YALE... Home for Defeat by Princeton With Superb Victory From Harvard... BEFORE CROWD OF 45,000 ENTHUSIASTS... Who Witness One of the Greatest Contests in History of the Game... 16 TO 0 IS THE SCORE IN FAVOR OF BLUES

Made by Superior Punting, Better Knowledge of the Game and Faster Work Than Furnished by Crimson Team... SOLDIERS FIELD, CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—One of the greatest battles ever fought between the rival football elevens of the nation's oldest two universities is over and Yale has added another victory to her already long list, defeating Harvard this afternoon 16 to 0.

Never before has such a wild demonstration been made and when the teams trotted upon the field the heavens were rent with the deafening shouts and college yells. The teams appeared to be about evenly matched in weight when time was first called, but it was not long before the superiority of the New Haven men began to assert itself.

They were an eager lot, so eager that it got them into plenty of trouble as the game progressed. Many times they were penalized for penalties for off-side playing. All through their game was a magnificent spectacle of hard, plucky football.

Probably the greatest work of the day was when the Harvard team had the ball on Yale's one-half yard line. It was Harvard's second down with less than half a yard to go. It looked decidedly like a touch-down and Marshall sent Nichols with the ball to make the required result. This was not to be for the Yale men by hard effort held Harvard for downs. Not alone was this a startling bit of work but that which followed was equally wonderful.

YESTERDAY'S FOOTBALL GAMES... Yale 16, Harvard 0; Franklin and Marshall 0; Rutgers 0; Union 11, New York University 0; Virginia 6, Carlisle 0; navy 0, Virginia Polytechnic Institute 0; Lehigh 10, Lafayette 6; Michigan 42, Oberlin 0; Georgetown 29, Gallaudet 0; Northwestern 6, Wisconsin 6; Minnesota 49, Agriculturalists 0; Iowa 5, Illinois 0; University of Tennessee 10, Georgia School of Technology 0; Jefferson City, Tenn. Deaf and Dumb 4, Carson and Newman 0.

DAMAGE SUIT MAY FOLLOW AN ELECTION... City Engineer of Dallas Is Injured in Tussle With Employees of Interurban in Oak Cliff Last Evening... DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Hugh Rains, city engineer of Dallas, was ejected from an interurban car on the Oak Cliff line this evening by one of the company's employes, and in the struggle had a bone in his left hand broken.

TWO MEN ARE ARRESTED... Charged With Holding Up Operator Dalton at Girardville, Pa. TAMAUQUA, Pa., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Wm. Carey and Patrick Brennan, both of Girardville, were arrested today on a charge of burglary, and being involved in the holding up of Operator John Dalton at the Girardville station of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad about 11:30 last night.

CHARGE OF ELECTRICITY... At St. Louis World's Fair Is Given to a Chicago Man... CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Edward B. Elliott, city electrician, informed Mayor Harrison by long distance telephone from St. Louis today that he has been appointed chief electrical and mechanical engineer of the Louisiana Purchase exposition and the mayor gave him leave of absence extending from Dec. 1 to May 1, next. It will be Mr. Elliott's task to assume charge of all electrical and mechanical work at the exposition and the first thing to be done will be to design and install a power and lighting plant.

ASSIGNMENT AT PARIS... PARIS, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—L. Danneman, doing a general saddlery and harness business, assigned his stock today to W. A. Rowland for the benefit of his creditors. Assets, $3,448.48; liabilities, $3,571.43.

PLOT... Involving Robbery of Property Worth Thousands From the Rock Island... REMARK BY A WOMAN GIVES THE CLUE... Officers Follow Suspects Very Closely in Efforts to Effect Capture AND THREE TRAINMEN SUDDENLY DISAPPEAR... Officials of the Road Believe They Have Stopped Gigantic Scheme of Pilfering Which Has Baffled Them for Years

Because a woman talked, the Rock Island railroad has been enabled to get to the bottom of one of the biggest conspiracies ever concocted for the purpose of robbing a railroad in the United States. When the one woman talked, another talked and then a man who was a trainman in the employ of the railroad saw the stern arms of the law closing about him and deserted his train between stations.

HAS COST ROAD THOUSANDS... As a result of the operations of this clique which is now practically broken up, the Rock Island railroad has in the last three years paid out thousands of dollars in shortages. Shipment after shipment into Texas has turned up at its destination short. Costly silks, laces, bolts of ribbon, fine shoes, boxes of needles, boxes of thread, silk hose, perfume, corsets, dozens of razors—all these and countless other articles have been missing from time to time and no trace of them was found until recently.

THE MEN WARNED... When the railroad company's agent had departed, it is evident the woman managed to transmit a warning to the man. He had departed on his run. She probably reached him by telegraph or long distance phone while he was with his train for the man was missed by the rest of the crew before Chickasha was reached.

PRISONERS AT LIBERTY... Eight Tunnel Through 12-inch Brick Wall and Make Good Escape... TEXARKANA, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Eight prisoners confined in the county jail on the Arkansas side, two white and six negroes, made their escape by tunnelling through a 12-inch brick wall last night. They were under charges of theft and robbery. Two white prisoners declined to avail themselves of the opportunity to escape but did not give the alarm. The escaped men have not been captured.

FAVORS ARBITRATION... LONDON, Nov. 21.—According to the Times, a leading Russian liberal magazine, the Vestnik Vostopy, suggests submitting the question of the rate of Manufacture to an arbitration court.

BRIBERY... Charges Against General Wood Being Skillfully Massed in Evidence... UNDER GUIDANCE OF SENATOR HANNA... Testimony of Herbert J. Brown Given Before the Investigating Committee... ALLEGES WOOD GOT PEARLS AND SILVER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Herbert J. Brown, a local newspaper man, who was in Cuba during the American occupation, in his explanation today in the charges against General Leonard Wood, being made by the senate committee on military affairs, corroborated the previous testimony of E. F. Rathbone. Under Senator Hanna's skillful guidance, a strong case is being made of it against Wood.

EXPLOSION IN A MINE KILLS TWO... Circumstances Attending the Death of Officials Near Cripple Creek Look Like Murder. No Arrests Yet Made... CRIPPLE CREEK, Col., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—An explosion occurred at the Sixth level of the Vindicator mine, 600 feet below the surface, located in the center of the town of Independence, near here about 11 o'clock today, resulting in the killing of Superintendent Charles McCormack and Shift Boss Melvin Beck of the mine.

NEW YORK HORSE SHOW... Large Crowds at Madison Square for Last Night... NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—A large crowd of lovers of horse flesh was at Madison Square Garden to view the last of the week's exhibition. Many beautiful horses were to be seen as usual in the boxes and many a smile and pleasant glance their owners gave to the passers-by who recognized them as they were promenading round the ring.

RIGHTS OF THE COMPANY... Are Rescued by New Treaty With Republic of Panama... WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Relative to the report that under the new Panama canal treaty the new Panama canal company is deprived of all rights under the concession, Jm. Nelson Cromwell, general counsel of the company, tonight in a statement quoted provisions of the treaty showing a safe-guard for every right. The provisions specifically recognize and confirm the concessionary rights of the canal company granted by Colombia. They also provide for the transfer of the rights impaired to the United States.

ST. LOUIS FIRM FAILS... ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—An involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed here this afternoon against the recently organized M. J. Healey Co-Operative Furniture and Carpet Company. Assets and liabilities not stated.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE IS AT HAND... Chicago Street Car Troubles Are Nearly at an End, According to Attorneys Representing Union Interests... CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Possibility of a settlement of the street car strike in so far as it can be settled before being formally ratified at a mass meeting of the trainmen, was admitted late this afternoon by Colonel E. R. Bliss, representing the City Railway Company, and Attorneys Darrow and Prentiss, representing the union.

SIX DAY WALK ENDED... Race at Philadelphia Closes With Little Show of Interest... PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The six day go as you please race ended at 10:30. Metkus and Fabry won, their victory having been virtually a foregone conclusion since Monday. No records were broken by any of the walkers. Manager Eckardt stated tonight that about $2,500 would be divided among the competing teams.

PROPHET'S WOES ARE MULTIPLIED... Suits for Debts Press Heavily On the Leader of the Hosts of Zion... CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—It has not been a path of roses that John Alexander "Elijah" Dowie has trod since returning from his first redemption of New York. In fact, it has been very like the road to Jordan, "very hard to trample." The suits for debt brought against Dowie in the last month amount to $100,000, every day adds to the growing list and in addition there are pay rolls defaulted at Zion City. Today's lists aggregate $4,250—Bell Manufacturing Co., $2,500; Patent Vulcanite Roofing Co., $2,000; Union Fibre Co., $1,500; John W. Shute & Co., $250.

TWO BOYS KILLED... DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 21.—Two unknown boys who were stealing a ride were killed in a freight wreck on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas near Forrester, Texas. The second section of train No. 75 was telescoped by the first section of No. 55 which plowed its way through the caboose and three cars of the first train.

FLAMES HAVE BEEN RAGING FOR DAYS... No Lives Are Lost, But All Property in the Path of the Flames Has Been Destroyed. Smoke Darkens the Sky... DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—For the last three days it has been almost impossible to see for a distance of three blocks in Dallas, because of smoke rolling in from a long distance. The cause was not learned until tonight. Reports from Jacksonville, on the line of the Texas New Orleans railway, 150 miles southeast of Dallas, state that all the country east of Nacogdoches, for approximately one hundred miles square, is being swept by the most destructive timber fires ever known in southeastern Texas.

CRAP SHOOTERS COOPED... Because They Unconsciously Played Craps Close to the Calaboose... DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—At 11 o'clock tonight a squad of deputy sheriffs raided sixteen cotton patch negroes playing craps in a building on the same block in which the county jail is located. Not a player escaped and all are locked up.

TO MERGE THE SOCIETIES
Steps Will Be Taken to Unite All Farmers in One Body
CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(Special)—Measures to amalgamate all farmers' associations will be taken at a meeting of the advisory board of the Farmers' National Association, which will be held at the Grand Pacific, December 5. The state association will meet at the same time. It is believed that every farmers' organization will be merged into one mammoth society as a result of the conference.

MARKET VALUES DO NOT JUSTIFY HIGH PRICE OF MEAT

With a Steady Decline in Live Stock the Cost to the Public Shows No Falling Off

With the market price of cattle down to such a point that farmers and feeders are counting how much they will lose if they continue to feed corn, prices of beef to the consumer are as high as when cattle brought fancy prices.

With the hog market going steadily lower, the price of bacon and hams is higher today than a year ago. Some pork products have actually advanced while the price of hogs was going down. There is usually a reason for such things. If a man talks to the butcher who delivers his meat at his house every morning the butcher will disclaim any knowledge of the reason for prevailing prices and will produce his bills from the packer to show from them that he is paying as much for beef as he did two years ago and more for some of his pork products. There are some few butchers who have made more than a proportionate advance in prices, but a rule that is able to show that the fault is not his and pass the responsibility to the packer.

On the other hand, the feeder has good room for complaint. If he bought cattle last spring, fed them on grass through the summer and is feeding them on corn now, he can sit down and readily figure it out that he has lost money at the present market values.

Supply and demand may regulate the prices in some things, but neither the butcher, the farmer, nor the consumer can see why if the supply justifies the reduction of the price of cattle on the hoof it would not also justify a reduction of the price of meat on the block.

If the packer could pay $1, $1.25 or $1.50 per hundred pounds more for the live animal last year than he is paying now, why can't he pay the same price now when he is getting the same price for his meat?

The only explanation the farmer and the consumer have for the present market situation and high prices of meat is that the packers have the thing all their own way and can govern values to suit themselves.

A PACKER'S EXPLANATION
Packers, however, deny that there is anything really inconsistent in the present prices of meat. C. W. Armour, head of the Armour Packing Company, offers the following explanation:

"Prices for the live animals have been high and the 1901 drought was in part the reason. We have not, until recently, been able to get enough hogs. We are 175,000 head short of our normal business this year, and even then we have been compelled to bring hogs from Sioux City to Kansas City, and in one instance from Chicago for curing. The year of the drought the farmers dumped their hogs on us without regard to their condition. They sold old hogs and young hogs, and some farmers were almost without hogs when winter came. The next year was a good year, but hogs were scarce and prices stayed high. The farmers sold their old hogs to get the advantage of the high prices, for they knew they would not last permanently. The cured meats we are selling now came from hogs that cost us much more than we are paying just at this time.

"As for cattle, the production has been large. Corn is relatively high. Beef prices on the hoof are lower now, but one reason is that so many undesirable unfinished cattle are put on the market. I think the farmers who hold their stock will profit by it. We would much prefer to have the cattle come to market in better condition. It costs just about as much to make a poor bullock into beef as a good one, relatively a great deal more. We have not seen a lower average grade of cattle marketed since about 1902."

ADVANCED COST OF LABOR
"The expense of handling is something the public is not familiar with. Labor and coal cost much more than last year. Labor is 30 per cent higher. On a pay roll of $2,000,000 a year that means $600,000 increase. Boxes that cost us $200,000 a year last year cost $250,000 this year. I don't suppose people will believe it, but I can show you figures that will prove that the item of coal costs ten cents, a ton more for each bullock than a year ago. In every part of our business we meet increased expense except in the price we pay for the animals. Some of the products have fallen greatly in price."

Mr. Armour further says that the complaint about prices comes from people who want the best meats. The packers have found a great change in conditions as compared to a few years ago. Butchers in Kansas City buy a better part of the beef. The company will get an order for a side of beef with a call for extra ribs and loins. There are more people who will not eat anything but porterhouse steaks and rib roasts than the packers have ever had to deal with before. The people who buy chuck and round steaks, he says, are not making complaint. They can get good, wholesome meat, free from bone, for eight cents a pound, he said, but the demand for choice cuts is the hard thing for the packers to meet.

NON-ETERNITY WITH SUPREME COURT

What Mr. Armour says only partly covers the case. When the beef combine was before the supreme court the court only imposed part of the legal penalty, and let them off with a fine. The law says that they shall be ousted of their right to do business in the state. Only part of the penalty has been imposed on the packers' combine, and the packers are in much the same condition as a man who has been fined and sentenced to jail but allowed to go on parole on payment of his fine. A new proceeding by the attorney general might have a tendency to bring prices down to where they belong.

INVESTIGATION AT MUSKOGEE, I. T.

Charges Against Indian Administration Are Being Looked Into

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Nov. 21.—(Special).—Yesterday afternoon Clinton Woodruff, who was selected to assist Mr. Bonapart in the investigation of the Indian administration in the Indian Territory, arrived in this city and has taken up the work. He stated that Mr. Bonapart would be here about the middle of December to take charge of the work in person.

Mr. Woodruff had a conference with the officials of the Indian officers last night and this morning he had a session with Hon. Tams Bixby, chairman of the Dawes commission. At this interview he posed questions at the chairman rapidly, showing that he has an intimate knowledge of the conditions and affairs here.

Mr. Woodruff comes from Philadelphia, the home of the Indian Rights Association, which caused the investigation.

New York Doctors

Wonderful Cures—Remarkable Recoveries

Since locating in Fort Worth the New York Doctors have had over 200 people from all walks of life. Many among the most prominent of the city, who have called and placed themselves under treatment and you hear nothing but words of praise for those whom you see and meet at their crowded offices daily.

We have been publishing ladies' testimonials to prove to you that we cure the most chronic and intractable cases of disease occurring in women after other physicians have failed to benefit them. Now we publish men's testimonials, proving to you that we cure them. We never publish testimonials without consent of the parties treated and never publish testimonials of men's special diseases.

W. E. Andrews, 1323 Jackson street, Pueblo, Colo., in the poultry business, says: I have been under treatment one and one-half months for catarrh and catarrhal diseases; got so it was very inconvenient doing business on account of bearing. I can hear better every day and am satisfied with treatment. My patrons all notice my hearing is improving. I consulted other specialists and they would not give me any encouragement. New York Doctors did encourage me and are gradually curing me.

Ans. Thomas, 617 East Second street, Pueblo, Colo., says: Commenced treatment the 24th of August with New York Doctors for lung trouble; pronounced tuberculosis or consumption by my doctors after examination of my sputum; was poor in flesh, could not eat and had a bad cough. At once on commencing treatment with New York Doctors, conditions changed, commenced to eat and grow fat, cough stopped. Have been working steadily now for three weeks and am as well as I ever was. I say go to New York Doctors if you want to get well. Other doctors failed to cure me.

LADIES Do not be operated on for your troubles. Come to the New York Doctors as many others have done after being told that nothing but an operation would cure them, and get well.

DISEASES OF MEN TREATED by the latest methods and cures made. MEN COME TO US. It is not necessary to give a long list of your troubles. Consult us. We can and do treat you successfully.

All chronic diseases treated successfully. Remember three months' service free (medicines excepted) to all who call soon. Men, women, and children, if sick and afflicted, call on New York Doctors. If you can not call, write. Our home treatment is successful. Offices, 612 Main street. Hours, 9 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Sundays, 9 to 12 a. m.

The New York ART STUDIO

of 187 Murphy street, Dallas, will shortly open a branch studio in this city. Pastels and oils of the finest grades. Give them a call. What nicer than a Pastel for a Christmas present.

GRAND JURY RETURNS 139 TRUE BILLS

Price Nowell, Among Those Indicted, Again Furnishes Appearance Bond

LIQUOR BOND LAW ATTACKED IN COURT

Counsel for Saloon Men Maintains That the Law Is Unconstitutional

ONE YOUNG MAN WELCOMES FREEDOM

Rufus Martin's Motion for a New Trial Partly Argued. Mrs. Boyd-Wilder Obtains a Divorce

The Tarrant county grand jury yesterday adjourned until Dec. 14 after returning 139 true bills, six of which are felony cases.

Price Nowell who recently shot and killed Will Tackaberry was indicted for that offense. He already was out on bond, but after the return of the indictment was again arraigned, this time in the Seventeenth district court.

Judge Mike E. Smith fixed his bond at $5,000 which was furnished by Ben O. Smith, W. R. Edgington, A. M. McElwee and Joe Posthress.

WELCOMED FREEDOM Shortly after Nowell left the court room an interesting scene was enacted when W. A. Brooks, a young man who was arrested last spring in connection with a robbery at E. G. Gilbert's store, was brought in. Brooks had been in jail ever since his arrest, many months ago. His lawyer yesterday took him before Judge Smith who released him on his own recognizance.

The boy could hardly believe he was free to go when his attorney so informed him. He walked steadily to the court room door and as soon as it closed behind him, broke into a run and the last seen of him he was speeding down Main street as fast as his legs would take him.

AN ALLEGED FORGER J. A. McFarland who is charged with obtaining $500 from the Farmers' and Mechanics bank last January on a forged check, was arraigned and Judge Smith fixed his bond at $1,000. McFarland was arrested in Colorado and brought here after failure to convict him on a similar charge there. The check which he is alleged to have presented here is one that is supposed to have been drawn by E. Schinzel, the name of B. H. Lawrence, treasurer of H. W. Williams & Co., was signed to the forged check. It is alleged Schinzel cashed two checks forged on the same company in Dallas on the same day that the forged check was cashed here. The forgeries were so clever that they easily deceived men familiar with Williams & Co.'s checks.

At the hearing yesterday, Ben H. Martin, assistant cashier of the Farmers and Mechanics bank made an almost positive identification of McFarland, saying that he was "morally certain" he is the right one. McFarland strenuously denies the charge.

CREWS HEARING POSTPONED Andrew Crews' motion for a new trial was to have been heard by Judge Smith yesterday, but it was passed over until next Saturday. Crews recently was found guilty of murdering Hendricks Long and the jury assessed his punishment at life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

LIQUOR BOND CASES A good part of yesterday in the Seventeenth district court was taken up by arguments of counsel in the liquor bond cases, on a plea in abatement. Some very interesting points were raised by counsel for the saloon men. Indeed the whole liquor bond law is made the object of attack.

In this case it will be remembered County Attorney Littmore is suing a number of saloon men for alleged violation of the open house statute by erecting screens in the interior of their places of business in such a way as to cut off the view from the street. The saloon men are sued for $5,000 each, ten violations of the statute being alleged in each case. The county attorney holds that each day on which the screens are allowed to stand constitutes a separate offense, the penalty being $500 fine for each offense.

LIQUOR BOND LAW There are numerous points of attack but one of the principal ones is an attack on the constitutionality of the liquor bond law. It is set up by counsel for the saloon men that the law violates the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. The decision of the United States supreme court which knocked out the Illinois court trust law because certain Illinois producers were exempted is cited. This decision was quoted in The Telegram of last Sunday in the report of the opinion of the civil court of appeals delivered a week ago yesterday in which the law regulating fraternal beneficiary associations in Texas was held to be unconstitutional. The decision in that case was that by exempting fraternal beneficiary associations from certain regulations and thus giving them privileges not enjoyed by others, the fourteenth amendment was violated.

Counsel for the saloon men in the case argued yesterday points out that the liquor bond law permits of the manufacture of wine in Texas out of grapes grown in this state without being subject to the payments exacted of others under the same law. This, counsel contends, is a violation of the fourteenth amendment.

Judge Smith will hand down opinions this week in both this case and the Sam Butler fee bill case.

FORTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT The motion for a new trial in the Rufus Martin case was argued yesterday in the forty-eighth district court. Judge Irby Dunlap presiding. Leave to amend the motion was granted. After arguments had proceeded for some time the hearing was postponed until next Saturday. Martin, it will be recalled, is under conviction for the murder of Charles Swackhammer, the jury having assessed the punishment at death.

Judge Dunklin yesterday granted a divorce to Mrs. Kate Boyd-Wilder, who was the wife of J. M. Boyd-Wilder, who is now in the penitentiary. Boyd-Wilder created a sensation last spring by making an alleged confession in regard to the killing of a young man in the Rock Island railroad yards several years ago in which he attempted to implicate a number of persons, including his half-brother.

COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS The proceedings in the court of civil appeals for the Second supreme judicial district in Fort Worth yesterday, were as follows: Motions submitted—Interstate National Bank vs. W. N. Claxton, for rehearing; Fort Worth and Denver City Railway Company vs. Mary E. Linthicum et al. for rehearing; J. I. McLeod et al. vs. State of Texas, for leave to file second motion for rehearing and to re-submit the case; Fort Worth and Denver City Railway Company vs. J. B. Dale et al. to dismiss appeal.

SPRECKLES IS VERY ILL

Pacific Coast Millionaire Suffering From Paralytic Stroke

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Claus Spreckles, the sugar merchant, who is regarded as the richest man on the Pacific coast, is ill and his age and the fact that he recently had a stroke of paralysis makes his condition critical, says a Times dispatch from San Francisco. Mr. Spreckles, who is 75 years of age, suffered an apoplectic stroke just after his recent return from abroad, and it is rumored that the present illness is due to a second stroke, which has so affected his throat that he is unable to speak. Doctors are in constant attendance.

The report of a second stroke is denied by his oldest son, John D. Spreckles.

FORECAST

For Fort Worth and vicinity—Tonight and Sunday, generally fair weather; not much change in temperature; a little more pleasant Sunday. For Texas east of the 100th meridian—North, tonight and Sunday generally fair, except probably rain in east portion Sunday; South, tonight and Sunday unsettled weather and probably rain.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The weather is slowly moderating. The coldest weather is now along the North Atlantic coast. Freezing weather is still a prominent feature in the Southern states with the exception of the Gulf coast region. Freezing weather also continues throughout the Middle West, Northwest and Rocky Mountain states; there is no zero temperature, however, the lowest was about 18 degrees above.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING
 Members of Fort Worth Ruling 349 Requested to Meet
 There will be an important meeting of the Fort Worth Ruling No. 349 tomorrow night at Odd Fellows' hall, 605 Main street. All members of the lodge are earnestly requested to be present, as matters of vital interest will be discussed. At this meeting the new by-laws will be passed upon, also the officers for the ensuing year will be nominated and the degree work be exemplified. After the business meeting light refreshments will be served.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR THE POOR

Special Service Next Thursday
 at St. Andrew's Parish House—Gifts Asked

There is to be an especial service at St.
 Andrew's church Thanksgiving day, at which time Rev. E. B. Ramage, rector, will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.
 It is the custom in the Episcopal parish here to have an offering each Thanksgiving day for the poor people. This offering is to be of the fruits of the earth. The contributions will be sent to the church and will be used in decorating the chancel for the service. After the service these contributions will be distributed under the direction of the rector.
 Mr. Ramage requests all who will contribute, to send the contributions to the parish house Wednesday afternoon, between the hours of 2 and 5.

ROCK ISLAND OFFICES

Undergoing Improvements Preparatory to Increase of Forces December 1
 The general office building of the Rock Island is undergoing alteration in preparation for the reception of the additional force that is to be added to the general offices December 1 from Dalhart. On that date the auditing department of the Choctaw company will be removed to Fort Worth. December 1 is said to be the date on which the general consolidation of the Rock Island lines in Texas is to take place, under the name of Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf Company. It is also said that service between Fort Worth and Dallas is to be inaugurated, although nothing definite on the matter can be learned authoritatively in this city. However, it is generally believed here that the first regular trains on this branch of the Rock Island road will be run on that date.
 Officials of the road have just made a trip over the line from Fort Worth to Dallas, and pronounce the roadbed in good condition.

LINE FROM JUAREZ

To the Pacific Coast Will Be Built Soon
 by Syndicate Within the past few weeks there has been a rumor to the effect that a railroad would be constructed from Juarez, Mex., to the Pacific coast, and now comes the information from the republic that work on the new line is to commence very soon.
 The road, while it will parallel the Sierra Madre railroad for some distance, will

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous.
 The thing to do is to take

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Which thoroughly cleanse the blood, expelling all humors and building up the whole system. They cure Hood's Sarsaparilla permanently cured J.
 G. Hines, Franks, Ill., of eczema, from which he had suffered for some time; and Miss Alvina Wolter, Box 212, Algona, Wis., of pimples on her face and back and chafed skin on her body, by which she had been greatly troubled. There are more testimonials in favor of Hood's than can be published.
 Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

not be a part of that system. The syndicate contemplating building the road is headed by David Johnson, one of the richest and most influential Mormons in Mexico, who is the owner of immense tracts of undeveloped lands, through which the proposed line will pass. It is also reported that other rich Mormons in Utah are to be interested in the enterprise.

The proposed line will probably pass Palomas, Colonia Juarez and thence southwest across the country to the Pacific ocean. From near the starting point to the ocean the road will be a very hard piece of engineering on account of the mountain ranges and the broken uplands.
 The only feasible way the road can cross the Sierra Madre mountains is down the sides of the rivers which cross into the state of Sonora.

The country through which the road will pass is unrivaled for mineral wealth and is very susceptible to agriculture. It is understood that the concession was granted by the Mexican government with the understanding that the management would bring into the republic a large number of colonists.

WANT THREE MEN

There is a rumor to the effect that one of the grievances of the Santa Fe firemen that will be pushed with vigor before the management of that road by the committee this season will be the request for three men on the Prairie and Santa Fe type of engines. The firemen claim that the request is reasonable and essential for the safety of the crew, as well as to relieve the firemen of some of the arduous duties in the matter of signals and keeping a lookout ahead.

WORK ON ROUTE ABANDONED

Engineer Cole of the Rice Belt railroad has been instructed by the management to discontinue work until further notice.
 Mr. Cole has been surveying three routes for the Rice Belt. It is not known why such action has been taken.

THE MUSCOGEE SOUTHERN

The directors of the Muscogee Southern have filed notice of an increase in the capital stock from $2,000,000 to $5,- 000,000. This road was chartered during the present year, to be constructed 200 miles from the point where the Arkansas river enters Oklahoma, from Kansas southeasterly, through the Osage Indian nation and Indian Territory, to the point where Red river crosses the eastern boundary of Indian Territory.

TOURIST CAR SERVICE

Western and transcontinental railroads have taken action which will lessen the number of tourist sleeping cars. The arrangements will largely augment the revenues of the Southern Pacific, but will greatly diminish the popularity tourist sleeping cars have enjoyed during the last few years. According to the action taken by the railroads, tourist sleeping cars no longer will be run through on the regular trains, but will be carried three days in the week as a special section to the regular train west of Ogden and El Paso.

 The tourist sleeping car service of the roads' east of El Paso and Ogden will be arranged so that they reach the Southern Pacific connection at those points on certain days three times a week.

GENTRY LEAVES THE SANTA FE

The announcement is made that Alva Gentry, a former employe of the Santa Fe ticket auditing department in Topeka, has been appointed auditor of passenger recepts for the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake railroad, with headquarters at Los Angeles.
 Mr. Gentry is well known among Santa Fe officials in Texas. He was latterly connected with the Santa Fe under J.
 W. White, who was auditor of the coast lines of the company, headquarters at Los Angeles.

ANANIAS

ANANIAS WOULD LOSE HIS TITLE, PERHAPS, IF HE WERE LIV-ING TODAY

One Institution That Offers to Furnish Its Evidence to Prove Its Claims is Draughon's, Corner Seventh and Houston Streets

If Ananias were living today, and could read some of the newspaper advertisements inserted by some of the Business Colleges as to the number of calls they receive for bookkeepers and stenographers, and the number of positions they fill, and then could examine the letter files and other records of some of these Colleges, he would, doubtless, be willing to surrender his title.

A liberal reward will be given to any one who will find an advertisement in any of the newspapers from a Business College, with the exception of DRAUGHON'S, offering to open its letter files to those who are interested, in order to show that it is actually receiving calls from reliable business men almost daily for bookkeepers and stenographers.

It has often been claimed, and has, perhaps, never been contradicted, that the Employment Department of Draughon's Practical Business Colleges, one of which colleges is located in this city, corner Seventh and Houston streets, is the only institution of the kind that advertises that it will open its letter files, dating back for at least two years, in order to show that it received calls and fills positions daily for bookkeepers and stenographers, and that it enjoys special facilities for securing positions.

A liberal compensation will be given by Draughon's Colleges to a certain Business College that is constantly advertising certain number of positions filled in certain length of time, if that school will furnish names of students, names of firms, and dates positions were filled.

Draughon's Colleges do not advertise a certain number of positions filled in certain length of time unless "it's so," and Draughon's Colleges stand ready to prove by comparing records that they receive more calls and fill more positions than other Colleges fill, that they have the only facilities worth mentioning for securing positions. While it is a fact that over fifteen thousand dollars have been expended in establishing the Employment Department of Draughon's Colleges, Draughon's do not charge their students for securing positions.

FOR BETTER SERVICE
Commission Men Will Endeavor to Remedy Trouble
During the past two weeks hog shipments to this market have experienced a great deal of trouble in delays with their shipments from Oklahoma and Indian Territory points. With a view of remedying this trouble as far as possible the Cassidy-Southwestern Live Stock Commission Company has sent out the following circular letter to their customers in Oklahoma and the Indian Territory:
Realizing that the railroad service to this market is bad and that something needs to be done along this line, we have taken the matter in hand, so far as we can, and intend to push same to a final settlement and try to get this trouble remedied. To do this, we think it advisable and right that you furnish us with a personal letter, setting forth date of shipment, your troubles in shipping, delays, where at, and a general outline of the service you received in shipping here. It makes no difference whether you have shipped to us or not, we desire your cooperation in this matter, and any information regarding delays and service you receive in coming to this market will help us in carrying the matter before the head officials of the different roads.
We are handling a greater portion of the hogs from the Oklahoma Territory and want to continue to do so. We feel if there is anything we can do along this line we will be only too glad to do it.

BIGHEART ISSUES A CALL
TULSA, I. T., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—James Bigheart, chief of the Osage Indians, has issued a call for a convention of his tribe to be held at Pawhuska, December 3, 1903. The meeting is called for the purpose of considering the allotment of the Osage lands, and the division of tribal money. It is generally thought that the distribution of the lands and the dissolution of tribal relations will come soon, probably next year. This is important to Tulsa, which, though not in the Osage country, is so near to it as to benefit greatly by the opening up of the lands there for occupation by persons who will cultivate and improve them.
The Tulsa football team is taking regular practice every evening this week. They have their next game with Coffeyville, Kan., on Thanksgiving day. Local sports express confidence in the team and will be disappointed if Coffeyville is not defeated by a large score. The Tulsa eleven has not been scored against this season.
The transient trade at the hotels this week has been unusually large. Some of the travelers are doing business here—selling goods and buying land—and many of them are "just looking around." Many of these transients say Tulsa is the best town in the territory. Their criticism is that land prices are too high.
The raffle of watch by Frank Kaiser will take place this evening at 8 o'clock, sharp, without fail, at Max Richen's saloon on Main street, between First and Weatherford streets.

R. L. LASSITER TALKS OF THE MARINE MATTER
Citizen of North Side Tells About Protest in Regard to Postoffice

The citizens of Marine are still discussing the postoffice proposition. R. L. Lassiter, a citizen of that section, discussed the matter with The Telegram yesterday. He said:
"This postoffice question at Marine has long been a bone of contention to several individuals, and they are not men or gentlemen enough to come out in the open and tell the public what their interest is. But to say the least, they are not citizens of Marine, nor are they patrons of that postoffice, and I think I am safe in saying that they have not consulted or advised with any of the residents of Marine. If the stock yards and packing house district are not satisfied with their mail accommodations, we don't blame them for kicking; in fact, we are willing to help them kick; but not to the extent of losing our own office. I would, if the occasion demanded, like to see a postoffice or a station in every one of the stock pens, but because they now have had service, I can't see any reason or justice in them and the government kicking out the Marine office to establish a thing for them that they already have and now complain of.
"Besides, our town is in its infancy, and is well scattered, and in no way prepared for a free delivery service. Our streets are not laid out. There are no sidewalks, no numbers, and at the present time, with these circumstances surrounding us, I don't see that the carrier or delivery system will help us, but on the other hand will be a great inconvenience to us, as most of our postoffice patrons can in ten minutes time go from their homes to the postoffice, or can send their smallest child for their mail. And on Sundays, when all our laboring men are at rest, they could not get their mail delivered to them; but in many instances would have to go a mile to get their mail, and away from their churches as well. Another thing, our population is not permanently located;
I have known several of our people to move two or three times in as many months before becoming permanently located, and a carrier could not keep up with them as easy as the patron could keep up with the location of the postoffice.
"Being situated and connected as we are, we hope that our scare and anxiety will prove to be without any foundation and that we will be allowed by the federal government to keep our office as it is, and that the stock yards district be given a sub-station or any accommodation that is needed for its mail service."

MARKET REVIEW

A record breaking run of cattle were received on the early market at steady to strong prices with yesterday's active close. George Door of Crowley, La., bought one car of fancy sorted hogs...

Best quality calves have sold strong throughout the week, several large bunches of good western stuff selling at $4...

Receipts of hogs have been proportionately light, the market closing for the week possibly a shade lower...

Hogs are still on the decline, although the general opinion among the local salesmen is that they have reached the bottom...

There is no change in the sheep market, as the receipts during the week were hardly enough to make any quotable change in the trade.

NORTH FORT WORTH, Nov. 21.—The heaviest run of cattle for a Saturday market received in many months were yarded at the local yards today.

At the hog division of the yards the fattest Saturday run for a month was yarded. The receipts today, including a few wagon hogs, figured close around 375...

with a decisive check. Manipulation for the decline no longer has the support it had last summer and again in the early part of the autumn from the forced liquidation.

It will take some time yet before Wall street reaches the normal condition where estimated value is the controlling influence. But that a good part of the market has approached this state, and that a general return is only a question of time is what is to be inferred from the general stability displayed during the past few weeks.

to run their own work, objecting to domination by managers who represent Chicago packers and distillers. Men will be sent from Chicago to fill their places.

The eastern markets continue to get worse on heavy heaves. In speaking of this class of cattle at Chicago the Live Stock World says: The market on these big weight heaves is in extremely bad condition and prices for them show more of a break in the last two weeks than any other weight or grade of offering.

A sale of a big bunch of above 1,500 pound average yesterday at $4.75, was a cut out of a drove that two weeks ago sold at $5.25, and a sale of some 1,600-pound averages at $4.90 this morning showed about the same decline. Fully fat, but a little coarse, steers weighing above 1,500 pounds, sold last yesterday at $4.50, that were also 50c lower than two weeks ago.

United States District Attorney Dean of Kansas had a conference last week with the officials of the department of justice at Washington, in which he laid before them information in regard to the fencing of the public domain by gamblers. After a full discussion of the situation it was decided to institute a vigorous prosecution of offenders against the regulations, and the district attorney was instructed to take prompt action on the return from Kansas.

Cattle feeders around Des Moines, Ia., evidently have faith in the future cattle market, as a report from there is to the effect that all of the best feeders are buying May corn as an insurance of the corn for the winter feeding. They have to pay 35c@40c there now, and are not getting loaded with offerings from farmers.

Within two weeks, should present plans be carried out, a new hog packing industry will be in operation at the stock yards at Chicago. The business will be conducted under the name of H. Boore & Co., and will be done in the long life plant owned up to three years ago by the International Packing and Provision Company. Largely interested in the bonds of that concern were Walter Hatley, John Cudney and Thomas E. Wells. It is understood that they are in a way interested in the venture, though it is stated that Mr. Wells will be active only to the extent of doing the commission business for the new concern. For the present only one of the houses of the International plant will be operated by Mr. Boore, who has an extensive practical knowledge of the packing business from his connection with the Continental Company before its absorption by the National Packing Company. The plant has a daily cutting capacity of 4,000 hogs, but for the present it will not be operated anywhere near to its limit. The output of the new house will, it is said, depend largely upon trade conditions. All the money necessary to make it a profitable plant will be expended, as the whole plan is one in which the old International bondholders are deeply interested.—Drivers Journal.

Julius Norton of Stamford, an old pioneer of West Texas and one of the best known men in that part of the state, was a visitor at the yards today. Mr. Norton until recently has been engaged in the wholesale hay and grain business, but he says the abundant yield of grain this year has forced him to try another line of business. Mr. Norton says that the heavy movement of western range cattle is about over and that from now on only a few stragglers will go to market. He reports everything in first class condition for the coming cold weather and says that cattlemen around Stamford will have little trouble in carrying their stock over. He thinks that only about one-half of the usual amount of feeding will be done this year owing to the unstable condition of the cotton seed product market and the depressing values of cattle.

During the past few days three car loads of young registered Hereford and Shorthorn cattle have passed through Fort Worth on their way to western ranches for breeding purposes. The loads included both bulls and heifers from 8 to 14 months old. One load of Herefords from Cudgel & Simpson of Independence, Mo., was billed to L. C. Britte at Marfa, Presidio county, and cost $275 per head. Mr. Britte stated that he had bought the cattle for the betterment of his range herd, which now numbers about 4,000 head.

Another load passing through here this week was from Iowa and billed to M. L. Creswell of Baird, Texas. A car of young registered Herefords is expected the latter part of this week from Lakeview, La., en route to Tecumseh, Texas. It has been repeatedly shown on the Fort Worth market as well as every other market of the country that graded cattle are the kind most wanted by the packers and fetch the best prices. The rapid settlement of the range country in many parts of Texas is cutting down the size of pastures and Texas cattlemen are steadily introducing a better grade of stuff which will yield as much money as larger herds of poor quality.

Crawling Away From Grasp of Bears and No Longer Decline Easily

MARKET APPROACHES MORE STABLE BASIS

But Genuine Recovery Will Come Slowly and a Rush Is Sure to Be Swiftly Checked. Saturday's Trading

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(Special)—The one circumstance that stands forth most prominently in the stock market at the present time is that conditions have ceased to favor unrestricted operations for the decline. It has been possible, and may still be possible, for bear speculators with large resources and plenty of courage successful to assail certain stocks which are rendered vulnerable by their large market supply. But, outside of these particular quarters the process of forcing down prices by short selling has met

RIOT
Ends Game Between Washington and Jefferson and West Virginia
WITH TWO THOUSAND ENGAGED IN BATTLE
Referee Is Knocked Down, Many Are Injured and Wildest Scenes Witnessed This Season Follow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The game between West Virginia University and Washington and Jefferson college broke up in a riot this afternoon, 2,000 participating.
Several fights occurred during the progress of the game but within ten seconds of the close, with the ball on Washington and Jefferson's one-yard line and the score 5 to 5, the spectators broke on to the field and assaulted the West Virginia players. Six hundred West Virginia rooters went to the rescue and a pitched battle followed.
Bricks were thrown, canes were broken over heads and the referee was knocked down. The West Virginia players managed to escape and were taken to their hotel under a heavy police guard. On the way from the grounds to the depot a running battle was fought between the rivals and many men were seriously injured. It was the first time Washington and Jefferson had been scored against this season. The referee just before going down and out gave the game to West Virginia.

FOUGHT OUT TO A TIE
Stubborn Battle Between Wisconsin and Northwestern Universities
CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Northwestern and Wisconsin played to a tie this afternoon, the final score being 6 to 6. A more stubbornly fought game was never seen on a western gridiron.
In the second half neither side could score. Northwestern was defending its goal almost the whole period, often within the very shadow of the goal posts, but always at the critical moment Northwestern held off was saved by a fumble or a penalty. Referee—Burles, Illinois. Linesman—Ellsworth, Chicago. Touchdowns—Wrapps, Phillips. Goal from touchdowns—Washer, Colton.

THE GAME AT IOWA CITY
Match Between Hawkeye and Suckers a Great Contest
IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The greatest game in the history of Iowa University athletic was waged this afternoon on the Iowa field. Illinois and Iowa were the opponents. Iowa scored early in the first half after pounding Illinois to pieces, using Allen, McGowan and Fred Buckley with deadly effect.
The second half ended with the ball on Illinois' fifty-yard line. Score—Iowa 6; Illinois 0. Umpire—George Walbridge, Chicago. Linesman—R. S. Martin, Cedar Rapids. Time of halves—Thirty-five minutes.
CORNHUSKERS WIN
LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Nebraska University ran over the Bellevue players today. Nebraska put up a whirlwind offense in the final half and scored touchdowns almost as they pleased. Captain Bender's brilliant returns of punts and his long sprints on quarterback runs were the stellar features.

AT NEW ORLEANS
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The University of Mississippi defeated the University of Louisiana in an interesting football game this afternoon at Athletic park. Score 11 to 0.

BALTIMORE BEATS GETTYSBURG
GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The Baltimore Medical college this afternoon defeated Gettysburg by 12 to 0. Hill played the star game for Gettysburg and Gessler for the visitors.

ELEVEN ARE DEAD IN A COAL MINE
Over One Hundred Injured in Explosion Near Connellsville, Caused by Smoldering Blaze
CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—A frightful explosion occurred at 7 o'clock tonight in the Ferguson mine, of the Dunbar Furnace Company. The cause of the disaster is yet meager, but it is reported that eleven bodies have already been taken from the ruins. When the explosion occurred from eighty to 100 men were entombed in the mine. The rescue party is thus far able to proceed but a short distance into the shaft, because of the fumes. At 9 o'clock it was reported that thirty-five men had been able to make their way out of the mine, all of them burned. Some of their injuries may prove fatal.
At 10 o'clock tonight ten of the injured had been received at the Cottage hospital here. The greatest excitement prevails here, and it is feared that there has been a repetition of the Hill Farm mine explosion. Hundreds of people have flocked to the scene, and there is most intense eagerness for news which is thus far not forthcoming. The miners, it is said, include an unusually large percentage of American-born citizens. There is as yet no information whatever as to the cause of the explosion.
At midnight word was received by telephone that eleven miners had been killed and three badly hurt, and that the casualty list would exceed three figures. But twenty-one men were working in the mine at the time of the explosion, and all have been accounted for. The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained tonight.
In 1892 an explosion occurred in Hill Farm mine, one-half a mile distant from the Ferguson mine. In this explosion thirty-two men lost their lives. The Hill Farm mine caught fire and has been burning ever since. It is believed that the flames finally burned through to the Ferguson mine and caused the explosion.

WILSON IS TO SPEAK
At Coming International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago
CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—One of the important events in connection with the International Live Stock Exposition, which opens next Saturday, will be the visit of Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, who comes to see the exposition and deliver a lecture before the Amalgamated Association of Agricultural College students, which holds its annual meeting at the new Pedigree Record building, Wednesday, December 2.
Secretary Wilson's subject will be "Live Stock and Farm Work." Acceptances have been received from Governors Van Sant of Minnesota, Cummins of Iowa, Sparks of Nevada and Frazier of Tennessee, to the invitations extended to visit the stock show and attend the dinner in honor of visiting governors, to be given by the Saddle and Sirobin Club.
All the entry lists will close this week. It is now estimated that 12,500 head of stock will be on exhibition. Last year the total number was 10,900 head. Last year 2,250 premiums were offered. This year there are 2,350, representing an aggregate of $75,000.

RE-ELECTION OF GOMPERS
Only Opposition Comes From Socialists Headed by Krefz
BOSTON, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—President Samuel Gompers was today re-elected by the delegates of the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, the opposition coming from the socialist element which nominated Ernest Krefz of the Typographical union of Pennsylvania. The vote resulted in 12,524 votes for Gompers and 1,314 for Krefz. President Gompers made a speech of acceptance, in which he declared that he held to no other "ism" but trades unionism and would devote his life in the future, as in the past, to that cause. The vote of re-election resulted in the election of Dunham, Mitchell, O'Connell and Morris, they having no opposition. Thomas A. Kidd won the fifth place against J. W. Slayton, socialist, and Daniels A. Hayes was elected the sixth vice president. Daniel Kenne, president of the International Longshoremen's union, was elected as seventh vice president after a bitter fight, and William J. Spencer of the plumbers, and Frank Morrison were re-elected treasurer and secretary respectively. Fraternal delegates were elected to the British trades council and the Canadian trades and labor congress. The delegates voted to meet in San Francisco. Nothing of importance was done at the evening session and the convention adjourned at 3 o'clock.
Bishop Dunne of the diocese of Dallas will officiate at the 10 o'clock mass today at St. Patrick's, celebrating the rites of confirmation for a class of thirty girls and thirty-five boys.
Miss Elizabeth Arnold of Dallas has returned home after a short visit to Miss Marjorie Pries.

AN INCORRIGIBLE SPELLER
(Original.)
Ruth Twining sat with an open note in her hand, a picture of misery and disappointment. She was a cultured, refined girl, who at school and afterward at college had been noted for the correctness of her English and the faultlessness of her essays. She had been born to wealth and luxury and was now suffering from reverses that had occurred to her father. Young Dick Boyd, whom she had long known and whose wife she had expected to be ever since she was ten years old, had her promise to marry him as soon as he was sure of a permanent income. But, while she loved Dick, she was uncertain as to the wisdom of passing a lifetime with him. As a schoolboy he had never handed in a composition that was not blotted, misspelled, ungrammatical and generally discreditable. She had hoped that when he became a man he would do better, and now she had evidence that he was not doing better. This is a copy of the note she held in her hand, a note from Dick:

"I expect to get away from business early this afternoon and will come for a walk before dinner. I'm not sure, but if I come will be there by 5 o'clock. A man who I have an appointment with may come back. Otherwise you will see me on time.
"It's just as I always feared," she moaned. "How can a man who can't spell 'business' take any stand in business. 'Sure' spelled with an 'h.' 'A man who I have an appointment with.' 'You will see me on time.' One would suppose my determination on the subject to be irresistible. 'No,' she went on after much deliberation, 'it will never do for me to link my life with one who must expect nature (from the nature of the case) take a low stand even in the world of business.'"
It will be observed from this soliloquy that Miss Twining was a college bred girl who preferred a Latin to an English expression and had more respect for professional than business life. She broke her engagement with Dick Boyd, though it cost her a severe pang to do so, and became a teacher. Everybody predicted that she would become prominent, and, as for Dick Boyd, most persons who had seen specimens of his literary productions put him down as sure to hold his position on the bottom rung of the ladder.
Dick on entering upon his position with the Starling Lumber company, a concern of many years' standing, was placed at clerical work. After leaving a blot on nearly every page of the ledger and sending out a number of misspelled and inaccurate statements the president called him into his private office and told him, putting it kindly, that he thought he would do better outside. Dick went outside and instead of blotting the books became a lumber shover. But it was not long before it was evident that he would make a better boss, and in a few weeks he was in charge of the yard. Then he was sent to straighten out a bad complication at the mills and from this time forward was used to perform what was considered impossible for any one else. Superintendent, secretary, vice president, were his successive titles, and at last when the president had got the company "into a hole" Boyd was given a block of the stock and made president for the purpose of getting it out. This he accomplished in a few years' time, and it made him rich.
Meanwhile Ruth Twining had spent a dozen years teaching and had reached a position at $700 a year as instructor in English composition. Her principal duty was to correct the juvenile essays of the scholars, a work she did over and over again till her eyes ached and life seemed a burden. One day when she was more tired and disheartened than usual a letter addressed by typewriter was handed her. She opened the envelope and took out a typewritten letter. It read:

"My Dear Old Sweetheart—I have never blamed you for not expecting anything of so bad a speller as I. The fault is inherited. My father couldn't spell correctly, and my sister is no better at spelling than I. Nevertheless I have been successful in another field, and as I shall never marry, any one if I can't marry you I write to ask you if you will alter your decision of a dozen years ago. Whether I live a bachelor or a happy married man depends on your answer."
DICK.
Had this letter not been written by a mechanical process and by an intermediate person Ruth might have been moved by it. As it was, she would as well have read it in a book. She took up her pen, wrote a refusal to reconsider the matter and was about to address it when, looking at the envelope in which Dick's letter had been inclosed for his address, she saw that something had been left in it. She drew out a piece of paper on which the original had been written for the typewriter to copy:
"I haven't ever blamed you for not expecting anything from me as a speller (blot) as I am. My father couldn't spell any better than me. Nevertheless I have been successful, and as I shall (blot) never marry any body if I can't marry you (blot) I would like to know if you will change your mind of a dozen years ago."
Somehow this bit of blotted, misspelled paper, which at one time would have repelled her, now beside its mechanical copy went straight to her heart. Turning it over, she noticed written in pencil on the back, "Don't tell him I put this in or I'll lose my position."
"That typewriter is surely a woman," mused Ruth; "only a woman would know the difference between the mechanical and the real." And straightway she wrote to Dick Boyd inviting him to come to see her.
Mrs. Ruth Boyd has a secretary who writes her notes (with a pen), working when she feels like it and drawing a salary of a hundred dollars a month. She is Mr. Boyd's former typewriter.

LETTER TO HAINES ON VESTIBULES

Lattimore Does Not Consider Requirements of the Law Are Being Met by Traction Company

When F. M. Haines, second vice president and general manager of the Northern Texas Traction Company, opens his mail tomorrow morning he will probably find a letter from O. S. Lattimore, county attorney.

Mr. Lattimore posted a letter to Mr. Haines yesterday afternoon. In it the street car man is informed that in the county attorney's opinion the "vestibules" at present in use on the cars of the traction company in Fort Worth do not fulfill the requirements of the new law.

This law, passed by the last legislature, provides for vestibules on the street cars during the winter months and says that the vestibules must be of a character to fully protect the motorman. It is the county attorney's view that a vestibule which consists only of a wind shield in front of the motorman does not carry out the meaning of the law.

Every day's violation of the law is a separate offense and the penalty is fixed at a fine of from $100 to $1,000 for each offense.

SENTENCES COMMUTED

For Three Prisoners Confined in the Utah Penitentiary

SALT LAKE, Utah, Nov. 21.—The state board of pardons today commuted the death sentence of Nathan Haworth, who was to be shot December 11, for the murder of John Sandol, to life imprisonment. Haworth is well connected in Iowa and United States Senator Dolliver of that state and Karnes and Smoot of Utah urged the commutation. The board pardoned three other also, including Alex. Robertson, who stole $100,000 from the Wells Fargo Bank two years ago and commuted the life sentence of Murderer Douglas to twenty-five years from today. The last two aided in suppressing the revolt in the prison recently when six men escaped.

TO ASK MORE GUNBOATS

Reported That Secretary Moody Will Recommend Vessels to Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—It is understood that Secretary of the Navy Moody contemplates a recommendation to congress in his annual message that there be authorized an increase in the number of gunboats. Experience in the Philippines and the more recent happenings in South American waters have proven the value of vessels of this type. The construction of half a dozen may be recommended.

MOUNTAIN ACCIDENTS

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Statistics of mountain accidents in Switzerland, Germany, Italy and the Tyrol this year have just been published in Germany. They point to a record in the number of deaths on the Alps. Three hundred accidents occurred from January to the middle of October, the most part of which were due to the imprudence of tourists. During the previous season there was one on the 28th of January. The number of persons killed by lightning, falling into crevasses or buried by snow is 138. Ten mountaineers have not been heard from.

TO STEAL A PRINCESS

Plot to Abduct Child of Italian Royalty Is Discovers

ROME, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Left alone in a big palace, while her royal parents are guests of King Edward of England, the Princess Yeandora, daughter of the King of Romania, the most important baby in Europe, was the prospective victim of a kidnaping plot which was discovered by the police.

While the little princess was under the lax guardianship of royal servants, it was planned to carry her off from the place and to hold her for ransom. The discovery of the plot has caused a tremendous sensation here. Most extraordinary precautions were taken to protect her. Extra guards have been posted around the palace and the child is watched constantly.

It is said that the plotters would have found slight difficulty in carry out their kidnaping scheme, had not the police discovered the plot, as the baby is dattily taken out for an airing in the grounds around the palace.

LETTERS TO THE KAISER

Come From Norway, Sweden and Denmark, Asking His Help

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Hundreds of remarkable letters, addressed to the kaiser by the peasants and workers of Denmark, Sweden and Norway, have reached the German foreign office lately. These epistles pray his majesty, as the recognized head of the Germanic race, to interfere in the international affairs of Scandinavia. Communications of this nature have arrived in large numbers since William's visit to the king of Denmark last April.

They express gratification at the kaiser's growing interest in Scandinavia, and point out that Germany is its natural ally. The letters from Denmark lament the war which disunited the two peoples. Many of the writers suggest that the Scandinavians look to the German emperor for salvation against Russian aggression.

The Norwegian correspondents lay stress on the kaiser's fondness for the fjord country and complain that bad times and high taxes have resulted in the eviction of many families from their homesteads. They ask the kaiser to put an end to these conditions.

All sort of petitions come from Sweden, asking the kaiser to "set things right." Some of the writers ask for personal intervention, others require more to give Oscar and Christian advice how to serve the interests of the people.

All these documents are carefully indexed and filed in the foreign office for future reference. They have deeply impressed the kaiser with the hold he has won on the imaginations of the people of the north of Europe.

ACQUIT MRS. HARROUN

Wisconsin Jury Finds Her Not Guilty of Poisoning Husband

STEEPHENS POINT, Wis., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The jury in the Harroun case came into court at 8 o'clock this evening, after deliberating for twenty-nine hours. The verdict was unanimous for acquittal. For twenty-three hours the jury stood nine to three in favor of acquittal. The jurors requested an audience with the court and reported a disagreement. Judge Hastings refused to entertain such a report at the time and remanded the jury to its room for further consideration. At 7:30 o'clock an agreement was reached and the defendant was sent for. She arrived in court at 8:15 and the verdict was read in a crowded courtroom.

The case went to trial on October 25, and has been the most stubbornly contested case ever tried in Portage county. Mrs. Harroun was ably defended by Attorneys Pack and Lamoreux. The verdict was received without sensational incident. Mrs. Harroun's lips moved, but she made no demonstration. After the dismissal of the jury she advanced and shook each juror warmly by the hand.

FITZSIMMONS IS LIGHT

Puglist Is Way Below Required Weight for Gardner Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Fitzsimmons is away below the required weight for his contest with Gardner next week. After his daily routine of training the Cornishman weighed a few ounces over 152 pounds. Bob was up at 6 o'clock and did ten miles on the road in the pouring rain before breakfast. After eating, dumb bell exercise and shadow fighting was indulged in for half an hour.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a party of Fitzsimmons' eastern friends watched him punch the bag for seventy minutes. At the last punch Bob tore the bag from the platform and sent it through the large glass window of the gymnasium. Bag punching ended the day's work.

As the day's work was finished Bob said: "I really hate to stop work, as I feel in excellent shape. When I am going I never tire, and I guess I would keep a going if my trainers would not interfere. I read Gardner's explanation of how he is going to beat me. Well, I won't make any statement regarding the way I am going to win. All I say is that I am going to win by the knock out route. Mr. Gardner is figuring on my bout with the brainless man, Jim, and again he says my punch won't bother him. Let me tell you, if it lands the way I aim there will be some noise in the pavilion. If I am defeated I won't blame my condition, as it would be impossible for me to get in better shape."

VOTE ON BILL MAY BE PUT OFF

Cuban Reciprocity Question May Not Be Decided Until December 17

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Unless something unforeseen takes place the extraordinary session of congress, called for the passage of a bill to carry into effect a reciprocity treaty for Cuba will adjourn next Wednesday, Nov. 25, afternoon. This adjournment will be conditioned on an amendment of the senate to vote on the reciprocity measure Dec. 17. There has been some hesitancy upon the part of the leaders of the house to agree to the proposition as advanced by senators but it is understood late tonight that the leaders of both branches have decided that it will be the part of wisdom not to force legislation on the bill at this time. The senate committee on foreign relations at its meeting today considered the bill as received from the house yesterday. It was agreed to report it favorably to the senate without amendment on Monday.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—James Clark, known as "Yellow," who confessed to a criminal assault on a 15-year-old girl at Kohoka, Mo., near here, stated to Sheriff Burton tonight that he would dance a horrible dance on the scaffold if permitted. Clark will hang for his crime next Thursday evening at 6 o'clock.

KICKS DIFFICULT GOAL

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.

The University of Tennessee team closed its season here today by defeating the Georgia School of Technology by 11 to 0. The visitors lost through their opponents' superior line bucking and end runs. A feature was the kicking of goal at a forty-five degree angle, a distance of thirty-seven yards by Fuller.

LAKE STEAMER IS LOST

Plunging Ice Floes Sink Boat, But Crew Is Saved

MENOMINEE, Mich., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Plunging ice floes, driven by a strong wind over Green bay last night, caused the loss of the steamer Baldwin, which lies at the bottom off Long Tail Point. The Goodrich line passenger steamer Georgia, answering the Baldwin's whistle of distress, arrived along side the sinking steamer just in time to rescue her crew of thirteen men. The schooner Spaldman and Butternut, which were being towed by the Baldwin, were left adrift in the bay, but were later picked up by cuts and towed into Sturgeon bay. The Baldwin and consorts, lumber laden, were bound from Green Bay to Buffalo.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Postmaster General Payne and Fourth Assistant Eristow had a lengthy conference with the president today. It is understood that the subject under consideration was the Eristow report of the investigation of the postoffice department the past summer. The summary that Mr. Eristow prepared has been trimmed to about 11,000 words. The present intention is to make this summary public about November 30.

CRUDE OIL IS HIGHER

Production at Sour Lake Said to Have Materially Decreased

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Crude oil advanced another five cents per barrel today and is now forty-five at Sour Lake, and fifty-five at Beaumont. Still higher prices are expected, as there is a material decrease in the Sour Lake production.

RED CROSS KNIGHTS

At the last convention of Red Cross lodge No. 14, Knights of Pythias, a committee was appointed to get up some kind of entertainment for the members and visiting knights on the night of the election of officers, December 2, 1903.

The committee is at work on the program and they promise a good time to all who attend. It has always been a rule in Red Cross lodge to have its members and visitors on the night of installation of officers enjoy the "time honored custom" and the members of this lodge now wish to make the election night an interesting one. The law regarding election of officers has been changed so that there will be but one election a year. Red Cross No. 14 is increasing in membership and will make a good showing in their report to the grand lodge.

ENTERTAINED AT CLUB

Saturday morning Jeff D. McLean entertained Messrs. N. P. Rogers, J. R. Kirk, B. F. Johnson and W. F. Person of St. Paul, Minn., at the Country Club with a banquet.

These gentlemen are members of the National Live Stock Exchange and attended the convention which closed in this city Friday. Mr. Rogers said that he was very much surprised at the magnitude of the Country Club and had no idea that such a club was being maintained in the state of Texas. He said that it was the equal of any similar club he had ever seen in the north.

CLIMATIC CURES

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free exploration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warm climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. FIBRE PLANTS FOR EXPOSITION

Valuable Exhibit Is Being Collected in Southwestern Part of the State

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 21.

What is believed will be one of the most interesting exhibits made by Texas at the St. Louis World's Fair is now in course of preparation under the direction of E. I. Coyle of Galveston, a collection of indigenous fibre plants and color-yielding flora and fauna of the semi-arid chaparral section of this state. Mr. Coyle is now engaged in the work, and is traveling throughout Southwest Texas in a buggy. He has been already in Uvalde, McMullen and Atascosa counties, and will cover that section thoroughly in the work of gathering those fibre plants, flora and fauna, which, though they are not being utilized now, are capable of being made the basis of an important industry. Few, if any, know the extent to which these materials can be found in the semi-arid sections of Southwest Texas, and scarcely any one in this state appreciates the value of them. Therefore, it is believed that not only will such an exhibit be of extreme interest to most people, but that it is apt to stimulate such inquiry as will result in the establishment of a new industry in Texas.

COCHINEAL

Mr. Coyle recently sent a few samples of the things which he is collecting. Perhaps the most interesting is the cochineal insect, which Mr. Coyle has sent both dead and alive. The live insect is shown fastened to a section of a cactus leaf, or pear, and in another package he sends several hundred of the dead insects, which when crushed and moistened make the rich scarlet color for which they are used. The consumption of cochineal is very large in this country, but at the present time all of it is imported from Mexico and Central America. Indeed, scientists seem not to know that the cochineal insect is found abundantly in Texas, for the encyclopedias speak of it as being peculiar to Mexico and Central and South American countries, and make no reference to its being found in any part of the United States. How far short of the whole truth this is is shown by the fact that the cochineal insect is just as plentiful in the semi-arid sections of Southwest Texas as it is in any other part of the world, and it may be gathered and used to the same advantage as elsewhere.

Mr. Coyle has also sent a section of a "shrub rubber" plant, or, as it is technically known, gum acacia. The product of this shrub is a reddish crystal, not greatly unlike resin. As yet Mr. Coyle has gathered no fibre plants, but these are abundant and in several varieties. These, it is believed, can be made the basis of a more important industry than most people imagine.

Another department of the exhibit which holds out a chance for ingenuity is that of the timber and lumber resources of Texas. Since announcement was made that the work of gathering these materials had been begun, a number of suggestions as to methods of showing our various woods in an attractive way have been received. A volunteer in this work is a young son of L. A. LaCrosse. Mr. LaCrosse's son is only a youth, but he is a genius in wood carving, and some of his work has attracted wide attention. One of his achievements is a locomotive carved out with a knife. It is a marvel of labor, skill, patience and ingenuity, as well as in its fidelity to detail. This young gentleman has offered to make a cabinet in which will be shown in his polished state all the woods found in Texas. He suggests that it be about 6 feet high, four feet wide and 15 inches deep. In contour he would make it a reproduction of the facade of the Alamo. This, as well as all other matters pertaining to the exhibit of woods, has been referred to Dr. Wm. L. Bray, who is in charge of this department.

COMING MEETING

It is believed that the meeting to be held in Dallas next Tuesday, beginning at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of the Commercial Club, will be the most important the commission has held. It will be the first meeting at one time of all those engaged in the work; for on this occasion, not only will the commissioners be in session, but the members of the board of lady commissioners, members of the educational committee and the heads of the various departments of the exhibit. Such an assemblage, it is thought, must impress all with a sense of the magnitude of the work, of the vast opportunity which is presented to Texas, and, as a consequence, imbue them with renewed energy and enthusiasm. The need of additional funds is well known, and it is thought such a meeting will energize all with fresh determination to put forth the effort necessary to get them. Several definite, concrete propositions will be presented for the consideration of the commissioners, and their action on these will govern in large measure the success of the effort being made to show Texas off worthily at the greatest exposition the world has ever seen.

CONSOLATION AT BENNING'S TO ORTHODOX

Takes $84,000 Purse by Length and Half From 40 to 1 Shot. Men and Women of Prominence in the Stand BENNING'S RACE TRACK, WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—It was a holiday crowd that greeted the thoroughbreds of national prominence. The grand consolation for two years, which was worth more than $84,000 to the winner, was the feature, resulting in a rank form reversal of Orthodoxy, who a few days ago had not cupped enough to head a fat bull in a lane.

First race, seven furlongs—Taxman, 115 (Hicks), 30 to 1, won; The Major, 108 (Brunner), 40 to 1, second; Pittaus (Desouza), 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:30. Arrah, Goaway, Fortunatus, The Guardsman, Past, Princess Tulane, All Gold, Wager, Moderator, Cottagemaid, Parallax, Holandoroff also ran.

Second race, six furlongs—Clear the Arena, 98 (Treibel), 6 to 1, won; Fortunata (Brennan), 15 to 1, second; Soulier, 107 (O'Neill), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:15. Lady Mirthful, Tot San, Revellie Pique, M. Theo, Donnelly, Rathowen, Gold Break, Burdette and Catherine Ruth also ran.

Third, steeple chase, gentlemen riders, two and one-half mile—Imperialist, 167 (Kerr), 5 to 1, won; Manilian, 15 (Trumbull), 5 to 1, second; R. R. Sack, 115 (Holloway), 7 to 1, third. Time, 5:23. Cheval Noir, Blackdeath and Ill Used also ran, the last two fell.

Fourth race, the grand consolation, seven furlongs—Orthodox, 114 (Hicks), 6 to 1, won; Robinhood, 112 (Bullen), 40 to 1, second; Reliance, 110 (O'Neill), 11 to 5, third. Time, 1:20 1/2. Lily of the Valley also ran.

Fifth race, one mile—Norbury, 98 (Olan), 4 to 1, won; Silver Seam, 95 (O'Conner), 20 to 1, second; King B. (Fletcher), 15 to 1, third. Time, 1:43 1/2. Hair Apparent, The Captain, Grantstall, Burningslass, Lady Knighthood, Caxton, Muscivore, Effie Sheppard, Margarette Kentard, Palmouth, Russell Garth and Obligate also ran.

A WELL LAID PLAN

In the autumn of 1820 the landlord of the Essex tavern, midway between New York and Morristown, was shutting up his house preparatory to going to bed when a traveler rode up on horseback and demanded a night's lodging. He was apparently about fifty years old, with grizzly gray black hair, a full beard and mustache, both sprinkled with gray. He carried strapped behind his saddle a bundle wrapped in paper, which he unstrapped and brought into the house in lieu of baggage. Before going to bed he deposited with the landlord for safe keeping $750 in bills, saying that he had drawn it from a bank in Morristown during the day and had noticed at the teller's window a young man in a brown overcoat, a beaver hat, tan gloves and a single eyeglass—something unusual in America—who cast a covetous glance at the bills. He had met the same man on the road and was sure the fellow was following him to rob him. For this reason he desired the landlord to put the money in his safe and give him a room which could be both locked and bolted. Having seen his funds properly disposed of, he went upstairs.

The next morning about daylight a housemaid who was lighting the fires saw a young man come downstairs with a paper parcel under his arm. He had on a brown overcoat, a beaver hat, tan gloves and a single eyeglass. When a guest came down to breakfast he reported having heard groans in the next room, which proved to be the one occupied by the guest who had deposited the money. The landlord hurried to the room in question, found it locked, knocked, received no response, gained access through a window opening into a court and found no one there.

That the traveler had been murdered by the man in the brown overcoat would have been accepted by every one had any plausible theory been hit upon as to what had been done with the body. This difficulty was, however, partially obviated by a porter's statement that he had met a man in the hall the night before who had notified him that he would require his services in carrying out a trunk the next morning. It was assumed that the murderer had found some other means of removing the trunk, which must surely have contained the body. Curiously enough, as soon as this phase of the mystery appeared people ceased to speculate upon who committed the murder and began to dispute upon how the trunk containing the body was got out of the hotel without attracting attention. It is not the soluble that interests people; it is the insoluble.

There were no organized detective agencies at that time, but the landlord of the Essex tavern could not rest content with the matter unexplained, so he offered the $750 left in his keeping by the traveler to whomsoever should solve the mystery. Abner Morgan, a young lawyer without practice, took the matter up with a view to reaping the reward. He discovered that three weeks before the disappearance of the stranger at the Essex tavern the cashier of a bank in New York had defaulted and run away with all the currency in the safe, some $20,000. But the traveler had come in on the road from Morristown. The cashier was a man of thirty-five and sandy haired, while the traveler was fifty and dark. The supposed murderer was very young, also dark. Morgan on account of these discrepancies gave up the theory of the murdered traveler or the supposed murderer being the missing cashier and turned his attention to hunting up the real cashier with a view to getting a higher reward for his capture offered by the bank.

Hearing of a man living at Albany, N. Y., who was unaccounted for, though he did not answer the cashier's description, Morgan went there and found one whom he watched for a time and then, taking his chances as to the man's identity, arrested him on a trumped up charge. As soon as he got his prisoner to New York he sent for the president of the bank that had been robbed, who at once identified the man as the missing cashier, though he was "made up" to look fifty instead of thirty-five. Then the culprit broke down and confessed.

This was his story: He lay in hiding for awhile in Morristown, but as he was in danger of discovery left the place on evening on horseback, having concocted the following plan to become lost to the world: In his paper parcel he carried the bills and articles for disguise. Arriving at the tavern he deposited the $750 with the landlord, intending to leave it there to strengthen the suspicion of murder, for he would not be suspected of leaving such a sum unclaimed if he were alive. What troubled him most was how to throw the police on the wrong track concerning the body. A man murdered is not an easy thing to remove without the fact being known. Meeting the porter the night before in a dark part of the hall where he could be only dimly seen, it occurred to him to engage the man to carry the trunk. This link in his plan, which he considered at the time the weakest, proved the strongest. Having entered his room, he waited till just before daylight, then groaned loudly, then made himself up as the man in the brown overcoat whom he had concocted as a part of his plan, let himself down to a lower story by means of a lightning rod and, entering a window, walked downstairs, meeting the maid. In this way he hoped to convey the impression that he had been murdered and his body spirited away in a trunk. Abner Morgan received a reward of $1,000 from the bank; the $750 was returned. The cashier was convicted.

BAKER'S BANK

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.] There had been no less than three mysterious robberies at Baker's bank within six months. They were mysterious because keys had been used to open the doors of the building, and the combinations on vault and safe had been worked instead of forced. No watchman was kept at the bank, nor would Baker employ one.

Of course he raised a great row over the robberies, the aggregate sum being about $6,000, but at the same time he could not say that he really suspected any of his employees. At any rate he accused no one, and the sheriff and a detective worked for weeks and got no clew. Naturally enough the robberies were the talk of the town, and as a boy of fourteen I was much excited and interested.

It was in the winter time that the last robbery took place, and one night a crowd of us boys and girls drove out into the country to a spelling school. By accident I was left behind when the party started home, and there was no other way than to foot it back.

It was 2 o'clock of a still, cold morning when I passed up the street on which Baker's bank was situated, and just before I reached the building I saw a woman emerge and lock the door behind her. As I caught sight of her I dodged behind a pile of boxes at hand, and, peering out, I saw her look up and down the street for a moment before moving on. When she started away, I followed her, and great was my surprise to see her halt at Baker's house, four blocks away.

It was not until I reached home and pondered over the case a little that I made up my mind the muffled female figure must be Mrs. Baker herself. When once this idea had come to me I began to work on it. Early next morning I was out to look for tracks in the snow, and I very soon found those of the midnight woman. They had been made by small and shapely feet.

But had there been still another robbery at the bank? I ran away from school to hang around the corners and wait for news, and before noon it was known that another $2,000 package had been taken. The circumstances were precisely the same. Some one had entered the bank and worked the combination of the vault.

This last robbery started a run on the bank. There was no cause for the flurry, as Baker could pay $2 for $1, but that and the mysterious robberies nearly drove him crazy. I had a good mind to go and tell him what I had seen, but, boylike, I was afraid to do it. I did go to the sheriff, however, and begin my story, but he laughed in my face and said:

"Boy, you have been seeing ghosts and having the nightmare. If you go round talking this way to others, they'll call you crazy."

He hadn't done anything himself to clear up the mysteries, and he was, perhaps, a little fearful that I might strike a clew. I looked at it that way and was not discouraged by what he said. I had no father to go to and did not think mother could help in the case.

What I accomplished in the next two days was this: I got from the banker's son Joe the information that he had been awake when his mother came in after her raid, and while she was out for a couple of hours and he and I were left alone in the house I made a swift search and found every dollar of the missing money in a hatbox in the garret. In the same box were written instructions as to how to work the combinations. I did not remove anything, nor could the woman have suspected on her return that I had discovered anything. There was no doubt of her being the robber. She had secured the combination from her husband in confidence, and she had had the nerve to get up in the night and rob the bank. If she had not used any of the money she must have some object in view, but I could not study that out, though there was gossip about family troubles. I was more scared than before at the thought of going to the banker direct, as I somehow felt that he would blame me in some way, but I sent another boy to him and had him call at my house in the evening.

The banker seemed to have made up his mind to hear bad news. I shall never forget how he sat there before me looking straight into my eyes and his face growing old and haggard as I told my story. Half an hour wrought such facial changes that he seemed almost a stranger. His very soul must have been tortured, but he spoke no word till I had finished. Then he quietly asked me to verify certain points, seeming to have a hope that I might, after all, be mistaken, but there was no blunder, and he rose up and left the house looking ten years older than when he entered it.

The stricken man did not go to the bank or his home, but walked out into the country with his head down and his hands crossed behind him. I followed him for two miles and then returned. It was daylight next morning when he entered his house and then it was to find his wife gone. She had left before night in a strange outfit driven up to the door by a strange man, but before departing she had visited the bank for the fifth time. This time she took a package of $10,000 and was seen and not interfered with by half a dozen different persons.

The ill used husband opened the bank for one day and then closed it forever, although all depositors were paid in full while he lay dying. If ever a man died of a broken heart Charles Baker did. He knew it was his wife who had robbed him, but he made no effort to have her overhauled. M. QUAD.

GRAND JURY ORDERED TO INVESTIGATE

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Jack Cocanut, who was so frightfully burned in his cell in the county jail here last night, died in great agony at 6 o'clock this morning.

The circumstances attending his cremation are highly sensational. The developments indicate that the other prisoners sprinkled his clothing with kerosene through the iron bars, and then set him on fire. When he found he was burned to a crisp and unconscious, the grand jury has been ordered to make an investigation.

LAREDO HAS A FROST WHICH CHECKS FEVER

Believed That Situation Will Be Greatly Improved as a Result—State Health Officer Tabor Leaves for Scene

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Health Officer Tabor returned from Sherman last night, and will proceed to Laredo tomorrow. He had information today that frost has fallen in Monterey and Laredo, which will greatly improve the fever situation.

The McShane Lumber Company of Omaha was granted a permit to do business in Texas by the state department today; also the "Columbia Woodmen," of Atlanta, Ga.

The total deficit today was $366,674. The number of warrants registered today was 107, amounting to $9,158.

Interest on the school fund collected up to this time is $583,000; same date last year, $586,000.

TROUBLE IN TRANSVAAL

Bothers Enough for Any Country Are Reported This Year

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—Nothing runs smooth for long in the Transvaal and that section is causing the government more anxiety and worry than any other of the colonies. Something unpleasant and expected seems bound to turn up whenever the outlook should be most rosy. At present there are drouth, red water among the cattle, smallpox and the labor question to perplex the minds of the bureau of labor, sufficient to paralyze the prosperity of any country. Of the drouth, it may be said that it is the most prolonged in several years; the ground baked by the hot sun is so hard that it is impossible to use a plow, and the maize crop seems destined to prove a total failure. In fact, it looks now as if the government will again be called upon to help out the poor farmers to tide over the season and this will be another heavy drain upon the country's resources. But a worse calamity than the drouth is the arrival of Rhodesian red water among the cattle it is serious, it is said that the ravages caused by the terrible plague among the priceless herds that were only beginning to make headway again, will be sufficient cause to drive many worthy persons to despair. The smallpox scare is also a serious matter, as the cases already reported are among the kaffirs. While elaborate precautions have been taken to prevent its spreading, the fact that the kaffirs cannot be induced to keep themselves clean, makes the work of stamping out the plague a difficult one. Coming as they do, from their filthy, unsanitary kraals, or worse still, from the kaffirs' colony, which abuts on the town, they are liable to spread the disease, to all with whom they come into contact. Last comes the labor question and it has tried the pa-tiency of every one connected with the colonial office.

EXCITEMENT UNABATING

In Vicinity of Williamsport, Pa., Over Murder of Telegraph Operator

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 21.—(Special.)—The excitement over the murder of telegraph operator Clendinning in his signal tower two days ago continues unabated, and the road is constantly being patrolled by armed detectives while the tower men work with one hand on the telegraph key and the other grasping the butt of a revolver. At a Reading station, Monday, the location of certain trains. When he refused they assumed a threatening attitude and he summoned assistance, the men fled, jumping a passing freight train. All railroad men have been instructed to at once notify detectives of the presence of unknown men in the neighborhood of the railway company's property.

It is the custom in the schools to have exercises appropriate to holiday on the day previous. Next Wednesday this exercise will be had in all the schools, at which time the teachers will explain Thanksgiving day, the customs and origin, etc. It is also a custom here for the pupils to make donations to the various orphan's homes in Texas. These contributions are brought to the schools on Wednesday and the wagons of the express companies call for them, carrying them free to the orphan's home. It is hoped the pupils will be generous in their contributions. Shoes and stockings as well as sweetmeats will be acceptable. The following is the report for the week past:

CORSICANA WINS FAST GAME FROM FORT WORTH BOYS

Team From the Oil City Proves Too Smooth for the Fort Worth High School Boys

Yesterday afternoon at Haines' Park the Corsicana high school football team defeated the Fort Worth high school boys by a score of 5 to 0. The crowd was disappointingly small but those who attended the game saw one of the best played and hardest fought 22 games played on the local grounds this season. In the first half of the game the Corsicana boys made a touchdown just five minutes after the game commenced, but the local boys got down to work and after that the visitors were only able to hold their own, the home boys forcing the play in Corsicana's territory a large part of the time.

Both teams showed up well on the defensive but with additional weight and good interference the visitors had a little the best of it. At times it looked as though Corsicana would score on their wedge line bucks but the local boys would play low and hold them for downs. The features of the game were the fine kicking of Hull for the home team and the good interference plays by the visitors. During the latter part of the last half of the game the Fort Worth boys forced the playing in Corsicana's 15 yard line and when time was called had the ball within 4 yards of Corsicana's goal.

A STARTLING TEST

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt of North Melbourne, Pa., made a startling test, resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes: "A patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in fourteen months. Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at W. J. Fisher, Druggist, and Reeves' Pharmacy.

NATIONAL TEMPERANCE DAY

This is the national temperance day in the Sunday schools of the country, and in the Christian Herald has been published the lesson which is to be used by all the schools in the country on this occasion.

The golden text in this lesson is Proverbs 29:1, "Wine is a mocker." In the lesson is a story appropriate to the occasion, which is illustrated. The Sunday schools here will follow this lesson in its entirety.

THE NEWS OF GLENWOOD

Growing Rapidly and More Rooms are Needed The Glenwood public schools are rapidly increasing in membership. There is at least 100 more pupils this year than there were last season. The rooms are badly crowded. There has been such a decided increase of pupils that the board of trustees met the past week and elected another teacher, Mrs. Grace Robinson, who will enter upon the discharge of her duties Monday morning. Director Wren said last night that another teacher would have to be appointed, making a total of five teachers in the school.

NOVEMBER

- Month of football. Month of strong chilling winds that whirl along. Month of flying. Whirled leaves; Summer dies and Nature grieves. Month of blasted Autumn flowers; Empty, cheerless Leafless bowers. Month of glad Thanksgiving time; Turkeys slaughtered In their prime Dreary herald. Of December, Speed thy parting, Bleak November!

The usual six o'clock crowd filled the Bell line car to discomfort. One by one the men in melancholy procession gave way to the bundle-laden woman shopper. At one of the lower crossings a woman with more than the usual number of packages got on. All the men were standing but a boy about twelve was sitting. He at once arose and with boyish gallantry offered his seat.

"No, indeed," said the woman. "I could not think of taking your seat, and everybody turned to look. Every occupant of the car had heard her refusal, and the new belt line cars are not small, neither do they run noiselessly. The lad was embarrassed. He stood hesitatingly in the aisle, his perplexity apparent. How could he sit while a lady stood. At the union station there was an easing up, and the woman took a seat beside the boy.

"I never allow a man to give up his seat," she began, and again there was a general turning of heads. It was impossible to be in the car and not hear her. "No, indeed, a man has just as many rights in a car as I have, and he pays just as much for his ride," she continued. "I consider it really dishonest, kind of graft," she laughed loudly. The boy's eyes opened wide, and his astonishment was evidently great. He looked around appealingly but the men were looking out of the window or their heads were bent over The Telegram. A woman sitting in front turned and looked with curiosity at the speaker. Evidently she had a listener. She continued, "In Denver a gentleman never gives a lady his seat."

It was the place for the woman in front to get off. As she signalled the conductor she turned to the boy.

"My son, I do not know much about the manners of Denver men nor Denver gentlemen, but no Texas sits while a lady stands. Don't forget that. The Texas woman does not consider a man a gentleman who keeps his seat while she stands—and you live in Texas."

This incident points its own moral. The Texas may be open to the criticism of his enemies, but there are some things that can not be charged against him. He has ever known what is due his women folks. He not only discharges those obligations himself, but he insists with emphasis that all men do likewise.

The cow boy on the plain, the worker in the fields, the merchant in his business, the professional man in his office—not one but pays the respect to womankind civilization and her sex demands. He may manage her finances so successfully that she may have to take in sewing for a livelihood while he builds for his women folks a mansion.

BRAIN FOOD

Is of Little Benefit Unless It Is Digested. Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men, and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manual labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives: cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use, note the improvement in health, appetite, and nervous energy.

sion, but she receives the courtesies due her while he does it.

We are adding to our population with amazing rapidity. But are we not paying a high price for the presence of the new comer when our boys receive from them instruction to disregard the ordinary civilities that prevail among gentlemen? When the teacher is a woman the offense becomes even more reprehensible according to the Texas standard.

In a man's office, the woman he employs has no right to complain of his manners. She has gone into a business life and she must pay its price. He may punctuate his conversation with language not taken from the Sunday school, he may puff tobacco smoke in her eyes, ears and nose, and elevate his heels to the ceiling. None of those things concern her nor should she hear or see them.

But out of the office the courtesies of life are hers, and she is unworthy if she fails to demand them. The woman in the street car who harangues over such trifles as a seat offered and accepted is only of the influences that are lowering the standards of manly conduct throughout the country.

The business woman who meets the inevitable carelessness of her associates acquiescent of their shortcomings in turn carry these shortcomings to the parlor and social gathering.

The woman who attends many social gatherings anywhere will find material for a volume on "Manners men do not have." It is not unusual for a man to turn his back at the approach of a woman acquaintance, one, too, who, like himself, is a guest.

A man, a member of a supposedly exclusive club, will push by a woman guest who does not happen to be one of his special friends and pass her without a word of apology, the occasion being a club reception.

A young man will stand on the steps of a stairway falling to make any salutation or motion to give way when a woman acquaintance endeavors to pass up that stairway.

What are the causes of this widespread neglect of the finer courtesies of society? Maybe the woman who carries her business ideals out of the office.

That there is some connection between the point of view of the business woman or worse still the "new woman" seems obvious, still the worst of our local offenders have not yet ceased to give a seat in a crowded car to a woman who is standing.

There is a suspicion abroad that our public schools are so busy with certain well known hobbies—it is needless to mention them—that there is no time left for teaching the ordinary deportment of well bred people.

"One of the most brilliant teachers in the Fort Worth high school was approached and asked what system of teaching manners prevailed there. "We are not supposed to teach manners," she answered. "Once I ventured to tell a young miss aged fourteen that she should have said 'thank you.'"

"Why," said she, "I never said 'thank you' in my life."

"It is now understood that it would be an unpardonable presumption to call attention of high school children as to how they should address their elders or how they should deport themselves on different occasions. Their parents would be mortally offended."

This is a sad condition. No commentary on our school system could be so damaging.

What are all the ordinary rules of arithmetic, of lessons in geography worth if the possessor of them goes out into the world without the simple law of "I thank you" and the consideration of the comfort of others that shows itself in the smile, the bow, the lifting of the hat, the stepping aside in the crowded thoroughfare, the offering of a seat in the over-crowded car?

Smilax trailing over pillar and doorway, roses radiant in autumn glory, and chrysanthemums with interlarded petals forming snowy and golden balls greeted the guests of Mrs. Ben M. Terrell Tuesday afternoon as they arrived to be her guests for a game of high five. Throughout the card suite flowers smiled in luxuriant beauty and were smiled upon in turn by half a hundred handsomely gowned and appreciative guests. Score was kept by Miss Laura Hogsett, Miss Alice Lathrop and Miss Gertrude Fry on art cards ornamented in water colors with designs of pink roses and chrysanthemums and tied with pink satin ribbons. Lunch was served at intervals during the afternoon and after the last game rose, ice and mints cake and salted almonds.

The prizes were for high five and finch, a number of parties being partial to the latter game. There was a souvenir and a scorer's favor. The first prize, an exquisite point lace kerchief, the handwork of the artistic hostess was won by Mrs. Stanbery in a cut with Mrs. Burch, Mrs. Klein, Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Goggin, Mrs. Mullin and Miss Zane-Cetti. A pair of silver handkerchiefs, the souvenir, went to Mrs. Will Lake. The finch prize, a burnt wood picture frame, to Mrs. J. B. Laneri, in picture with Miss Lammie Russell, while Miss Laura Hogsett won the scorer's favor, a cut glass perfume bottle.

Mrs. Terrell's guests were Mesdames Burch, Klein, Lake, Magruder, Mitchell, Hunter, Murphy, Hubbard, Warren, Cowan, Judd, Goggin, Rall, Stafford, Wittchell, LaMarch, Merrill, Parker, Orr, Chamberlin, Hovenkamp, Pruitt, Laneri, Misses Russell, Bradley, Conner, Swayne, Chase, Horsley, Zane-Cetti, Daggett, Hogsett and Bostick.

ning an exceedingly merry one. There were bouquets of roses the remembrance of several guests and friends that looked down smilingly from bowls and vases upon the gathering of embryo doctors cheerfully promising to heed their ministrations as soon as possible. The young men were soon busy with various games their partners being Misses Alice Hogz, Gertrude Boyers, Ethel Wilkes, Pauline Laneri, Anita Laneri, Alice Laneri, Laura Gates, Bess Ellis, Alice Laneri, Mrs. Loebnitz, Mrs. Lily Peak Jones and Mrs. Stanbery. Cake and cream as a change of diversions, the merrymaking being afterward resumed. Musical numbers, voice and piano, were rendered by Miss Anita Laneri and Miss Chase, and Miss Alice Laneri gave a dramatic reading from the Christian. Miss Gates to the accompaniment of 'Comin' Thro' the Rye' gave a Scotch dance. Each contribution to the general pleasure was applauded with the admiration its excellence deserved. Altogether it was an example of the reciprocity of pleasure, the young men in whose honor the evening was and the privileged guests finding mutual satisfaction in the evening and its joys. Hundreds of friends gathered at St. Andrews Parish House Thursday evening to witness the marriage of Miss Christina Casement Boggs to Claude Gordon Arnold and in all the multitude there was not a heart that did not respond with loving sympathy to the fragrant flowers, the vesper lights upon the altar, the strains of the nuptial melody that flowed from the master touch upon the organ. For every one in that assembly loved the bride, affection to her beauty, responded with unaffected manners, her gentle womanliness, and all knew that she was giving her life to a man in every way worthy of her, that wisely complement in the strength and manhood that nature gives to her favored sons. Therefore there was universal satisfaction and happiness spoke in the smiles friends gave to one another while waiting for the coming of the bridal party. The interior of St. Andrews was beautiful. In front of the chancel ported ferns hung in curtain effect and through their enchanting greenery the vesper lights upon the altar shone with sacred hope and benediction. Over the chancel steps hung the marriage bell of white roses. Within its green depths there was hidden a shower of snowy petals that would add its silent blessing when the bride left the altar. Guy Richardson Pitner, the organist, played a program of pre-nuptial music, his selections being from Faust and Tannhauser and Schubert's Serenade. At the arrival of the bridal party the tender harmonies of the march from the Lohengrin pealed forth and the ribbon bearers, Little Joe Marie Anderson and Charlotte Clayton, passed to the front of the church through the center aisle, the other ends of the ribbons being held by Miss Emma Beggs and Miss Marjorie Mullins. Up this ribboned aisle passed Mrs. Beggs, the mother of the bride, with Dr. James Anderson, other relatives and intimates. The ushers and bridesmaids, dressed in couples on entering the church, were Miss Saunders and Miss Tarleton, Miss Saunders and Miss Tarleton, Clements and Harry Wynne, Vickery and Miss Willacy of M. E. Martin and J. B. Fish, Sannels and Miss Wright of fields. After them the Matron of Mrs. James Anderson, the bridesmaid, the bridesmaids, ushers and of honor forming in opposite with the chancel. The groom and groomsmen, Stark, had entered through the room and were awaiting the bride at the pulpit. She came with who at the steps of the chancel into her husband's keeping.

Beautiful Millinery At Half Price

We must have the space now occupied by our Millinery department for our Holiday Goods, now arriving daily, and in order to make the necessary clearance of Ladies' Hats, we have cut the prices very deep. You can buy Monday and this week our hat in our store, including beautiful Pattern Hats and original creations from our own work-rooms at from one-third to one-half off former prices. When you consider the usual low prices asked by our Millinery, this cut in price makes many genuine bargains, which will well worth your consideration.

A Blanket Sale

We offer this week special inducements warm bed coverings, 10-4 Shepherd Plaid Wool Blankets, warm and soft, at $4.48 and ing to the solemn ritual of the church. The Rev. Robert Hammond Cotton delivered the charge, and then presented them to the Right Reverend Alexander C. Garrett, who pronounced them man and wife with the episcopal blessing, and having the altar and passing under the marriage bell they received a shower of white petals, an emblem as sweet and hopeful as it was beautiful.

The bride's wedding gown was of liberty satin shirred in triple rows in the skirt with a bodice also shirred, with yoke of narrow bands and fax-gotten. Her veil was fastened with small rose buds, instead of a bouquet she carried her nuptial prayer book bound in vellum.
All the bridesmaids were in white carrying white chrysanthemums and wearing black picture hats. Mrs. Anderson wore white crepe de chine with serpentine rows of Hungarian hand lace alternating with tucked bands of the crepe de chine.
Mrs. Beggs wore a jetted chabrier robe over white taffeta. The ribbon bearers had accordion pleated frocks of yellow chiffon.
Mr. and Mrs. Arnold left after the ceremony for South Texas and in about two weeks will be at home with Mrs.
Piner on Monroe street.
Among the out of town guests were Senator and Mrs. Willacy, Miss Maud
Willacy, Miss May Willacy and Miss McDowell of Vernon.
Mrs. George Beggs entertained the out of town guests and the wedding party of the Arnold-Beggs wedding at a six course luncheon Friday. The yellow chrysanthemum that had been so effective a feature of the wedding Thursday evening was used in abundantly in the dining room and table decorations. The guests were Senator and Mrs. Willacy, the Misses Willacy, Miss McDowell, W. M. Barnes, Dr. and Mrs.
James Anderson.
Mrs. Alvis M. Pettigrew has issued invitations for high five at the residence of Friday, November 27. It will be a Thanksgiving party and the session will be featured in all the details of entertainment.
Miss Florence Smith will entertain Tuesday afternoon with a reception in honor of Mrs. J. Peter Smith, Jr. The event was postponed from last week but recipients of invitations are eagerly anticipating an afternoon with an accomplished hostess and charming bride.
The ladies' auxiliary of St. Patrick's gave an evening high five at the residence of Mrs. Lavin Thursday, thereby adding a tidy sum to the fund they are getting together for their table at the Catholic bazaar next week. The spacious rooms were filled with interested players and after the game was finished they had served to them cake, coffee or tea.
Mrs. Larimer won a box of Gibson stationery, the lady's prize. A pair of men's military brushes went to Mr. Halloran.
Mr. Horvath was presented with an imitation pickaminy, while Miss Daniels re-
The Crescent Bowling Club met Friday afternoon and began play with promptness and enthusiasm. Those present were Messadme John Andrews, Morris Berney,
E. D. Capps, Charles W. Childress,
Charles W. Conner, C. I. Dickinson, J. D.
Davis, Dunn, D. W. Godwin, Grammer, Laudie, E. H. Lowe, McLeod, Stanbery and Warwick. Mrs. Donovan, Miss Spencer, Miss Zane-Cetti and Mrs. Grassie were present.
The rules governing the club and play were read and adopted and the club formally organized by electing Mrs. D. W.
Godwin president, Mrs. E. H. Lowe presiding as chairman.
Mrs. Guy Bennett entertained a number of the younger society folk Friday evening with whist. Each player is cherishing a pretty card with a Gibson head in the ink on which was kept their score.
The prize was a name violet Gibson pillow which was won by Willis Lea. A pretty pin cushion was awarded to Miss Gwendolyn McCarthy. The players were Misses Eether Connell, Gwendolyn Mc-Carthy, Willie Bowlin, Edna Pendleton, Beatie Bibb, Armide Perry, Florine, Peterson, Madge Hosmer, Vera Calaway, Vera Daniels, Ruth Hosmer, Kate Robertson,
Elizabeth Mallard, Allie Mallard, Elmer Staudt, Joe Hyman, Herman Church, Gentry Brown, Wylie King, Willis Lea.

There is a feeling of security, even though the baby is croupy or has a cold or whooping cough, when there is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house.

Mothers of small children have learned that it can always be depended upon, that it is pleasant to take, and that there is not the least danger in giving it, even to babies.

David Carb, Wallace Peak, Charlie Crenshaw, Jim Lyles, John Bartels, Robert May, Watts Gardner, Wright Gaines, Armand and Culberson.

The Marguerites met with Mrs. Jere Van Zandt Thursday, the afternoon being devoted to the construction of sundry articles that will appear in due holiday season. There was a prize of a box of Gibson stationery that all the guests cut for.
Miss Mrs. Spencer, Van Zandt, Drake, Larimer, Daggett, Hunter, McCarthy, Crittenden, Mesdames Rozelle, Scrivener, Winter and Martin. Miss Van Zandt will entertain the club next Wednesday.

Mrs. T. J. Hoote entertained the Better Halves and their husbands Tuesday evening, cards and conversation furnishing as much merriment as is good for even such a half dozen bread and butter waltzes.
The guests were Mrs. F. D. Thompson, W. R. Thompson, F. D. Boyd, Lloyd Pollock, Lyman Barber and Roy Loving, J.
D. Trammell furnishing the lay element of the company.

The Calanthe Club will be entertained by Mrs. Robert Cook, 329 Wheeler street, next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. C. B. Sawyer celebrated his 80th birthday on Thursday. He was born in Baldwinville, Mass., in 1823, his grandparents having settled in that place before it was made a township and had the honor of having the town named for them. He is one of eight children and has three sisters all past the age of 75.
He came to Texas in 1878 and is now one of our strong Fort Worth citizens. He received many messages of congratulation during the day, also numerous callers.
Light refreshments were served in the afternoon and evening. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Carboneau, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Brown, Mr. and Mrs.
W. H. Sterley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hart, Mrs. J.
A. Ault, Mrs. Douglas Wall, Mesdames
Sterling Hart, Harburt, Boertch, W. H.
Nye, Col. Stewart, Jere Roche, Huber,
Newcomer, P. J. Brown, Peasey, W.
West, Pauline Rintelman, O'Neil, Martha Phillips, Misses Dora Bronson, Nellie Cobb, Mary Sterley, Annie Sawyer, Mr.
Loucke, Gus Foute, Ben Britton, H. H.
Ingram and W. H. Wilson.

The ladies who were here during the meeting of the members' National Live Stock Exchange were the guests of the Commercial Club Friday afternoon at the Elks club. The ladies, with Mrs. W.
Galbreath at the head, consisted of Mrs. C. C. French,
Mrs. M. M. Barnes, Mrs. Winfield Scott,
Mrs. Hovenkamp, Mrs. McNatt, Mrs. Jones
Connell and Mrs. Long. The young ladies assisting in serving the tea were Misses Field, Elser, Saunders, Wilkes, Nash and Holdingsworth.
Expectancy is seldom as joyously marked as it was for the Elks' card party Friday evening, when the ladies, with Mrs.
Charles W. Conner, Mrs. R. E. L. Miller,
Mrs. Ed Burns and Mrs. Rawlins as hostesses, entertained their husbands and one couple besides. Everybody has at some time enjoyed the hospitality of the Elks or their wives, and anticipations were as keen as had been their former enjoyments. On Friday evening there were score cards that delighted every eye trained in seeing the beautiful sourette, maidens in water colors, and as each card had a different design it was hinted that the family was large. They were the work of Mrs. R. E. L. Miller.
The games were contested as earnestly as might be, with handsome prizes as reward of success. Mrs. Charles Wheeler won the cut glass bowl, the first prize, and Mrs. I. H. Burney the second prize, a silver puff box. E. E. Fosdick in a cut with Robert L. Costan, won a silver a cut with W. H. Laird, a silver mounted flask, the first prize, and Guy Pitzer in coat brush, the second prize for the men.

The scorer's favor was a silver candlestick. It went to Miss Swayne in cut-cut to it by virtue of their services being Misses Edington, Littlejohn, Horsley, Anderson, Crittenden, Martin and Bennett. A salad luncheon was served at the close of the game. Among the players of the evening were Mrs. Edington, Mrs. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tipton, Mr. and Mrs.
Winfield Scott, Mr. and Mrs. J. Parker,
Mrs. Galbreath, Mr. and Mrs. Shelmire,
Mr. and Mrs. Camp, Mr. and Mrs. Crittenden,
Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Roy,
Miss Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wheeler,
Miss Hogsett, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, Mr.
and Mrs. Jere Van Zandt, Mr. and Mrs.
E. E. Fosdick, Mrs. Loebnitz, Mr. and Mrs. Rall, Miss Reagan, Mr. and Mrs.
John Winter, Mrs. Dunklin, Miss Horsley,
Mrs. Ligon, Miss Crowley, Mr. and Mrs.
McElwee, Mr. and Mrs. Dorr Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Fruit, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rall, Dr. and Mrs. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill, Miss Burney, Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Ware, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, Mr.
and Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs.
Ben M. Terrell, Mr. and Mrs. William H.
Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Royer, Mr. and Mrs.
Morgan Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Farmer, Miss Daggett, Messrs. Hilliker, Hicks, Knight, Pitzer, Miller, Littlejohn, Costan, Kolp, Laird, Tuley and Burns.

Miss Carrie Keller will be the soloist today at the First Baptist church, singing "Unanswered" with violin obligato by Miss Louise Zane-Cetti. Prof. Bauer is the organist.

Every one of a wide circle of friends has been anticipating with more than usual interest the marriage of Miss Lois White to Sam M. Henderson and on last Wednesday the guests filled the handsome White home to witness the wedding ceremony and to share with love the hearty wishes for the future brought out by the happy occasion. Before the ceremony Miss Ruby Blake of Dallas sang "All For You" with violin obligato by Mrs. M.
Mrs. Collins was pianist. At the time of the ceremony the bridal party entered the wedding suite through an aisle formed by golden stands surmounted by palm and connected by broad white satin ribbons. These ribbons were held during the ceremony by the ushers, Dave Baker of Houston and Ed Collett. The bridesmaids, Misses Bartels, Labatt, Andrews of Sherman and Besie White, all dressed in lace trimmed with chiffon, with hertha bodice effect, preceded the matron of honor, Mrs. Crow of Dallas. After her came the bride's sister, Miss Lucille White, who was the maid of honor, Charles Lord of Dallas was the groom-smen.

The ceremony was performed by Rev.
George McDaniel of Dallas and at its conclusion all the expressions that love and affection could prompt were showered upon the bridal pair, in whose union were consummated the joy of life, the perfection of the love that glorifies life and sheds its halo over the simplest incidents of life. No more popular girl has been sought by matron in entertaining by girlhood in sharing its pleasures, or by the masculine participators of social joys. The groom has no less a loyal and numerous following in business and society and all join in the universal expressions for prosperity and happiness.
The bride's gown was white crepe de chine, shirred skirt and bodice with hertha of duchesse lace. Her veil was fastened with a brooch of pearls. The out of town guests were Miss Ruby Blake of Dallas, Miss Andrews of Sherman, Mrs.
Crow of Dallas, Mrs. Rucker of Navasota, Mrs. Anderson of Navasota.
The wedding cake was distributed in the dining room, wherein were yellow chrysanthemums in golden profusion, masses of them filling spaces on mantel and buffet and raising their golden heads from a tall cut glass vase on the dining table.
Each piece was wrapped in art paper and tied with white ribbon. The mystic symbols were hidden within the various sugars and in their distribution Miss Lucille White got the ring and Miss Andrews the dime.
Mr. and Mrs. Henderson are at home with Mrs. Robert Carlock.

Socially we will be very joy this week in other ways than enjoying our club women guests.
On Tuesday the Imperials will give a dance in their club rooms.
Wednesday evening the Yozolias will give a full dress german.
The Elks will also issue invitations for a full dress german in their club room for Wednesday evening.
Thursday evening the Commercial Club will be the scene of gayety, their annual Thanksgiving german holding sway.
The Sans Pareil and the Entre Nous will also dance as merrily as any of their clubbers.

The Maids and Matrons met with Miss Hogsett Friday afternoon and played whist with the skill it deserved. The prize, a cut glass perfume bottle, went to Miss Crittenden. Those present were Misses Montgomery, Crittenden, Horsley, Bradley, Littlejohn, Bartels, Orrick, Horn-ley, Andrews of Sherman, Moffett, Burns, Henderson, Cole, Cook and Collins.

The young ladies who have been played as substitutes at the Bowling Club have become so enthusiastic over the sport that they have themselves formed a club. They will play the same afternoon with the matrons, Misses Hogsett, Laura Hogsett, Horsley, Crittenden, Bradley and Orrick being the members. They have named their club the Bohemian.

The Seventh Street Whist will not play this week, but next week Mrs. Frank Mullins will be the hostess.

Mrs. W. P. Lane has returned from her visit to Charleston, where she represented the local chapter Daughters of the Confederacy at the general convention. Texas had five representatives at the convention besides Mrs. Lane, who is the state secretary; Mrs. Cone Johnson of Tyler, state president; Mrs. Coppelia of Galveston and Mrs. Blanton of Houston. This was twice the representation of any other state and the vote of Texas decided often. The Charleston hospitality was showered upon the Texas delegates and the "best in the house" was none too good for them. There were excursions to Fort Sumpter, Fort Moultrie and a reception at the historic Pickens mansion.

The convention will be held next year at St. Louis during the exposition.

The meeting of the local board of arrangements for the State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Tabernacle
Thursday morning was most satisfactory. Mrs. Bacon Saunders, chairman of the board, announced that the original assessment of the different women's clubs in the city has been deposited to the credit of Mrs. E. H. Carter, chairman of the finance committee.
This sum amounted to $705 and would enable the board to carry out its original plan of making the entertainment of this year's federation most distinctively a club woman's effort. In Beaumont last year two citizens of the oil city undertook to raise the money for entertaining the Texas club women and they turned over to the local committee one thousand dollars. The Beaumont women did not have the task of soliciting the sinews of entertainment.
In other cities different forms of social entertainment have been donated as well as decorations. The citizens of Fort Worth have not been asked to contribute anything. There will be no complimentary entertainments, no donated decorations. Everything will be paid for and that out of the smallest per capita assessment ever laid upon club members of the town entertaining this explanation.

The state meeting and announcement of the chairman was greeted with the applause of the club women. The good sense and good management of the guiding spirit of the local board, Mrs.
Saunders, on whom has devolved the responsibilities of directing the various committees and inspiring the luke warm among club women with increased zeal and interest.
Mrs. Saunders called for the reports of the committees. These reports showed the completion of all plans.
The lamps of club woman's hospitality were trimmed and burning and all doubters of women ability and executive capacities were put to confusion.
Miss Rose Howard for the committee on decoration announced ready. The large shield, a reproduction of the Federation, was exhibited. It was accepted, "with admiration." It is a modified scroll enameled in blue with decorations of white, the lettering of Texas above and F. W. C. below being in silver.
Mrs. Winfield Scott, chairman of the entertainment committee, had all her arrangements completed. They include reception at Commercial club Wednesday evening, and tea at the country club Thursday afternoon. The cards for these courtesies were ready and would be turned over to the badge committee. The decoration of the Commercial club was left to Mrs. Scott's and Mrs. Howard's committees.
Mrs. Conner, chairman of the committee on drive to the country club, reported a generous response of citizens owning vehicles.
Special attention is called to the hour of the country club tea. As it will last only from 4 to 5 it will be necessary to start from the Tabernacle promptly at 3 in order to make the country club tea in time for the house-return for dinner and be ready for the concert at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Covert for the committee on homes, reported five delegates without homes. She calls upon the public spirit of all Fort Worthites to see that these five are provided with homes before tomorrow.
Mrs. Jaccard, chairman of the music committee, reported that Armstrong Brooks will furnish concert programs with cover ornamented with federation monograms. He also promised a grand piano for the use of the convention.
Mrs. Stripling, who will have charge of the bureau of information, and upon whom will fall the duty of finding it
"no trouble to answer questions," will have in charge the lists of boarding houses, hostesses, hours of meetings, hours and places of social entertainment, and all the other facts connected with the meeting.
Mrs. Buchanan, chairman of the badge committee, had ready the badges. They were inspected and accepted with admiration. It was decided that all badges, cards for social entertainment and meal tickets would be fastened together and given out immediately after the action of the credential committee. Miss McLean reported a system of marking seats of delegates in the Tabernacle which was approved, and she was appointed with Mrs. Conner, Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs.
Covert to make such arrangements as necessary and to place the markers in the auditorium.

Mrs. H. W. Williams, sergeant-at-arms, will have a different list of ushers each day, the list to be announced on day of service.
There will be a meeting of the executive board of the Federation at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Christian Tabernacle.
The following announcement will concern all who are interested, either as club women or hostesses, in the coming Federation meeting:
The reception committee of the local board urge upon all ladies who expect to entertain delegates during the federation meeting next week to meet their guest at the station without fail. The reception committee will have a table within the station marked with the federation colors.
All local people, hostesses or others, with this wait at this place for their guests.
The crowds will come at nearly the same hours, and the committees will be at the train and will bring all delegates and visiting club women to the committee table. Only by adhering to his rule will it be possible to avoid confusion and delay. The reception committee will be as follows: Mr. and Mrs. John M. Adams, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Covert, Mr. and Mrs.
George West, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W.
Jeff, McLean, Miss McLean, Herbert
Walker, Mrs. Saunders, Miss Tarlton,
Miss Elizabeth Tarlton.

All ladies or citizens who furnish chairs for the drive to the Country Club will be considered guests at the informal tea Thursday afternoon.

A special rate of 25 cents has been made by Purvis & Colp for the use of hacks in going to and from the trains. All delegates and visitors and ladies who meet their guests at the train are entitled to this rate. It does not apply, however, to points outside the usual 50-cent limit.
The same half rate, however, will be given to all points in the city. Mr. Colp will be at every incoming train at the Texas and Pacific station, and will give personal attention to guests when the hostess is not there.
The social program for the week will be as follows:
Tuesday evening—President's evening;
program at Christian Tabernacle.
Wednesday afternoon, from 4:30 to 5:30
—Informal tea at the Fort Worth University. Reception at the Commercial Club in the evening.
Thursday afternoon—Drive to the Country Club and informal tea from 4 to 5.
Musical at the Christian Tabernacle in the evening.
The program for Tuesday evening will be as follows:
Invocation—Rev. J. E. French.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Millett of San Antonio.
Address—Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, president of the Texas State Federation of Women's Clubs.
Vocal solo—Lebt—"Whol Ihr Berge" (Teichowsky). Miss Schneider of Dallas.
Address—W. L. Prater of Austin, president of the Texas State University.
Musical—(a) "Rock a Bye" (Nedlinger);
(b) "Glide On, Glide" (Delibes), Schubert Choral Club of Dallas.

There will be a meeting of the executive board of the Woman's Department Club Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. Frank Brady, to consider important matters pertaining to the coming convention.
The philanthropic department will continue to meet in the library room at the court house. All of the enterprises being carried on under the auspices of this section are progressing nicely. The farmers' library has attracted considerable attention outside of the state. Southern Education, published at Knoxville, Tenn., says in the November number: "One of the most interesting things that is being done in the way of library promotion in any of the federated clubs, is the farmers' library of Fort Worth."
The domestic science department is doing most excellent work. Mrs. Slight is proving a faithful, capable and efficient teacher. The girls at the high school enter into their work with great enthusiasm.
The pupils at the Masonic home last week prepared and served a complete dinner for the faculty of that institution. It brought forth much favorable comment. This department is anxious to get the class in fancy cookery started. All who are interested will apply to Mrs. Slight at the high school or to Mrs. A. S. Goetz, 129 St. Louis avenue. The class in weaving, basketry and reel work is now being formed. The ladies who have this in charge are anxious to have everything in readiness to receive visitors during the convention. The public is invited at any time to call and see the work that goes on daily.
The music department will meet at Miss Hendrick's studio on Wednesday, December 2. The next program for the general meeting will be prepared by this department. The members are much elated over the recovery of their director, Miss Hendrick, knowing that with her energy and enthusiasm the work will progress most rapidly.
Mrs. Sharon, the director of the art department, has arrived and will direct the next meeting. There will be no meeting this week, on account of the federation.
The literary department met yesterday in regular session, with Mrs. Gooch as president. The program partook of Thanksgiving quotations, origin of Thanksgiving, and for what we give thanks, the discussion being indulged in by the different members of the club present. Mrs. Peter read "The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers." The next meeting will be held Saturday, November 28, with the following program: "Early Poets of the Southern States," including Francis Scott Key, Edward C. Pinckney and F. O.
Tucker. Mrs. Yates will act as director.

The 53 Club will not meet tomorrow on account of the duties connected with the federation many of the members will be engaged in.
The Trio Club held an important rehearsal last Monday afternoon, putting the final touches to the numbers to be rendered at the musical evening during the federation. This club will meet again tomorrow afternoon at Professor Bauer's studio at 3 o'clock.
The St. Cecelias will rehearse at the residence of the president, Mrs. Maud Peters Ducker, tomorrow evening for the final practice before the musical at the Tabernacle Thursday evening in honor of the federation. The rumor that the club will not sing on this program is without foundation.

The Current Literature Club met with Mrs. Duhose Wednesday afternoon. Josephine Duskam and Will Carlton were the authors for the afternoon study. A number of poems, a story and interesting sketches were read. A dainty two-course luncheon was served. The club has postponed its regular meeting for this week.
Next week Mrs. Oates will entertain.
The authors for the afternoon are Hamlin Garland and Henry David Thoreau.

Miss Lathrop was the director of the meeting last week of the Monday Book Club, reading as introductory to the program a paper on Zeus. Miss Crittenden gave a talk on the judgment of Paris;
Mrs. Price a sketch of Echo, and Miss Paddock told the story of Hera and the Peacock. Miss Saunders closed the afternoon with a paper on Mars, Vulcan and Ilebe.

Instead of the meeting Wednesday, the club will be entertained by Miss Buchanan Monday afternoon. Mrs. Buchanan will have as her guest during federation week Mrs. Luella Styles Vincent of Stephenville and will entertain Monday afternoon in her honor.

The Woman's Wednesday Club will meet this week on account of the sessions of the federation.

Grip's
Grim Grasp Caused Heart Disease.
Could Not Lie On Left Side.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nerve Cured Me.
Mrs. H. K. Jobe, formerly of Birmingham, Ala., writes from Eldredge, the same state, as follows:
"It is with the greatest pleasure that I recommend Dr. Miles' Nerve and Heart Cure. I only wish that I could tell every sufferer how much good they have done me. Last winter I had severe attacks of La Grippe, which left my heart in a very bad condition. I could not lie down for the consideration that would almost overcome me and the feeling of oppression around my heart. I had not been so that I could lie on my left side for a long time. I got your Heart Cure and took three bottles. I have no trouble now with my heart and can lie on my left side as well as my right. Formerly I had suffered for years with nervous prostration. I had tried so many remedies that I had got clear out of heart of getting anything that would help me. The nerve of my heart was so affected that sometimes it would lose beats so it would seem to stop altogether. It was on the advice of a lady friend that I tried your Restorative Nerve. I felt better after the first few doses and two bottles of Nerve and Heart Cure made me feel like a new person. My heart is all right and my nervousness is all gone. I never fail to recommend it to others afflicted as I was."

NEW PALACE FOR ROYALTY TO BE BUILT

Paris Entertains So Many Kings a Place for Their Entertainment While in the City Will Be Prepared

(Special cable. Copyright 1903 by W. N. Hearst.)
PARIS, Nov. 21.—Royal visitors have become so common in Paris, hardly a month passing that some person of royal blood is not here officially or incognito, but since the days of the empire the city has not had a place suitable for these august guests.
A person of royal blood arriving in this city must either accept the hospitality of an ordinary hotel and mix with the common crowd.
To put an end to the inconvenience of this the French government has now deecided to build a palace exclusively for the reception of royal visitors spending their time in this city.

The site has already been selected very near the Eiffel Tower, conveniently located near the Bois de Boulogne and Les Champs Elysees, and as the ground on which this new palais des souverains is to be built is already state property all that is necessary to do is to have the chamber vote a credit sufficient for the erection of the building.
The large figure of Christ on Calvary, which the Catholics of Bretagne intend to erect opposite the statue of Ernest Renan at Treguier, is now almost finished.
The figure of the Saviour is six feet high and made from a single block of French granite.
The cross is nine feet high, and five figures are grouped around its foot.
The group will stand upon a base of granite with a bas-relief showing Saint

Yes, the patron of Treguier, standing between the poor and the rich.
Over this relief there is an inscription with the words of Julian the Apostate: "Those have conquered Calvary."
On the two ends of the foundation between the coat of arms of Pius X and the episcopate of Saint Brion.
The monument will be unveiled in May, 1904.
PARIS' LATEST FAD
Parisians cannot very long remain faithful to any fad, especially if it goes against their vanity, and as automobile at sixty miles an hour necessitates a most airy costume to protect against wind and dust, the enthusiasm for the sport is on the wane.
The dealers in automobiles are all complaining that this season, which was looked forward to with great expectations, has been a pronounced failure.
"People no longer want to pay thousands of francs for an automobile, and if it had not been for the Americans, as one prominent dealer said, very few dealers would have been able to pull through."
The airship is going to take the place of the army automobiles of this there is no doubt.
The recent fifty-mile trip of the Lebaudy airship and the daily sight of Santos Dumont circling like an immense bird high in the air beyond all dust and stench of gasoline have filled the hearts of the Parisian aristocracy with new hope and ambition, and the prediction has been made that in five years the airships will be as common as the autos are today.
RECENT STATISTICS
The statistics of the war department for the last year, ending October 1, show that the number of recruits who have been found fit for military service is 24,500 smaller than the year before.

This fact, which is repeated year after year, never fails to fill the hearts of every French patriot with grave apprehension.
For this reason it is thought likely that the chamber will this session pass laws enabling the government to reward the fathers of large families and in case they are poor to give them a regular pension.
Several senators are already busy drafting bills to put an end to the alarming increase of race suicide.
STATUE TO NAPOLEON III
The visit of King Victor Emmanuel to this city is apt to produce a result which no one here would possibly have expected, but which, however, is quite natural in Italy.
Promoted by the new friendship between France and Italy the Italian nation is anxious to show its gratitude to France by erecting a statue of Napoleon III at Milan.
There is no doubt that Italy owes its very existence as an independent nation to Emperor Napoleon, who, so to speak, created the kingdom of Italy.
M. Lucas Beltrami, director of the museum of Brera, in an article published in all prominent Italian papers, declares that the time has come to draw the statue of the late vanquished emperor of France forth from oblivion, and erect it in a public place at Milan.
This statue was finished many years ago, but the radicals of Italy have never allowed it to be erected.
Whether republican France will feel flattered and honored to see it erected now is a question which has created no little discussion.
ELECTRIC DISTURBANCES
During the last few weeks not only the people of Paris, but of all France have been very much alarmed by violent electric disturbances in the atmosphere which are of a most unusual kind.
It has very often happened that tele-phones and telegraph wires have refused to act, and on two occasions Paris has for hours been without any wire communication with the rest of the world.
This unusual condition seems to be spreading more and more, and is now becoming so pronounced that not only the telegraph and telephone service is suffering, but it has a distinct influence upon the general health of sensitive persons.
People in all localities between this city and the Riviera, at Nice, Cannes, Monte Carlo and other famous resorts are complaining that a regular epidemic of intense headache and muscular weakness is spreading in the most alarming manner.
Hundreds of people have taken to their beds, unable to work or move owing to excruciating pains in their heads, and through the crowd, this same body low, and I began to feel that, like him and the others, I would be when, to my astonishment, he went to the rink and said: "The doctor and my can't this saloon; you get out!"

THOMAS EAGAN FOUND
CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A telegram from Thomas Eagan, formerly of Chicago, who was said to have disappeared mysteriously in Brooklyn, announces relatives in Chicago that he is on way back with the remains of his son, who is said to have committed suicide because of his disappearance. Eagan, who is a printer, disappeared from home in Brooklyn two months ago, leaving his wife and a fifteen-month-old son. Mrs. Eagan committed suicide Thursday night by inhaling gas. The infant son was found dead at her home. Eagan's relatives deny that he was in his family.

A MUSCULAR CHRISTIAN
In "A Preacher's Story of His Work," which the Outlook Company is to publish soon, Dr. Rainsford tells some good stories of his experiences when he first took up his work on the East Side in New York. The life was a strenuous one and muscular Christianity seemed to be the prime essential for success. He says in telling of one of his experiences: "I remember one man in particular—a big strong fellow. He came in and sat down in the Sunday school (by this time I had some of the very best teachers I could find working there, and I always put the best workers I had there), and began to talk in a way that a man should not talk to a lady. He was a little drunk, I saw the lady's face flush; I walked over, and told him to get out. He would not move. I said: "We are here to help you people; we are paid nothing for it; now, you are enough of a man to respect a lady; why do you sit here and make it impossible for her to teach those boys?" "He swore at me and would not get out."
"You don't want me to call a policeman, do you? Go out quietly."
"He jumped to his feet, and I saw I was in for a row. He was as big a man as I am. I did not call a policeman, but I hit him harder than I ever hit a man in my life, and knocked him down. Then I stood over him and said: "Have you had enough?" "He said 'yes.'"
"All right," I answered, "now get out. And he went."
"About three weeks after that we got into a scrimmage outside the Sunday school room with some toughs, and, to

LONDON IS SHOCKED BY THE MURDER

Killing of A. H. Green by a Negro Is Much Commented On in England

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR IS UNOSTENTATIOUS

He Cuts Out Allegorical Cars at Recent "Show" and Substitutes Soldiers

A NAVAL CAREER FOR PRINCE EDWARD VIII

Naval Career Planned for Ten Year Old Lad Who May One Day Be King of England. England's Greatest Admiral

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The people of London were extremely shocked when the news of the murder of Andrew H. Green, the famous New Yorker, reached this city, and the fact that he was killed by a colored person is being largely commented upon.

It is the general opinion here that the United States committed a grave mistake when they, instead of being satisfied with granting the negro from slavery, not only gave him equal rights with the white man but especially at election time have often hindered his vanity in every way in order to get his vote.

From the experiences the British have had with the colored people they have reached the conclusion that as a rule they are not to be considered equals of the white man, though there are, of course, exceptions.

It is therefore no surprise to people who have an intimate knowledge of the character of people of African origin that two of the recent most sensational assassinations in New York have been committed by negroes.

THE NEW LORD MAYOR
The lord mayor of London, who succeeded Sir Marcus Samuel on November 9, is Sir James Thomas Ritchie, a brother of C. T. Ritchie, who resigned the office of chancellor of the exchequer at the recent cabinet crisis.

He is 69 years old, and is partner with his brother in a great lute business. He has been identified with the municipality of London for the past twelve years, being one of the sheriffs in 1897, when he received his knighthood as one of the honors distributed at Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee.

Sir James is a fine looking man and certainly will make a more dignified lord mayor than his predecessor, who is of a very decided Semitic type.

As he is a widower, his eldest unmarried daughter will undertake the heavy social duties of lady mayress, which she is sure to do admirably.

Sir James Ritchie's mayoralty will be memorable for the absence from the time-honored inaugural pageant known as the "lord mayor's show" of the allegorical cars which have hitherto been its most prominent feature.

This action is regarded as a very sensible one, and not a few people would be glad if the whole thing were abolished.

At best it serves no better purpose than being an annual treat for the children, and a field day for the pickpockets.

To compensate for the absence of the circus element, a great parade of the various volunteer regiments of the city was introduced as the great feature of the show.

BENCHERS ENTERTAIN KING
For the first time for more than two hundred years the Benchers of the Middle Temple have had the honor of entertaining the reigning king at one of the "grand nights."

To any one unacquainted with the English legal institutions, these terms may convey nothing, or hint at semi-secret societies and mysterious rites.

But without going into a full description of the London "Inns of Court," of which the Middle Temple is one, it may be explained that the Benchers are the senior or governing members of these societies of lawyers, and that it is the custom, compulsory on all students and other probationers, to dine "in hall" a certain number of times during the term, four occasions in each term being dignified as grand nights, when distinguished guests are invited.

As the foundation of the Middle Temple goes back to medieval times, it may be imagined that traditional customs and quaint ceremonial have survived at these feasts.

No speeches are made, and smoking is tabooed. The latter rule is only broken when his majesty is present, and this indulgence dates from 1887, when the then Prince of Wales, being a guest on the occasion of the calling to the bar of the late Duke of Clarence, lit a cigar, and promptly unconscious of the old rule, of course, the royal example was followed.

The king has been a Bencher of the Middle Temple forty-two years, but November 2, 1903, was the first time he had dined as sovereign in the grand old hall, where Queen Elizabeth is said to have witnessed the first performance of "Twelfth Night," and Charles II dined the last time the Benchers entertained their royal "master."

Americans will be interested to know that their ambassador in London, Joseph H. Choate, sat at the king's right hand, and must have been very interested in the picturesque and ancient customs observed at the dinner.

PRINCE TO BE A SAILOR
A naval career has already been decided upon for little Prince Edward of Wales, who is now in his tenth year, and who in the natural course of things, will one day ascend the throne as Edward VIII.

When he is old enough he will be entered as a cadet at the new naval college, which has been formed out of Osborne house, Isle of Wight, where Queen Victoria died.

The prince will be only following the example of his father, who, at the age of 12, was sent to the Britannia, the former naval cadet school, with his brother, Prince "Eddy," to learn the rules of sea service.

After spending two years on the Britannia, the two brothers started on a three years' voyage round the world on the Barchante, after which Prince George was then gradually ascended the ladder of naval rank till, in 1890, he was given the command of a gunboat on the West Indian station.

The prince's naval career came to an end with the death of his brother in 1892, when he had to prepare for his ceremonial duties as heir presumptive.

The little prince now about to enter the navy in his turn gives every promise of proving a worthy son of his father, who was, it may be said, a very smart sailor.

ENGLAND'S GREAT ADMIRAL
Admiral Sir John Fisher, who is one of the triumvirate commissioned to reorganize the national defense, is undoubtedly England's greatest admiral.

He is one of the hardest working men in either service.

His knowledge of naval matters is extraordinary down to the smallest detail, and he can tell you without stopping to think exactly where every ship in the navy is stationed and what she is doing.

It is told of Sir John that some time ago, when Britain's relations with Germany were somewhat strained, he visited Lisbon with a fleet.

Just as he was about to leave, a German squadron of much greater strength entered the harbor and drew up in double line off the town. Sir John exchanged salutes and then led his vessels at full speed between the German lines, although he had only twenty or thirty yards to clear on either side. It was a daring maneuver, and the Germans cheered heartily as the British ships swept by, keeping true to a yard in the wake of the flagship.

Admiral Fisher is anything but prepossessing in appearance.

He has small, piercing eyes, a snub nose and a very ugly mouth unaccounted for by mustache or beard.

His hair is bristly and upstanding.

Admiral Fisher has recently been appointed to the important post of commander-in-chief of Portsmouth dockyard, having commanded the Mediterranean fleet for some years.

Two highly influential men in the London theatrical world are apparently set upon introducing reform into the manners and customs of play-goers.

Mr. Arthur W. Pinero recently suggested that a more fitting hour for the raising of the curtain than 8 or 8:30 would be 7, and that "high tea" should take the place of dinner which play-goers are forced to hurry through or arrive late at the theater.

This arrangement would allow of people taking more leisure over their suppers, which they can hardly do under the present system in a city where the restaurants are closed by law at 12:30 a. m.

The dramatist's idea is being hotly discussed in theatrical and society circles.

Mr. George Alexander has now come forward with the iconoclastic suggestion that the rigid rule as to evening dress being indispensable in the higher-priced parts of the house should be relaxed, and that London should follow the example of America and the continent in giving audiences the option in this matter.

Managers are meeting Mr. Alexander's suggestion with some opposition, for there is no point on which they prize themselves more than having the audiences present a smart and dressy appearance.

This is not Mr. Alexander's first attempt at the reform of play-goers, for he once gave offense to the matinee girl, to whom he is an object of adoration, by printing a very pointed notice on his programs touching the great hat question.

THE AMERICAN GIRL
Here are some interesting remarks on the American girl which appeared in an early number of the new ladies' paper, the Daily Mirror, from the pen of Constance Smedley, one of the leading English lady journalists.

"Born of a democratic nation, the American girl is instinct with that curious independence of personality which is the prerogative of royalty.

"Royal also is the instinct which causes her to maintain the state and grace of womanhood there is nothing more charming in the way in which American girls pay homage to each other, birthdays, visits, college festivals, all serve as occasions for mutual gifts and social gatherings in each other's honor.

"One reason for the roek of the American lies in her supreme unconsciousness. "She takes the attention of men for granted," as her natural woman's rights; she asks not for admission to equality; she neither demands nor maneuvers for their notice."

KAISER MAY CONSENT TO SEE SHRADY

Eminent American Cancer Specialist May Be Summoned to Germany—Hotbed of Crime Discovered in Old Hamburg

(Special cable. Copyright, 1903, by W. R. Hearst.)

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—It is stated here on very good authority that the famous New York physician and surgeon, Dr. George F. Shradly, who is an authority on cancerous diseases, is about to be asked to come to Berlin to give his opinion of the Kaiser's condition.

Should Dr. Shradly be called in the fact would, however, as far as possible be kept secret, as his presence would naturally cause intense alarm.

Though the condition of the wound in the Kaiser's throat is said to be satisfactory, there are symptoms present which cause Prof. Schmidt considerable anxiety, according to statements from persons intimately connected with the famous surgeon.

For this reason he is said to wish to consult the most eminent authority on the case, and if the emperor will consent the American authority on cancer may be called.

The restlessness of the Kaiser is increasing and he is unable to conceal that he is greatly worried, and as a result his general health is suffering, so that it is possible that he may go to the Riviera for the winter, in spite of all official denials.

LETTER FROM KAISER
One of the last acts of Kaiser Wilhelm before he submitted to the operation for the suspicious growth of his throat was to send a personal letter of congratulation to a business man of Dresden.

The happy recipient of this letter had a few days before notified his majesty of the birth of his twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh child.

With his first wife he had twelve and with his second and present fifteen children.

He has twenty sons living and the Kaiser's letter is said to have especially congratulated him upon having been able to furnish the fatherland with so many "brave German soldiers."

HOTBED OF CRIME
It seems that the city of Hamburg, one of Germany's most progressive cities, is a regular hotbed of crime.

The National Society for the Prevention of Vice recently discovered an organized export of young girls for immoral purposes and now the police are trying to probe into a series of murders of babies.

The midwife Wiese has been convicted of murdering nine babies left in her care and which she had promised to have adopted by wealthy people for a payment of money.

DENTIST'S WAR
The dentists of Germany are on the warpath against those of their colleagues who have graduated from American colleges.

Though dentistry is well advanced in Germany, and many German dentists have won international reputation, it is an acknowledged fact that in certain branches of dentistry no German dentist can compare with a first class American dentist.

Wherever an American dentist has started in business he has always put his German confederates in the shadow, and for this reason a very strong agitation against the invaders was inaugurated some time ago.

One of the last sufferers is Dr. Henry Ruppel from Chicago, who, when he opened an office in Danzig drove several Germans out of business by taking their customers away.

He was, however, some time ago arrested, because he held no diploma from any German college, being a graduate of Chicago Dental College.

The lower court fined him $60 marks, but he appealed the case.

The court of appeals, however, also went against him, raising the fine to 2,000 marks and forbidding him to practice, as there was no law recognizing American dental colleges in Germany.

It will hereafter be necessary for every American dentist wishing to practice in Germany to take a full course at a German dental college.

KOCH'S RIVAL
It has just become known here that the famous Prof. Koch, of tuberculin fame, has a rather dangerous competitor, of whose existence he has never been aware.

This budding celebrity is, however, not to be found among the scientists of Germany; neither is he connected with any university or hospital, though he cannot deny his connection with a state institution.

His name is Kurzpeski, and he is a convict in a prison at Luneburg.

In his lonely cell he claims to have found an infallible remedy against consumption.

Being himself a consumptive, he has tried his remedy upon his own person with most gratifying results.

Kurzpeski, who is evidently a very practical man, has applied to the minister of the interior for temporary liberty, that he may instruct others about his discovery, which, of course, is in the form of a new serum.

The minister has so far sent no reply to the convict-scientist, but it is said that he intends to send a special commission to Luneburg.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS
Sealed bids will be received at the office of the undersigned, until 3 p. m., November 20, 1903, and then and there publicly opened, for scraping and painting, re-roofing and general repairs to the Main Street bridge over the Trinity river, in the city of Fort Worth, Texas.

Plans and specifications for the work are on file at the city engineer's office. Certified check, in the sum of $200, payable to Thomas J. Powell, must accompany each bid. The city reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

PRESIDENT INTERESTED
Says He Will Consult With Secretary Wilson About Bull Weevil

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Senators and representatives of every cotton growing state called on the president today asking the government to take steps to eradicate the boll weevil. President Roosevelt said he was deeply interested in the matter and would consult Secretary Wilson immediately.

In those days, these cigars retailed at fifteen cents, but now that the duty has been removed, you get the genuine L. Toro de la Selva Porto Rican Brevas at only five cents each.

When the duty was removed from the L. Toro de la Selva cigar, the demand overtaxed the capacity of the factory, leaving room for a flood of inferior, so-called Porto Rican cigars. Be sure you get the genuine L. Toro de la Selva Porto Rican Brevas.

THE GREATEST "WOMAN'S MEDICINE"

No. 5 West Lexington Street, BALTIMORE, Md., June 17, 1903.

Wine of Cardui is the only real reliable medicine for a sick woman. I tried several other medicines before I tried it but Wine of Cardui cured me. For four years I suffered with profuse menstruation which weakened my system and debilitated my strength because so weak that I was unable to work. I was in despair as I had spent a good deal of money uselessly until I tried Wine of Cardui and then I began to get better at once. My menses which had been frequent and profuse and painful soon became regular, painless and slow natural. I therefore consider that it is all the medicine a sick woman needs, it is better than all the doctors and other medicines, its cost is trifling, and it cures in a remarkably short time.

Rachel Littleton
HISTORIAN, DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN CONFEDERACY.

Wine of Cardui is a scientifically prepared medicine which does one thing and does that well. It regulates menstruation perfectly. There are no conflicting diagnoses to this treatment. The only diagnosis needed is that the menstruation is disordered and should be corrected. And following this principle Wine of Cardui has been the most successful female medicine that can be secured anywhere. In regulating the menstruation Wine of Cardui builds up and re-inforces the womanly organism. It drives out weakness and disease. With menstrual irregularities corrected, bearing down pains and ovarian troubles disappear. Headaches are banished, the nerves are strengthened and the sufferer begins to feel better at once as Miss Littleton describes.

You make no mistake in advising any woman to take Wine of Cardui. It is a medicine which almost every woman needs periodically to keep her in health. You could not make a better investment than to go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and take it in your home. Wine of Cardui cured Miss Littleton when every other known remedy failed. Will you try it?

DO NOT CARRY PASSES

The Telegram has had much to say about the free pass question, and there are men in Texas in public life who believe as The Telegram does and who have persistently refused to accept passes upon transportation companies.

One of these is the young congressman from this state, Morris Sheppard, so report goes. In a newspaper interview he is quoted as saying:

"I myself have never and will never accept a free pass from any railroad company, though I suppose it would save me $1,000 a year. I resolved when I was elected that I would not accept material favors from any source which might excite my gratitude and hence be liable to hamper me in the discharge of my duty."

There are a few members of the legislature who do not accept passes, and there is one state official who does not, Em S. Hughes, the expert printer of the state, has not accepted transportation since he has been in office, and says he will never do so.

And song! Is there one who does not delight in song, whether it be the shrill note of the bird, the cultivated tone of the accomplished musician or the natural melody of the corn-field negro? Song cheers the down-hearted, it drives away the blues, it soothes the savage breast, it entertains, enlightens, ennobles. Song is music and music is one of the arts.

But when they are taken together they cause trouble, they breed disease of the mind, they make a man forget his duty to himself, to his home, to his country. They tempt him to do things which in some moments, away from the triple influence, he would not think of doing, and finally they bring him to an end which is tragic and which visits upon those who love him, and who never forsake him for any cause—his wife and babies—a humiliation and mortification which cling to them forever. The influences of wine, women and song causes men to forget their refinement, the teaching mother gave them, the instruction which they received at her knee, when in childhood hours they knelt to say the evening prayer—

"Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep, If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

Is there a man in this world who stops to think, when he lisped that prayer, but who will remember what mother told him to do through life, what she pointed out to him as the right road and the wrong road, and how she beseeched him to go the right?

But many of them forget. There are men who lose control of themselves whenever temptation approaches. They cannot say "no," and when comparisons are made to the virtuous path, they have not the courage to refuse. Almost every day we hear a new story. The latest is that which comes from St. Joseph, Mo. A bright young man was killed in a quarrel with a companion. The two had been out for "a time," with the members of a theatrical company—two women—and they had made a night of it. There was wine of course, and there was song, and there were the women. These three things together cause sorrow, cause pain, cause suffering and cause death.

The victim in this deplorable affair was not a vicious or a reckless young man. The circumstances which precipitated his destruction were not unusual or exceptional in the lives of young men who are known as gay and to whom all forms of adventure are fascinating. Young McDonald was by no means without blame, but he was not more at fault than are hundreds of thoughtless youths who become mixed up in similar affairs without discovery and without scandal.

The Kansas City Star says: "The chance of harm and of serious mischief is always present where the factors of wine and women are involved, but escape is the rule and disgrace is the exception. There is sufficient vice and misery and agonizing regret attending the fate of Irving McDonald to serve as a warning to other young men with lives of promise reaching out before them, with good names to protect, and with proud and devoted parents to consider, but there is not in the unfortunate quenching of his hopeful young life, any reason for lasting reproach on his memory or for any sense of irreconcilable shame on the part of those who will be on the list of worthy ones, prepared by Captain Cumble. It is a small expenditure which will be required, and every contribution will go to make happy some heart, to gratify a much neglected stomach and to satisfy the anxiety of those who have been denied the luxuries which to some hang always within reach. Every city has its poor. Every state has its deserving. There are those in the fever stricken districts of Southern Texas who are calling for help, and help is being generously given. There are those who are here at home who want some of this help, and The Telegram believes the good people of Fort Worth will not neglect them. Captain Cumble knows every case which he assists. He investigates those who apply to him, he knows who is deserving and who is not, and he exercises a proper discrimination. This work of charity must be done. You do not want to make the trip about the city to find out who are in need, although you are willing to give. Captain Cumble makes your investigation for you, and you have been a benefactor if you contribute of the substance, with which God has blessed you.

In the meantime let the ladies of Fort Worth read the suggestion in The Telegram that you send in a list of those delicacies which will make a well filled basket for a family. The Telegram would like to hear from many on this subject.

A TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Just as long as the world exists, there will be trouble and death, because of too close an acquaintance with "wine, woman and song." It is a combination hard to beat. Taken separately, there is less harm. Wine of itself was introduced at the marriage feast told of in Holy Writ, and today it is used in the celebration of the Holy Communion, as symbolical of the Blood of Christ, shed for salvation of mankind.

Woman, God bless, the noblest of God's handiwork, the purity of the earth, the comforter of mankind, the consolation of every man in his grief and his troubles, the encouragement to the one who is failing, the strength to renewed energies, when good, can be of more help than any other one influence in the world.

And song! Is there one who does not delight in song, whether it be the shrill note of the bird, the cultivated tone of the accomplished musician or the natural melody of the corn-field negro? Song cheers the down-hearted, it drives away the blues, it soothes the savage breast, it entertains, enlightens, ennobles. Song is music and music is one of the arts.

But when they are taken together they cause trouble, they breed disease of the mind, they make a man forget his duty to himself, to his home, to his country. They tempt him to do things which in some moments, away from the triple influence, he would not think of doing, and finally they bring him to an end which is tragic and which visits upon those who love him, and who never forsake him for any cause—his wife and babies—a humiliation and mortification which cling to them forever.

loved him and trusted in him." Cut out the triple alliance young man, it is bad for you. If you must have the three, take the wine in temperate manner. Select the woman from the crowd in which your sister moves, and the song in your sweetheart's parlor, or with your sweetheart by your side in the public amusement hall, but do not have the three together, because the end will be a disastrous one. It may not reach you early in life, but its effect will overtake you at some point in the journey from the mother's breast to the sexton's spade.

IT HAS A MISSION

State Topics is the name of a new publication at Austin, and Jeff McLemore and Horace Shelton are the editors. McLemore has toured Mexico and Shelton has toured the Philippines. McLemore has been a member of the Texas legislature and Shelton has been a government teacher in the Philippines. Both are bachelors, and while incidentally discussing state affairs, they will drop now and then into sentiment. But to be serious. There is a mission for State Topics and The Telegram is glad to see it started. It will be a valuable help to the work this paper has been attempting to do. Its initial number says:

State Topics, as its name indicates, will be devoted mainly to matters of state interest. In politics it will be democratic, but independently so. It will stand squarely by the principles of democracy, but at the same time it will not hold as sacred a public official simply because he wears democracy's brand. Public officials are public servants, and their official acts should not be above criticism. State Topics will deal fairly with matters of general interest and its columns will ever be open to those who can advance a thought that will be beneficial to mankind. In its criticisms of public officials, should it ever indulge in such, it will endeavor to be judicious, let the consequences be what they may. Its mission is not to reform, but to "notify" the people and point out to them the way to bring about the needed reformation. For instance, if a member of the legislature introduces a voting measure that materially affects certain interests, and his law partner or business associate or close personal friend appears as the lobbyist of those whose interests are thereby affected, State Topics will apprise the people of the fact and leave it to them to determine whether or not such practices are consistent with honesty. Legislators are singled out merely for the purpose of illustrating the policy that will govern the paper, and no reflection on any member of any previous legislature is intended. Much of the space in State Topics will be devoted to politics, and the columns of the paper will never be closed to those who may take issue with any opinion it may express. It will have ideas of its own, and it will state them in the plainest language at its command, never forgetting to be just, if at times severe. As previously stated, it is not a reformer, but it will endeavor to "scotch" for those who may labor for the good of their fellowmen. Hypocrisy will find no favor in its columns, and neither will official crookedness. While it does not presume to measure itself the censor of the public, still it will be found doing its duty, as it conceives it, always remembering, however, that there are two sides to every question.

The Telegram has been hoping for just such a watch dog at the state capital. If the Austin papers have ever done their duty in this respect, no one in Texas knows of it. There are a lot of people in the state who believe that because a man labels himself a democrat that he can do as he pleases and the democrats "Oh! Democracy, what misdeeds are committed in thy name."

A man cannot be a Methodist and preach the doctrines which are distinctly those of the Roman Catholic church; he cannot be a physician of the regular school and prescribe according to the homeopathic school; he cannot be a Christian and preach idolatry. Just because an officeholder and an office-seeker claim to be democrats, is no reason to accept them as such. Mayor Powell of Fort Worth said a few days ago, in an address, that it was not necessary for a man to speak from a platform to convince people of his views, but they must judge him by his acts. Public officials can be judged by their acts, and if they are not honest they are not democrats; if they do not administer the affairs of the state with equal rights to all and special privileges to none, they are not democrats. There are a large number in Texas who depart from the faith on occasions, and if State Topics will start out and show up these people, it will be one of the most interesting publications in the state. Editor McLemore knows them and he can tell the story so it will be readable. The Telegram would like to see it push reforms of this character. Success to you, and don't get into the old rut, boys. You have a mission. Perform it.

There is an old southern custom, which is in vogue in New Orleans today, known as lagnappe. It is some little thing given by a shop keeper to a patron in appreciation of the patronage. The railroads of Texas formerly had a lagnappe system. Large shippers over the lines were shown the courtesy of free transportation when they visited the eastern markets, and it was a lagnappe for the heavy business they gave the line extending the courtesy. The legislature of Texas passed a law prohibiting any such courtesy by the roads; but it has refused to pass a law cutting off these courtesies from its members, although some of them never spend a dollar with the companies. One was a courtesy. The other is a hold up. Take your choice.

Every day there are additional words spoken in favor of the auditorium project.

WIN AT NEW ORLEANS

No greater opportunity has ever been afforded the American racing public to obtain a steady income with a small capital than does the Maxim & Gay Co. offer you at New Orleans, beginning Thanksgiving Day, November 26.

Everybody conversant with the history of the Maxim & Gay Co. knows that at New Orleans it has scored those sensational successes which have made its name a household word among patrons of the turf. No record approaches ours for the number of winners named at long prices at the Crescent City. Our experts are already on the ground preparing for the opening. Every indication points to us surpassing our best efforts in furnishing information from that track, and we are again certain we will enable patrons of the Company to win steady incomes on small investments there.

$50 Netted 201.75

Here is a complete statement, showing the result of a $10 play on each horse given in our "Discretionary Series" during October. (Note: A capital to begin with of $50 is required by us, as a matter of conservatism, making a $10 play on each horse that is considered by us a good betting proposition.)

Table with columns: Day, FIRST WEEK, Net Daily Result, THIRD WEEK, Net Daily Result, FOURTH WEEK, Net Daily Result. Includes rows for Bobadil, Oarsman, Juvonal Maxim, etc.

Net Winnings $122.50 Less our Commission, 25 per cent. $30.63 Net profits on $10 play for month. $91.87

We Pick the Winners.

The system we employ to locate winners is identical with that used by "Pittsburg Phil," John A. Drake, etc. It is the only system of the kind in the country. Investment on the turf is ready to win every year, and it proves just as successful.

We gather our information of prospective winners through a force of expert horsemen who hold a watch on the horses in their early morning trials, and in that way learn when they are ready to win. The money that is played into the game by persistent losers, such as the large mass of uneducated gamblers, stands at the head. The work of the Maxim & Gay Co. is to place the general public upon a level with the winning plunger, and our success in this accomplishment has made us famous on two continents.

Our Clients Won a Million Dollars.

As it is well known that our clients have collectively won as much as a million dollars at a single race meeting, it is sometimes asked: "Why do not Maxim & Gay simply sit down and back their own selections?" The answer is simple enough if one stops to consider the situation. Maxim & Gay, by dint of ability, organization, capital and advertising, have secured an enormous clientele, which means the command of a vast amount of money. If we can pick winners for this immense number of investors, our profits are larger than if we were to back our own money only. For on a basis of 25 per cent. of winnings, which we charge for information, one man out of every four of our customers is practically betting for us. The proof that we work for the benefit of the public as well as that they win three weeks out of four and our books show that customer who stuck to us for two months ever failed to get well ahead of the game, while not a few of those who now own winning stables of race horses and who are cutting an important figure on the turf, began their game as mere novices, playing our selections through us.

Join Our Winning Army.

The greatest race meeting in the history of the South begins at New Orleans on November 26. It will eclipse all other turf gatherings of the past. The Crescent City Jockey Club knows that it has never gathered there before, we have more expert "clockers" and handicappers than we ever employed at any other meeting. They cannot make the game too big for us to handle. We move with the times. If you want to get ahead our discretionary series, at New Orleans, in which we play daily, then we consider conditions unpropitious, fill out the following blank and forward your remittance to New Orleans as soon as you can. Play will be begun on the first day of the meeting, if your money has been sent by bank draft, express money order, or currency in registered letter. Uncertified checks are not accepted.

TO MAXIM & GAY Co. (Incorp.), 928 Canal St., New Orleans, La. In accordance with the terms of your ad in The Fort Worth, (Tex.), Telegram, I enclose $..... Dollars. Please bet for me daily..... Dollars on each selection of your Discretionary Series at the New Orleans races. You agree to send me every day, in a letter postmarked before the race, the names of the horses which will be played for my account that afternoon and to send me statements of check weekly for profits, less 25 per cent. of winnings. Post odds are guaranteed as published in the New Orleans Morning Newspapers. My account is subject to withdrawal in full on demand. Name..... Street..... Town or City.....

Table with columns: THE FOLLOWING SUMS ARE THE MINIMUM ACCEPTED FOR PLAY: For a $5 play on each horse $25, For a $10 play on each horse $50, For a $15 play on each horse $75, For a $20 play on each horse $100, For a $30 play on each horse $150, For a $50 play on each horse $250, For a $100 play on each horse $500.

GIRLS DO THE "WOOLING"

In Many European Countries Courtship Waits on Maids' Choice

Not everywhere do the boys do the wooing. Among the gypsies of Moravia, for instance, none will dare presume to court a maiden until she has notified the young man of her choice her readiness. This she does by using a cake as a love letter, baking therein a coin, and throwing it within his tent door at night when he is alone. He, of course, is not bound to accept. But if he does it behooves him to be faithful. The Romany of Hungary knows naught of breach of promise suits. Instead, the relations and friends of the jilted maiden wait upon the inconstant lover, argue with him. Then, if he still remains obstinate, he is maimed by a snout in the leg or arm.

By ancient Romany custom, too, the slighted girl has the right to be present and to decree in which of his limbs he shall be wounded. In practice, however, she usually elects to stay away, thereby leaving the fearful choice to him.

A marriageable Burmese girl as soon as she has completed her trousseau places in her window the "love lamp," and according to whether its interior be scented, carefully directed from behind with her own tiny toilet mirror, shine on this but or on that the gallant within knows that somewhere a lassie's heart is inclined toward him.

When one of the clearmakers of southern Spain—who constitute a separate class by themselves—casts his eyes lovingly on a likely lad she forthwith twists her powder puff into a pompon for his hat. If he wears it at the next bull fight it is considered a match.

The Andalusian peasant girl sends a pumpkin pie to the particular swain she affects. If he eats it, well and good, she is engaged. If not she tries elsewhere, following pie until success is arrived at.

Swiss maidens to a wooling not always and anyhow, but at stated intervals—the eves of the weddings of their friends. This is held what is known as the "feast of the love garlands." All the unmarried girls who can claim acquaintance with either bride or bridegroom assemble at sunset at the latter's house, dance, sing and make merry. Then when the dawn is gray they take their departure, each girl bearing away with her a posy gayly decked with ribbon.

This she hangs on the way home upon the door knob of the house where resides the youth of her heart's desire or flings it through the open casement of his chamber. She may select who she will on these occasions, provided she does not stray beyond the limits of her own canton.

For this latter is, according to Swiss ideas, undesirable. Should she be suspected of it a straw puppet is left dangling—presumably as a hint of the fate that may befall herself—outside her chamber window, while the young men of the village whom she has jointly and severally slighted conspire together to waylay and beat the unlucky stranger whose offense and misfortune it is to have been the object of her wayward choice.—Chicago Tribune.

SHE GOT HER TROUSSEAU

(Original.)

Ethan Arbuckle had got wind of a fine strike on the Benton claim, on the side of Jupper bill. He felt sure that no one except the owners of the claim knew of the find, and they were too busy laying plans for its development to concern themselves about any adjoining property. Arbuckle knew that the veins in Jupper bill ran east and west. To the west lay a large farm that had been already bought by capitalists. On the east lay ten acres owned by Amanda Gregory, an orphan of some twenty summers. Arbuckle had met the girl a number of times and once at a ball in a barn had danced with her so often as to excite the ire of Tom Flynn, a redheaded, freckled son of the soil, who had been long used to consider Amanda as his particular property. Arbuckle had been rather ruffled than pleased with the episode; Amanda had seemed delighted.

The find on Tupper bill put an entirely new phase on the matter. The vein showed $200 in gold to the ton, gave evidence of widening as developed and must run through the property of Amanda Gregory, all of which meant that her ten acres might be worth anywhere from a few hundred thousand to a million dollars. It was for Arbuckle to decide, and decide at once, whether he would jump in and carry off the girl before it was known that she was rich. He would not have considered such a course for a moment had he not absolute evidence that the property adjoining Amanda's was a bonanza. He decided to strike for Miss Gregory and a fortune.

He invited the girl to drive with him and while bowling along told her that he had been captivated by her rustic beauty; that he had discovered an uncut gem; that he found it necessary to his happiness to forego a match with an heiress in the east provided Amanda would bestow herself upon him in her poverty.

Amanda listened with averted head. She thought of redheaded Tom Flynn, whom she liked, and compared him with the elegant Mr. Arbuckle, whom she did not love, but considered a prize far above an uneducated daughter of pioneers.

"I hain't got nothin' for a truss," she said by way of reply.

"Never mind that," replied the wooer. "We will get one in Paris. After we are married it will be proper for me to pay for what you wear."

A man was coming down the road on foot. When he reached a point where he could be plainly seen he showed the freckled face of Tom Flynn. Amanda colored. Arbuckle looked ill at ease. Flynn scowled and passed on.

It was long after dark when Arbuckle brought Miss Gregory to a decision and turned toward her home.

"Do you know, Amanda," he said, "that it will be necessary for us to be married at once or wait for several years? My interests in the east demand my presence there immediately."

"When must you go?"

"Tomorrow evening at latest."

"That's pretty sudden."

Arbuckle, who had little confidence that the secret of the wonderful strike would be kept forty-eight hours, bent all his persuasive force to accomplish a marriage at noon the next day and at last obtained the girl's consent. Then he drove her up to her cabin, where she lived with an aunt, and after a kiss in which there was little warmth on either side left her. He had no sooner driven away than Tom Flynn entered the gate. Amanda was standing on the threshold looking after her newly made betrothed. Tom began a protest against her intimacy with Arbuckle, but she stopped him and told him all that had occurred. Tom smothered his anguish, and went off to begin his watch on the claim in the next field, where the strike had been made, a strike of which he was ignorant.

"What's the matter, Flynn?" asked Benton, owner of the mine.

Tom confessed that he was being robbed of his girl, who was to be married to Arbuckle the next day at noon, then went off wretched.

Amanda was preparing to get into bed when there was a knock at her door, and ten minutes later Benton was admitted.

"Hearing that you are about to be married," he said, "and are naturally in need of funds, I've called to help you out."

"I do want a trousseau."

"I'll buy your farm."

"You will?"

"Yes. What do you want for it?"

"Five hundred dollars an acre," said the girl, dreading that she had asked too much.

"It's a bargain!"

Within an hour a deed was executed to Benton and assigned by him to Tom Flynn. Then the parties concerned went to bed.

When Arbuckle approached his betrothed the next day he was greeted with a radiance he had never seen in her face before.

"I've got my trousseau," she exclaimed. "How did you get it?"

"Sold my farm last night for—just think—$5,000!"

"Smart girl," replied Arbuckle in a cutting tone. "I have some preparations to make and must leave you for a short time."

That was the last Amanda or any one on Tupper bill ever saw of Arbuckle. The property which Benton had bought for Flynn was included in the Benton mine and stock issued for it to Tom and his wife, for Tom married Amanda.

Amanda got her trousseau, but long after her wedding, when she and Tom, having sprung up, had gone to Paris to purchase it.

CLAIRVOYANT POWERS

ALL DOUBTS DISPELLED

SKETCHY MIND CONVINCED THAT CLAIMS WERE TRUTH

Prof. Antonius New in the City, Tells Life Story With Absolute Accuracy

It was with a doubting heart and a skeptical mind that the writer hurried down the street to keep an engagement with Prof. Antonius in his rooms at 605 Throckmorton street; the representative had been detailed to find out the truth or falsity of the clairvoyant's claims and was inclined to think it would be an expose. Upon arriving at the rooms, Mrs. Antonius said that the professor would be at liberty in a few minutes, and true to her assertion, after a very short interval, an alert, wide-awake, very intelligent looking gentleman stepped to the door and invited the would-be investigator into an adjoining room. This room is just an ordinary bedroom, without any trap-door or paraphernalia, open to the fresh air and sunlight. The professor's first words were that he felt unusually well and believed that he would be able to give a very satisfactory reading; that he wanted the representative to write him up just as he was found, a fraud, or if an honest person possessed of extraordinary power.

He asked no question whatever, except to know if the person to whom he was giving the reading wanted the truth, whether it was good or bad. Being answered in the affirmative, he proceeded with his instructions for the reading, which were that the subject should write the name and the date of birth on one piece of paper, mother's maiden name on another, the name of the person in whom the greatest interest centered on another, and then four important questions on separate slips of paper. This was all done under Prof. Antonius' absence from the room. He left the room and his directions were carried out, the paper folded and placed in hiding, but when the professor returned and the papers were placed on the table, he was much chagrined to find that they had only been folded once; he then said that they must be folded and refolded so that there would be no possibility of his seeing even one letter of the writing. He again left the room and each slip was folded as small and tight as possible and once more concealed in the writer's pocket. The professor came in, took his seat and asked the visitor if certain things, the name of an absorbing interest to him. He then directed that the questions be laid on the table, each one remaining folded and never passing into the clairvoyant's possession for an instant; he then took each subject in turn and answered the question asked minutely, the only connection between him and the written matter being when the reporter took the questions, one at a time, the contents of the folded paper not even being known to himself, and placed them on the clairvoyant's forehead. Bear in mind that the papers were not unfolded, each one was picked up at random by the questioner himself and the subjects inquired on were personal affairs that were unknown to anyone. Prof. Antonius made not a mistake in reading the questions, whether he answered two of them correctly, remains for the future to reveal. As to the names mentioned, facts of personal history, the absorbing interests of the inquirer's life, he was absolutely correct. What his power is and how he told these things the writer does not know; but that he worked very rapidly; that there was no outside assistance, and that, last of all, he inspires those who come in contact with him with the greatest confidence is vouched for.

It is claimed that we are always ready to condemn and sneer and laugh at those things which we know least of. The seeker after information who went to Prof. Antonius for a reading, has consulted palmists, clairvoyants, etc., before for the sake of finding out whether or not there was anything in it, but always felt more or less skeptical over the things which they claimed to reveal; some things they told correctly and some they missed, but in regard to Prof. Antonius it must be acknowledged that so far as his reading the past and the present is concerned he did not fall in a single instance; whether or not his reading of the future is correct, time alone can tell. The questions he answered were answered unfavorably with but one exception; the continued unfavorable answers caused a slight expression of dismay, at which Mr. Antonius said that he was sorry to foretell such an unhappy future, but that he had been asked for the truth and was telling it exactly as it approached him. There was no attempt to soften the unpleasant statements or to flatter and conciliate the person whom he knew was there for the purpose of telling things exactly as they appeared and informing the public as to whether or not he was a fake, or could do the things that he professed to do.

In regard to certain business affairs he gave advice; that is, in telling certain conditions that existed and warning the inquirer against certain people. The writer of this article can truthfully say that Prof. Antonius' reading was entirely satisfactory and correct up to date.

Prof. Antonius can be consulted daily, and Sundays at 605 Throckmorton St., between Fifth and Sixth streets, rooms 18, 19 and 20.

WEALTH AND RESOURCES OF THE NEW ISTHMIAN REPUBLIC

The commerce of Panama amounts to about $2,000,000 per annum, its population to about 300,000, and its area to 31,571 square miles, or nearly equal to that of the state of Indiana. These figures are supplied by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics, and are the latest available data on commerce, population, and area. Those of commerce are from the reports of the United States consuls at Panama and Colon, which have just been received, and not yet published; those of population are based upon the latest official estimate, which shows the population in 1881, and was based upon the census of 1871; while the figures of area are from accepted geographical authorities and are those of the area of the "department of Panama" of the Colombian republic. The principal ports are Panama, on the Pacific coast, and Colon, on the Atlantic side, and these ports are visited annually by more than one thousand vessels, which land over 1,000,000 tons of merchandise and nearly 100,000 passengers, chiefly for transfer over the Panama railway, forty-seven miles in length, connecting the Pacific port of Panama with the Atlantic port of Colon.

Colon, or Aspinwall, as it is sometimes called, has a population of about 5,000 persons. The city of Panama has a population of about 25,000. It was founded in 1518, burned in 1571, and rebuilt in 1573, while Colon is of much more recent date, having been founded in 1855.

THE POPULATION

The population, which, as already indicated, amounts in number to about 300,000, is composed of various elements—Spanish, Indian, negro, and a limited number of persons from the European countries, those engaged in commerce and transportation and the operation of the Panama railway. A considerable number of the population is composed of persons brought to the isthmus as laborers for the construction of the canal, and of their descendants. Since the abolition of slavery in Jamaica considerable number of blacks and mulattoes have settled on the isthmus as small dealers and farmers, and in some villages on the Atlantic side they are said to be in the majority, and as a result the English language is much in use, especially on the Atlantic side. Some of the native population have retained their customs, speech, and physical type, especially those in the western part of the province, and claim to be descendants of the natives found in that section by the Spaniards when they discovered and conquered the country.

OF THE COMMERCE

Of the commerce of Panama, the United States supplies a larger share than any other country. The importations at the port of Colon during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, as shown by the report of the United States consul, amounted to $952,644, of which $517,975 was from the United States, $119,088 from Germany, $22 from England, and $262,889 from other countries. The figures of the fiscal year 1902 show a considerable increase from those of 1902, in which the value of the imports at Colon were $776,345. Of the $1,179 imports from the United States at Colon in 1903, $200,744 was dry goods, $189,333 provisions, $59,890 coal, $28,642 lumber, $22,900 kerosene, $20,400 liquors and $21,940 hardware. The value of the importations from the United States from Colon in 1903 amounted to $173,770, of which $75,432 was bananas, $24,886 coconuts, $12,472 turtle shells, $9,400 ivory nuts, $6,460 hides and $5,924 coffee.

EXPORTS

From the port of Panama the exports to the United States in the fiscal year 1902 amounted to $102,342, of which $55,767 was hides, $49,971 India rubber, $27,505 cocobolo nuts, $15,598 ivory nuts, $12,271 deer skins and $6,908 coffee. The consular Panama states that the imported articles come mostly from England, Germany, France, Italy and the United States, but gives no statistics of the imports.

Panama is connected with San Francisco by a weekly steamer schedule operated by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and with Valparaiso by a weekly steamer schedule operated by the Pacific Steam Navigation Company and South American Steamship Company. Two passenger and two freight trains leave Panama daily for Colon and Colon daily for Panama. The time for passenger trains over the forty-seven miles of railway is three hours.

From Panama there is one cable line north to American ports and one to the south. The actual time consumed in communicating with the United States and receiving an answer is stated by the consul to be usually about four hours. There are also cable lines from Colon to the United States and Europe.

The money of the country is silver, the rate of exchange having averaged during the past year about 150 per cent.

A MAN CAN'T WORK WHEN HE IS SUFFERING WITH PILES

He Can't Eat, Can't Sleep, Can't Get Comfort Any Way But One—Pyramid Pile Cure Will Cure Him, Give Relief at Once—Never Known to Fail

Just a little pain may so distract a man's mind that it will cost him hundreds of dollars. Life is a battle. To succeed one needs all his energies and all his brain force to apply to the question at hand. Even a corn will make him irritable, cross, angry—and an angry man seldom succeeds. The trifling pain of a corn is a pleasant feeling beside the agonizing ache of piles. That is a pain which seems to pervade the whole body. It communicates itself to all the parts near the seat of the trouble and brings on a heavy, dragging feeling in the perineum. Those who have never so suffered do not know what it means. It racks the nerves, prevents sleep, prevents concentrated thought and makes a man lose flesh as fast as he would with a virulent fever.

And yet piles are looked upon as a little thing. They are neglected—allowed to run on from month to month and year to year. By and by comes a dangerous surgical operation. Maybe it cures—maybe it kills.

There is only one sure, safe and quick cure for piles. It is the Pyramid Pile Cure. It is a recent discovery and its properties are such that it cleanses, soothes and heals the inflamed parts, reduces the inflammation at once, and with continued treatment removes all swelling and all trace of the disease. It puts the membranes in a healthy, active condition and cures completely and permanently.

From Samuel Victor, Detroit, Mich.: "I had not written you sooner because I used until I was completely cured, and so it was that after using three boxes of your Pyramid Pile Cure, I am entirely cured of the terrible disease from which I have suffered six months; and now I am using Pyramid Pile Pills which help me very much."

From E. H. Palmer, Windsor, Calif.: "I have been troubled for fifteen years with piles and have tried different salves and ointments, but never came across anything like your Pyramid Pile Cure. I used two 50-cent boxes three months ago, and they have made a complete cure, and I am recommending them to every one I know to be afflicted. Thanks for the cure."

From Thos. A. Nixon, 554 N. Bambery st., Philadelphia: "It is now time I should let you know that I am cured of bleeding piles. If you only knew how I have suffered from them for the last nine years in pain. Last April I went to the drug store and bought a 50-cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure, and I found at last a good cure. I had spent dollars trying to get cured of my piles; all others have failed to cure me, but now I am happy to have a good sleep and be able to work also."

Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists generally. If yours doesn't keep it, he will get it for you if you ask him. Book on cause and cure of piles sent free. Address Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich.

BEST LINIMENT ON EARTH
I. M. McHany, Greenville, Texas, writes, November 2, 1903: "I had rheumatism last winter, was down in bed six weeks; tried everything, but got no relief, till a friend gave me a part of a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I used it, and got two more bottles. It cured me, and I haven't felt any rheumatism since. I can recommend Snow Liniment to be the best liniment on earth for rheumatism." For rheumatic, sciatic or neuralgic pains, rub in Ballard's Snow Liniment, you will not suffer long, but will be gratified with a speedy and effective cure. 25c, 50c and $1 at H. T. Pangburn & Co.

I HAD not intended to call upon Dr. Rawson when I left my home, my destination, if indeed I had any, being one of my clubs, but it began to rain suddenly, and, being without an umbrella, I welcomed the light in the doctor's study as I chanced to pass his house. When I was ushered into his cozy little den I was rather surprised to find the doctor sitting in a large Turkish chair and gazing into a bright log fire which flamed most invitingly in the big chimney place. I say I was surprised, because this was the first time I had ever found him alone without a great leather covered tone of some kind in his hand.

"My dear doctor," said I, "why so pensive? You look as though your best patient had just died—your best paying patient, I mean, for, of course, doctors are not expected to mourn over every death."

"Your guess is a good one," replied the doctor quietly. "A very good patient of mine died an hour ago—a very good patient, a very good friend."

"Indeed! I am very sorry to hear it," said I, putting off my bantering tone. "Was there anything special about his case? Your diagnosis was correct, of course?"

"I am pondering over his case, and I am not sure about my diagnosis."

"You don't mean that you have made a mistake?"

"Perhaps, but not as you mean it. My friend was troubled with angina pectoris and had suffered a long time. I knew that he could not live long, and so did he. He had no fear of death, and consequently I was perfectly frank with him from the outset. His death tonight was even sooner than we had anticipated, but of course in such cases the exact duration of life cannot be prognosticated."

"How, then, was there a mistake in your diagnosis?" I was puzzled.

"I did not say that there was. I do not know, and that is the trouble."

"Explain, please."

"My friend was a spiritualist. On all other subjects he was certainly as rational as any man. Indeed he was educated far beyond the average of even college bred men. Still he believed in spirits—believed that the dead return to this world, I mean."

"There are lots of such people in the world," said I. "But what about your mistake in the diagnosis?" I was thus persistent because I had come to believe the doctor infallible as a diagnostician.

"Oh, that was but a figure of speech," he replied, smiling. "I alluded to my general opinion of the man. I thought as you do—that he was a mild sort of monomaniac simply because he held to his spiritualistic views."

"Cause enough," said I. "Surely no sane man could believe that spirits walk the earth."

"That has been my view also. Still just before his death tonight he broached this subject. He declared that he would yet convince me and that he would do it by returning to visit me after death."

"Ah, so that is it! You were looking into the fire just now and waiting for your friend's ghost to appear. Well, well! You astonish me." I laughed aloud. "Come, come, doctor. I am glad I dropped in to cheer you up. I tell you what; ghosts, they say, do not get out much before 12, and it is not yet 9. If you'll mix me a punch I'll stay with you till the witching hour and stand by you in your encounter with the specter."

"He did not say that he would come tonight," said the doctor, with a smile, taking my chaffing good naturedly.

"Well, I imagine not. He was smart enough not to fix the hour, not knowing what engagements might be waiting for him after he had 'passed over,' eh? I think that's the lingo, is it not? But, I say, did this friend of yours believe in ghosts theoretically or practically? Did he just prove the thing to himself by the Scriptures or philosophy or something of that sort, or had he ever seen a real live ghost? A real live ghost is rather good, eh?"

"He claimed to have seen a great many materialized spirits."

"The deuce he did! Why, then, look here. How is it, if he was so intimate with ghosts—on visiting terms, as it were—how was it that he never introduced you to one of his celestial visitors?"

"He did once."

"What's that?" I hardly thought I could have heard aright.

"Would you like me to tell you of my experience?" asked the doctor. Of course I accepted, but before he began the story he went to his cupboard and brought forward the ingredients with which to brew a punch of his own concoction, of which he knew that I was very fond.

"The incident occurred only last November," began the doctor. "Just before Thanksgiving day I received a letter from my friend insisting that I should go out to his house in the country. It is a place not fifty miles from New York, but I shall not tell you exactly where because—well, for reasons. He had only been there himself for a few weeks, 'nt was enchanted with his new home, 'nt was in a sort of park—one of those private parks containing a number of residences. He was very urgent about my going and explained that if I would only give him the time from Thanksgiving to the next Monday morning he would undertake to dispel my doubts as to materialization. In short, he promised to show me a spirit returned to earth. And he added rather mysteriously, 'The character of this manifestation is such that even you will not charge fraud.' I had been working pretty hard, and the temptation was great to have a few days in the country. Strange to say, the hope of seeing my friend's ghost repelled rather than attracted me. I was satisfied that there was trickery of some kind and felt reasonably certain that I should discover the truth. I was equally sure that my friend was honest, and I was loath to be a party to his discomfiture when I should have shown up his ghost in its true colors.

"I reached the station about noon on Thanksgiving day. My friend met me and took great delight in showing me over his new home. The family, of course, were cordial, as I had long been on closely intimate terms with them—in fact, I called his wife and two girls by their names. The wife, Margaret, was one of those hero worshipers, her husband being the hero. She saw everything as he saw it and, of course, was as firmly fixed in spiritualistic theories as he. The eldest daughter, Stephanie, was college bred, a Vassar graduate, and not only believed in spiritualism, but could prove it, or thought she could, mathematically, logically, psychologically and philosophically. She was the pride of her father and his mainstay in an argument. The other girl, Fanny, was my favorite, and if she believed in ghosts I am sure it was only because of her environment. She had no fixed ideas of her own. Then there was the youngest child, Charlie, the Satan of the family, a boy of fifteen. This young rascal openly avowed a firm belief in ghosts within earshot of his parents; but, while vouching for the accuracy of his father's many tales of visiting specters, not infrequently Charlie would slyly wink one eye at me. Here I may as well say frankly that I associated my friend's latest ghost with Charlie. I expected that, should I discover the secret strings which moved the specter, I would likewise find that Charlie was pulling them. In this connection I was destined to meet my first mystification.

"To my surprise, my friend said nothing about the ghostly visitation from the moment of my arrival up to the time when I was shown to my room to make my toilet for dinner. I attributed this to his innate courtesy and natural diffidence. He evidently hesitated to bore me too soon with his theories, or, as I had often called it, his fad. While I was washing there was a light rap on my door, and Charlie walked in.

"Say, doctor," said he, getting at his topic without delay, "I suppose dad's told you about our spook, and you've come up to see her, haven't you?"

"Yes," I replied. "But I did not know it was a female. Have you seen her yourself? I thought I might as well pump the youngster at once."

"Have I seen her?" said he. "Well, I guess yes. Say, doctor, I can trust you, can't I?"

"Why, certainly," said I. It seemed that my discoveries were to be all too easy. But I was mistaken.

"Well," continued Charlie, "you must know then that I never took any stock in dad's ghosts—that is, not in any of the others. Of course I've seen a lot of them, and then, again, there's been a lot more that dad said he saw, but I didn't see, though I've agreed with him, because—well, just to make him happy a boy must do that, eh, doctor?"

"You sly young rascal!" thought I, but I merely answered with a nod, and he went on:

"You see, all the other ghosts and ghostesses were just common every day sort of spooks, things with sheets round them, and they most generally came in the dark, when there was lit the chance to tell much about their looks. They might have been the mediums, you know, at least some of them. But it's different with this ghost we've got now. She's a beauty, and there doesn't seem any chance for a humbug about it."

"Why not?" I asked, wondering whether the humbuggery were not going on at the very moment.

"Well, in the first place, it's such a little bit of a ghost. She must have died when she was not more than seven or eight years old. I should think, anyway, she's only so high," indicating with his hand held above the floor.

"You would hardly expect a medium to make up for a little one like that, now, would you? It's easier to believe in the ghost notion."

"A grown person could hardly make up for so small a ghost, I must admit," said I. "But how do you know it is not a child who does this trick?"

"What child, doctor? I know all the youngsters that live around here, and anyhow, why should a kid eight years old wait up till 12 or 1 o'clock every night just to take a walk through our hall and make believe she's a ghost? A kid might do that once, but not every night for more than a month. No, I guess we've got a real spook this time. You wait till you see her. I didn't believe in it myself, you know, but this spook knocks me. Well, I've got to dress, too, so goodby."

"I descended to the dining room in a most thoughtful mood. The subject of ghosts or materialization came up but once during the dinner, and then in a most incidental way. One of the guests, an elderly man, speaking to Margaret, said:

"Did you know when you took this house that it is supposed to be haunted? I hope you have never been troubled by the ghost."

"No, we have had no trouble whatever with any ghost," said Margaret, and then she added, "May I have another ice brought for you?"

"This indicated to me at once that my friends, because of their sensitiveness to criticism, had carefully concealed their spiritualistic beliefs. Consequently it would appear to be a most singular coincidence that any of their new neighbors should have inaugurated a practical joke and should have so persistently kept it up as to have the spurious specter appear for so many nights consecutively. I began to find myself wishing for the moment when I might see the visitation with my own eyes and judge for myself. It was after 11 o'clock when all the guests had departed and I found myself alone with my friends, and now the subject which seemed to have been so long tabooed was at once broached.

"The hour approaches, doctor," said my friend, "when we may expect our visitor. Do not imagine that I mean midnight. I hope you credit me with more intelligence than to suppose I countenance the fanciful notion that the dead leave their shrouds at the stroke of 12 and return to their graves at cock crow."

"I hope so," said I, with a smile.

"Nevertheless it is true that our little friend has never come before 12. That, of course, is a mere coincidence. Sometimes it may be within half an hour after the great town clock chimes the hour, and again, she has been as late as 1 or even 2 o'clock."

"Do you mean that she comes every night and that you wait up to see her?"

"As soon as she had gone I looked silently at my friends, hardly knowing what to say. Stephanie broke the silence.

"Well, doctor," said she, "what do you think?"

"I think I would like to go to bed

ly and beckoned me to lower my head that he might whisper, whereupon he said, so low that the others could not hear:

"I'm on. You think I'm working the ghost, but you're off. Wait till you see her. I tell you, she's the real thing. I'll stick to you close to show I'm honest in this."

"And he did. From that moment he was never more than three feet away from me, so that any connection that he might have had with the apparition evidently did not require his personal attention. Fanny sang two or three melodies most charmingly, and then suddenly I felt a tug at my coat and turned to see Charlie pointing toward the door, through which what appeared to be a little girl entered. The others had not yet noticed the apparition, and it came so suddenly and so silently that for an instant I was stunned. I use the word advisedly.

"Slowly my mind seemed to grasp the idea that here was a veritable returned spirit, and such a dainty, beautiful little apparition! A childish face, as devoid of deceit as one might imagine an angel's. A lovely face, too, peeping out from a wealth of golden locks, which in the lamplight shone as a halo. It was impossible to gaze upon this apparition and harbor the least suspicion of fraud. She came into the room slowly, stepping carefully, until she stood in the center. Then she turned and glided toward the bay window. By this time we were all watching. At the window she stooped to her knees, put her two hands together, and her little lips moved as in prayer. So she knelt a few minutes, and then, rising slowly, she retraced her steps and, passing out into the hall, disappeared.

"As soon as she had gone I looked silently at my friends, hardly knowing what to say. Stephanie broke the silence.

"Well, doctor," said she, "what do you think?"

"I think I would like to go to bed

"Oh, you mean," said Stephanie, "that this was only a Thanksgiving ghost, or, rather, a ghost resulting from too much Thanksgiving dinner?"

"The girl's tone irritated me, already annoyed as I was because I had no explanation of what I had seen ready to offer. So I said testily:

"I certainly would like to see the apparition again when I had eaten less, although, of course, Margaret," I added, turning to my hostess, "the dinner was beyond all doubt the best I have ever eaten. But too full a stomach makes the mind slow."

"Then you doubt the genuineness of the manifestation?" my friend asked.

"I certainly do not doubt you, my friend," I hastily replied, "but I cannot under the circumstances so quickly give up my own views. In spite of the warning that she was to come, the little lady rather took me by surprise, and I was hardly in the condition to consider what I saw from a scientific standpoint."

"Ah! But science," said Stephanie, "can but support the theory of spiritualism. There are three great entities in the universe, each imperishable in itself—matter, force and spirit. Science must recognize this trinity and that all forms are but the union of the three in varying proportions. The highest form—man—is the highest simply because of the preponderance of the spirit which is in the combination. This preponderance is so great that whereas the destruction of any other form, such as a mineral, resolves the components into separate particles, which, by attraction, rush back into the parent source and are lost, in man the spiritual portion is great enough to resist this attraction after death and to continue as a separate entity. By appropriating to itself a portion of the superabundant matter and force which is everywhere in ether, it is possible for this spirit to appear to mortals as a re-embodied being."

"This glib Vassar college girl's explanation of spiritualism made me lose my temper, and I replied, with little courtesy:

"And when these spirits re-embodied I suppose it is quite natural that they should find clothes and dress themselves before appearing to us poor mortals. The little girl last night had on a party dress, with ribbon bows on it. Why did she bother about all that? Why do not spirits come without clothing?"

"I do not know," replied Stephanie, without losing her self control for a moment. "I do not pretend to know everything. The spirits think it well to conform to earthly customs, I suppose, or, perhaps, it is merely the result of past habits while in the flesh."

"My friend saw that I was in an ill humor and hastened to smooth the troubled atmosphere.

"Doctor," said he, "you said just now that you were not in a condition last night to investigate the manifestation in a scientific manner. Nothing would please us all better than to have you test this matter scientifically if you can."

"Like an inspiration an idea crossed my mind, and without hesitation I answered:

"I will agree to try a scientific experiment tonight if you will permit it without interference."

"I would not like to make so rash a promise without knowing what you purpose."

"Let me explain, then. I have been as much interested in hypnotism as you have been in spiritualism. You know enough of that to recognize the fact that hypnotism is an influence over the mind rather than over the body. Any effects upon the body are operations through the mind. To make my meaning plainer, you would consider it folly were I to undertake to hypnotize a dead body?"

"I should think you insane."

"And rightly. But—I hesitated to make my proposition, thinking that it would be unwelcome. But would it be insanity to endeavor to hypnotize a disembodied spirit? The result was quite astonishing to me."

"I see what you mean to do," cried Stephanie enthusiastically. "It is a grand experiment. You will try to hypnotize the spirit which appears here. Agree to the doctor's proposal, father. It will be a great scientific achievement."

"Why, certainly, I agree," said my friend, with equal enthusiasm. "I can imagine great results. If the disembodied spirit could be hypnotized, it might be compelled to reveal what up to now all materialized spirits have declined to tell."

"That day was a long one for us all, for every one impatiently awaited the hour for the experiment, and I may at once come to that. This time I was not taken by surprise, but saw the apparition when she first came into the room. I was not so much astonished as on the night before, yet I must confess that for a moment I was tempted to abandon my experiment. For one instant I felt that it would be sacrilegious to interfere with what, after all, might be supernatural. What if it were a spirit? I could not positively know to the contrary. Suppose my hypnotic experiment should succeed, and that some great secret of the universe should by this means be revealed. Was I prepared to endure the consequences, to suffer the displeasure of my Maker? Thus, with all our vaunted faith in scientific knowledge, our firmest beliefs may be shaken in a moment, for, after all, belief is not knowledge."

"I waited till the pantomimic prayer was over and the little girl was walking toward the door; then I intercepted her path and stood perfectly still until she came quite close to me. She did not appear to notice me until she had come close enough so that her outstretched little hand touched me. Then she stopped and stood still. I gently took her hand, whispering, 'Be not afraid.'

"As I touched her she started and trembled violently, but as I spoke she as quickly became quiet. I recognized at once that my experiment was to succeed and so proceeded with regained confidence.

"Sleep," said I. "Sleep deeply. More deeply still." I touched her eyes lightly with the tips of my fingers, and they closed. "Do as I bid you," I continued. "Come; follow me." I walked across the room, and the girl followed. Stephanie uttered a cry of astonishment mingled with pleasure, but at a sign from me she became silent again. The girl sat down in a chair, and I stood in front of her.

"You are asleep," I said. "You are asleep, but you are awake. You see me. Open your eyes and look at me closely." Slowly the eyes opened, and the little one gazed at me. "So. Look at me well. Will you know me again? Speak! Answer! You can speak."

"I fancied I could bear the heart beats of those in the room as they waited breathlessly for their ghost to speak. At first the girl merely looked long and earnestly into my face, but presently the lips trembled, and I saw that there was an effort to speak."

"Speak! Answer! I said again, more commandingly. 'You see me! Will you always know me again?'"

"Yes."

"She spoke. It was but one word, but to my auditors a hypnotized materialized spirit had been compelled to speak. You may imagine their interest in what I should say or do next."

"You know how you came here?"

"Yes."

"You can come again?"

"Yes."

"You will come again if I wish?"

"Yes."

"Then listen. Listen and remember. Remember and do. Come again. Come tomorrow. When the clock chimes 12 come again. But come at the chiming of the bell in the daytime—not in the night. You are not afraid of the light?"

"No."

"Then you will come? This time there was no answer. I touched the eyelids again, and they drooped and closed. "So. Sleep," said I. "Sleep deeply. Now you are asleep. Listen! Listen and obey! Come tomorrow when the clock chimes 12 in the daytime. Come at that hour and in the daytime. Come! Now, answer. Will you come?"

"Yes."

"That will do. Now turn whence you came." Immediately and swiftly she turned and glided away out of our sight. I was at once surrounded by my friends, congratulated on my success and at the same time criticized because I had not asked more important questions. In answer to this I declared that we should treat this spirit as we would any hypnotic subject. At the first experiment too much should not be expected. Monosyllables were all that we had been able to obtain by way of speech, but we had charged this spirit to appear to us in broad daylight. A hypnotized living person would obey such an injunction. It would be a great achievement to compel a ghost to do so. To this they agreed and went off to bed satisfied that the experiment promised to be a great success.

"At the noon hour on the next day we were all assembled, impatient for the denouement. The town clock had scarcely chimed before our little maiden appeared. She came into the room with apparent nervousness and glanced timidly about. Finally her eyes rested on me, and instantly she ran lightly to me, jumped into my lap and cried:

"I know you. You told me to come, and so I came."

"Just then another person entered the room, a young woman in the garb of a trained nurse.

"I am so glad I have found you, Rosie," said she, taking the child off my knee. "What made you run away?"

"The mystery was solved. We were dealing not with a ghost, but with a child who was an invalid because of a nervous disease from which she suffered. She was a little somnambulist. During the previous year she and her parents had lived in the house now occupied by my friends, and it had been her nightly habit to come into the room where we had seen her and to kneel at her mother's side to say her prayers. One night there had been a party, and while dressed in the pretty little frock in which she had visited us she had suffered from her first seizure. To indicate to you how deep an impression upon the mind may be, I have no doubt that it was because on that night, being taken away from the room while ill, she had not, as usual, said her prayers; that during her somnambulist walks she dressed herself to say her prayers. This is especially plausible because about the same time the mother had been taken ill and for some months had been in a sanitarium, so that after that party night the little one had never knelt at her mother's side."

"But why did she come only at night?" I asked.

"In the first place, it was only at night that she could evade the vigilance of her nurse, and, what is equally important, it would be only at night that the idea of saying her prayers would recur to her mind. You note obedience to hypnotic suggestion, her nurse was close behind her."

"What did your friends say when they found that their ghost was alive?"

"Just what all spiritualists say when a manifestation is exposed—that one inexperience that they have had other shakens."

"Well, doctor," said I, "my experience with spirits leaves my faith unshaken in those of your mixing. Here's your good health, and may the spirit of your departed friend come not back to trouble you. Pleasant dreams and good night."

The man who'd set a b'ar trap in his chicken house on Thanksgiving ebe am no Christian an' nebbber will be.

Dere's no place in hebben fur de man dat steals. Jess de same I 'spects de coon dat ain't got a cent an' yet brings home a turkey fur Thanksgiving will go to de good place.

De American people doan git half 'nuff sleep, an' I 'spects dat's jess why most ob 'em am allus complainin' ob feelin' run down. De white man oughter git to bed early, 'specially on Thanksgiving ebe.

If any ob my fam'ly gits to allin' I doan nebbber git no doctor, 'kase dey do a heap ob ha'm. When my Uncle Julius was tookke sick one Thanksgiben an' de doctor said he couldn't dun had nose ob dat fo'teen pound turkey dat was hangin' in de kitchen what was de result? Why, when Julius smelled dat bird, all brown an' juicy, an' heard de fam'ly smacking de lips, he jess gib one groan an' died.

Yo' may s'arch through de almanac an' de dictionary an' all de histories ob dis kentry, but yo' won't find no mention made ob a cull'd man bein' 'lected president ob de United States. I reckon it am just as well. If a cull'd man beid dat office he'd kill hisself on Thanksgiving tryin' to eat all de turkeys dat am sent to de White House on dat occasion.

I allus stick up fur de Bible an' belie ebery word in dat good book, but I'ze kinder a leetle bit 'spicuous 'bout Mistah Noah an' his ark. Dat man might hev let all de birds an' animules in his ark, but did dey all git out again? Doan yo' 'spose dat de turkeys was dun missin' 'bout Thanksgiving time?

When Thanksgiving comes an' I take de head ob de table an' de ole woman an' chill'en gather round an' smack der lips an' roll der eyes, when de hour comes dat I stand up wid knife in hand to begin carbin', when de miss'arves dat I see wid one hand to catch dat turkey by de haig an' hold him solid while I slice away, if one ob my chill'en should look up an' inq'ar where I got dat bird den, I'm tellin' yo' dat sich a calamitous circumstance would perspire dat dat child would remember de event all-de rest ob his bo'n days! The President's Turkey. For the past thirty years the turkey, which has graced the White House table on Thanksgiving day has come from Westery, R. I. the gift of Hiram Vose. In 1873 Mr. Vose sent a thirty-six pound bird to President Grant. It was received with such favor that he has continued to supply the yearly presidential turkey, and his sons after him will keep on sending turkeys to Washington as long as the race holds out. Rhode Island turkeys are not as numerous as they once were, but their quality has not deteriorated. Brown and Narragansett grays are the standard breeds. No change has been made in the methods of breeding turkeys in the years have gone by, but in view of the bad luck farmers have had recently in raising large flocks Mr. Vose, whose turkey market is a clearing house for all the country round, is trying to discover some means to prevent the national bird from becoming extinct.

Thanksgiving Day Abroad. Wherever two or three Americans are gathered together on Thanksgiving day there is sure to be an elaborate observance of the epicurean holiday. In every foreign capital a Thanksgiving banquet at the American legation is one of the fixtures in the ambassador's or minister's ceremonial calendar, and to his official reception are welcomed all of his countrymen residing abroad or temporarily away from their own firesides. The American churches hold religious services, where there are American churches, and in their absence the natives usually offer their places of worship to the Americans for the day. Even in Peking Thanksgiving day is a notable event, its observance shared in by Christianized Chinamen and the members of other embassies than our own.

SLOWLY THE EYES OPENED.

"We do now. At first we did not realize that her visits were to be so regular, and several times we retired without seeing her. One night, however, I happened to get up again, and, coming through the hall, I met the dear one just departing. Since then we have always awaited her coming and have never been disappointed."

"You mean that you form a circle and sit in the usual way?"

"Not at all. This is not a science. That is the wonderful part of it. There is no medium connected with this. The spirit, though a young one, must have great power to be thus able to manifest unaided."

"Am I to understand that this manifestation, as you call it, has been seen by all of you?"

"By all of us, and, moreover, she comes right into this room, where all the lights are burning, a thing heretofore supposed to be impossible. Thus, you see, we have all had ample opportunity to see her."

"Have you ever spoken to this visitor?"

"Many times, but thus far we have been unable to obtain any reply. Ah! there go the midnight chimes."

"We listened to the beautiful bells, which sounded loudly in the stillness of the night, till the last peal had died away. Then it was Stephanie who spoke:

"Doctor," said she, "you are a skeptic, are you not?"

"No," said I, with a smile. "Let me rather claim to be an agnostic."

"Very good. After tonight you will be a believer. But you have not heard Fanny sing lately. Her voice has greatly improved. Fanny, will you sing something?"

"The girls moved over to the piano. I noted that Charlie was near the door leading into the hall and that he was intently gazing out into the dimly lighted passage. Was he brewing mischief? I went over to him and, taking him by the arm, said:

"Never mind the spook, Charlie. She'll come when she is ready. Come over and hear your sister sing." He looked up at me most quizzically, and then, after a moment, he laughed softly at once," said I, not daring to discuss the subject without having time to think it over."

"Well, that was certainly a wonderful experience, doctor," said I, interrupting the narrative. "But, of course, it was some kind of a trick."

"You would not have thought so had you been present. There were several exceedingly strange features of this matter which occurred to me during the sleepless hours which I passed. I say sleepless for my conviction of the fact that there are no ghosts had been sadly shattered by what I had seen, and I struggled to regain my mental equilibrium. In a sense I still believed there could be no such things as ghosts, but there was a disturbing doubt engendered by that dainty little being, ghost or whatever she might have been. The angelic face, the prayerful attitude, made it impossible to think she was alive and playing a trick. Never once did she take note of the persons present. It did not seem possible that one so young could play such a part night after night and never show consciousness of the presence of those whom she was trying to deceive. Unlike traditional ghosts, on the other hand, she was fully dressed in a dainty white muslin, tricked out with tiny pink ribbon bows—a most unghostly costume."

"Tired out at last, I must have slept, for I awoke suddenly in the morning an hour past my usual time for arising and was dazed at my strange surroundings, the sun streaming in through the window making me aware of the lateness of the hour. In the breakfast room I found the family assembled and was painfully aware of the fact that I was expected to either explain THANKSGIVING is coming round again," said Robert Kempton to his wife. "Please don't make any difference this year, Mabel. We have nothing to be thankful for. Bob and Ella have spoiled our lives."

"We should be thankful that it is no worse," replied the wife, with a patience that never deserted her.

But this is not the beginning of the story.

Years before Mabel Lathrop, much to her father's and mother's chagrin, married Robert Kempton, a wild, reckless fellow, and he would have been a ne'er-do-well had not Mabel saved him and made him a successful man. Robert knew and admitted that she had turned him from a worthless life.

"Mabel," he said to her, "I owe all I am to you. God forbid that I should ever treat you with the slightest harshness. On the contrary, I pray that he may send me some unusual opportunity to serve you, to suffer for you, perhaps to die for you."

"You are doing all that is needed in making me happy," said the wife.

Then came Bobbie Kempton, a bright-eyed, sunny disposed little chap who was his mother's darling and his father's pride. Mabel fed him, bathed him, clothed him, gave him his airing during the day, and before he went to sleep in the evening his father romped with him.

When Bob came to be about fifteen he began to show signs of the proclivities his father had shown in his youth and thus brought sorrow to his parents. Mabel was patient with him, and so was his father for a time, but Bob grew more unruly, more reckless, son, though he feared that he had continued in a downward course and the light of him would kill his mother.

This was the condition of Robert and Mabel Kempton just before Thanksgiving. There was no need for Robert to request his wife not to make the usual preparations, for she was unable to do so. She had been losing strength rapidly and finally took to her bed. However, the day before the anniversary she got up and gave some directions to the servants in order that it should not be entirely lost sight of. The next morning she lay on a lounge in the living room before a cheerful fire. Her husband sat down beside her, smoothed her hair and took her shrunken hand in his.

"Write," he said, "you remember that when we were married I asked for one opportunity to serve you. I believe it has come. I am going to try to find Bob."

"The opportunity has passed, Robert," replied the wife. "It came to you the day Bob went away. I saw a note in his hand. If you had called him back he would have begun anew."

The husband and father bowed his head.

"Never mind, Robert. The past can't be undone. Let us be thankful that we are surrounded with very comfort. And some day Bobbie may come back to us."

While they were talking two persons had stolen into the back yard and under cover of the bushes entered the house. Suddenly the sitting room door opened, and a young man and a girl entered the room.

"Father?"

"Mother?"

"Bob?"

"Ella?"

In an instant the old people were in the arms of the recreant son and adopted daughter.

Then came explanations. Ella, knowing of the secret that was eating at Mrs. Kempton's heart and breaking down her health, resolved that she would repay the kindness she had received by going in search of Bob Kempton. After considering the best course for her to adopt on leaving she concluded not to make known her quest to Mrs. Kempton, fearing that the suspense would be detrimental. It would be better, she thought, to say nothing, but bring the son home if possible. If she failed there would be no disappointment. She traced him to a distant city and found him absorbed in business. He had long intended to communicate with his parents, but a remembrance of his father's last look and words had always caused him to defer action. He had made money easily, but had not kept it, his naturally reckless disposition interfering with economy.

"Ella," said the father, after all had been explained, "you have done for mother that signal service which I always wished to do for her myself. When the opportunity occurred I did not recognize it. When it came to you, you recognized it at once. Do now for Bob what mother has done for me—save him from his reckless disposition and his father's patience finally gave out. When Bob was eighteen he got into a fight with a man and came very near killing him. Bob was arrested and held to wait the man's recovery. When he was released from custody his father received him in anger. Bob, who felt his disgrace keenly and withal was high spirited, declared that he would not remain at home to be taunted with his faults, to bring discredit on his family, but would go where he would not be troubled with him. Kissing his mother, he strode down the walk leading to the gate. With his hand on the latch he turned irresolute.

"Call him back, father," pleaded the mother.

"He will only bring new disgrace upon us."

"This trouble is a lesson to him. He will do better."

"No," said the father. "Let him go. We are well rid of him."

That was the last seen of Bob Kempton in his native village. His parents had no other child, nor did any other child come to them. Mrs. Kempton grieved constantly for her son, but never mentioned his name to her husband. Finally one of her friends died, leaving a little girl unprovided for. Mrs. Kempton took the child and adopted her.

Ella Bruce for a time was all that a daughter should be, but when she was nineteen she received the attentions of a man unacceptable to Mr. and Mrs. Kempton, and when they chided her she showed the only disposition to rebellion that she had ever displayed. Nevertheless she gave up the lover, and for a year it was supposed that she had forgotten him, when suddenly she disappeared.

"Well, wife," said Kempton, "we've had hard luck with our children. We must be content with each other."

The wife said nothing, but as soon as her husband left the house went to her room to weep, to weep for her son, for since Ella's departure her craving for him had come back to her with double strength. She read his boyish letters over and over again.

A year passed, and nothing was heard of Ella. The man for whom she was supposed to have left her home appeared in the village, but declared that he knew nothing of her whereabouts. His story was not believed and confirmed a suspicion that she had run away to join him.

Mrs. Kempton grew more and more how spirited till finally her health began to droop. Her husband knew the cause, though she did not tell him, and often wished that he could recall his

and make a progressive man of him, marry him."

Ella blushed, and young Robert said: "She can't do that, father, for she did it early this morning."

An hour later, as the reunited group sat at table, the father gave this toast: "Blessed be those who recognize their opportunities."

The First Thanksgiving Day.

The first national Thanksgiving day was proclaimed by President Washington on the 3d day of October, 1789, setting Thursday, the 26th day of November, as the date, in honor of the adoption of the constitution of the United States. The second national Thanksgiving day was also proclaimed by Washington, but was in February of 1790. Subsequent presidents called upon the people of the country to observe such a day of thanksgiving, but it was not until the presidency of Abraham Lincoln that the observance became a fixed event and the last Thursday of November was recognized as an annual public holiday.

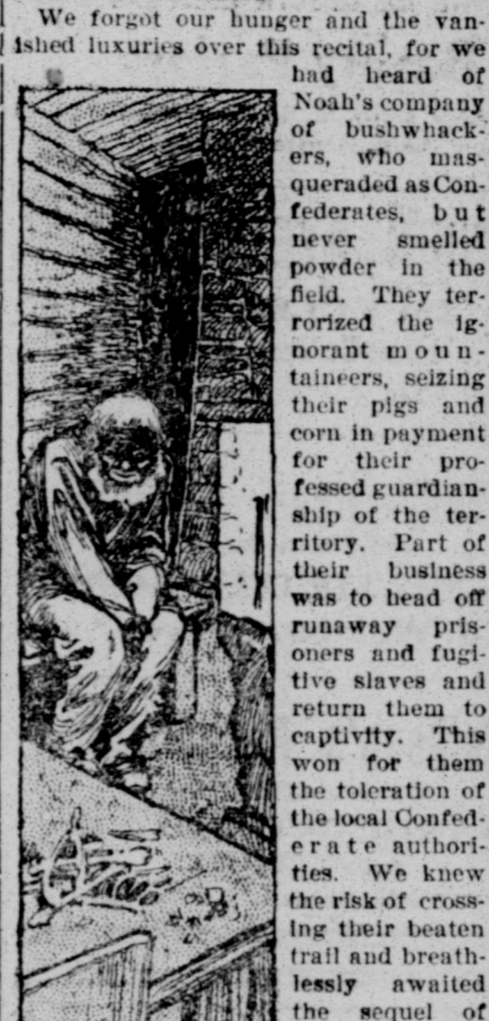

[Copyright, 1903, by C. N. Lurie.]

THE bird was a turkey, not an eagle, and I'll not say that it met its fate Thanksgiving day, but it passed the way of all Thanksgiving birds about Nov. 26, 1863. This uncertain chronology is due to the fact that half a dozen of our war prison refugees, who had escaped from the Georgia stockades, were making our homeward journey by the sole guidance of the north star. When we struck the eastern slope of the Cumberland mountains in southwestern Virginia late autumn was upon us. The plentiful wild grapes had been touched by frost, persimmons were dropping, dead ripe, and corn had been shucked and stored beyond our reach. We didn't know the day of the week, much less that of the month, for we passed days and nights sometimes hiding from pursuers in dark caves and slept from sheer exhaustion without reference to the rising or the setting of the sun. One day we came upon a cabin hidden in the mountain wilds occupied by a negro who, like ourselves, was a refugee. At the beginning of the war he had run away from his master in east Tennessee and started blindly to meet up with "Massa Linkum's" soldiers. Having lost his way and got frightened by the roaming bushwhackers who infested the mountains, he built a cabin and waited for that jukeas. Tell 'em I ain't seed none, an' dey ast why dis roasting dat turkey dess fur dis niggah 'lone. 'Kase I jess hear about freedom, I tole 'em. 'I got no mammy, no missus, no chile, only my yaller dog Slim. Done roast dat turkey all for dis niggah's jubilee.'

"Den dey eat dat turkey an' pone an' nebber gib me none an' nebber say 'Tank yo', Black Sam.' All de time dey eatin' dey kept lookin' up to dem poles overhead, musin' like dey want see behin' dare. Dey keep mighty still, dough. One secess, he stan' outside, an' de odgers take some turkey fo' him. Bymeby dat man he say, 'Sh!' an' dey all grab deir swords an' pistols an' sneak out, nebber sayin' nuttin'. Den I know why dey doan go peekin' behin' dem poles where yo' all hidin' an' doan take Black Sam along back to be ole massa.'

We forgot our hunger and the vanished luxuries over this recital, for we had heard of Noah's company of bushwhackers, who masqueraded as Confederates, but never smelled powder in the field. They terrorized the ignorant mountaineers, seizing their pigs and corn in payment for their professional guardianship of the territory. Part of their business was to head off runaway prisoners and fugitive slaves and return them to captivity. This won for them the toleration of the local Confederate authorities. We knew the risk of crossing their beaten trail and breathlessly awaited the sequel of Black Sam's story.

SAM WAS SITTING LIKE A MOURNER.

"I looks at dem turkey bones an' dat empty pone dish," continued he, "an' I moan 'kase yo' all git none. Den I skeered call yo' 'kase yo' kill dis niggah fo' shuah. I stan' lookin' at de bones, gittin' hungrier ev' minute. Nex' t'ing some body sneakin' up an' holler in de do', 'Whar dem rebs?' 'Whar rebs yo' mean?' I say.

"Cap'n Noah's company," he say, "we seed 'em comin' dis a-way las' night.' Dis one a Yankee all de blue, an' I up an' tole 'im I rose dat turkey all by mysef' an' Cap'n Noah's men come eat 'im all an' den run away. Dis Yank he laff all acrost he face, but he make no noise laffin'. Speck he t'ink bery funny how de rebs eat dis chile's turkey an' pone. Den he go out de do', an' long come about 200 Yanks.

"Den I git mad at dem Yanks, an' I say: 'S'pose yo' t'ink dis niggah cryin' 'kase he got no turkey an' pone, he an' Slim. I ain't cryin'. I'ze laffin' on de inside 'kase I'ze a free niggah.' Den dey all laff agin' an' go way down de lane, sneakin' after dem Noah's men. Now, what yo' all laffin' at?"

"Yankee soldiers, Sam? Are you sure?" gasped half a dozen in a breath. We didn't make any noise, either, not being certain wa were out of the woods yet; but every mother's son of us grinned like the man in the moon. Yankees of the right stripe were what we were looking to meet up with more than a feast of turkey and pone.

DULY THANKFUL BY ROY FARRELL GREENE

I'm thankful for the sunshine, an' I'm thankful for the cloud,
I'm thankful for the best o' health an' feelin' rather proud
I think in spite o' accidents that carry folks away
I still can say I'm thankful I'm a-livin' here t'day!
I've safely dodged the trolleys, which are always grounds for fear;
I quite escaped a sunstroke in the dog days o' the year.
An' so I'm filled with thankfulness an' ain't disposed t' fret
Because, you see, I'm much too poor t' own an auto yet.

Perhaps since last Thanksgivin' if I'd been a millionaire
I might have been a-guidin' o' an auto here an' there
An' had a fearful smashup in some record breakin' race;
I might t'day be lyin' in some quiet restin' place.
An' so I say I'm thankful that I'm livin' here t'day
An' had the luck t' keep myself well out o' danger's way.
Though things have been agin' me in a way, I've no regret;
I'm thankful that an auto hasn't mangled me as yet.

I haven't raced an auto, so I've heard no victim wail;

I'll own I broke no record, but I haven't been in jail,
An' so I'm duly thankful there's no damage bills t' pay
I' weepin' wife or orphans on this blest Thanksgiving day,
I'm thankful for the sunshine an' I'm thankful for the cloud,
I'm thankful I am livin' an' a mix'in' in the crowd;
But, more than all, I'm thankful that I haven't been beset
With the worry that is born of auto ownership, as yet!

help of a ryle hench, we found a carpeting of mountain grass for our bed and a space just large enough to lie down upon, and sized by a hole cut in the gables. Black Sam descended, and we moved the loose poles back into position. "Ain' no bushwhackin' secess, gwine luk fur yo' up dare," said he, with a chuckle, and went his way to prepare the turkey.

After a long sleep we awoke and crept down from the loft, wondering that we had not been bitten to the feast. Black Sam was sitting like a mourner, with his lank yellow dog for a companion in misery. By the light of a waning fire in the chimney we saw the well picked bones of a turkey and some scraps of pone on the board. What had happened? Surely that woe-begone negro and his woe-begone dog had not regaled themselves on the bird of freedom. We looked from one to the other of our crowd and then to our host, who tremblingly began his story of the disastrous jubilee fete. Said he: "Dess I git dat turkey an' dat pone ready an' mek to call yo' all to Tanks giben when 'long come passel o' Cap'n Noah's secess critter company sneakin' around an' say dey lookin' fur Yan-

Cold in the Head, Catarrh,

Sore Throat and Chest are instantly relieved and quickly cured by the use of Paracamp. Snuff up the nose, apply freely and rub in well. This soothing, healing, antiseptic remedy when applied opens the pores, stimulates the circulation, removes the congestion, kills the germs of Catarrh and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes quickly and surely. So don't allow your cold or Catarrh to "hang on." It may develop Pneumonia or Consumption. Paracamp is a safeguard and it should be kept in every home every day in the year. Remember every bottle is guaranteed to do what we claim. Sold only in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles. Don't take any substitutes.

The FILIGREE BALL

SYNOPSIS. The story, which deals with the mystery of the old Moore house in Washington, is told by a detective sergeant, who was drawn into the case by a call from "Uncle David" Moore.

story, which I made as concise and as much to the point as possible. I did not expect praise from him, but I did look for some slight show of astonishment at the nature of my news.

won't do, by boy, to throw the doubt of so hideous a crime upon so fine a gentleman without ample reason.

The arch little creature started to move off again. As she did so, she cried: "Be good, and don't let Durbin cut in on you!"

Taking a box from his desk, he opened it and held it out toward me. A coil of white ribbon surmounted by a crisp and dainty bow met my eyes.

"It was a shot that told; an arrow which found its mark. Mr. Jeffrey flushed, then turned pale, rallied and again lost himself in a maze of conflicting emotions from which he only emerged to say:

"I should think so! She paid a heavy penalty for her professed lack of love. You believe that her mind was unseated?"

"I mean," he endeavored to explain, "that Mrs. Jeffrey showed an unexpected tenderness toward me by taking all the blame of our misunderstanding upon herself."

"Why do you ask me these questions in tones of such suspicion? Is it not plain enough that my wife took her own life entirely toward her?"

"I can not remember who it was. My brain is whirling, and I can recollect nothing but that this man and myself left the cemetery together on the night mentioned, just as the gate was being closed. As it closes at sundown, the hour can be fixed to a minute. It was somewhere near seven, I believe; near enough, I am sure, for it to have been impossible for me to be at the Moore house at the time my unhappy wife is supposed to have taken her life."

DRY CATARRH

Was Completely Cured in His Wife's Mother After Suffering for Years.

COUGHED ALL NIGHT

But Now Feels Better Than She Ever Felt in Her Life—All of Which She Owes to

COUGHS, COLDS and CATARRH

The Doctor Says It is Wrong for Any Woman to Suffer with Catarrh as His Wife's Mother.

MRS. J. B. WILKERSON

Of 4451 Delmar Avenue, D.D.

Dr. C. B. Renoe, one of St. Louis' finest and best known dentists, is too well known for his fine work in making crowns and bridges to need any introduction to the people of St. Louis and surrounding territory.

The doctor says—Mrs. Wilkerson is my wife's mother, and has made her home with us for years. She suffered terribly with dry catarrh, and a few months ago her throat would clog up and frequently cough all night long. I found De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron to be such a fine stimulating, strengthening and appetizing tonic and did me so much good that I took a bottle home and insisted that Mrs. Wilkerson give it a trial, and before she had taken the bottle the cough stopped entirely, so it is my wonder that she recommends it so highly?

Fraternally, C. B. RENOE, Room 302, Mo. Trust building, St. Louis, Nov. 8th, 1903.

The doctor's wife's mother, Mrs. J. B. Wilkerson, has the following to say: "I have been a sufferer of dry catarrh for several years, and tried everything, but got little or no relief. The past few months my throat would clog up, and at times I would cough nearly all night; I had no appetite and was generally run down. Dr. Renoe brought home a bottle of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron and insisted that I take it, and to please him I did, and am so grateful for before I finished my bottle my cough was entirely gone, and I began picking up in strength and now can hardly wait for meal time to come, and I eat heartily and enjoy all I eat. I can truthfully say I never was as well as I am today and I am sure my catarrh is entirely cured. I now sleep all night without coughing; I eat well and certainly feel well. I will only be too glad of an opportunity to answer any questions to those who suffered as I did."

Sincerely yours, MRS. J. B. WILKERSON.

St. Louis, Nov. 8, 4451 Delmar av.

Of all the months in the year, November and December is the time people get colds and coughs, and this, if not checked, will soon run into Catarrh, hence it is the duty to every sufferer of Catarrh of the Head, Catarrh of the Lungs, Catarrh of the Stomach or Bowels, Catarrh either acute or chronic, located in any part of the system, to start today taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron. It will put your blood and your entire system in good shape to stand the long winter. It will cure colds, coughs or catarrh in any part of the system, it will save you months of suffering, it will save you doctor bills, it will make a strong, healthy and happy man or woman of you.

It is the duty of every man or woman who has Dyspepsia or any stomach trouble to take De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron. It will make old dyspeptic or disarranged stomachs as good as new. It will give you an appetite and help digest your food, and let you eat when and what you please without any bad after effects.

It is the duty of every man or woman who is troubled with sleeplessness to take one or two teaspoonfuls of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron half an hour before retiring and enjoy a good night's sleep.

It is the duty of parents, who have weak, delicate, frail children to give them De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron, a teaspoonful three times a day, and make them healthy and strong.

It is the duty of every lawyer, christian minister and brain worker to take "De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron."

It is the duty of every tired, nervous woman who needs a general bracing up and a tip-top good stimulating and strengthening and appetizing tonic to take it.

It is the duty of every lawyer, Christian, every catarrh sufferer, every bilious or malarial sufferer to take De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron and be cured.

It builds you up from head to foot and if you start taking it today you'll be recommending it to your friends in a week, the same as thousands of others have done.

Large pint bottles, $1.00, or 8 bottles, $5.00, by druggists everywhere, or sent by express, charges prepaid by the De Lacy Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo.

SCENE FROM MISS ADELAIDE THURSTON'S NEW PLAY, "POLLY PRIMROSE."

"Polly Primrose."
Saturday Night—"When Reuben Comes to Town."

There have been three attractions during the last week, two of these occupying four nights. "Happy Hooligan" and "Are You a Mason?" were of the farce order, and entertained large audiences. "Happy Hooligan" was attended by many Tuesday night, the entire membership of the Texas State Federation of Labor occupying the balcony. The week closed with Kelecy and Shannon in "Sherlock Holmes."

"Sherlock Holmes" is a drama which in a clear and concise manner portrays the character in detective life which was made famous by A. Conan Doyle. At first thought one would think it would appeal only to the gallery, and those people who are led off by the great detective stories, but not so. The audience in the parquette is as much entertained as the top, and throughout the four acts there was applause.

Mr. Kelecy has the part of the great detective, while Miss Effie Shannon plays the part of Alice Faulkner. The two leads are admirably handled by these two.

The scenic effects of the play were excellent. It is a new character of stage setting and the mechanical effect is a change from others presented from time to time. The cast is a strong one.

The expectations for next week include something every night. The opening Monday night is East Lynne, the famous drama by Mrs. Henry Wood which has been presented in every city and town in the country. Although old, it is nevertheless a delightful play, and gives an opportunity for some very fine acting. It contains the finest heavy part ever writ-large attendance each evening at the theater.

EAST LYNNE

"East Lynne" comes back Monday matinee and night, Nov. 23, with Miss Inez Forman in the role of Lady Isabella and John Dillon carrying the comedy work. The other members of the cast are said to be capable and a pleasing revival of the popular play is promised.

A GAMBLER'S DAUGHTER.

A new melodrama will be seen at Greenwall's opera house in "A Gambler's Daughter" which appears Tuesday matinee and night, Nov. 24. The chief interest of the piece is centered in the

W. Murdock in the leading role. Miss Rockwood is said to do strong emotional work and Edwin Walcott is a villain after the heart of the gallery god. The comedians of the company are Frederick Armsdale and James Waltham. The attraction makes a strong one for Thanksgiving.

POLLY PRIMROSE

Patrons of Greenwall's are looking forward eagerly to the appearance of Miss Adelaide Thurston in "Polly Primrose" which comes Friday night, Nov. 27. Miss Thurston, by the way, is an honorary member of the Daughters of the Confederacy and at her recent appearance in Richmond, Va., was given a medal by Gen. Fitzhugh Lee.

When Reuben Comes to Town
"When Reuben Comes to Town" will appear at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, Nov. 28. A handsome chorus, catchy songs, and a clever "book" are promised features of the show.

Among the songs are "It's Just Like a Scene from a Play," "There's No Love Like the Old," "My Little Chocolate Cream," all of which have been very successful.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PLAYS COMING SOON.

"The Silver Slipper" comes soon with a record of having played to crowded houses in Broadway theater, New York, for six months. The company numbers 100 people and is headed by Sam Collins, Gertrude Millington, Fred Runnels, Hardy B. Burcher, Virginia Palmer, Nannette Thulson, and Lora Lieb. The "Champagne Dance" is one of the big features.

Charles B. Hanford's big spectacular revival of "Richard III" is regarded as one of the artistic triumphs of the season. It is doubtful if any revival of the play since the success of Thomas W. Keene will compare with the present production.

"The Pipe Dreamer" is the old name of the comedy in which Joe Kelley will be seen this season.

CLIMATIC CURES

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectoration in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweat. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warm climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c.
