TERRORIZING METHODS FOR "LAW AND ORDER" IN COLORADO

Washington Gladden Investigates Outrageous Acts of the Military and Citizens' Alliance in the Mining Districts.

STRIKE ILL ADVISED IN THE FIRST PLACE

The Miners Have Deeply Rued the Blunders of Hot Headed Leaders—The Suspension of the Habeas Corpus a Tremendous Stretching of Prerogative.

By Dr. Washington Gladden, Special Commissioner of the Newspaper Enterprise Association at the seat of the labor war in Colorado. (Copyright, 1904, by Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

The phase of the trouble in the Colorado mining camps now most hotly debated and likely to have the most interest for executive and judicial officers in the future, is that which concerns the use of the military in preserving order.

It is usual in most of the states, it may be the law in all of them, that troops are not ordered out until the peace has actually been broken, and until the sheriff of the county in which the outbreak has occurred signifies to the governor his inability to restore order.

In Colorado this condition has not always been observed.

The first instance, in the recent strikes, of the employment of the military, occurred at Colorado City. In March, 1903, a strike had been called at the reduction mills in that place, and the troops were ordered out. The sheriff in this case sent a request to the governor by the hand of one of the mill owners. It does not appear that any serious breach of the peace had occurred, or that the sheriff had visited the scene of the alleged disturbance or had made any efforts to restore order.

Indeed, the governor's executive order calling out the troops makes it clear that there was yet no riot. It has been made to appear, he says, "that there is a tumult threatened" and that there is "a body of men acting together with intent to commit felonies and to offer violence to persons and property."

Against this action of the governor the local authorities at once strenuously protested.

The mayor, the chief of police and the city attorney sent the governor the following telegram: "It is understood that the militia has been ordered to our town. For what purpose we do not know, as they say that there is no disturbance here of any kind. There has been no disturbance more than a few occasional brawls since the strike began, and we respectively protest against an army being placed in our midst."

The chief of police in an interview said: "I have talked with a number of people in the afternoon, and they are all exceedingly indignant at the thought of having the militia come among us. If some trouble had arisen which we experienced difficulty in handling, then there might have been some excuse for sending soldiers over here, but nothing of the kind has taken place."

On the part of the miners it is thus charged that the first employment of armed force was needless; they maintain that the only purpose of it was to intimidate the strikers; they say that when in response to the protests of the community the governor came to Colorado City to see for himself what the conditions were, he conferred with the mill owners, and with the men at work in the mills, but refused to go to a meeting of the strikers to which he was invited.

If these statements are true, the governor's attitude in the matter was ill-advised. They gave color to the complaint that he was acting in the interest of one side in the controversy; and they probably tended to irritate and embitter the men, and weaken their respect for the constituted authorities.

The next trouble in which the militia was called out was the strike of the Cripple Creek districts, which began August 10, 1903, and which has not yet been settled.

That this strike was unjustifiable is a nearly universal opinion. I talked with a number of intelligent union men in other trades, and every one of them condemned the strike.

One small smelting establishment at Colorado City had refused to adopt the schedule agreed upon by the other companies; to punish the proprietor of that mill, all the mines in the Cripple Creek district were closed. This would never have been done if the miners had been allowed to vote on the proposition, for the great majority of them were opposed to the strike; but the officers, at the preceding convention, had secured the passage of a resolution empowering the executive committee to call a strike without resorting to the referendum. It was a fatal mistake, and bitterly have the miners rued it.

I have read carefully all that the officers of the federation have to say in justification of their action, but it seems to me that they do not make out their case. The conditions in the Cripple Creek district were excellent; there was no complaint of wages or hours; the calling out of 4,000 men was a violent proceeding for which no good excuse can be given. It demonstrated the recklessness and irresponsibility of President Moyer. When labor unions are foolish enough to put unlimited power in such hands, and loyal enough to the organization to follow them implicitly, tragedies may be looked for. The fact that this strike was called against the best judgment of the best elements among the miners made it certain that in the enforcement of it the worst elements would come to the front, and they undoubtedly did.

It was not long before some brutal and dastardly deeds were done. Whether the authorities were both able and willing to repress these disorders is a question at issue between them and the governor of the state.

All of them maintain strenuously that they were both able and willing; they averred that arrests had been made and that others would be; that the sheriff's court asserted that he was abundantly competent to deal with the lawless elements; the county commissioners of Teller county who are reported to me as exceptionally able and fair minded men, declared "that there has been no unusual assembly of men and no more violence than at other times; that the parties guilty of the late assaults will be apprehended by the civil authorities and prosecuted;" a petition signed by 3,000 citizens protesting against the employment of the militia was sent to the governor, but these protests were not heeded, and the troops were sent to Cripple Creek.

The contention of the state authorities is that the local officials were either acting in the interest of the strikers or intimidated by them; that they were neglecting to enforce the laws, and that it was necessary for them to interfere.

At all events, it is clear that the troops appeared in the Cripple Creek district not by the request of the local authorities, but against their most strenuous protest; not for the purpose of co-operating with them, but rather of superseding them.

And it must be doubted whether this difficult and delicate business was entrusted to the wisest agents. We find fault with the miners for not selecting level-headed leaders; what shall we say about the civil authorities when they put affairs of this nature into the hands of men who are distinguished for everything else but cool judgment and good temper?

Conditions were not likely to improve under such management, and they did not. The worst outbreaks occurred after the troops were sent into the district. The blowing up of mines, the attempted derailing of trains took place under military rule.

Thus began a series of collisions between the civil and the military authorities which are unparalleled, I think, in our civil history. Men were arrested and imprisoned in the military "bull pen," not because of any overt acts committed by them, but because their influence was bad; when the courts granted writs of habeas corpus and demanded that information be filed against them, the military at first refused to obey the writs, and then, when the prisoners were brought into court and released, because no charges had been made against them, they were re-arrested on leaving the court room and sent back to confinement.

In the case of one man so re-arrested, a second writ of habeas corpus was issued by the district court against the military authorities and the sheriff, commanding the production of the body of the prisoner, on which the governor issued a proclamation as follows: "In the case of Victor Poole I further direct that the writ of habeas corpus be suspended until further ordered by me."

At this time no other proclamation suspending the writ had been made, and this prisoner was the only person in the state to whom it applied.

"Did you ever hear," asked an eminent legal authority whom I consulted, "of such a thing as the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in the case of a single man?"

Into the legal question of the right of a governor to suspend the writ, a layman may not go; but the historical analogy—

CARNEGIE TALKS ABOUT HERO FUND AS AN ISSUE IN POLITICS

Says It Has Now Become His Favorite Philanthropy—Advocates Fraternal Union of People of Different Parts of America.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Andrew Carnegie, who is sojourning here with his family, is much gratified over the reception given by the press and public to his $5,000,000 fund for American heroes, says an American dispatch from Aix Lesbains, France.

"The people of Newfoundland, Canada and the United States are all Americans," he said, "and they should act together, as brothers. My hero fund includes all three countries. Newfoundlanders were omitted at first through an oversight. That, however, has been remedied, for I have cabled ordering the little state to be included."

"Were I a newspaper man I would consecrate my pen to advocating the fraternal union of Canadians, Newfoundlanders and the people of the United States, who are all Americans. New forms of heroism have been evolved with the growth of a civilization. Heroes of the past have been those who killed or maimed their fellow men, while modern forms of heroes were not then recognized."

"These when honored will tend to counteract the materialistic tendencies of the age and give direction and inspiration in the way of heroic life. Widows and orphans and all those who give their lives partly or wholly for others should be provided for."

Asked about the heroism of the men who sacrificed their lives to save the battleship Missouri recently at Pensacola, Mr. Carnegie replied: "Their heroism was magnificent, but it does not come within the scope of the hero fund, because the government provides for dependents of these men. Nevertheless, should a fund be opened for the Missouri heroes I would be glad to subscribe $1,000."

"Nobody suggested the hero fund to me. I had long thought of it. It is now my favorite philanthropy, probably because of its nature and because it is my latest child. I am receiving many telegrams of congratulation from America and am greatly encouraged that the American press should approve the gift and help to develop the spirit underlying it."

SELLS ELEVATOR TO FORT WORTH COMPANY

GUTHRIE, Okla., April 19.—According to the Watonga Republican, the government's paper, J. C. Robb, the princely Kingfisher grain man, is parting with his line of elevators. The Republican says: "J. C. Robb, who has borne the reputation of being one of the largest grain buyers in Oklahoma, sold his elevators last week to the J. Rosenbaum Grain Company of Fort Worth, Texas. The fact that Mr. Robb was vice president and one of the stockholders of the defunct Capital National bank at Guthrie, no doubt accounts for this change in the elevator line."

Judge Grosscup Outlines a Sane Policy for its Control, Eliminating All "Mad Dog" Features. Capitalization Only on Assets.

CHICAGO, April 19.—The supremacy of "some political party with a settled policy regarding the great corporations of the country" has been declared by Judge Grosscup to be the means of escape from "an impending transformation in the ideas lying at the foundation of a republican form of government."

Speaking before the Chicago Congressional Club at its monthly dinner at the Auditorium on "The church, the state and the individual," the jurist declared himself a friend of the "honestly managed corporation," while denouncing that individualism of thirty years ago has been lost in vast mergers of capital.

The platform of his proposed new political party was outlined by the speaker as follows: Recognition of the fact that the corporation is "here to stay" and cannot be driven out by a "mad dog policy."

A demand that the capitalization of a corporation shall represent its assets.

Insistence that the great seal of a state shall not be employed to sanction the existence of an institution born bankrupt.

Restrictions on the organizations of corporations, "of Eiffel Tower construction," offering "ground floor privileges" to a few stockholders; the suspension of all corporations to government supervision.

"The dishonest corporation, as an institution of this country, will never be broken up until some such policy has been adopted by a courageous, high minded political party and no such party will ever take it up until it is assured of favorable public sentiment," said Judge Grosscup.

BOSS CROKER BECOMES ADDICTED TO AUTOS

WANTAGE, England, April 19.—Richard Croker has sold all his carriages except his dogcart and now relies entirely on automobiles. He has two very fine cars and another of the omnibus pattern, ninety horse power, for carrying parties and is expected to arrive soon.

He spends nearly all of his time now at Letcombe, where one of his daughters is settling down. He greatly fancies his horse Clonnel for the derby, but there has been the usual trouble about training him as in the middle of his work Mr. Croker took him away from Dawson, the well known trainer, and now has him under his own supervision at Letcombe. No one except Miss Croker seems to think that Clonnel has any chance.

Agents Inaugurate "Cut Throat" Policy for One Day and Write a Million Dollars' Worth at Sacrifice Prices.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 19.—The first insurance rate war in Texas was inaugurated in San Antonio yesterday, and in its short duration of four hours almost a million dollars of insurance was written at rates or premiums which local people never hoped to obtain.

It was a war in which the local insurance agents of San Antonio generally were arrayed against the general agency of Trezevant & Cochran of Dallas and their affiliates here.

The first gun of battle was sounded shortly after 8 o'clock and the flag of truce was not hoisted until 12:30 p. m.

Practically all the loose insurance in the city and contemplated extensions were taken up and the clean-up work is predicted for many of the smaller agencies out of business.

The fight started out as an organized effort against the Trezevant & Cochran agency, but it soon developed into mutual cutting. The premium dropped down to five cents carried along years for the price of one year's premium on the best kind of risks. Stocks and household goods were cut 25 per cent and some special hazards were gathered in by excited agents at greatly cut rates.

Practically all the agents having agencies here authorized reductions from 25 per cent down to $1 per $1,000 for three years.

The truce which was established is intended to be a permanent adjustment of the rates, though there is still distrust.

The trouble had its origin in the rate cutting that has been going on in San Antonio for a long time, some agents saying the rate cutting dates as far back as three or four years.

As an instance of this, the Bexar hotel, an apartment house and entitled to a rate of $1.90, was taken at $1.70. Later the apartment house was converted into a regular hotel, with several classes of stores beneath, making it a $3.50 hotel, yet it was carried along at $1.70, according to the allegations made.

Following that a local concern took out a large batch of brewery insurance at a cut of 25 per cent. This led to the arrival of San Antonio of four special insurance companies from Dallas on Sunday.

These agents insured the five-story Hicks building yesterday morning at a cut rate. From that time until noon the insurance agents swarmed over the city like a hive of disturbed bees, buttonholing everybody who had any kind of a risk.

The truce was effected in the office of Dittmar & Oppenheimer at a meeting held early in the afternoon, and at this meeting it was decided to call off deals made after 12:30 o'clock.

The district and special agents who came here especially to take part in the war are still in the city. In the forenoon the agents were voluble, but after the peace commission had concluded its labors the agents declined to talk.

It was stated that while the war was

NO TICKET SELLERS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

ST. LOUIS, April 19.—It has been decided by the World's Fair management to install electrical devices instead of using ticket sellers and ordinary turnstiles during the exposition. The Lhend entrance will be the main gate to the big exposition. There thirty-two turnstiles are being installed and through this entrance alone it is estimated that at least 500 persons can pass every sixty seconds.

To gain admission to the grounds a person must approach the turnstile and place a half dollar in a slot. This half dollar as it descends is still visible and releases a lever which unlocks the turnstile. Individual gates are being installed for children. At these turnstiles a quarter will operate the mechanism.

Some immense deals were put through. The city school board, for instance, it is said, took advantage of the situation and had all the school buildings insured at a regular bargain-counter or remnant sale price.

One wholesale house in the city gave up $100,000 worth of straight rate insurance and took out the same amount for a year at a 25 per cent reduction. The next couple of days will be busy ones for the insurance agents righting the affairs that brought about the war, which was of such short duration.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AT THE STATE CAPITOL

AUSTIN, Texas, April 19.—After selecting Houston and San Antonio as places to hold the state democratic conventions this year, and disposing of some other matters of importance, a large number of the members of the executive committee and others who were in Austin as spectators, visited the state house to call on friends.

All the department chiefs were called on and department employes from the visiting counties in the state were looked up.

The visitors then strolled through the building, the senate chamber and the hall of the house of representatives being centers of greatest attraction.

TO FIGHT THE SALOON IN SOUTHERN STATES

ATLANTA, Ga., April 19.—Under the auspices of the American Anti-Saloon League a two days' general conference was begun in Atlanta today with representative ministers and laymen present from all over Tennessee, North Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama, Kentucky, South Carolina, Florida and Virginia. The chief purpose of the conference is to agree upon plans for extending the work of the Anti-Saloon League throughout the south.

ENGLISH TEAM MAY PLAY POLO AT FAIR

NEW YORK, April 19.—Polo club representatives of the United States are gathered in New York today for the annual meeting of the National Polo Association. Dates for the season will be awarded and as there are said to be good prospects of an English team coming over for the St. Louis exposition games, efforts will be made to revise the rules with a view to uniformity.

WILL START A DUCK FARM IN TERRITORY

PERRY, Ok., April 19.—Harry S. Baum of Chicago yesterday purchased an eighty-acre tract and adjoining ranch, and will establish a poultry ranch, but devote most of his attention to aquatic fowls; and for this purpose expects to deepen a number of marshes which are on the tract and dam several sloughs.

IN THE MARKET FOR COUNTY BONDS

AUSTIN, Texas, April 19.—The board of public education, composed of Governor S. W. T. Lanham, Secretary of State J. R. Carl and Controller J. W. Stephens, invite correspondence on the part of county judges in counties contemplating the issuance of road or bridge bonds, with a view to purchase by the state school fund of such bonds.

DOCTOR SEEKS EXILE IN A HOSPITAL

Studies His Own Malady, Diagnoses it as Paresis and Prepares for the End.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Dr. Lorenzo J. Kohnstamm, traveler, philosopher and physician of more than local reputation, is dead here in a hospital for the insane. Four years ago he suddenly retired from a practice yielding thousands of dollars yearly. He was a member of the medical societies of Paris, Vienna, Brussels and Berlin and his strange action attracted considerable attention. Moving with his family to another part of the city, the doctor practically disappeared from the society of even his most intimate friends. Two years later he called at Bellevue hospital, where he desired to become a pa-

TAMMANY GETS ONE DELEGATE

Belmont Retires in the Interest of Harmony and Ehret is Slated in His Place—The Result a Triumph to David B. Hill Who Thus Regains Former Position in Party Politics.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 19.—The convention opened again last night at 7 o'clock.

A great crowd poured in and every seat was filled. The aisles were jammed, and the private boxes were filled with women, women whose garments glittered with diamonds, for the highest to the lowest wanted to see this combat between the biggest mentally, and beyond all question the shrewdest politicians in the state.

The committees appointed before recess were not ready to report when the convention met. They were not ready to report a half hour afterward. They were not ready to report an hour afterward. Time began to hang heavily on the hands of the visitors and delegates. They chatted out loud. The bands played and played. Under such circumstances in our state we would have had at least a dozen or more speeches, for we do love oratory. Up here they do not seem to care for it, and what they want is action, and particularly if such action involves a fight.

The report that a compromise was being discussed grew, and it became evident from the delay in reporting that the committee was either in an awful row or that it was discussing peace.

PARKER MEMBERS COME IN. Finally the Parker members of the committee came drifting in. They were royally received. They had a satisfied air about them and every one thought they had secured a victory, and it was peace.

Then Murphy, Cochran and Grady came in and the minority of the convention gave them vivas of a loud character.

The convention quickly settled down to business, by making the temporary organization the permanent one, and then McCarran presented the majority report of the committee on resolutions. It was a clean, clear document, setting out democratic ideas for the acquisition of a centralized form of government, opposition to the military tendencies, opposition to sensationalism in government, opposition to the administration of public affairs in a way to disturb the business interests, and to the acquisition of territory by this country which would involve it in a colonial policy, opposition to taxation except for revenue and advocating all necessary legislation to protect capital and labor and to encourage competition, and then it endorsed Judge Parker and instructed the New York delegates to vote for him at the national democratic convention.

On the motion to substitute the Grady resolution for the McCarran resolutions, in so far as the latter provided for instructing the delegates to vote for Parker, the vote stood 119 ayes and 301 noes. The substitute failing, the resolutions instructing for Parker were carried by a viva voce vote without any demand for a roll call. There had evidently been an argument, and anxiety was felt to ascertain how it had been brought about.

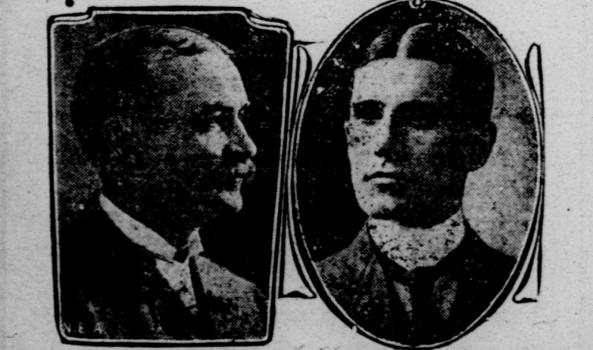

Then the list of delegates at large were read as agreed on and the vote was taken. They were unanimously elected. The list was David B. Hill, Edward Murphy (an ex-senator), George Ehret and J. W. Ridgeway.

SUBSTITUTE EHRET FOR BELMONT. The minute Ehret's name was mentioned every one knew all August Belmont had along been considered the popular man with Charles Murphy, the Tammany leader. Ehret is a member of the Tammany organization. The substitution of the name of Ehret for that of Belmont had satisfied Tammany, and it laid down its arms after reserving the right to make a protest against the instruction paragraph in the resolutions.

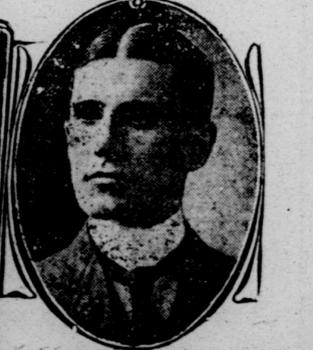

Belmont was not unwilling, as it afterward developed. As the leader of the Parker forces, and as the organizer of his strength, he was glad to make any concession other than in the matter of instructions, which Tammany opposed, provided that the organization would leave Albany on this occasion, satisfied, contented, no feeling of revenge in its heart.

It is said that Murphy was offered a place among the delegates at large if he would announce for Parker. This was at 7 o'clock last evening. He declined, and then he was asked if he would be satisfied if Ehret, a member of Tammany, were placed on the delegation. To this he declined. Then he explained his retirement. In 1900, he said, he had noticed symptoms of paresis in himself. Without informing any one, he began a careful study of his own case, which, having confirmed his own suspicions, led him to relinquish his practice with a hope that quiet living, exercise and freedom from all mental effort might at least retard the momentary heroic struggle with vain and he desired to prepare for death, having settled all his affairs with that idea in view. The physician was transferred to Manhattan hospital, where he remained two years, until the end.

GOV. J. H. PEABODY.

ADJT. GEN. SHERMAN M. BELL.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE.

In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe of New York City, has the following to say of Peruna:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

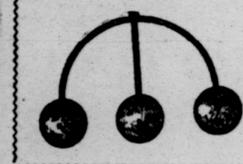

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoirs of nervous vitality. These centers become bloodless for want of proper nutrition. This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This could be easily obviated by the use of Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion. Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centers. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves, and thus nourishes life. Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nervous system. Peruna furnishes the lasting invigoration for the nerves that such people so much need. Thousands of testimonials from women in all parts of the United States are being received every year. Such unsolicited evidence surely proves that Peruna is without an equal as a nerve tonic and a vital invigorator.

Buy a bottle of Peruna today. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

$10,000 forfeit if we cannot produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial which well demonstrates its full genuineness.

assented, and thus the peace was made. Doubtless the insistence of the Parker men all along that the rank and file of Tammany were for Parker had much foundation; it was evident that they were pleased over the averting of a row which might have forced them away from the democratic nominee.

Hill won a great fight, so his friends think, and they commend him for making the concession, particularly since he had so much to hate Tammany for, but it will be remembered that he has always declared that he did not particularly care as to the name of the men who were selected as delegates at large as long as they would swallow the instructions to vote for Parker. Besides this they must declare their loyalty to him. Ehrst had his loyalty declared for him in the speeches delivered by Grady and Bourke Cockran.

It is not known just how far Hill pushed his enemies on the matter of an organization of the party so as to give him the machine, but it looks as if there was a compromise there, too. Anyhow, the convention adjourned as democratic conventions in New York seldom adjourn, that is, without one or the other faction of the party leaving it with knives in their sleeves to use on the party at the election. It is not the case on this occasion. The party here is united and will prove itself so both in the national democratic convention and in the election in November.

HARRIMAN LOSES SECURITIES CASE

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 19.—In the United States Circuit court this morning Judges Sanborn, Thayer, Vandevanter and Hook unanimously denied the application of Messrs. Harriman and Pierce and the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company for leave to intervene in the case of the United States against the Northern Securities Company on the following grounds:

First—The plan of the directors of the Northern Securities Company for the distribution of stock of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railway Company is not violative of the decree in the Northern Securities case.

Second—No one but the United States can successfully appeal to the court to enjoin the execution of that plan on the ground that it is in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, and the United States expresses satisfaction with the present decree.

Third—The stock of the two railway companies is not in the custody of the court.

Fourth—An intervention is not necessary to enable the petitioners to prosecute any pecuniary interest of equity they may have.

FRENCH CORDIALS MAY COME CHEAPER

NEW YORK, April 19.—A decision has been announced by the United States circuit court of appeals in the French cordials cases argued a few weeks ago. The court's ruling is in favor of the importers and if not carried to the supreme court of the United States, the board of general appraisers will be able to decide 1,400 suspended protests and the government will have to refund about $250,000 in duties.

The issue involved in the cases is whether the clause of the reciprocity agreement with France admitting "spirits" at a duty of $1.75 a gallon instead of $2.25 applies to liquor and cordials. The government has contended that as these articles were provided for in the tariff law in a separate paragraph from spirits, they should not be included in the agreement with France.

AMERICAN YACHT IS SENT TO THE BOTTOM

NEW YORK, April 19.—The American sailing yacht Scout, owned by Colonel Francis L. Leland of New York, has been capsized and sunk here by a squall, says a Herald dispatch from San Remo, Italy. Colonel Leland's son, who was sailing the boat at the time of the accident, was saved by the boat put out from the Italian battleship Lepanto. Colonel Leland is a member of the New York Yacht Club. His father owns the palatial steam yacht Safa-El-Bahr, built at Glasgow for the khedive of Egypt.

800 CATTLE SUFFER ON THE STAKED PLAINS

EL PASO, Texas, April 19.—Dr. T. A. Bray, United States live stock inspector at this point, received notice today that 800 cattle had been temporarily abandoned on the Staked Plains near La Luz, N. M. The cattle had been driven overland from near Vanhorn, Texas, in an effort to reach water and grass in Arizona. On the way the drought had so ravaged the country that not only did the cattle suffer considerably, but even the cow ponies gave out, and the herd had to be left to wander for a time at will. Those that can be rounded up will be shipped by rail.

HILLSBORO PEOPLE SLEEP ON SLATS

HILLSBORO, Texas, April 19.—Several families in and near Itasca have been swindled out of their feather beds by a couple of men who claimed to be renovating feathers. They gathered up the beds and instead of renovating them shipped them to some unknown destination and quietly decamped. They obtained several hundred pounds in this way.

SNOW FALLING IN NORTHERN OHIO

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 19.—Snow is falling in many points of Northern Ohio today and in this city the thermometer registers 27.

JAPS IN CONTROL OF ALL OF KOREA

Russians Have Given Away Before Them and Retired Across the Yalu—Japs Have 60,000 Men in the Field.

SHANGHAI, April 19, Noon.—Authentic advices from Seoul dated the 12th inst., declare that the Japanese are in complete control of Korea and that the Russian scouting parties have retired across the Yalu river before the Japanese, who occupied Wiju practically without resistance.

The Japanese army is divided into two forces, one for expeditionary purposes and the other for occupation. The former, numbering 45,000, is advancing to the Yalu and the latter, consisting of 15,000 reversists, is making a signified communication arrangements with the headquarters at Seoul, where there is a garrison of 4,000. The headquarters of the transport service is at Chemulpo. Railroad building and re-grading is in progress. The fortification of Koje-do Island, at the mouth of Masanpho harbor, which protects the southern terminus of overland communication, also guards the passage to Vladivostok and Port Arthur through Broughton Strait. Forty transports off Hai Ju are supposed to have landed part of their forces at Takushan and it is the evident intention to disembark a second army at Yonampho, preparatory to forcing the Yalu.

SIX JAPS KILLED LIAO YANG, April 19.—A number of unimportant skirmishes are reported along the Yalu river. Six Japanese soldiers were killed by Russian scouts on April 16. Firing was heard on April 18, but the result of the engagement is unknown.

VLADIVOSTOK IN BAD SHAPE ST. PETERSBURG, April 19.—The population of Vladivostok is in want for the most necessary kinds of provisions and as a consequence of the flooded rivers, which interrupt communication and make it impossible to furnish the supplies. There is also a scarcity of money. Many of the inhabitants, particularly women and children, are leaving the city, abandoning property which they are unable to sell. Half of the houses in Vladivostok are empty and the civilian population is already reduced 5,000.

PAINTER'S WIDOW PROSTRATED ST. PETERSBURG, April 19.—Mme. Vereschagin, widow of the Russian painter who went down with the Petropavlovsk, is in such a condition of nervous prostration that the family do not dare to inform her of the official confirmation of her husband's death. Even the children are not aware that the news is true.

The last doubt in the minds of his relatives concerning the fate of the painter were dissipated by the dispatch received from the widow, dated from Liao Yang, saying that his uncle had left there to join the Petropavlovsk. Dr. Andreevsky, speaking for the family, said it was Vedeschagin's intention to join Lieutenant General Linevitch and accompany him through Northern Korea. He had no intention of going out with the fleet, the doctor said, but it is presumed that as there were no operations on the shore, he determined to witness the sea fight. The doctor added that Vereschagin was strongly opposed to the war, but that on his return from Japan last winter he declared that the entire Japanese people demanded it and that it was unavoidable.

SHORT VISIT OF RAILWAY PARTY

A special party of Rock Island officials arrived here this morning, but remained in the city only a brief time. In the party were General Manager H. I. Miller, Assistant General Manager Crockett, C. E. McKim, superintendent of transportation, and T. S. Lloyd, general superintendent of motive power. Accompanying them was S. B. Hovey, vice president and general superintendent of this city. The party arrived from the north last evening and proceeded at once to Dallas, where they remained over night, returning this morning to Fort Worth. Only a short time was spent in this city. A general inspection of company property is being made. The party left for the north, accompanied by Mr. Hovey.

EXCURSION TO WACO

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas will run an excursion to Waco Sunday next, leaving this city at 7:30 a. m. and returning will arrive here at 7:30 in the evening.

GRAIN DEALERS ARE IN SESSION

DALLAS, Texas, April 19.—The arbitration committee of the Texas Grain Dealers' Association is in session in Dallas today. There are a number of important disagreements to settle. The opinion of grain dealers from different sections of the state is that North Texas prospects are good, and those of South and West Texas very poor.

COTTON MARKET IS DEPRESSED

NEW YORK, April 19.—The cotton market opened barely steady at an advance of 2 to 13 points on the old crop, while the new crop months were 3 points higher to 4 points lower. The advances were on covering, following higher cables than were expected, but before the call was fairly completed the prices depressed to about the closing level of last night, under active selling.

In forty-nine countries the Salvation Army now has 7,599 separate societies, 14,900 paid officers, 451,730 unpaid officers and 17,170 bandmen.

MAY INSTRUCT FOR GORMAN

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 19.—Delegates are arriving on every train to the democratic state convention, to be held here tomorrow to name delegates to St. Louis. It is possible an effort will be made to instruct the delegates to be selected to vote for Gorman for president, but this move will be bitterly opposed by that portion of the party favoring Cleveland or Parker and yet another faction favoring Hearst. Five congressional districts will hold a delegate convention here Wednesday also.

It is believed Hearst's representatives now here will center all their energies toward capturing these, or part of them, but will make but little fight for representation on the delegation at large.

HAS DEFICIT OF TWENTY MILLIONS

LONDON, April 19.—That there is widespread interest in the presentation of the budget today was evidenced by the crowded state of the House of Commons long before the chancellor of exchequer, Austin Chamberlain, rose to make his statement. Every part of the house was filled.

Mr. Chamberlain estimated the expenditures of 1904-5 at £714,400,000 and the revenue on the basis of existing taxation at $695,200,000, leaving a deficit of $19,100,000 to be made up. He proposed that, therefore, it would be necessary to increase the income by 2 cents. He also proposed an additional tax of 4 cents per pound on tea. The chancellor further proposed the readjustment of tobacco duties of 81 cents on tobacco strips before imported; also an additional duty of 12 cents on cigars and an additional 25 cents on foreign cigarettes.

HOW HE ADJUSTED THE RATE

When Governor Peck of Wisconsin was publishing the Sun at La Crosse, Wis., Sells' circus came to town. The press agent was Charley Scott, big, bluff and acutely sensitive to a humorous situation. He paid a visit to the Sun office, and, meeting Peck, said: "Well, I want a two-column ad in your paper."

"All right; you can have the space," was the reply. "How much will it cost?" "Just $63.50." "Well, we must economize some, and perhaps I can get along with less space." "All right." "What will one column cost?" "Cost you $33.50." "But that's only half as much as the two-column ad." "I know it, but it will cost you just the same," said Peck. "What do you mean by charging the same for one column as you do for two?" "Well, I'll tell you," said Peck, with a genial grin. "The circus will be here the 17th, and the 18th I must meet a draft for paper for $63.50, and your old circus is a godsend. Your ad will just meet that draft." "I'll be hanged!" ejaculated the astonished Scott. Then, the humor of the situation catching him, he added: "But I'll take the two columns."

HE NEEDED THE MONEY

A doctor in West Philadelphia is fond of curios, especially those belonging to the animal kingdom. One day he saw an old negro driving a superannuated mule attached to a broken down wagon. He noticed the beast had one horn of peculiar formation and being interested, remarked to the driver: "Say, my man, when that mule dies I'll give you $3 for that hoof." The old negro opened wide his eyes, and asked the physician's address. The doctor gave it and continued to his home. In a little over an hour the negro appeared in his office door and said in pleasurable anticipation: "Boss, dat mule am dead!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

HOW GILLIS CAPTURED A TORPEDO

For sheer bravado, says the United Service Magazine, it would be hard to rival the feat of Ensign Gillis, who saw a stray torpedo coming slowly but surely toward the anchored torpedo boat Porter in the Spanish-American war. He sprang forward, turned the nose of the torpedo in a safer direction, and screwed up the firing pin tightly, so that it would not operate. Then treading water, he saluted Lieutenant Fremont and reported: "Sir, I have to report I have captured a torpedo." "Bring it on board, sir," commanded Fremont, and Gillis actually did so, swimming with it to the ship and fastening tackle to it.—Boston Post.

LOW COLONIST RATES

The Southern Pacific announces that from March 1 to April 29, inclusive, there will be on sale daily low colonist one-way tickets from all points in Louisiana and Texas to points in California, affording an opportunity for men of limited means to travel to the Pacific coast at a very small cost. These periodical low rates have proven very popular, and it is quite likely that many will take advantage of them during the period indicated. The Southern Pacific operates free rolling chair cars and Pullman tourist sleepers all the way through, which, with the use of cinderless, oil-burning locomotives, makes travel far more comfortable than ever before. Those desiring information can obtain same by applying to nearest agent or writing J. E. Batturs, A. G. P. A., at Houston, or F. E. Batturs, A. G. P. A., at New Orleans.

HOUSTON POST SUED FOR LIBEL

Former City Engineer Seeks To Recover $50,000 Damages.

HOUSTON, Texas, April 19.—The contest for city engineer between F. L. Dormant, the present incumbent, and L. Austin Miller, named by Mayor A. L. Jackson for the place, reached the damage suit period yesterday afternoon in the filing of a libel suit against the Houston Printing Company, publishers of the Houston Post.

The suit is for $50,000 damages and Messrs. Brashear & Dannenbaum are the attorneys.

The petition recites that the plaintiff has been deeply injured by an article which appeared in the Houston Post of this date, April 18, which article bears the signature of "Citizen" and which appears to be a communication.

It is further recited that petitioner has been a practicing civil engineer in Houston and Harris county for the past ten years, and that he served the city of Houston as engineer from April 11, 1898, to May 11, 1902; that during those periods he bore the esteem of the public as a competent official; established a reputation for himself as a careful, capable and painstaking engineer; that by the publication recited the petitioner is held up to public ridicule, hatred and contempt, and that his reputation thus assailed has been injured and his abilities impaired; that he has been financially injured thereby.

It is further set forth that said publication accuses him of having negligently, unskillfully and incompetently performed duties as civil engineer for the city of Houston, disregarding his official oath, etc., all of which has caused him permanent injury; that the said allegations were false entirely, for all of which he prays damages in the sum of $50,000.

The acts criticized in the communication referred to were those of a public official. Whether a former city engineer, after retirement from office can recover damages for criticisms of his official acts is a question to be settled by this suit. Heretofore the courts have held that criticism and even denunciation of office holders, when the welfare of the public is concerned, is privileged matter.

HODGE-PODGE OF NEWS FROM AUSTIN

AUSTIN, Texas, April 19.—Secretary Wasson announced this morning that the Texas World's Fair commission would meet in Dallas next Saturday.

This is the most important case on the present docket. Judge Parker's supporters in Austin are greatly rejoiced over his victory in New York yesterday.

A good many members of the state democratic committee remained over after adjournment last night and did some secret caucusing in the canvass for attorney general, controller and treasurer.

Suit for $20,000 damages for alleged injuries sustained in a sleeper brought by M. A. Kopperl against the Central Railroad is on trial in the Fifty-Third District Court.

TEN MILLIONS FROM KLONDIKE HIS YEAR

SEATTLE, Wash., April 19.—A special to the Post-Intelligencer from Dawson says: The Klondike will produce at least $10,000,000 this season. Nome has done more work this winter than ever before and will swell the title several million more. The first sluicing of the year in the Klondike has begun. The clean up will be in full blast in three weeks.

LITHOGRAPHERS DID NOT FAVOR AGREEMENT

NEW YORK, April 19.—Returns from various cities indicate that although the vote of the New York unions of lithographers was against the arbitration agreement recently submitted to them by the employers, the total were in favor of the proposition. The local unions, it is understood, abide by the decision of the majority.

A WORD ABOUT SATTERFIELD

The Telegram is very much gratified that Cartoonist Satterfield has touched a popular vein in this state. Judging from the compliments which have reached the office from individuals who read the paper regularly, and the newspaper comments which come to us from all parts of the state, Mr. Satterfield is an artist of national reputation, and he is getting closer to the people every day. His cartoons which have been published in this paper from time to time have been to the point, and have told more that columns of type could have told. He has handled national affairs in a manner which shows him to be a genius, and his messages to the people in cartoons are eagerly read. In this cartoon work The Telegram has the advantage of other Texas papers, as the service we give the reader is much superior to what other publications have, unless it is the Houston Chronicle. The morning papers in many instances use cartoons which are a reprint from some of the leading papers nationally. Every cartoon by Satterfield has a point, and the people appreciate it.

THE TRUTH FROM COLORADO

The Colorado letters of Dr. Washington Gladden, which are published in The Telegram, will be found to be of remarkable interest. They supply the first comprehensive view that has been given in many months of the extraordinary labor war that exists in that state.

Not the least peculiar phase of the situation there lies in the fact that by order of the military authorities, who are holding whole districts in their iron grasp, all news reports have for months been strictly censored, and the public at large is left in ignorance of what is going on, though enough has leaked out at intervals to indicate that Teller county is undergoing a reign of terror.

The Newspaper Enterprise Association determined to get the exact truth at any cost. It secured the services of the ablest and best man in the United States for that purpose—the ablest and best because, while he is universally recognized as one of the greatest living authorities on sociological and labor questions, his character and reputation guarantee absolute fairness and accuracy.

Dr. Washington Gladden is above all other American writers eminently equipped to study, analyze and report the intricacies of the Colorado situation. He has gone to the scene of the trouble. He has probed into the innermost secrets of the situation.

And upon the facts he gathered he has brought to bear his calm, judicial powers of analysis and conclusion.

There is nothing of "yellowism" in Dr. Gladden's letters.

He sought not sensationalism, but the very heart of the truth.

His warm sympathy with labor has not been permitted to jaundice his vision.

His reverent regard for the majesty of the law has not blinded him to the military abuses.

He describes and interprets the situation with painstaking care. Truth and sincerity are impressed upon every line.

No citizen who desires to be in close touch with vital public affairs can afford to fail to read Dr. Gladden's letters from Colorado and lay them aside to read again.

PROFIT IN HOG RAISING

The Abilene Reporter is quite an enthusiastic advocate of hog raising, and never fails to call attention to the benefit to the man who will engage in it. The Reporter tells this story:

T. J. Wright, a stock farmer at Anson, bought eighteen Berkshire brood sows a year ago, and put them on his farm, 200 acres of which is in cultivation and a balance of a section in pasture.

He has since sold $300 worth of pigs, ninety hogs at seven months old for $7.25, and has twenty head left.

The entire expense of handling and feeding these hogs, outside of what he grew on his farm was only $18. Mr. Wright also fattened and sold sixty steers from the products of the same farm, sorghum and milo maize.

Have his hogs paid? Rather. Did he have to grow cotton on that 200 acres to make it pay? Not much. If the boll weevil hits his neighborhood will his crop be ruined? No—so long as at least he depends on hogs and cattle.

Put on your think bonnet over this awhile.

This looks like a pretty good return on

THIRD NOTICE

Every editor has received them. The postmaster sends them to the editor. The postmaster is not to blame. For instance, there is a man by the name of—well, say Tim—Short—who sent us three notices to stop his paper. He did not want it any longer. We wondered what was the matter. Upon investigating our subscription book we found that Tim was short $5.70. He had not paid a cent, and yet he stopped his paper as a matter of economy to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into a church and Tim's melodious voice rang out loud and clear in the old soul-stirring song: "Jesus paid it all." We might have been mistaken, but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an acknowledgment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Western Publisher.

the investment: With the Fort Worth packing houses pleading for hogs and more hogs, it looks like the people would turn their attention to this class of investment. The market here will take the shoats offered, and the price paid will justify the work necessary to raise them. They are a staple product at any time. Hams, breakfast bacon, pork chops, and pigs feet are good the year round, and the more raised the more the packers will kill. Let Texas farmers raise Texas hogs for Texas packing houses, and the boll weevil will be less trouble in the state.

FEEDING PEANUT HAY

The animal husbandry department of the experiment station has been conducting some interesting feeding experiments during the past season. As the steers are still in the lots it is too early to compare the value of the different rations for fattening purposes. Some points of interest have already developed, however, which will be useful to those planning to feed cattle next winter.

In the discussion of the necessary diversification of crops, considerable prominence has been given to the Spanish peanut. This plant is highly nitrogenous in composition and very valuable for milking and growing stock. Since it has been very little used for fattening it was used as the roughage for one lot of cattle in the experiment still in progress. Another lot received alfalfa hay for roughage. Other lots received cotton seed hulls and all were fed a grain ration of cotton seed meal and rice bran.

While the steers receiving pea-nut hay and alfalfa ate all their food with a keen relish it was apparent at about the third week that their gains were not as heavy as those made by the other lots. The highly nitrogenous character of the pea-nut and alfalfa hay combined with the same characteristic in the cotton seed meal produced a looseness and scouring which made good gains impossible.

It was surmised at the outset that this trouble would manifest itself but it was desired to learn just how serious it would be and in what manner the results would show themselves. This does not argue anything against the value of these feeds but does show that where they are relied upon for fattening purposes corn or a similar material should be furnished as the other part of the ration. Full particulars of the experiments will be published in the bulletin to be issued later.

MONEY IN SHEEP

There has been considerable discussion of the sheep question among stockmen during the past few months, and something of a disposition manifested to revive this great industry in Texas. One of the buyers connected with the great Swift packing plant in this city, in speaking of the sheep industry, says:

"The farmers are losing a great deal of money by not having a small flock of sheep, say fifty to 100, on the farm. One hundred ewes could be bought on the yards at $2 to $2.50 per head, and these ewes managed so they would lamb in January. The lambs would sell for $2.50 to $3.00 a head before Easter."

"Last month a good many lambs, averaging forty-five pounds, sold at $7.50 per 100 pounds, or about $3.25 per head."

"These same ewes would shear seven or eight pounds of wool, worth at least $1.00, making from $2.50 to $4.00 per head for lambs and wool, and the ewes would be left to eat up the weeds in the pasture and clean up the waste in the wheat and oat fields after you are through threshing."

"The same thing is open to the Texas feeder and farmer to fatten sheep for this market. Heretofore there has been no demand for sheep all the year around, but Swift & Co. and Armour & Co., with two large packing plants here, make the demand good every working day in the year."

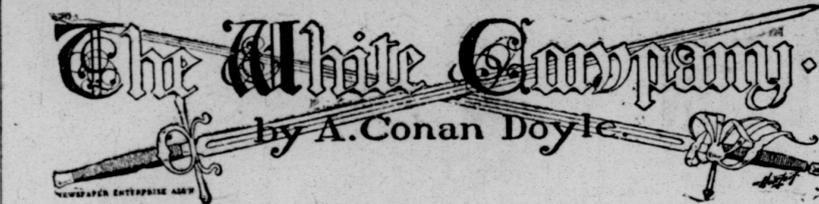

"There would be no better investment for feeders than to feed sheep for this market during the months of November, December, January, February and March, as this market is practically bare of sheep at that time, and sheep bring as much as they do at northern points."

"The run from San Angelo starts about April 1 and lasts about four months, leaving about eight months of the year when this market is out of sheep."

"Sheep feeders are making money in northern states feeding sheep for the market, and why not here, when you have a market at your door calling for fat sheep?"

While the wooden battleships of 100 years ago would not stand against the projectiles which are used in modern warfare, there is one thing certain that all below did not go down with the boat whenever it met with trouble. The huge engines of the sea today turn turtle when they meet disaster and there is no way in the world for the poor devils to help themselves.

SYNOPSIS

Alleyne Edrison, who has spent his life in a monastery, leaves at the age of 20 to see the world. His brother, the Socman of Minstead, an arrogant, cruel man, refuses to allow him to enter the house. He saves Lady Maude, daughter of Sir Nigel Loring, a famous warrior, from his brother and is about to go to France to take command of the White Company, a company of English archers, the invitation having been carried to him by Sam Aylward. Horde John, a former brother at the monastery, joins the company. Alleyne falls in love with Maude, and she returns his love.

Sir Nigel and Sir Oliver Buttethorn report to the Black Prince, who is preparing to send an army to Spain to place Don Pedro on the Spanish throne. Alleyne gets into a quarrel in the banquet hall.

During the duel which follows, Alleyne's antagonist falls into the river and Alleyne springs in to rescue him.

A tournament is arranged in which five English knights are to break lances with five Gascon champions. Sir Nigel is one of the English knights.

The English win, but the tournament is interrupted by a strange knight who rides into the lists.

The stranger overcomes all of the English champions in turn.

Sir Nigel, Aylward and John start to join the White Company.

At an inn they meet Bertrand du Guesclin, the most famous of French warriors, and Sir Nigel discovers he is the mysterious knight who fought in the lists at Bordenac.

In a tournament Bertrand du Guesclin, disguised, defeats the five greatest knights of England. On their way to join the White Company, Sir Nigel, Alleyne, Aylward and John meet Bertrand and his wife. Together they go to the castle of the Senechal of Villafraunce, where Lady du Guesclin, in a trance, tells marvelous things.

"If we can but keep them in play," said the Bohemian, "it is likely that these flames may bring us succor if there be any true men in the country."

"Bethink you, my fair lord," said Alleyne to Sir Nigel, "that we have never injured these men, nor have we cause to quarrel against them. Would it not be well, if but for the lady's sake, to speak them fair and see if we may not come to honorable terms with them?"

"Not so!" cried Sir Nigel. "It does not accord with mine honor, nor shall it ever be said that I, a knight of England, was ready to hold parley with men who have slain a fair lady and a holy priest."

"As well hold parley with a pack of ravening wolves," said the French captain. "Ha! Notre Dame! Due Guesclin! St. Ives! St. Ives!"

As he thundered forth his war cry the Jacks, who had been gathering before the black arch of the gateway, rushed in madly in a desperate effort to carry the staircase. Their leaders were a small man, dark in the face, with his beard done up in two plaits, and another larger man very bowed in the shoulders, with a huge club studded with sharp nails in his hands. The first had not taken three steps ere an arrow from Aylward's bow struck him full in the chest and he fell coughing and spluttering across the threshold. The other rushed onwards and breaking between Du Guesclin and Sir Nigel he dashed out the brains of the Bohemian with a single blow of his clumsy weapon. With three swords through him, he still struggled on and had almost won his way through them ere he fell dead upon the stair. Close at his heels came a hundred furious peasants, who flung themselves again and again against the five swords which confronted them. It was cut and parry and stab as quick as eye could see or hand act. The door was piled with bodies and the stone floor was slippery with blood. The deep shout of

"By my hilt!" said Aylward to John. "It is in my mind that we shall not see Spain this journey. It is a great joy to me that I have placed my feather bed and other things of price with that worthy woman at Lyndhurst, who will now have the use of them, if I have thirteen arrows yet, and if one of them fly unfeathered, then, by my twang of string! I shall deserve my doom. First at him who flouts with my lady's silken frock. Clap in the clout, by God! though a hand's breadth lower than I had meant. Now for the rogue with the head upon his pike. Ha! to the inch, John. When my eye is true, I am better at rovers than at long-butts and hoyles. A good shot for you, also, John. The villain hath fallen forward into the fire. But I pray you, John, to loose gently, and not pluck with the drawing hand, for it is a trick that hath marred many a fine bowman."

Whilst the two archers were keeping up a brisk fire upon the mob beneath them, Du Guesclin and his lady were consulting with Sir Nigel upon their desperate situation.

"'Tis a strange end for one who has seen so many stricken fields," said the French chieftain. "For me death is as another, but it is the thought of my sweet lady which goes to my heart."

"Nay, Bertrand, I fear it is as little as you," said she. "Had I my dearest wish, it would be that we should go together."

"Well answered, fair lady!" cried Sir Nigel. "And very sure I am that my own sweet wife would have said the same. If the end be now come, I have had great good fortune in having lived in times when so much glory was to be won, and in knowing so many valiant gentlemen and knights. But why do you pluck my sleeve, Alleyne?"

"If it please you, my fair lord, there are in this corner two great tubes of iron, with many heavy balls, which may perchance be those bombards of which I have heard."

"By St. Ives! it is true," cried Sir Bertrand, striding across to the recess where the ungainly, funnel-shaped, thick-rimmed engines were standing. "Bombards they are, and of good size. We may shoot down upon them."

"Shoot with them, quotha!" cried Aylward in high disdain, for pressing danger is the great leveler of classes. "How is a man to take aim with these fool's toys and how can he hope to do death with them?"

"I will show you," answered Sir Nigel, "for here is the great box of powder, and if you will raise it for me, John, I will show you how it may be used. Come hither, where the folk are thickest round the fire. Now, Aylward, crane thy neck and see what would have been deemed an old wife's tale, when we first turned our faces to the wars. Throw back the lid, John, and drop the box into the fire!"

A deafening roar, a fluff of bluish light and the great square tower rocked and trembled from its very foundations, swaying this way and that like a reed in the wind. Amazed and dizzy, the defenders, clutching at the cracking parapets for support, saw great stones, burning beams of wood and mangled bodies hurtling past them through the air. When they staggered to their feet once more the whole keep had settled down upon one side, so that they could scarce keep their footing upon the sloping platform. Gazing over the edge, they looked down upon the horrible destruction which had been caused by the explosion. For forty yards round the portal the ground was black with writhing, screaming figures, who struggled up and hurled themselves down again, tossing this way and that, sightless, scorched, with fire bursting from their tattered clothing. Beyond this circle of death their comrades, bewildered and amazed, cowered away from this black tower and from these invincible men, who were most to be dreaded when hope was furthest from their hearts.

"A sally, Du Guesclin, a sally!" cried Sir Nigel. "By St. Paul! they are in two minds and a bold rush may turn them." He drew his sword as he spoke and darted down the winding stairs, closely followed by his four comrades. Ere he was at the first floor, however, he threw up his arms and stopped. "Mon Dieu!" he said, "we are lost men!"

"What then?" cried those behind him. "The wall hath fallen in, the stairs is blocked and the fire still rages below. Friends, we have fought a very honorable fight, and may say in all humbleness that we have done our devoir, but I think that we may now go back to the Lady Tiphaine and say our orisons, for we have played our parts in this world and it is time that we made ready for another."

The narrow pass was blocked by huge stones littered in wild confusion over each other, with the blue, choking smoke reeking up through the crevices. The explosion had blown in the wall and cut off the only path by which they could descend. Pent in, 100 feet from earth, with a furnace raging under them and a ravening multitude round who thirsted for their blood, it seemed indeed as though no men had ever come through such peril with their lives. Slowly they made their way back to the summit, but as they came out upon the Lady Tiphaine's balcony and caught her husband by the wrist. "Bertrand," said she, "hush and listen! I have heard the voices of men all singing together in a strange tongue."

Du Guesclin, the hard, hissing breath of the pressing multitude, the clatter of steel, the thud of falling bodies and the screams of the stricken made up such a medley as came often in after years to break upon Alleyne's sleep. Slowly and sullenly at last the throng drew off, while eleven of their number lay huddled in front of the stair which they had failed to win.

"The dogs have had enough," said Du Guesclin. "By St. Paul! there appear to be some very worthy and valiant persons among them," observed Sir Nigel. "They are men from whom, had they been of better birth, much honor and advancement might be gained. Even as it is, it is a great pleasure to have seen them. But what is this that they are bringing forward?"

"It is as I feared," growled Du Guesclin. "They will burn us out, since they cannot win their way past us. Shoot straight and hard, archers; for, by St. Ives! our good swords are of little use to us."

As he spoke, a dozen men rushed forward, each screening himself behind a huge fardel of brushwood. Hurling their burdens in one vast heap within the portal, they threw burning torches upon the top of it. The wood had been soaked in oil, for in an instant it was ablaze, and a long, hissing, yellow flame licked over the heads of the defenders and drove them further up to the first floors of the keep.

They had scarce reached it, however, ere they found that the wooden joists and planks of the flooring were already on fire. Dry and worm-eaten, a spark upon them became a smoulder and a smolder a blaze. A choking smoke filled the air and the five could scarce grope their way to the staircase which led up to the very summit of the square tower.

Strange was the scene which met their eyes from this eminence. Beneath them on every side stretched the long sweep of peaceful country, rolling plain and tangled wood, all softened and mellowed in the silver moonshine. No light, nor movement, nor any sign of human aid could be seen, but far away the hoarse clangor of a heavy bell rose and fell upon the wintry air. Beneath and around them blazed the huge fire, roaring and crackling on every side, and even as they looked the two corner turrets fell in with a deafening crash and the whole castle was but a shapeless mass, spouting flames and smoke from every window and embrasure. The great black tower upon which they stood rose like a last island of refuge amid this sea of fire, but the ominous crackling and roaring below showed that it would not be long ere it was engulfed in the common ruin. At their very feet was the square courtyard, crowded with the howling and dancing peasants, their fierce faces upturned, their clenched hands waving, all drunk with bloodshed and vengeance. A yell of execration and a scream of hideous laughter burst from the crowd as they saw the faces of the last survivors of their enemies peering down at them from the height of the keep. They still piled the brushwood round the base of the tower, and gambled hand in hand around the blaze.

"By my hilt!" said Aylward to John. "It is in my mind that we shall not see Spain this journey. It is a great joy to me that I have placed my feather bed and other things of price with that worthy woman at Lyndhurst, who will now have the use of them, if I have thirteen arrows yet, and if one of them fly unfeathered, then, by my twang of string! I shall deserve my doom. First at him who flouts with my lady's silken frock. Clap in the clout, by God! though a hand's breadth lower than I had meant. Now for the rogue with the head upon his pike. Ha! to the inch, John. When my eye is true, I am better at rovers than at long-butts and hoyles. A good shot for you, also, John. The villain hath fallen forward into the fire. But I pray you, John, to loose gently, and not pluck with the drawing hand, for it is a trick that hath marred many a fine bowman."

Whilst the two archers were keeping up a brisk fire upon the mob beneath them, Du Guesclin and his lady were consulting with Sir Nigel upon their desperate situation.

"'Tis a strange end for one who has seen so many stricken fields," said the French chieftain. "For me death is as another, but it is the thought of my sweet lady which goes to my heart."

"Nay, Bertrand, I fear it is as little as you," said she. "Had I my dearest wish, it would be that we should go together."

"Well answered, fair lady!" cried Sir Nigel. "And very sure I am that my own sweet wife would have said the same. If the end be now come, I have had great good fortune in having lived in times when so much glory was to be won, and in knowing so many valiant gentlemen and knights. But why do you pluck my sleeve, Alleyne?"

"If it please you, my fair lord, there are in this corner two great tubes of iron, with many heavy balls, which may perchance be those bombards of which I have heard."

"By St. Ives! it is true," cried Sir Bertrand, striding across to the recess where the ungainly, funnel-shaped, thick-rimmed engines were standing. "Bombards they are, and of good size. We may shoot down upon them."

"Shoot with them, quotha!" cried Aylward in high disdain, for pressing danger is the great leveler of classes. "How is a man to take aim with these fool's toys and how can he hope to do death with them?"

"I will show you," answered Sir Nigel, "for here is the great box of powder, and if you will raise it for me, John, I will show you how it may be used. Come hither, where the folk are thickest round the fire. Now, Aylward, crane thy neck and see what would have been deemed an old wife's tale, when we first turned our faces to the wars. Throw back the lid, John, and drop the box into the fire!"

A deafening roar, a fluff of bluish light and the great square tower rocked and trembled from its very foundations, swaying this way and that like a reed in the wind. Amazed and dizzy, the defenders, clutching at the cracking parapets for support, saw great stones, burning beams of wood and mangled bodies hurtling past them through the air. When they staggered to their feet once more the whole keep had settled down upon one side, so that they could scarce keep their footing upon the sloping platform. Gazing over the edge, they looked down upon the horrible destruction which had been caused by the explosion. For forty yards round the portal the ground was black with writhing, screaming figures, who struggled up and hurled themselves down again, tossing this way and that, sightless, scorched, with fire bursting from their tattered clothing. Beyond this circle of death their comrades, bewildered and amazed, cowered away from this black tower and from these invincible men, who were most to be dreaded when hope was furthest from their hearts.

"A sally, Du Guesclin, a sally!" cried Sir Nigel. "By St. Paul! they are in two minds and a bold rush may turn them." He drew his sword as he spoke and darted down the winding stairs, closely followed by his four comrades. Ere he was at the first floor, however, he threw up his arms and stopped. "Mon Dieu!" he said, "we are lost men!"

"What then?" cried those behind him. "The wall hath fallen in, the stairs is blocked and the fire still rages below. Friends, we have fought a very honorable fight, and may say in all humbleness that we have done our devoir, but I think that we may now go back to the Lady Tiphaine and say our orisons, for we have played our parts in this world and it is time that we made ready for another."

The narrow pass was blocked by huge stones littered in wild confusion over each other, with the blue, choking smoke reeking up through the crevices. The explosion had blown in the wall and cut off the only path by which they could descend. Pent in, 100 feet from earth, with a furnace raging under them and a ravening multitude round who thirsted for their blood, it seemed indeed as though no men had ever come through such peril with their lives. Slowly they made their way back to the summit, but as they came out upon the Lady Tiphaine's balcony and caught her husband by the wrist. "Bertrand," said she, "hush and listen! I have heard the voices of men all singing together in a strange tongue."

Breathless they stood and silent, but no sound came up to them, save the roar of the flames and the clamor of their enemies.

"It cannot be, lady," said Du Guesclin. "This night hath overwrought you, and your senses play you false. What men are there in this country who would sing in a strange tongue?"

"Holla!" yelled Aylward, leaping suddenly into the air with waving hands and joyous face. "I thought I heard it ere we went down, and now I hear it again. We are saved, comrades! By my ten fingerbones, we are saved! It is the marching song of the White Company. Hush!"

With upraised forefinger and slanting head, he stood listening. Suddenly there came swelling up a deep-voiced, rollicking chorus from somewhere out of the darkness. Never did choice or dainty ditty of Provence or Languedoc sound more sweetly in the ears than did the rough-tongued Saxon to the six who strained their ears from the blazing keep:

"We'll drink all together To the gray goose feather And the land where the gray goose flew."

"Ha, by my hilt!" shouted Aylward, "it is the dear old bow song of the Company. Here comes 200 as tight as an arrow as ever twirled a shaft over their thumbnails. Hark to the dogs, how lustily they sing!"

Nearer and nearer, swelling up out of the night, came the gay marching lilt:

What of the bow? The bow that was made in England. Of true wood, of yew wood, The wood of English bows; For men who are free Love the old yew tree And the land where the yew tree grows.

What of the men? The men were bred in England, The bowmen, the yeomen, The lads of the dale and fell, Here's to you and to you, To the hearts that are true, And to the land where the true hearts dwell.

"They sing very joyfully," said Du Guesclin, "as though they were going to a festival."

"By St. Paul!" quoth Sir Nigel, "it is in my mind that they come too late, for I cannot see how we are to come down from this tower."

"I will show you," answered Sir Nigel, "for here is the great box of powder, and if you will raise it for me, John, I will show you how it may be used. Come hither, where the folk are thickest round the fire. Now, Aylward, crane thy neck and see what would have been deemed an old wife's tale, when we first turned our faces to the wars. MASONS PLAN THE PROGRAM FOR JUNE NEXT

Officers of Tarrant County Lodges to Be Installed and Orphans to Graduate From the School—The Oldest Inmate.

On next St. John's day, June 24, officers of all the Masonic lodges in Tarrant county will be installed in the chapel of the Masonic Widows and Orphans Home in this city.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Home held Saturday evening, arrangements for this day were decided upon and plans matured for the securing of positions for the five boys and six girls who compose the graduating class.

Among those who were present at the meeting of the board of directors were General Starbuck of Bryan, the chief knight Templar in the United States; President of the board M. F. Mott and wife, Grand Master James, Grand Secretary Mrs. Leonard and Past Grand Matron Mrs. Evert of the Order of the Eastern Star; R. F. Frymeyer, grand treasurer of the grand lodge; Past Grand Master Terrell and R. M. Elgin, a prominent Mason of Houston.

Mrs. S. J. Wilson, the oldest inmate of the Masonic Widows and Orphans Home in this city, although 89 years of age, is one of the most active and cheerful of the widows who occupy the building erected for them by the order.

DR. BOEYE WRITES FROM ATHENS TO NIES

Pastor of St. Paul's Church Tells of His Journey to the Holy Land and Some of the Incidents of His Trip.

A letter from Rev. Dr. J. F. Boeye, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church in this city, who is absent on a trip to the holy land to attend the International Sunday school convention, to be held in the city of Jerusalem next month, has been received by Mr. George Nies, one of the officers of the church.

This communication was written at Athens, at which point the first mail from this country was received, on March 26, and contains a partial account of the trip to that point, together with the information that by special permission of the government, members of the party were permitted to visit the Acropolis by midnight and to worship upon Mars Hill before the departure of the steamer.

The letter in part is as follows: "The Grissard Kurfurst dropped anchor here yesterday at 6 o'clock and we will leave tomorrow, Sunday, at 3 p. m., after holding services on Mars Hill, at which time Dr. Potts of Canada will preach.

At Athens I was indescribably sad to me in its ruins. I do not wonder that many sobbed like children on the Acropolis. Tonight by special permission of the government a few of us will visit the Acropolis by moonlight and then stay in the city so as to go early to Mars Hill for a little private service. Of course, the sights were all very strange at Madeira Islands, Gibraltar, Algiers and the Isle of Malta, of which I will tell you when I return.

You should have seen the joy brought to our ship's company by the first mail which reached us here at Athens last night. News from a far country now has a new significance to many of us."

In addition to this letter another which Dr. Boeye had intended to have read to the congregation last Sunday was received yesterday and will accordingly be read at next Sunday's services.

Dr. Boeye is still without knowledge of the pipe organ presented to the church as an Easter gift and which the contractors announce will be completed by September 1.

GIRLS BRIGADE IS FORMED AT THE TABERNACLE

There Are Thirty Members and They Are Improving in the Drill Under the Direction of Miss Edwards—Will Challenge the Boys.

Fort Worth has the honor of having the first and so far the only girls' brigade in the world, the organization being connected with the Christian Tabernacle and being the outcome of plans made by Mrs. J. M. Vincent, one of the teachers in the Tabernacle Sunday school.

Boy brigades exist in nearly every city of any size in the country and the name is a familiar one in every place, but for some unaccountable reason the girls' brigade was unheard of here until three weeks ago, when the local organization was formed.

So well was the idea received that Mrs. Vincent has an even 30 names enrolled upon the list of members and a meeting will be held within a short time, at which officers for the brigade, which will be closely patterned after the boys' brigade, will be elected and regulations adopted.

Mrs. Vincent said at the drill held yesterday that she felt for a long time that there should be something for the girls to fill the place by the boys' organization, and for that reason she began the organization of the girls' brigade.

The new organization will have the same general objects as that of the boys, has a regular uniform and will take up light gymnastic work, but will not have the military drill with guns which is one of the main features of the other organization.

The work of the brigade has already been begun and drills will now be held every Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock under the supervision of Miss Edwards as physical director.

These drills will be continued by Miss Edwards until the end of June and then suspended until fall.

Uniforms for the brigade have been adopted and will consist of blue bloomers with outside skirts and a blue blouse. To these the proper insignia will be added upon the choice of officers being made.

At each of the weekly meetings the physical exercises are preceded by a short religious service, conducted by the pastor, Rev. James S. Myers, who has entered heartily into the new movement.

Although the boys have had a year's start, the girls will engage in a competitive drill with them before the course for this spring is brought to a close, and judging from the rapidity with which they are learning the various movements, will make the lads do their best to win.

The girls belonging to the organization, whose ages range from 12 to 17 years, are: Myrtle Baughman, Lella Stitt, Hazel Stitt, B. Largent, Maggie Archibald, Pearl Kennedy, Cleo Tettler, Elizabeth McDonald, Beatrice Forbes, Lee Belle Mullins, Aline Gaines, Leslie White, Caroline Boaz, Ione Andrews, Lucile Dashiell, Jessie Massie, Hattie Varble, Ethel Franklin, Gertrude Robinson, Gertrude Dassel, Flossie Tettler, Valeria Johnson, Hazel Marrell, Ethel Goodrich, Arkie Kline, Nola Belle Johnson, Sallie Sharpe, Lattie Robinson, Florence Redford and Larinia Redford.

FEW LOCATIONS TO BE HAD HERE AT PRESENT

Business Enterprises Want Houses in Which to Carry on Trade but Desirable Places Are Not to Be Found—A Wholesale House.

There are a number of important business enterprises seeking locations in Fort Worth, but the barrier seems to be the lack of adequate buildings.

The Fort Worth Board of Trade has several letters asking if buildings can be had, but the secretary has not been able to reply satisfactorily because there are no desirable places in the city for such enterprises, which fact should impress the minded men of Fort Worth with the need of further investments in buildings that would be desirable for rent purposes.

For some time a local firm has had under consideration the location of a wholesale dry goods business, but thus far the company has not been able to secure a place of sufficient dimensions in which to establish the business.

One man with means was found who was willing to invest $40,000 in a building for the firm, but up to last night definite conclusion had not been reached.

There are others who could be induced to establish a business in Fort Worth could desirable places be found.

"There is a great opening here for investment in business houses, on which good returns could be had," said a business man discussing the situation of the need of more mercantile houses.

VETERANS COMING FOR THE ANNUAL MEETING

WABASH TRAINS IN PITTSBURG IN JUNE

NEW YORK, April 19.—Trains of the Wabash Railroad Company will begin running into Pittsburg regularly on June 23, unless some unforeseen delay occurs, according to President Joseph Ramsey, Jr., who has just returned from an inspection of the work.

The finishing touches to the bridge across the Monongahela river at Mingo Junction, the Pittsburg extension is now complete. About the middle of May the frame work of the bridge will be complete and a month later will bear regular traffic.

POSSIBILITY THAT OIL MAY EXIST AT WACO

WACO, Texas, April 19.—The investigations of the geological formation in this section and the probabilities of the existence of a fine oil field here have been greatly stimulated by the discovery of an unusually high grade of oil on Columbus street, only about half a mile west of the city limits. The oil was found by Driller S. H. Walton of Belton at a depth of 1,028 feet, and the promoters are going to work the proposition, expressing a determination to put down other wells. It is thought the present well can be made to yield eight or ten barrels per day of oil which will run, say 45B, the best showing yet made in Texas.

DIDN'T LIKE IT

Soon Found Why Coffee has a terrible hood on some people. About eight years ago I was a great sufferer from stomach trouble; my liver was all out of fix and a wise doctor forbade tea and coffee. At that time I was so weak I could hardly walk, absolutely poisoned.

"One day I noticed Postum in the store and, having read about it, I bought a package and made some. I did not like it, but tried it again, and followed directions carefully. It was not long before I liked it better than any other drink and it had brought me out of all the old coffee troubles."

"I can now eat what I want, am strong and healthy and the effects of Postum on me were so good all our family soon drank it."

"In summer, when the weather is hot, I do not have that 'all gone' feeling now for when I drink a cup of Postum it refreshes and strengthens, but never has the bad after-effect like coffee."

"Postum is like everything else—it needs to be made right and there is no better way than the directions on the package." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason. Look in each package for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

PHYSICIANS ARE CALLING ATTENTION TO THE FACT THAT INFLUENZA OR GRIP HAS COME TO STAY.

In the larger cities there has been a marked increase in diseases affecting the organs of respiration, which increase is attributed to the prevalence of influenza. Persons who are recovering from grip or influenza are in a weak condition and peculiarly liable to pulmonary disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures coughs, bronchitis, lung "trouble" and other diseases of the organs of respiration. It is the best tonic medicine for those whose strength and vitality have been exhausted by an attack of grip.

It purifies the blood, cleansing it of the poisonous accumulations which breed and feed disease. It gives increased activity to the blood-making glands, and so increases the supply of pure blood, rich with the red corpuscles of health.

"A word for your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. E. A. Bender, of Keene, Co. Ohio. "We have been using it as a family medicine for more than four years. As a cough remedy and blood-purifier there is nothing better, and after having the grip Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is just the right medicine for a complete bracing up."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood, and lungs.

The sluggish liver is made active by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Mrs. Wilson, who came to this state in 1837 with her parents, has been at the home almost two years, having come here from Clarksville. During the time she has been at the home she has taken a special interest in the clothing for the children at the home and during the past year has herself made over a hundred garments for them, all the work on each garment being done by hand.

Despite her age, Mrs. Wilson still retains remarkable sight, as shown in the making of these garments.

In her possession Mrs. Wilson has a vest 132 years old, the cloth of which was woven and spun by her grandmother, and the garment when completed worn by her great grandfather, Robert Dunville, serving in the revolutionary war. He came to this country from Ireland a short time before the Revolution, settling in North Carolina. There he enlisted under General Warren and served until the close of hostilities. Upon the vest are marks left by his gun while loading to shoot the red coats.

COSTS IN $30 LAWSUIT NOW AMOUNT TO $5000

FAYETTE, Mo., April 19.—The celebrated Massengale-Rice steer case was decided in the Howard circuit court last night, when a verdict was returned in favor of the defendant, Elijah Rice of Lagonda, Chariton county.

The jury was out only a few minutes and the verdict was reached on the first ballot. This is the seventh time the case has been tried. A justice of the peace, three circuit judges and three appellate judges have reviewed the proceedings, and the costs have piled up to the enormous sum of $5,000, and the end is not yet in sight, for Massengale has appealed the case to a higher court.

The controversy originated in September, 1899, the subject of it being a very ordinary steer, valued at $30.

Colds

How often you hear it remarked: "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

ONLY PENSIONER OF THE WAR OF 1812

Hiram S. Cronk Will Celebrate His One Hundred and Fourth Year Today.

ALVA, N. Y., April 19.—Hiram S. Cronk, the only surviving pensioner of the war of 1812, celebrated his 104th birthday at his home here today. For a man of his age he displays wonderful vitality. His daughter, with whom he makes his home, is of the opinion that her father is getting new teeth, and members of the family say that a few years ago new hair, as soft and fine as a baby's, made its appearance on his head, in places where the old hair had fallen away.

Cronk was born at Frankfort, N. Y., and has spent practically his entire life within the borders of this state. When about 13 years of age he enlisted in the United States army. The war of 1812 was then nearing its close. According to a record in possession of his relatives, Cronk entered the United States military service at Western, N. Y., on August 2, 1814, as a private in Captain Edmund Fuller's company, the 15th regiment, infantry, New York militia, Lieutenant Colonel Erastus Cleveland commanding. He served in the defense of Sackett's Harbor, on Lake Ontario, until honorably discharged by reason of the expiration of his enlistment, November 16, 1814. His father, James Cronk, and his brothers, John and Casper enlisted at the same time and place. His first period of service was for forty days, at Sackett's Harbor, and his relatives state that he then went as a substitute for a period of sixty days more, or until the close of the war, when he was honorably discharged. Cronk got a pension of $8 a month in 1870, and in March, 1902, this was increased to $25 a month. Two weeks ago Governor Odell signed a bill granting him a pension of $72 a month.

TERRORIZING METHODS

sis would indicate that it has not been done in more than one case by executive officers, unless they have been authorized to do it by the legislature; and in such cases the procedure has been carefully followed by law and ample provision has been made for a speedy trial of the person thus detained. I think that no executive officer has ever before in this country declared that a prisoner held without legal warrant should not be released by orders of the court "until ordered by me."

It is evident that we are witnessing here some tremendous stretching of prerogative. I have no doubt that Governor Peabody has been governed in all this by the best intentions, and it is true that a great many of the best people in Colorado support him in all that he has done. But good lawyers shake their heads.

Worse than executive annulling of the safeguards of liberty have been some of the military interference with the operation of the courts. In one of these cases, during the hearing upon the writ of habeas corpus, soldiers with fixed bayonets took possession of the court room. From more than one judge in Colorado there has come the indignant query: why the court was not promptly adjourned.

Other strenuous measures have marked the struggle. The method of deportation was inaugurated by the military authorities, who forcibly removed from the country several men and warned them not to return. Here, too, the courts interfered and the deported men were brought back to their homes.

And now appears upon the scene the citizens' alliance, and takes the law into its own hands. By these bodies, acting with neither court nor military authority, large numbers of men have been seized in their homes, dragged to the railway trains and forcibly deported from the country. Many of these are men of families, who own the houses in which they live.

More than 100 men were thus deported from Telluride.

The bodies of men by whom this violence was done were composed of merchants, lawyers, mine superintendents and others, who exiled were of course the members of the miners' union, or their sympathizers. The militia, who were there to preserve order, seem to have looked on approvingly.

It is evident that there is a reign of terror in Telluride county and that the terrorists are not all miners. The worst practices of the turbulent workmen are outdone by these friends of "law and order."

I talked with one of these exiles. He is, I am told, one of the leading merchants of Telluride, a man worth $50,000 but a strong sympathizer with the miners. He is a socialist, but a non-resistor, as he told me. He said that he had never before been arrested, and had never given or received a blow in his life. He is a mild-spoken man, and there were tears in his eyes when he told me his story.

He was seized in his home by a delegation of the "law and order" forces, who broke down his doors, he was about retiring and was in his stocking feet, but he was not allowed to put on his shoes; he was dragged in this condition through snow and puddles of frozen water to the "bull pen" and thence to the railway station; his wife brought him his shoes before he was taken away.

On the way to the train he was beaten over the head with the butt of a pistol by his captors, inflicting an ugly scalp wound. I have no means of verifying this story, but I have no reason for doubting its truth.

Such are some of the methods by which it is proposed to restore order, and to establish peace on earth and good will among men in the mining camps of Colorado.

Another letter I will endeavor to deal with some of the larger aspects of the case.

I note that when I fill a bottle they come back for more. I can honestly recommend it." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by H. T. Pangburn & Co.

MUNSEY SAYS HE MUST FACE TWO CHARGES OF MURDER

HAS HAD A PLENTY Magazine Magnate Finds Running a Big Newspaper a Decidedly Different and Expensive Proposition.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Frank A. Munsey announced last night that he would retire from the News before the end of this month. "It may be tomorrow and it may not be for ten days yet," he said, "but retire from the paper I will. I have put a peg in there—at that point—and said there I will stop."

"Some men do not know when they have enough," he went on to say, "but I do. I do know when I have enough."

"It is not a long story. In discontinuing the News I simply quit a business for which I recognize I am temperamentally and by training unfitted—that is the long and short of it. I shall confine myself to the publication of my magazines, which is more to my liking."

"You may say simply that I have retired from the News. I expect to go to Europe in May to take an automobile trip. Before I go I will relinquish my hold upon the News."

"No, I do not care to discuss what feature of it was particularly displeasing to me. When I took the paper it catered to a particular class. I tried to pull it out of that class confinement and make it a paper for the whole people. In this, I fear, I have not completely succeeded. You know that I did not take the News fully at my own volition. It was forced upon me in a way."

Mr. Munsey was one of the speakers at the Speeches Club Saturday night, where, after listening to Herman Ridder about a project which the German editor entertains and also to some remarks about his publication of the Staats Zeitung, Mr. Munsey said that he would be glad to watch Mr. Ridder's success in the future, publishing a paper "from the standpoint of a man who had tried it and failed."

"Do you consider that you have failed with the News?" he was asked because of that assertion, to which he replied: "Well, no, not exactly, but I have not succeeded enough to satisfy me. That remark was greatly in the nature of a joke."

"How about your other papers?" Mr. Munsey was asked.

"Oh, they will continue," was the reply.

"What are their policies?" Mr. Munsey was further asked.

"Republican," he said briefly.

"No, I do not care to say at present who will take the News further, but I will continue, I think, but I do not care to discuss that. The matter is not yet fully settled."

VETERANS WILL MEET WITH THE PIONEERS

ASTIN, Texas, April 19.—Captain T. L. Stanfield of Dallas writes Captain Ben McCulloch, first vice president of the Texas Veterans and Daughters of the Republic of Texas, that he will meet at Fort Worth on the 21st of April, San Jacinto day, in the city hall.

In addition to the usual business there will be delivered addresses by prominent individuals, which will be very profitable.

The Texas Veterans and Daughters of the Republic meet on the 20th, and at their last meeting in Waco accepted an invitation to meet with the pioneers on the 21st of this year.

All the natives of Texas and pioneers of the Republic are urged to attend the meeting, whether they have ever attended before or not.

The officers of the association are: Thomas L. Stanfield, Terrell, president; John W. Stebbins, first vice president; Sam J. Wright, Paris, second vice president; Ben McCulloch, Austin, third vice president, and C. H. Hotchkiss, secretary.

These officers are requested to meet in the Board of Trade rooms on the evening of the 20th at 4 o'clock.

RED TAPE HINDERS OIL DEVELOPMENT

BARTLESVILLE, I. T., April 19.—Red tape in the interior department at Washington is hindering oil development in the Bartlesville district. The oil is here in great quantities, but much of it cannot be touched on account of certain government regulations which the interior department is slow to act on. On that portion which is not under control of the interior department development is going on steadily.

The Bartlesville oil district lies in both the Osage and Cherokee nation. The north and south line between the nations runs a half mile west of town. The Osage country is not dominated from Washington, and as a result oil wells are being drilled on it rapidly. The Cherokee country is under the control of the interior department, and as a result no wells are being drilled on it in this district except on one lone section of land on which Bartlesville stands. The dividing line between the two nations is marked by a string of derricks from the Kansas line to Tulsa, a distance of fifty-eight miles.

RAILROAD HAS SPECIAL CARS FOR GAMBLERS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 19.—The man who has a love for poker need not be deprived of his favorite amusement while traveling the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, for he will find railroad equipment suited to quiet game at his disposal. The American Car and Foundry Company at its Jeffersonville plant is completing two buffet cars for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois division of the Frisco system. They are being built solely to accommodate those who wish to play with the chips while being whirled between Chicago and southern points.

One-half of the interior is given up to card rooms, where a game can be as quietly enjoyed as if the players were in a private apartment at their club. On one side is a row of five compartments, in each of which four men can be accommodated around the handsome tables, while across the richly carpeted aisle are five smaller rooms that will furnish a place for but two each to amuse themselves.

The other end of the car is furnished with reclining chairs, each of which will do its duty for a bed if required. The side of the compartments is finished in lattice work, but curtains may be drawn to keep out the gaze of fellow passengers.

HENRY WILLIS, IT IS ALLEGED, KILLED TWO BOYS ON PUBLIC ROAD.

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, April 19.—In the district court yesterday afternoon the case of the state against Henry Willis, charged with murder, was continued until the next term of court. There are two charges of murder pending against the defendant.

On the evening of December 27, 1902, Willis met two young men, Jim and Claude Shaw, on the road about three miles east of Ennis. Willis was armed with a double barreled shotgun and when he was within a few feet of the Shaw boys, it is alleged that he opened fire on them, shooting both down and killing them.

One year ago Willis was tried for the killing of Claude Shaw. He was found guilty of murder in the second degree and was given a term of forty years in the penitentiary. When the case was appealed the verdict of the lower court was reversed. At the last term of court there was a continuance until this term.

DRILLED A HOLE THROUGH THE WALL

That is How Lawrence Tucker Robbed a Waco Store.

WACO, Texas, April 19.—Mention was made yesterday in these dispatches of the plea of guilty of Lawrence Tucker, a negro, to burglary and theft and his sentence to two years in the penitentiary. The case as mentioned at the time was of more than ordinary interest, as aside from Tucker's sensational escape from jail in woman's attire and his equally sensational capture in Chicago by a negro whom he had made mad, the burglary feature was unique. Tucker was a barber and cut a hole through the wall of the shop where he worked into an alley adjoining, pulling a big rat rack over the place by day and going in at night, the hole on the side next the store entering below the counter and being skillfully concealed with a little curtain. He kept this up some weeks before he was discovered, and had taken out a great many things from the store of D. H. Krulewich, his victim.

FIGHT FOLLOWS THE BURNING OF A BARN

Fire Chief of Muskogee is Revenged for Loss by Flames.

MUSKOGEE, I. T., April 19.—A fight occurred on the street here yesterday between Ed Boyd and Frank Swift, the latter being the chief of the fire department, who had his barn and horses burned some time ago.

Mr. Swift claims that he can produce witnesses that will swear that this man Boyd threatened to burn his barn, also that the man had been in hiding ever since the fire occurred, as the police have been on the lookout for him ever since.

Mr. Swift knocked the man down and almost beat him to death, at the time there was a warrant for him in the office of the United States commissioner. He was taken immediately before the commissioner and was sent to jail.

PLAN IN DELAWARE TO OUST ADDICKS

DOVER, Del., April 19.—Following the example set a month ago by the Addicks faction, the regular or anti-Addicks republicans of Delaware, met in convention today to elect delegates to the national convention of Chicago. The republican national committee sent to both factions of the party in Delaware a request to elect delegates to the Chicago convention and this action on the part of the national committee is regarded by many as confirmatory of the recent report to the effect that the committee would endeavor to induce the Chicago convention to admit both the contesting delegations of Delaware, each with a half vote, for the purpose of creating a tie when it came to the selection of members of the national committee, thus defeating the re-election of Addicks. The vacancy thus created could be filled by the committee, and it is believed, would result unfavorably to Addicks in view of the fact that President Roosevelt and other administration leaders are supposed to be not too warmly disposed toward him.

SEPARATED PEOPLE FORM ORGANIZATION

VIENNA, April 19.—A society of separated married people has been founded here, its sole aim being to obtain legal enforcing of compulsory civil marriage in Austria. The society is open to both men and women so long as they are separated from their husbands or wives.

There are $8,000 such people in Vienna, who, because they were married according to the Catholic ritual, cannot marry again.

One speaker at a recent meeting of the society said that the objection which would be raised against everybody being

Tonight—"Alice in Wonderland."

There was not as large an audience at the benefit performance tendered Mitchell W. Greenwall, treasurer of the opera house, last night as was expected, but there were numerous attractions of a counter nature which took a great many of the crowd. The play, "A Friend of the Family," is an excellent comedy, replete with humorous situations and entertaining lines. Edward Eagleton was the lead, and he is a finished actor. He follows an excellent character through three acts and is up to every requirement of a difficult part. Miss Shannon has the opposite lead. She is pretty, handsomely gowned and has a fine stage appearance. She possesses a musical laugh which delights all. She is a very good actress. The support was good.

Tonight the benefit performance for the Daughters of the Confederacy will be given. It is "Alice in Wonderland," and 250 children of Fort Worth will attend.

HARRY CORSON CLARKE
"What Happened to Jones," which has been reorganized as one of the liveliest and most diverting farces of the day, will open at the Greenwall opera house on Thursday matinee and night, April 21. "Jones" has been most successful in both England and America and Mr. Broadhurst, the author of the play, declares the "Jones" of Harry Corson Clarke to be the best portrayal of the title role he has seen. Mr. Clarke's success as "Jones" was most pronounced in San Francisco, where he was greeted by immense houses during his long run, and gained deserved praise from the press and the public. The piece, while uproariously funny, is pure in tone, and is entirely free from all vulgarity, or in fact, anything that might be construed as offensive. In the hands of Harry Corson Clarke it is raised above the usual plane of farce comedy. There is something so quaint in his fun-making, and his originality has been so marked in every part he has portrayed, that he has firmly established with theater-goers in all sections of the country his undoubted talent as a comedian. Mr. Clarke is very proud of the fact that he has surrounded himself with a most excellent company, the full strength of which will be seen here for the first time on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Clarke will present for the balance of the engagement, Friday night, "Why Smith Left Home," Saturday matinee, "The Three Hats," and closing Saturday night, "His Absent Boy." Matinee prices, 25c to any part of the house, and night prices, 25c, 35c and 50c.

THE ARION CONCERT

The concert by the Arions at the Christian Tabernacle was largely attended and proved to be a most delightful affair. Since Mr. Ashenden has taken charge of the chorus he has rearranged the singers so that by positions in the formation of the chorus better harmony could be had, and his direction has made much improvement in the voices. The class of music selected by him is more to the popular taste, and in this way the organization is making much headway.

Mrs. Baitz Allen of Houston was the soloist for the entertainment. Mrs. Allen is one of Houston's sweetest singers. Her voice is a beautiful soprano, which is well cultivated. During the program she rendered: "O Harp Immortal," from Gounod's "Sapho"; "Forget Me Not," by Manuel Klein; "Maiden's Lament," by Schubert; "My Heart is Weary," by Thomas; "Proposal," by Brackett, while her last number was "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from Samson, and "Dellah," by Saint-Saens. As an encore to this last she rendered most artistically "Still Let Me Dream."

The choruses by the Arions were a marching song by Trotter, with tenor obligato by Mr. Estes; "They Kissed I Saw Them Do It," by Hawley, which was demanded again by the audience; an old Welsh air, "All Through the Night," Mr. Homan being the soloist of this chorus, and for encore the "Kerry Dance," Sullivan-Brewer's "Lost Chord," "Sweet and Low," by Barnby, with "Thinking I See Thee" for encore, and as the close Foster's "Ise Gwine Back to Dixie."

Several members of the Amphions of Dallas were here to join the Arions. This week the Arions go to Houston to take part in the song festival which has been arranged.

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND"

"Alice in Wonderland," the gorgeously magnificent festival of original expensive costumes, scenery, properties, etc., will be presented at Greenwall's opera house tonight and tomorrow matinee and night. The opera is given for the benefit of the U. D. C. of Fort Worth and will be produced by 250 children of this city under the personal supervision of Miss Hope Leonard, who dramatized the work. Colonel John F. Bragg of New York will manage the affair.

"Alice in Wonderland," the pretty little children's story by Lewis Carroll, dramatized and set to music by Miss Hope Leonard of New York, and presented in the form of an operatic extravaganza, will be given at Greenwall's opera house tonight and tomorrow matinee and night.

THE RABBIT

It will be presented by 250 children for the benefit of the U. D. C. of Fort Worth. The piece is promised with full scenic, electrical and costume environment. Among the many features will be the "Grand" march of nations, Mother Goose medley, the Japanese dance and various other specialties, such as serpentine and skirt dances.

TEXAS CLERGYMEN Give Opinions on The Yoke

Rev. John M. Moore, First M. E. Church, Dallas: The Yoke has great merit.

Rt. Rev. George H. Kinsolving, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Texas, Austin: I read The Yoke with much pleasure. It is strong and well written.

Rev. Joseph S. Key, D. D., M. E. Bishop, Sherman: Interest increasing to the close. A fine book—clean, strong and attractive.

Rabbi Martin Zielonka, Temple Mt. Sinai, El Paso: The dictum cannot be surpassed.

THE YOKE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN THE LORD REDEEMED THE CHILDREN OF ISRAEL FROM THE BONDAGE OF EGYPT

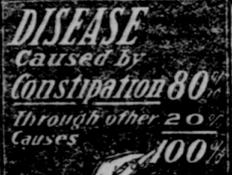

Rev. William S. Freas, President of the General Synod of the Lutheran Church: Not a dull or uninteresting page in the whole book; a work of rare fascination and power.

Rev. E. Benjamin Andrews, Baptist, Chancellor of the University of Nebraska: A brilliant treatment of interesting material. The author has thoroughly mastered her historical geographical data, and presents both with rare art.

Rabbi Mayer Messing, Hebrew Congregation, Indianapolis: The Yoke is a wonderful book of especial interest to Jews.

Rev. Dr. I. M. Atwood, General Superintendent of the Universalist Church in America: The author's mastery of details is a remarkable achievement, and the story is full of interest and power. Rev. Wallace Tharp, First Christian Church, Allegheny, Pa.: A novel of the Old Testament which rivals in interest, scholarship and beauty the story of Lew Wallace on the New.

Thousands Have Written Grateful Letters.

GAINED 38 POUNDS. Rose Mary, Ala., March 24, 1903. Thacher Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. Gentlemen—"I'm forced to give honor to whom it is due. I have been troubled with indigestion and constipation for some time, and with other trouble brought on nervousness. I had different doctors; could not get much relief. Mr. Lipscomb, the clerk for Mr. J. A. Neville, at Rose, Ala., told me of his experiences with Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup and urged me to give it a trial, because it had done him much good. I finally concluded to try one bottle. After using half dozen bottles, I feel like a new man. My nervous system is perfectly strong; Appetite good. During my illness I fell from 165 to 130 pounds, but now I have more than regained my weight. I think I can now tip the scales at about 168 pounds. "I most heartily recommend Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup to anyone who suffers from the trouble." Yours respectfully, ROBT. B. TABB.	FELT UTTERLY DESPONDENT. Quitman, Ga., May 21, 1902. Thacher Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. Dear Sirs—"Last fall I was so let down in health that I felt utterly despondent. I had suffered greatly from an inactive liver and irregular action of the bowels. "My food did not agree with me, and I was often made miserable with a sick headache and grew weaker every day. "I tried everything that is recommended for such troubles and found no relief. The first few doses of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup helped me wonderfully, and after taking three bottles I was restored to perfect health and strength. I think it is the best medicine sold to-day." Very truly yours, W. W. RAMSEY.	SUFFERED WITH SEVERE HEADACHE. St. Marks, Fla., Jan. 28, 1903. Thacher Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. Gentlemen—"I suffered for a long time from costiveness, which also caused me to have severe headaches and a weak and numb feeling all over my body. My blood also became so bad that the least little scratch on my hands would make a large and painful sore. "I am thankful to say that your Liver and Blood Syrup brought me the longed-for relief, and that I now feel better than I have for many years." Yours truly, P. G. DAMBLY.	JUDGE LEON, OF GEORGIA. Augusta, Ga., 1903. Thacher Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. Gentlemen—"I was run down from overwork and troubled with a disordered liver for some months before I began to use Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup, and really had no faith in it when I started using it. I am gratified indeed with the result; my system was toned up; my liver became active, in fact, I became another person in two months, so that I was able to resume my duties with renewed strength and vigor and have no more tired feelings; have a splendid appetite, in fact, am restored to perfect health. "I therefore am only too pleased to endorse your medicine." Very truly yours, H. D. LEON.

HOME WEDDING AT SAN ANTONIO

Large Company of Friends See Marriage of Hugh Adams to Miss Smith.

(San Antonio Express.)

A large company of friends and relatives assembled Thursday evening at the old Devine homestead on South Flores street to witness the marriage of Miss Helen Elder Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Smith, and granddaughter of the late Judge Devine, to Mr. Hugh Claiborne Adams of Fort Worth. The historic old place has been one of the social landmarks ever since the early days and the old trees in the large lawn have looked down upon many scenes of merry making, but no pleasanter nor more beautiful affair ever took place than the marriage of this cherished daughter of the home. The old-fashioned rooms were trimmed with flowers and garlands and a canopy formed of English roses and graceful asparagus-asprenger formed a beautiful bower under which the bridal party stood during the ceremony. The matron of honor on this happy occasion was Mrs. Mary Elliott Howard, who has been intimately associated with three generations of brides in this family. When Mrs. Howard was a young girl, the grandmother, Mrs. Devine, came as a bride to her father's house, and a life long intimacy has existed between the families. The other attendants were Misses Nellie Paschal, Katherine Allen, Janie Ellis of Uvalde, Augusta Barnitz, Agnes Edwards, Flossie Devine, Daisy Brown, Sarah Halter, Mary Bell and Miss Hartwell of Houston. Little Regina Mangham and Starr Smith acted as flower girls.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white liberty satin, a deep bertha of rose point with bridal veil and her flowers were bride roses. Mrs. Howard was in black crepe de chine with beautiful lace and jewel ornaments and carried white roses. The maids were all in airy white with ivy leaves in their hair. They carried garlands of ivy which they formed an aisle for the bridal party to pass through. Father Constantine pronounced the marriage service of the Catholic church. The bride was given away by her father.

Mrs. Smith was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams of St. Louis, mother of the groom; Mrs. Compton of Galveston, Mrs. Woods of Virginia, Mesdames J. C. Mangham, N. O. Shiner, Dr. Bell, Ward of Edna, H. G. Austin, B. F. Kingsley, Josephine Kingsley, Rely, Kilgore, J. W. Terry, D. J. Woodward, Floyd McGowan and R. P. Ingram.

Miss Helen Devine served punch at a table laid in pink and straw with exquisite pink roses. Among the guests were numbered representatives from all the old and prominent citizens of San Antonio, and the young couple are beginning life under the most pleasing auspices.

The groom is highly connected and is prominent in business circles of Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. Adams left immediately for a short trip, after which they will be at home in Fort Worth. They will, however, spend the greater part of the summer in the north.

ROOSEVELT LOSES HIS POPULARITY IN WEST

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The remarkable popularity enjoyed by President Roosevelt in the west, and particularly in the four territories, is suffering as the protracted fight for the admission of these territories into the Union again becomes a farcical matter of doing nothing, by partially doing something.

As has been stated in The Telegram, a statehood bill will be rushed through the house, but all indications now point to nothing conclusive at this session. A dubious assurance is given that the "overshadowing senate" will act at the short session.

Still, the kind of statehood advocated by the republicans is not what is wanted, either in the west generally or in the country immediately concerned.

TEXAS IS TO BE AT THE DENVER MEETING

Will Be Represented in the Effort to Secure Better Rates and Service on Live Stock Shipments from the Railroads.

The Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, the largest organization of the kind in the United States, will be well represented at the conference of stockmen to be held at Denver May 2, and a number of members from this state will be in attendance, as matters that vitally affect the interests of all those engaged in the live stock industry are to be considered, particularly the part that the railroads of the country play in the transportation of cattle to market.

The stockmen claim that the railroads do not give them the consideration that the importance of the business justify, and at the coming meeting measures looking to a radical change in the handling of the products of the range and feed pens will be adopted and resolutions passed calling on the interstate commerce commission for such legislation as will best tend to further the best interests of that industry.

Just what will be asked of this commission, of course, is not known in advance of the meeting, but that decisive action will be taken goes without saying. The cattle raisers of the south and southwest will seek for a better rate of transportation, and also for better service in the movement of stock. Probably the same legislation as is now being asked of the interstate commerce commission by the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association which is now holding a session in Fort Worth will be asked for at the Denver meeting.

Especially are the stockmen interested in having the railroads give them better transportation service. They claim that the railroads are paying too little attention to the methods employed in moving cattle, claiming that the business of the roads has become so great in the matter of dead freight that the live stock interests are being grossly neglected and, as a result, the stockmen are given very little consideration when they attempt to ship their products to market.

As has been stated in The Telegram on several occasions, there seems to be a misunderstanding among the cattlemen and the sheep raisers as to who are expected to take part in the coming Denver meeting.

During the past few weeks Secretary Lytle of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association has sent out many invitations to stockmen, inviting them to be present at the Denver meeting, and from replies it is certain that the attendance will be very large, as all the cattlemen in the country are very much interested in the outcome of the conference.

Those engaged in the sheep industry have constituted the invitation to apply to them also, but the intent of the cattlemen is that the meeting is in the main, intended exclusively for them, and only stockmen will be represented in the conference. Some forty or fifty different cattle associations in the south and southwest have been asked by invitation of Secretary Lytle to be at Denver, and most of those asked have signified a desire to attend. It is expected that the meeting will be the largest of its kind ever held west of the Mississippi river, and among the more important people connected with the live stock industry who will be present may be mentioned Governor John Sparks of Nevada, former Governor Jerry Simpson of Kansas, now of New Mexico, and several others of equal prominence in the live stock industry. Besides these gentlemen, a number connected with the live stock department of the federal government have been invited and are expected to attend.

It is learned here that quite a number of the leading live stock raisers of Fort Worth are arranging to go to Denver on the occasion of the coming cattle conference.

PRIZES OFFERED ARE VERY SMALL

Cattlemen Disappointed at Action in Regard to Range Show.

Western cattlemen are sorely disappointed at the World's Fair range cattle show, for while they expected a grand cattle show, they will really get a fat cattle show. The money is to be evenly divided between grain fed and grass fed cattle, and the prizes are so small as to be of little interest to the cattlemen of the southwest. As the western cattlemen are only interested in the grand cattle part of the show, the exhibition promises to be a complete shut-out for many of the cowboys.

The show will be a free-for-all and the classification will include calves, yearlings and twos. Either steers or heifers can be shown. The prizes are: First, $125; second, $75; third, $50. There are five districts arranged, and $1,500 allowed to each district aside from the championship prize. The districts are as follows: The eastern district includes the states of Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri, and all states east of these and above the quarantine line, and the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

The northwestern district includes all of Canada, except Ontario and Quebec, with the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

The southwestern district comprises Arizona, New Mexico and the portions of Texas and Oklahoma north of the quarantine line.

Fifteen animals are to constitute the cattle that must be shown in each lot in all sections. These may be either steers or heifers, at the exhibitor's discretion.

RICH ST. LOUIS GIRL WILL BE A MISSIONARY

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 13.—Miss Louise W. Allen, daughter of Millionaire William Russell Allen of Pittsfield and St. Louis, is soon to enter a school for deaconesses in Philadelphia to prepare for the work of a missionary in China.

Aside from her church and school duties, she has time for social engagements, and frequently attends dances of Pittsfield society, and the theater.

While Miss Allen has always wanted to spread the gospel in the foreign field, it was not until last summer that she decided to go to China. She belongs to a family that has taken a prominent part in the life of Pittsfield for the last 100 years. Her grandfather, the late Thomas Allen, gave the city its beautiful Athenaeum and many of its finest books. The first Thomas Allen that settled in Pittsfield was the first pastor of the old Congregational church, in the middle of the eighteenth century.

Miss Allen's father, William Russell Allen, is the owner of the Southern hotel in St. Louis, together with other valuable property in that city and section, and is also proprietor of the famous Allen stock farm in Pittsfield, where some of the fastest horses on the American turf are raised. The old Allen homestead, in East street, Pittsfield, is one of the landmarks of the center of the city.

PATRIOT'S DAY IS CELEBRATED

BOSTON, April 19.—"Patriot's day," the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, was generally celebrated today throughout Massachusetts, the celebrations recalling the old traditions and historic incidents of the revolution. Historical exercises were held under the auspices of various organizations of Boston and vicinity and all of the old houses of historic interest were decorated and kept open all day for the inspection of visitors. The celebrations were not confined to the holding of patriotic exercises, however, as the day's program included the usual large number of sporting events—baseball games, the annual Marathon run, rowing races, bicycle races and an automobile hill-climbing contest.

TWINS AND TRIPLETS

Washington charity workers are thinking of directing President Roosevelt's personal attention to their latest applicant for aid. He is Isaac Wineberger, a Jewish painter and paperhanger, father of three sets of twins and one set of triplets. Wineberger is at present destitute in the little one-room cottage in the northeastern part of Washington, his wife is in the hospital, where she gave birth to twins on February 19, and Wineberger declares that he has been unable to leave the house to earn a living since November 11, because he had to stay home and care for the triplets.

Wineberger is far from being despondent over his situation. He laughed gleefully today when he said: "I do not agree with the president that there is any danger of race suicide in this country. I am just as happy as he is with his big family."

The latest set of twins at the hospital were girls. One of them died, but the other is named Alice, after the daughter of the president. Wineberger has not seen her yet, because he has been unable to leave the triplets to go to the hospital. Wineberger has been married twice. He married sisters, and was presented with two sets of twins, all boys, by his first wife, and one set of twins and one set of triplets, all girls, by his second wife. Wineberger is a small man, weighing about 115 pounds. Both his wives weighed less than ninety pounds.

FOR EXCHANGE—Good new two-story dwelling of 8 rooms on South Side, corner. Price $4,000. Will take other Fort Worth property to value of $2,000 to $2,500 in part payment and give the balance in cash. Will trade for property in Glenwood.

CLOSE IN on St. Louis avenue we are offering a good new two story residence on lot 50x122 1/2 feet. The dwelling has 8 rooms, reception hall, porcelain bath, sink, water, sewer and electric connections; two grates and mantels. In fact it is a modern, well built and well located home. Owner says that he is not going to let price stand in way of sale.

FOUR LOTS fronting east on Sixth avenue, good neighborhood, on corner. Will be sold this week, only, for $200 less than offered before. Excellent investment in this.

LEAVING THE CITY, wants to sell quick. Here is something good. It is one of the most attractive homes in the city. The location and surroundings could not be better. The price is low in terms reasonable. This is a strictly modern home. It is located in the neighborhood south of Pennsylvania and west of Henderson street, fronting south; lot 50x140 to alley. Dwelling new, two stories, 7 rooms, two hallways, bath, three porches, two pantries, water and sewer connections, two grates and mantels; large barn and servant's house. If you want something choice where you can get at least full value for your money, better see us at once.

BEAUTIFUL HOME on Hemphill street, brand new, modern and thoroughly up-to-date in every way. This lot is 90x126 feet, fronts Hemphill and extends back to 50 foot street in rear. Dwelling just completed, two stories, rooms, hallway, bath, 3 porches, pantry, water and sewer connections. Price and terms will be satisfactory to buyer. See us at once.

NEAT COTTAGE HOME, close in on Wheeler street, lot 50x120 feet to 20 foot alley. Dwelling is new, has 5 rooms, hallway, bathroom, two porches; water, sewer and electric connections; iron fence in front. Price is right.

169 CHOICE LOTS, high, well drained and smooth, located west of Hemphill street car line, south of city belt car line and extending from two to five blocks in all directions from the standpoint. These include all of the unsold lots in EMORY COLLEGE and THE GOLDSMITH ADDITIONS.

On the first street east of the parallel with Hemphill we have 9 east front lots at $300 for corners, $250 insides; also 12 west fronts at same prices.

On Jennings avenue 5 east fronts, $300 for corners, $250 insides; also 4 west fronts $250 for corners, $200 for insides. On May street 13 beautiful east fronts, $300 for corners; $250 insides. Also 25 west fronts, $250 for corners; $200 to $250 for insides.

On Galveston avenue 29 east front lots, $200 to $300 for corners; $200 to $250 insides. Also 21 west fronts $150 to $250 corners; $100 to $200 insides. On South Main street 5 east fronts, insides lots, at $250 each.

These lots are all right in the city—central to one of the most popular residence sections of the city; handsome improvements all around, among and far beyond them.

TERMS EASY We will sell any lot or number of lots on the following terms: 1-10 cash on delivery of contract of sale, within 60 days thereafter a further cash payment to make total cash 1-4 of the purchase price at which time warranty deed will be delivered and notes taken for balance payable on or before one, two and three years.

Complete, certified abstract of title furnished with every sale FROM $10 TO $30 CASH NOW and a further cash payment of $15 to $45 within 60 days will buy any one of these lots. Balance in three yearly payments.

WE SINCERELY BELIEVE that the selling value of these lots will double long before the last payment matures; we expect this result by end of first year. That result would mean, on a $250 lot, for instance—that a cash investment of about $70 earned a profit in one year of $250. We expect this within one year; it will certainly be realized in less than three.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS

OFF FOR AMARILLO For the past few days there has been a lively movement of railroad commission and cattlemen of Amarillo, where they go to attend the annual meeting of the Panhandle Cattle Association, which begins today. The Denver road yesterday carried a number of people and this morning there were several who started for the convention, among them J. D. Shuford, live stock agent for the Denver road; H. M. Sims, John Andrews, Sam Davidson, Robert Crowder, Perry Klein, live stock agent for the Great Northern, headquarters in Fort Worth, besides others.

MR. DOUGLASS' SUCCESSOR Since the death of the late J. P. Douglass, general agent at New Orleans for the Fort Worth and Denver City and the Colorado and Southern lines, there has been considerable speculation as to who will be appointed to the place made vacant. There are a number mentioned for the position, among them Ed S. Beard, at present commercial agent for the Denver road at Fort Worth. His friends believe that he will be the lucky man. The matter of selecting a man for the place is being considered by General Freight Agent Sterling and General Passenger Agent Glisson. When seen this morning, Mr. Glisson said that no decision has as yet been reached in the matter of appointing a representative for the two companies at New Orleans and that the assistant of the late Mr. Douglass was temporarily holding down the place.

BIG SUMMER TRAVEL PREDICTED The Fort Worth and Denver City Railroad Company is expecting to handle a large number of people during the summer from Texas to Colorado points, especially during the sessions of the Texas-Colorado Chautauqua, which opens July 4, and closes August 1. This season will be one of the very best held since the beginning, and among the prominent speakers who will be present during the meeting are Sam P. Jones, Frank R. Robertson, Rabbi Leon Harrison, John G. Woolley, Dean Alfred A. Wright, Rev. William A. Quayle, Lou J. Beauchamp, Rev. Eugene May, Toyokichi Lyenaga and many others. Besides these there will be many entertainers, while the musical features will be among the very best the country affords. There will be special days, open air concerts and many other features for the entertainment of the people who attend the sessions.

TO BRING FIFTY FAMILIES Land and Immigration Agent Abbott of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company was here a few days ago. The Southern Pacific Company has been instrumental in bringing hundreds of immigrants from the over-crowded east and north and locating them on land along their line throughout the south and southwestern country, thus introducing the northern and eastern methods of farming in Texas. They are now planning to locate a large colony from Kentucky on 50,000 acres of land in Live Oak county. The first contingent of fifty families will be brought to Texas in about three weeks. Mr. Abbott says this immigration move on the part of the Southern Pacific is only in its infancy, and ere long thousands of families will have been brought south to locate along the line of the Southern Pacific from Houston west to Los Angeles, Cal.

RESSEGUE'S SUCCESSOR It is reported here that G. F. Hawkes,

AN OLD ADAGE SAYS

"A light purse is a heavy curse," Sickness makes a light purse. The LIVER is the seat of nine tenths of all disease.

Tutt's Pills

go to the root of the whole matter, thoroughly, quickly safely and restore the action of the LIVER to normal condition.

Give tone to the system and solid flesh to the body. Take No Substitute.

now superintendent of the El Paso division of the Southern Pacific, is to become successor of C. F. Ressegule, who was recently superintendent of the Texas and New Orleans, and who went with the firm.

EXTENSION IN MEXICO

There is said to be much importance attached to the granting of the concession by the government to the Chihuahua and Pacific Company for the extension of its line. This concession gives the company the right to construct a system of railroads in the northwest part of the republic.

The concessionaries are authorized to build two other lines, the first to extend from Tamosachia to a point on the frontier of the United States, where connection can be made with a railroad from the north, and another line from a point to be hereafter determined, and will reach the Gulf of California on a line to be constructed by the Chihuahua and Pacific, or connection made with a railroad already established and leading to the gulf.

MANY CHANGES EXPECTED It is not thought in railroad circles here among those well versed in railroad matters in the republic of Mexico that there will be very many changes made in the heads of departments of the Mexican Southern railroad as a result of change of general managers.

W. L. Morkill, who becomes general manager of the road, when asked whether there would be any changes on his assuming charge of the general management, said: "I never discharge a man if I can find the least valid excuse for keeping him."

AN HONEST MEXICAN

A conscience-stricken Mexican in the City of Mexico has just paid back to the Central Railroad Company the sum of $100, which amount he claims to have defrauded the railroad out of some time ago. He made a confession to a priest and gave the latter the money and requested that he pay the railroad company, which he did.

This is said to be the first case of the kind that has ever happened in any of the railroads in the republic. The priest refused to divulge the name of the conscience-stricken man, paid the $100 and went his way rejoicing.

CENTRAL'S NEW CITY TICKET AGENY

Ed Pennington, until yesterday assistant to City Passenger and Ticket Agent Felton of the Santa Fe, this city, was yesterday afternoon checked in as city passenger and ticket agent of the Houston and Texas Central railroad in Fort Worth, to succeed C. E. Lewis, resigned. Mr. Lewis returns to Houston, but for the present will take a needed rest during which he will visit in the east and returning will take in the World's Fair. Later on he will re-enter the railroad service. Mr. Pennington is succeeded at the Santa Fe office by Ben T. Scott, who has for some time been in the joint ticket office of the Central-Santa Fe office at the union station. George Keller, who was assistant under Mr. Lewis, will still continue in the same position with Mr. Pennington.

DOCTORS REFUSE INFORMATION TO THE PAPERS

Medical Society Has a Meeting and State Laws Are Discussed but Newspaper Men Are Not Allowed to Know Subject of Resolutions.

When the meeting of the Tarrant County Medical Association was held last night the reporters who were present were invited by resolution to retire and the officers and members of the organization will not give out the subject of the resolution adopted.

The association held a regular meeting last night and several papers were read and discussed. The question of state laws was brought up and the members discussed certain changes which they desire made in the laws, with the result that a resolution making the suggestions official were adopted and will be submitted to the state association which is to be held in Austin. Just what this resolution is none of the members will say.

It is known that the cocaine law passed by the legislature some time ago is not being followed closely, but whether this is the fault of physicians or druggists is not known. Last night Officers Cone and Orr arrested a half dozen cocaine fiends who were "doped" from the influence of the drug, which condition is not possible if the law is strictly enforced. There are any number of morphine victims in this city, and they have found a way to get the drug. The law provides that such drugs shall not be sold except upon the order of a physician. Prescriptions written by reputable physicians cost $1 each, and the "doper" does not have the dollar for the prescription and the extra cost of the drug, therefore either druggists are selling with the proper prescription or the physician is writing the prescription at a cheaper rate. Just whether this condition of affairs was discussed last night at the meeting it was impossible to learn, but the police records show that "dope" is to be had because the police are constantly finding those who are under the influence of it. It is evident, however, that the changes in the state law which are desired by the physicians of Fort Worth are changes they do not care to let the public know of, as they positively refuse to let out any information on the subject.

ANNUAL MEETING AT AUSTIN

The program for the annual meeting of the state association to be held in Austin April 25 to 29 inclusive, has been received here. It is to be a six-day session. At the session the wives of the local physicians will give to the wives and daughters of the visiting physicians a number of social functions. A bureau of information will be found near the depots, and all incoming trains will be met by members of the local committee, who will be known by their badges. They will be pleased to furnish all information concerning meeting places, hotels, etc. On Wednesday, from 4 to 6 o'clock p. m., a reception will be tendered to the State Medical Association by Governor and Mrs. S. W. T. Lanham, at the governor's mansion. The Travelers' Protective Association of

WEATHER FORECAST

Warmer and unsettled weather for tonight and tomorrow, which might as well be put warmer weather and humidity will likely make sweeter but probably scattered showers, running to a shower. And of all weather that sort is the meanest and most conducive to profanity. Generally unsettled weather ruled in all sections of the state yesterday, but very little rain was reported, Abilene, with a rainfall of .12 inches, having the record in this respect, as reported by the government stations.

INDICATIONS FOR THE SOUTHWEST

Arkansas—Tonight and Wednesday, increasing cloudiness, probably scattered showers; warmer. Oklahoma and Indian Territories—Tonight and Wednesday showers; warmer in east portion tonight. East Texas, North—Tonight and Wednesday, unsettled weather and probably scattered showers; warmer tonight, except in extreme west portion. East Texas, South—Tonight and Wednesday, unsettled weather; probably showers in west portion; fresh to brisk southerly winds on the coast.

CONDITION IN COTTON FIELDS

The weather continues generally cloudy and unsettled over the greater portion of the cotton region, with light scattered showers. It is warmer in the northern portion this morning, but colder in the extreme northern portion, with frost in North Carolina.

FORECAST

The forecast for Texas east of the one hundredth meridian, issued at New Orleans, is as follows: North—Tonight and Wednesday unsettled weather and probably scattered showers; warmer tonight, except in extreme west portion. South—Tonight and Wednesday unsettled weather; probably showers in west portion.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Forecast George Reeder issued the following statement of weather conditions this morning: A north Pacific low has moved southward into Utah, where it is centered this morning, resulting in much warmer and settled, with much cloudiness, but very little rain; less than one-tenth of an inch is reported from several stations; similar conditions prevail in the east cotton states.

OLD BOYS CAUSE TROUBLE IN SCHOOL

They Demoralize Those Who Want to be Good and Insubordination Follows—Special Officer Makes an Arrest of Several Youngsters.

What will become of the boys? This is a question which is presented almost every day by those connected with the police department who see only a disastrous end for those tender years who come in contact with boys who do not follow the paths of right as they should. There is hardly a day passes but that the police have one or more boys under their care, some being apprehended because they have left the parental home without permission, others for trivial offenses, and others for misdoings which are of some importance.

Not only is this the case in the police court, but it shows up in the public schools. Superintendent Alexander Hogt tells of numerous instances of boys of this city who are not only unmanageable in the schools, but by their parents. There are several instances within the last few months when boys have attempted the destruction of school property, by fire or otherwise, and there has never been a doubt in the minds of some that the Fifth ward school was destroyed as the work of a boy.

Two boys at another school became unmanageable, and were arrested. The father of one of them agreed to take him home and punish him, and the principal of the school agreed that this would be satisfactory. The father of the other boy took the matter into the city court, and defended the boy against the punishment which the prosecution sought to have enforced, and the testimony showed that the boy not only defied the teachers at the school, but said that his father could not punish him. There does not appear to be the proper influence brought to bear at home on such children, and the teachers are at a loss to know what to do.

"Shall we allow the whole school to be ruined by one boy?" asks Superintendent Hogt. "Or shall we send the bad boy home and tell his parents that he cannot attend the school until he is willing to obey the rules?" These boys who are insubordinate demoralize those who are willing to be good. There are others who are good because they lack the leader, and let one of these bad ones get started and make his presence felt he finds others to follow him along. Now we can keep this insubordinate demoralizer out of the school in every way to control him and make of him a good boy, if it is possible, but is the salvation of the one to be weighed in the balance with the demoralizing of the others in the school, many of them who desire to be good, but who are led to ways of mischief and bad conduct by the leadership and influence of the incorrigible? A great deal of this could be helped by the parents if they would but try it. The boy must be controlled at home before he can be controlled at school, and unless the home influence is for the best, the tendency of the lad at school is to be insubordinate. It is a problem with which we have to contend, and it is difficult to figure out just what to do.

It is shown also that the boys who are kept out of school continue to be bad, and they lose the good influence they would get from the teachers. Yesterday afternoon there were a number of them arrested by Special Officer McDuff of the railroad yards, of ages ranging from eight years to fourteen. They have been transferred to the county authorities pending an investigation.

Special Officer McDuff said: "We have been troubled lately in the yards by bad boys. There is a crew of boys which have thrown rocks at passenger trains, which have pelted the rear cars of freight trains, lumber has been stolen from the Southern Cold Storage Company, a car on the Santa Fe siding has been broken open and other acts of vandalism have been committed. It has been a source of much trouble to the railroads and I have been endeavoring in every way to put a stop to it."

CHICAGO DIVINE IS TO HAVE A MEETING FRIDAY EVENING UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION.

Fort Worth was honored with a visit from a distinguished man yesterday. Not so well known as the honored evangelist who brought him into his special line of work, but none the less great. William R. Newell, today one of the greatest Bible instructors in the world, upon invitation of the Ministerial Association, spent the day in Fort Worth and told to that body of men in a very simple way the story of his great Bible study revival. He told how he came to love the great book and came to a comprehensive knowledge of its contents, and how the great evangelist, D. L. Moody, induced him to attempt the work of making its study popular. The beginning was in the Moody church, Chicago, with a class of about five hundred. This was in 1855.

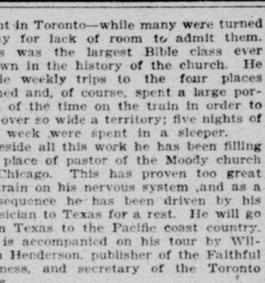

INDIAN EVANGELIST BEGINS MEETINGS

Rev. Frank H. Wright, the Indian evangelist, will arrive tomorrow (Wednesday) and preach at the Broadway Presbyterian church at 8 p. m. This is the initial service of a protracted meeting conducted by Mr. Wright in the church. He has a wonderfully gifted voice and will sing at each service, supported by a large chorus choir, under the direction of Mrs. R. P. Smith. Services daily at 4 p. m. and 8 p. m.

used after that time has not yet been received, a partial list of the changes will be as follows: Eastbound train No. 2, now leaving this city at 8 a. m., will leave at 11 a. m.; eastbound No. 6, now leaving here at 7:45 p. m., will leave at 6:40 p. m.; eastbound No. 12, now leaving at 9:25 a. m., will leave at 8 a. m., and eastbound No. 8, now leaving at 6 p. m., will leave at 3:45 p. m.

Little change will be made in the westbound trains, except that No. 3, now scheduled at 9:45, will leave a little earlier. The time of the cannon ball will remain unchanged. The Cotton Belt train arriving here at 6:50 and the one leaving here at 9:30 will not be run over the Texas and Pacific tracks after that date, but the flyer, No. 105, scheduled here at 12:30, and No. 105, scheduled at 1:20, will still run over the Texas and Pacific to Dallas.

Changes will also be made about this time also upon the Katy and upon the International and Great Northern roads.

AGED TWINS CARRY RESEMBLANCE IN FEATURES

Two Brothers Who Have Passed the Three Score and Ten Mark Grow Hair and Beard the Same—They Live in Kansas on Adjoining Farms.

Travelers at the Santa Fe station this morning waiting for the southbound train which was an even two hours late had the opportunity of seeing a rare sight, twins, 75 years of age, and so much alike that only by noticing the difference in their clothing could they be distinguished.

Both men were white haired and had long beards, their eyes were of an identical shade, and their aquiline noses were bent at the same angle. Seated upon the bench at the station there appeared to be no physical difference in the old men, but upon their arising to take the train one was discovered to be a trifle the taller.

The men were Abner and Phillip Zerfoss, the taller one being called Abner, but he admits that they do not know for sure whether he or his brother was christened by that name, as in their infancy their mother was wholly unable to tell them apart.

At present they are on their way to visit Phillip's daughter, who has married a farmer living near Peters, Texas, and they are wondering whether she will know which of them is her father, not having seen them for some time. In Kansas they live upon adjoining farms and are surrounded by practically the same influences, a fact that may be partly responsible for their maintaining so perfect a resemblance through their long lives.
