals of English Crimes

LONDON, July 15.—Samuel Herbert Dougal, the perpetrator of the Moat house murder, who was convicted at the Chelmsford assizes June 23 of the killing of Miss Camilla Cecelia Holland at Sarron-Walden, Essex, and sentenced to death, was hanged at the Chelmsford jail July 15. Dougal, after confessing to a full confession of his crime.

The Moat house murder, as it was known, was committed over five years ago and hope of solving the mystery had almost been given up when the body of the victim, Miss Holland, was found last April buried in the Moat house grounds. Miss Holland was the owner of Moat house. About four years ago Dougal, who was supposed to be her husband, but who it was discovered since, had never been married to her, made his appearance there, and Miss Dougal, supposed to be his sister, took up her residence on the place. Miss Holland then disappeared suddenly and Dougal sued the woman supposed to be his sister, but who really was his wife, for divorce. This aroused suspicion and led to an investigation. Dougal was arrested for cashing a check purporting to have been signed by Miss Holland, and while he was in custody the body of Miss Holland for whom a thorough but unsuccessful search had been made, was accidentally found by a laborer in an old ditch which had been planted over by a shrub nearly four years previously. The laborer stuck his fork into a hard substance which proved to be a woman's shoe containing a woman's foot. Then Miss Holland's body was found lying face downward.

An examination showed that the head had been pierced by a bullet, which was found in the skull.

Dougal was suspected of having made away with at least five wives.

WHAT HE TOLD HILL James J. Hill of the Great Northern Railroad is cruising along the Canadian coast in his steam yacht, accompanied by a party of friends. A new story of this famous millionaire tells how he was "set back" by W. P. Clough, general counsel of the Great Northern system. Every time Mr. Hill called at the lawyer's office he would find that gentleman reading a French novel. Convinced that this was not as it should be, he finally said: "Do you think I pay you $20,000 a year to read French novels?" The lawyer replied: "No, you pay me to keep the Great Northern out of legal trouble. I am doing so, am I not?" Hill was obliged to answer in the affirmative. "Well, if I can keep your railroad out of trouble and find time to read French novels, too, I must be a pretty good man, don't you think?" Mr. Clough continued to read his favorite literature and the magnate had no more comment to make.

A KENTUCKY MOB HANGS WHITE MAN

HE HAD KILLED HIS MAN AND SITTING ON THE BODY CALMLY SMOKED HIS PIPE, DARING ANY ONE TO INTERFERE WITH HIM

MAYSVILLE, Ky., July 14.—Enraged at the court's action, a mob broke into the Flemingsburg jail this morning and hanged William Thacker, a white man who had been given a life sentence for the murder of John Gordon two years ago.

Thacker, in a quarrel with Gordon at Foxport, shot and killed him and then sat on the body with a Winchester in his hand, while he smoked his pipe and dared anyone to attempt to arrest him.

At the time Thacker escaped, but was later arrested and lodged in jail at Flemingsburg. He was given two trials and finally got a life sentence.

Gordon was a good citizen and an in-offensive man.

After being sentenced Thacker appealed to the court of appeals and was waiting for another trial. Thacker had some money and was able to command the support of some influential men and it was feared he might escape punishment altogether.

The mob collected at Mt. Carmel, where Gordon once lived, and came into Flemingsburg by two and three in order not to arouse suspicion. They advanced upon the jail shortly after midnight. The jailer refused to surrender the keys. He was overpowered and the keys taken from him. Thacker was hurried to a tree near his prison, which he refused to do, but begged for his life. To hush his cries he was hit on the head with a rock and the unconscious body was strung up until life became extinct.

L. G. Gillett, formerly of Fort Worth, now of El Paso, is a visitor in the city. He has just attended his brother's funeral at Breckenridge, Texas, and stopped over for a visit to friends here. He lived here a number of years during which he was engaged in the real estate business with W. L. Ligon. He said today that he has no return to his home in this city in the near future.

A meeting of the Spanish War Veterans will be held Thursday evening in the office of Judge Terrell in the basement of the courthouse. This will be the last meeting that is to be held before the charter is sent to Washington. A smoker will be held after the business meeting is over and several of the members will give short speeches.

Mrs. W. H. Clark, sister of Mrs. W. L. Ligon, and daughter of Memphis, Tenn., are guests of Mrs. Ligon at her home, Pennsylvania and Fifth avenues, for a several weeks' visit.

Mrs. L. Tschernacher has gone to Acmo for a two weeks' visit with friends.

A GIGANTIC SCHEME

Railroad to Traverse the United States and Alaska and Siberia

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 15.—M. Locqui Lobet, a member of the Geographical Society, is here.

He conceived the idea of building a trans-Alaska-Siberia railroad, thereby affording an all-rail route from New York to Paris, shifting the commercial axis from the Suez canal to Behring's strait. In 1898 Lobet visited Alaska on a scientific mission and it was then he first thought of the great scheme which has since interested many wealthy men of Europe and resulted in the formation of a big company, which, he says, pledged him ample funds to carry it out. He is now making a tour of the world in the interest of this railroad project and this is the motive that brought him to San Francisco.

In the proposed route over the American continent Canada is eliminated. The present plans outline a road across the United States from New York to San Francisco, thence northward through California, Oregon and Washington and along the coast to Juneau, thence to Fort Yukon and thence to the most westerly point of Alaska, pending into Behring sea. Here a tunnel will connect the mainland and thence through Siberia to St. Petersburg and then finally through Europe to Berlin and Paris.

CONSIDERING INCREASE

Commission Will Hear Express Companies' Arguments July 23

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15.—The subject of an increase in charges by express companies operating in Texas is still in the hands of the Texas railroad commission. Commissioner Colquhoun today addressed a letter to the express companies, asking the commission will hear further arguments on the subject of increase July 23.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Commission Will Comply With Request of Brick Manufacturers

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15.—Proprietors of brick yards at Taylor and Holland have complied with the Texas railroad commission concerning freight rates on products of that nature.

Peter Schram of Taylor and W. E. Dohmst of Holland, who made the complaint, have been informed by the commission that the charges will be investigated.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 15.—The South Lake Storage Company of Galveston, capital stock $500,000, was chartered today, its purpose being to buy, store, transport and sell oil and gas. The incorporators are C. H. Moore, J. H. Hill, M. A. Davis and M. Lasker of Galveston.

AAEON BURR LEGION

First Annual Meeting Has Been Held in New Jersey

NEW YORK, July 15.—The first annual meeting of the Aaeon Burr Legion has been held at Newark, N. J. Its object was to commemorate the one hundred and forty-seventh anniversary of the birth of Colonel Burr and to advance the work the legion was created to perform.

Its purpose is to refute prejudicial assertions that have been made about the life and character of Colonel Burr and to establish him in what the legion maintains is his proper place in American history.

Charles F. Pliginsk, correspondent in chief at Boston, presided at the business session at which steps were taken to issue the Aaeon Burr memorial volume. At the time of the meeting the legion visited the site of the personage in Newark where Aaron Burr was born, and also the First Presbyterian church, of which his father was pastor at the time of his birth. Today a pilgrimage will be made to the house on Staten Island, where Monroe died.

J. T. MARCHAND IS HERE FOR HEARING

ATTORNEY OF INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION IS FIRST ARRIVAL—MANY WILL ATTEND. KANSAS CITY FREIGHT COMMISSIONER COMING

J. T. Marchand, special attorney and expert for the interstate commerce commission, has apartments at the Worth, and is the first arrival to attend the hearing which is fixed for next Monday in this city.

It was upon the application of Mr. Marchand, representing the government, that the interstate commerce commission fixed the hearing to inquire into the rates and contracts allowed by the Rock Island and the Santa Fe roads to the Rosenbaum Grain Company of Fort Worth and the Richardson Grain Company at Gainesville. When the Texas commission took this matter up some time ago Mr. Marchand made an investigation of the conditions, going into the matter in detail. He obtained the information which had been secured by the Texas railroad commission and upon the investigation made and the results obtained he made application for the hearing.

Tomorrow evening W. P. Trickett, freight commissioner of Kansas City will arrive here to be present, the grain men of Kansas and Missouri being particularly interested in the result of the hearing.

C. A. Prouty and Judson C. Clements, members of the interstate commerce commission, will arrive here Sunday night and the hearing will open Monday morning in the federal courtroom. A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed and among those attending will be the members of the Texas commission.

Mr. Marchand was seen at the Worth today, but he had nothing to give out on the subject. He said the question was an intricate one, and a discussion of it would not involve details which could not be explained without going into the matter to a greater extent than was advisable at this time. Mr. Marchand will remain here until the hearing and will conduct the government's case.

MOB IN NEW YORK WAS AFTER A NEGRO

PRISONER IS IN ABJECT FEAR BECAUSE OF CHASE WHICH HAS BEEN MADE BY INFURIATED CITIZENS BECAUSE OF CRIMINAL ASSAULT

ALBANY, N. Y., July 15.—James Little, a negro, who assaulted an 11-year-old girl near New Baltimore yesterday, and who was removed to the Catskill jail for fear a mob would lynch him, was taken back to New Baltimore today for arraignment. The negro is an abject wreck through fear, although he is heavily guarded by sheriff's posse in anticipation of trouble.

At New Baltimore a mob composed of farmers, striking molders from Coxsack and boat hands gathered. Among them was Joseph Cole, the father of the girl assaulted. Cole was excited and as the mob docked he drew his revolver. He was quickly disarmed by Deputy Sheriff Gould. The prisoner was taken south to jail, Justice of the Peace Nelson refusing to begin the examination until counsel is present. Counsel from Coxsack will get there today. The condition of the child is somewhat better and this has allayed the excitement.

WIND PREVENTS A RECORD MAKING HEAT

about Fort Worth, which send in reports for the cotton region bulletin. Temperatures about this section of the country were not quite as high as they were the day before. Only a single 100 was reported yesterday and that was from Henrietta. The maximum in that city has been the same for three days now.

The weather for this vicinity for this evening will be about the same that it has been for the past few days. The forecast for tomorrow is fair with a possibility of a thunder shower in the afternoon. Thunder showers during the summer weather are hard to predict, especially during a hot spell, and they are likely to come any afternoon and then again they sometimes don't come.

Dodge City, Kas., was another recruit to the hundred class yesterday. 102 was reported from there which was the highest for the country yesterday, as it just equalled the temperature of Phoenix. No other cities outside of Texas and Oklahoma reported temperatures over 90 degrees, except for Pueblo, where the maximum was 98 degrees.

The thermometer started on this afternoon as though it was going to break the record set Sunday. In the early morning the thermometer did not look especially threatening, but on toward noon it began to climb suddenly, and at noon had reached 91. At 1 o'clock 93 was passed and at 1:30 the thermometer was a little above 94, with a prospect of going still higher. Suddenly a few clouds appeared on the horizon and within a few moments the column of mercury dropped two degrees and all chance for another record breaking day was lost.

Yesterday was one of the fairest days that this year has seen. Except for the 10 in Texas, as not a drop of rain was reported from any of the stations

THE RED MEN TONIGHT

Installation of officers is to be a Big Affair With the Order

Quite an elaborate program has been arranged and the public is cordially invited to attend the raising up of chiefs and the princesses of the degree of Pocahontas and to see the chiefs in their war paint tonight. The committees which have the affair in charge is very eager that the pale face world should attend as the ceremony is very beautiful and impressive.

The following program will be rendered:

Music by Four Hundred Orchestra. Address by Mayor Powell. Response by Agnes Geer in behalf of the Degree of Pocahontas.

The installation of officers will be by E. S. Pawkett, past grand sachem, acting as officiating chief, assisted by great Mishenewa, H. G. Cohen, great prophet, Dr. C. A. Parker, great senior Sagamore, Dr. J. L. Prange, great junior Sagamore, Captain H. F. Shields, great chief of records, W. G. Pfeiffer, great guard of Wiganah, H. B. Lind, great sennap, L. Branham.

The officers who will serve the ensuing term and be raised to their elective stumps are: J. M. Williams, sachem; J. A. Barry, senior sagamore; C. E. Johnson, prophet; Dnnn, junior sagamore.

The elective and appointive officers

MAN BADLY WANTED HERE IS CAPTURED

Assistant Chief of Police Allen last night received a telegram from Rochester, N. Y., which brought good news to more than one person in Fort Worth. The dispatch told of the arrest in that city of Harry Flynn, alias Harry Diamond, an alleged kidnaper who is wanted in Fort Worth on charges brought against him by a number of ladies who say that he got diamonds and money from them by other than proper methods.

Flynn's wife is at present under arrest at Jefferson, O.

When Flynn left Fort Worth he was under bond to appear in court for trial. Judge W. R. Parker made bond for him in the sum of $1,500. Today Judge Parker was making arrangements to have a deputy sheriff go to Rochester to escort Flynn back to this city. The deputy will depart this evening.

The police are confident that if they succeed in lodging Flynn and his wife behind the bars of the Tarrant county jail they will not leave that institution again until they start for the penitentiary.

About a year ago Flynn and his wife and two other women were arrested for about a month. Their principal plan of operation was this: When a lady desired a certain event to transpire and while for most of the time it averaged seven and a half inches and went as high as seven and three-quarters for a couple of hours.

Measurements are made every half hour to see just how much water is running through the well and also how fast the engines are running.

WATER NOT CLEAR YET

The first water that came from the pumps yesterday was nearly black in color. This was caused by the fact that the water has been kept so long in the tunnels. This morning the water was still of a whitish tinge and there was a strong smell of the sulphur in the water near the well. Last night this could be smelt all over the plant.

Contractor Mead said today: "There is undoubtedly a little sulphur in the water, but I think it will disappear before we begin pumping direct into the new intake well. At any rate, even if there is still a trace of it left at that time it will disappear while the water is in the well and nothing will be noticed of it in the city mains. It is perfectly natural to have a trace of sulphur in these wells—no fact; it is almost impossible to find any wells which are so deep that don't have it."

TEN WELLS IN USE

One of the deep wells has not been tapped yet and the flow from the ten wells in use—seven deep and the three shallow ones—proves that there will be plenty of water to supply the city. The water from the other well will increase the flow materially.

The water this morning was being pumped into the Clear fork and will be for some time to come. The work on the new intake well will not be started until the new structure over the engines is completed. At present the engines are only sheltered by a temporary frame structure. The foundations for the new engine-house are already built and the work on the brick structure will begin immediately.

Work will start soon on the new revolving iron stairway, which will be built from the bottom of the shaft to the top. At present anyone wishing to descend to the bottom has to be lowered on a freight elevator.

MANY VISITORS TODAY

Many of the city officers and other prominent people visited the station this morning. There were about half a dozen there all the time. Many donned old coats and trousers and descended into the shaft. It was impossible to go down without old clothes, as the grease from the engine was dripping down all the while.

Lee Taylor, the reliable white scavenger, Phone 918.

A Very Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by J. W. Fisher. Price 50 cents.

PLENTY OF WATER FROM NEW WELLS

No Show of Decrease in Supply After a Day's Pumping. Over Three Million Gallons Pumped First Day

The pumping from the artesian well at the new city waterworks has been going on now for twenty-four hours, and the wells are flowing as strongly as they did at the very beginning. Not only that, but the flow is stronger today than it was yesterday.

Pumping began at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the presence of Mayor Powell, City Attorney Orriek and several of the aldermen. For a while the flow was kept at 2,250,000 gallons and then it was increased to nearly 2,000,000 gallons. At the time of starting the pressure of the steam amounted to sixty pounds and the engine was run at the rate of 128 revolutions to the minute. The steam pressure was not so high today, only twenty pounds being registered. The engine was run at a higher rate of speed, however, as the water pressure was not so high. The number of revolutions per minute this morning averaged 150.

ONLY ONE ENGINE USED

Only one of the two upright centrifugal engines is being used to pump the water out of the tunnels. Each engine has a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons of water per day. For the present they will be run alternately a week at a time. Experiments will be made to see if they can be run together, each pumping half the water required, at less expense than having one engine do all the pumping. At any time when for any reason more water is required both of the pumps can be used together, which will give an enormous volume of water. As the water will be pumped into the intake well and then pumped out again by the waterworks pumps, they would be unable to take care of the entire capacity of the two new pumps running together.

The pumps themselves are at the bottom of the shaft, 156 feet below the surface of the earth. Below the pumps is an iron bulkhead weighing nearly 3,000 pounds. This bulkhead prevents the water from coming up into the shaft and interfering with the machinery. It is so constructed that the more the water presses against it the tighter it is held in place.

The machines at the top of the shaft are connected with the pumps at the bottom by a series of inch and a half ropes, which are used instead of belting.
