SPEEDY MARE SMASHES HER BEST RECORD

Lou Dillon Clips Second and a Half From Her Former Time

MILE AT MEMPHIS COVERED IN 1:58 1-2

Crowd Goes Wild at the Marvelous Exhibition of Speed

BEST SPURT IN THE TEETH OF THE WIND

Gamy Mare Trots Third Quarter in 29 Seconds, Establishing Fastest Mark in History of American Turf

Table with columns: Name, Record, Age, Year. Lists various trotting queens like Lou Dillon, Lady Suffolk, Highland Maid, etc.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 24.—(Special).—Lou Dillon, the peerless piece of trotting machinery, under favorable conditions, today smashed the world's trotting record at sundown in the most remarkable mile ever witnessed.

All of the afternoon her owner, C. K. G. Billings, and his stable manager, Dr. Charles Tanner, and the driver, Millard Sanders, waited in the hope that the breeze that blew down the back stretch would abate.

The first quarter was reached in 29 seconds and there were cries of "she'll do it," "she always comes home fastest."

BIG ELEVEN RESULTS

West Point Scores Against Yale and Columbia Wallpa Pennsylvania NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Special).—All the big college football teams played against strong teams today.

DALLAS DELEGATE NAMED

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The Dallas chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy tonight elected Mrs. Lee Hudson as delegate and Mrs. Cora Behrman as alternate to the State Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Fort Worth November 10 to 14.

In condemning the lax methods in vogue in connection with the management of corporations recently at Chicago, Judge Grosscup advocated taking the creation of these concerns and their control out of the hands of the state authorities and placing them with the federal authorities.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN REPORT

Reports From Along the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Show That Some Gain Has Been Made During Week

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway's cotton crop report for this week shows somewhat improved conditions in most sections, as compared with last week.

Celeste—No material change; cotton coming in fast and being marketed freely.

Denton—Fine weather for cotton; picking progressing finely and great deal of seed cotton being marketed.

Fort Worth—Condition of cotton about same as last week; weather has been good and receipts increasing.

Hillsboro—No change in cotton; clear and cool weather, which is causing cotton to open very fast, and it is being marketed as fast as gathered; light frost reported.

Houston—Cotton conditions unchanged; plant seems to have finished its work and nearly all crop opened.

La Grange—Cotton stand good and weed large, but fruitage poor on account of boll weevil, which appeared early in season and destroyed over half normal crop.

Jefferson—Practically no change in cotton since last report; estimated about one-fifth bale per acre.

McKinney—Cotton crop conditions unchanged.

New Braunfels—After the cotton now open is gathered, it will be lost of crop.

Rockwall—Cotton situation about the same; opening very rapidly; average yield three-quarters bale per acre; corn being gathered, yielding about forty-five bushels per acre.

San Antonio—Cotton situation about same as last report.

WAGO POLICE ARE REMOVED FROM OFFICE

Five Members of the Force Are Told to Hang Up Their Uniforms

RECENT STRIKE IS CAUSE OF ACTION

Alleged That Officers Were Lax in Performance of Duty

THE WATER WORKS FINALLY APPRAISED

Total Valuation Is Placed at $400,000—Board of Arbitrators Will Fix Price to Be Paid by the City

WAGO, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—At a special meeting of the city council tonight five policemen, H. S. Head, Tom Grose, E. E. Saddler, John Culp and John Stroud, were relieved from office.

The council declaring that it had lost confidence in them, it being charged that they had not done their duty in the recent strike disorders.

Charges were preferred against the officers by Chief of Police Dollins; also against three others, who were exonerated.

A special committee was appointed to investigate the charges and this committee has been at work for two days.

It completed the investigation this afternoon and a special session of the council was held tonight to hear the report.

The committee reported that the evidence convinced them that the charges were true as to the five named, and the council, by a vote of 8 to 1, voted to discharge the men.

One alderman was absent, being sick. Four of the discharged men appeared in the council and demanded a hearing before the body.

The demands were refused and the resolutions dismissing them were adopted. They say that they will resort to legal means for reinstatement.

WATER WORKS VALUATION WAGO, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The consulting engineers appointed by the board of arbitration in the water question made their report on the physical value of the water plant to the board today.

The physical value placed by the engineers was $379,619.32, and the going value was estimated at $30,000, making a total of $409,619.32.

BOILER BURSTS MAN IS KILLED

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The boiler at the Higgins pumping plant No. 2, on Spindletop, exploded late this afternoon.

George Michavelli, the fireman, was instantly killed and the property was damaged to the extent of about $1,000.

The deceased was an Austrian and had been employed on the oil fields for several months.

NEW YORK WILL GO TO ORIENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The first specific act of the navy department indicating that it will utilize the Asiatic fleet in the event of war between Russia and Japan is found in the order to the New York at San Francisco, to proceed to the Asiatic station instead of to New York as heretofore planned.

There has been a steady movement in the navy department for the past two months to get as many vessels as possible to the East, and among these is the torpedo flotilla.

It is stated at the navy department, however, that there can be at this time no purpose in having the Asiatic fleet near Mukden and other Manchurian ports which are included in the Asiatic station than the general one of observation in case of war and that this would take place during any war.

The main contention of the state department and the navy department with respect to the expected hostilities is that the war may be carried into Manchuria. The United States It is; receipts about 900 bales behind last year to date.

Sherman—Have had dry weather during week; also slight frost, which has done no damage, but has stopped second growth of cotton, which has thrown the substance of the plant to filling of bolls.

It is opening very fast and coming in rapidly.

Sealy—No change in cotton; average yield about one-third bale per acre; acreage about 24 per cent less than last year; about two-thirds of crop has been marketed.

Taylor—Conditions unchanged, except yield will prove some lighter than anticipated; now that picking is considerably advanced, more cotton bolls found that will not open; picking good; no rain and deliveries good.

Temple—Cotton condition very favorable; weather suitable for picking and opening; receipts average about 200 bales per day.

Wichita Falls—No change in cotton crop; light frost is made.

Waxahachie—Continues dry and warm; cotton moving fast; good rain would prolong crop.

Great Britain has suddenly become aware that she is away behind the United States and Germany in her technical schools and her educational system generally, especially so far as it bears upon political and industrial development.

GRAYSON OUGHT TO BE DRY NOW

According to the Decision of the Court of Civil Appeals at Dallas in Famous Local Option Case

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The court of civil appeals today decided the Grayson county local option case adversely to the anti-prohibitionists.

The court holds the Grayson county local option election is perfectly valid and that local option ought to be in effect there.

SAY SHE USED SIX SHOOTER

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—District Judge Pope this afternoon issued a writ enjoining Mrs. Virginia Snauffers from interfering with the laying of Union Oil and Refining Company's pipeline on the county road.

The petitioners allege the lady drove the workmen away with a six shooter.

PONTIFF WRITES HUMBLE SISTER

No Week Passes in Her Life Without a Message From the Pope

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

ROME, Oct. 24.—Pope Pius X's distaste for pomp and ceremony of his position continues. The other day the pontiff's temporary disappearance created a commotion.

His holiness, desiring to walk alone in the Vatican garden, not followed by a guard, he slipped out of his private apartments. Discovering his absence the guard was seized with consternation.

For hours the search of the gardens by the guard failed to find the pontiff, which added to the commotion. Finally his holiness was discovered in his apartment, where he had returned unobserved.

How the pontiff managed to elude the vigilance of the guard is unexplained.

The pope's family have not changed their method of life and have lost none of their native simplicity, despite his position. At Rome, where one of the pope's sisters lives, she, assisted by her daughters, runs a hotel. Her son runs a tiny shop adjoining the house where the pope was born. It has been whitewashed and a tablet commemorating the birth erected. The pontiff writes to his sister affectionately twice a week.

SAN ANTONIO DOCTORS ARE AT VARIANCE

Physicians of the City Declare There Is No Fever in the City

REFUSE TO ENDORSE TABOR'S DIAGNOSIS

Indignation Meeting of Citizens Held in Opera House

PROTEST AGAINST STATE QUARANTINE

All Public Schools Will Open Monday—Situation Is Quiet.

Tabor Reports But One New Case Discovered

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The alleged yellow fever situation has completely quieted down.

A meeting of the physicians this afternoon in the city refused to endorse Dr. Tabor's diagnosis of the alleged cases of yellow fever.

All the supposed cases of yellow fever, nine in number, were declared to be malaria and other complications. The local doctors say no yellow fever exists here.

An indignation meeting of the citizens was called today in the opera house to protest against the state quarantine.

All the public schools will open Monday as usual.

ONLY ONE NEW CASE AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—State Health Officer Tabor telephoned Governor Lanham tonight that only one new case of fever had been discovered in San Antonio today.

AUSTIN IS QUIET AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The officers in the state health department are quiet.

Austin people are moving on as usual. No fever has been reported. The quarantine against San Antonio and other infected places in Texas and Mexico is being rigidly enforced.

Every passenger north is required to make out that he has not been in any infected place for ten days. All trains on the International and Great Northern have been discontinued, except two each way. The city is being put in thorough sanitary condition.

RESOLUTION OF SYMPATHY DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—Post E. Traveler's Protective Association, tonight passed a resolution of sympathy for their brethren who are quarantined at San Antonio.

LIBERTY IS FRIGHTENED BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—Liberty county, adjoining Jefferson county on the west, has isolated itself on account of the yellow fever scare.

No passengers from any trains are permitted to get off in that county.

INSPECTION OF FREIGHT WAGO, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special).—The board of health this afternoon passed a resolution quarantining freight, express and mail that came from points infected with yellow fever.

C. E. Ragland was appointed as quarantine freight inspector.

CITY WILL NOT QUARANTINE At a meeting of the health committee of the city council and Dr. Chambers, city physician, yesterday morning, it was decided that the city shall not quarantine against San Antonio.

"We feel that the city is not endangered in any way by the situation at San Antonio as it is reported to us," said Alderman Henderson, a member of the committee.

"The town will stay wide open so far as San Antonio is concerned, save for the protection afforded by the governor's proclamation.

A LESSON IN SELFISHNESS

(Original) "May I have a part of your seat?" The words were spoken in a soft voice and a gentleman to whom they were addressed, looking up from his paper, saw the oval face of a girl, topped with shining yellow hair, looking at him through a pair of blue eyes.

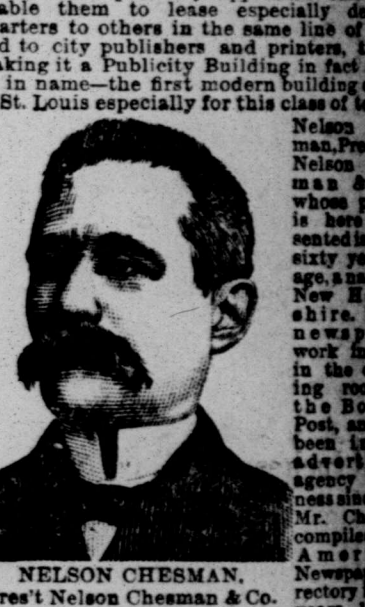

"Oh, no! I'm not an actress. But my brother is an actor. He's understudy to Remington Field, the star." "Indeed?" The gentleman cast a quick glance at the girl. "You refer to Cecil Armstrong. I know him personally."

RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. JENSEN
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jensen returned home last evening from their wedding tour and were given a reception at the home of Judge Moore at 411 Broadway last night. The affair was a surprise to Mr. Jensen, and was largely attended. The friends of the parties presented them with a number of very valuable presents.

WRECK ON THE TEXAS AND PACIFIC
A wreck occurred on the Texas and Pacific about 100 miles east of El Paso Thursday, particulars of which were received here today. The westbound passenger train that left Fort Worth

Wednesday night, Conductor Marvin and Engineer Johnson in charge met an eastbound extra freight in charge of Conductor Gardner on the joint track of the Texas and Pacific and the Southern Pacific, crashed into the freight as it was taking the siding at a small station called Marvin. The engine of the passenger struck the freight about midway of the train and four cars were knocked from the track. The freight train was badly damaged, but no one was injured.

"IT GOES RIGHT TO THE SPOT"
When pain or irritation exists on any part of the body, the application of Ballard's Snow Liniment will give prompt relief. "It goes right to the spot," said an old man who was rubbing it in, to cure his rheumatism. C. R. Smith, Prepr. In The Theater

This week the patrons of Greenwall's opera house will have three good attractions to attend.

Monday night, Ollie Mack and Joe M. Gaites present Mr. Willard Simms in the latest musical travesty, "Pickings from Puck."

Thursday night, Atkinson & Wildes present a dramatization by E. E. Rose of Irving Bacheller's popular novel, "Eben Holden," with Henry Horton in the tile role. Friday and Saturday night, with special matinee Saturday, engagement of De Wolf Hopper and his opera company in a musical production of Charles Dickens' masterpiece, "Mr. Pickwick," as presented at the Herald Square theater in New York for three months.

"PICKINGS FROM PUCK" Willard Simms, who will appear here at Greenwall's opera house, Monday night,

October 26, with his all-star company in "Pickings from Puck," tells the following story on himself: "One day last summer, while rusticated at Ashbury park, I was out driving with a resident of Ocean Grove, who was better versed in the church than I. We stopped for dinner at one of those country hotels—if you know what that is. When we sat down to the repast it was about the worst I ever saw, and my spiritual friend agreed with me. As a matter of fact it was too much for me, and I simply balked; but my spiritual friend laid to, and was evidently enjoying himself when I said to him in the language of Paul to the Romans: "Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not."

"My spiritual friend in reply, who was somewhat quicker in the Book than I said: "And he that doubteth is damned if he eat. Same chapter, Paul to the Romans, last verse. "Before I could command my tongue I said: "I'll be damned if I eat." "My spiritual friend had the best of me according to St. Paul, but I had the best of him according to the way I felt."

"EBEN HOLDEN" "Eben Holden" comes to Greenwall's opera house Thursday night, October 23. The Louisville Times says: "There is much to entertain and somewhat to edify in 'Eben Holden,' which was given the first performance of a week's engagement before a large audience at the Masonic last night. From Irving Bacheller's story has been constructed a play in which the 'local color' is laid on with a broad brush, in which the people wear their hearts on their sleeves and in which the actors' art is all of the obvious sort, leaving nothing to the imagination. "The play is handsomely mounted with a lot of special and realistic scenery and the company is fully adequate to the demands of the piece. Henry Horton is the sunny natured, but astute, Uncle Eli, and Adelle Lane is the rather too sophisticated country lassie, Hopper Brower. George Clancy is amusing as the hat-tipped bumpkin, and the rest of the cast do their work unobtrusively well. Among the minor parts is that of Laura Toynhurst which is taken by a graceful, sweet-voiced girl, Frances Innes, who, by the way, is a member of the well-known Frankfort, Ky., family of that name."

"DE WOLF HOPPER" Augustin Daly possessed a faculty for discovering and schooling tragic actresses; David Belasco is a genius in finding and developing emotional women of the stage; De Wolf Hopper is responsible for the majority of our famous light opera favorites and George Lederer is no doubt the peer of chorus girl propagators. Daly gave us Fanny Davenport, Ada Rehan, Clara Morris and Maxine Elliott and other queens of heavy drama; Belasco brought out Mrs. Carter, Blanch Bates and half a dozen lesson lights of the emotional play; Hopper found Della Fox, who became the highest salaried singing soubrette in America; Edna Wallace Hopper, who shared honors with her discoverer for several seasons; Jessie Makaye, whose voice and beauty attracted admirers in two continents, and Marguerite Clark, the dainty little singer whose Polly in Mr. Hopper's present production, "Mr. Pickwick," made her famous in a night; and Lederer—he gave us Edna May, and a too-long-for-publication list of other noted beauties that twinkled in his chorus army. One of the celebrities here mentioned, Marguerite Clark, will be seen Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee, October 30 and 31, the date set for the appearance of De Wolf Hopper at Greenwall's opera house, when we are to have the famous Dickens' master character, "Mr. Pickwick," in footlight form, surrounded by his merry following—Sam Weller, Alred Jingle, Mr. Warle, Mr. Snodgrass, Mr. Tupman, Dr. Slammer, Colonel Buldler, the Fat Boy, Mrs. Bardell and the other "Pickwickians." The piece is of light opera or musical order, but eastern critics credited it with sufficient strength to live as a straight dramatic production alone, and "Mr. Pickwick" proved a Broadway attraction for three months at the Herald Square theater. It comes here, according to the management, with the original cast and all the historical properties.

PLAYS COMING SOON Miss Alberta Gallatin, who is to appear here as Mrs. Alving in Henrik Ibsen's masterpiece, "Ghosts," has been thoroughly indorsed by the New York press. Miss Gallatin is not a stranger to us by any means, having been the leading support of such eminent stars as T. W. Keene, Mrs. Fiske, Richard Mansfield and Joseph Jefferson. Besides she has stood successfully at the head of her own companies. It was her artistic portrayal of "Rosalind" at the Madison Square theater that opened the eyes of metropolitan managers to the fact that Alberta Gallatin was indeed the coming woman theatrically.

The more announcement that the people's favorite play, "Human Hearts," is coming to our city, is a matter of much import to the theatergoers. No melodrama of modern times has enjoyed the vogue that has been accorded to W. E. Nankeville's solid, substantial success, "Human Hearts." The author has been careful to preserve the dramatic unities. His characters are finely drawn, and as true to nature as possible; in fact, Mr. Reid has taken most of his characters from life.

The greatest production of farce comedy ever made is the season of 1903-4 production of "Happy Hooligan," with new scenery, a $2,000 outfit of costumes, a number of the cleverest comedians in the business and a score of more or pretty girls.

Her dignified entrance in the first act, her sympathetic intelligence and beautiful voice stamped Rose Coghlan again as pastmistress of her art and entitled to be called America's, if not the world's, greatest actress.—New York Evening Post.

Mr. Hanford's efforts will be largely addressed to his new scenic production of "Richard III," for which new scenes have been painted and new properties and resplendent costumes designed. In providing a production for his new "Richard III," Mr. Hanford will combine the best points of all these splendid presentations with which he is so familiar and the results will be fresh from the artist's brush. May Boley has some new gowns which she displays as the professional chaperon in Isidore Witmarks' musical piece, "The Chaperons," which are said to be marvelous creations of the modiste. In the first act she wears a costume in black and white which the ladies say is "stunning" and which Miss Boley says was also "stunning" when the bill was presented. "Way Down East," the celebrated rural play, has already seen several seasons, and that length of time in things theatrical brings a play to old age. But "Way Down East" has not even thought of outliving its usefulness. Three companies presenting the play are booked solid for three years to come.

GRAND JURY REPORTS The grand jury reported a number of true bills yesterday afternoon, including eighteen misdemeanor and five felony cases. SEVENTEENTH DISTRICT COURT The case of R. E. Weaver vs. the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad was given to a jury in the Seventeenth district court yesterday morning. At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the jury not having agreed, was dismissed until Monday morning, when it will resume consideration of the case. DIDN'T GET WHAT HE BOUGHT Albert Cable of Big Springs reported in the county attorney's office yesterday afternoon that on Friday he paid a stranger $52.50 for a wagon. When he went to get the wagon yesterday both man and wagon had vanished. LINKS ARE TO BE LAID The directors of the Country Club have completed arrangements which have already been partly put into execution, for the raising of sufficient funds by which they will be able to pay off all the club's obligations and at the same time complete in full the original plans for the club. These plans include the immediate erection of the bowling alleys and the laying out of the golf links. This bit of information will be particularly interesting to a great many of the club members. The lack of these features has been gravely felt and their inauguration will largely increase their interest in the club. Here in Fort Worth there has been a desire for golf links by those who are interested in the game, and once that large acquisition to the list of golf fields. This has been true wherever there are links, and Fort Worth will be no different than other places. Just how soon these two features can be ready for the members is not yet known. But there is indication that the work of building the alleys and the laying out of the links will be started very soon.

STATE MAKES $500 GIFT TO LOCAL SCHOOLS

The Telegram last night received the following dispatch: "AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 24.—The state board of education today appropriated $500 to establish a manual training department in the Fort Worth schools." Professor Alexander Hogg, superintendent of the Fort Worth public schools, was shown the dispatch and asked to make a statement in regard to it. He said: "The appropriation is made by the board at Austin on condition that we raise a similar sum here. The local board of school trustees already has made the necessary appropriation and has ordered the first supplies for the manual training department. Indeed the benches and tools are now on the way to this city from Chicago. There are eighteen work benches in the shipment. The benches are equipped with the latest rapid moving vices and there is a big lot of tools, such as saws, planes, etc. "We are not able to afford the services of an extra man to take charge of this new department, and so R. P. Moore, professor of drawing and writing, and Ernest Parker, professor of mathematics, will conduct the classes. Professor Moore last summer spent a good deal of time in studying manual training systems and both men are well equipped for the work. "It is a source of deep regret that we are not able to appropriate enough money to put in a lathe and other machinery, but if some public-spirited man in Fort Worth would come to the front with a donation of from $1,000 to $2,500 for this purpose our troubles would be at an end." The manual training department for the present will be located in the basement of the high school and will be for high school boys.

AN IMPORTANT RULING

Railroad Commission Makes Decision Regarding Cotton Shipments. The cotton brokerage firm of Carver, Frierson & Co. of Fort Worth was yesterday granted permission by the Texas railway commission to haul cotton flat through this city to the next compress until further orders.

This ruling, said Mr. Carver, was made necessary because of the alleged unsatisfactory manner in which cotton has been compressed for his firm. The statement that there is a cotton blockade in Fort Worth is not true. Further discussing the situation, Mr. Carver said that his company had been considerably hampered in their shipments and has been compelled to turn away considerable cotton lately because of the unsatisfactory manner in which cotton has been compressed here.

These names had absolutely no authority except the old traditions of the Jewish race. The old chronology, the bishop declared, was not inspired. The world was not created 4004 years before Christ. Many of those were composite and embodied other records like flint in chalk. Still others were admittedly complications of various historical and traditional accounts. Once the people realized these facts and understood the great purpose of the inspiration, said the bishop, they would lose the paralyzing feature of answering truthfully the direct questions of the children.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Special.)—A Wall street authority has been doing some figuring on the shrinkage in values of industrial stocks and makes this statement: "The leading industrial stocks of the country show a shrinkage of $1,753,359,794 from the high prices of the boom to the recent low. The market value of 100 industrial stocks at the highest price at which each has sold during the past three years was $4,930,047,450, and at the present low price $2,336,087,657, a loss in market value of 43.4 per cent. The total capitalization of these stocks is $2,693,410,837. "In United States steel allowances are made for the amount converted into bonds. The shrinkage in Colorado iron and fuel, Calumet and Hecla, Anaconda, International power, Standard oil and Westinghouse is in each case

BONNI HAS MANY VESTS

County De Castellane is Said to Own Three Hundred Waistcoats. PARIS, Oct. 24.—A writer in Gil Blas makes the extraordinary statement that Count Bonni de Castellane owns three hundred embroidered waistcoats. Everybody in Paris knew Count Bonni owned two hundred pairs of trousers, but the story that he owns an enormous number of waistcoats is a revelation to the fashionable youths. De Castellane is now considered the best dressed man in Paris.

more than the par value of the stock. In Amalgamated and United gas the improvement is nearly equal to it. The $20,000,000 preferred and $25,000,000 common of the United States ship building are not included owing to the fact that there has never been any market for them. It has been estimated that the capitalization of the industrial corporations of the United States aside from gas and electric companies is $3,000,000,000. All of these have sustained some shrinkage.

THROWN FROM A HORSE

B. E. Byers who lives at White Settlement, started home at 11:45 last night. He was on horseback and when he approached the corner at 900 West Belknap street he was going pretty fast. At that point his steed stumbled and the rider was hurled to the ground. He fell on his face, splitting his lips and parting with a considerable amount of cuticle from other portions of his physiognomy. Police headquarters was notified and the patrol wagon was dispatched to the scene. Dr. J. O. McHard dressed the man's wounds.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Bishop Eden of Wakefield has created a sensation in church circles by attacking the accepted belief in the inspiration of the Bible. In a speech at Leeds the bishop said biblical inspiration was not verbal or absolutely accurate and infallible. It was not an inspiration of principles but of men who stamped their own characters upon their

SUPERINTENDENT'S ANNUAL REPORT FOR MASONIC ORPHANS' AND WIDOWS' HOME

The board of directors of the Masonic home held their annual meeting at the home Monday, October 19, 1903.

There were present Colonel M. F. Mott, president; Judge Anson Rainey, vice president; Hon. George W. Tyler and Hon. John L. Terrell, members of the board; Dr. Frank Rainey, superintendent; B. F. Frymire, grand treasurer, and William James, department grandmaster.

The treasurer's report showed the following financial condition of the home: Receipts, $78,897.50.

Amount expended for construction of new buildings, current expenses of the home, insurance and other expenditures, $55,443.56.

For new loans made, $12,737.16.

Cash on hand, $10,716.74.

The amount of the permanent fund now invested being $98,132.74, and other assets of the home, including 212 acres of land, buildings, electric light plant, farm stock and other improvements, amounting to $109,733.70, showing the total assets to be $207,866.44.

The home is now considered complete in every respect and capable of caring for 150 inmates. The following report of the superintendent of the home, Dr. Frank Rainey, shows the internal workings of the home for the past fiscal year:

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT
Gentlemen of the Board of Directors:

In compliance with your laws, I respectfully submit, for your consideration, a report of the internal management of the affairs of the Masonic home for the last fiscal year, which began October 1, 1902, and ended September 30, 1903.

The maximum number of children admitted during the year was 125; average attendance, 110; maximum of widows, average attendance, 4. The amount expended for all purposes, maintenance, improvements of buildings and grounds and construction of buildings was $48,732. The items of permanent expense cannot be included in maintenance because they do not come up every year.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS

When the present superintendent moved into the home and took possession on Saturday, the 16th day of September, 1899, and prepared for the first opening of school, and other work, there was but one building on the premises—a handsome red brick building, four stories high, including basement. Since that time a duplicate to that building has been added to it: a large red brick, two-story annex, for the girls, and a large, handsome two-story frame house for the aged widows, have also been erected. The fine power house, which contains the boilers, engine and dynamo, and the swimming pool, and the large barn were built soon after the completion of the first building. A good sized frame building, for the manual training school, was ready for use one year ago. A nice frame cottage of four rooms was also built this year for the engineer. Thus it may be noted that this institution has spread out phenomenally in four years.

No deaths have occurred since the beginning, and the aged widows hold their own in fine style, although all of them, with the exception of one, are over 70.

During the year a suitable room, for the purpose, was prepared next to the large kitchen, and an excellent range was put in position, so that the large girls might be taught the art of scientific cookery. According to agreement with the managers, we have part of the service of a teacher, who has charge of the cooking school in Fort Worth, and also serves hot luncheons for the city high school students.

THE SCHOOL AND TECHNICAL WORK

We had, during the school year, September 1, 1902, to June 20, 1903, a ten-month session of regular work. The first five months was taught under the state school system, using the state funds, which were apportioned this school by the trustees of school district No. 54. There were eighty-seven enrolled of suitable ages and eighty-seven was the average attendance. This is a school where the average attendance equals, not only the number enrolled for the session, but the number also of scholastic population in this part of district No. 54. There were 122 children present in the home at the close of the regular school term, but, of course, they were not all of the state scholastic age.

During July and August Miss Lucy Carroll was employed to look after the children in school, who could not get away for vacation. February 1st we obtained a teacher of music, Miss Nettie Morrill of Terrell.

Under the careful training of this teacher it has been discovered that one 16-year-old boy has an exceptionally fine baritone voice, which, if properly cultivated, may be of value to him some day. Two of the larger girls have shown talent for vocal culture.

The larger girls, as we call them, have done well in bookkeeping, stenography, typewriting and sewing, as well as in their school room studies. They will now go into the hands of an experienced and skilled cook to study cooking, as a useful art.

When the larger girls, whom we now look upon as young ladies, have finished the seventh grade school room studies, completed the technical studies; had good general reading in standard works, and acquired a good knowledge of theoretical bookkeeping, typewriting, stenography, dressmaking and cooking, housekeeping and some physical culture, why may they not make good business women, and the most agreeable and useful life companions and housewives?

The technical studies previously mentioned, as well as the manual training methods, are all taught co-ordinately with the school room exercises, so that a boy or girl, after growing up in this school, completes the literary and practical courses at the same time.

SCHOOL OF SLOYD

There is no other school of sloyd in Texas known to the writer. During the last school year two classes of boys, eleven each, were instructed in sloyd work. A sloyd school room consists of a suitable number of small work benches, one for each boy, peculiarly constructed for the work, and suitably arranged for tools handy for immediate use, and safe keeping; a place for every tool, and also proper shelving and closets along the walls for extra and large sized tools and implements, and one large additional work bench for heavy work. The boys' work benches are arranged in a room, which is a parallelogram, somewhat like the ordinary school room desks, and are not much larger, only a sufficient space must be between them to allow the boys standing room when at work.

After a ten months' course of sloyd, which terminated June 20, this year, I put four of the larger boys to aid the work of building the two new frame buildings, and they kept at it steadily during the two months of vacation, doing excellent work in shingling, ceiling and flooring, all because of the excellent training they had had in the manipulation of tools. In sloyd they do small work making models merely; first drawing the design, then working it up. If they learn the fundamental principles of mechanism and practice them in the making, they can make the same designs on a larger scale, when required. Two of the larger boys have learned something about house painting. Four of them are undergoing it to a few school room studies, a somewhat systematic course in the study of the science of machinery, both in a theoretical and practical way. Books on physics and practical studies on the management of the boiler, the engine and the dynamo, and lessons on electricity are studied in these rooms while the machinery is in motion before them, and when the engineer can explain the instruction given in their books.

The sloyd work room is now in the second story. During August and Sep-

HOME FOR WIDOWS

As a place for safe and comfortable retreat from the mutations of fortune, in old age, this Masonic home is now unexcelled, for an elegant two-story, twenty-room frame cottage has just been completed for the reception of the aged Masonic widows.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The home is indebted to the order of the Eastern Star for their wonderful generosity to the children and widows during the Christmas festivities of last December.

DONATIONS

The committee on work of the grand lodge, through Bro. E. E. Douglas of Kaufman, generously presented a gift of $50 in cash for Christmas goods and library. The home pays all the expenses of the farm, feed for stock, salaries and extra work, and the home gets a return in the products mentioned above. The farm furnishes inclosed land for cultivation and pasturage and the home furnishes live stock, wagons, implements and expenses.

The cost for maintenance was greater during this year because of an increase of pupils of about twenty-five in number; the increased cost of provisions; increase in number of teachers; additional insurance, and the general increase in the price and consumption of coal, and because I have included the items of expense for farm, which I think properly belongs to maintenance, and further, because the ordinary repairs on buildings and ordinary improvements of grounds have been included. And then the cost of maintenance is necessarily greater because more advantages were given the pupils in the methods of education by increase of number of teachers, new mechanical appliances, etc.

Maintenance is put down at $18,877.58, and including two items, one for coal of $3,328.60, and another for insurance for five years of $957.85; but as $1,115.93 worth of coal was in the coal bins October 1 for use next winter, and as there was an excess in insurance of $766.28 for future years, maintenance should be credited with these amounts and cause the accounts to stand thus:

Maintenance.....$18,877 58
Less coal on hand.....$1,115 93
Less insurance..... 766 28 1,882 21

$16,995 37

Greatest number of pupils and widows was 126 during the year, but for all the months the average attendance was 114, therefore the cost per head was about $149. If I should follow the custom of my former reports a custom followed by others, that is include the items of expense for repairs and improvements which amount this year to $1,643.35, would reduce the total cost of maintenance proper to $15,352.02, and the cost per head to about $134.95.

I feel sincerely indebted to the board of directors for their continued confidence, and for their patient forbearance with my shortcomings in the management of the home during their absence.

Fraternally,
FRANK RAINY,
Superintendent.

WHAT THE LOCAL LADIES ARE DOING

Arrangements Being Made by the Various Lodges for Entertainment This Winter. Prominent Officers Coming

CHRYSANTEMUM SOCIAL
Naomah Council No. 11 will entertain their friends Tuesday night, Nov. 10, at Redmen's hall. The tables and decorations will be of chrysanthemums, while the "family album" will portray the faces on all the chrysanthemums from the year 1492 to the year 1903. Some of the faces may seem faded but a like resemblance of the photos in the family album will be shown. Refreshments will be served and music and dancing indulged in.

These socials are open meetings and are given once a month that the public may be invited. An earnest request by the Pochontas for a full attendance at the regular business meeting Tuesday night, Oct. 27, has been made, as business of importance will be transacted.

PANTHER CITY LODGE NO. 1632
Panther City Lodge No. 1632, Knights and Ladies of Honor, held a large and enthusiastic meeting Thursday night at the Knights of Pythias hall. Mrs. Marie J. Cole, grand protector of the order in Texas, surprised the lodge by paying them an unexpected visit. Mrs. Cole was requested to take the chair and assume control of the lodge, which she did. Joe Fried, deputy grand protector, who is also visiting the Panther City, was present and presented twenty-one new applications for membership. Among the visitors were Mrs. Augusta Fried, secretary of Dallas Lodge No. 1593; J. D. Berry and Mrs. Mary Berry, both of Miriam lodge No. 50, Houston; and H. H. Moun of Fortuna lodge No. 1185, St. Louis, Mo.

There were forty-three members of Panther City lodge present and together with the visitors the hall was well crowded. The grand protector, Mrs. Cole, initiated ten candidates, after which the regular order of business was disposed of and arrangements given to the various committees for the initiation of a large class during the month of November, at which time the supreme protector, L. B. Lockard, of Indianapolis, Ind., will visit Panther City lodge and exemplify the secret work of the order.

Mrs. Cole was called upon for an address to which she promptly responded in her usual pleasant and dignified manner. She spoke of the good of the order in general, and the progress which had been made in this state, and that which had been accomplished by that order throughout the country during the last few years.

Panther City lodge is in a prosperous condition and since the last ten months seldom fails to initiate from one to five applicants at each meeting.

After the address by the grand protector the ladies served coffee and cake and a very enjoyable time was spent until the wee small hours of the morning, which reminded the members that the best of friends must part and that all good things must have an end.

TO GIVE A SERIES OF BALLS

At a meeting of the directors of the Wigwam company who represent the stockholders of the Redman hall, a series of balls were decided upon to be given this winter. A committee was appointed by the president to visit the different tribes and councils for their co-operation and support. The hall is the Redmen's hall, formerly known as the Commercial Club dancing hall. Committees and the stockholders had their annual meeting a few weeks ago and it is to be hoped that each individual member of the tribes and councils will co-operate in this undertaking in making these series of balls a success as the proceeds will be used in furnishings and to the benefit of Redmen's hall.

The directors ask assistance in aiding the stockholders to make this hall one of the best furnished and most popular hall for fraternal meetings, balls and receptions in the city.

The first ball will be given Friday

English Novelist Pours Out Wrath Upon American Society

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Not content with excoiating the scandals and follies of London society, Rita, the English novelist, whose books have a circulation almost equalling Correll's pours out the vials of her wrath upon America, its men and women alike.

Rita likes nothing American, not even American helresses engaged to British peers. In an article in the Current Free Lance, entitled "The Amazing American," Rita discussing American manners says:

"The manner in which American women pursue any celebrity—dog the footsteps of royalty and weave their way into select circles is too well known to need description. What will be the result of grafting this effete, anemic branch of modern humanity on the once sturdy British constitution? What will be the consequence of recurring inter-marriage between the English aristocrat and the American girl? It is a question for serious consideration, but the amazing American considers nothing seriously except the almighty dollar.

"I consider from physiological and common sense point of view that marriage between an American woman and an Englishman is a mistake. The American duchess is by no means a useful or valuable addition to our people. After years spent in wantonly insulting the very name of aristocrat, of ridiculing ancient lineage and chivalrous traditions, it is somewhat of a contradiction that she should try to annex these very things for herself.

"To any refined, delicate mind the constant glorying of American papers over any newly secured title is an outrage on good taste. For what does this unions represent? The mere bare-faced bartering of body and wealth for rank; a position in this or some other country bought unblushingly by dollars amalgamated through sharp practices and an unscrupulous system which used to be described as a deal. It is now converted into a trust."

MARK TWAIN HAS GONE TO EUROPE

Veteran American Humorist Will Spend a Year in Florence

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Special.)—Mark Twain sailed for Europe on the Princess Irene today for a stay of one year in Florence, Italy, where he and his invalid wife, his two daughters and friends will reside in the Reale Di Vuro villa, one of the most beautiful palaces overlooking the Mediterranean. Before leaving the Hotel Grosvenor to take the carriage for the Hoboken ferry he "walked up to the desk and, pulling out a check from the check book, observed: "I love to write my name to checks. It gives a man the impression that he can manufacture money."

Then, turning to your correspondent, he drawled, "getting ready to sail for a trip abroad requires a vast deal of trouble. I've always felt sorry for Noah, he had such a lot of worry getting all his animals on the ark."

PERSECUTED FINNS ARE FLEEING FROM RESTRICTIONS OF RUSSIA

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Reports from Finland state the people are leaving the country rapidly owing to the persecutions of the Russian governors who are applying drastic regulations that would be considered severe even in time of war. Finnish immigration recently has risen to an average of 40,000 a month. Finns with money are immigrating to the United States. Illustrative of the regulations imposed by martial law in cases of public disturbances, the Russian governor has promulgated an edict making it a criminal offense for Finns over sixteen to assemble in groups over three in the public street. Singing national songs in public is forbidden. A violation of the regulation entails a fine of $100 or four months' imprisonment. All the Russian governors in Finland are leaving no stone unturned to ruffly the country. All of the country is now governed by tyrannical laws and regulations more relentlessly oppressive than those enforced in civilized countries in time of war. Russian tyranny alone accounts for the extraordinary Finnish emigration. Appeals to the czar for relief have been futile, the czar declining to see Finnish committees.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—William C. Whitney's retirement from the English turf has evoked widespread expressions of regret. His colors of blue and brown have been familiar to English race goers for two years. In 1901 Whitney won stakes aggregating $100,000, winning thirty-eight races. Last season he won fourteen races of a value of $28,000. Ballantree was the chief contributor to the season's success. Ballantree is a favorite for next week's Cambridgehire. Should she win it will give Whitney a unique record, for no horse has won that coveted race twice.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

A Few Words of Interest to All Women.
Are you beautiful? Then thank God for it and guard your beauty as you would any other priceless gift. It is one of the ten talents, and you will need it in your life; for nothing is given you uselessly or at haphazard, and to hold any attribute, mental, moral or physical, lightly or carelessly, is a sin. You cultivate your mind, you guard your soul from error, you should protect your beauty as well. For believe me, if you grow old and ugly and wrinkled before your time, nobody will thank you for it or love you the better for it. Self protection is not necessarily vanity—it is self-respect, and the whole world loves beauty. God, Himself approves, for He plants flowers in the desert and sows stars through the midnight. He paints the skies morning and evening, and four times a year dresses the earth in new and festive array. The spring is dainty, the summer gorgeous, the autumn brilliant, and even winter with its frosts and snows, radiantly beautiful. At no season is beauty impossible or inappropriate. And so I say: "Is your beauty fading?" Then learn from Nature her sunny lesson of eternal hope. Did you ever see a tree struck by lightning—a shattered, hopeless wreck of its former strength and splendor? Mark how quick Nature hurries to repair the damage done, how mosses and lichens cover the fallen trunk and graceful vines twine about the unsightly stump. No vanity here, only a loving desire to delight and give pleasure to the eye of the beholder. For beauty is generous and gives freely, asking nothing in return. For the sake of those who love you it is your duty to look well, to preserve while you live the beauty God gave you. To the young this is simple and easy, for time as yet has left them untouched. And even later, it is simple enough if one understands. Just cleanliness, proper food and correct and sufficient exercise. That is the whole thing. No foolishness, no nonsense; merely an intelligent comprehension of certain higher rules with a little perseverance and brains added. The brains are essential. One has to remember that a flower does not form its roots, its stems, its leaves and blossoms all in one day. That a man cannot eat a whole beef at one meal and call upon that for the reserve strength of a life time. Ladies who have been fading forty years lose hope and faith some times because they do not look beautiful in one week. They forget that the fading was from year to year, often not noticeable even in so short a time. To those who blind themselves to the ravages of time, I would say, "beware, else the day come when you shall surely regret it." To those who believe their beauty gone past recall I would say even more earnestly, "Do not despair." Every reason has its appropriate charm and loveliness and Nature always helps those who seek to help themselves. As character must either build up or deteriorate day by day, so physical beauty knows no stopping place, and must either increase or decrease hourly. Time alone is not the only destroyer, but ill health, sorrow and uncontrolled emotions all work havoc with it, and as all true growth must be from within outwards, so cheerfulness, health, a sunny, bright disposition are the first great beautifiers. Then comes the simple laws of hygiene, cleanliness, proper food and correct exercise. For upon these things depend new physical beauty. Certain aids to these are, of course, essential where disease, neglect or ignorance has begun to tell. I have made a careful, conscientious study of the skin, so that I am prepared to do my work under a positive guarantee, and am ready to refund money cheerfully where I fail to give satisfaction.

FINE STREAM OF OIL NEAR FORT WORTH

That at Least Is the Belief of Prof. R. A. Brule—He Advises Putting Down a Test Well

Professor R. A. Brule, the Palestine oil expert, who is in the city en route to his home after an absence of some months in Jack county, today reiterated his statement made on a former visit here, that there is a great stream of oil near Fort Worth.

"It is within half a mile of the packing houses," he said last night. "It is what is known as the Saratoga stream and has its origin in Western Kansas. It is from 1,500 to 1,600 feet wide. The first stratum will be encountered at a depth of about 750 feet and maximum depth to be drilled in order to reach all the strata would be about 1,200 feet. I am as positive of what I say in regard to this oil in this vicinity as I was in my predictions about the Nome and Spindletop fields. You know, I predicted that J. A. Van Doren of Fort Worth and his partner Zureith, would strike oil. Your recent story about their 2,000 barrel well confirmed what I knew and predicted would come to pass. Fort Worth does not have to send anywhere to get oil, if some of her citizens will get together and put down a test well."

Professor Brule contends that there are ten oil streams under Texas, all flowing in a general way toward the gulf. He says that the Sour Lake, Spindletop, Nome and other fields will continue to supply great quantities of oil, as long as they are properly handled and are not "topped." By "topping" he means that if wells are put down along the oil arteries this side of the present developed fields, the oil will be taken out before it gets to them.

BIG PLAN TO JOIN METHODIST SCHOOLS

Denominational Institutions to Work in Unity for Accomplishment of the Same Object, According to Idea

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—A plan whereby all, or nearly all of the Methodist educational institutions in the country may be united under one general supervising body of directors with Northwestern University as the head and front, has been disclosed by President Edmund James of Northwestern.

As evidence that the smaller institutions are ready for such a union President James declares that already two colleges have asked to be taken under the protection and management of Northwestern University, while the university has already annexed two preparatory schools—the Elgin Academy and the Grand Prairie Seminary of Oronago.

"It is a clearly manifested fact," said President James last night, "that if denominational institutions are to do their best work they must work in unity. There must be harmony between the different institutions—a harmony which will permit of one general management."

President James then went into the details of the plan, concluding with the statement that all of the affiliated institutions would be known as "Northwestern." His estimate is that there will be thirty such.

WORK ON TULSA BRIDGE

Is Progressing Rapidly and Structure Will Be Finished Soon

TULSA, I. T., Oct. 24.—Work on the bridge across the Arkansas river about a mile west of Tulsa is progressing nicely. It is to have ways for both vehicles and pedestrians, and is to be a toll bridge. The Canton Bridge Company has charge of the construction. Mr. Weymouth, who is superintending the work, says the bridge will be ready for use by the first of the year.

One of the most striking features of the Tulsa Street Fair which ended on last Saturday was the public wedding which took place on Main street on the afternoon of that day. Invitations had been issued by the Tulsa Carnival Company and distributed in the crowds during the week, and consequently there was an immense number of guests at the wedding. The contracting parties were G. C. Lindsay and Miss Nancy Copenhaver. The ceremony was performed by Mayor Mowbray with much solemnity. Showers of rice fell on the newly married couple as they left the platform and congratulations and good wishes seemed no less cordial because of the publicity of the wedding.

In this neighborhood the cattlemen are taking their cattle off the range. On Thursday morning several thousand head went through town bound for their feeding pens.

OBITUARY

An Old Soldier Gone to Rest

As a ripened shock of corn gathered into the harvest, so closed the life of Mr. H. P. Gilreath on the 16th day of October, in his sixty-ninth year. A faithful husband, affectionate father and true friend, he bids his loved ones adieu on earth, to await their coming in that realm where they need no sun, for the Lamb of God is the light thereof. Although they grieve for his presence, there is consolation in the thought that his spirit is now basking in the sunshine of God's love, where the winds of adversity never chill and the soul is made happy in the presence of Him who washed and redeemed us in His precious blood.

How sweetly thou, the blessing
Sounded to his listening ears,
"Nobly done, my faithful servant,
Rest thou in your mansion here."

"Ah! It is enough, my brother,
All I asked for thou hast brought,
And among the band of reapers,
Truly, bravely hast thou wrought."

LITTLE ACCOMPLISHED

At the Meeting of National Association Baseball Leagues

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—Delegates attending the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues collected in little groups about the corridors of the Southern hotel at 3 o'clock this morning, the long night session having adjourned, and talked among themselves of the night's work. It was openly stated that very little had actually been accomplished, the discussion of amendments to that possibly forced liquidation in the drafting system having occupied most of the session. President Powers and Secretary Farrell had retired immediately upon adjournment of the session and after talking together for some little time the members of the different groups went to their rooms, still in effect having unfinished scores.

CURE FOR THE BLUES

Or do they simply seek refuge behind a half truth—a subterfuge? But even where girls are truly looking for a bit of money to feather the matrimonial nest, is she really to blame? Before condemning the girl find out what has been the teaching of her mother. In nearly every case it is the mother who dwells upon the necessity of the money requisite for her daughter. She moans over the duties of the household and admonishes her daughter to "marry better than I did"—meaning to marry more wealth.

Not a cheerful prospect for a man who contemplates taking upon himself the responsibilities of a wife. Men no doubt are prone to selfishness. They have clubs and other pleasures that make calls upon their incomes that would have to be curtailed if a wife entered into the budget. But men do marry. Why is it folks outside the married circle are surprised to hear a wife, after a dozen years of wedlock, speak with loving pride of her husband as the "better part"?

There is reason for the opinion that mothers do not train their daughters for duty. Neither in domestic duties nor in the moral attitude toward the moral obligations of wifehood does the girl get the advantage of maternal sympathy and direction.

Mother's exclaim: "O, I can never see my daughters marry;" and the rest of us go off and wonder what in the name of nature are girls for anyway. Mothers encourage their daughters to a life of independence. They send them to business colleges to learn all sorts of things for the counting room and office, but never the shortcuts of home. They wait over the shoulders of the genus husband and father and man in general, yet without any sort of conscience, send them out into the world to be surrounded in the most familiar way with the horrid creatures.

They send them to normal schools and colleges and are willing that they be tutored in the school room at an age when they should be shedding the fragrance of girlhood blossoms in the very joy of living, in the home, in the social circle, in exercise and recreation. Many mothers harp upon the wickedness of men and the utter worthlessness of all sons of Adam. They forget in their efforts to guide their girls into the serene path of existence that Eve had a hand in that apple business and she has been dealing more or less in apples ever since. This is in no sense an excuse for Adam, but a reminder that Eve was acting partner.

After a while mother's teaching and influence is thrown to the wind. A man, the man, comes along and he straightway becomes the incarnation of all human perfection. But marriage is a wonderful disillusionizer. Mary weeps when John telephones that he will not be home until late. "Never mind sitting up," she knows he does not love her any more. The next day and days thereafter there are all sorts of scenes—a man has a vocabulary for the kind—all because John wanted a few hours with a lot of the fellows, a sort of vacation, as it were.

It is but a short time until "the boys" know that John has concluded that he has drawn a blank and a man does not have to tell his friends this sad truth. There is a sort of telepathy, or intuition that spreads the information. Mary in the meantime goes with her sorrow to mother and mother repeats all the old story of man's shortcomings, with John now the chief sinner, of course.

Granted that John should not have wanted to spend the evening with the boys. Granted that John should never in the course of his whole life ever want to speak to a human being but Mary, or to enjoy any pastime save such as Mary said, or to have any idea on anything but such as Mary would approve. Still if John happens to be not that sort, if he does occasionally enjoy people without asking Mary's consent and he exercises his masculine right of doing as he pleases in his amusements and recreations, as well as in his business, why not adjust wisely conduct to the particular kind of John that happens to be in the family. If John does not think as Mary does, it would be the fittest lubricant that was ever turned out of nature's factory if Mary could readjust her ideas and straightway think as John does, minus tears, red eyes and shining nose. If for any one of a dozen reasons, but once a wife, she should remember, every day and every hour, that she has had given to her something out of a man's life that is not quoted in the market reports—that it is "for her to cash the treasure hidden away in a man's heart, under his pride and his unspoken dreams. This treasure is like a vein of gold that the inexperienced eye passes and sees not. Only to her is the glimpse given. Only to her is the ever so known to work that vein for her own happiness and comfort. If she does not, if she scorns or fails to recognize the quartz or sand in which it is imbedded, she will have only herself to blame if the mining of that peculiar formation is carried on successfully by some one else.

A man is not a saint. Neither is a woman. He is very human about most things. So is the woman. But the husband has given to his wife his name. He has entrusted her with his name. He has undertaken the moral obligations placed upon him by civilized society. The wife who is willing to make concessions—who takes him as a man, neither saint nor the other, she has every opportunity of bringing satisfaction to her friends by presenting to the carping critics the most beautiful thing in the world, an example of domestic joy and contentment, even if she does not always say that "my husband is the best part of my home."

Or do they simply seek refuge behind a half truth—a subterfuge? But even where girls are truly looking for a bit of money to feather the matrimonial nest, is she really to blame? Before condemning the girl find out what has been the teaching of her mother. In nearly every case it is the mother who dwells upon the necessity of the money requisite for her daughter. Still if John happens to be not that sort, if he does occasionally enjoy people without asking Mary's consent and he exercises his masculine right of doing as he pleases in his amusements and recreations, as well as in his business, why not adjust wisely conduct to the particular kind of John that happens to be in the family. If John does not think as Mary does, it would be the fittest lubricant that was ever turned out of nature's factory if Mary could readjust her ideas and straightway think as John does, minus tears, red eyes and shining nose. If for any one of a dozen reasons, but once a wife, she should remember, every day and every hour, that she has had given to her something out of a man's life that is not quoted in the market reports—that it is "for her to cash the treasure hidden away in a man's heart, under his pride and his unspoken dreams. This treasure is like a vein of gold that the inexperienced eye passes and sees not. Only to her is the glimpse given. Only to her is the ever so known to work that vein for her own happiness and comfort. If she does not, if she scorns or fails to recognize the quartz or sand in which it is imbedded, she will have only herself to blame if the mining of that peculiar formation is carried on successfully by some one else.

A man is not a saint. Neither is a woman. He is very human about most things. So is the woman. But the husband has given to his wife his name. He has entrusted her with his name. He has undertaken the moral obligations placed upon him by civilized society. The wife who is willing to make concessions—who takes him as a man, neither saint nor the other, she has every opportunity of bringing satisfaction to her friends by presenting to the carping critics the most beautiful thing in the world, an example of domestic joy and contentment, even if she does not always say that "my husband is the best part of my home."

The Kindergarten Association tendered their friends a reception Thursday evening at the kindergarten college. The ladies of the association have much pride in the handsome home they have fitted up for the college and the resident students. These young ladies, as well as the members of the senior class, received in the front parlor, wearing pretty white frocks and greeting with cordial smiles. The house was fragrant with roses and geraniums, La France and American beauty, and bowls of geranium blossoms filling vases in hall and every room. There were kindergarten games in which a number of grown ups took part and afterward the two-step and waltz. Fruit refreshment was served by a group of winsome maidens not yet seniors.

The class is composed of Misses Birch, Eva Pennington, Lillian Morrison, Grace Davenport, Katherine Bowlin, Eva Mae Lewis, Jennie Church, Opalia Clark, Clara Palm, Nell Kingsley and Inaeta Plato. The members of the association who assisted in receiving were Mrs. A. J. Roe, Miss Winchester, Miss Hammers, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Slaght, Mrs. White, Mrs. Judd and Mrs. Robinson.

The guests were shown through the cozy rooms and all admired the comfort and taste evidenced everywhere. On Friday evening the "Blues" of the Sunday school of the Tabernacle Christian church entertained their friends. The class to be enrolled today. These elements swelled the attendance to more than two hundred and the pleasure of the occasion was increased by the satisfaction in the increase in the Sunday school membership. There were musical numbers and a phonograph, and ice cream and cake as refreshments. Mrs. E. J. Roe was captain and the success of the evening was a deserved compliment to her enthusiasm and labors.

The trio by Weigand, "How Sweet Is Thy Work," will be sung at the morning service at the Broadway Presbyterian church today by J. I. McAllister, Mr. Wetmore and Mrs. Duckert. Mr. Wetmore will also sing the offertory. He is remembered by residents of Fort Worth of several years ago as a superb singer, a baritone of remarkable range, timbre and volume.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Anderson have issued cards for the debut party of their daughter, Miss Andre Anderson, at the Country Club next Tuesday evening.

A large audience was present to hear the piano recital given by Miss Imogene Sanguinet, assisted by Miss Nannie Sanguinet, violinist, at St. Ignatius academy, Thursday, October 22, 1903. The following brilliant program was faultlessly rendered and was generously applauded: Sonata, Beethoven, op. 22; study No. 3, Moscheles, op. 79; Kol Nidrei, Max Bruch, op. 47; Miss Nannie Sanguinet; Violin, Chromatica, J. S. Bach; Kreisleriana, Schumann, op. 16; Romance, from second concerto, H. Wieniawski, op. 22; Miss Nannie Sanguinet; Melodie, E. Grieg, op. 38, No. 3; Pierrette, C. Chamblain, op. 41.

The marriage of Miss Lena Evans to Edward R. Callier of Dallas last Thursday evening was an event of special interest to society folk of both Dallas and Fort Worth. The bride has been one of the best loved and loveliest of our daughters. She has held a place in the affections of society unchallenged. Beautiful, vivacious, talented, of gentle ways and kind heart, there was but one voice on her wedding day and that was the voice of affection. And there were congratulations everywhere for happiness and every blessing. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock in the First Christian church, the Rev. A. L. Johnson officiating. The church was draped in smilax and lily and the altar was embanked with palms. At the entrance to the central aisle was an ivy arch and fronting the pulpit was another. Before the ceremony Miss Edington sang "All for You," and during the ceremony Miss Lane and played Schubert's "Serenade." The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Albert Evans. They were preceded by the groom and Harper Brannon and Miss Ethel Evans, the bride's sister. The wedding gown was of white crepe de chine. The bride carried bride roses and wore a veil of tulle fastened with pearls. The ushers were Manning Shannon and Albert Estes of Dallas and W. R. Paddock. Among the Dallas friends present were the Misses Callier, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dick Slaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Smoot, Mr. and Mrs. Royal A. Ferris, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Knight, Miss Van Rensselaer and Mr. Tutibaugh.

The prelude to the wedding ceremony was a song, "Call Me Thine Own," sung by Miss Gertrude Anderson of Dallas, with Miss Esther Connell accompanist. At its close the family and relatives stood within the ribbon favors. First to come down the ivy wreathed stairs was Miss Mollie Connell and J. H. Rease of Dallas, then the groom and Walter Williams of Dallas. The maid of honor, Miss Elma Connell, was followed by the flower girl, Little Ruth Connell. The bride joined the bridal group on the arm of her father. The Rev. Luther Little read the marriage service with feeling and delivered a few eloquent words of admonition. The congratulations that followed the ceremony were the offerings from affection, and no bride ever received heartier wishes for happiness. Among the younger girls she has been more than admired, her beauty and loveliness winning to the fullest the affection of all who knew her. The groom too is esteemed and honored and shares with his winsome bride friendship's words of good will.

The bride wore a gown of white liberty satin with shirrings on skirt and bodice, with trimmings of honiton medallions and bertha. She carried bride roses and her veil was fastened with a tiny bud and brooch of brilliants. Miss Elma Connell, the bride's sister and maid of honor, wore a pink embroidered chiffon with shirrings. She carried pink roses. Miss Mollie Connell wore a pink crepe de chine over taffeta with bands of silk lace insertion; the bodice with a shoulder cape of the lace. Miss Tut Connell's frock was of pink liberty silk, lace trimmings. In the reception hall was the guest's book in which were inscribed the following names: Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Edington, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Likens, Miss Alice Long, G. W. Trovill, Miss Lillian Vickery, Mr. and Mrs. George Beggs, Mrs. A. J. Long, Miss Mabel Long, Lawrence Long, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Crowley, Miss Emma Hester, Mrs. J. B. Slaughter, Miss Slaughter, Mrs. Robert Hamilton, Miss Carrie Shugart, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnson, Miss Nell Vickery, J. H. Geer, Byron Miller, S. Bobo, Miss Jennie Bobo, Mrs. Della Turner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter St. Clair, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Garvey, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harold, Mrs. Barnes, Miss Helen Alexander, Mrs. Charles Hyde, M. R. Loyd, Dr. and Mrs. James Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Ray, Walter Ray, W. M. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Evans, Miss Maggie Hargrove, Miss Ella Ray, Miss Willie Davies, Miss Pearl Moore. The Dublin friends present were Walter Williams, J. H. Reese, Miss Moore, Miss

The local executive board, having in charge the arrangements for the meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, met in the Woman's Wednesday Club rooms yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

had agreed to carry all delegates and visitors as well as hostesses who would entertain guests for a half-fare rate, 25 cents, from the station to points within the hotel radius and corresponding reduction for greater distances.

Similar rates have been secured for baggage, 25 cents for the round trip hauling.

Mrs. Buchanan had samples of the various badges to be provided.

Attention was called to the fact that all local clubs would wear badges marked Fort Worth. Any club that so desired could add their club colors to this badge, but it was asked that the Fort Worth badge be worn by all local club women.

A letter from the secretary of the art league of Dallas was read, calling attention to an art exhibit at the library building and asking the Fort Worth club women to attend and to bring their visitors with them.

It was decided to meet every Friday morning until the meeting of the Federation.

It is requested by the president of the State Federation that all social courtesies be confined to Thursday of convention week. This is the day set apart for the social side of the federation meeting, and entertaining on any other day will interfere with the business of the convention.

It is announced that all ladies, whether club women or not, who entertain delegates will be considered guests at all social courtesies for club women. The receptions will be tendered to club women, delegates and visitors, and no local women will be eligible as guests save those who are hostesses of visitors.

The reluctance of club women to discharge the obligation incurred when the Federation was invited to hold its sessions here is promising much embarrassment to the local board. The three hundred delegates expect to be entertained in Fort Worth as they have been entertained elsewhere. That means rooms and board free. It also means the good name of Fort Worth among the most representative people of the state.

If a company of men from New York ride through the state in special cars they are provided with hotel accommodations. They have wine and cigars without stint. They have sumptuous banquets.

But when it comes to making welcome our own state women, that is an entirely different matter. They will not call for wine nor cigars. They will not avail as campaign material.

Every club woman in Fort Worth should feel a moral responsibility in helping the meeting of this Federation to be a success. If for any reason it is not convenient to entertain a delegate in her own home she can find comfortable quarters for 50 cents a day for rooms and 25 cents for meals. The addresses can be had from the chairman of the bureau of information, Mrs. W. C. Stripling.

The woman who cannot or will not discharge this duty in making good the hospitality of Fort Worth is so lacking in local pride that she is not entitled to be called a daughter of the Prairie City. Every mail brings additional list of delegates, but there is not a corresponding willingness on the part of our citizens to entertain them. The burden of providing homes is upon the local board. Have those who are declining to arrange for their share of this burden any advice or suggestion that will make Fort Worth to keep faith to fulfill her promises made at Beaumont last year?

Penelope Club met at Prof. Heathcote's Tuesday afternoon in regular class study. A paper by Mrs. W. W. Heathcote, "Biographical Sketch of Lord Bacon," was well received. Mrs. A. H. McCarty read Bacon's essay on "Friendship," the club lesson. The comparison of "Essays on Friendship," by Emerson and Bacon, concluded the lesson for the afternoon.

Fake Clairvoyants and Their Methods

AN EXPOSE BY DETECTIVE AL RAY

Who in Fort Worth has not, at some time or other, paid tribute to one of the itinerant clairvoyants who periodically visit the city? It is safe to say that half of the men and three-fourths of the women of this city, either here or elsewhere, in earnest or impelled by curiosity, or in quest of entertainment, or for any one of a dozen reasons, have called upon the self-styled trance mediums.

With what mingled feelings of awe and curiosity have they entered the softly carpeted, gaudily furnished and tapestried reception room and awaited the appearance of the occult one? He is usually "late and interesting." Some times his eyes are dark and dreamy and his raven hair clusters about his temples, accentuating the whiteness thereof. A thin, white, nervous hand, with long fingers is one of the things first noticed when he opens his door and bids one to enter the mysterious chamber beyond. Some times he is dressed as an ordinary citizen and some times he is clad in loose-flowing garments of oriental design and when the latter is the case the robes usually display strange devices, calculated to strengthen the impression sought to be conveyed.

In the room of mystery one finds a semi-light. There are portieres and soft colors predominate. In the center of the room there is a small table on which, perhaps, flickers an alcohol lamp.

And then the fraud begins. Or rather, it continues, for the visitor in various clever ways already has been prepared for the plucking.

THE GAME EXPOSED

Detective Al Ray of this city, who for many years was connected with the local police department, and who is known throughout the south as an expert in his line of work, does not hesitate to pronounce clairvoyancy, as practiced by the various men who travel through the country year in and year out, numbering their dupes by the thousand, flourishing high-sounding names which help them to ensnare the unwary, and in many cases the wary—he does not hesitate to pronounce this sort of clairvoyancy the veriest fraud.

"There may be some kind of clairvoyancy that merits the name, but if that is so, it never has come under my observation," he said yesterday in beginning an interview with a Telegram reporter. It was an arranged interview for the special purpose of exposing this class of fraud and it took place in the detective's own apartments, and part of the time the detective played the part of the clairvoyant, and played it well. He delved deeply into the subject and before he finished there was at least one person present besides himself who was convinced of the truth of his opening remark.

"I worked on every clairvoyant that visited this city for five years before I learned just how they play the game," said Detective Ray. "I dropped in on them without going through the formality of introducing myself as a detective and I paid for some of my sittings. Then after perhaps several sittings, I would tell them my business, praise them for their cleverness and even get them to admit that they had fooled me, but I could not get them to tell me how they did it. Finally by putting two and two together several times I got inspired and grasped enough of the scheme to make several in succession tell me the rest.

"The surprise to me after I had all the workings of the game at my fingers' ends was that I had not seen through it the first time I tried. In the main their plans are very simple, although they vary them just enough to 'take in' a person who possibly may have been duped by some other clairvoyant."

HOW IT IS DONE

The detective thereupon entered upon a detailed description of the fraud.

"To those who have been through the mill it is not necessary to describe the game in all its windings, but for the benefit of those readers of The Telegram who may never have consulted a clairvoyant, I will tell the story from beginning to end. No doubt it will prove interesting to those who have paid money to clairvoyants—"

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It is in Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

And I may say, by the way, that there are hundreds in Fort Worth who have visited these people, and many who have parted with large sums of money. You would be surprised at the sums of money and the valuable jewels obtained by these fellows. The law seldom is able to reach them, because their victims as a rule keep quiet—indeed are glad to buy silence on the part of the clairvoyant by keeping silence themselves. You would be surprised to know the diabolical schemes which men you meet every day and who are respected, and so far as the world knows, honest, are revolving in their minds for the undoing of various persons who for one reason or another are objectionable to them.

"People go to clairvoyants for numerous reasons. Some wish to be guided in love affairs, some have money to invest, some go 'just for fun.' About twenty-four out of twenty-five get off lightly. They pay a small fee for a sitting and probably get their money's worth in entertainment, even if they do not gain any valuable advice or information in regard to their pasts and futures. The imposition, if any, in these cases is so slight that I do not care to take up time with it. I intend to expose the methods used to obtain large sums and I hope that it will have some effect in stopping the operations of these fake clairvoyants, at least in Fort Worth.

THE RECEPTION ROOM

"In the first place, then, there is a man, or a woman, seated in the reception room of one of these clairvoyants to engage visitors in conversation. Some times this 'dog'—that's the name the clairvoyants have for these assistants—appears to be a visitor waiting for a sitting; some times he or she is in the guise of an attendant. While the real visitor is waiting, the 'dog' or trailer asks a few pleasant questions. The answers aid in forming an opinion in the assistant's mind as to whether the visitor is likely to prove easy, the assistant learns to tell pretty well whether a person has money and he cannot hold his job unless he is ready in conversation and is a good judge of faces and of character.

"He tries to figure out while asking these innocent questions, whether the visitor is in earnest, whether he has money, whether he has some secret trouble—in other words he tries to settle in his own mind two things: Has this man money? If so, is it a mission of importance to him which brings him to this place? If the assistant is unable to figure this out it is probable that the visitor will get an immediate sitting in order that he may be 'developed.' But if the attendant judges the visitor to have money and to be in earnest—he may be in earnest for any one of a hundred reasons—he 'gives the office' to the clairvoyant when the latter steps into the reception room, or else he steps into the clairvoyant's room and tips him. The visitor then is informed that the professor is specially engaged for the next hour, or is given various other excuses and is led in to making an appointment for the next day at a certain hour.

WHAT THE 'DOG' DOES

"When he departs he is trailed. The trail may last all day, but a 'dog' has him under surveillance all the time and of course, finally trails him to his home. After obtaining the number of the residence the trailer makes an inspection of the premises. He takes minute mental notes. He is schooled so as to be able to tell about the number of rooms in a house by looking at it from the outside. He notes the color of it and the material, whether there is a garden and a barn, what sort of a fence, what the houses on either side look like, and then he begins a different kind of work. He calls at a house and inquires the name of the man whom he had trailed. Upon ascertaining it he gets all the particulars possible without arousing suspicion. He learns the number in the family. He will say: 'I am looking for a man by that name and this may be the right one; has he a wife and three children?' Of course, in reply he is informed as to the wife and children. He follows up by saying that the man I am seeking is a traveling salesman. Thereupon he learns the man's business. The loquacious housewife frequently rattles off everything she knows after the first question and he departs. Some times he doesn't need to visit more than one house, but he keeps at it until he has all the information he desires.

"The next day the unsuspecting visitor drops into the clairvoyant's reception room at the appointed hour. In the first place you must take into consideration one thing: The visitor, so far as experts are able to judge is in earnest; he comes ready to pay something for any information and pay a good deal for the right information. He is in the proper frame of mind to be taken in. This time there is either no 'dog' present or else it is not the one he met the day before. The clairvoyant steps out of the inner room and invites him to enter. The interior is so furnished as to help along any right impression—from the clairvoyant's standpoint—that may have been created.

HE TELLS YOUR NAME

"Once inside the clairvoyant looks steadily at the visitor a moment, before they are seated, and then quietly remarks, 'You are John Brown Bifkin,' or whatever the visitor's name may happen to be. To a man in the visitor's frame of mind this has great effect. He enters, as he thinks, a complete stranger and the clairvoyant tells him his name apparently carelessly, as if he did not attach any importance to the feat of mind-reading. 'He's the real thing,' thinks the visitor.

"The visitor is seated at one side of a small table, upon which there is a fancy cover that drops over the sides and ends half way to the floor. At the other side of the table is seated the clairvoyant. On the table there is a little lamp, or if not that there is a small plate to catch ashes, and a box of matches. There also are some envelopes and some small pieces of writing paper about three by four inches in dimensions.

IN A TRANCE

"Everything being ready, the clairvoyant goes into a trance. Usually the 'spirit' is supposed to be on his left side and in his trance he frequently turns his face in that direction when addressing the 'spirit.' He trembles some more and his eyes flutter and looks of pain cross his face. Pretty soon he begins to talk. He also begins to see things: 'I see a two-story frame dwelling,' he says. 'It is painted a dark green and the shutters are pink. I see a porch in front of this house. I see two little children in the yard. They are playing with a fox terrier. On the porch a woman is nursing a baby,' and thus he goes on telling all about the visitor's house and family, with unerring accuracy, while the visitor is fairly aghast and begins to 'feel peculiar,' as he thinks he is in the presence of the world's eighth wonder.

"The spirit tells me that you wish to ask a question," says the clairvoyant. He thereupon emerges from his trance and inquires if the visitor has learned something. The visitor by this time is thoroughly ready to spring his question. He is given one of the small pieces of paper and a pencil and is told to write his question and sign his full name. Some times he would prefer to whisper his question, but this won't do. It must be written. Finally he is assured that he can write any question with perfect safety. He is assured that the paper never will leave his sight and will be burned immediately after being written. He may use his knee or his hat or his note book as a pad. Finally the question is written.

THE TRICK

"The victim then is requested to fold the paper three times so that there can be no possibility of it being seen by the clairvoyant. This he does. The clairvoyant takes the folded paper and, with one finger, holds it to his forehead, so that it is in plain sight. He trembles and his eyelids flutter again and he again looks intense. He reaches across the table and places the bit of paper on the visitor's forehead and right here is where the trick is worked. While his hands are above the victim's head, so that the victim cannot see, in a flash the clairvoyant switches a bit of paper which he has held palmed in his left hand to the right hand and transfers the question to his left where he palms it. He then places the paper which does not contain the question against his own forehead. This paper is folded exactly as the piece that bore the question, for after the visitor wrote his question, the paper was folded three times in just the manner prescribed by the clairvoyant.

"After placing the 'dummy' against his forehead, the clairvoyant touches a match to it, or hands it to the victim and while the latter is holding it touches a match to it. The paper slowly burns and while it is burning, naturally the visitor watches it, for he is holding it and doesn't want it to scorch his fingers. The clairvoyant meanwhile is busy. The paper in his left hand is opened and the question is read while the victim looks at the burning 'dummy.' Now the trance business is on in full blast. The spirit and the clairvoyant are having quite a talking match; the question is mumbled over and finally is clearly repeated.

QUESTIONS THAT COMPROMISE

"One question frequently asked is, 'I am married, but am in love with another woman; how can I get rid of my wife?' In the cases of women, the question is frequently reversed. Some times the question is, 'Can you tell me of some poison that will slowly kill my wife?' or 'Can you tell me how I can get rid of my wife without being found out?'

"It seems strange that people should ask such questions but that they do so I personally know, and many persons in Fort Worth know it, too, because they have asked such questions. It must be remembered that people who ask these questions are laboring under great stress of mind and are, so to speak, clutching at every straw. They are in love or are in trouble of one sort or another, they desire with all their hearts to achieve a certain object; they cannot turn to friends and they are afraid of strangers. The mysterious attracts them. They figure that they will go to a clairvoyant. They take into consideration the fact that the clairvoyant soon will move on to another city and pass out of their lives. If he can help them—and by the time the preliminaries have been gone through, they usually are convinced that he can help them—why should they not profit by his advice? That is the way they argue to themselves.

HOW TO GET THE MONEY?

"Of course when the clairvoyant one has made the 'switch' the rest is easy. He answers the question the way he pleases and he usually has about 3,000 answers for all sorts of questions committed to memory. He is familiar with the latest stock quotations and by carefully reading the newspapers keeps himself posted on current events. If a big murder trial is on somewhere he probably will ring in some reference to the unrest of the spirit in regard to the case.

"Now if he has bagged a fish on one of these personal questions, the problem that confronts him is: 'How can I get to his money?' He proceeds about this in any one of several ways. A favorite method is for him to communicate to the visitor after he has repeated the question asked by the visitor, that the 'spirit' refuses to answer your question today, but bids you come again tomorrow—you must come tomorrow.' Right after making this statement the clairvoyant will add that the spirit tells him that there is going to be a good opportunity for a business investment within a day or two. The spirit says that an investment of $500—if the victim has been found to be well to do, a larger sum is named—will net $7,000. The victim may bring $500 and have it charmed by the spirit through the clairvoyant; then it will be lucky. The visitor then is dismissed. Next day he comes for the answer to his question and incidentally brings along the $500. He is resolved to guard this money carefully to see that he is not defrauded. Clairvoyants tell me that the men most difficult to get money from by this means are farmers or the class that are usually denominated as 'suckers.' They are more suspicious than are the educated, smart, city men; the latter have too much confidence in themselves.

"Well, at this second meeting the clairvoyant and visitor are on an established footing with one another; it is much easier for the clairvoyant—although it was easy enough at the first meeting, if the visitor only knew it.

"To go back to the envelope containing the money, it is specially made, although the victim does not attach any importance to this fact, even if he observes it. There is a man in Chicago who makes these envelopes. It is a particular make of paper that is difficult to tear. After the victim has been charmed the envelope is handed to the visitor, who is told to put it around his neck and keep it there. There is some reference to the question he originally asked, but the spirit is not yet ready to answer it and anyway the day for making the investment has not yet come—and so the visitor must call again.

"The first thing the visitor does upon getting into the street is to hurry home and steam open the envelope in order to assure himself that the money is safe. He finds it safe and then closes the envelope again. Next day he returns to the clairvoyant and produces the envelope to be charmed again. The minute the clairvoyant takes hold of the envelope he knows whether or not it has been tampered with and in practically every case it has been opened. The peculiar make of paper and the particular way in which he has closed the envelope tell him in a second if it has been opened. No matter how complete the confidence may be in the mind of the visitor, he does not fail to open the envelope at least once. He is informed by the clairvoyant that the spirit refuses to name the investment; 'something has occurred to break the spell on the money; it must be charmed again.' So it is put into another envelope and the visitor must come back again. The clairvoyant apparently doesn't know that the envelope has been opened, but the spirit does—that is the way it appears to the mind of the visitor and he thinks that by opening the envelope he broke the spell.

"Sometimes a clairvoyant will drag along a couple of weeks before he finds that one twenty-four hours has elapsed without the envelope being opened. Usually after a city man has opened the envelope a couple of times he comes to the conclusion that the clairvoyant is honest.

"As soon as the envelope is brought back one day without having been opened the clairvoyant knows that he has gained his victim's confidence. Without me, he switches envelopes, handing back to the victim one that he has prepared and which contains a package of blank paper of the same bulk and weight as the one containing the money. On this day he assures the victim that the spell has not been broken this time and that on the following day the spirit surely will name the manner in which the money is to be invested. Meanwhile the spirit has doled out some advice in regard to the original question and has been informing the visitor, through the clairvoyant, that the day which will be a favorable one for relieving whatever his original object was, is near. The spirit now informs the victim that he must prepare to follow the advice soon to be given him in regard to his love affair, or in regard to a large sum of money he is seeking to obtain, or—well, no matter what it is, he must get ready.

"ANOTHER 'SWITCH'"

"Now reverting back to the envelope business, I want to tell of another way in which the 'switch' is made. It is accomplished sometimes by means of an envelope. Some envelopes are on the table face downward. When the victim has written his question, the clairvoyant picks up one of the envelopes, takes the question, properly folded by the visitor and apparently places it within the envelope. The back of the envelope faces the victim during this process, so that when the flap is turned back he plainly sees his question placed within the envelope. The flap is then turned down and the envelope is placed on the table. The visitor is requested to place his hand on the envelope and hold it on the table, which, of course, he does.

"Now to begin with, the clairvoyant had in the envelope a 'dummy' which is, as I described before, a bit of paper folded so as to resemble the piece on which the question is written. In the face of the envelope, which is concealed from the victim, there is a slit, and when the clairvoyant apparently places the question in the envelope he, instead, slips it through the slit into the hand which is holding the envelope. The dummy remains in the envelope. Then the trance business begins and the clairvoyant with the real question in his hand has easy sailing. This over he comes out of his trance, lifts the visitor's hand from the envelope, removes the 'dummy,' touches a match to it and destroys it.

"There are several variations, but they all amount to the same thing—the 'switch' is the all-potent factor. It is the same in the lock game, the knife game, the green goods, the big mitt, and in fact most of the swindles by which thousands of people have been gulled. There is always a 'switch,' although a knife is now being made which does not require the use of a second one in order to be successfully worked.

"But to go on with the clairvoyant: If he has three or four 'big marks' in hand he usually aims to work the switch on all of them the same day and if successful he probably will jump the town that night in order to avoid trouble.

"But if he has bagged only one or two and has others upon whom he is working he will take them one after another and "After departing with the envelope containing the blank paper the victim may go another day or two without opening it, but eventually he opens it. He at once realizes that he has been swindled and hurries to the clairvoyant's fearing that the man has fled. Instead he finds him, calm and fully at ease. He hotly accuses him and demands his money. The clairvoyant declines to give up the money. He is told that he will be arrested. 'O no, I don't think so,' the faker says, and then he adds firmly: 'Look here; if you go to the police and have me arrested I will see that your wife gets this question which you wrote,' and he thereupon produces the question with the man's full name signed to it.

"Another woman; how can I get rid of my wife? Thereupon the clairvoyant advises the much-alarmed victim to shut his mouth and go his way, and this, in nearly all cases the victim does.

"Many interesting cases where prominent people have been made victims have come under my observation. Indeed it is surprising that so many intelligent men and women can be duped by these fakers. As a rule they keep all the questions, arrange them in alphabetical order, with the names, and never part with them. A clairvoyant who was here recently had a whole trunkful of questions that had been asked of him. A leading Fort Worth lawyer recently was taken in for a large sum, although the scheme worked on him was somewhat different from the ones usually employed. He was convinced by the clairvoyant that he was possessed of remarkable clairvoyant powers, and was induced to bring a course of lessons in the 'art.'

"If the people who write down these questions could only know before hand that the questions they write down are not destroyed you may be sure they would not write them. The game is very simple, yet it is one of the 'strongest' known. When it comes to dealing with married women or girls who are in trouble over a love affair these fakers generally clean up all the money and jewelry in sight. They use chamois skin bags in which to put jewelry, as I said before, and then prepare a duplicate bag which contains about a dollar's worth of junk jewelry, but which rattles properly and is of about the same weight and bulk as the real jewelry. This they switch at the proper time and inasmuch as they have the woman's question and her full name signed to it they need have no fear.

"These clairvoyants 'lag' for easy marks by having their attendants spot the kind of men and women they think can be handled. They pick out these people on the street, find out who they are and in various ways get the idea of consulting a clairvoyant into their heads.

"One thing I can say for these fake clairvoyants: If they make a good deal of mischief in the world they also prevent a certain amount of it. Whenever a question is asked which has for its object the taking of a human life, they try in some way—usually by an anonymous note—to warn the intended victim. They do this, in part, to protect themselves because it frequently is necessary for them to carry the game pretty far with their own victim and they do not want to be charged with being accomplices or accessories.

"In conclusion I would like to give the warning to the public: If you feel that you must consult a clairvoyant, go 'just for fun,' don't write down any questions, and let your money remain in the bank."

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Political topics are now in the ascendant as subjects of discussion, the cabinet crisis and Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal campaign having absorbed public attention to the exclusion of almost everything else.

Never since the home rule fight has a political question attracted such universal attention as the present problem of free trade versus protection is demanding.

It is recognized that a crucial turning point in the nation's commercial history is imminent and that Britain must decide within a short period, for good or evil, between the alternatives of sticking to free trade or setting up a fiscal barrier against the inroads of foreign commerce.

Hence everybody, from peer to costermonger, is badly bitten with "fiscalitis," and the infection is being assiduously spread by means of tons of pamphlets and armies of stump speakers as auxiliaries to the newspaper campaign distributed throughout the land by the various organizations which have sprung into being in the interests of the respective factions.

A YOUNG CABINET The reconstructed cabinet of Mr. Balfour, the premier, if otherwise undistinguished, is remarkable as one of the youngest on record.

The average age of ministers, which was fifty-six in Lord Salisbury's last administration, has been reduced to fifty.

The new additions are all young men, and the disappearance of the Duke of Devonshire, who is 70, has further helped to bring down the average.

The government, however, still contains the aged, though still alert and vigorous, Lord Chancellor Halsbury, who is two years short of four score.

The Hon. Alfred Lyttelton, whose appointment to succeed Mr. Chamberlain as colonial secretary, caused the greatest surprise as he previously held no public office, is a mere youth of 45.

His fame chiefly rests on his athletic prowess, though he is a barrister of some eminence, and has represented Warwick and Leamington in parliament for the past eight years.

At Eton he was one of eight brothers famous in the cricket field; he was captain of the Eton cricket team and afterward of the Cambridge University team; he was also amateur lawn tennis champion of England, a great man at throwing the hammer, at racquets and at football.

With the powerful physique of a man who has excelled in field sports, Mr. Lyttelton has a rather plain, though clever looking, clean-shaven face, a high forehead and scanty brown curls. He is a fine type of the "flannelled fool" of which Kipling wrote last year.

THE SON OF HIS FATHER Mr. Austen Chamberlain is one of the youngest chancellors of the exchequer on record.

In the general shuffle he has left the postmaster generalship, which he only held for about a year, to accept the responsibility of managing the finances of the United Kingdom.

Probably he would not have had such rapid promotion had he not been the son of his father.

He is forty, just at the age at which his illustrious parent first entered parliament, and in appearance he is the counterpart of what "Joe" was then. He inherits the eyelashes, but not the orchid, and although he shares the ambition, the energy and the lucidity of his father, he lacks the older statesman's readiness and incisiveness in debate.

He has, however, done well in all the government posts he has held since 1895. Austen Chamberlain is still unmarried, although gossip some months ago coupled his name with that of the Princess Victoria, King Edward's eldest and only unmarried daughter.

But he is said to be devoted to his stepmother, who was the daughter of United States War Secretary Endicott, and married Joseph Chamberlain in 1888.

THE NEW WAR SECRETARY Mrs. Hugh O. Arnold-Forster, the new secretary of state for war, is another young recruit for the cabinet, being two years older than Mr. Lyttelton. He has set himself the task of putting the British army on a business footing.

That famous, gallant and highly picturesque institution has, since the Iron Duke of Wellington relinquished the supreme command, unfortunately suffered from the haphazard and amateurish methods of the civilian officials who control its destinies.

Mr. Forster has during his political career devoted himself to naval and military questions, and has published several books on those subjects; but he has not actively engaged in martial pursuits beyond holding for some years a commission in the volunteers.

He is a descendant of Dr. Arnold, the famous head master of Rugby school, where he was educated, and the adopted son of the late W. E. Forster, M. P. Mr. Forster is curiously like Mr. St. John Broderick, whom he succeeds at the war office, though he is more intellectual looking. He is not much of an athlete, but his favorite recreations are cycling and yachting.

Marchioness of DONEGAL

The Marchioness of Donegal, who has just made her aged husband famous by presenting him with a son and heir, is a daughter of the late Henry St. George Twining of Halifax, N. S. Her mother was Miss Ada Black, whose family is largely interested in Nova Scotia shipping. The Marchioness brought her husband a dowry of $40,000 a year. They were married December 22, 1902.

too-enterprising war correspondents. That he is a thorough sportsman and an authority on turf matters is apparent by the fact that he is a member of the jockey club.

He married in 1889 Lady Alice Montagu, daughter of the seventh duke of Manchester and aunt of the present duke.

UNESTHETIC GREEKS The classic dress of ancient Greece has always been thought by artists, on esthetic grounds, to be the most perfect description of apparel.

But whether it is adapted to modern use is open to doubt. An American family visiting Athens, and consisting of a gentleman and two ladies, recently resolved to put the matter to the test, and caused a sensation on the Acropolis by appearing in the ancient costume of the country—tunics, cloaks and sandals complete.

Their object is to convince the Athenians that the costume of their ancestors is both healthier and more becoming than that worn at the present day.

So far they have only provoked the amused curiosity of the modern Greeks, who regard their assumption of the antique garb as an entertaining freak.

AN HEIR TO DONEGAL A new chapter has just been opened in a piquant May-and-December romance of the peerage by the birth of a son and heir to the Marquis of Donegal.

About the beginning of the present year the marquis, who has reached the great age of 81, but is still erect, hearty and handsome, led to the altar as his third wife a charming young Canadian girl of 22, a Miss Twining, of Halifax.

Lord Donegal's two previous marriages were not blessed with children, but now his main object in marrying for the third time is attained, and the widest young scamps about town in early Victorian days. It is doubtful whether his marriage with Miss Twining has brought him any considerable fortune, for the marquis and marchioness are living in extremely modest style in unaristocratic Brompton square.

Lord Donegal is one of the handsomest and most distinguished looking old gentlemen in London, and though his hair and whiskers are quite white, they are by no means scanty.

The marchioness might very well pass for his granddaughter; she is a charming girl looking young matron, with an oval face and a luxurious mass of fair hair.

The only parallel in recent years to this romance of the peerage is that of the late Viscount Hollingbrooke, who married at seventy-three, and an heir was born who is the present Lord Bollingbrooke, a youngster of seven.

A NEW LORD CHAMBERLAIN The queen has just appointed a new holder of the most important, or at any rate the highest, office in her household, that of Lord Chamberlain.

This was made necessary by the death of Lord Colville of Culross last July, who had been Chamberlain to Alexandra as princess and queen for thirty years.

The new Chamberlain is Earl Howe, who has had considerable experience at court, having been treasurer to Queen Victoria's household and lord in waiting to both the present king and queen successively.

Lord Howe possesses some interest for Americans, for he is a direct descendant of that General Viscount Howe, who commanded a division of the British troops in the war of independence, and was killed at Teiconderoga.

The fourth Viscount Howe was the celebrated admiral. The present Lord Howe, who is forty-two years of age, is the third earl.

He is also connected by marriage with two famous American peeresses, namely, the Duchess of Marlborough and Lady Curzon, vicereine of India. Lady Howe being aunt to Consuelo Vanderbilt's husband, and the Howes and Curzons are branches of the same great family of Curzon.

Lord Howe is a handsome, portly man, with curly brown hair and a large mustache. His favorite recreation is music, and he is a good performer on the organ. He owns about 34,000 acres, a magnificent town house and no less than four stately homes in various parts of the country.

There are many ways of celebrating one's birthday, but perhaps the most original for a veteran of seventy-nine, was that chosen by Admiral the Hon. Sir A. Cochrane, who climbed to the grating immediately below the gilded ball of St. Paul's Cathedral in thirteen minutes.

The ball is 356 feet above the floor level. This aged and agile old sailor belongs to a celebrated naval family and is a son of the tenth Earl of Dundonald and uncle of the present earl, the dashing cavalry leader of Boer war fame.

He was present at the coronations of both Queen Victoria and King Edward, and his excellent memory retains pictures of other historic events, including the revolution of July, 1830, in Paris, when he witnessed the street fighting from a balcony, and the burning of the houses of parliament in 1834.

The admiral saw fighting in Russian and Chinese waters in those stirring times, the "fifties."

CLIMATIC CURES

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overrated. The poor patient and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectation in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat.

Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warm climate, you will find that of the thousands of confidants there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c.

IS YOUR STOMACH ON A STRIKE?

There is Nothing to Prevent You Employing a Substitute to do its Work

There is such a thing as forbearance ceasing to be a virtue even in the case of one's stomach. There is no question but that some stomachs will stand a great deal more wear and tear and abuse than others, but they all have their limit, and when that limit is reached, the stomach must be reckoned with as sure as fate.

The best way and really the only effective way to treat your stomach when it rebels is to employ a substitute to do its work. This will give the weakened and worn-out organ an opportunity to rest and regain its strength and health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach of its work by taking up the work and doing it just as one set or shift or workmen relieves another. They actually digest the food in just the same manner and just the same time as the digestive fluids of a sound stomach do.

In fact, when dissolved in the stomach, they are digestive fluids, for they contain exactly the same constituents and elements as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids of the stomach. No matter what the condition of the stomach is, their work is just the same. They work in their own natural way without regard to surrounding conditions.

The stomach being thus relieved by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, is restored and renewed by Nature and the rest of the human body does not suffer in the least by reason of its failure to perform its work.

A Wisconsin man says: "I suffered the pangs of dyspepsia for ten years. I tried every known remedy with indifferent results until I was told of the remarkable cure of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I bought a box, began taking them and for not I had a stomach. Three boxes cured me completely. I have had no trouble whatever for a year and have an appetite like a harvest hand and can eat anything that is set before me without fear of bad results."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c a box. The drug-fist never fails to have them in stock because the demand for them is so great and so pronounced that he cannot afford to be without them. People who could not get them and would get in the habit of buying their other drugs as well as their Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

HOW BRAVE TEXAS YOUTH WON A FAIR HEIRESS FOR HIS BRIDE

Brave Eugene Harlan Saved Little Lucy La Baum From Raging Prairie Fire and Years Afterwards She Spurned Wealthy Suitors for Her First Choice

Ten years ago John Carlin, a famous Texas ranger, witnessed a remarkable scene. He had baited his horse upon the crest of a hill that overlooked Wild Horse prairie, when his attention was attracted by a cloud of rapidly rising smoke and dust.

The cloud grew fast, and as it spread over the prairie and boiled towards the heavens in great ocean like waves, vast sheets of flames flashed about it, making a picture of black and red above the landscape that would have charmed an artist. The wind grew more violent, and the cloud assumed an appalling appearance.

The experienced ranger realized that the prairie was on fire, and as a gust of wind lifted the great cloud there was revealed to the Texan a large herd of cattle and a drove of horses in terrorized stampede.

Recalling that the only horses in that section were located beyond a running stream, he concluded to get upon his horse and watch the sublime and destructive spectacle.

TRAPPED IN THE FLAMES
Suddenly Carlin inclined his head and gazed towards a part of the wild scene where the flames appeared the most violent and the panic the greatest. A moving object was partially concealed by the cloud of smoke and the sound of a human voice had reached his ears.

The wind swept the cloud away for a few moments and he saw a wagon which contained three persons moving at frightful speed parallel with the line of fire. The driver stood in the front part of the vehicle, lashing the flying horses, while a boy was on his knees by the side of a little girl. The horses were frantic with terror and probably beyond the control of the man who sought to guide them.

The ranger dashed across the plain towards the three people. As he drew near he wondered why the driver did not guide his horses in a different direction, but concluded that the man was confused by the cloud of smoke or unable to force the frightened animals to quit a road they were following. To Carlin it looked as if the red flames were searching the terrorized horses, and to add to the horror of the situation the stampeded animals were crowding about the wagon.

FACES STAMPEDE TO SAVE GIRL
Realizing that the wagon was liable to be overturned at any moment and the occupants tramped to fragments or torn to pieces by the wolves, the ranger urged his horse to the top of his speed. He was hearing the distressed people when he saw the wagon bounce into the air and the little girl roll out on the prairie.

Instantly there was a struggle between the boy and the driver. The boy tried to stop the horses, but the man held the lines. Shaking his head, he continued to lash the animals with the fury of a mad man. The boy, vaulting from the wagon, ran to the little girl's side. Swinging her upon his shoulders, he bravely faced the rapidly approaching triple danger. The child clinging to his neck and he braced himself to battle for her with his bare hands.

He had struck an ox with his fist and had broken a wolf's jaw with a kick when a panting horse pressed between him and his foes. He heard pistol shots and he saw cattle falling to their knees. The little girl was lifted from his shoulders and he heard the words: "Your foot in my stirrup and jump behind me quick."

In a few moments the boy and the little girl were resting on the same eminence occupied by the ranger when he set out to rescue them. Their story was soon told.

WAS ONLY KEEPING PROMISE
The little girl's name was Lucy La Baum, and she was the daughter of a wealthy rancher who lived on the north side of the prairie only a few miles away. She had been visiting relatives who resided in the belt of timber on the south side of the prairie. John Luce, who was a renter on the La Baum ranch, happened to pass the house where little Lucy was visiting. The child recognized the man, and, being homesick, prevailed on her relatives to let her ride home with him.

Luce was accompanied by Eugene Harlan, an orphan boy of fourteen years. The youth was known to Lucy's friends as a good boy and this fact served to influence the child's relatives to grant her request. "Gene, you must take care of little Lucy, and don't let her fall out of the wagon," said a motherly soul when the child had been placed in the vehicle.

The boy promised. He had often seen little Lucy at her home and he felt proud of the honor of being her protector during the short journey.

When they saw the cloud of smoke rising above the prairie the boy called Luce's attention to it and begged him to turn around and go back to the timber. The estimate man lashed his horses into a gallop. The boy tried to induce him to drive toward the hills, but he continued his mad effort to keep the road. When the little girl was thrown out on the prairie Eugene was not strong enough to take the lines from the inhuman coward, but, remembering his promise, he instantly leaped to the child's side.

MODEST IN HIS HEROISM
When the fire had passed and the smoke cleared away, John Carlin found Luce's remains in the debris of the wrecked wagon. He then took the rescued children to Colonel La Baum's ranch, where he told the story of their narrow escape.

The child's parents were deeply moved and sincerely conscious of their indebtedness to the heroic youth. Finding that Eugene positively refused to accept anything for what he had done, and that he already had gone home, Colonel La Baum offered to send him to the best college in the country.

When the boy was about to leave the house little Lucy followed him to the gate. "I won't ever forget you 'Gene,'" she said, "and you must not forget me. You must come to see me. I am nearly 3 now, but after a while I will be a grown woman, and you must be sure to come and see me then." The boy bent over and kissed the child's cheek and then walked down the road whistling.

WOUNDED AND RE-ENLISTS
When the Spanish war broke out Eugene Harlan was one of the first to enlist. He caught a bullet on San Juan Hill and a fever in the marshes of Santiago, and these misfortunes did not cool his ardor. Still burning to win distinction in the service of his country, he joined a regiment that was soon after sent to the Philippines.

After this event Lucy La Baum lost sight of her hero for a long time. She became an orphan and inherited a fortune in lands, cattle and gold, amounting to over half a million. The pretty girl, of course, had many admirers, but none made any impression. As the years passed and Lucy grew into womanhood, she often longed to know something about the career of the soldier boy whose name she could not mention without emotion.

Some five or six months ago a soldier who had just returned from Manila sought Lucy La Baum and then for the first time the Texas heiress became aware of the depth of her love for Eugene Harlan. The brave man was lying sick in a hospital in Manila, and the doctors said his constitution was so seriously impaired that if he recovered he would never again be fit for service.

HEIRESS REALIZES HER LOVE
"When I heard he had news," said the faithful girl, "I instantly realized that I loved Eugene more than I had ever dreamed, and I determined to go to his side at once."

Not many weeks passed before Lucy La Baum walked by the side of Eugene Harlan under the shade of the trees in the hospital yard in Manila. She found the young soldier a despondent invalid. Her presence strengthened his mind and illumined his face with joy. They were on shipboard homeward bound when she promised to be his bride.

They were married in San Francisco and the wedding journey will not end until they have traveled around the world.—Chicago Tribune.

ARMY SCANDALS
In spite of all efforts of the Kaiser the scandals in the army continue.

The latest outrage took place at Danzig where the Hussar Kook of the first regiment of the life guards has been sentenced for high treason by court martial in Danzig to a year's imprisonment and degradation in his rank.

On the occasion of a drunken brawl in a drinking place, Kook drew his sword. A corporal in civilian clothes, who interfered and made himself known as his superior officer, was attacked by Kook, who succeeded in giving his corporal a beating and managed at the same time to refer to his majesty in uncomplimentary language.

A VALUABLE FIND
A large and valuable find of papyrus has been made near Fayoum, in Egypt. Most interesting facts and details of Egyptian village life has been revealed to us by the discovery of a parcel of papyrus in a newly opened cemetery at Fayoum.

The writing dates as far back as 200 years B. C. The documents which have been brought to light through two Frenchmen, R. Jouguet and Lefebvre, were found at the ancient Magdala.

JUMPING UP
Is a great deal harder than jumping down. And yet people who have been for years running down in health expect to jump back at once. It takes years generally to make a man a confirmed dyspeptic, and he cannot expect to be cured in a few days.

There is no quicker means of cure for dyspepsia or other forms of stomach trouble than by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

STOCKS' GOOD SHOWING
NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The stock market has shown good resistance this week to the depressing influence of the trust company and bank failures in Baltimore and Pittsburgh. This has caused the hope and confidence of investors to be restored, and the market has been completed, although the belief is general that further contraction and reaction are to be looked for in business and industrial.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY
There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

There is a feeling of security, even though the baby is only a few months old, when the mother is sitting at the piano, and the baby is in the arms of the nurse. Mothers of small children have learned that it can always be depended upon, that it is pleasant to take, and that there is not the least danger in its use.

EXACT KNOWLEDGE OF MEXICO

Is a sealed book to most people in the United States; yet it is the most attractive neighbor America has. Its fertile soil produces cotton, corn, tobacco and tropical fruits in abundance, while its mining regions are rich in treasure. There are but five cities in the Republic of Mexico not reached by the Mexican Central Railway. Excursion tickets sold the year round with nine months' limit and stop-over privileges.

THE KAISER'S LIFE NOT EASY

Constant Growth of Socialist Power Puts Wrinkles in the Emperor's Brow—Scandals in the Army

(Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)
BERLIN, Oct. 24.—People of the inner court circles who come into close contact with the Kaiser all agree that his majesty is daily getting more nervous.

Taken Suddenly With Pain Around Heart,

Shortness of Breath and Suffocation.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

"I read your symptoms of neuralgia of the heart and they correspond exactly with my trouble. I was suddenly taken with pain around the heart, attacks of shortness of breath, and a suffocating feeling. I could not lie down for three or four weeks. My home doctor gave me no relief and I thought I would try Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and Nerve Plasters. I got one bottle and a plaster and took the former strictly according to directions, besides, placed a plaster over my left breast. The deep seated pain was gone before the first bottle had been taken and I could draw a long breath for the first time in over a year. I took four bottles of the Heart Cure, and am convinced it saved my life and I think fully as well of the Nerve Plasters. They draw out soreness and pain and bring instant relief. I will add when my trouble was at its worst that the palpitation of my heart shook my head under me. I could not think of lying on my left side, which was so sore that I could not bear the weight of my arm to rest on it. The disagreeable symptoms have left me and thanks to your Heart Cure, I can never praise it enough"—Mrs. C. BLACK, Charleston, S. C.

Sudden pains around the heart are known as heart spasms. The heart is a hollow muscle and heart spasms, or cramp, is similar to that of other muscles, except that the former are the frequent cause of sudden death. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure will cure and prevent.

DELACY'S CIN-KO-NA AND IRON

Its action is almost instantaneous--you feel the magic effects of the very first dose. You regain your appetite the first day. You begin to get color in your face, your bowels are again regular, your liver and kidneys begin to work as they should; in fact, you can almost see yourself grow stronger. But listen, there are two things it absolutely cures, in every case--not merely relieves--but cures to stay cured.

MR. P. K. GIESE,

A Well-Known St. Louis Fireman, of Company No. 3, Says:

"My wife and myself are both taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron, and it has done us a world of good. As a permanent cure for catarrh it certainly does the work, and it is a fine stimulating nerve tonic. My wife is a different woman since taking it, and she eats well, sleeps well and is feeling better than she has for years. Two or three doses a day keep us both in fine shape and have saved us both sickness and doctor bills. Several firemen in our company have taken it, and all praise it very highly, and my wife and I do most heartily recommend it."

MRS LIZZIE WALTHER

of Madison, Ill., the Well Known Midwife and Trained Nurse, Strongly Recommends De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron.

Mrs. Lizzie Walther says: "I cannot speak too highly of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron. I have taken it myself and it cured me of catarrh entirely. It is a grand, good strengthening tonic for women. I always recommend it to my patients who are convalescent, and to build a woman up and to give her strength and appetite and to produce sleep it is a splendid tonic and nerve-builder. One thing I especially like it for is that it is so pleasant to take and so palatable that the most delicate woman can take it and enjoy taking it."

THE OTHER IS

CATARRH

MR. RAHIER, A ST. LOUIS MAN,
Cured of Catarrh and Stomach Trouble.

"I have been a sufferer from catarrh and have been troubled with my stomach for two or three years and have taken blood and catarrh and peptic remedies constantly all during this time, but could only get a little relief. I have taken two bottles of 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron,' which I feel has cured me entirely, as I feel so much better and have no soreness of the stomach or distress after eating, and I can now eat most anything I desire. I can recommend 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na' as an honest medicine."

F. RAHIER, 8116 S. Seventh St.
St. Louis, Mo., June 26, 1903.

Mr. Clarence Leonard, a well known passenger railroad conductor of Cincinnati, says he and his wife cannot speak too highly of "DE LACEY'S CIN-KO-NA AND IRON"

Mr. Leonard says: "I suffered a long time with indigestion and catarrh, and could find nothing that would do any permanent good. My parents had been taking some of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and told me to try it for my stomach trouble. It has entirely cured it, and to my great satisfaction it also cured the catarrh, which was aggravated by the rumbling of my train. I always keep De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na on hand, and it is a family doctor for all of us. My wife and myself both heartily recommend it."

"I was terribly run down, could not sleep, had no appetite and my entire system was full of malaria. I had about given up, and decided a change of climate would be my only cure. For I had tried everything. About this time I saw an advertisement of 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' and decided as a last chance to give it a trial; so I got one bottle, and after four or five doses I began to feel better. I have taken about one and one-third bottles up to the present time, and am glad to say that the malaria has been entirely driven from my system. I eat well, sleep well and feel well. I haven't been in as good health in ten years. 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' is certainly a great medicine and a fine stimulating tonic, and I most heartily recommend it to all who may be in need of its curative properties."

MRS. ANNA RUFFNER, 2423 E. 9th St., K. C., MO.

"Had Malaria and felt no account all the time until I began taking 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' and now feel like a new woman. So says Mrs. Anna Ruffner of Kansas City, Mo. For a year or more I was so full of malaria and felt so worn out and no account that at times I would almost feel like giving up. I would ache all over and had no appetite and did not sleep at all. I began taking 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' four times a day and one of 'De Lacy's Little Fruit Wafers' at night, and in less than three weeks the malaria and that tired and worn-out feeling entirely left me and I began to eat well and sleep like an infant, and my complexion instead of being a muddy hue, cleared up, and I could do more work in a day than I did in three and have life and ambition. I feel that I cannot recommend 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' too highly. My mother, who is 60 years old, never allows herself to be without 'De Lacy's Laxative Fruit Wafers' as they cured her of stomach trouble, and sick headache after suffering almost constantly for more than fifteen years."

MRS. ANNA RUFFNER, 2423 E. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo.

MISS ELSIE WEINHEIMER AND MOTHER

Recommended De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron.

Miss Weinheimer says: "My mother and myself have received such splendid results from De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na that it is a pleasure for us to recommend it to all who are full of malaria and who are all run down and need a fine strengthening tonic. It makes one sleep well, eat well and feel better all over, and has certainly done us both a world of good."

MRS. THOS. E. TERRY

Of Kansas City, Mo.

Room 6 Keith & Perry Building writes:

"I have taken De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron for malaria and that tired, worn out and druggish feeling, and it is certainly very fine and I can most heartily recommend it to any one who has malaria and who needs a general toning up of the entire system. De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na gives one vim and energy and is a tip-top good blood and nerve-building tonic."

MISS TILLA FREDE

A St. Louis Lady, Cured of Rheumatism

"I suffered with rheumatism for years and 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron' cured me entirely after other medicines and St. Louis doctors entirely failed. I know there must be others in St. Louis who are suffering as I did, so I am only too glad to let them know what cured me. I was really so bad that I was confined to my bed for several weeks, for I could not walk. I knew my blood was not in the best condition, for my face was all broken out in little pimples and was very annoying. The first bottle of 'Cin-Ko-Na' cleared up my complexion and my rheumatic pains were a great deal better, until I took four bottles, when I felt I was completely cured. I can assure you that I feel quite elated over my cure and will not lose a chance to recommend it to my friends. I will cheerfully answer any questions from those who suffer and are interested."

"DE LACY'S CIN-KO-NA MOTHER AND BABY.

Mrs. F. D. JOHNSON.

A REMARKABLE CASE OF THE GREAT STRENGTHENING TONIC EFFECTS OF "DE LACEY'S CIN-KO-NA AND IRON."

"I was so thin and nervous after our baby was born that I thought I would never be well again. I was so bad that as soon as I was able to travel Mr. Johnson sent me to the springs, but I could neither eat nor sleep and kept getting worse and he came after me and brought me home. I was not only a nervous wreck, but a living skeleton. I had no milk for the baby and baby food did not agree with him and was so worried for fear we would lose him. I began taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and before I finished my first bottle I was wonderfully improved, and I had plenty of milk for the baby. I have taken three of four bottles and am still taking it, and today I am as strong and healthy as any woman in St. Louis. The baby has cut two teeth and we have not lost an hour's sleep. Mr. Johnson and myself both give our most hearty endorsement for De LACEY'S CIN-KO-NA is a Godsend to weak, nervous, suffering women."

MRS. M. HASTINGS,

A St. Louis Lady, 70 Years Old.

"I had terrible Stomach Trouble for years. I could neither eat nor sleep. I, so, my daughter says, would groan most all night and keep the whole family awake. I was so nervous that I could hardly sit still. In fact, I was so bad off, and my age (70 years) being against me, I was about ready to give up. I read so much of 'De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na,' and how it helped others, I thought as a last resort I would try it, and oh, how thankful I am that I did, for the second night after I began taking it I slept soundly all night long. The first few doses quieted my nerves wonderfully and I began to eat heartily. I am now taking my third bottle and, really, I am free from pain for the first time in years. I am so thankful that I can't express my gratitude."

"De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na' is certainly a God's blessing to womankind, and I hope my humble statement will be the means of helping others."

MISS KATIE KLEIN.

Read Miss Klein's Unsolicited Letter.
"I certainly feel it my duty to tell what De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na has done for me. Last winter I was sick with La Grippe, which left me in a very nervous condition, and my system was so full of malaria that I felt tired and almost exhausted most of the time, and had no appetite. A neighbor of ours, after I described my feelings and told him my troubles, recommended De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na, and after taking it just a short time I was so benefited and I feel so grateful that I want every lady who is sick and suffers as I did to know what a grand, good medicine De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na is." THE WILLS OF GENERAL SAM HOUSTON AND GENERAL ROBERT E. LEE TURN UP IN GENERAL LAND OFFICE

ARTHEM, Texas, Oct. 24.—(Special correspondence.) It is something of a coincidence that in making an examination of some files in the general land office a few days ago, the wills of General Robert E. Lee and General Sam Houston, two of the most famous men in the annals of American history, should have been found in close proximity.

HOUSTON AND LEE General Houston and Lee were descendants of the same sturdy colonial stock, natives of the same state and their minds, talents and ambition turned to make a military life, and both possessed a genius for military affairs of the highest order, but they were at the same time so dissimilar in character as any two men in history.

YOU ARE LOSING MONEY

Every Time You Fill the Old Stove up With Coal!

The sensible buyer is interested in finding out

FIRST—What it is which makes one kind superior to any other kind of Oak? And SECOND—Why "ESTATE OAKS" are superior to all other Oaks?

That is, provided the intending purchaser is after getting the most value for the money he proposes to invest in a stove. If the purchaser don't find out about these things before buying, but merely takes the word of the biased seller, he must blame no one if his astute neighbor selected another Oak purchased at the same price, but worth intrinsically three of his own.

We guarantee "ESTATE OAKS" for perfect control of fire, for cleanliness, for durability and beauty. Every individual "ESTATE OAK" Stove is guaranteed to hold fire longer with given amount of fuel than any other Oak in America.

Patented Jointless Ash Box.—The characteristic of all "Estate Oaks" is the patented jointless ash box. All the several parts of the base are skillfully molded in one piece, doing away with the joints as found in all ordinary stove bases.

Patented Screw Draft Registers.—Instead of sliding draft registers, which soon become loose and out of order and with which air-tightness and perfect control over the fire are impossible, "Estate Oaks" are provided with screw registers, which are fitted together by centrifugal grinding, and never get out of order.

Don't be Hornswoggled

Into buying a cheap range or steel cook stove, but come to our store and examine our line of up-to-date stoves before buying a stove that will cause more trouble than it's worth.

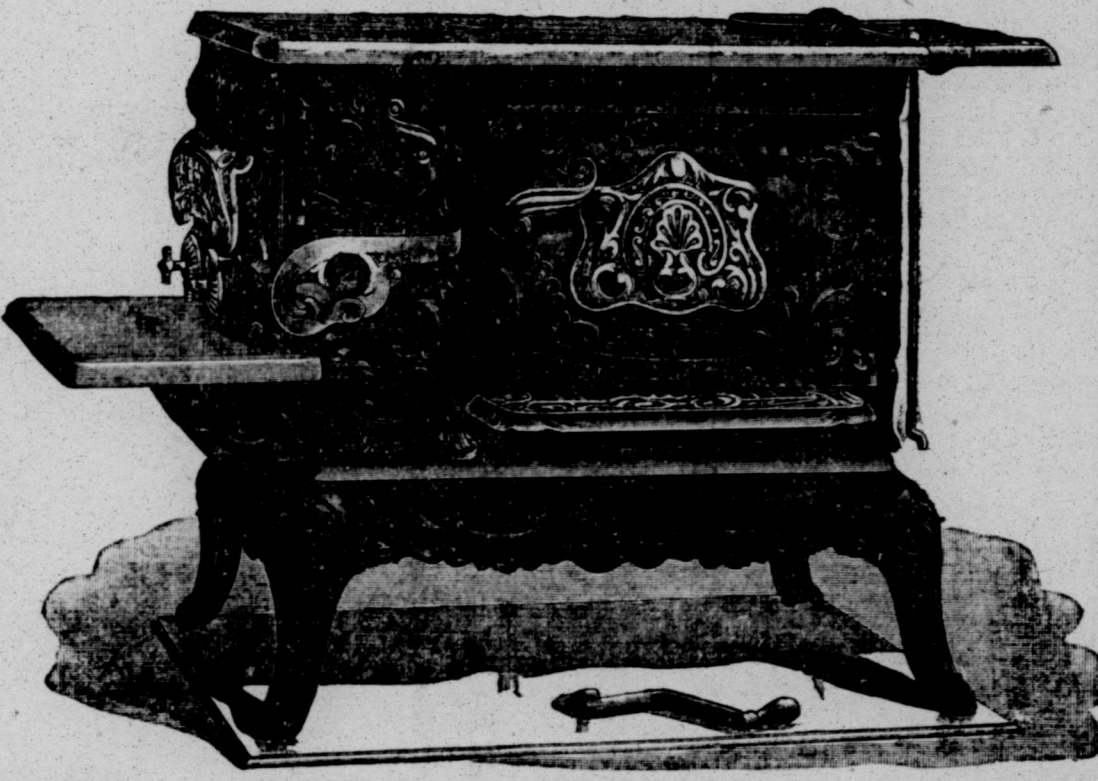

All "Estate" Stoves and Ranges have a mission to perform. That mission consists in maintaining a reputation extending back over a period of nearly sixty years. To do this, they must all be built on honor, must use little fuel, do their work quickly, and be durable; in short, the "Estate" is and must be the best that money can buy and skilled labor can make.

DOWIE IS A PLAGUE

If you have a serious intention of giving money or valuable things to John Alexander Dowie, the prophet, calling himself Elijah II, give it him now and do not make a will. He does not like wills. He is afraid a sensible court will interfere with the get-rich-quick scheme which he is operating and that he will not come into that which the deluded will promise him. Dowie says:

"Much has been said about my wealth. Why do you keep harping on that? Most of my money has been left to me through wills. I am now mentioned as the principal beneficiary in hundreds of wills. I have received hundreds of thousands of dollars through wills and wills have been drawn whereby I will receive vastly more. Only a short time ago I received $80,000 through one will and with it I built a home and presented it to Mrs. Dowie. "But, mind you, I don't approve of disposing of money in wills. It is much better for persons to settle their financial affairs on earth. You know wills are likely to get tangled up in the courts and the beneficiaries do not receive much. "Therefore, I advise any one who is thinking of remembering me in his will not to do so, but to give me what he will before he dies."

There is no doubt he tells the truth when he says he is the beneficiary of many "last testaments." There is a sucker born every minute and some of these who started life about twenty-five and thirty years ago are suckers still and will contribute to the false prophet. Dowie went to New York vowing he would:

- Chase the devil to the deep sea. Raise $5,000,000. Establish another Zion City. Baptize 2,500 persons. Establish Zion tabernacles in various parts of the city. Leave tracts in every house, flat and apartment in the great city. His few days there resulted in this success: Raised riots at Madison Square. Lost his temper in public. Raved instead of preached. Used invective instead of argument. Lost prestige and many thousand dollars by his venture. The Dowie plague is worse than cholera, yellow fever or any scourge known and it should be stopped by some form of law. People who need guardians to protect them from this class of danger should be taken in charge just as lunatics are. The Kansas City World, however, thinks Chicago only will stand for Dowie. The World says: New York went to Dowie, it saw him, and was not conquered. The apostle of Zion made his debut in the great, wicked city a day or so ago. He invaded the fastness of sin, that he might convert the sinners and show them the way to heaven, and incidentally annex some of their coin to his own interests. He hired Madison Square garden and affixed all the accessories necessary for a first-class, strictly up-to-date religious revival, and commenced his fight against vice. But New York would have none of him. It crowded the garden, listened to the opening words of Alexander's sermon and then arose in its might and weariness and screeched out. Then Alexander waxed wrathful. He stamped and he stormed; he raved and he roared. He begged and implored the escaping multitude to "turn back Wittington" and listen to him, but they wouldn't turn, and heartlessly left the place to the saint, his followers, and a few others. Then the magnitude of John Alexander's wrath was hurled down mercilessly upon the dwellers in the dreadful town. He called down maledictions upon them for their lack of interest. He scoffed at them, sneered at them, reviled them and called them all the names, proper and improper, that fitted their case. But New York laughed carelessly and went on its awful way, and if John Alexander waits an audience now he will have to go out into the highways and byways and haul it in, for it is certainly not going to come of its own volition. Go back to Chicago, John Alexander. New York does not want you.

Several months ago Austin advertised for bids for a storm sewer. A Fort Worth contractor made a bid and it was accepted as being the best. Then the council reconsidered the matter and would not let him have the contract, reopening the whole matter. The new plans are ready, and, although complete in every detail, together with the forms of proposal contracts and bonds, and on file in the office of the city clerk since October 12 no contractors have so far called to inspect them. As the proposals for the work are to be opened by the street committee in a week it is feared no bids will be received, as it is said almost a week's time would be wanted in which to make estimates from the plans. No explanation of the inactivity of the contractors is offered. Alderman Maddox, a member of the street committee, stated that he did not know what would be done in case no bids were received. This shows what happens to a city which will not "take fair" in business matters. It was contrary to all custom of contract letting for Austin to have defaulted after awarding the Fort Worth contractor the work and other contractors will not look at the plans because they are afraid they will suffer as did the Fort Worth man. It pays a city to be honest as well as an individual.

DECISION OF INTEREST TO CATTLEMEN

Court of Appeals, Sitting Here, Holds in Favor of W. N. Claxton of Potter County. The Proceedings

In the court of civil appeals for the Second supreme judicial district Saturday, Chief Justice Conner rendered an opinion of more than passing interest to cattlemen. It was in the case of the Interstate National Bank of Kansas City, appellant, vs. W. N. Claxton, a cattleman of Potter county, Texas.

Mr. Claxton obtained judgment against the bank and the bank appealed. The record shows that a cattle commission firm of Kansas City held a note given by the cattleman for $520. It sold some cattle for him for $1,375; he drew $50 at the time and instructed the firm to deduct the $520 on the note and remit the balance to him in Texas. This was on Oct. 28, 1901. On that day, the record shows, the cattle commission firm deposited a total of $825.80 in its own name, with the appellant bank; it was the custom of the firm to deposit in its own name and then draw checks to be remitted to its customers. But it appears the firm was in financial difficulties. Two days before the Claxton transaction there had been an accounting with the bank, and on the day of the Claxton transaction and before the deposit involved was made, the firm gave its note for $30,000 to the bank, secured by a mortgage on personal property belonging to a member of the commission firm. Several weeks later the commission firm was forced into bankruptcy by the bank, which set up that the giving of the note for $30,000 was a virtual acknowledgment of insolvency. The lower court found for Claxton in the sum of $825, the $520 and interest being deducted from the judgment. A TRUST FUND Judge Conner holds that at the conference between the bank and the commission firm two days before the Claxton deposit was made, a virtual trust fund was established. The firm was a commission dealer, or factor, and while the proceeds of sales were deposited in the firm's name, the firm had no real right to them, which fact was known to the bank's officers. "If the bank knew that the firm was insolvent and also that the deposit did not belong to the firm why is it not liable?" asks Judge Conner. As a general rule of law, he says, knowledge is imputed to one who has the means of knowing. He holds that the bank is liable as having at its own peril entered the deposit of Claxton's money to the credit of the commission firm and as having thereafter participated in its unauthorized appropriation of the deposit, and having permitted the firm to wrongfully divert the remainder, to Claxton's entire loss. Judgment of the lower court therefore is affirmed. EXEMPLARY DAMAGES Another decision of interest was that in the case of Mrs. B. E. Anderson vs. the Western Cottek Organ and Piano Company, in which the judgment of the lower court awarding plaintiff the full amount sued for, $465, and exemplary damages in the sum of $500 was affirmed. In this case Mrs. Anderson advanced $465 to a Weatherford piano dealer on representations that the piano company would not "close down" on him. Two days later the firm closed the man's place of business. Mrs. Anderson based her claim on the fact that the representations were made to her by an agent of the company. It is unusual that exemplary damages are obtained in such cases. In the case of P. M. Brown and W. T. Lee, appellants, vs. the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, appellee, the judgment of the lower court was affirmed. This was a case involving a number of intricate law points with reference to guardians of the estates of minor children. Several prominent Denton lawyers were in the court of appeals Saturday submitting the case of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, appellant, vs. J. W. Kennedy, appellee, in which C. Owsley and Providence Mounts represented Kennedy and J. T. Bottorff for the railroad company.

FIGHT AGAINST PIEMEN

Proprietors of New York Lunch Counters Are Up in Arms NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Proprietors of quick lunch counters here are up in arms against the manufacturers of pies. There are four companies which practically control the supply here and they have announced an advance from three and a half to four cents per pie. The lunch counter men are preparing to resist the advance and it is possible the famous product of New England will not be in evidence on their shelves in the near future. There also is talk of a co-operative factory and a general boycott of trust made pies.

HIS TEAR COSTS $20,000

Destruction of Father's Will Causes Heir to Lose Big Share FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 24.—The will of Edward Seydel, whose estate invoices at $225,000, has been filed for probate. It puts all the property in the name of the youngest son, Otto, his father's favorite as trustee. The father gave Otto a deed to property worth $25,000, which was in an envelope with the will. In the presence of all the heirs Otto, for the first time, read the deed, but, fearing it would be a basis of family trouble, he tore it up, saying he would share equally with the rest. The act cost him just $20,000.

The head of the Pacific Express corporation in Texas says he asked Governor Lanham for protection, and that the governor refused it. Governor Lanham says the statement is not a fact. Somebody has distorted facts in this instance, and it is a cinch that Governor Lanham is not the guilty party.—Denison Herald.

Governor Lanham said that he did not reply to the head of the express company on Saturday because he was absent in San Antonio and did not get the message. Does the governor leave his office to conduct opening exercises for fairs and cut all wires of communication? His private secretary ought to know what to do or repeat emergency matters to his chief.

The Fort Worth workingman will do so. The factory will be a big thing for this city. All good things come to Fort Worth.

And The Telegram proposes to put a stop to the pass toting business. Will you help?

There is work for every honest, eager blade of patriot in Texas. The people of this state are not as far from Missouri's danger as they may hope.—Denison Herald.

Keep overlastingly at it and in time the reform will be accomplished.

Several of our local exchangers have announced that they will not support any candidate for office who votes a free pass for any one who will not promise to refuse a free pass after he is elected. This Courier is afraid to say much just now, because free passes are so plentiful in the pockets of officials and the election fixes herabouts that no one but free pass packers will be in the field for some of the offices. Even in the list of free pass packers the Courier has its preferences.—Tyler Courier.

But the Courier can get the people to declare against the prettier and so crystallize public opinion that a law against it will be passed.

The Fort Worth Telegram has started in to reform the legislature in the manner of selecting its clerks, among other things. The house is particularly open to criticism along this line. With a few exceptions, they select an inexperienced crew throughout, every session, and of course they get green and incompetent help among the number. All the mistakes of the last session were chargeable to clerks of the house. In the senate there are fewer changes and less incompetency. Experienced clerks are valuable adjuncts to a legislative body and as a pure matter of business they should be given preference.—Bowie Blade.

The editor of the Blade knows whereof he speaks. He has been there. He is one of those "in the senate" and he knows The Telegram fight is a proper one.

Perhaps you forgot to look hungry. But you are steered wrong. The only way to arouse sympathy on a Fort Worth street corner is to look thirsty.—Bellville Times.

The Fort Worth Telegram says the packing companies must have more hogs. We have known some editors who would make better success raising hogs than conducting newspapers. The Telegram man might try it.—Mineral Wells Index.

The editor of the Index should remember that people who live in glass houses must not throw rocks.

Governor Lanham was in San Antonio having a good time when he was appealed to for help in the Pacific Express strike and therefore could, of course, not be guilty of refusing the appeal, even though he had desired to do so and the occasion had demanded such a course on his part.—Corsicana Sun.

The governor ought to keep in touch with his office even if he is on a junketing trip.

go out. But I had no idea that it was for any purpose other than to join some social gathering?

"Dressed this way?" The captain pointed to the floor and her eyes followed. Certainly Mrs. Jeffrey was not appareled for an evening company.

"I did not notice. She often wore black—it became her. My sister was eccentric."

"Worse, worse than useless. Some slips cannot be explained away. Miss Tuttle seemed to realize that this was one of them, for she paused abruptly, with the words half finished on her tongue. Yet her attitude commanded respect, and I for one, was ready to accord it to her."

"Certainly, such a woman was not to be seen every day, and if her replies lacked candor, there was a nobility in her presence which gave the lie to any doubt. At least, that was the effect she produced on me. Whether or not her interrogator shared my feeling I could not so readily determine, for his attention as well as mine was suddenly diverted by the cry which now escaped her lips."

"Her watch! Where is her watch? It is gone! I saw it on her breast, and it's gone. It hung just—just where—"

"Wait!" cried one of the men who had been peering about the floor. "Is this it?"

He held aloft a small object blaz with jewels. "Yes," she gasped, trying to take it.

But the officer gave it to the captain instead. "It must have slipped from her as she fell," remarked the latter, after a cursory examination of the glittering trinket. "The pin by which she attached it to her dress must have been insecurely fastened."

Then quickly and with a sharp look at Miss Tuttle: "Do you know if this was considered an accurate time-piece?"

"Yes. Why do you ask? Is it—"

"Look!" He held it up with the face toward us. The hands stood at thirteen minutes past seven. "The hour and the moment when it struck the floor," he declared, "and consequently the hour and the moment when Mrs. Jeffrey fell," finished Durbin.

Miss Tuttle said nothing, only gasped. "Valuable evidence," quoth the captain, putting the watch in his pocket. Then, with a kind look at her, called forth by the sight of her misery: "Does this hour agree with the time of her leaving the house?"

"I cannot say. I think so. It was some time before or after seven. I don't remember the exact minute."

"It would take fifteen for her to walk here. Did she walk?"

"I do not know. I didn't see her leave. My room is at the back of the house."

"You can say if she left alone or in the company of her husband?"

"Mr. Jeffrey was not with her."

"Was Mr. Jeffrey in the house?"

"He was not."

This last negative was faintly spoken. The captain noticed this and ventured upon interrogating her further. "How long had he been gone?"

Her lips parted; she was deeply agitated but when she spoke it was coldly and with studied precision. "Mr. Jeffrey was not at home tonight at all. He has not been in all day."

"Not at home? Did his wife know that he was going to dine out?"

"She said nothing about it."

The captain cut short his questions and in another moment I understood why. A gentleman was standing in the doorway, whose face once seen, was enough to stop the words on any man's lips. Miss Tuttle said this gentleman almost as quickly as we did and sank with an involuntary moan to her knees.

It was Francis Jeffrey came to look upon his dead bride.

I have been present at many tragic scenes and have beheld men under almost every aspect of grief, terror and remorse; but there was something in the face of this man at this dreadful moment that was quite new to me, and as I judge, equally new to the other hardy officials about me. To be sure he was a gentleman and a very high-bred one at that; and it is but seldom we have to do with any of his ilk.

Breathlessly we awaited his first words. Not that he showed frenzy or made any display of the grief or surprise natural to the occasion. On the contrary he was the quietest person present, and among all the emotions his white face mirrored I saw no signs of what might be called sorrow. Yet his appearance was one to wring the heart and rouse the most contradictory conjectures as to what chord in his evidently highly-strung nature throbbed most acutely to the horror and astonishment of this appalling end of so short a married life.

His eye which was fixed on the prostrate body of his bride, did not yield up its secret. When he moved and came to where she lay and caught his first sight of the ribbon and the pistol attached to it the most experienced among us were baffled as to the nature of his feelings and

The FILIGREE BALL

SYNOPSIS

The story, which deals with the mystery of the old Moore house in Washington, is told by a detective sergeant, who was drawn into the case by a call from "Uncle David" Moore. The detective accompanies Mr. Moore to the old house, where three mysterious murders had been committed. On the way he tells the detective of the murders and of the determination of Miss Veronica Moore to have her wedding ceremony performed in the abandoned house and of the tragic death of a strange man, who was found on the hearth of the mysterious room on the day of the wedding.

The story, which deals with the mystery of the old Moore house in Washington, is told by a detective sergeant, who was drawn into the case by a call from "Uncle David" Moore. The detective accompanies Mr. Moore to the old house, where three mysterious murders had been committed. On the way he tells the detective of the murders and of the determination of Miss Veronica Moore to have her wedding ceremony performed in the abandoned house and of the tragic death of a strange man, who was found on the hearth of the mysterious room on the day of the wedding.

"Uncle David and the detective see a light in the old house, and on entering the detective finds the dead body of Mrs. Jeffrey, formerly Veronica Moore, on the hearth where the stranger had been found dead. The case looked like suicide. He noticed on the wall of the room a faded picture, which fascinated him, and while he believed in the suicide theory, he determined to discover the secret if possible.

"My sister! Where is my sister?" The captain made a hurried movement toward the rear and then with the laudable intention, doubtless, of preparing her for the ghastly sight which awaited her, returned and opened a way for her into the drawing-room. But she was not to be turned aside from her course. Passing him, she made directly for the library, which she entered with a bound. Struck by her daring, we all crowded up behind her, and curious brutes that we were, grouped ourselves in a semicircle about the doorway as she faltered toward her sister's outstretched form and fell on her knees beside it. Her involuntary shriek and the fierce recoil she made as her eyes fell on the long white ribbon trailing over the floor from her sister's wrist, struck me as voicing the utmost horror of which the human soul is capable. It was as though her very soul were pierced. Something in the fact itself something in the appearance of this snowy ribbon tied to the scarce whiter wrist, seemed to pluck at the very root of her being; and when her gloom, in traveling its length, lighted on the death-dealing weapon at its end, she cringed in such apparent anguish that we looked to see her fall in a swoon or break out into delirium. We were correspondingly startled when she suddenly burst forth with this word of stern command: "Untie that knot! Why do you leave that dreadful thing fast to her? Untie it, I say, it is killing me. I cannot bear the sight." And from trembling she passed to sundering till her whole body shook convulsively.

The captain, with much consideration, drew back the hand he had impulsively stretched toward the ribbon. "No, no," he protested, "we cannot do that; we can do nothing till the coroner comes. It is necessary that he should see her just as she was found. Besides, Mr. Jeffrey has a right to the same privilege. We expect him any moment."

The beautiful head of the woman before us shook involuntarily, but her lips made no protest. I doubt if she possessed the power of speech at that moment. A change, subtle, but quite perceptible, had taken place in her emotions at mention of her sister's husband, and though she exerted herself to remain calm, the effort seemed too much for her strength. Anxious to hide this evidence of weakness, she rose impetuously, and then we saw how tall she was, how the long lines of her cloak became her, and what a glorious creature she was altogether.

"It will kill him," she groaned in a deep inward voice. Then, with a certain forced haste and in a tone of surprise which to my ear had not quite a natural ring, she called aloud on her who could no longer either listen or answer: "Oh, Veronica, Veronica! What cause had you for death? And why do we find you lying here in a spot you so feared and detested?"

"Don't you know?" insinuated the captain, with a mild persuasiveness, such as he was seldom heard to use. "Do you mean that you cannot account for your sister's violent end, you, who have lived with her—or so I have been told—ever since her marriage with Mr. Jeffrey?"

"Yes." Keen and clear the word rang out, fierce in its keenness and almost too clear to be in keeping with the half-choked tones with which she added: "I know that she was not happy, that she never has been happy since the shadow which this room suggests fell upon her marriage. But how could I so much as dream that her dread of the past or her fear of the future would drive her to suicide, and in this place of all places? Had I done so—had I imagined in the least degree that she was affected to this extent—do you think that I would have left her for one instant alone? None of us knew that she contemplated death. She had no appearance of it; she laughed when I—"

"What had she been about to say? The captain seemed to wonder, and after waiting in vain for the completion of her sentence, he quietly suggested: "You have not finished what you had to say, Miss Tuttle."

She started and seemed to come back from some remote region of thought into which she had wandered. "I don't know—I forgot," she stammered, with a heart-broken sigh. "Poor Veronica! Wretched Veronica! How small I ever tell him! How, how, can we ever prepare him?"

The captain took advantage of this reference to Mr. Jeffrey to ask where that gentleman was. The young lady did not seem eager to reply, but when pressed, answered, though somewhat mechanically, that it was impossible for her to say; that Mr. Jeffrey had many friends, with any one of whom he might be enjoying a social evening. "But it is far past midnight now," remarked the captain. "Is he in the habit of remaining out late?"

"Sometimes," she faintly admitted. "Two or three times, since his marriage he has been out till one."

Were there other causes for the young bride's evident disappointment and misery besides the one intimated? There certainly was some excuse for thinking so.

Possibly some one of us may have shown his doubts in this regard, for the woman before us suddenly broke forth with this vehement assertion: "Mr. Jeffrey was a loving husband to my sister. A very loving husband," she emphasized. Then, growing desperately pale, she added, "I have never known a better man," and stopped.

Some hidden anguish in this cry, some self-consciousness in this pause, suggested to me a possibility which I was glad to see ignored by the captain in his next question. "When did you see your sister last?" he asked. "Were you at home when she left her husband's house?"

"Alas!" she murmured. Then seeing that a more direct answer was expected of her, she added with a little appearance of effort as possible: "I was at home and heard her
