

CANADA SULKS OVER DECISION OF ALASKA BOUNDARY COMMISSION

Representatives Refuse to Sign Agreement This Afternoon and Are Bitter in Their Attitude Towards the United States

WE LOSE ONLY PORTLAND CANAL

Every Other Contention of the United States is Maintained and Two Islands Commanding Entrance to the Important Waterway Are Also Given to Us—Feeling in Canada is High and Commission is Openly Charged With Having Shown a Prejudicial Attitude

- WHAT THE UNITED STATES GETS: A definite boundary line dividing the territory of this country from Canada. This has never before existed. An award of all the territory which the United States has contended as belonging to it under this government's interpretation of the treaty of 1825. All the waterways to the rich Alaskan territory, excepting the Portland canal. A ratification of the treaty of 1829, giving this country possession of Dyea, Skagway, etc. The islands of Kaniagahund and Sitkaban, commanding the entrance to Portland canal. WHAT CANADA GETS: The Portland canal, giving an important outlet for commerce to the Pacific ocean. This canal is divided at its mouth by Pearse island and heretofore Canada only had use of the west channel. The new decision gives Canada Pearse island and the use of the east channel also.

(By Associated Press.) LONDON, Oct. 20.—In consequence of the attitude maintained by the Canadian commissioners, Lord Chief Justice Alverstone decided this morning not to hold the proposed public meeting of the Alaska boundary commission, but to hand the decision to Messrs. Foster and Sifton, respectively, agents of the American and Canadian governments. The Canadian commissioners not only declined to sign the award, but said they would publicly withdraw from the commission. They, as well as the Canadians connected with the case, are very bitter. Telegrams from Premier Laurier and other prominent persons in Canada show this sentiment is shared generally throughout the dominion.

DELEGATE FROM TERRITORY IS PROPOSED

Movement on Foot to Seat Indian Representative in Congress is Again Revived—R. L. Owen is Suggested

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—The movement on foot to try to send a delegate for the Indian Territory on the floor of congress, was accentuated somewhat by the recent visit of Congressman Charles Curtis of Kansas, to the Indian Territory. Mr. Curtis is of the opinion that a delegate, representing the Indians, and preferably part Indian, could be sent in congress at the next session. It will be remembered that Mr. Curtis is himself an Indian, belonging to the Kaw or Kaw tribe of Indians. It is generally conceded that, should a delegate be so seated, it will lessen the hopes of those who desire Oklahoma and Indian Territory to come in as one state, because the delegate would undoubtedly be in favor of single statehood for the Indian Territory. Robert L. Owen of this city, a prominent Cherokee Indian, who was Indian agent under Cleveland, is mentioned as a candidate for this place.

MERCHANTS RAISE PRICE: HOLDENVILLE, I. T., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Cotton for the past several weeks has been passing straight through here and going to Wewoka, nine miles distant. The work of the Wewoka cotton men, in raising the prices way above the market, and then when things were coming their way, suddenly dropping considerably below the market, has been the cause of this condition of affairs. Merchants here, however, have at last aroused to the fact that something must be done to stop the exodus of farmers to Wewoka, and they have raised the price to meet that in Wewoka, so that Holdenville for the past several days has had all the cotton it could handle. A light frost here a few days ago has materially aided in the cotton making.

WE GET TWO ISLANDS: (By Associated Press.) LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Alaskan award relating to the Portland canal gives the United States two islands, Kaniagahund and Sitkaban, commanding the entrance to the Portland canal and the ocean passage to Port Simpson, and destroying the strategic value of Wales and Pearse islands, which are given to Canada. SIGNED THIS AFTERNOON: The engrossed copy of the Alaskan award was signed at 2:10 p. m. The Canadian commissioners declined to sign the award. Messrs. Jette and Aylesworth, the Canadian commissioners, in a statement of their reasons for declining to sign say that they consider the findings of the tribunal regarding the island at the entrance to the Portland channel and the mountain

CHOCTAW BALL PLAYERS: Company Organized to Take a Band to the World's Fair: MUSKOGEE, I. T., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—A company has been organized here for the purpose of taking a band of Choctaw Indians to the World's Fair, and have them play match exhibition games of Indian ball. World's Fair Commissioner Frank Hubbard is interested in the company, and has already secured the franchise and concessions from the World's Fair. The company will be incorporated for $25,000. The Indians will be recruited from the Choctaw Indians, and all will be skilled players at Indian ball. They will be under the direct supervision of Jim Crooks, of Atkohl, I. T. Mr. Crooks has had some experience in this enterprise, and is well qualified to handle the Indians, having taken them on a tour through the Texas towns. Fort Worth through the Texas towns. It is confidently expected that the enterprise will prove very profitable, and will cause quite a sensation in St. Louis. It is the intention of the company to take the Indians to the leading cities of the west.

During each of the last five years the United States has purchased more of the product of Japan than any other country, and more than all Europe and British India and Great Britain each sell more to Japan than does the United States.

line is not a judicial one. They say the majority of the commission ignored the just rights of Canada. AN OLD DISPUTE: For over thirty years the question of the boundary between Alaska and Canada has stood on a temporary compromise between the United States and Great Britain. In 1867 Russia conveyed to the United States all her rights in Alaska. The conveyance was by treaty and the boundary line was the one defined by Russia in her treaty with Great Britain in 1825. The boundary in that treaty was set out as follows: From the southernmost point of Prince of Wales island at 55 degrees and 49 minutes north latitude and between 131 and 133 degrees west longitude, the line was to extend north to 50 degrees north latitude on the continent. Then it was to follow the summit of the mountains parallel to the coast to the point intersection of the 141st meridian, and from this point and along the meridian to the frozen sea. The Prince of Wales island was to belong to Russia. Whichever the summit of the mountains were more than ten marine leagues from the coast, the line was to be parallel to the windings of the coast, not more than ten marine leagues distant. There was no dispute regarding the boundary until a few years ago. Since the discovery of gold in Alaska, Canada made claim to a large portion of the mainland, alleging that the true meaning of the boundary of 1825 was that the line should not follow the windings of the coast, but should extend interiorly from a line intersecting headlands and promontories along the coast. A provisional boundary, agreed upon by Secretary John Hay and Michael Herbert (now deceased), British chargé d'affaires, by the signing of a treaty in October, 1899. This boundary is a line indicated by monuments at White Pass, Chilcoot pass and along the Klendhi river and Porcupine creek. This provisional agreement placed in American territory the towns of Dyea and Skagway, and the head of the Lynn canal and Pyramid harbor. By this agreement Canada conceded to the United States about 170 miles of the disputed territory and 100 miles received from the United States concessions to about ten miles. In 1902 the report that the monuments fixing the boundary line had been moved created considerable excitement, but nothing definite other than establishing a United States military post in the disputed territory was done. January 24 of the present year, Secretary Hay and Ambassador Herbert signed a treaty between the United States and Great Britain for the submission of the Alaskan boundary question to arbitration. Great Britain made a distinct concession in that it agreed there should be three commissioners representing each side of the dispute. It is this commission, presided over by the eminent jurist, Lord Alverstone, which has decided in favor of the United States and thus ended this controversy.

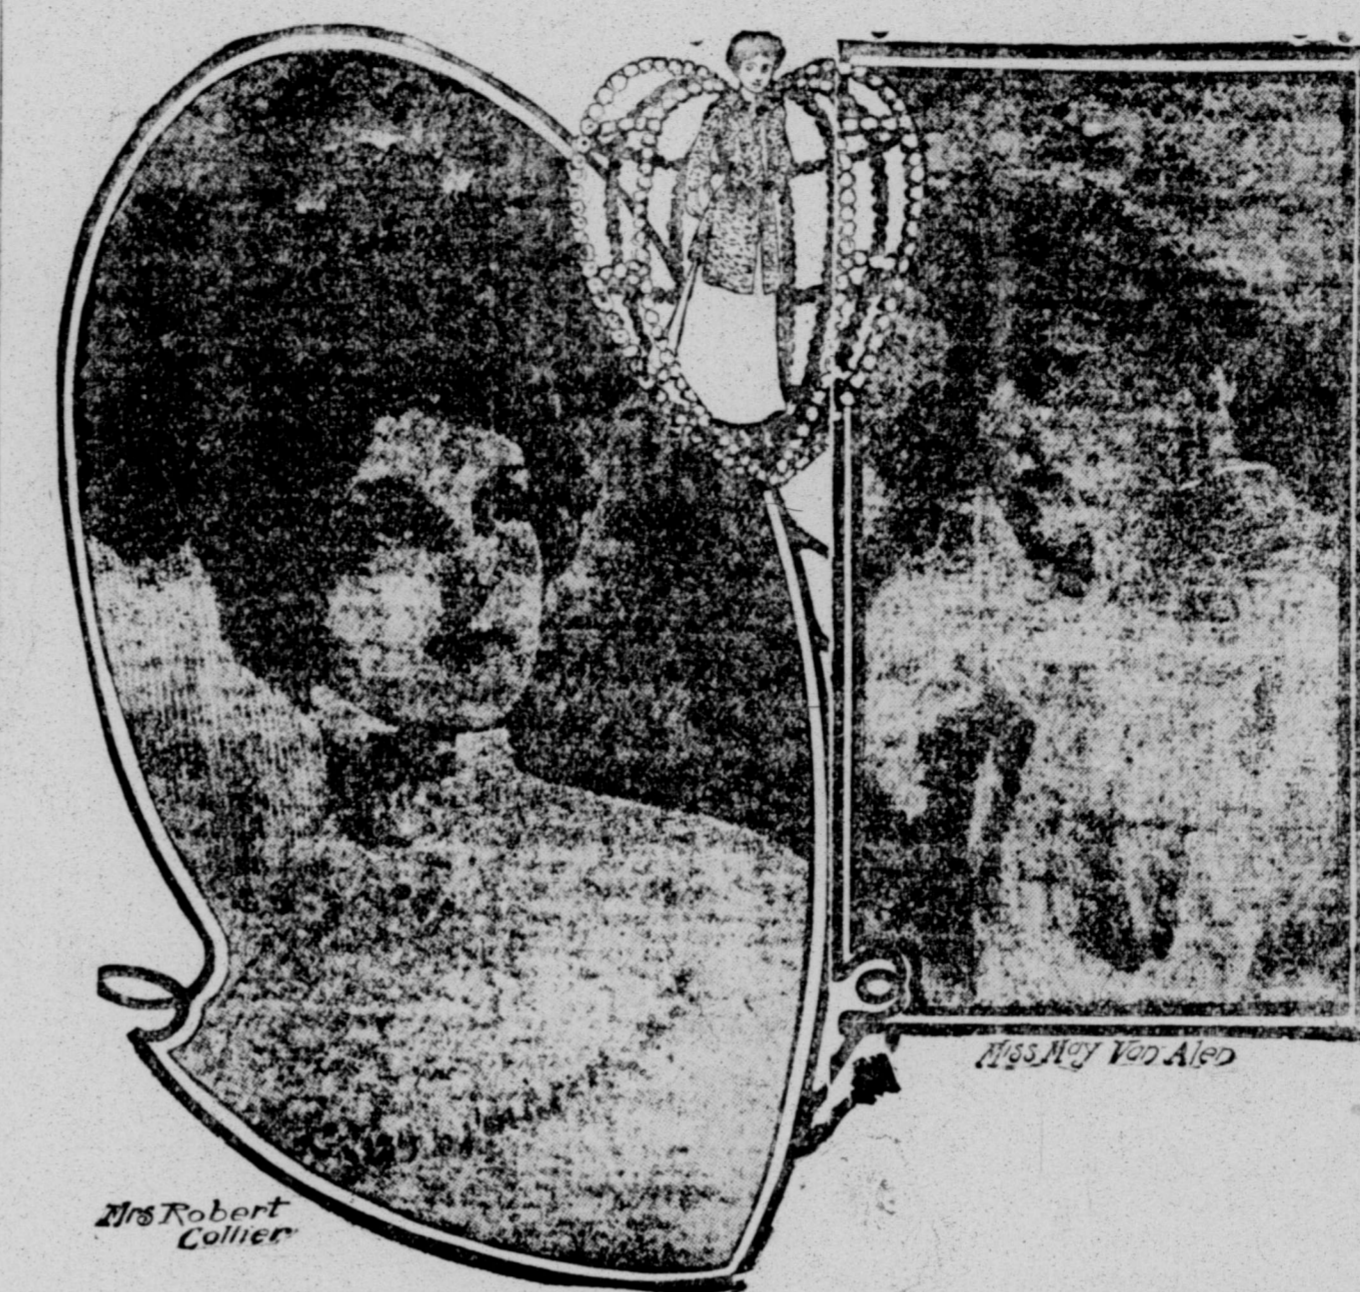

being an effort to get what will be termed a probate court for each commissioner's district, as this is to have jurisdiction with the United States court in all matters, it will aid in dispatching business. The dockets at all the courts are so crowded that at a term of only twice per year there is a failure to get cases disposed of. There is to be a new town about twenty miles east of here on the Katy road, which is just building into this place, to be known as Owl. It is in a fine section of farming country.

TRADE IN TERRITORY: Bradstreet's Superintendent Says Business is Light: OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 20.—W. R. Swartout, territorial superintendent for the Bradstreet company, when asked relative to commercial, financial and crop conditions in Oklahoma, made the following statement: "There are fewer business failures throughout the territory than at this time last year, but in a general way trade is light and collections slow. It would appear that the average consumer is making light purchases. In the cotton belt, where cotton should be in the market at this time and bringing something to the farmer, it is not there because of lateness, and as a result the farmer is not paying his bills and in turn collections from the merchants are slow. But in that region of Oklahoma they have hopes of lively times when the cotton is marketed. If we have a favorable, open fall, a great deal of cotton will be yet harvested and marketed, and will make the condition of the farmer in Eastern Oklahoma fairly good compared with that of last year. The fact that northern investors are flocking into Oklahoma and purchasing farms will release a great deal of money throughout the territory, lightening money conditions here to a considerable degree. Business throughout the territory promises to be fair this fall, but large enterprises and improvements in the way of the buildings may be somewhat checked by the difficulty in securing heavy loans from eastern capitalists."

FEDERAL COURT ANJOURNS AT ADA, I. T.

J. L. Goff Gets Six Years. Heavy Frost Reported—Bar Association to Meet—New Town is Being Started

ADA, I. T., Oct. 19.—The Federal court at this place adjourned Saturday. There were eight prisoners sentenced to the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. The longest sentence being six years, this in the case of J. L. Goff for the killing of Brady at Jesse, I. T. The remainder of the charges were larceny and introducing whisky. The new large two-story brick court house building at this place will soon be finished. It was not completed when the last term of this court met. There was a heavy frost here last night. The cotton crop in this section is exceedingly late, not more than one-fourth of the present crop has been gathered. The first contest over town lots in the United States court at this place was recently heard. There being about twenty-two lots in litigation. The town lots of this place have not yet been appraised but it is thought that the work will soon begin. As it is the purchaser only gets what might be termed a quit claim deed, the appraisement to be paid to the government when the appraisement is made. The Indian Territory bar association of lawyers will meet at Muskogee, I. T., Wednesday, the 21st instant and some very important questions will come before them. One of the same

Mr. Van Alen himself married Miss Astor against the wishes of her father, the late William Astor, so that the habit may be inherited. Mrs. Astor is said to favor Miss May Van Alen's fiancée, Ralph Rankin of Holyoke, Mass.

ARMED GUARDS ACCOMPANY THE PACIFIC MESSENGERS

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Superintendent Russ of the Pacific Express company issued the following statement at noon today: "All the company's offices are in good shape today on the Texas division. United States marshals will be at Longview today and restore equally good conditions to those existing at Marshall and Texarkana. The Marshall office was opened today under federal protection. All trains out of Texarkana this morning were fully manned with messengers accompanied by armed guards, who will be kept in the cars so long as their services may be needed." There does not seem to be any material change in conditions at Dallas today. Little express is being handled by the Pacific company. The men say they have no reason to feel discouraged at the outlook. It was learned here today that a new messenger was badly handled last night by a mob at Longview and made to give up his run.

PEERLESS TROTTERS ARE MATCHED THIS AFTERNOON

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20.—Perfect weather conditions offered for the inauguration of the third annual meeting of the Memphis Trotting association. The feature of today's program is expected to be the contest for premier trotting honors between Lou Dillon and Major Delmar. Both horses have a mark of two minutes and in the race for the Memphis gold cup this afternoon will be driven by their owners, C. K. J. Billings and E. E. Smathers. The meeting of these two equine champions has been eagerly discussed for a week or more by horsemen generally. The local association has arranged to accommodate a record-breaking crowd. No official betting on the feature race will be allowed inside the park enclosure, but many large pools were sold in the city last night. Billings' mare ruling the favorite at $500 to $500. It is reported that Smathers and his associates bought every pool offered on Major Delmar at these odds. The wagers of the Smathers contingent reached nearly $15,000. Pools on Lou Dillon were taken by horsemen generally. The track has been specially prepared for today's big event and is in perfect condition.

COMMISSION TO LISTEN TO PASS DISPUTE

The matter has been taken up by the Texas Cattle Raisers' association, which is the largest organization of the kind in the United States, and Sam H. Cowan, general attorney for that association, accompanied by Secretary Lytle, left Fort Worth last night for Austin to attend the meeting on behalf of the association. General Freight Agent Sterling of the Fort Worth and Denver City, McCabe of the Rock Island and Preston of the Frisco also left for the state capital last night and will oppose the return pass proposition. However, they are credited with the statement that they will not take a very prominent hand in the controversy. The railroads oppose the system because they claim that in many instances attendants who accompany cattle consignments do not properly care for the stock and as a consequence the railroads are held responsible for any damage that may result to the cattle while in transit to market. For this reason the roads are opposing the continuation of the system. OFFICIALS ON TRAIN: General Superintendent Green, General Freight and Passenger Agent J. P. Lehane, Commercial Agent George W. Barnhart and O. L. Teachout, superintendent of the mail service on the Gould system, accompanied the Cotton Belt's fast train, "The Alberta," out of Fort Worth at 12:30 today. The vineyards of Central Asia are all from American stock. Ohio has a large and regular export trade in cuttings with all the wine-growing countries, owing largely to the fact that the American vine is free from many common parasites, notably phylloxera.

LACK OF BRICK DELAYS THE PAVING

Recent Strike at Thurber Affects Improvement of Houston Street—Asphalt Making Machinery Coming Here

President David McCormick of the Parker-Washington Asphalt company was in the city today and said to The Telegram that his company was ready to complete the paving of Houston street just as fast as possible, but the company is unable to get the necessary number of patent brick from the Thurber company which will hasten the completion of that portion of the work. Thus far the Parker-Washington company has used 7,500, and it will require about 12,000 more. They are informed that the Thurber company will not be able to supply the remainder of the brick within thirty days. "This condition of affairs will of necessity delay the finishing of the brick work on the street. The paving company is ready to push the work, but the inability to get the necessary brick will retard that part of the paving, which is much regretted by President McCormick, who said he was anxious to have the street finished up, and that his company would complete the work just as rapidly as conditions, that are beyond his control, will admit. This morning a large force of laborers was set to work on upper Houston street to put the ground in condition for paving with the asphalt, and this part of the contract will be pushed ahead from now on. President McCormick said that the asphalt machinery would be loaded at San Antonio today and he expected that it would reach Fort Worth within the next few days. However, he said that he was unable to say what time the plant would arrive. It is the hope of the president that it will be here in time to commence laying of asphalt within the course of ten or fifteen days. After the concrete has been laid it will be some ten days before the putting down of asphalt will commence, as it requires that length of time for the concrete to dry sufficiently. However, it may take a few days longer than ten days. President McCormick said today that his company was anxious to have the paving finished as soon as possible, and that the delay was not altogether the blame of the asphalt company. He is of the opinion that when the patent brick is received there will be no other hindrance in the way of completing the work, which will be pushed to a speedy conclusion. President McCormick will return to San Antonio this evening.

FATHER SUING TO GET CHILD

Pathetic Case Is Up For Trial In Dallas Court Today

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—The case known as the "Fort Worth Baby Case" is on trial today for the third time. It is the case of Harry Goodlow of Dallas vs. Mrs. J. Laing of Fort Worth. A jury was secured yesterday, the testimony was begun today. The trial will last several days. Mr. Goodlow is suing Mrs. Laing to recover his 7-year-old daughter, Sallie Goodlow. The case has been in the court two years. Mrs. Laing reared the first Mrs. Goodlow and the little girl who is now the cause of the litigation was born in Mrs. Laing's house. When the first Mrs. Goodlow died she gave the baby to Mrs. Laing. Since that time Mr. Goodlow has remarried and he now desires possession of his child. The case has pathetic features. The father is trying to get his child while the little girl's foster parents earnestly desire to keep her. The little girl herself expresses a wish to remain in her present home as she has never known any other.

COTTON AT MUSKOGEE

Weather of the Past Few Days Has Been of Benefit
 MUSKOGEE, I. T., Oct. 20.—(Special.) The past three days and nights have been of much aid to the cotton crop in this vicinity. The days are warm and nights cool, with frost. The cotton crop now promises to be fairly large, though it would be doubtful for some time, owing to the lateness of the season, and owing to weather. Lead after lead of cotton is coming in now, and an average crop is now expected. The frosts of the last few days have brought out the bottom cotton, but some of the cotton on the up lands is blighted.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

In Store for Those Who Doubt
 When you read that a sufferer of many years' standing has been completely restored to health by using Smith's Cure-All, you are inclined to doubt the statement and, in fact, have no belief in it whatever. The reason for this is that so much is claimed for the Cure-All it is impossible for anyone to believe it; if the advertiser confined his claims to the curing of one disease, as do the proprietors of Pyramid Pile Cure, readers would have much more faith in published testimonials. Those familiar with this great remedy know that testimonials as to its merit may be relied upon implicitly, also that the cures brought about by its use are little short of marvelous. The genuineness of the testimonial here given is vouchered for and is but one of thousands received:

"I wish to write you and tell you what your Pyramid Pile Cure has done for me. I have been troubled with piles for the past five years and used every remedy that was recommended to me. While some would give me relief for a while, they never have cured. I was so bad this summer I could not get up or down without pain; could not attend to my household duties. Finally I got a 50-cent box of your Pyramid Pile Cure at the drug-gist's and it is now two months since I used the last box, and have had no trouble since. I can say it is really and truly a good remedy.

"I am so thankful I tried it, as I know it has cured me, and if at any time I should have any such trouble again I would use it at once. Since I am cured I have recommended it to my friends, whom I know to be afflicted as I was, and I know they will use it, too. I am so thankful I ever learned of your cure." Mrs. F. Hutt, 460 Second street, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists for fifty cents a package, or will be mailed to any address upon receipt of price by Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich. Write this firm for their book describing the cause and cure of piles.

NEW INTERURBAN PROJECT

Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Iowa City, Davenport and Muscatine interurban company with a capital of $1,000,000. This electric line is supposed to be a part of the projected electric line to be built between Chicago and Des Moines. St. Louis capital is said to be interested in the enterprise.

WHY REDUCTIONS ARE MADE

The railroad companies have taken occasion to deny the statement that recent reductions in the pay rolls of the big systems are due to falling off of business. So far as can be learned, the reduction in the working force is a forerunner of increased net revenues, rather than a cut due to the decreased or decreasing income.

The discharge of thousands of employees in the shops and on the construction sections of the Eastern and Western lines has created consternation among the employees. President Ramsey states that all construction work will be postponed until such time as conditions have changed and the discharge of so large a number of employees on the various railroad systems was merely a measure of economy. The roads claim to be doing a record-breaking business, both in passenger and freight traffic, and if the cost of labor and material were responsible, the work of construction and improvement would be carried on for an indefinite period.

ANOTHER STRIKE PROBABLE

Trouble is brewing between the Canadian Pacific railroad company and its engineers and firemen. Strained relations have existed for some time and a crisis is near at hand. The railroad employes have had a committee in conference with officials of the road at Montreal for some time in an effort to settle the differences, but so far negotiations have resulted in naught. In order to settle the matter of striking a poll of the employes is now being taken of the entire system. The men demanded a revision of the schedule, which the company refused to grant.

FREE SETTLEMENT OF LANDS

The Union Pacific railroad company has become satisfied that the plan to place the vast area of semiarid lands along its line in the hands of home-builders is a failure, and that it is no longer expedient to pay the government large sums annually in taxes. In view of this condition the railroad company has decided to adopt a radically different plan to promote colonization and secure relief from taxation. The plan is to open for settlement a part of the lands in Western Nebraska and Kansas, Eastern Colorado and all of Wyoming. Nominal sums may be asked of the settlers.

An Omaha dispatch referring to the scheme of the Union Pacific gives the real secret of the move:
 The motive is revealed when the statement is made that the Union Pacific carries twice the tonnage from West to East as it does from East to West. What the railroads want is relief from the East. Settlers alone will solve the problem how to get it. The great arid stretches of land which are bound to be developed by irrigation can be transformed into populous cities and prosperous agricultural centers, which will furnish the demand for commodities manufactured in the East. The Union Pacific road, in the reports of increased traffic Westward on the Hill lines, learned a lesson.

The Union Pacific's total land grant originally amounted to 18,547,844.24 acres. The selling of land began in 1888 and today there is still for sale 4,500,000 acres. The officials believe that free land will result in unprecedented immigration. It will not be difficult, they think to devise means of securing actual settlement by provision in the transfer papers.

MEXICANS IN A BRAWL

Three Laborers Argue Over Beauty of Respective Wives and Get in Trouble

WEATHERFORD, Tex., Oct. 19.—(Special.)—Last Saturday being pay day at the Rock Creek mines, three Mexicans, Trinidad Rodriguez, Antonio Sebastian Domingue and Juan Morales, went to the Wells late Saturday night. Returning early Sunday morning under the influence of "hard booze," they began to argue as to who had the prettiest wife. The argument turned into a quarrel, whereupon they all drew buldog revolvers and Antonio Sebastian Domingue, was seriously shot in the neck.

They were all arrested and today they were behind the bars and at intervals still arguing as to the beauty of their respective wives.

SWITCHMAN IS INJURED

CLEBURNE, Texas, Oct. 19.—A Santa Fe switchman by the name of Frank Davenport, a son of Yardmaster F. J. Davenport, while switching today was severely killed. A stock car door knocked him down between the cars and the freight depot platform, nearly crushing the life out of him. His collar bone was broken, and he was otherwise badly bruised.

Many a man would better go without lunch at all than eat the hurried lunch which forms the noon-day meal of many a business man. Hasty eating, foods hard to digest, and no time allowed for digestion are the cause of many a case of stomach "trouble."

Disease of the stomach seriously threatens the health of the whole body and should be promptly cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food and the proper nutrition of the body on which physical strength depends.

"Nine or ten years ago my health became very poor, and in 1892 was so far gone that good doctors pronounced my case the worst they had ever treated," writes Mr. Harvey Phlips of Florence, Ala. "I had acute stomach trouble, an extent I could not sleep. I finally got three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and some pellets. Took them according to directions on the bottles, and in a few days noticed a decided improvement. I commenced to get more rest at night and could eat with pleasure, where formerly food was like chips to me. When I had used three bottles of the 'Discovery' I was a new man. Could eat and sleep until seven A. M. I am now working as my trade (carpentry), every day in the year, and weather, and think if I had not taken your medicines I would now be under the sod."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

Today's Market Quotations

Latest and Most Complete Report Printed in North Texas

NORTH FORT WORTH, Oct. 20.—On the local market today close around 1,500 head of cattle were offered and as a rule sold steady, some few sales, however, showing a spotted market. There were no choice butcher steers in the yards and best quality steers, averaging 700 pounds, sold to a feeder at $3.00, with the heavy end of the steer receipts selling at $2.50 to $2.80. The average quality of cows was hardly up to yesterday's standard, but in most instances the steers showed a steady market with yesterday's close.

Calves were scarce and the light supply sold at unchanged prices, no extra fancy calves being offered. A few sales of feeder calves were made to outside buyers at $1.85 to $1.90.

Sheep—On the early market, T. D. Hovenkamp sold to Swift & Co. 35 sheep, averaging 78 pounds, at $2.70, and 27 lambs, averaging 68 pounds, at $2.50. Both buyers and sellers are quoting the market steady.

Five cars of medium good butcher hogs were in this morning and early trading was generally on a steady basis with yesterday's close, the bulk of the early sales going to outside buyers. Chicago reported another decline of 10c today, with Kansas City weak to 5c lower from yesterday's big decline. Top hogs on the local market brought $5.55, and were sold to Satchel & Co. of Waxahachie. They were shipped in by F. Montgomery of Gunter and averaged 217 pounds. With the present demoralized condition of the northern markets, sellers on the local market anticipate a decline of 50c to 40c for this week. The market closed slow at 10c to 15c lower, with choice heavy sorted hogs at $5.50 to $5.55, mixed hogs at $5.35 to $5.45, and pigs and lights at $5.25 to $5.50.

A very small number of sheep were offered today, the market ruling steady with yesterday. T. D. Hovenkamp had in sixty-six mixed sheep, averaging seventy-three pounds, which he sold to Swift & Co. at $3.50.

OVER FIFTY LIVES LOST

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 20.—The captain and six of the crew of the steamer South Portland were rescued and the report was made that the steamer was wrecked at Bandon on the Oregon coast. Thirty-one passengers and members of the crew are missing. The South Portland was bound from Astoria for Filsoe, and was wrecked by parties residing here. It carried a crew of twenty-three men, and went ashore in the storm last night. Bandon is a remote point on the southwestern Oregon coast.

AUCTION SALE IS A BIG SUCCESS

Hundreds of Interested Stock-Men in Attendance at the Sale

The time set for the big horse and mule sale was postponed from 10 o'clock this morning to 1 this afternoon, and when the sales opened the barns where the sale is taking place would hardly hold the big crowd of buyers and sellers interested in the sale. INJURED IN COLLISION
(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—More than a score of persons have been injured, half a dozen seriously, in a rear end collision of trains on the Brooklyn elevated railroad.

The wreck was caused by the failure of an air brake. Both trains were heavily laden with passengers and there was a great struggle to reach the platform of the city hall station, resulting in many persons losing portions of their clothing.

A large piece of iron fell from the structure and struck immediately in front of a trolley car, blocking that line also.

NORTH SIDE AND ROSEN HEIGHTS

Small Blaze in Packing House District Last Night—Notes and Personals

Nash Furniture company.
A few minutes after 8 o'clock last night fire alarm No. 324 of the packing house system was turned in and with the blowing of the big whistles at both plants nearly everybody residing on the North Side turned out to witness the conflagration, which was confined to the small frame building near the old Exchange hotel formerly used by Swift & Co. as an office building. The fire company was prompt in answering the alarm and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before much damage was done. The old Exchange building has been on fire three different times in the past year and nearly everyone thought it was this building, as the one which burned was situated across the street from the old hotel.

A SECTIONAL PREJUDICE

Of all the newspapers in the country the Union published at Sacramento, Cal., is the most unkind, and its harsh words to the Daughters of the Confederacy of California are unworthy the writer for a newspaper. The Union says:

"It is presumed that the California Daughters of the Confederacy in their annual meetings have only amiable, social and charitable purposes in view, and if it be so there can be no harm in their annual convocations—nor much good in them. But we beg leave to remind the gentle Daughters of the Lost Cause that the time is past for exhibiting the Confederate flag, and the time has come for the building of memorials to Jefferson Davis without offense to propriety and to patriotic sentiment. Nobody will object if the Daughters of the Confederacy will seek to bind up whatever may be left of the wounds of the late happily lost cause. But efforts to perpetuate the political and sentimental interests which backed a great war in behalf of human slavery is out of time and out of taste. That in the nature of things it can come to nothing in a practical way reflects it of a serious focus of enmity and at the same time it goes to illustrate its uselessness and its folly. The best thing that can be done for a lost cause is commonly to bury it and forget it."

Why this bitterness on the part of the writer? What have the Daughters done to bring pain to him?

There are no more loyal people in the United States than the men who fought under the Confederate flag. They went to the front for the cause they loved, they fought its battles, and they lost to the stronger foe. When Lee surrendered, they accepted the result, returned to their homes and by the efforts which they put forth a land of plenty has been brought out of the land of desolation, which cruel war left in its trail. The comrades of that fratricidal strife, remember the days they spent under the Stars and Bars. They revere the memory of the flag, the cause and the Southern Confederacy, and they have the right to gather and discuss the incidents when they were a land of brothers against a common enemy. Their wives and their daughters have the same privilege. It is not to be denied, it is not wrong in moral or in principle. These Daughters of the Confederacy like to draw from their hiding place the flag their fathers carried to many victories upon bloody fields of battle, to unfurl it and look at its torn and bullet shredded folds, and if they have pleasure in this, who would say them nay? The prejudice resulting from the civil war does not rest with the people of the south. It rests with those of the north and west who would deny a vanquished foe the pleasure of gazing the memory of a cause that was dear to his heart.

As for Jefferson Davis—he has passed away. Whatever he did in life, the call of his Maker has wiped out all of the objections mortals may have to his acts on earth, and let him rest in peace, in the grave where loving hands most tenderly laid him. His was an important position with his people of the southland, and he accepted the call which was extended him. He tried to win, but victory was not for him. He was honest in his conviction, he was a great man, and whatever mess of praise his admirers now wish to extend to his memory is not out of place, whether it be shown in the north, the east, south or the west.

The union is one and indivisible. There is not a one who would try to reopen the old wounds, and the sectional prejudice expressed by the Sacramento paper is well answered by the Oakland Tribune, published in the same state with the other. It says:

"Today the royal standard of the Stuarts may be borne aloft from Land's End to John O'Connell's front door. Englishmen of the present day take a common pride in the various deeds of Roundhead and Cavalier. The scars of civil war heal all the quicker if no attempt be made to stifle national emotions and the sentimental regrets that spring wherever brave blood is shed and a cause dies with its defenders. Let the daughters alone. The sons of the union will take care of them, and will see to it that a new generation arises in which there will be no division of patriotic sentiment. The Daughters of the Confederacy cherish their flag as a conquered banner. They accept Father Ryan's opinion. They know the cause it represented is lost. Let that suffice. That cause will never again trumpet men in arms and will not see its fallen flag rally an embattled host. It recalls nothing but suffering, sorrow and bravery, and who would banish such memories from women's hearts?"

One of the handsomest souvenir editions ever issued in Texas is that which accompanied the issue of the Post of yesterday morning. It consists of eight pages of high-class book paper, and is a complete description of the new Post building, together with a story of how the paper is made every day. The edition is illustrated with views from various portions of the building, showing the apartments for the business office, the editorial staff, the artists and the mechanical departments. The story told in the eight pages is an interesting one. While the Post cannot say it, because of its modesty, the newspaper men of the state know that the success it has achieved is the result of long years of patient work. The promoters of that paper went against hardships for a time, and the paper struggled against the growing popularity of the Galveston News, published fifty miles away. At that time the people of Houston did not really believe that a newspaper could be successful in Houston. But J. L. Watson and Colonel R. M. Johnston fought their way to a magnificent success. The one regret heard by the present executive officer of the Post company is that Mr. Watson did not live to see the crowning glory of the paper he loved so well—and one for which he sacrificed so much in the early days. Today the Post is published in a town which appreciates newspaper advertising, and the patronage extended the home papers is very large. Other towns will learn the same lesson, and what is true of Houston will be true of Fort Worth. The people here are beginning to learn that newspaper advertising pays, and that Fort Worth can do as well in the newspaper line as any town in the country. The success of The Telegram has convinced them on that point. The Telegram congratulates the Post on its new home.

No candidate for office in this county will agree with the man who suggests a free for all race next year. That would involve an expense which would be a burden. Those who have been in such campaigns welcomed the white man's primary, and they will never be willing to go back to the old regime, it matters not how big a representation it gives in the state convention.

Some one has suggested a free for all race for the candidates next year. Forget it. Let the party nominate its candidates, and let the opposition make the fight where it can.

They are evidently betting on the races in San Antonio. The Express tells about the "out" and explains his method of doing business.

The packers say they must have hogs. The farmers of Texas can easily supply the demand. Will they?

The followers of Dowie may be sincere, but the prophet is not. He simply has a good graft.

IS YOUR STOMACH ON A STRIKE?

There is Nothing to Prevent You Employing a Substitute to do Its Work.

There is such a thing as forbearance ceasing to be a virtue even in the case of one's stomach. There is no question but that some stomachs will stand a great deal more wear and tear and abuse than others, but they all have their limit and when that limit is reached, the stomach must be reckoned with as sure as fate. The best way and really the only effective way to treat your stomach when it rebels is to employ a substitute to do its work. This will give the weakened and worn-out organ an opportunity to rest and regain its strength and health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach of its work by taking up the work and doing it just as one set or shift of workmen relieves another. They actually digest the food in just the same manner and just the same time as the digestive fluids of a sound stomach do. In fact, when dissolved in the stomach, they are digestive fluids, for they contain exactly the same constituents and elements as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of the stomach. No matter what the condition of the stomach is, their work is just the same. They work in their own natural way without regard to surrounding conditions.

The stomach being thus relieved by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, it is restored and renewed in Nature and the rest of the human body does not suffer in the least by reason of its failure to perform its work.

A Wisconsin man says: "I suffered the pangs of dyspepsia for ten years. I tried every known remedy with indifferent results until I was told of the remarkable cures of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I bought a box, began taking them and found I had a stomach. Three boxes cured me completely. I have had no trouble whatever for a year and have an appetite like a harvest hand and can eat anything that is set before me without fear of bad results."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c a box. The druggist never fails to have them in stock because the demand for them is so great and so pronounced that he cannot afford to be without them. People who could not get them one druggist would go to another and would get in the habit of buying their other drugs as well as their Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A Bit of Detective Work

(Original)

"Here, Crane," said the chief, tossing me a note, "is a job for you."

Jarvis, the bank robber that you're looking for, is going to give you the slip by leaving the country. He takes the 10:30 train tomorrow for Philadelphia from the Jersey City Pennsylvania depot and will sail the same evening on a tramp steamer. His mother goes with him.

The note was written in a woman's hand, and it seemed probable that some companion with whom he had become antagonized had given him away. I took an assistant along and an hour before train time went to the depot on the Jersey side and sat down in the spacious corridor railed off from the trains to wait and watch. Ten minutes before train time a woman about sixty years of age passed through to the train, and as there was something in the way she looked about her that attracted my attention I concluded to follow her, leaving Burton, my assistant, to watch outside till the train was about to start.

The woman went into an ordinary passenger coach and sat down, depositing her bundles beside her. She seemed to be anxiously looking for some one, and when the train pulled out of the station, that person not having appeared, she made a frantic rush to get off. But the train was by this time moving pretty rapidly and a brakeman, catching sight of her, stopped her. Then she went back to her seat and began to cry.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "My old man's gone and got himself left. He was to meet me here to go to Philadelphia. I'm afraid some one's happened to him."

"Anybody on the train somers?" I replied. "What kind of a looking man is he? I'll hunt him up for you."

"He's pretty old, my man. No hair 'cept patches of white hairs behind the ears, white beard under his chin and wears green glasses."

"All right. I'll find him for you if he's aboard!" Glad of an excuse to inspect the passengers, I got up from my seat and went into the next car forward, where I had posted Burton. Directing him to search the cars ahead I searched these in rear. We both scrutinized everybody, but when we met we had seen no one answering the description or exciting the last suspicion. I went back to the old woman and told her I feared her husband had really got left.

"What's the first stop?" she asked. "Trenton, and that's the only stop of this train. Will you get out there?"

"I dunno. I dunno what to do." The great danger now was that our man if on the train might elude us at Trenton. I posted Burton in the forward part of the train while I took a position in the rear, arranging with him that as soon as the train stopped we were to jump off, move back on the platform to a point where those getting on and off would not intercept our view of each other and scrutinize every one. When the train rolled into the station we did as we had agreed, but neither of us saw any one get off exciting the least suspicion. We kept up the watch till the conductor signaled the engineer to pull out, and at the moment we were about to step aboard a well-dressed gentleman whom we had noticed on the train immersed in his newspaper jumped from the car platform and with the agility of a cat ran to the exit. Quick as thought I signaled Burton to get on the train while I turned and ran after the fugitive. He led me quite a long chase and it would have been longer had I not signaled a peon on the street just as the runner passed him. This ended the pursuit and in a few minutes I had a pair of bracelets on the gentlemanly man who had so long fooled us on the train.

As soon as I got him to the police station I took out a photograph of Jarvis and compared it with my captive. There was nothing very rugged about either man or photograph, though I did not doubt from the resemblance that the original was of a more delicate cast of countenance than the picture, but this I attributed to the refining make-up, which was for a gentleman.

"Well," he said despondently, "you've got me. I done my best to beat you. I couldn't stay any longer in New York. You had me cornered."

I telegraphed Burton at Philadelphia that I had my man. He was not to risk anything by arresting the old woman unless he had proof of her complicity with Jarvis. This was the same as ordering him not to trouble her, for there was no evidence whatever against her. I was several days waiting for extradition papers from New Jersey to New York. Just before I was ready to leave the matron of the jail came to me with a curious look in her eye. "You won't be allowed to take the papers you have," she said. "Why not?" "Because they call for a man." "And whom do I propose to take if not a man?" "If you take the person you brought here it'll be a woman."

CLEANINGS FROM... THE EXCHANGES

The Fort Worth Telegram thinks that "if the Texas legislature had spent as much time refusing free passes as it did in trying to pass a game law for the world, the state would be much better off." About right is The Telegram—Honey Grove Citizen.

And the people know it is right. The people next year will declare themselves very forcibly.

The superintendent of the county farm of Johnson county set out this year to beat the boll weevil by diversification. The result is: Corn, 3,000 bushels; oats, 3,000 bushels; hogs, 140 head; hay, 1,100 bales; cotton, 75 bales. A fine object lesson this—Wise County Messenger.

It is an object lesson which should have its effect with the farmers of the state. What is true of Johnson county is true of others and there is a revenue in hogs and diversified crops.

Among other things required in an application for a license to practice law one must be at the time in good moral standing in the country in which he lives. It must be a pleasant thought to the lawyer long in the profession to know that at one time in life his morals were up to the standard.—Joshua News.

There has either been a great deterioration among some of them or the county commissioners who issued the certificates were terribly fooled.

It is pretty well understood that Congressman Gillespie will have opposition next year, and that Judge Poindexter and possibly Lee Riddle will be in the race.—Granbury News.

They made an effort to get in the running last time, but Mr. Gillespie came under the wire first.

While you are sowing wheat sow a few acres of alfalfa and raise a crop of alfalfa and hogs next year. The packing houses at Fort Worth will buy all the hogs you can raise.—Honey Grove Citizen.

The farmers cannot do better than try the hog crop. It is a profitable one and the Fort Worth packers have moved the market to the pig pen.

A spanking machine has been patented. It cannot be much of an improvement on the paddle of the old schoolmaster. That paddle left a sting that lasts yet.—Austin Statesman.

If the modern inventions are harder on the boys of today than the primitive methods of our school days were on us, we are glad we lived then.

Many of us who are not a bit superstitious believe it is bad luck to lose a ten-dollar bill on Friday, the thirteenth.—Houston Post.

It may not be bad luck, but it is certainly hard luck, whether it be on Friday or any other day.

Free passes may be given as a bribe and accepted as a courtesy. They are bad pieces of paper to get mixed up in state legislation just the same.—Denison Herald.

And the people propose to put a stop to it.

If all our marriageable girls could be in the court house some day when a lot of divorce cases are being tried and hear the tales of woe poured into the ears of the court—how the confiding wife has been brought to distress, hardships, want and disgrace by a heartless, unfaithful, cruel husband, and then beaten, abused, neglected and forsaken, they would probably conclude that marriage is too often a leap in the dark and that the safer plan is to stay with dad.—Vernon Hornet.

He writes: "I am moved to write you because my success in treating diseases of the kidneys has aroused considerable discussion among my fellow-practitioners. Further than this, I desire that you shall know the truth of the matter as touching upon the use of my medicine by me. It is not my intention in this connection to give you a testimonial or endorsement, but simply to state the facts as they exist."

Music and Drama

"HELLO BILL" Miss Pauline Hickler, who impersonates the role of Harriet Sterling, the girl from Duluth, in Willis Maxwell Goodhue's jolly comedy "Hello Bill," which is to be seen at Greenwall's opera house tonight, is said to be the most perfect type of the "Gibson Girl" now on the American stage.

"DORA THORNE" Dramatized novels are popular with amusement goers for many reasons, the most potent, however, probably is the fact that the reader enjoys the romance, and desires to see if the ideas formed by reading the novels are faithfully carried out by the players portraying the different characters. In "Dora Thorne," the newest dramatization which is to appear at Greenwall's opera house on Wednesday, matinee and night, Oct. 21, the novel reader will have an opportunity of witnessing a pure play free from suggestiveness, and one that follows closely the lines of the book itself, which perhaps has been more widely read than any novel of recent years.

"THE TWO LITTLE WAIFS" The play, the company and the stage equipment of "The Two Little Waifs," by Lincoln J. Carter, which comes to Greenwall's opera house Saturday, matinee and night, Oct. 24, are far above the average furnished at the popular priced houses. Unlike so many melodramas this piece does not rely on steamboat and railroad explosions, pit driving and river accidents, blood curdling murder, and the like, for its popularity, but is on a straight, legitimate, acting that the piece finds its way into the heart of everyone—man, woman and child. The play is now on its third successful tour and has proven itself one of the best box-office winners and a story of more dramatic worth than any attraction on the road that visits the popular price theaters. This is a play that will always be popular with the public as it contains a beautiful love story, devotion, pathos, intrigue and bright lines of quaint comedy.

INTERURBAN TO PROMOTE IMMIGRATION

Farmers' Institutes to be Held in This City and Arlington. Fort Worth Man Will Raise Tobacco

W. C. Forbess, general passenger agent of the Northern Texas Traction Company, has inaugurated a movement that he hopes will result in bringing to North Texas at least 1,000 additional people within the next twelve months. He has been working out a scheme for some time to locate farmers and truckers along the line of the interurban, and from present indications, he believes that his efforts will prove successful.

Mr. Forbess says that there will also be a two-day session of the farmers' institute held at Arlington, following the Fort Worth meeting, and it is expected that there will be at least 1,000 or more of the leading farmers of the state in attendance.

The object of these institutes is to instruct farmers up to the necessity of diversification of crops, to show them where their land will give better returns if certain crops are planted, etc. In the cotton districts where the present crop has not proven successful the farmers will be shown what will be the better crop to plant.

There is opportunity for a greater diversification of crops in this country and the speakers at these two conferences will endeavor to explain to the farmers the exact situation. Among some of the speakers who will address the farmers on these two occasions will be Oswald Willson, connected with the statistical department of the department of agriculture at Washington, besides others who are connected with the Agricultural and Mechanical College at College Station.

Mr. Forbess also points out that he has arranged with a prominent Fort Worth citizen to test the growing of tobacco in this part of the state, and the gentleman will plant ten acres of tobacco along the interurban line between this city and Hondo, Tex. This is to practically demonstrate the contention that tobacco equal to that grown in Cuba can be successfully cultivated in north Texas soil.

Things Heard in Hotel Lobbies Captain W. J. McDonald of the State Ranger force is at the Delaware, making one of his regular trips through the city. The captain is never called here for actual duty, but on his journeys at stated intervals from his headquarters at Quanah to various points in the state, he manages to stop off here for a day to exchange inaccuracies with his friend, Chief Clerk Charles Murock of the Delaware. They are friends of many years, although Captain McDonald insists that he has not lived as long as Mr. Murock. Captain McDonald is known to his intimates as "Bill." He is one of the best known characters in the state, and his personality is delightfully attractive. He has been long in the service of the state, and although possessed of much knowledge, he never discloses any of it. He is always "squirrel hunting." It matters not that he is booted and spurred and armed to the teeth, he always says he is "squirrel hunting." A newspaper man can meet him at any time and ask whether bound, the answer is invariably "squirrel hunting." If his attention is called to the fact that his cartridge belt carries ammunition for larger game, he answers, "There are big squirrels." If he is asked why he carries a "squirrel hunter" in each boot, he says he is one of the bravest men in Texas. He has been shot out of holes on several occasions, in the discharge of his duty on the frontier, but he always comes up smiling. He has spent days and nights in the saddle chasing the bad man, and he is good for many more such rides if occasion requires it. He is an all-around good fellow, conservative, quiet, cool and determined, and when he starts after a man, that man would do well to stop leading the chase.

Hon. George W. Tyler of Belton is in the city. He came to attend the annual meeting of the board of the Masonic Widows and Orphans' Home, and while here was a guest of the Worthy. The annual reports show everything to be in most excellent shape at the institution and we are very proud of the success which Dr. Ratney has met in his work. The location is decidedly healthy, the children are making fine progress and the care of every one is of the best. We notice by contact with the people of Fort Worth that they are very proud of the home being located here, and we are certainly pleased with the manner in which our wards are treated here.

Mr. Tyler was at one time a state senator from his district. He is quite well known in Central Texas, where he has been active in politics on numerous occasions.

Robert Engle, George, passenger representative of the Central, with headquarters in Waco, was here this morning. "I am very much surprised at the activity noticed here," he remarked. "Fort Worth is certainly improving every day. I see much which is an improvement, and then the crowds on the streets indicate business. There are more people on the streets here in the daily business affairs than there are in some other towns I know when some attraction has struck the city."

Thomas J. Lee of Galveston general claim agent of the Santa Fe, is here on a business trip. While here he will spend some time socially with his brother, C. K. Lee of the law firm of Lee & Gore. The claim agent of the Santa Fe is the man who buys poor cattle at high prices. He adjusts the claims against the company for stock killed, and from the East Texas country where the Santa Fe has a branch, there are many of these claims. It matters not the value of an animal before it suffers death on the rail, the fact that the cruel wheels have crushed it, makes it much more valuable to the owner and the railroad pays the bill. Mr. Lee has a number of friends here who are always glad to welcome him.

WICHITA MINES ARE UNSETTLED

Matter of Entering Claims by Miners Not Yet Determined

The matter as to who is entitled to enter the mineral lands in Oklahoma has been a source of much annoyance to people who have gone to the Wichita mountains expecting to take out claims there for the purpose of developing them, but a recent ruling of the federal courts in that country has opened up the question which now looks as though the rights of prospective prospectors will be protected, as Governor Richards of Oklahoma has taken the position that until the federal government modified its mineral laws or changed them from their present form, the mineral lands in Oklahoma are subject to entry. Those who already have mineral rights in the Wichita mountains secured them at least a year before that country was thrown open to homesteaders, and it is claimed that before the government has a right to say that no other mineral entries can be made, the present mineral laws must necessarily be changed.

"The government cannot suspend the present mineral laws under which all the claims were secured in the Wichita mountains, if it would succeed in barring others from securing mineral rights," said Captain E. M. Tucker, who is president of the Gold Standard Mining and Milling Company, today in discussing the situation in Oklahoma. He says that even if the government resorts to this action it will be a radical departure from all former mineral laws of other countries. He says that miners are flocking to the Wichita mountains from all over the country and many of them are getting ready to prospect.

The people of Lawton, he says, are taking deep interest in the development of the mineral resources there and have organized a company for the purpose of erecting a refinery and also to build railroads to the various claims or mining districts. It will require about thirty-five miles of road to reach all the districts, and it is estimated that it will cost all the way from $150,000 to $300,000 to make the contemplated improvements. A Mr. Southern is at the head of the movement and an enthusiastic meeting of the citizens of Lawton was held Saturday, at which the sum of $8,000 was raised in a few minutes. Mr. Tucker believes that the necessary amount will be raised in a short time as all the leading business men in Lawton are deeply interested in the move and will make it a success. Mr. Southern is at the head of the Big Four Company and a man of much influence in business and financial circles.

Mr. Tucker is in Fort Worth for the purpose of arranging to put up a steam hoist and electric drill on the property of the Gold Standard Company.

FIRST SEASON'S FRUIT

Melons and Peaches Prove Profitable in Harrison County

COLORADO, Texas, Oct. 19.—W. R. Harris of Borden county spent today in town. He is well satisfied with the present condition of his range and cattle. He has just returned from his old home in Harrison county. He says in his old community a great deal of capital from the east is being invested in land for orchard and garden purposes. He says that one firm put in 300 acres in peach trees and then planted the same thing in watermelons, and had just shipped this season forty-five carloads of melons, netting from $85 to $110 per car, and that the cash realized from the melons alone had paid all the expenses of putting the farm in cultivation. This is all right for Harrison county, but could easily be surpassed in Mitchell or Borden if they were not so far from market.

A BIT OF PLEASantry

(Original.)

It was in the days of the Borgias, when there were two methods common for getting rid of an enemy, one to stab him in the back, the other to poison him.

Anton Cardi was infatuated with Vittoria Careno, but she being a married woman he had concluded to wed Lucia Sanchez, whom he did not love, but who possessed a fortune. No sooner had the wedding taken place than Signor Careno fell ill and died, leaving Vittoria a widow. Then Cardi was beside himself with anguish that he had not waited. His wife had some inkling of the cause of a distress he could not conceal, and since she loved him she, too, was miserable. One day she met Vittoria and turned her back upon her.

"Why do you treat me in this way?" asked Vittoria.

"Because you hold my husband in thrall."

"He holds himself in thrall," replied Signora Careno. "I care no more for him than that," and she snapped her fingers.

Lucia was encouraged at this, thinking that if Anton's love was not returned it would at last wear itself out. She told her husband what Vittoria had said, but it had no effect upon him, he believing that it was a natural denial for Vittoria to make to his own wife. Indeed, when Vittoria, to prove what she had said, made a friend of Lucia, Anton was infatuated enough to suppose that Vittoria was deceiving his wife with a view to gaining opportunities to be near him. Supposing that the woman he loved would marry him if he were free to marry, he resolved to get rid of his wife by poison.

Lucia was used to taking every morning at 11 o'clock a light breakfast or luncheon, as we would call it in America, consisting of a few fancy biscuits and a glass of wine. A servant usually set it out on a table some time during the morning for her mistress to take at the usual hour. One morning Anton passed through the room where the luncheon stood ready. It was 10 o'clock, and his wife would not partake of it for an hour. Nevertheless he resolved to avail himself of the opportunity to drop poison in the wine. He would remain near and see that no one except she for whom it was intended drank it.

While he was waiting, a summons came to him from the grand duke, with whom he stood in high favor, to come at once to the palace. There was nothing to do but to obey. Should he leave the glass of poisoned wine or empty it where it would do no harm? There was no one in the house, for his wife had gone out. She would return before 11, drink the wine, and the culprit, being away at the time, would not be suspected of foul play. He resolved to leave it where it stood.

He had scarcely left the house when he met Vittoria.

"Good morning, Signor Carpi," she said. "I am going to call upon your wife. Is she at home?"

"No," replied Anton; "she is out. You had better choose another time."

"I will go in and wait for her. She has told me that she is never out long in the morning." And she proceeded on her way.

"It is very important that I return to my house at once."

"And I say it is important that you obey the duke's summons."

Anton started to go back, but the messenger caught him about the waist, and as he was of light weight carried him on, laughing at his struggles, considering it a fine thing to be keeping him from a meeting with a lady. The fear that Vittoria might drink the poisoned wine gave Anton strength to resist, but with all this to stimulate him he was unable to break away from his tormentor, who carried him into the presence of the duke, whom he told with great merit how he had kept him from an appointment.

"Ha, ha, Signor Carpi!" laughed the duke. "We must make an example of a married man who desires to tete-a-tete with a lady in his own house during his wife's absence. Lock the doors. Come, I have sent for you to play a game of cards. What shall be the stake?"

For an hour the duke kept Anton at the game. Anton was so preoccupied that he scarcely knew one card from another. Finally he showed his suffering so plainly that the duke gave up an amusement that was becoming painful and let his prisoner go, though he jokingly warned him in future to be less open in his appointments.

At 12 o'clock Anton rushed into his house wondering whether he would find Vittoria or his wife dead. He found them both lamenting over the body of his favorite hound. The moment he saw that Vittoria was safe he sank senseless into a chair.

Lucia had come in and found Vittoria waiting for her. Presently Lucia went into the room where luncheon had been set out to find the dog dying and the wineglass empty. She called her friend and they both suspected the wine had been poisoned. When Anton came in excited and fell in a swoon both knew that he had attempted to kill his wife.

Lucia banished her husband from her forever. Vittoria reported the matter to the duke, who permitted Anton to leave Italy. He lived but a short time, being killed in a duel. Lucia took for her second husband the young noble who had been instrumental in laying bare Anton Carpi's intention.

Lease

Of Life Renewed After Terrible Suffering From Heart Disease.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Gave Me Health.

"Some years ago I suffered greatly with heart disease. I tried the best doctors in our county and got no relief until I began the use of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I used three bottles and have not had occasion to call a doctor since. It restored my heart to healthy activity and has given me a new lease of life. Prior to taking the remedy I was very restless and got but a few hours sleep during the night, felt tired out, had no ambition, was completely discouraged and had given up all hopes of getting better. I had taken so much medicine without relief that I had little faith when I began taking the Heart Cure, but after taking one bottle I could rest well. My stomach did not trouble me and in three months my health was completely restored. It is nearly six years since I stopped taking the Heart Cure and have had no return of the old symptoms and I know my cure is permanent."—LEWIS LAWRENCE, Ft. Worth, Texas.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure pleases every one who tries it. Taken primarily, to strengthen the heart, the patient is pleasantly surprised to find that after a short time, his stomach is in better condition, his nerves are steadier, his color better, his strength greater, his appetite is improved, and that he rests better at night. The reason is plain. It cures the symptoms by removing the cause. Stop-doctoring your symptoms. Remove the cause with Heart Cure, the great heart and blood tonic.

STOCK AND RANGE NEWS AND NOTES

COLORADO, Texas, Oct. 19.—(Special.)—Morrison & Murphy shipped two cars of fat stuff from Iatan to Fort Worth yesterday.

J. S. McCall has just returned from his Fisher county ranch, where he has been branding. He says his calf crop yielded at least 15 per cent, which in that pasture amounted to 100 head, and that was much more than he expected for awhile. His ranch is in fine condition, and in a short time he will ship out four or five cars. He will ship about 200 calves, and then the cows will be sure to live through the winter in good condition. McCall has been in the business so long that his management is now so wisely directed his losses through the winter are very few.

A. B. Robertson has just returned from his Crosby county ranch, known by the name of the St. Louis ranch. His cattle have done very well and he will soon ship a big lot, has the herd on the road now, but on account of the quarantine line he will ship from Stanton, about eighteen carloads in three or four days.

Hiram Snyder will ship one car of horses to Pennsylvania on Wednesday.

Charles C. Spaulding and Charles C. Muldick, capitalists of Lebanon, Ky., are out in this country making a close personal inspection with a view of investing and locating in the Colorado country.

Jerry Williams, one our stockmen, while in Hillsboro two weeks ago got possession of thirty robust, healthy-looking bull weevils and brought them here in a glass bottle, which had a tin stopper perforated with air holes. He left it at a barber shop where all could see. After ten days every weevil was dead as a door nail, while in south Texas, it is said they will live thirty days in an air-tight vessel. It is confidently believed here that they cannot live in this country.

He is one of a very few from this city who took the examination, and the report received yesterday and published in The Telegram that he had passed brought him congratulations from his class-mates in the school.

DOWIE CALLS NEW YORK BROKERS "STINK POTS"

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Clotted in his long flowing robes and attended by a coterie of his advisers and directors, John Alexander Dowie, the Chicago prophet, this afternoon paid a visit to the New York Stock Exchange.

"Peace be with you," was his greeting to the busy crowd which checked its trading a moment at the entrance of the striking figure.

Getting an audience, the "prophet" then launched on a bitter tirade against speculation and gambling in general, while the crowd in the gallery diverted its attention from the busy air to the speaker, whose shrill voice could be heard even among the din of the traders.

"Stink pots" was one of the epithets Dowie applied to the brokers against whom he directed his fiercest invective. He spoke but a few minutes and then hurried away to continue his "visitation."

REVIVAL SERVICES ON

Meetings Are in Progress at the Taylor Street Church

Rev. J. W. Caldwell, pastor of the Taylor Street Cumberland Presbyterian church, is conducting a series of revival meetings at that church which is expected to continue ten days or two weeks.

At this morning's service, which was well attended, he expressed great sorrow that it appeared necessary to preach over 50 per cent of all sermons to Christians, members of the church, urging them to give expression to their profession in doing something for the cause which they profess. His sermon, altogether, was a strong appeal to the church to stand by.

BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXIONS

Are spoiled by using any kind of preparation that fills the pores of the skin. The best way to secure a clear complexion, free from sallowness, pimples, blotches, etc., is to keep the liver in good order. An occasional dose of Herbine will cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver and so establish a clear, healthy complexion. 50c at H. T. Fargbure & Co's.

There was little seen of Marcella the Monday after Douglas had departed on the early morning train. The same evening she sat in an obscure corner of the parlor with a novel. I went to the piano and sang.

I sang the whole song over twice, then walked out on to the piazza. It wasn't long before I heard a few somber chords, followed by—

O Mary, dear, departed shade, Where is the place of blissful rest? Hearst thou the groans that rend his breast?

Yesterday's Feeling of Uneasiness Gives Way to More Stable Conditions Today

(By Associated Press.) BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 20.—All banks and other financial institutions of Baltimore opened promptly for business at the customary hours this morning and those who had fears of other trust company failures, following in the wake of the two failures yesterday, were assuredly disappointed. Not only was every institution open, but there was a feeling among local financiers generally of confidence that no other suspensions would occur.

W. D. WILLIAMS SAYS HE WILL AGAIN BE CANDIDATE

Hon. W. D. Williams, member of the legislature from this county, will make several speeches in various parts of the county during the next few months, and will stand for re-election.

Mr. Williams has but recently decided that he will accept the commission of the people of this county if offered him, and he proposes to go out among them and explain why he wants to return. In his own language, it is because he does not "like to quit a fight whipped."

"What's the matter?" I asked. "Douglas moved farther away?"

"She bit her lip. I didn't know then why, but I found out before long. Without any reply she went into the house.

"Well, upon my word, and this is 'Douglas, tender and true'—a pudgy, fat, knoekneed little man who stutted.

I would have supposed that Marcella would have met him. Not so. She did not appear on the piazza, and at dinner time had a headache. The next morning I saw her trying to steal through the hall to get away to the woods, but Douglas was watching for her, and I saw him approach with the air of an old friend, if nothing more.

He was down on the police register as "Spanish Bill," having been too intoxicated to remember further particulars in regard to his family handle when taken up by the blue coat. Spanish Bill required the services of an interpreter this morning in the police court in order to make the court understand that he was guilty. He was fined a dollar and costs.

Let me go this time and I'll promise to leave the city at once. I am a hard-working man, a decorator by trade, but I am stranded and down on my luck. It looks like I am arrested the minute a put my foot out of jail."

On Chief Bea's recommendation the man was given until noon to quit the city and in return for the favor earnestly thanked the court.

W. M. Storey paid a dollar and costs for getting himself into a top hilarious frame of mind.

The case against Horace Wood, charged with engaging in an affray, was passed until Thursday.

The old adage that "It's unlucky to cross a funeral procession," seems appropos in the case of J. L. Gant, a street car motorman. He took his car across such a cortege and a case was made against him in the police court. It will come up for trial on Thursday.

When the case of "Kid" Eldridge, charged with affray, was called, an officer affirmed that Eldridge was confined to his home by his injuries. The case of John Griswold, charged with assault, he having, it is alleged, inflicted the injuries upon Eldridge, was then called, but Griswold had not been arrested.

The mercy of the court was appealed to when the case of John Dew, a one-armed, neat-looking, middle-aged man, who was charged with sleeping in a public place, was called. "I was only turned out of jail yesterday," after serving a term," he said to the court. "I earned a dime during the day by carrying a man's grip and was intending to get out of town last night. I fell asleep while on my way to the railroad yards and was picked up."

"He is coming back with Mary." "Oh, perhaps it will be as well in order to avoid embarrassments that before they come we should have an understanding. It will save disappointment, remark and all unpleasantness. Will you take a stroll?"

A few days later when I announced to my mentor that Marcella and I were engaged she replied: "She played that very well. Without the Douglas incentive it never could have been done in two weeks, possibly not in months."

The most absurd part of it all is that I rejoice in having been caught even in so contemptible a trap.

officers, members of the legislature, etc.?" he was asked.

"I will certainly do so," was his reply. "I think The Telegram is right on the fact it is making on the free pass question, but I think it should go farther. The lobby is too strong, and some action should be taken to put a stop to its influence. I am not content to allow the corporation lawyers to wield the influence they do at the legislature, and I believe some action should be taken looking to a restriction of the powers of the third house. I have been there but one term, but I found out enough to convince me that there is a difference between the right of the people to petition their representatives and the power of the lobby to control. While I do not believe that members of the legislature are engaged in bedding, and I have never known of money to be used as it was in Missouri, I have information that the lobbyists are very liberal with their entertainments of the members, and this entertainment certainly has an influence. I do not believe the courtesies are extended on an absolute promise of support, but I notice that those who accept them generally vote the way the lobbyist expects them to.

"I shall tell all of this to the people when I meet them at the various parts of the county."

CHINA HAS CHAIN BRIDGE

The largest and oldest chain bridge of the world is at Kingting, in China, where it forms a perfect road from the top of one mountain to another. A medicine to be effective must produce a continuous chain from the stronghold of disease to the perfect restoration of the patients' health. If this be not the case a link is broken somewhere and the treatment is useless. Continuous improvement until final cure is realized with Dr. Burkhardt's Vegetable Compound, which is an infallible remedy in cases of Rheumatism, Catarrh, Constipation and Blood Diseases. Thirty days' treatment costs a bonus. A six months' treatment contains a bonus. A full guarantee that the dollar paid for same will be refunded in every case where a cure is not effected.
