GERMAN JOURNALS TELL HIM KUROPATKIN WILL BE WORST BEATEN COMMANDER IN MODERN HISTORY—WANTS LONDON'S ASSISTANCE NOW FOR TERMS

A SETTling DAY

Nicholas Is Being Convinced the War Office Has Broken Down and He Is Willing to Make Concessions to Eng- land to Gain Political As- sistance in Forming a Treaty

LONDON, June 4.—In all the European capitals the question of predominant interest is how far the settlement of the Russo-Canadian seal fishery dispute will serve the chief purpose of King Edward's diplomacy—an Anglo-Russian political rapprochement. That the developments of the war with Japan have altered radically the views held in influential Russian circles as to the expediency of an "understanding" with Britain can be doubted no longer. When a journal like the Novosti, a sheet which for years has flouted the idea, declares in a tone of semi-inveigle that an Anglo-Russian commercial treaty is not only desirable but within range and that political rapprochement would follow commercial as a logical sequence, it is impossible to mistake the significance of the Russian change of front.

Unabashed by Russia's rejection of his friendly overtures of mediation during his recent visit to Copenhagen, King Edward is understood to have continued to exert pressure on Emperor Nicholas for such an agreement between London and St. Petersburg as has been described by Mr. Balfour this week as "one of the greatest international transactions on record and the beginning of a happier era in international relations." Events since that visit have altered the whole Asiatic prospect for the czar. He has been disillusioned. He has read even in German journals the libretto of pronouncedly pro-Russian sentiments, column after column, in the papers of his army and navy and cold-blooded predictions that Kuropatkin will be the worst beaten commander in modern history. Not all the mendacious flatteries of the Beaucerats blind him to the fact that his war office has broken down.

Following von Plehve's concession to the Jews as to residence along the frontier and the proposal to open the ports of the Siberian littoral to the world, the suggestion of a commercial agreement with Britain adds to the evidence of a great change of heart. In London, where the matter is discussed more cautiously than anywhere else, the feeling is that Russia is willing to make an arrangement enormously to the advantage of Britain in order to buy London's political assistance when the day comes for settling the terms of the peace treaty with Japan. Possibilities are the prevailing note in St. Petersburg, and the most sagacious of the czar's advisers are devoting their energies to plans for meeting as advantageously as possible the proposals expected from Japan after the fall of Port Arthur. Assuming the reduction of that fortress and the tender of peace, Russian statesmen believe Japan will heed the advice of Britain, who, in turn, will go a long way in deference to France. This view of the probabilities is reflected on all the European boulevards.

CZAR'S CLEVER SPIES SWARM IN RUSSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, June 4.—"Russia is as civilized, prosperous and free as any nation need wish to be." That is the verdict of many a foreigner who visits St. Petersburg or Moscow for the first time with letters of introduction to some of the well-to-do natives.

He is agreeably surprised at their hospitality. In truth, it is generous and spontaneous, with their knowledge of foreign languages, which is often marvellously thorough, and their pre-eminence in spending money, and with their frankness in criticizing their government.

So he smiles at the absurd legend of a vampire-bureaucracy, a down-trodden people, a reign of terror and an atmosphere of suspicion.

And it is difficult for the foreigner who cannot speak the language to discern at first any signs of unrest among the people, and still more any reasonable causes for it in the government. But, none the less, both exist, and are as real and tangible as the rush of the cold current beneath the Neva's icy crust.

"What do you Russians want with more liberty than you have?" inquired an American.

"We want breathing space and elbow room," was the reply he received from a nobleman, "and we have neither. I went yesterday to a meeting of officials, who almost all think as I do. And what do you suppose was the theme of our conversation? Anecdotes of Nicholas I. before and during the Crimean war. We dared not speak on current topics. I took up a Russian newspaper this morning; it had been read and censored by our rulers before it reached me, and had it contained a line of which any minister seriously disapproved it would have been sent back to be altered. My books, foreign and Russian, are read, revised and bowdlerized in like manner. The journals and reviews which we receive from abroad have whole pages cut out, whole columns blackened before we are allowed to get them. I go to church to hear a sermon, and I know that every word the priest utters has been submitted to the censor before he was allowed to preach it. I read advertisements about flats and cooks and coachmen; they, too, have been perused by the Catos of the police. I retire to my study in disgust, and take up the letters which the postman has brought me from Germany, Spain and the United States, and I am aware that they, too, have been read—perhaps copied as well—by the cabinet noir. And those are but a few examples of what we have to put up with."

Thus Russians who know exactly where the shoe pinches have a most dismal tale to tell of spies who cross their path in Protean shapes, of eavesdropping in private houses, of private letter reading by the detective department, of secret denunciations, and of sudden imprisonment and exile. One of them lately said to me: "As our national satirist constantly used to remark, there is but one way of escaping from the meshes of the irksome net—acquire a taste for dissipation and rakishness, for gambling or for drinking, and you are promoted like a convicted felon for good conduct in prison."

"I have a lackey here who has been with me ten months. A good, honest, willing fellow, I have had no complaint against him. He does not drink, nor quarrel, nor gossip—a treasure, in a word. Now and again he asked leave to absent himself at noon, and, of course, I willingly consented. Well, last week I discovered that he is a member of the secret police, and that his absences were caused by the obligation he is under to report from time to time about the people who visit me and the things they say."

"When take the postoffice? It is a star chamber of extorted secrets. Never before were so many private letters read and copied. That explains, in part, why such frequent and wearisome delays occur in the forwarding of missives."

"Formerly the system was simple; all letters to suspected persons were carefully read, and copies kept, and only a certain percentage of other letters were taken, generally at random. Now the rules are much more rigorous, thanks to the organizing talent of the minister of the interior. Letters to and from diplomats are conned an copied. Once a letter was thus read, and by an egregious act of forgetfulness the copy was inclosed in the envelope as well and then sent on to the diplomatist. This gentleman complained, of course, and the authorities blandly assured him that they deeply regretted the mistake, and would guarantee that such a painful blunder should never occur again."

"The cabinet noir is a curious institution, and the workshop attached to it would be worthy of a place in a museum. Scissors of various shapes and sizes, knives of every kind, and blades would enter anywhere, they are so thin, and the edges would shave a hair; a collection of seals, with all manner of figures and devices, among which official and diplomatic seals play a prominent part; packets of thick and thin envelopes to suit any size missive; wax of all the colors of the rainbow; jets of gas and steam, and little instruments like stocking needles, which accomplish feats of prestidigitiation, are among the things which constitute the plant of this strange institution. Some envelopes are unfastened by means of a wax of the color of the seal, and others are severed down below, and regummed so skillfully that the ordinary man who cuts open the envelope at the other end would never notice it without the aid of a magnifying glass. When a letter is neatly sealed the operation is much more complicated. If the seals of the same kind are in stock the problem is readily solved; and this is very often the case. If not, a thin, sharp instrument, resembling a miniature dagger,

THREE THOUSAND CATTLE BURNED IN A WHISKY FIRE

Explosion in a Warehouse Starts a Conflagration Which Results in a Loss of Millions of Dollars—Men Are Buried Beneath the Ruins and Live Stock Roasted Alive—Four Story Walls Totter and Fall

PEORIA, Ill., June 4.—Ten men are known to be dead, several are seriously injured, thirty thousand barrels of whisky destroyed and thirty cattle burned to death in an explosion at the plant of Corning Distilling Company here tonight.

The dead are: Louis Boperon, E. Brown, William Crowl, William Field, William Finley Jr., E. Hogan, John Hobecker, John Joppi, Louis Sach, Joseph Zimmerman.

The seriously injured: Edward Warner, Joseph Warren, Fred Knall, Abe Feinberg, James M. Miller, Frank Phelan.

The loss on property and stock is estimated at $2,000,000, which is largely covered by insurance.

The explosion, which occurred shortly after 4 o'clock in one of the immense warehouses, was accompanied by a detonation which was heard for miles and was followed shortly by two more explosions. The cause of the explosion is not known, but it is supposed that a broken barrel of whisky was set fire by a lantern in the hands of an employe. At the time of the accident it is thought that there were nineteen employes in the building, but up to the present time only nine of these have been accounted for.

The list of dead, however, may be increased.

With the explosion in the big warehouse, containing 40,000 barrels of whisky, the building was instantly a mass of flames and it was but a few minutes until the walls of the four story structure tottered and fell, burying everyone with it.

the Illinois river.

Joseph Zimmerman, one of the dead, was blown through a second-story window by the force of the explosion and succumbed to burns at the hospital an hour later.

Elmer Hogan died at Cottage hospital tonight from burns and injuries received during his remarkable escape from the doomed building.

At midnight the fire had about burned itself out, but owing to the immense heat no attempt has yet been made to search for the bodies of the dead. The fire was headed off before it had proceeded far with its work of destruction and at 9 o'clock tonight it is under control. At the hospital tonight it was reported that all the injured will recover with the exception of Elmer Hogan and J. B. Marshall. With the fall of the warehouse, the third catastrophe in the short space of less than two years, was completed for the Corning company.

President's Daughter Presents the Trophies of Victory at an Athletic Meet

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, June 4.—The American amateur athletic senior champions received their championship medals from Miss Alice Roosevelt at the close of the amateur athletic championship meet today. About 1,500 persons were present. Miss Roosevelt arrived just in time to witness the finish of the five mile run, the last event of the program.

The successful contestants presented a curious appearance. Some were in street dress, some in running costume, a few in a hurried compromise between both, and J. H. Munson, winner of the two-mile run, was conspicuous in a rainbow hued bath robe.

Mr. Sullivan, chief of the day, called off the names of the winners from an official list in his hand and handed the medals to Miss Roosevelt to award them. She did so with a cordial smile and a bow to the winners. The Greater New York Athletic Association had scored the

Fort Worth Postal Clerk Who Was Injured Is Reported to Be on Way to Recovery

DENISON, Texas, June 4.—N. A. Terrell of Fort Worth, injured in the recent Frisco wreck near this city, has passed the danger line and will get well.

Mr. Terrell, who resides at 811 West Third street, is a brother-in-law of W. P. Lane, who, together with the young man's mother, went to Denison at once upon receiving news of his injuries.

Pasteur System Is to Be Used on Boy Bitten by a Vicious Cat at Waco

WACO, Texas, June 4.—Mrs. Tom O. Plunkett left tonight for St. Louis with her son, George, who was bitten yesterday by a cat supposed to be mad. The cat was bitten last week by a dog showing symptoms of rabies. The dog also bit Inez Keith and Darrel Daugherty, and when the cat showed signs of madness these children were immediately sent to St. Louis for the Pasteur treatment. The cat showed unmistakable signs of madness.

PLATFORM FALLS WITH BIG CROWD

Collapse of Temporary Structure During Athletic Meet in Chicago

CHICAGO, June 4.—Four persons were severely injured and a dozen others badly shaken up by the collapse of a temporary platform at Marshall field, University of Chicago, during the process of the athletic meet this afternoon. The platform had been erected just in front of the foot ball score board. It was crowded with people when, without warning, the beams gave way with a sharp crack and almost a half hundred persons were dropped twelve feet to the ground, in a heap.

Robert Murphy was pulled out of the heap of human beings and broken debris unconscious and with blood flowing from a number of wounds in his face. He had also his right knee cap broken.

A half dozen others were taken from the heap of wreckage and carried hurriedly to the dressing rooms which had been used by the contestants. Here dashes of cold water revived them and they returned to the field to watch the progress of the contests.

She Tried to Explode it by Pulling the Trigger, and Had the Weapon Brought Miss Epstein or some one in the audience would have been shot.

Miss Epstein went before Justice Everett and swore out warrants for the arrest of Miss Crescy on charges of assault with a deadly weapon and threats to kill. These were made returnable tomorrow and Manager Roche signed the bond required.

Back of the dramatic scene in front of the footlights is a story of domestic discord involving several persons.

R. L. Crescy, Miss Crescy's father, a life insurance agent, was sued a year ago by his wife for separate maintenance, and Miss Jennie Epstein was named as co-respondent.

Miss Crescy said tonight she had been goaded to desperation by the action of Miss Epstein in coming to the theater and smiling sneeringly at her over the footlights.

COMMISSION MEN AND CAR COMPANIES ENGAGED IN FIGHT

CHICAGO, Ill., June 4.—The investigation of the methods employed by the Armour Car company in handling the products of the Michigan fruit belt, which is now being made by the Interstate Commerce commission, in this city, is but the initial step of an inquiry into the affairs of this company, which will involve many of the larger railroads of the country.

According to the testimony of George F. Mead of Boston, vice president of the National League of Commission Merchants, this league will at once petition the Interstate Commerce commission to make an inquiry covering all the lines upon which the cars of the Armour company are used, not only in the shipment of fruit, but produce as well.

"The Armour interests today," said Mr. Mead, "have practically the control of the fruit and produce markets of the country, owing to the dual position which they

HOW TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN ESCAPED DREAD CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Catarrh Robs Women of Health and Beauty. Pe-ru-na Makes Women Healthy and Beautiful.

Miss Ellen Crawley, 241 S. Madison Avenue La Grange, Ill., writes: "For years I have been a sufferer with catarrh of the throat and larynx. I got hoarse on the slightest provocation, and my voice became weak and tired very easily. I could not talk for any length of time, and it was very annoying. I was very much discouraged, as nothing seemed to help me until a friend persuaded me to give Peruna a trial. I did not have much confidence in it, as everything else had failed me, but I tried it just to please my friend. My delight, therefore, may be imagined when I began to improve at once, and I have kept on improving until my voice is strong, and I am never hoarse now. Peruna has done a great deal for me."—Miss Ellen Crawley.

Miss Lydia Herziger, Grand Recorder of American Daughters of Independence, writes from Neenah, Wis., as follows: "I have used Peruna now for four years, each spring and fall, and it keeps me perfectly well and strong. I am able to continue working and do not have to take a three months rest, as I used to do every year. This is a great comfort to me, as I was not able to afford such a long rest. I find that it is a great preventive for colds and coughs and soon rids the system of all disease and is an admirable medicine. I can honestly indorse it."—Miss Lydia Herziger.

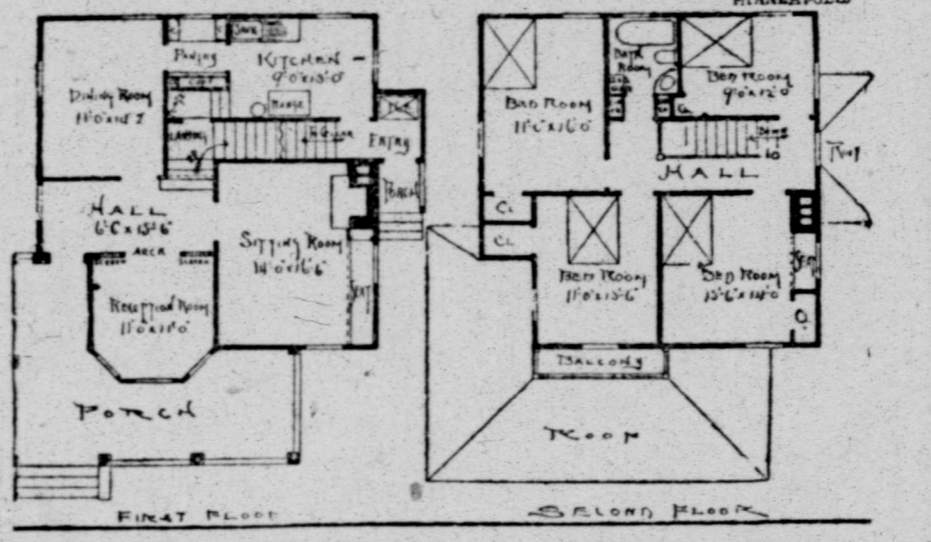

Thousands of Women Cured by Pe-ru-na of Annoying Catarrh.

Dr. Hartman has probably done more than any other physician toward popularizing a means of escape from the facial deformities, such as watery eyes, twisted nose, offensive breath, dry cracked lips, due to the ravaging effects of catarrh. He has made chronic catarrh a lifelong study. His remedy, popularly known as Peruna, is the most famous remedy for catarrh in existence. Probably there is not a man or woman, boy or girl, within the bounds of the United States that has not heard of Peruna. By far the largest majority have used Peruna. The multitude of people that have been cured of chronic catarrh by using Peruna can never be known. Many a girl has regained her faded beauty, many a matron has lengthened the days of her comely appearance by using Peruna. Peruna produces clean mucous membranes, the basis of facial symmetry and a perfect complexion. The women have not been slow to discover that a course of Peruna will do more toward restoring youthful beauty than all the devices known to science. While it is true that Peruna cures catarrh wherever located, yet it is advisable for every one to use Peruna as a preventive and not wait until catarrh has fastened itself in some part of the system. Peruna acts quickly and beneficially on the inflamed mucous membranes lining the different organs of the body. Thus it will cure catarrh wherever located. If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

A PRIZE DESIGN FOR A MODERATE COST HOME BY WALTER J. KEITH

There is an exceedingly practical and cozy modern home of moderate cost. While absolutely simple in its exterior treatment, nevertheless the effect in execution is satisfactory in the extreme and the entire house is one of economy in construction, giving the very best possible results for every dollar of expenditure. The interior arrangement is one that appeals to the artistic eye as well as that of the practical house-keeper. Instead of the usual hall, one enters a spacious apartment running crossways the house, in front of which is a pretty little reception room with columned archway connecting it with the hall. At the end of the hall is the wide opening into the sitting room with a fireplace in the latter room in full view. On the other side of the house is the entrance into the dining room and the staircase, the latter up to the first landing being of extra width, and while economical of construction, gives a very pretty effect. There is an open rail on top of the partition as shown on plans so that the effect of a closed-in stairway is largely lost and really the effect of a half-open stair secured, without the usual attendant proportionate increase of expense. The pantry is of good size and well fitted up and through one corner of it runs the clothes chute that goes from bath room to laundry in basement. The rooms on the second story are well arranged, convenient of access and of good size, as are the closets. There is a double linen closet on each side of the hall, just at entrance to bath room. There is a very good attic reached by a stairway going up from the main stair and by increasing the pitch of the roof a little there would be space there for a couple of good rooms to be finished off if desired, still leaving ample storage space. The little balcony on porch roof adds to the effectiveness of the design and gives a place for airing bedding, same being reached from the front chamber window. Hardwood floors are intended throughout and hardwood finish in hall, reception room, sitting room and dining room, that is, oak or birch. There is a full basement under the house and a hot air furnace and ventilating system are included in the cost estimate, which, for the house complete, exclusive of decorating, storm sash, screens, gas fixtures and other items of furnishing, $2,350. This estimate of cost is based on the prices quoted below. If prices were higher in any locality in which it is desired to build this house, the cost would vary accordingly. Another element of variation is found in the keen competition or lack of it among contractors and builders and material men. Below is the schedule used in making up the estimate, as above noted: Excavating, per cubic yard, $ .10 Rubble stone work, per perch (16 2/3 cubic feet) 1.50 Brick laid in wall, per 1,000 9.00 Lathing and plastering, per yard, two coats 1.34 Dimension lumber, per 1,000, No. 2 11.00 Flooring (No. 2, D. & M. fencing) 12.00 Sheathing boards (6-inch, D. & M. No. 3) 10.00 Shingles, "C" 2.25 Siding, "C" 1.70 Finish lumber $20.00 to 30.00 Tin work, per square 6.00 Carpenters, per day, 9 hours 2.25 Masons, per day 3.00 Common labor, per day 1.50

TROOPS GO WEST TO FILL RANKS OF REGIMENT

New Recruits of the Army Are En Route to California to Take Places of Soldiers Who Have Dropped Out. In charge of Captain J. H. McRae and First Lieutenant Bernard Sharp 105 men, new recruits for the United States army, passed through Fort Worth last evening from Cincinnati to Fort Bliss near El Paso via the Texas and Pacific. The men are to be taken to that fort to fill the ranks of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, which has just returned from the Philippines. The recruits were gotten together at the Columbus barracks and are a fine lot of men. Captain McRae, the officer in charge, while strolling the platform at the depot last evening presented a noble appearance in the new style regulation dress uniform. These uniforms for officers are much different from the old ones and make an officer a fine looking man. The captain is a graduate of the class of '89 from West Point, and every inch a soldier. He has seen service in the Philippines and also in Cuba. He looks after the welfare of his men and is one of them when not on duty. The lieutenant was promoted for gallantry while in the eastern possessions. He was at that time a sergeant of artillery and while on the field was severely wounded in the right limb. For that act he was promoted to a second lieutenant and through his own efforts and hard study successfully passed the examination for promotion to his present rank. The men are traveling in three Pullman coaches. One of the men, while on the trip was taken sick with measles and was left behind. Another one of the recruits just before embarking on the train attempted to escape from the barracks and was shot and killed by a guard.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease. It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition. It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs, disturbs the stomach. It is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine has wrought the most wonderful cures of all diseases depending on scrofula or the scrofulous habit. Hood's Pills are the best cathartics.

Muzzle or Kill All Dogs Here IS NOW URGED

City Physician Says With the Coming of the Hot Weather There is Danger That Rabies Will Affect Canines. With the coming of hot weather another phase has been added to the dog question, which has heretofore been the subject of protest only because of the nuisance in having a large number of the canines running at large. Speaking of the matter yesterday, City Physician Chambers said: "Some action will have to be taken shortly in regard to the dogs running at large about the streets. Hydrophobia has already attacked animals in a number of cities and with the hot weather coming it is likely to break out here at any time. It is scarcely possible to realize how great the danger would be in the event of its breaking out in this city with the large number of stray dogs running about. One animal attacked would soon communicate the disease to others and it would spread so rapidly that persons on the street would be frequently exposed to the attack of a mad animal. "Some action should be taken at once to see that all dogs running at large are muzzled. This the owners would be perfectly willing to do, I believe, and the stray dogs having no owners should be impounded and killed in some humane way." In addition to the complaint made by Dr. Chambers from the point of safety, numerous complaints are being made daily of the large number of stray dogs in the city, in some parts of the city property owners declaring it is almost impossible to secure a good night's sleep because of the howls of the dogs. Under the present city regulations the police officers are empowered to shoot any dogs discovered to be suffering with hydrophobia or displaying a likelihood to bite persons. This regulation, however, it is argued is efficient as a preventative of an epidemic only to a limited extent, the chances being that before an animal suffering from the disease was discovered it would have bitten many other dogs. The expenses of impounding and killing the stray dogs, it is said, would be paid by the fees of citizens whose dogs were found at large unmuzzled and who could be required to pay a certain sum and to agree to muzzle their dogs in order to have them returned. While hundreds were never absent or more never tardy, it remained for 153 pupils of the public schools to suffer under the extraordinary classification of neither being absent or tardy, or dismissed too early. The list is given by building, as follows: School No. 1.—Frederick Quarles, Eric Brann, George Conner, Maurice Butts, Louise Rutheger, Lula Applegate, Roy Cape, Dorothy Logan, Elmer Brown, James McKee, Helen Rathgeber. ## The Purchasing Power of a Dollar Is Increased Two-Fold In This Great Inventory Sale

Our fixed determination to make this Sale the Greatest Money-Saving Event in the History of this Store has resulted in a continuous reduction of prices that is without parallel in this city, and where in almost every instance, the purchasing power of a dollar has been increased two-fold

That the advantages to be secured in making selections from these magnificent assortments are unequalled, is a fact to which every woman should give the most careful consideration. That our former prices were always lower for same qualities than elsewhere; that our regular values are always the highest—are reasons which have attracted such widespread interest to this sale. Having taken goods from our higher priced lines and added to those advertised last week, is a feature which should make the attractions of the next few days even of greater importance than they were before, and one which should excite the liveliest selling we ever had.

Sale of Tailored Suits, Shirt Waist Suits and Costumes

The Garments which have been taken from our higher priced lines and added to those advertised last week, make this sale unquestionably the most remarkable in this section. The beautiful Tailored Suits, suitable for traveling and street wear; the handsome Silk Suits; the dainty Wash Shirt Waist Suits, together with the most magnificent selection of Evening Costumes we have ever shown, are not to be equaled in point of quality and value, at the following reduced prices:

Tailored Suits in cheviot, etamine and fancy mixtures—usual prices from $15.00 to $35; special at $12.75.	Taffeta and Pongee Silk Shirt Waist Suits—usually priced at $18.50 to $21.50; specially priced at $16.50.	Percale, white and fancy Lawn Shirt Waist Suits—regularly priced up to $5.00; special sale price $2.98.
Tailored Suits, in sicilian, etamine and voiles—usual prices ranged from $25.00 up; specially priced at $15.00.	Linen, Lawn, Galatea and fancy cotton Shirt Waist Suits—usually priced at $6.50 to $10.00; special at $5.00.	Magnificent Evening Costumes (Imported productions)—regular prices range from $40 to $125; special at half price.

Exceptional Value Giving In Summer Shirt Waists

Both the beautiful styles and the remarkable lowness of the prices in each of the lines presented at this sale, make an opportunity exceptional in its value-giving. Following are two very special items which are deserving of unusual attention.

Shirt Waists at 50c A very practical style in India Linon, with large tucks and hemstitching in front. The usual price is 75c; special Inventory Sale Price 50c.	Shirt Waists at $1.50 Sheer White Lawn Waists, some with bertha effect, trimmed with bands of Tenerife embroidery, laces and insertion, regular $2.00 values; special Inventory Price $1.50.

FORT WORTH LOSES TO PARIS IN A SLOW GAME

Local Players Could Not Solve the Speed and Curves of Selby, Who Comes From the Red River Town

For nine innings, which seemed long notwithstanding the record of the watch, Fort Worth strove with some appearance of energy to solve Selby's speed and curves. The result of their labors was the sum of two hits, both by Reitz, and one of them a two-bagger.

Paris hit on Jackson—some—and what they could not accomplish by batting. Fort Worth helped along by a bunch of errors. In giving an exhibition of how the game should not be played several of the home team took part.

DIGGEST CROWD IN NEW YORK EVER AT BALL GAME

Cincinnati and the New Yorkers Play a Tie Game in Eleven Innings—No Change in Race for Pennant

NEW YORK, June 4.—Before the largest assemblage that has been seen on a baseball grounds in the history of the national game, the Cincinnati and New York teams played an eleven-inning tie game on the polo grounds this afternoon.

WON IN THE TWELFTH BOSTON, Mass., June 4.—The St. Louis Nationals won out in the twelfth inning this afternoon through stupid work in Boston's center field and Delahanty's wild throw to first. Nichols was hit freely, but he pitched with great confidence. The score: R. H. E. Boston . . . 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 1—2 5 4 Cincinnati . . . 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—2 10 1

HEAD FINISHES AT GRAVESEND TRACK IN TWO EVENTS

Were Three Stake Events, and at the Wire It Was a Heart Disease Performance in a Couple of Them

AMERICAN LEAGUE

GLADE IN THE BOX ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Frank Glade, the Brown's young giant who beat the veteran "Cy" Young, his last out, was in the box today when the Browns and Athletics met for the second of their four game series. He was "piled" for the Philadelphiaans, the score being 5 to 2 in favor of the Athletics. The score: R. H. E. St. Louis . . . 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—2 8 9 Philadelphia . . . 3 1 0 0 0 1 0—5 10 0

PITCHERS' BATTLE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 4.—The Boston Americans won a great pitchers' battle today by bunching three of their six hits, with a base on balls and a stolen base in the sixth. The fielding of both teams was brilliant in the extreme. The score: R. H. E. Cleveland . . . 1 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—2 8 2 Boston . . . 0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0—3 6 1

SHUT OUT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 4.—Townsend pitched finely and shut the Chicago Americans out, despite the fact that the support was erratic at times. The White Sox held the bases full in the eighth with only one out, but failed to score. Moran hurt his ankle and quit in favor of Cassidy. The score: R. H. E. Chicago . . . 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 8 0 Washington . . . 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2 8 0

COLLEGE GAMES

YALE AND PRINCETON

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 4.—Yale came within an ace of shutting out Princeton in their first game of the championship series at Yale field this afternoon, and but for a bad first inning would have done so with comparative ease. The score: R. H. E. Yale . . . 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 9 2 Princeton . . . 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—1 3 3

MAMMOTH WORLD'S FAIR HOTEL

Six Thousand Guests May Put Up at the Inside Inn, on the Grounds Rates From $1.50 to $5.00 Per Day

The location of the hotel is ideal. It is in the southeastern section of the World's Fair grounds, near one of the main entrances. Street cars to any part of the city pass the southern side of the Inn. The intramural cars, touching any section of the two square miles of exposition grounds, also pass the hotel on the south. It is within easy walking distance of the Cascade Gardens, the center of the great exhibit places.

HEAD FINISHES AT GRAVESEND TRACK IN TWO EVENTS

Were Three Stake Events, and at the Wire It Was a Heart Disease Performance in a Couple of Them

June 4.—There were three stake races down on the card for decision this afternoon and two of them produced head and head finishes. In the $12,500 Great American Stakes for 2-year-olds, Newton Beamington's Goldfinch colt, 5-year-old, was the favorite in the betting, but John E. Madden's Brittrisher, the shortest of heads for first money, while in the Broadway Stakes for 3-year-olds, last year's champion, High Ball, lost the big end of the purse by an eyelash, the Goughers stable's Bryn Mawr winning more because Lynx rode the better finish than because he was on the better horse.

Second race, Greater New York Steeple Chase, for 4-year-olds and up, two and a half miles.—The Ragged Cavalier, 159 (Hay), 3 to 1, won; Judge Phillips, 158 (O'Brien), 5 to 2, second; Flying Virginian, 151 (McNeill), 7 to 1, third. Time, 1:55.5.

Third race, Great American Stakes for 2-year-olds, five furlongs.—Sandy Andy, 122 (McNeill), 10 to 1, won; Wino, 123 (Hicks), 10 to 1, second; The Chaimant, 115 (Shaw), 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:02.5.

Fourth race, Broadway Stakes, for 3-year-olds, mile and a sixteenth.—Bryn Mawr, 114 (Hay), 7 to 1, won; High Ball, 125 (Hildebrand), 11 to 5, second; Dolly Spanker, 112 (O'Neill), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:19.1-5.

Fifth race, selling, for 2-year-olds, five furlongs.—Sandy Andy, 122 (McNeill), 10 to 1, won; Wino, 123 (Hicks), 10 to 1, second; The Chaimant, 115 (Shaw), 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:02.5.

Sixth race, selling, for 3-year-olds and up, mile and a sixteenth.—Stuyvesant, 115 (Hildebrand), 7 to 1, won; Sheriff Bell, 116 (Shaw), 8 to 5, second; Silverdale, 101 (Callahan), 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:51.4.

Seventh race, seven furlongs.—Dorinda, 87 (Perkins), 20 to 1, won; Martine, 88 (Anderson), 3 to 1, second; Orpheum, 106 (Wallace), 8 to 1, third. Time, 2:23.

Eighth race, one and one-fourth miles.—Broadley, 102 (Callahan), 5 to 1, won; Goldsmith, 103 (Perkins), 10 to 1, second; Lench, 102 (Perkins), 4 to 1, third. Time, 2:22.

Ninth race, one and one-half miles.—Brookside, 102 (Callahan), 5 to 1, won; Yossan, 101 (Shilling), 5 to 2, second; Campanaro, 102 (R. Murphy), 13 to 5, third. Time, 1:13.3.

Tenth race, one and three sixteenth miles.—Bar Le Duc, 108 (Lowe), 6 to 5, won; Banana Cream, 88 (Kelly), 8 to 1, second; Amistad, 90 (Barnett), 20 to 1, third. Time, 2:10.3-4.

Eleventh race, seven furlongs.—Little Pirate, 96 (Fisher), 5 to 1, won; Lou Beech, 107 (Lowe), 8 to 5, second; Peartinder, 109 (Shilling), 5 to 2, third. Time, 1:35.5.

Twelfth race, one mile and 20 yards.—Boonager, 102 (Burton), 6 to 1, won; Will Shelly, 111 (Murphy), 9 to 5, second; Big Injun, 111 (Shilling), 5 to 2, third. Time, 1:51.3-4.

Thirteenth race, one mile and 20 yards.—Boonager, 102 (Burton), 6 to 1, won; Will Shelly, 111 (Murphy), 9 to 5, second; Big Injun, 111 (Shilling), 5 to 2, third. Time, 1:51.3-4.

RESULTS AT HAWTHORNE HAWTHORNE, June 4.—The weather was cloudy today and the track was heavy. The summaries: First race, seven furlongs.—Stroller, 105 (Larsen), 3 to 5, won; Beau Ormondo, 110 (T. Lawrence), 13 to 5, second; Sioux Chief, 103 (A. Booker), 15 to 1, third. Time, 1:34.2-5.

His Victory At Sea.....

By ANNE WARNER Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

During lay in his chair. The three chairs next to him were vacant. They were labeled in order "Mrs. Gabelle," "Miss Gabelle," "Miss Susan Gabelle."

In the middle of the afternoon a pretty girl in a red Tam O'Shanter came up and stood by the rail. Durant found himself looking at her over the top of his book and wishing that she might be Miss Gabelle.

She went inside directly she saw him bearing off the first chair, and Durant lost not a minute in detaching himself from his rugs, to the end that when the steward returned he might say, with an imitation of the initiative proceeding: "Take mine too."

When Miss Gabelle reappeared she looked prier than ever, and as she at once opened a book and became wholly absorbed in it Durant decided that the best thing for him to do was to go to sleep with his face turned in her direction and so be able to look at her all that he wanted to.

When Miss Gabelle had gone to sleep with his face turned in her direction and so be able to look at her all that he wanted to. After awhile he decided that she was quite the prettiest girl that he ever had seen and that he must know her somehow.

She noticed it, though, and strove in vain to adjust a bit of embroidered coat collar so as to shut off a growing gale. Her efforts proving futile, she summoned a sailor who was busy lashing something to something else and opened her purse.

"Please carry these three chairs out of the wind," she said, smiling on him, and then she went inside.

"Here, take my chair, too," he said to the man, smiling on him in the stupid way that men reserve for other men. The sailor grinned the omniscient grin that deck hands acquire, pocketed his fee, and the last two chairs went away together in a friendly manner as the first two had done.

AT DENVER TRACK

DELMAR RACE TRACK, St. Louis, June 4.—There were three stake races down on the card for decision this afternoon and two of them produced head and head finishes.

First race, five furlongs.—Franco, 104 (Anderson), 5 to 1, won; Joe Kelly, 107 (Wallace), 15 to 1, second; Platton, 107 (Foley), 3 to 5, third. Time, 1:11.

Second race, six and one-half furlongs.—French H., 114 (Dale), 10 to 1, won; Meron, 112 (McMullin), 8 to 1, second; Dr. Kier, 115 (Wallace), 2 to 1, third. Time, 1:32.2.

Third race, one mile and seven furlongs.—Jordan, 101 (D. Wall), 2 to 1, won; Jack Young, 109 (Wallace), 6 to 1, second; Neverish, 96 (Perkins), 12 to 1, third. Time, 1:58.5.

Fourth race, one and one-fourth miles.—Broadley, 102 (Callahan), 5 to 1, won; Goldsmith, 103 (Perkins), 10 to 1, second; Lench, 102 (Perkins), 4 to 1, third. Time, 2:22.

Fifth race, seven furlongs.—Dorinda, 87 (Perkins), 20 to 1, won; Martine, 88 (Anderson), 3 to 1, second; Orpheum, 106 (Wallace), 8 to 1, third. Time, 2:23.

Sixth race, one and one-half miles.—Brookside, 102 (Callahan), 5 to 1, won; Yossan, 101 (Shilling), 5 to 2, second; Campanaro, 102 (R. Murphy), 13 to 5, third. Time, 1:13.3.

Seventh race, one and three sixteenth miles.—Bar Le Duc, 108 (Lowe), 6 to 5, won; Banana Cream, 88 (Kelly), 8 to 1, second; Amistad, 90 (Barnett), 20 to 1, third. Time, 2:10.3-4.

Eighth race, seven furlongs.—Little Pirate, 96 (Fisher), 5 to 1, won; Lou Beech, 107 (Lowe), 8 to 5, second; Peartinder, 109 (Shilling), 5 to 2, third. Time, 1:35.5.

he had to drop her feet as if they scorched his hands. But he was richly rewarded for his effort, for the niece became freshly pink, smiled and remarked something about the weather, a species of conversational opening through which, on shipboard, men fall frequently and lose themselves forever.

"I think so, too," said Miss Gabelle. "After you are through with the tea won't you take our three chairs around there?"

"Gawiss!" said the man and spun away. Miss Gabelle drank her tea with great breeziness, so to speak, and then went below to see how her aunt was surviving. She smiled on Durant as she passed, and hope foamed high on the surf of his heart wave.

"Dear me, so we must," she answered, beginning to prepare to rise. He sprang to her aid, he extricated her from her rugs, he hailed a deck hand, and he pointed out his work to him.

"I'm so glad I have met you," she said as they went inside (together this time). "I've been dreading such a long, lonely voyage."

Durant looked down at her, and she looked up at him. They both smiled, and she blushed. Is it necessary to say more? Try and guess the outcome.

These appear to me incontrovertible and accurate conclusions—that the Roman streets are damp and moldy where they are not burning; that the modern architecture is fit only to put on a Twelfth cake in sugar (e. g., that the old architecture consists chiefly of heaps of tufo and bricks; that the Tiber is muddy; that the fountains are fantastic; that the castle of St. Angelo is too round; that the capitol is too square; that St. Peter's is too big; that all the other churches are too little; that the Jews' quarter is uncomfortable; that the English quarter is unpicturesque; that Michael Angelo's "Moses" is a monster; that his "Last Judgment" is a mistake; that Raphael's "Transfiguration" is a failure; that the Apollo Belvedere is a public nuisance; that the bills are high, the malaria strong, the dissipation shameful, the bad company numerous, the sirocco depressing, the Tramontana chilling, the Levante parching, the Ponente pelting, the ground unsafe, the politics perilous and the religion pernicious. I do think that in all candor and reflective charity I may assert this much—Letter to Charles Eliot Norton in Atlantic.

At a meeting of ministers the other day one of them laid great stress on the importance of considering the sort of audience one is going to address. "I once lost a chance to preach an effective sermon by using the stereotyped beginning, 'I am glad to see so many of you present this morning.' The congregation burst into a laugh. You see, they were prisoners in a state penitentiary, and the poor fellows had to be present."

"This brought forth another story from one who for some years was chaplain of a penitentiary. He had decided to remove from the town and take a charge elsewhere. "This is my last Sunday here, and I'm sorry to leave you," he told his congregation of stripes.

After the sermon one of the prisoners stepped forward and shook his hand. "This is my last Sunday, too, parson," he said. "But I can't say, as you did, that I'm sorry to leave."

THE DRUG STORE SITTER

[Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis.]
I have never been really envious of Astor, Gould, Vanderbilt or Rockefeller and their millions, but there is one man whose position in life I have always coveted—the drug store sitter.

The drug store sitter makes himself at home from the first hour. That's what he's there for. He's always sure of a good fire in winter and a reasonably cool place in summer. It's a place where he can find others and be found himself, and there is no office rent to pay.

Then, too, a druggist is always receiving almanacs and circulars worthy of the closest perusal, and if there be a dearth of reading matter the first woman who comes in after paregoric is only too glad to give the gossip of the neighborhood.

In about two weeks after his first call the sitter begins to call the druggist "Doc," and to feel at home behind the counter and be ready with advice, and from thence on he is as much of a fixture as the sponge basket or the soda fountain. It is about a month before the general public reaps any benefit. Then the sitter tears himself away from the drug store long enough to show up at the grocery and impress the men sitting around on the cracker and sugar barrels with his dignity and greatness. They are ready to be impressed.

A certain reverence is always felt for a drug store and some of this must naturally descend to the sitter. He knows his gait. He looks wise and waits to be asked about business. There is pride in his tones as he replies that business is booming, and he lies like a trooper about the daily cash receipts to add to his own dignity. He feels the respect in every mind, but the climax comes when somebody asks him if he can suggest a remedy for indigestion, kidney complaint or insomnia. That's what he's been waiting for, and he assumes all the dignity and gravity of a doctor as he glibly refers to calomel, chloroform, citral, lanolin, lysocline, salol and a dozen other things he has jotted down and committed to memory.

In another month the sitter has a recognized standing in his neighborhood as a medical man. He is not a regular doctor, of course, but it is argued that he couldn't sit around a drug store for a month without picking up lots of pointers. He is consulted regarding fevers, warts, wens, cold sores, dandruff, sore heels, headaches, sore throats and coughs, and it is declared awfully good of him when he volunteers to run in and see a baby with the colic or a boy who has been swallowing peach stones.

He is given dozens of opportunities every week to talk about nux vomica, hypophosphates, alkaloids, salicylates and chlorides, and it's all the same to his hearers whether he gets them right or wrong end to. He may have been considered a scrub sort of a man before becoming a sitter, but after a time public opinion undergoes a change, and men take pains to brag of his smartness and boast that they always knew he had it in him.

I have always wished that I could get a druggist out into the woods and secure his candid opinion as to his sitter, but have never been able to accomplish the feat. No matter what they think, however, he has become an adjunct, and it would be dangerous to try to upset things. His position is well defined because he started in to define it himself.

If he is the right sort of brand, he makes all customers feel glad that they didn't go to the carpenter shop for their prescriptions or to the blacksmith shop for their patent medicines. He is cheerfully willing to advise, and his personal experience with pitch plasters, hot water bags and consumption cures is both interesting and valuable to a man who wants to live out his allotted years.

For the first few weeks the sitter is rather in awe of the doctors who drop in, but contact soon puts him on a familiar footing. He has no diploma and can't practice; but, having got on to the contents of most of the bottles, he is imbued with a fraternal feeling and can be made a friend for life if called "Doc" in reply. Three months after his initiation he is ready to greet any physician entering the store with:

"Hello, Doc! Good morning to you! Got any interesting cases on hand today or want any advice?"

The doctors usually treat the sitter with something like contempt, but he gets his revenge on the druggist. In three months he thinks he owns the store; in three more he imagines he owns the druggist as well. Then he begins to suggest and advise and be aggressive, and it is a hard job for the customer to tell who is the actual head.

Only once in my life did I ever know a druggist to rebel against his sitter. The sitter had worn out his chair and accidentally broken his cuspidor and wanted them replaced. He also wanted a curtain at a certain window and the show cases wrestled around. To the great amazement, and probably to his own as well, the druggist replied that if the sitter didn't like things as they were he could move out on the sidewalk. There were five minutes of redhot conversation, and then the man of drugs went down into his boots and acknowledged his error. He wasn't forgiven at once.

It was two or three minutes before the sitter extended the hand of reconciliation and said:

"All right, Jim, we'll let it go this time, but don't never let me hear such an outbreak again. I'm not here for my own benefit, but for yours, and if I drop this store nine-tenths of your customers drop with me. Yes, I'll take sarsaparilla in mine." M. QUAD.

JAKE F. ZURN IS GIVEN A BETTER POSITION

Ticket Agent to Have Charge of the Freight Department as Well for the Texas and Pacific in This City

The announcement was made yesterday by the Texas and Pacific officials making Jake F. Zurn general agent of the freight and passenger department of the company in Fort Worth, a dual position following the death of the late commercial agent, J. T. Clements.

The duties of both the freight and passenger department now devolve upon Mr. Zurn, dating from June 1, although the appointment was not made until yesterday.

Arthur Chilton will continue in the position of assistant passenger agent, while Mr. Zurn's assistant in the freight department will be Louis Malaga, who filled the same position under Mr. Clements. The giving to Mr. Zurn of the position of freight agent by the Texas and Pacific is a fitting recognition of his ability and faithful service to the company the past twenty-seven years, the length of time which he has been connected with the company. Seventeen years of this period have been with the road in Fort Worth, he began service with the Texas and Pacific years ago as station agent and telegraph operator at Mosquito and later was transferred to Longview. When the road was extended from Fort Worth to El Paso, Mr. Zurn was given the position of city passenger and ticket agent at Fort Worth, where he has remained ever since.

There is no railroad man in the city more popular and with more friends than Jake Zurn. The Telegram congratulates Mr. Zurn and the Texas and Pacific company for so wise an appointment.

A LINE TO ST. LOUIS

The St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado, a part of the Rock Island system, will be opened for business today, June 5. Through train service has been arranged via this new route from Texas points over the Rock Island, and passengers from this state will be carried by the Rock Island direct to the rail grounds in St. Louis. The service will be motor and first-class in every particular. The road bed is said to be one of the very best in the United States. The route it is claimed by the management will prove to be an important factor in east and west travel, as well as travel from the south via Kansas City as a gateway. Aside from its effectiveness in the transportation field between Kansas City and St. Louis, its relations with the Rock Island system, in connection with which its train schedules will be arranged, give it a wide western field. Comprehensive through car schedules, extending to Colorado, California and the southwest are being planned.

EXCURSION TO CUBA

The announcement in yesterday's issue of a special steamship excursion from New Orleans to Savannah, Ga., was an error. This should have read from New Orleans to Havana, Cuba. It is an excursion arranged by the Houston and Texas Central and Southern Pacific for the benefit of their friends wishing to visit the island of Cuba. The rate from Fort Worth is $50.00 for the round trip. This rate includes meals and berth on the steamer. The limit of tickets will be sixty days. As the number that can be accommodated on the steamer is limited, it would be well for parties intending taking advantage of this low rate to make reservations at an early date as possible. Tickets will be held for sale leaving Fort Worth June 15, and reservations may be made at Houston and Texas Central city office, this city.

AN IMPORTANT HEARING

The investigation of the interstate commerce commission at St. Louis, June 5 of the charges made by the railroads for cattle shipments, is considered among railroads and cattlemen to be the most important hearing of the kind held in a long while. The cattlemen allege that they are paying entirely too high a rate, while the railroads on the other hand assert that the charges are not exorbitant and are in harmony with prevailing conditions. The latter hold that increased wages and the very much larger tonnage of general freights justify the increase of rates now prevailing. Stockmen claim they will be able to show that the rates are unjust and should be modified. Consequently the ruling of the interstate commerce commission on the pending matter is of vital interest to both sides. Newton H. Luster of the Rock Island left Fort Worth yesterday over the Frisco for St. Louis to be present when the

BETTER TIMES

Come After from the Food Change.

"A few years ago I found that my digestion was much the worse for white bread, hot griddle cakes, and fried dishes, and I suffered a feeling of languor which showed that something was wrong. Admitted to this was acidity of the stomach, flatulence and increasing discomfort after meals and worst of all, frequent nausea.

"Believing that I was doomed to dyspepsia and realizing that when health is gone life is hardly worth living I began to look around for relief before it was too late.

"A little study of the subject showed me that if all that was claimed for Grape-Nuts was true this was what I needed. So I began a careful test with Grape-Nuts and soon found that I got all the good results that were promised, being quickly changed from a half sick to a well man. The discomforts and distress after eating, the sluggishness, and other symptoms I have named all rapidly vanished and in their place returning health brought back to life its old time zest, and I tell you there's no feeling in the world half so good.

"I know once more what it is to go through the day without ever knowing what it is to have a stomach until a good healthy appetite comes around at meal times. My flesh and weight have gradually increased and I have gained much in brain power, an important point in my case for I depend largely upon my pen for a livelihood.

case is called. Other representatives of local railroads have already gone to St. Louis.

The south Texas railroad representatives passed through this city last evening for St. Louis. In the party was Freight Traffic Manager H. A. Jones, Manager W. G. Van Vleck of the Southern Pacific and Auditor Parker of the Southern Pacific Steamship lines.

The railroads are prepared to make a stubborn fight. The hearing will likely consume several days.

KATY GEORGETOWN EXTENSION

The date for the opening of the Katy's Georgetown extension to Austin has been repeatedly set, but, as often changed. Now comes the statement from Chief Engineer Petheram of the Katy that the line will surely reach the state capital June 15.

The construction gang is now within five or six miles of Austin and is laying the track at the rate of one mile a day. The completion of the line into Austin will be the occasion of a big celebration by the people of both Austin and Georgetown.

BARNHART'S SUCCESSOR ARRIVES

R. C. Hatfield, who succeeds George W. Barnhart as commercial agent of the Cotton Belt at this place, has arrived and assumed his duties yesterday. Mr. Hatfield has been the company's representative at San Antonio and has much to do with freight matters for the company in Texas, consequently he is quite familiar with this part of the railroad work.

AUDITOR OF MERGED LINES

J. E. Donahon has been selected as chief auditor of the merged lines of the Mexican government. He was formerly auditor of the International railroad. His headquarters will be at Mexico City. Mr. Donahon became connected with the International twenty years ago and has seen active service with that system since. Prior to that time he was in the employ of the old Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern running between Louisville and Memphis, the road which has since been purchased by the Illinois Central.

ANOTHER MEXICAN ROAD

The department of communications of the Mexican government has extended the concession granted for the construction of a railroad in the state of San Luis Potosi from the San Mateo station of the Mexican Central road to Jilita, to six months from May 13, 1905. The whole line is to be completed and in operation by May 13, 1905. The rest of the concession remains unchanged.

NARROW GAUGE PROJECTED

The second attempt to secure a concession for a new narrow gauge line to be built from the Cruz mines to Farall, Mexico, is being made. The projectors of the road claim that the construction of the one will be the means of opening up many valuable mines along the road that are now isolated and unable of being developed. Because of this showing it is likely the Mexican government will grant the concession asked.

The Santa Fe will on June 15 put on a new sleeping car service between Fort Worth and the World's Fair grounds. The route is via Kansas City and the Washburn railroad.

General Passenger Agent W. S. Keenan of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe railroad, is here from Galveston headquarters.

A. S. Adams of Mart, assistant claim agent of the International and Great Northern railroad, is a visitor in Fort Worth.

June 12, 13 and 14 the Houston and Texas Central will sell round trip tickets to La Fort (Sylvan Beach) at $2.75. This is an annual affair held by the United Sunday Schools of the state. Sylvan Beach is a delightful resort, and it is to be hoped that north Texas will be well represented at the assembly. Children under 5 years will carry free, and from 5 to 12 the rate will be $1.95.

A curious instance of the formation of artificial snow was witnessed in the town of Agen, in France, recently. A fire broke out in a sawmill when the temperature was 10 degrees below freezing point. The water thrown upon the fire was instantly vaporized, and, rising in the cold, dry air, was immediately condensed and fell as snow. With bright starlight and a strong northwest wind blowing the whirling snow above and the raging fire below, a brilliant spectacle was presented.

PRIMARY CONVENTIONS ARE HELD IN FORT WORTH

WHERE INSTRUCTIONS WERE GIVEN IT WAS FOR PARKER—IN THE ABSENCE OF INSTRUCTIONS DELEGATES ARE BELIEVED TO BE FOR NEW YORKER — CONGRESSMAN GILLESPIE HAS BEEN ENDORSED IN THE EIGHTH

Primary conventions were held in the wards of the city last night to elect delegates to the county convention to be held next Saturday to elect delegates to a state convention to be held in San Antonio to elect delegates to a national convention to be held in St. Louis by the democratic party to nominate candidates for president and vice president.

All of the wards did not instruct on the presidential race, but those which did make an expression were for Alton B. Parker. In wards where there were no instructions the delegates are known to be Parker men.

In the Eighth ward, the home of Congressman O. W. Gillespie, a resolution was passed endorsing the record of that congressman and recommending him to the district for renomination.

In the Fourth ward, the home of James Hays Quarles, a resolution was passed endorsing him for floral representative from the district composed of Cooke, Denton, Tarrant and Wise counties.

The First ward meeting was held in the fire hall, R. C. Armstrong acting as chairman and Drew Pruitt as secretary.

W. H. Ward, R. O. Killam and H. Brantley were appointed a committee to name ten delegates who were elected as follows: R. C. Armstrong, W. H. Ward, Henry Marlowe, Joe Laker, H. Brantley, John Ahern, Walter Scott, Virgil Parker and Louis Polhemus.

The delegation was instructed to vote as a unit. No instructions as to candidates were given.

B. L. Waggoner acted as chairman and Max Meyers as secretary of the Second ward meeting, which was held at 608 Main street.

Delegates were elected to the convention as follows: T. J. Powell, R. F. Williams, M. A. Spoons, William J. Williams, G. P. James, C. M. Templeton, J. F. Hovenkamp, H. C. Holloway, B. L. Waggoner, D. W. Humphreys, Bill M. Williams, J. F. Walker, Robert Littlejohn, John F. Bird and R. M. Wynne.

Instructions to vote as a unit with no directions as to candidates were given.

The democrats of the Third ward held a meeting last night in the new hotel building on the corner of Fifteenth and Calhoun streets. Judge W. R. Parker presided and J. A. Todd was appointed secretary.

After stating the purpose of the meeting Judge Parker made a motion that a committee of three be appointed to select the names of delegates for the county convention. The committee selected the following double delegation, which was approved: W. R. Parker, Robert Durrett, R. Chambers, Thomas Maben, J. A. Todd, W. R. Hurley, Louis Schnarr, R. C. Parker, Frank Williams, Samuel Groeck, A. Newby and Lester Branch.

After the selection of delegates the following resolutions were read and adopted: We, the democratic citizens of the Third ward of the city of Fort Worth, in primary convention assembled, hereby adopt the following resolutions:

We believe Judge Alton B. Parker of New York to be a great man and a good citizen; that he is broad-gauged, conservative and safe; that he has always been loyal to democracy and its principles and possesses the qualities of mind and heart which go to make up the statesman and eminently fit and qualify him for the presidency.

Resolved, That the delegates from this ward to the county convention be, and they are hereby instructed, to cast their votes in the said county convention for no one as delegate to the state convention at San Antonio unless he be an unqualified supporter of Judge Alton B. Parker, and further that they cast their votes and use their influence in said county convention to secure instructions for Judge Parker as the choice of this county as the standard-bearer of the democracy in the ensuing national campaign.

The democrats of the Fourth ward met at the Central fire hall at 8 o'clock last night. James H. Maddox, chairman for the ward, presided and James Hays Quarles was elected secretary.

Chairman Maddox stated the object of the meeting, and after tellers were appointed, these were elected: John F. LeBarne, J. H. Maddox, S. T. Bibb, John P. Kling, R. H. McNatt, W. T. Maddox, Frank Bishop, Frank Jellicock, B. F. Sprinkle, Jim Williams.

On motion of W. T. Maddox the delegation was instructed to vote for instructions for Parker for president.

SEVENTH WARD The Seventh ward meeting was held at Mulkey & Daniel's store, H. L. Calhoun acting as chairman and J. S. McDonough as secretary.

On motion a committee consisting of J. S. McDonough and E. E. Lenoir was appointed to submit the names of six delegates to the county convention.

The committee presented the names of W. B. Paddock, R. L. Armstrong, J. P. Henderson, J. W. Sitt, H. L. Calhoun and W. E. Williams, their choice being adopted by the meeting.

Not a dissenting vote was cast upon the adoption of the resolution.

Hon. O. W. Gillespie was endorsed for re-nomination to congress and the following resolution adopted:

"Be it resolved, that the citizens of the Eighth ward of the city of Fort Worth in primary convention assembled do heartily endorse the course and record in congress of our present congressman, Hon. O. W. Gillespie, and recommend to the citizens of Tarrant county and this congressional district as a man well qualified for the high position he now fills, and in every way worthy of their votes, which we beseech for him for re-election. Signed, E. C. Orrick, M. B. Harris, R. M. Irvin, committee."

NINTH WARD The Ninth ward meeting was held at the court house with J. H. Thrasher as chairman and C. T. Prewett as secretary.

The following delegates were chosen: Q. T. Moreland, William Capps, J. H. Thrasher, Jim O'Dowd, Sam Wilkinson, Millard George, F. E. Albright, Dr. George Jackson, John Dawson and Theodore Mack.

Instructions to vote as a unit with no directions as to candidates were given.

NORTH FORT WORTH The primary held in North Fort Worth was very largely attended and was presided over by W. H. Sprinkle as chairman and I. T. Valentine as secretary.

The delegates were unopposed. The primary convention to nominate delegates to the county convention to meet at Fort Worth next Saturday met this afternoon with H. R. Wall, member of the county executive committee, in the chair.

A recess was taken to await the action of the committee. The following report was submitted: Delegates, H. R. Wall, A. M. Quayle, W. I. Weatherly, C. C. Estill, H. F. Saunders, C. E. Stewart, W. H. Lucas, G. T. Blendworth, J. B. Cat and S. A. Wynn.

The report was accepted and convention adjourned. Every delegate named is for Alton B. Parker.

THEY FAVOR PARKER SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 4.—Democratic primaries tonight favored Parker.

PARKER IS ENDORSED WACO, Texas, June 4.—At three out of five ward meetings held in the city tonight, to select delegates to the county convention, Judge Alton B. Parker was endorsed and there is no doubt from these evidences that Waco is almost unanimous for Judge Parker.

ALL CANDIDATES TALK AT GRAPEVINE GRAPEVINE, Texas, June 4.—The candidates for county and district offices spoke here today. Two of the candidates for county attorney were present, but the third was absent on account of a death in his family a few days ago, and the two present did not speak on that account.

PITIFUL STORY OF ESCAPED CONVICT WHO WAS CAUGHT

This Modern Jean Valjean Has Been Pardoned, But He Is Doomed to an Early Death From Consumption

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 4.—The romance of a modern Jean Valjean is coming to a sad ending. Harry Roberts, the escaped convict, after living an honest, upright life for four years, being recaptured and torn from his wife and friends and jailed, has been released, dying of consumption.

The story is a remarkable one. Eight years ago Harry Roberts, the son of a prominent and well-to-do family of Binghamton, N. Y., got into bad company and reckless with drink and temptation, committed burglary. He was arrested and sentenced to five years in the Elmira reformatory.

Disgraced, free from temptation and drink, and alone, he had an opportunity to think of his past life and he resolved when he was again free to become a new man. He was a model prisoner. He soon was made a trusty and three years and eight months of the irksome prison life passed. Then one day he, with others, was ordered to cut the grass on the prison lawn outside the walls.

Roberts, although he had but two weeks to serve to gain release on parole, joined the other two in their flight. A week after, a tall, good-looking young man arrived in the little town of Berwick near here, and was given work. He said his name was Morris McDale.

His bashfulness was at first notable. He did not like to be seen on the streets, he even for a time avoided his fellow workers. It was months before he ventured out and met some of the young people.

Among them was Mary Souder, a pretty dark-haired girl, to whom the lonely young man was especially attracted. He gained courage to take her about, to go walking with her, and it was not long before he knew that he loved her.

In the meantime his careful work at the shops had won him advancement and he was making good wages. He finally resolved to tell his wife, but when he was walking with her, and it was not long before he knew that he loved her.

There had been many hours, however, in which he had striven to gain courage to tell his wife, but each time he failed. When the baby came, the fear grew, for recapture would mean so much more to his wife and baby. As he hurried along there flashed before his eyes a face he had not seen for years and a voice he knew, cried, "Hello, Harry," with a marked note of surprise.

It was only for an instant, but he had been unable to prevent the look of recognition which came into his own eyes, and although he hurried on unheeding, he knew that the hour he dreaded had almost come. It was now a question of whether the friend of former days was still enough the friend to remain silent.

All that night he lay awake thinking, and in the morning by some pretext, he induced his wife to agree to move to New-scotek, a town across the river, where the chance of discovery would be less. But that did not save him. Several black days were followed by one blacker than the rest. Again he heard the old name and this time it was Officer H. M. Riffle of the reformatory, who said: "And so it is you after all this time, Harry."

"Yes—and it's mighty hard luck after four years," said the unfortunate man, hopelessly.

In the cell, he told his wife, and hardly had he finished, when her arms were about him and he was told that she loved him more than ever for the misfortune which he had to bear, and when she parted she swore she would use every effort to having him pardoned. His friends and the officials of the works entered heartily into the plan and since his arrest a flood of letters has poured in to the New York state authorities from Governor Odell down.

On Monday the glad news came that these efforts had been in part successful, and that Roberts, or McDale, would be released the following day. But with the glad news, there came to his wife the doubly sad information that her husband was released on an invalid's parole, that he had developed quick consumption and had not long to live.

That is the story, but there remains this to be told that his wife and friends, eager to have him back, have assured the New York state authorities that he will be cared for, and that, if there is any way to save his life, it will be saved.

MUST EITHER RECOGNIZE STATE NORMALS OR ABOLISH SCHOOLS

TRUSTEE WILLIAM CAPPS BELIEVES A CERTIFICATE SHOWING A PERSON HAS TAKEN THE PRESCRIBED COURSE SHOULD MAKE TEACHER ELIGIBLE - OPPOSES LOCAL RULES PRESCRIBING QUALIFICATIONS—NO CRITICISM OF PRESENT FACULTY, BUT LOOKS TO THE FUTURE

Trustee William Capps believes state normal certificates should be recognized or the schools abolished.

To have teachers in the public schools holding either diplomas from recognized normal schools, or having certificates showing that those hereafter applying for positions as instructors of the youth of the city have had at least three years' previous experience as teachers, is the aim of William Capps, a member of the school board. He contends that holding certificates should make them exempt from examinations.

Mr. Capps brought this matter before the board meeting last Friday evening and presented some very forcible arguments for its adoption, believing it best for the schools.

It is his aim to have the public schools possess the most efficient corps of teachers possible to procure, but he is inclined to believe that under the present system many of the ablest educators are being kept from teaching in the schools here. Mr. Capps was asked yesterday by a Telegram representative to more fully explain his stand on the subject.

"At the Friday night meeting and the last previous meeting I brought up this subject. I want our public schools to have the best prepared teachers it is possible to procure. The present faculty is excellent, but it is for the future instructors that I am asking that some attention be given. Later on when we must employ others we must be prepared to secure from the applicants those best fitted by education, experience and training, to fill these responsible positions. We owe such a course to our posterity and it is our duty to fulfill such a trust. As the city grows our schools must keep pace. The teacher of today may be fitted to teach now, but I don't say that such a person is not, but if one who expects to follow pedagogy as a profession and has prepared himself with a three years' course in a good normal school where teaching as an art is taught, I think he is as well fitted, if not better than the one having just the actual experience and his diploma should be honored.

"Texas has established several normal schools, where it takes from two to four years to complete the courses according to the branches of studies the student wishes to instruct in. These schools are maintained at considerable expense and we should recognize them. If the graduates turned out are not competent to successfully instruct in the different branches when their courses have been completed, then the normal schools are not a success and should be abolished.

"Under the present system an applicant who, as an illustration, may be of Yale or Harvard, or some first-class university, who is up in the branches desires to teach, comes here to take the examination and will undoubtedly fail because he will be expected to answer questions concerning local history and geography, of which he knows absolutely nothing. The schools will thus be deprived of the services of a highly educated person and one who would give the benefits of the best possible education to the rising youth. That is one reason why I contend that our present system is at fault.

"In many cities, not even of the size of Fort Worth, no teacher is allowed to teach unless he has had at least three years' previous experience or a normal school certificate. At Sherman such a rule is in vogue."

Mr. Capps stated that the graduates of the high school here, upon entering normal schools, could go into the Junior classes, but it meant much hard work and diligent study to keep up with the classes. He is also anxious to have preference given to graduates of the Fort Worth schools, as teachers, where they are properly equipped, but believes that a normal certificate should be taken for the same as three years' experience and that graduates of the best schools of the land should not be asked to pass examinations on local history and geography.

Mr. Capps thinks that the teachers in the public schools should be paid the highest salaries possible and made to feel that teaching is a profession worthy of the calling, the same as that of any other profession. He praised The Telegram's editorial of Friday in regard to higher salaries for teachers.

SUPERINTENDENT HOGG'S VIEW

Superintendent Alexander Hogg opposes the motion made by Mr. Capps. He says that under the system of salaries in this city there would be no equalized arrangement for paying a proper salary.

Superintendent Hogg contends that the normal certificates does not properly classify the teacher. They are paid now according to certain grades, and he directs attention to the rules of the board as they now exist, and claims that it is an equitable arrangement.

The rules now provide:

"All teachers who are applicants for election to positions in the Fort Worth public schools for the first time must hold valid certificates issued by the city board of examiners showing the branches in which they have been examined and the standing made in each branch.

"State first grade and state permanent certificates, diplomas from a Texas state normal school, the Peabody Normal College, Nashville, Tenn., and other diplomas valid as certificates by state law will be recognized by the board of trustees as valid for re-election only.

"There shall be three grades of certificates issued by the city board of examiners: (1) A primary or second grade certificate entitling the holder to teach either of the first four grades. (2) An intermediate or first grade certificate entitling the holder to teach either of the first seven grades. (3) A high school certificate entitling the holder to teach any grade in district or high school, and to serve as principal of any school.

"Temporary certificates of all these grades will be granted upon the following conditions: (1) An average standing of 75 per cent, provided mark on no branch is below 50 per cent, shall entitle the applicant to a certificate valid in the city public schools for two years. (2) An average standing of 85 per cent, provided mark on no branch is below 60 per cent, shall entitle the applicant to a certificate valid for four years.

"(1) Permanent high school certificates shall be granted to applicants who present evidence of having taught successfully in primary certificates heretofore issued, are recognized as valid for future elections, but the issuance of such certificates is hereby discontinued. (3) No applicant who is under 18 years of age shall be granted a teacher's certificate of any grade, and no applicant having failed to pass, shall be re-examined within three months of such failure."

SALARIES NOW PAID

The salaries now paid are according to this scale:

Assistant teachers, holding temporary primary certificate, first year $40 per month, second year $45 per month, third year $50 per month.

Assistant teachers, holding intermediate, permanent primary or state first grade certificate, first year $45 per month, second year $50 per month, third year $55 per month, fourth year $60 per month, fifth year $65 per month.

Assistant teachers holding high school or state permanent certificates, or diploma valid as a permanent certificate, first year $50 per month, second year $55 per month, third year $60 per month, fourth year $65 per month, fifth year $70 per month, sixth year $75 per month.

High school assistants, hold high school or state permanent certificates, or diploma valid as a permanent certificate, first year $50 per month, second year $55 per month, third year $60 per month, fourth year $65 per month, fifth year $70 per month.

Principals of ward schools holding certificates as in above classes, in charge of six-room schools, first year $90 per month, second year $95 per month, third year $100 per month, fourth year $105 per month, fifth year $110 per month.

Principals, in charge of eight-room schools, first year $100 per month, second year $105 per month, third year $110 per month, fourth year $115 per month, fifth year $120 per month, sixth year $125 per month.

The salaries of principals in charge of larger schools to be determined by adding $5 to the salary given for a six-room school for each additional room, but the salary of no principal shall exceed $125 per calendar month.

The advance of a teacher or principal from one grade of salary to the next higher shall be conditioned: Upon a year's satisfactory service in these schools; and upon the satisfactory performance of the duties set forth in the rules governing the teachers' institute.

In order to change the basis of salary from the primary grade to the intermediate grade, or from the intermediate grade to the high school grade, it shall be necessary for teachers to pass the city teachers' examination for that grade.

The pipe line from the Baku petroleum fields on the Caspian sea to Batum, on the Black sea, 569 miles, will be completed during 1905, and will double the transportation facilities for oil. A part of this line, 112 miles at the eastern end, has been in operation for several years.

According to a recent report of the geological survey the total anthracite production for 1903 was 65,351,713 tons. The average price of $2.50 brought the value up to $163,328,448. The number of men employed to mine the output, which amounted to 5,900,000 more tons than in 1902, was 159,462.

GAZAR READS THE

is heated and inserted between the paper and the wax, the seal is then removed, the flap is exposed to the action of steam, and the rest is plain sailing. The seal is then, of course, replaced on the spot it originally occupied. The most complicated task of all is the extraction of a letter without opening the envelope, a feat which it is sometimes necessary to achieve. It is then that the instrument somewhat resembling a stocking needle comes in handy. This is a piece of wire slit lengthwise, which is inserted underneath the flap, and made to catch the edge of the letter in the slit. That done, its shape allows it to be turned round and round, winding the letter into a sort of tube, which is then deftly withdrawn through the space between the flap and the body of the envelope. The most difficult stage of this delicate process is the replacing and unwinding of the message; but practice makes perfect.

"A letter from Paris was opened and read. It contained some mysterious allusions, and a passage which ran, 'I enclose I am sending you a banknote of 100 francs,' but when it was time to put the missive back the money could be found nowhere. The matter was reported to the head of the department, who, in vain, ordered a 100-franc note to be purchased at a money changer's, and inserted in the envelope. Soon afterwards the addressee received another letter from the same correspondent, saying: 'I must apologize for having forgotten to include the promised 100-franc note in my last letter. You will find it in this.' To which the addressee, perplexed by his friend's supposed carelessness in money matters, replied: 'You are quite mistaken. Your letter did contain the note in question, which I duly exchanged for rubles; so I hereby return the second 100 francs.'

"These things are but samples of the methods by which we are, let us say, 'spoofed' by the authorities, and they are samples of the least harmful part of the system. But they help to show you how little at ease we are, in spite of appearance to the contrary. This espionage is very irksome to the intelligent class, the peasantry, many of whom cannot read or write, it leaves indifferent. But the hardships which they in turn endure are infinitely more harrowing. That, however, is another story."

A STORM SWEEPS OKLAHOMA CROPS

One Person Was Killed by the Cyclone and Several Are More or Less Injured

HOUSES BLOWN DOWN

Buildings Are Unroofed, Windows Blown Out and Grain Beaten Into the Earth

LAWTON, O. T., June 4.—The storm that swept over the southwestern part of Comanche county yesterday afternoon and evening was especially severe in and around Walters, where about five inches of rain fell. The wind assumed something of the appearance of a cyclone, though the storm had no regular course. It appeared to jump from place to place, leaving the intervening spots untouched. Only one fatality resulted so far as is known. Mrs. Thomas Hayne, residing near Walters, was killed and the Hayne house was totally destroyed. Mrs. K. W. Gill was seriously injured internally and there is little hope of her recovery. The family of S. G. Brown were all more or less injured and their home totally destroyed. About thirty houses were damaged, but no business houses occupied were seriously damaged. The front of the store house of the Badger Lumber company was destroyed and two business houses owned by P. Van Alyke and I. Castlemann were damaged. About thirty farms in the southwest corner of Oklahoma visited the southwest section yesterday. Reports from every town in that section of the country indicate that hail has damaged the crops, wind has blown houses down and completely demolished many of them. Storms have inundated towns and great damage resulted. At Frederick and Manitow hall stones as large as a man's fist fell rapidly for an hour, beating the crops into the ground, unroofing buildings and breaking window lights. P. B. Cassel, a resident of the southwest, came to this city this morning and reports that hundreds of acres of crops of every description are destroyed in his section.

An interesting revelation of the personality of Hannah—Elias, the negress, is given by Mrs. Belle Marshall, who was for three years housekeeper for Mrs. Elias in the mansion at 236 Central Park West. She is a white woman.

WENT BACK TO RACIAL CUSTOMS

"Mrs. Elias," said Mrs. Marshall, "was a strange mixture of woman. With every luxury at her command, her favorite beverage was gin, which she used to buy down in the negro district around Fifty-third street. At times a longing for the food she used to eat when she lived in the heart of the black district would come over her and she would send a servant with a tin bucket to get a possum stew or a mess of fried fish from a corner lunch stand. Living in her house was certainly exciting. "She was soon after she moved into the Central Park West house that she employed the Japanese Kato as a butler. At that time she had a Japanese craze. There were thirty-five Japanese servants in the house, falling all over each other. Out of these she finally picked Kato as the best and let most of the others go. "This Kato had a powerful influence over her and it was not long before he dropped his butler's uniform and became a member of the household. She gave him the finest clothes and $10,000 worth of diamonds at one time. She sent him to the Paris exposition, with a valet. Anything he wanted he got. "SOMETIMES DROVE HIM AWAY "But sometimes she would get offended at him and her temper would get the best of her. She was not a pleasant person in the house at those times. I can tell you. She would order Kato to put on his butler's uniform again and abuse him up and down. Then Kato would sneak out of the house and disappear. "Her fits of temper would pass away quickly and she would send out for Kato again. He was wise and would stay away for days at a time, while she had servants out scouring New York for him. He would appear finally and be restored to her favor. "She had a perfect horror of being recognized as a negro woman and for that reason never went to a theater or any other public place. When she rode it was in a closed cab. I don't think she has been in a New York store in years. Because she was a negress she seemed to have a grudge against white women in general. "LIKED TO HUMILIATE WHITE GIRLS "Nothing gave her more delight than to humiliate a white girl. I have seen her hire white servants and after a few days call them to her and dress them up and hang jewelry all over them. The girls would be delighted, of course, and Mrs. Elias would tell them that she had decided to give them the clothes and the jewelry. Then she would order them to go out and show themselves to their people, but as soon as they got to the door her Japanese and negro servants would jump on them and take away the clothes and jewelry. She would laugh for hours at the memory of the screams and surprise of the white women she had fooled. "Mrs. Elias had no social friends. She never visited anybody. She used to give big dinner parties in her house to her servants, blacks and whites and Japanese. These dinners would be conducted with all the form and ceremony of the real affairs until the liquor got to circulating and then they were not so nice. "She was always buying books of etiquette, which she would have read to her although she could read herself. It was one of her delusions to imagine that she was something like Cleopatra.

SHE WANTS TO BE LIKE CLEOPATRA

NEW YORK, June 4.—It is reported that sensational developments will characterize the suit of John R. Platt against Hannah Elias for $685,385 when it comes to trial in the supreme court. Mrs. Elias will not run away. She will stay to fight the case to the end, and it is promised she will have stories to tell that will involve several prominent persons whose names have not as yet been mentioned in this case. In this connection it was stated by a man who had furnished much evidence with regard to this suit to the district attorney that when the true story is told the reading public will find in fact "truth stranger than fiction." Just what the nature of the startling disclosures will be is withheld at the present.

APRIL GRAFT LIST IS TWENTY-FOUR

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 4.—The April grand jury made its final report at 11 o'clock Saturday, handing in twenty-four new indictments of which twenty-one were "hold outs." The principal indictment was against Excise Commissioner James M. Selbert, charging him with conspiring with persons unknown to the grand jury for the hindering of the administration of the laws. The charge is a misdemeanor. The charge sets forth that on May 28, or thereabouts, Selbert, as the excise commissioner, having the power to issue dram licenses and having the regulation of dram shops in his power, entered into a conspiracy to hinder the proper administration of the law. Mr. Selbert appeared at the Four Courts Saturday and gave bond for his appearance at trial. Other indictments returned by the grand jury are against fifteen defendants who are alleged to have entered into conspiracy with Joseph Badaracco, to secure a license for a saloon at 3618 Finney avenue (opposite St. Avir's Catholic church). Excise Commissioner Selbert refused a license to the saloon keeper who several days ago sought in the civil division of the circuit court to mandamus the excise commissioner.

HEARST GETS THE EL PASO DELEGATES

Western Part of the State Instructs for the New York Newspaper Man

EL PASO, Texas, June 4.—The El Paso county democratic primaries were held tonight, and reports show that W. R. Hearst will have more than enough to send an all-Hearst delegation to the state convention at San Antonio when delegates are elected to the national convention. The county will also more than likely control the congressional convention, and name Hearst delegate from there to St. Louis. The Kansas City platform is endorsed.

PARKER GETS THREE PRECINCTS

BEAUMONT, Texas, June 4.—The county precinct conventions to select delegates to the state convention that selects delegates to the national convention was held this evening. The Parkertes captured three precinct conventions and the city, but the rest of the county goes uninstructed.

THE MAD MULLAH COMING UP AGAIN

LONDON, June 4.—Reports of the most ominous character are being received from Somaliland. They are to the effect that before many months the Mad Mullah will have become a formidable menace to the security of the British and Italian protectorates in that quarter. It is known that the Mullah has a means of securing at least an intermittent supply of weapons from the coast and that he is now maintaining a large force with which to make trouble.

DAMAGE AT BONHAM

DALLAS, Texas, June 4.—Reports at 11:30 tonight state that a cyclone did much damage near Bonham late tonight. It is impossible to tell whether any lives were lost. Telegraph wires are down and further details are not likely to be obtained tonight. The temperature is falling rapidly at Dallas, indicating a heavy fall of hail.

ELKINS MAY GET QUAY'S PLACE IN THE SENATE

Pennypacker Will Appoint Him to Get Him Out of His Way in Next Gubernatorial Contest in Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 4.—Persistent rumor in official circles today is to the effect that State Senator Elkins is the probable successor of Quay in the United States senate. In the last gubernatorial struggle, Quay was only able to land his cousin Pennypacker for the nomination after a long and stubborn fight against the supporters of Elkins and upon the final understanding that Elkins would be the next gubernatorial nominee of the party. The protest upon the part of the legal profession generally throughout the state has put a damper on Pennypacker's plans of elevating himself to a supreme court judgeship and therefore a second nomination for governor would be most attractive to the present incumbent. In order to accomplish this Elkins must be gotten out of the way, and it is rumored Pennypacker will appoint him to the vacancy in the senate with this object in view. Another strong point in favor of the Indiana county man is the fact that Philadelphia having Senator Penrose, the western part of the state is entitled to the other senator. With the recent factional troubles of the republican party in Pittsburgh, that city is unable to put forth strong claims, while Elkins, "the Indiana ploughboy," who carried almost a solid delegation from the agricultural districts seems the strongest man in the party outside Pennsylvania. Although non-committal, Durham is reputed to favor such a choice.

FINDS HUSBAND WITH BAD WOMAN

DALLAS, Texas, June 4.—Grace King, a woman of bad reputation, was shot to death in a wine room tonight by Mrs. Zeph Clark. The latter caught the forger in the company of her husband and fired four shots, two of which took effect and produced instant death.

The World's Champion Locomotive Builders

more, and this advantage in the matter of price is one of the things which is going to hold the Yankee locomotive builder to drive his English cousin out of the foreign markets, where he long reigned supreme, for it is coming to be generally admitted that there is more than a grain of truth in the contention of the American builders that the added cost of British locomotives represents what is virtually wasted time and money, since it adds nothing to either the endurance or efficiency of an engine.

In the international competition in locomotive building the Americans have the advantage of being able to purchase material in many instances much cheaper than it can be obtained abroad; but, on the other hand, labor costs fully 50 per cent. more. Then, too, the American locomotive is much heavier than the English; but the Yankee builders claim that with this increase in weight they gain in speed, traction power and endurance. Although the British locomotive builders are not yet ready to haul down their flag in the contest, the best possible evidence of Yankee victory is found in the fact that the American locomotive has been adopted as the standard of construction in practically every country in the world, and our builders, in addition to supplying a phenomenal domestic demand, have found opportunity to sell abroad more than $40,000,000 worth of locomotives, a single firm having filled orders from 29 different countries in one year.

From contemplating American superiority in locomotive-making, it is worth while to turn and view with equal pride the unique features of the largest institution in the world for the manufacture of locomotives, the famous Baldwin Works, of Philadelphia. Here is a concern in which the number of men employed exceeds that of any other private organization in the world devoted to a single industry, yet, despite the tendencies of this age of concentration, it is not a corporation but a good old-fashioned copartnership, conducted on the simplest lines. It has no bonds to float and no watered stock to sell. There is no dabbling in "side lines." The whole attention of the organization is devoted to building locomotives and locomotives only, and this is done so well that the institution is never able to meet the full demands for its products.

The plan on which this giant industry is operated should inspire any ambitious American boy. The Baldwin Works is conducted by seven partners, every one of whom began at the bottom and worked his way up to the top. Not one of these men ever put a cent into the firm, but for their hard work they have taken out millions of dollars in profits. Moreover, this plan is to continue. The superintendents and foremen of the present day are men who some years back started in the lowest positions, and the coming owners of this great property are now lads in overalls and jumpers, doing the most disagreeable class of work, without regard to dirt or grease, or, maybe, young men poring over drafting boards and office desks, without too close a watch on the clock for the approach of quitting time.

It is not too much to say that if any concern in America has hit upon the ideal solution of the labor problem it is the great Baldwin Works. The men work long hours—some of them toiling 12 hours a day for five days in the week—but there have never been any labor troubles in the entire half century of the firm's history. The 18,000 employees are paid more than $1,000,000 in wages each month, and the unknown workman does not have to go to the trouble of getting a check cashed. Each man on the payroll draws his pay in gold and silver coin.

Apprentices are taken into the Baldwin Works under three different classifications. The first class is made up of boys of 17, who agree to work four years, receiving 5 cents per hour the first year and gradually increasing to 11 cents per hour the fourth year, with a bonus of $125 at the close of the term. Second class apprentices are high-school graduates, who serve three years, advancing in wages from 7 to 11 cents per hour and winning a $100 bonus at the end. The third class is made up of young men over 21, college or technical school graduates, who receive higher wages than either of the other classes of apprentices and often quickly get positions as foremen.

The manufacture of locomotives is one of the most interesting of all industrial processes. It reaches a spectacular culmination in the erecting shop, where the efficiency not only of every department, but of every employe, is put to practical test. Every part of the iron monster must arrive at this rendezvous on time, and every part must fit into its proper place when it does arrive. A faulty piece of workmanship or a few minutes' tardiness may result in a costly delay.

The erecting shop of the modern locomotive-building plant is usually a huge structure several hundred feet in length, with a floor space aggregating several acres. The walls are largely of glass, and within the floor are ranged a great number of engine pits of brick masonry. There are innumerable devices to facilitate work, as, for instance, an ingenious arrangement for disposing of the smoke and vapor formed in firing up and testing locomotives. Most wonderful of all are the huge electric cranes which traverse the building, and serve not only to bring quickly to the shop cylinders, boilers, wheels, frames and other parts, but are even capable of lifting and carrying the heaviest locomotives clear of the other locomotives in the pits.

There are, of course, weeks of preparation in many departments preceding the final grand transformation scene, but this actual rearing of a giant locomotive in the erecting shop takes place in an almost incredibly short space of time. First, a pair of compound cylinders are brought to the erecting floor by one of the traveling cranes and are suspended over the track upon which the locomotive is to be built. They are deposited upon jacks, and with little delay the frames are placed in position. While the workmen are waiting for the boiler to arrive many minor fittings are applied, and when the great cylindrical structure for generating steam is brought in from the boiler shop and carefully lowered into place the mass begins to have the semblance of a locomotive.

All the while workmen hurry about applying more fittings, and then the biggest crane of all is summoned, and lifts the whole structure bodily into the air while the wheels, which have been in waiting on the forward end of the track, are rolled under the suspended machine. The engine now lacks only the cab, stack and pilot, and these, together with the running board and other minor details, are supplied in an incredibly short space of time. Touches of paint and varnish are quickly made here and there, and the locomotive is ready for service, the boiler and moving parts having been thoroughly tested meanwhile.

The boiler shop is one of the important branches of the modern locomotive-building institution. Steel plate is used exclusively in modern American locomotive boilers, although in many engines for foreign export the firebox is of copper. The steel is received at the works in sheets of various sizes and thicknesses, some of them being over 20 feet long, this size being required to form a ring for the very large boilers now in use. The punching and drilling of holes in the big sheets of steel is done solely by tools driven by separate electric motors, thus going away with the dangerous overhead belts of bygone days. The riveting is done by massive, but practically noiseless, machines, which are operated by hydraulic power. Whereas pressed and cast steel are now being very extensively used in locomotive construction, there is one part which is universally made of cast iron, and that is the cylinders. The largest American locomotive-building plant has a foundry that extends the length of a city block. There are three cupolas, each having a capacity of 50 tons of iron at one heat, and the amount actually used in this shop aggregates 125 tons per day. The cast iron used for cylinders is of the hardest grade obtainable. In locomotive work it is necessary to make some castings weighing as much as 3,000 pounds, and in the case of these big pieces the molten metal is poured into the molds from ladles each of which has a capacity of 12,000 pounds of iron.

The prize locomotives which are now being turned out at the big manufacturing plants in this country are radically different in design from those with which the public was familiar only a few years ago. As the size of the railroad engine has increased the number of driving wheels has grown from four originally to eight or ten, and in ratio as the number of driving wheels has increased the smokestack has been reduced in height. The tender has kept pace with the locomotive in its growth, and we now find products of the locomotive factories with a capacity of 6,000 gallons of water and 8,000 or 9,000 pounds of coal. An American locomotive of moderate size and modern construction costs from $10,000 to $12,000. The engine's British manufacture costs considerably

BY WALDON FAWCETT.

Of all the lines of industry along which the "American invasion" is being prosecuted in lands beyond the seas probably the most marvelous and the most picturesque is the monopoly which merit is winning for the locomotive builders of the United States. The all-conquering Yankees who are waging this business crusade are not merely gaining victories in one or two countries, but all around the world people of every color, race and nationality are unhesitatingly choosing iron horses made in the greatest of republics for the work of pulling the trains on their new steel-tracked high-ways.

Hurrying Russian soldiers across the frozen steppes of Siberia to the seat of war; moving the Mikado's fighters to the Japanese ports of embarkation; hauling Uncle Sam's cotton goods down through Egypt into the heart of Africa; climbing the Andes Mountains in South America, and transporting the inquisitive tourists to the very walls of Jerusalem we find twentieth century masterpieces of locomotive building which are the product of iron from the shores of Lake Superior, copper from the hills of Montana, coal from the mines of Pennsylvania and, lastly and most important of all, peerless American brains, backed up by superior Yankee brains and unequalled American hustle and energy.

Indeed, it is largely due to this self-same American hustle—the unique New World combination which gives quick results without sacrificing accuracy—that the Yankee locomotive builders have been enabled to win so decisive a victory in all quarters of the globe. In every recent war the American locomotive builders have set up a splendid, practical object-lesson advertisement for the way we do things on this side of the Atlantic. For instance, when General Kitchener was fighting his way into the Soudan he discovered, one fine day, that he needed locomotives and needed them quick. The best the British locomotive builders could promise was to deliver the sorely needed engines in something over a year. An American firm took the contract with a promise to make delivery in three months and as a matter of fact did deliver the goods 37 days ahead of time, winning a handsome bonus thereby.

The United States has been building locomotives for slower nations for something like two-thirds of a century past. The first one went to Austria and gradually the trade has grown until one firm alone has sent abroad a total of more than 4,000 locomotives. These engines, built in Yankee shops by Yankee labor, are in operation on pretty nearly every railway line on earth. For a long time England held out against the American industrial onslaught. It would be virtually "carrying coals to Newcastle" to take foreign-built locomotives to John Bull's domain, but in the end even the United Kingdom had to surrender and an American firm not long since completed an order of 70 locomotives for British railways.

JUDGE REAGAN IS FIRST VIOLATION TO GO WITH THE SONS' SPECIAL OF ORDINANCE LAST NIGHT

Grand Old Commoner Will Be a Guest of the Sons of Veterans of This State on Trip to Nashville Reunion

A letter was received in Fort Worth yesterday from Hon. John H. Reagan accepting the invitation extended him by N. A. Tisdal, commander of the Trans-Mississippi department, Sons of Confederate Veterans, and W. P. Lane, commander of the Texas department, to accompany the Fort Worth contingent of sons to the general reunion at Nashville this month, on the Sons' reunion special which goes over the Cotton Belt on Sunday morning, June 12. The camp Sons will act as a special escort of honor to Judge Reagan, who will probably join the party at Mount Pleasant.

The following additional parties will accompany the Sons of Veterans' special over the Cotton Belt to the Nashville reunion: Colonel J. Q. Chenoweth, superintendent of Confederate home, Austin; Miss Floried Ware of Amarillo, sponsor for Fifth Brigade; Major Formalt and daughter, Captain James Doyle and daughter of Granbury, Dr. Dundley and wife and Captain P. H. Blakely of Mount Vernon; Miss Maud Roark, maid of honor for Sons' Texas division, of Fort Worth; T. M. Kimbro, aid-de-camp on commander Texas division, of Cleburne; Mrs. John T. Honea, chaperon for the Fifth brigade, of Fort Worth; Miss May Ball of Fort Worth and Albert A. Stephens of Wolf City.

There will be five cars out of Fort Worth, two out of Dallas, one off the Texas Midland railroad, and one car out of Mount Vernon, which will be occupied by a uniform band of twenty pieces. At Mount Pleasant all camps from between Gatesville and Pittsburg will join the party. There will also be a party off the International road and one from South Texas. This last contingent will join the Fort Worth delegation at Louisville, Ark. At the junction point the Texas Sons will be joined by the commanders of the Arkansas division and staff and the Pine Bluff camp, together with other camps from Arkansas. Large delegations are also to be picked up from Indian and Oklahoma Territories. It is expected that the delegations from Texas, Arkansas and Indian Territory will cross the Mississippi in three sections.

It is believed that N. R. Tisdal will go into the reunion with over 400 instructed votes for commander in chief. Local Sons are sanguine that he will be elected.

Commander Lane of the Texas division and Commander Tisdal of the Trans-Mississippi department have each chartered a Pullman sleeper for the accommodation of their respective staffs and invited friends.

An Auto on South Main Street Went Too Fast, But There Was No Officer in the Vicinity to Stop the Runner

The first violation of the automobile ordinance, which became effective yesterday morning, occurred last night when a machine went whizzing out South Main street at a fast pace and without a light as required by law.

At the corner of South Main and Terrell streets the machine, in which were riding a young man and a woman, narrowly escaped running over a man attempting to cross the street.

Scorching past the meeting place of the Seventh ward primaries which were in session at the time the chauffeur responded to the calls of the men by putting on additional speed, leaving a cloud of dust behind. No number could be discerned upon the machine and owing to its speed and the darkness it was impossible for any of those at the meeting to identify the owner.

RURAL CARRIERS HAVE A MEETING

Delegates Are Selected to Attend the State Association Which Meets in Hillsboro

A called meeting of the Tarrant county Rural Carriers' association was held in this city last night for the purpose of electing delegates to the state association which meets at Hillsboro July 4.

Seth B. Turner of Smithfield and J. W. Pugh of this city were chosen as delegates. In the event of either being unable to attend alternates will be appointed by the president. In the state convention the delegates will represent the Twelfth congressional district. General plans for the betterment of the rural free delivery system and the matter of good roads were discussed at the meeting; no action however, being taken.

Four new members were added to the association as follows: J. W. Pugh of this city, carrier on route No. 2; W. E. Goodwin, Arlington; J. A. Ross, Azle, and Frank Walker, Arlington.

Beginning with July regular meetings of the association will be held on the first Saturday night of every quarter.

K. OF P. MEMORIAL DAY
June 14 has been designated by the supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias, as memorial day, and the event will be observed in Fort Worth by the various lodges. Arrangements will be made during the coming week.

Grand Chancellor F. J. Bell of Dallas suggests that all lodges met on the above day and pay fitting tribute to the memories of the departed members.

Similar observances will be held by lodges throughout the state according to the supreme statutes.

Greenwall's Colts Made Swing Around the Circle and Won a Dozen Games on the Tour

CRACK AMATEURS ARE HOME AGAIN

The Greenwall Colts, a crack amateur baseball team of this city, accompanied by Manager Mitchell Greenwall, arrived in this city last night from an extended tour over North and South Texas.

"The team is in first-class shape and playing great ball," said Manager Greenwall last night. "We had an exceptionally good trip and although the team played in nearly every part of the state we succeeded in winning twelve games out of twenty-three, which is good work for a visiting team with many disadvantages and obstacles to overcome. Probably the best game played was at Garland, where we succeeded in winning a hotly contested game by a score of 1 to 0. Ed Driscoll did the twirling for the Colts and was a complete mystery to the ruralites, who succeeded in making only one hit off his delivery. Close games were played at Greenville, Jacksonville and Tyler."

During the trip the following towns were touched with from one to three games at each place: Jacksonville, Tyler, Texarkana, Mount Pleasant, Pittsburg, Willsboro, Greenville, Farmersville and Garland.

Mr. Greenwall says that the team showed a decided improvement during this last trip and on the next he hopes to defeat every team with which a game is scheduled.

The men comprising the team at present are Ham Pankey, Lynton Burke, DeWitt Thomas, Will Stillman, Frank Rone, S. Grammer, Charley Blount and Ed Driscoll, Harry Tackaberry and J. Wake-

THE GUARDSMAN

A knock at the door of my heart to-night.
I have heard that knock before.
It is Doubt, come back from the Long Ago.
To enter my heart once more.
But Time has emboldened the guards of Self,
And stronger are they than of yore;
I summon the watchman whose name is Faith,
And bid him unbar the door.
With resolute courage he girds himself,
And clad in his armor strong,
He hastens to challenge the foe without.
But lo, Doubt has vanished—gone—
—Esther Hooker Trowbridge.

A LIFE OF LOVE

Around Mrs. C. D. Lusk's flower-hidden coffin the other day aching hearts said good-bye to their loved friend. The simple hymns that recalled her life were sung, and the minister spoke of words of sympathy and comfort. On every side were the evidences of the woman's heart and woman's taste that had built a home. Mingled with the tears were the thoughts of the blessed happiness that had flowed from every touch of this loving and loved home maker.
A beautiful life is so rare that the world needs to hear of it. A woman who has been a faultless wife and mother is a part of the best heritage of humanity. When to ideal wifehood and motherhood is added the larger, broader virtue of loyal friendships, her influence flows out from the home and becomes a beacon to illuminate the dreams of men and to inspire reverent belief that womanhood is the best gift of divine love. The devotion to Mrs. Lusk was so marked, and the grief at her loss is so overwhelming and widespread that those to whom she was a stranger have marveled and questioned. To each enquiry every friend has answered "She was so good." And yet she was so much more than that.

Mrs. Lusk possessed the genius of loving. What she was as wife and mother is a sacred memory, the priceless treasure of her loved ones. The love that she gave to her friends was taken with them far beyond her knowledge and held up as a prized possession. To Mrs. Lusk, her friends possessed surpassing virtues. In the crystal clearness of her heart, wherein dwelt nothing that was not noble, was reflected every good quality of mind or heart that passed her way. And having seen the good she was satisfied. Faults and weaknesses and shortcomings of frail humanity that were plain to others she set aside or forgot. In years of intimate companionship she was never heard to comment unkindly or criticize adversely any who had once been admitted to her list of friends. But with wilful wrongdoing or intentional dishonor found a disapproving, though gentle, judge.

In all things and at all times love reigned in her heart.
More than twenty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Lusk came to Fort Worth. From that time to the hour when the Shadow fell upon her the Lusk home has been a musical and literary center. Musicians and book lovers found there an atmosphere of genuineness seldom met with in any community. But the gracious welcome of a cultured, kindly woman was the fragrance of the flower of hospitality—a welcome that was extended just as gladly to the unlearned or the unmusical. Those who had received the book message knew the rare delight of conversation with one of the great men of letters. But the unbookish who brought to her a kind flower chosen because of its showing the club colors.

In another room were a number of photographs of famous musicians. For recognizing them with the least hesitation Mrs. Groom won a grand puff box.
Jellies of purple and white and cake with icing of the two colors were served amid much earnest talk over plans for advancing musical matters when the club begins work again in the fall.

The Sons of Confederate Veterans made a great success out of their dance at Handley last Monday evening, providing amusement seekers with one of the pleasantest evenings of the season and adding to the monument fund a tidy sum. The local camp of Sons have pledged a generous amount to the monument to be erected to the Women of the Confederacy and this dance was the first of a series of entertainments which will be given to meet their promise to the Nashville meeting. More than a hundred couples were in the grand march, which was led by R. E. L. Costan, quartermaster general, and Miss Elizabeth Tarlton.

The members of the various Greek letter fraternities living here are agitating an entertainment on an elaborate scale at a date not so far away. The "frat" men say that they should come together socially and that their numbers are strong enough to make any entertainment they might give of great social importance. The following residents are known to belong to some of the fraternities: Judge W. P. McLean, E. W. Tempel, C. D. Reimers, W. B. Paddock, R. E. L. Roy, Judge Dinklin, R. E. L. Carlock, W. A. Hanger, R. H. Beckham, John Tarlton, W. B. Ward, Dr. McLean, Dr. Ernest Chilton, James Weaver, Edwin Bewley, Sam Hogsett, Harry Adams, Leroy P. Smith, Jeff McLean, H. H. Hardy, Verdo Woods, John Terrell, C. A. Boaz, — Kelle, Kieber Jennings, J. H. Furman and Kip Hollingsworth.

The West Side Social club has adjourned meetings until next November, Mrs. Ware being the last hostess of the summer.
Mrs. Calvin Mac Templeton entertained with a musical last Tuesday evening complimentary to Mrs. Hunter Harde-man, a bride of only a few weeks, who is making her first visit to her Fort Worth relatives and friends and charming as they were, by special request, added the Liszt "Second Rhapsodie" to her other selections. Miss Samuels delighted with several songs and Mrs. Harry McCart rendered dramatically a reading from "The Christian."

Mrs. Conery and Mrs. I. H. Burney shared the pleasant duty of serving punch and tutti frutti ice cream and home-made pound cake came at the close of the program.
The guests were Colonel and Mrs. Geo. West, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Nunnally, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Callaway, Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, Mesdames Conery, Harde-man, Swayne, Olive Edington, Scott, Kern and Godwin; Misses Higby, Samuels and Fields,
J. B. Finks, Joe Brown of Dallas, Herbert Walker and Conrad Harde-man.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes News

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 10, 1904.
To the Masonic Fraternities of Texas.
Bright's Disease and Diabetes are now positively curable. The recoveries run into the thousands and include not only many of our best citizens but the very highest degree Masons (several of the thirty-third degree), Knights Templars, Shriners, etc.

A sense of duty and love of their fellows moved a number of these to give us permission to use their names in order that the world may know of the genuineness of this discovery. Among them are such men as ex-Surveyor General Theo. Reichert, N. W. Spaulding (now deceased) late president Spaulding Saw Co., and United States sub-treasurer, and A. G. Deardoff, M. D., General Reichert recovered himself after twelve years of suffering with Diabetes. N. W. Spaulding's daughter recovered from Bright's Disease after he had spent thousands of dollars and years of time and believed her death inevitable. Dr. Deardoff had several patients recover—extreme cases of both Bright's Disease and Diabetes, one of them being an old school physician.

In the interest of humanity these gentlemen have permitted us to take their affidavits to be given to anxious inquirers.

The R. C. Hearne home was made radiantly beautiful with a wealth of white carnations, bridal ribbons and smilax last Thursday in preparation for the marriage of Miss Cordelia Hearne of Dallas, the sister of Mr. Hearne, to Franklin C. Cornell of Ithaca, N. Y. The nuptial arch was set in the south bay window and was formed of smilax, studded with white carnations. On either side were fastened with large bows of white ribbon, masses of carnations, and from the upper portion of the arch ribbons were drawn to the ceiling, where they were united under masses of smilax and ribbon. The arch was flanked with potted plants and tiny sprays of asparagus ferns dotted the ceiling. The nuptial cushion was placed under the arch.

Leading from the parlor was a portiere of smilax strands, and within the rear parlor were vases filled with sweet peas and nasturtiums, which surmounted the piano and cabinets.
In the dining room the table was the chief object of the decorator. In the center was a flat piece of lilies of the valley and smilax. From it a strand of smilax crossed diagonally over the center cloth of Battenberg, which lay on a sea foam green satin cover. Around the edges of the cover the smilax was draped, the corners showing loops of green. The silver candlesticks had shades of white spray petals. Smilax and ferns wreathed the chandeliers and ceiling.

Prior to the ceremony, which was performed by Bishop Garrett, Mrs. E. A. Thompson of Denison, the bride's sister, sang "You, Robyn, and A Song" by Selinger; she also sang the Lehigh march as the bride and groom entered. Guy Richardson Pitner was the accompanist and played for the pre-nuptial program selections from Nevin's "Night in Venice," and "Traumerel."
The ushers were George and H. C. Aldridge of Dallas, and the groomsmen were R. C. Hearne, the bride's brother. The bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Cornell of Ithaca. The bride was given away by her father, J. W. Hearne, and little Edith shared the pleasant duty of serving punch and tutti frutti ice cream and home-made pound cake came at the close of the program.

The guests were Colonel and Mrs. Geo. West, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Nunnally, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mrs. John D. Kane entertained the teachers and students of the Kindergarten College at her home on Henderson street Tuesday evening. Katherine Smithson and Bothwell Kane met the guests at the door. Misses Bess Morris and Mabel Long assisted the hostess in the dining room. Tea was served at 7 o'clock, and the hours after were spent in merry chatter and an amusing game, in which each girl's initials played a prominent part.

The guests were: Mrs. Winchester, Misses Winchester, Hammers, Slaght, Labatt, Pennington, Finch, Lucie Smith, Elizabeth White, Birdie Walker, Iremtha Mabel Long, Nellie and Mamie Williams, Nellie Kingsley and Ethel Selkirk.
Some of the students had already left for their homes, and when the parting hour arrived many farewells for the summer were spoken.

There was not one of Mrs. John Kee's friends who accepted of her courtesy but that enjoyed the pleasant and unique manner that the hostess entertained. The guests were the Penelope Club, members of the art department and special guests. Mrs. Kee was assisted by Mesdames Elmo Moroney, C. M. Brown, Julia Hill and M. S. Bogart. All the diversions were enjoyed, especially when the hostess requested each guest to write her name with the left hand to serve as a souvenir on a beautiful bunch of hand-painted

If there is any nicer place than the stock exchange building and the dining room of the cafe for a dance for happy young folks they have not yet discovered it. Last Thursday evening they had a art, who gave more than a hundred friends all the pleasures of dancing on a perfect floor to tuneful music and between times turned them over to the wailing south breeze that cooled and comforted through the spacious corridors and wide verandas. Claret cup was served and cake and ices during one of the later intermissions.

Miss Sterley was assisted in receiving by the members of the Literary Twelve and Mrs. Schulenburg of Little Rock. The privileged guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Guy Richardson Pitner has accepted an invitation from the program committee of the Texas World's fair commission to give a recital in the Texas building at the St. Louis exposition. Mr. Pitner is one of the musicians that will represent the best musical talent of Texas and there is much pride that he has been chosen. He has been the organist of the Broadway Presbyterian church for some time and an organist, choir leader and concert pianist he is recognized as possessing ability and accomplishments that will command respect in any community devoted to the highest expression of the musical art. His program will be given during the time at the fair when Mrs. Bacon Saunders will be the hostess.

The Males and Matrons had Tuesday afternoon with Miss Horsely and played with animation for the prize, a jeweled pin for the stock. Mrs. Cook won it, the players being Mesdames Willis G. Cook, Cantey, Burns, Hanna, Cameron, Moffett and Berney; Misses Hogsett, Laura Hogsett, Bradley, Crittenden, Samuels, Montgomery, Fry, Orrick, Swayne and Hattie Mae Anderson.

Mrs. Moffett will be the hostess next Tuesday afternoon, when play will begin at three instead of two-thirty, the usual hour.

The Current Literature club enjoyed a picnic at Lake Erie yesterday afternoon, the close of the club year being celebrated in this informal manner.

The ladies of the Kindergarten association will give a musicale and reception at the residence of Mrs. H. Brann next Tuesday afternoon from 8 to 9. An excellent program has been prepared and an invitation is extended to the public.

There will be a special meeting of the Jewish Women's council with Mrs. H. Brann next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. R. H. Beckham entertained with a "T T" last Friday afternoon and to those to whom "T T" may be mystical, it is said that it is tennis with a cup of tea afterward. More than a dozen guests enjoyed both "T's."

Mrs. R. L. Ellison entertained with a six-course luncheon last Wednesday, her guests being Mrs. D. T. Bomar, Mrs. Bomar of Gainesville, Mrs. N. Harding, Mrs. Godwin and Sulu Gardner. The decorations were of pink and white carnations, each guest receiving a pretty token as a souvenir.

Miss Bess Ellis and Miss Mary Swayne enjoyed an auto ride to Dallas last week, the guest of out-of-town friends. The trip was made in less than an hour and was followed by a luncheon at the Elite and a ride over the city.

REMEMBER OF TOM HOOD (Kansas City Star).
He read the war news eagerly.
The fearsome funny man;
Then reaching for his stock of puns
The punishment began.

"The Russian army to the front
The wily Jap to beat,
Will show my skill," the czar declared,
"And prove the Russian fleet."

"And yet, how could the Russian bear
To leave his home and wife
To rush across Siberian snows
And risk his precious life?"

"Yet never did the Russian flag
Through obstacles like these,
He vowed he'd bring those awful Japs
Upon their Japan knees."

"The Japs had eyed Manchuria
And said in manner cool,
Since now we rule upon the seas—
Let's seize upon the rule."

"Into a Russian harbor then
They sailed with conscience clear,
Those Japs feared not a harbor
And they harbored not a fear."

"They found the enemy asleep,
They aimed their shots as well
As Dewey at Manila when He gave the Spanish shell."

"And if you ask how goes the fight
As it has gone thus far,
And who is being bested now,
I think the Russians are."

And having thus expressed himself
The czar dropped his head,
And fixed in space a glassy stare;
They shook him. He was dead.

The June Delineator Now on Sale

In The Churches

St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, corner Seventh and Lamar streets. Because Jesus was baptized in the Jordan river, many in this day think of its waters as especially sacred. Many therefore will be interested in the fact that when Rev. J. P. Boeyer returned to Fort Worth a few days ago he brought back with him some of the water of the Jordan and will use this in the baptism of several children in the service at 11 a. m. today. He will preach at that hour on the oft-asked question, "Why Methodists and Others Baptize Children." Any interested in this question are especially invited to be present. At 8 p. m. he will speak of "The Good Shepherd," as seen in Palestine today.

First Methodist Episcopal church, South, corner Fourth and Jones streets—Rev. Alonzo Monk, D. D., pastor. Rev. George MacAdam, president of Fort Worth University, will preach on "A Needs of our Age" for a Busy Age" in the morning. The subject for the evening will be the "Power of the Trifle." Seats all free. Strangers especially invited. A warm welcome to all. Dr. Monk will return during the coming week, after spending some time in northern Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, delivering commencement sermons at various universities and institutions of learning.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, corner St. Louis and Terrell avenues—Services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and at 8 in the evening. Subject, "God the Preserver of Man." Sunday school following the morning service. Wednesday evening meeting at 8 o'clock. Reading room at the church open daily from 1 to 5 p. m.

Broadway Presbyterian Mission Church, corner Virginia and Elizabeth streets—Services today, both morning and evening. Sunday school at 10 a. m. Worship at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., conducted by J. L. McAdams. You are cordially invited to come and worship with us.

Broadway Baptist Church, corner Broadway and St. Louis avenue—The pastor, J. W. Gilson, will preach both morning and evening. The morning service will be at 11 a. m. The evening service will begin promptly at 8:15 o'clock. At the close of the evening service the ordinance of baptism will be administered.

Trinity Church, corner Hemphill street and Pennsylvania avenue—Rev. Robert Hammond Cotton, M. A., B. Sc. (London), First Sunday after Trinity. Morning service at 11 o'clock. "Moses and the Prophets: Let Them Hear Them." Night service at 7:30 o'clock. "Divine Political Economy; or the Root of all Evil." Take the Hemphill street car.

First Presbyterian Church—Rev. John V. McCall of Cleburne, Texas, will fill the pulpit at this church at 11 a. m. and at 8 p. m. Young people's meeting at 7 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to these services.

Tabernacle Christian Church, corner Fifth and Throckmorton streets. James S. Myers, pastor. Services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and Sunday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The Sunday school will observe the "annual" evening at the evening service. The Christian Endeavor Societies will hold their regular meetings Sunday evening at 7:30. Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.

Broadway Presbyterian Church, corner Broadway and St. Louis avenue—Rev. Junius B. French, D. D., pastor. Sunday school at 3:30 a. m. Special service for young people at 11 a. m. All persons invited, however, especially parents and strangers. At 3:30, the union revival services will be held in this church. Sermon by Rev. C. C. Smith, the evangelist. At 8 p. m. the church will be closed and all join in the farwell revival service at the big tent east of the university.

First Baptist Church—Rev. Luther Little, pastor. The pastor will be in his pulpit at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Morning theme, "Custodians of the Gospel." Evening theme, "Rhoda, or the Humble Gate Keeper." Mrs. Warren will sing at the morning service. Special music at both hours. Everybody invited.

Taylor Street Cumberland Presbyterian Church, corner Fifth and Taylor streets—Morning service at 11 a. m. Sermon by pastor. Evening service at 8 p. m. Sermon by pastor. Subject, "The Eighth Commandment." Rev. J. W. Caldwell, pastor.

Union South Side Tent Meeting—Two great meetings have been planned for today in connection with the close of the union south side tent meetings. At 3:30 p. m. a grand praise service will be held at the Broadway Presbyterian church, conducted by Smith and Gilmore, at which the following splendid musical program will be rendered: Organ voluntary, Mr. Pitner; selection, chorus; duet, Messrs. Smith and Gilmore; solo, Mr. Estes; selection, male quartet; solo, Mr. Smith; duet, Messrs. Smith and Gilmore. At this service the theme of the short address and the music will be "Gifts." The public in general are urged to enjoy it. At the big tent east of Fort Worth University at 8 p. m., will occur the farwell meeting. Those who have entered the Christian life and all others are urged to attend. In the event of a stormy evening the service will be held at the Broadway Presbyterian church.

GETTING MARRIED ON $14.00 A WEEK

BY REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.)

A young woman writes as follows: "I am 22 years old, and for the past four years I have been pounding a typewriter in a dark, stuffy office for ten hours a day. I am getting awfully tired of it. I have to endure a whole lot of abuse, and don't know as I can stand it much longer.

"A young man, sober and industrious, and getting $14 weekly, wants me to marry him. I have grown to like him, and he thinks all the world of me, and the only thing that bothers me is that $14 salary.

"Do you think we can live on it? Would you advise me to marry him on that salary?"

"I have nobody to go to for advice, and I turn to you for some helpful words. I still look for a reply from you."

It must be admitted, on the start, that $14 a week is not a large salary. In a great city it is a very small salary; and yet even in a large city it is possible for two people to live on such salary, and to live with a fair degree of comfort.

Fourteen dollars a week will hire a modest apartment and buy as much plain food as two people will require to keep them well and strong.

Of course, such salary will admit of no foolishness. It will provide a few theater tickets, no diamonds, no fine gowns, no extended tours, no elaborate entertainments.

On $14 a week in a large city a married couple would have to keep pretty close to the main question; but that they could live on it and have all that was necessary in the way of shelter, food and raiment admits of no doubt.

"Thousands actually do this, and seem to be none the worse for it."

All that is necessary, I say, nine-tenths of the misery among married people is caused, not by the fact that their needs are unsupplied, but by the fact that in addition to their needs they have a whole troop of artificial wants, which, with their needs, are impossible to satisfy.

In other words, they are miserable on account of the nonessentials of life. They have all that is required in order to do their work in the world as rational, moral beings; but that is not enough; they want to be butterflies, birds of paradise, aurora borealis and a whole lot of other things; not being able to reach the mark, they are wretched.

The simple life is, in a costly one, and the simple life is, in the end, the fullest and the best.

A couple that love one another, that are devoted to one another's higher interests, that live for knowledge and industry and love and duty, that have a purpose in life, and that pursue a moral one, can get along very well on $14 a week.

And so we would advise the young woman, if she loves her sweetheart and he loves her, to marry him.

Their home, it is true, will not be a palatial one, but it will be a home, and if love is there it will be a beautiful home—a home which many rich ones on the boulevards, who have everything else but love, would give all their millions to possess.

Yes, young woman, get married. Get out of the dark, stuffy office. Begin to live, even though it be upon a humble scale.

A rare case of longevity is cited in the lives of Mrs. Hanna C. Baker, Henry N. Spencer, John H. Spencer and Mrs. Fanny F. Fowler, brothers and sisters, all living in Noank, in the town of Groton, Conn., whose ages aggregate more than three centuries, or, minutely, 329 years.

THE ONLY CURE

186 East Fifth Street, New York City, N. Y., June 1, 1903.

I believe that if we all knew the laws of health we would all be well and if sick women only knew the true value of Wine of Cardui they would be saved much suffering and would soon be cured. I have very strong faith in it. I used it for five months for a local difficulty which had troubled me for years and had spent hundreds of dollars in the endeavor to get well. My life forces were being sapped and I was daily losing my vitality with that bearing down feeling which thousands of women know all about. Your medicine cured me. I am enjoying the very best of health now and am only too pleased to endorse your great remedy.

Mrs. C. A. Welch
SARAHIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

WINE OF CARDUI

Mrs. Welch lives in New York City where the best medical attention can be secured, but she writes that Wine of Cardui was the only medicine which could cure her. A woman who has been saved from a life of suffering by Wine of Cardui when other medicines failed to benefit her has reason to have strong faith in this great tonic.

Mrs. Welch has faith in Wine of Cardui because it cured her. Hundreds of thousands of women have faith in this grand old medicine because it not only cured them, but it continues month after month to ease their pain and give them strength for the duties of life. Should you not give it a trial? Here is a well tried and successful remedy which it is your privilege to take. Nobody can prevent you from securing health. You know that over a million women owe life and health to this great menstrual regulator. A million cured women advise you to take it. Will you listen to their advice? Won't you go to your druggist today and secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui?

THE LAST CHAPTER OF EMORY MILL REMNANT SALE

When our doors open tomorrow, we shall begin the last chapter and final winding-up of the Great Mill Remnant Sale. This event has been a theme of favorable comment amid many family circles. Buyers have told relatives and friends about the many beautiful goods so remarkably priced—thus the news of the sale and values have spread from the center to the circumference of the city and county. You can still share in the great dispensing of bargains tomorrow, Tuesday or Wednesday, or any of the following days this week. But the wisdom of immediate buying is evident. In addition to the selling of many special goods bought for this occasion, and regular stock mentioned below, we shall collect the Mill Remnants and bunch them in lots and mark them so low they will make a combination of value attractions that cannot—will not—be surpassed within the boundaries of the state. Visit this store tomorrow and see these values.

LATE NEWS BY CABLE FROM FOREIGN CAPITALS

A TUNNEL UNDER BRITISH CHANNEL

Seasickness on the Trip From Calais to Dover Will Soon Be Thing of the Past

FINISHED IN TWO YEARS

Company Has Already Been Formed to Promote It, and Work Will Be Rushed

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—No longer will our many American friends who come to visit this city after having passed through the city of fogs have to suffer from mal de mer in crossing the channel, for very soon we shall have a tunnel connecting the two countries running from Dover to Calais.

It will be remembered how M. Cambon, the minister of France to the court of St. James, at the recent dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce, in his speech expressed the wish that one of the first visible results of the entente cordiale would be the construction of the great tunnel. Now it is settled that wish will come true. A company has been formed, all the details of the plan have been worked out and in a very short time actual work on this unique tunnel will be started to be finished, it is hoped, within two years.

Already twenty-five years ago prominent engineers had proved that the work would be comparatively easy, far easier than the construction of the great tunnels at Mt. Genis and Mt. Saint-Gothard, all that prevented the realization of the project was the enmity of the two people and especially the rather ridiculous fear of the British military leaders that France in case of war might send her armies under water out of reach of the guns of the English navy into England.

The new friendship has done away with this and the tunnel will be built by French capitalists and a treaty will be signed whereby both countries solemnly pledge themselves not to use the submarine tunnel for military purposes.

PROMOTES RELIGIOUS WORK AGAINST HIS WILL

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—While M. Combes during last year has been saving out all members of religious orders from France, removing crucifixes from all French court rooms and other similar work which has earned for him the name of "forerunner of anti-Christ," he is probably very much anxious to work in behalf of Christianity in Japan.

The czar, who as everybody knows, is a very religious man, recently asked M. Combes, as prime minister of France, to arrange for regular services according to the rite of the Greek church for the prisoners at Port Arthur. The idea was revolting to M. Combes, but as it came direct from the czar there was nothing to do but to grin and bear it to use a most appropriate expression, and he accordingly sent a cable to the French minister at Tokyo directing him to communicate with the Japanese government and ask that the orthodox bishop in that city be allowed to bestow upon the prisoners such prayer books, hymn books and icons as would be sent to him and to conduct religious services in the military prisons every Sunday.

COAL MINER INVENTS VALUABLE MACHINE GUN

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) BERLIN, June 4.—Albert Ludwig, a common miner, who works in a coal mine in Silesia, the other day surprised his superiors by asking for leave of absence, saying that he had been summoned to Berlin by the minister of war. The superintendent thought the man was joking but in his spare hours, had invented a new kind of machine gun and two rifles of very original construction. He had sent drawings of these inventions to the war department and received an order to present himself in Berlin. Experts in the department claim that these guns are far superior to any of those in use in any European army and has offered Ludwig 50,000 marks for his patent. The young miner, who is only 29 years old, does not, however, think this is enough and has asked for time to consider the offer.

PHYSICIANS LOSING INTEREST IN RADIUM

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, June 4.—London physicians are beginning to lose all interest in radium and no one any longer believes in the many marvelous cures said to have been effected by the new substance. Sir William Ramsey says that experiments which he has personally conducted have shown that radium is played out in 1,159 years and that if, therefore, anyone wants to invest in the new metal he must realize that it would go nothing but a waste of time. He believes that the light emitted by radium is of good effect in light skin diseases and that it may be used with some benefit in the treatment of rodent ulcers, but that it is of no value whatever in cancerous diseases.

THAT TIRED FEELING!

If you are languid, depressed and incapable for work, it indicates that your liver is out of order. Herbine will assist nature to throw off headaches, rheumatism and ailments akin to nervousness and restore the energies and vitality of sound and perfect health. J. J. Hubbard, Temple, Texas, writes, March 23, 1902: "I have used Herbine for the past two years. It has done me more good than all the doctors. When I feel bad and have that tired feeling, I take a dose of Herbine. It is the best medicine ever made for chills and fever." 50c at bottle. Sold by H. T. Pangburn & Co.

EMPEROR TEACHES LESSON TO A NEGLIGENT OFFICIAL

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria the other day gave a most original lesson to a negligent government official. In traveling in an open carriage to one of his castles, the inspector noticed that the roads were in a very poor condition and upon investigation found that they were always neglected.

The next day a messenger in the imperial livery rang the bell of the residence of the local inspector of roads, informing him that the emperor would be pleased to receive him and would send a carriage for him in the afternoon. When, a few hours later, a magnificent open barouche with a coachman and footman resplendent in all the glory of the imperial livery, drove up before the door, the inspector, who was the proudest man in town, dressed in his best attire he seated himself in the carriage and was driven toward the castle, envied by everybody.

But his joy did not last long; the coachman whipped up his horses and drove him through the dirtiest, most muddy streets, taking care to run the wheels through every pool of water so that the inspector was soon covered with mud from head to foot. His shouts to the driver to be careful were absolutely unheeded and when they finally arrived at the castle there was not a clean spot on the horse, carriage, coachman, footman or inspector.

RIDES TORPEDO INTO PT. ARTHUR

Remarkable Achievement Told by French Aristocrat of Free and Easy-going Imagination

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—We do not hear much of the doings of our aristocrats at home since the establishing of the republic, but they are still the same level as ordinary untitled mortals, but occasionally we hear of them from other less democratic countries to which they have fled because they were not duly appreciated at home.

New has just come here from Russia that a certain French marquis has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment at Nijni Novgorod for imposing upon credulous peasants. For three weeks the marquis masqueraded as the hero of a hundred fights. He lectured on his exploits at Port Arthur, where, according to his own account, he was wounded and captured by the Japanese. Admiral Togo, he declared, released him on condition that he swim ashore, a distance of several miles. On the way he was overtaken by a torpedo which Togo had treacherously launched at him. Nothing daunted, the marquis mounted astride the torpedo, and riding it as he would a horse, guided it in triumph to Port Arthur, where he landed and ascended the war balloons and dropped bombs on the Japanese ships, sinking two of them. The marquis generally concluded his lectures by asserting that he had crossed Siberia on foot.

NOW SAY THAT KING PETER IS ONLY TOOL

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) VIENNA, June 4.—Dispatches from Belgrade show that the situation in that city is growing more serious every day and that something as shocking as the murder of King Alexander and Queen Marie is not to take place any day. King Peter is now only a tool in the hands of a certain group of officers, who would not hesitate for a minute if they thought that a murder could benefit them in any way. It was these officers who some time ago persuaded the king to expel from Serbia the correspondent of a great London newspaper and they are largely the same men who started the riot which ended with the assassination of King Alexander.

CLOCK THAT TOLD THE HOURS FOR NAPOLEON

(Copyright, 1904, by W. H. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—Among many valuable Napoleonic souvenirs left by the late Emperor, the clock which told the hours for Napoleon is a magnificent alarm clock, which once belonged to the great emperor. When I was a boy I remember how I was taught at school that Napoleon was the most punctual man in the world, and especially that he always was able to wake up at the exact minute he had appointed when he laid down to sleep and that no one ever needed to call him.

'CUSSES' THE KAISER AND GETS SEVEN YEARS

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) BERLIN, June 4.—A few days ago, while the Kaiser was riding through the outskirts of the park at Potsdam, he stopped to look at a regiment of infantry drilling in the open.

LIEUT. OF HUSSARS IN SALVATION ARMY

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) BERLIN, June 4.—Hard pressed by his creditors, Lieutenant Alfred von Ross of the First regiment of the Guard Hussars, and a member of a very aristocratic family, has taken refuge in the ranks of the Salvation Army in this city, over which an English clergyman presides.

through the dirtiest, most muddy streets, taking care to run the wheels through every pool of water so that the inspector was soon covered with mud from head to foot. His shouts to the driver to be careful were absolutely unheeded and when they finally arrived at the castle there was not a clean spot on the horse, carriage, coachman, footman or inspector.

The new thoroughly miserable official was received by a grand duke, who had all he could do to stay serious, and who replied when the inspector expressed his regrets that he was in no condition to see the emperor: "Oh, never mind a trifle like that, inspector, that is exactly the way his majesty looks himself whenever he tries to take a ride. It is very serious, and who would present yourself to his majesty today I shall bring him your apology."

KILLS DAUGHTER WHOM HE LOVES

Crazed by Effects of Fever, Man Cannot Resist Impulse to Commit Murder

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—Psychologists here are exceedingly interested in a crime which was recently committed in this city. A French widower, Henry Morillon, who had returned from Madagascar, where he has lived for years, lived with his daughter, Louise, in Rue de Paradis. He seemed the most contented of men and the fondest of fathers, but occasionally he would give way to fits of rage, shake his fist at imaginary tormentors and scare his daughter out of her wits. After such an outburst he would weep bitterly and be kinder than ever.

A few nights ago Morillon presented himself at the police station at Saint Denis. "Arrest me," he said, "I have committed a crime." At his request two policemen accompanied him to his home. He led the way to his daughter's bed room, where they found the girl with a bullet wound in her temple and another in her neck. The father, with the calmness or despair, told the story of the crime.

It is made entirely of German oak and has a capacity of 100,000 liters, and weighs 40,000 pounds. It is eight feet in diameter and its length is sixteen feet. On the day when it is to be unveiled a banquet will be given in its interior to forty-four people, will be comfortably seated around a table illuminated by incandescence lights.

BULLDOG IS HERO IN ST. PETERSBURG

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) ST. PETERSBURG, June 4.—A British bulldog is now the hero of St. Petersburg society. "Kits", or "doctored Tail", as he is called, has been presented with three silver collars by a lady belonging to the aristocracy and with about forty of cheaper material by hotel proprietors, as well as with woolen shoes and rubber overshoes without number. "Kits" is on the Varieg's deck during the battle of Chemulpo. He licked the wounds of the sailors and was himself wounded a few times, but he never flinched or gave away. During the triumphal procession of the survivors of the Varieg at Kharkoff Kutsi sat stolidly on a drum and barked intermittently at his admirers' cheers.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE IS ON EVE OF DISSOLUTION

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) BERLIN, June 4.—In political circles the possible existence of an understanding between Turkey, Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro and Italy is being seriously discussed. It is stated that Queen Helena of Italy, who loves her native country, Montenegro, with all her heart, has so influenced Italian policies that Italy will oppose any plan of Austria and Germany to intervene on the Balkan peninsula and that Russia will back her up.

GEROME DIED WITHOUT SEEING EAGLE MOUNTED

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, June 4.—Exactly two weeks from today it will be two years since the members of the French Patriotic Society la Sabretache, after a long stroll all over the famous battlefield of Waterloo, dedicated the place where it is to be erected the magnificent wounded eagle sculpture by Gerome.

railroad, 316 miles, in sixteen months, and who in addition, is considered an authority on the question of the Panama canal, was in the city yesterday on his way home from a trip to the City of Mexico. Mr. Ward is one of the men who attempted to make a deal with the assignees of the De Lesseps company for the purchase of the Panama canal property for the sum of $50,000,000, so that a private corporation could put through the scheme. He spent four years on the isthmus of Panama in securing information as to the value of the work done and the amount of machinery and other property which belonged to the French corporation. He said, discussing the matter:

"It is a mighty good thing that the French corporation failed so utterly in the construction of the Panama canal, for had they succeeded, on the plans laid out by Ferdinand de Lesseps, the canal would have been a little affair, entirely too small for ships of modern draft and tonnage, and as useless as the Erie canal. This latter is too shallow for the operation of a good sized canal boat now, and is antiquated beyond description. So might the Panama canal have been, had the French succeeded in their plans. "According to De Lesseps' plans the canal was to have been but thirty-five feet wide at the bottom, with a water surface but two hundred feet wide, the minimum depth being twenty-nine feet. Now since the increase of the size of the great ocean liners and steamships, it would have been like trying to float a ship in a gutter to try to utilize the then proposed canal for modern vessels. So, according to the plans which have not been adopted, the width of the bottom of the canal is to be not less than 200 feet at the bottom, with a water surface width of fully six hundred feet and a minimum depth of thirty-five feet. This is wide enough and has sufficient depth to admit the passage of large modern vessels from ocean to ocean. I am satisfied that the canal can be built and that it will be well built by the United States commission. I think that the task will not require many years to complete, and I see no good reason why there should be any great loss of life in completing the work, no more than in any tropical country. I am not generally an admirer of President Roosevelt, but in this instance I am an enthusiastic admirer of his genius and management of the Panama commission question. I believe that he could not have acted with more discretion in the selection of his commission to solve the canal problem. In Admiral Walker he has selected a man who is a good head for any such enterprise. In selecting the other men partnership has not influenced him and he has named men who will size up with the presiding officer, Admiral Walker. Thus that officer can not entirely dominate the proceedings of the commission. The associates of Admiral Walker are each of them men of sufficient capability to carry the canal project to a successful conclusion. My old friend, Frederick G. Wallace, has, I see, been selected chief engineer for the commission. They could not have selected a better man, and in the selection the commission again has my fullest commendatation. "You asked me my opinion as to the theory, advanced by some, that the construction of the canal will divert the channel of the gulf stream so that the climates of the countries on the Atlantic coast and the British Isles would be materially changed. As to that I can say that I have no fear of any such outcome. I do not believe the change is possible, for several reasons. Foremost among these are that I do not think the gulf stream flows as far down the coast as to be influenced by the canal. It is in my mind, confined to the upper regions around the Gulf of Mexico, the West Indies and the Yucatan peninsula. Therefore, I do not think there is any possibility of a diversion of its current. In the second place, if such were the case, it would be very easy to prevent the diversion of such a current, for the reason that the canal would never be opened from ocean to ocean, for its entire distance of forty-seven miles. It will be locked and dammed like all such canals, so that there would not be a continuous flow of current that could render European coast countries frigid and uninhabitable, as has been claimed by some. If the canal were an open waterway, and the current would be influenced there might possibly be some danger of its being diverted, for it would then flow on unimpeded as in its natural element."

"Will the canal be a great thing for western Mexico?"
"Yes, I think it will. It will increase the commerce of the world to an extent which can hardly be appreciated, since it cuts off a vast distance, but I believe there will be no one country which will be aided by the improvement more than another, unless it be the coasts of western Mexico and Central America. But there is one thing which I do not think will come. The canal will not improve the commercial condition of New Orleans, Mobile or other southern ports unless they make an attempt to cultivate some of that trade. The bulk of the trade of Central America and the South American republics is now controlled by New York and Europe. I might say that 95 per cent of the trade of those countries which comes to America is controlled by New York. Thus if the southern cities want a diversion of this, it is incumbent upon them to get a hustle on themselves and go after it. They must make the friendship of the people of the countries that will be opened to them, else New York merchants will profit more by the canal than any other class. The latter are hustlers after the trade all the time. The cities of the south land must not think that business is going to come to them. They must go seek it. Otherwise the crafty Yankee will come in and do what they will fail to do. I am a southern man, but I am an American first, and a Virginian second. I believe if one wants business, he must go after it."
Dr. M. Lyle Talbot, physician and surgeon, has removed his office from the Columbia building to the North Texas bank building.

CIGAR MAKERS DO NOT AGREE ON SETTLEMENT

The International Organizer Leaves the City and the Matter Is Still in the Air With No Signatures

Organizer George R. French of the International Cigarmakers' Union left this city yesterday afternoon, after a stay of about a month, without having effected a settlement of the differences between the firms of Jonson & Ederle and J. E. Westland & Co. and the Cigarmakers' Union. Rather than the matter being approaching a settlement, Mr. Westland's son said yesterday in the presence of his father that matters were in worse condition now than at the time of Mr. French's arrival, and the following efforts at settlement.

All clauses in the articles of agreement prepared were acceptable to both sides excepting clause 2, providing for the employment of all members of the union involved in the difficulty, providing they applied for the same.

board. "It is understood and agreed between Jonson & Ederle and J. E. Westland & Co. and the Cigarmakers' Union, No. 285, that the factories of Jonson & Ederle and J. E. Westland & Co., located in Fort Worth, Texas, shall be opened to members of the Cigarmakers' International Union on the following terms:

"All members involved in this difficulty to be given employment that may apply for some.

"That none but members of the Cigarmakers' Union shall be employed.

"That cigarmakers shall work under old 'bill of prices,' with the consent of the international executive board, with the exception of the packers' bill, which shall be amended so as the clause referring to throwing right and left shall read 12 1/2 cents per thousand instead of 50 cents per thousand.

"That Jonson & Ederle and J. E. Westland & Co. have privilege of buying Union Label Cigars on the open market, providing said firms do not duplicate their own standard brands, which they formerly manufactured in this city.

"That Jonson & Ederle and J. E. Westland & Co. will manufacture in their own factories located in the city of Fort Worth all 5-cent goods demanded of them by the packers, whenever union cigarmakers can be obtained.

clause. Inquiries at the Delaware hotel, where Mr. French was staying, showed that he left there early yesterday afternoon, and it was therefore impossible to secure a statement from him. F. C. Southern of the Cigarmakers' Union and financial secretary of the Trades Assembly stated that Mr. French asked that it be made public that he as organizer of the International Union could not discriminate against members of the organization.

PADDOCK GOES TO ST. LOUIS FOR CONFERENCE

Secretary of Board of Trade Will Discuss World's Fair Matters With Col. Wortham This Week

Secretary B. B. Paddock of the Fort Worth Board of Trade and a member of the Texas World's Fair commission, left yesterday over the Frisco for Chicago, where he is to meet and confer with Louis J. Wortham, manager of the Texas World's Fair commission, on matters pertaining to Texas' pro rata which was to have been raised for the exhibit at St. Louis.

It is understood that there is an amount still unpaid and the conference between Messrs. Wortham and Paddock is for the purpose of arranging to meet the deficit. Mr. Paddock said, discussing the Texas exhibit, that it was acknowledged to be the finest display at St. Louis, despite the fact that the money to secure the display came from private subscriptions, while other state shows were provided for by state legislatures.

Texas, Mr. Paddock said, was the only state in the union that was compelled to make its display from individual contributions, which fact is worthy of special notice.

A miniature cast of the Texas building at St. Louis has been made and in a few days will be placed on exhibition in the corridors of the Worth hotel. The cast is made of "staff" the material used in constructing the World's Fair buildings, and which comes principally from Mexico.

THE REWARD CLAIMED

It will be remembered that some time ago Mr. Bryan offered a reward of $100 to the man who would write a democratic platform embracing certain issues which ten newspapers in the United States would endorse, Mr. Bryan naming the newspapers. The Chicago Chronicle was one of these papers, and now comes forward Roderick Smith of Buffalo, N. Y., as a claimant. He writes to the Chronicle:

I hereby make formal application for this prize and submit inclosed pamphlet entitled "Proposed Platform" for your consideration and judgment. Correspondence with Mr. Bryan has developed the fact that if these ten newspapers, of which the Chronicle is one, endorse this platform I get $100. Will you please forward to me a copy of your editorial comment, if any, in order that I may make good my claim against Mr. Bryan in case you endorse this platform?

The "Proposed Platform," which appears in printed form ready for adoption by the national democratic convention, starts off as follows:

The democratic party, in national convention assembled, indorsing in principle the Chicago platform of 1896 and the Kansas City platform of 1909, etc.

The Chronicle gave the letter respectful attention and then turned to the platform. Reading the few lines quoted, the Chronicle stopped and at once advised Mr. Smith that he has lost the reward. The Chronicle will not endorse any utterance which seeks to lend an endorsement to the Kansas City and the Chicago offerings of the democratic party. Neither will the other papers of the ten which Mr. Bryan named. It is upon the principles of those platforms that these newspapers split with Mr. Bryan, and the indication is they will stay split. In the meantime Nebraska comes forward with every confidence expressed in her favorite son, and she sends him to St. Louis this year, bidding him good speed on a journey which has for its purpose the capture for the third time of the democratic nomination for president.

EVERY DAY HEROISM.

The dry records of the testimony given before the court of inquiry that investigated the accident on the battleship Missouri tell stories of heroism that cause the sublime chills to run up and down one's back.

There was Mons Monsson, for instance. Monsson, who was chief gunner's mate, was badly burned by the explosion. He paid no attention to his wounds. He was thinking of the danger to the powder magazines. So, instead of going to the surgeons to have his hurts attended to, he went below and fought his way through the handling room, which was filled with stifling flame and smoke, to the forward magazine.

He climbed through a scuttle into the magazine. The woodwork was burning in several places. The fire was dangerously near the powder charges.

It was at this juncture that Mons Monsson literally saved the battleship.

He had nothing with which to fight the fire save his cap and his wounded hands. He beat the fire as a man would beat a wild beast. But the fire crept nearer the explosives and Monsson despaired. He cried for help. Fortunately, water began to come in and flood the magazine. Monsson used his cap for a bucket and kept down the flames until a hose was passed to him by comrades. Nor did he leave the magazine until the water was up to his neck.

When lifted out the brave fellow was almost dead.

Now he has been promoted to acting gunner and has received a special letter of praise from President Roosevelt.

Mons Monsson is all right.

So are all the bluejackets.

Aid, come to think of it, so is our humanity at large. In past ages heroism was so uncommon that history has exploited it. Nowadays heroism is a common, every-day affair. It needs no Carnegie medals to encourage it.

Men and women and children of today stand the supreme test. When the strain of self-sacrifice is put upon them they do not falter. The greatest, noblest people that have ever trod the earth tread it today.

JOHN BRENNAN'S WAY.

Raymond Robins, a leading and well-known sociologist, recently declared in an address that Alderman John Brennan of Chicago comes nearer living according to the teachings of Scripture than some of his very good fellow-citizens.

John Brennan is a "gray wolf" alderman.

To designate a Chicago alderman as a gray wolf means everything that is bad in a public official. In plain words, a gray wolf in Chicago phraseology, is a professional grafter.

Now, what did Mr. Robins mean?

He certainly did not mean John Brennan had higher aims in life than the average good citizen. Or that he lived a better life. Or that he was an exemplar of morals.

No. He meant to say that in so far as good deeds are concerned, Brennan followed the Scriptures more closely than many of the Scribes and Pharisees.

This gray wolf represents a slum ward. He looks after his people. When they need financial help Brennan gives it. He knows every voter's front name. He is a guest at every wedding and funeral. He shares the joys, and especially the sorrows, of his constituents. Therefore, as Mr. Robins says:

"His influence is due not to his corruption and baseness, but to his generosity and kind-heartedness."

That's it. And there is a pointer here for reformers:

If you want to change things by means of the ballot box you must take men as they are and treat them in a way they understand. You may draw the cloak of self-righteousness about you and preach and inveigh until you are hoary-headed, but if you are to influence men for their good and for the good of society you must do as John Brennan does—go after them where they live their lives.

As Brennan utilizes men for selfish purposes, so must you utilize them for unselfish purposes. And there is but one way—comradeship.

The Prince of Monaco has graciously consented to let the mystery of his finances be unveiled in the "Figaro." He would have done this before if he had thought that the world took any interest in the matter, according to "The London Chronicle." But he has been brought to see that it is injurious to his reputation to have it generally believed that he lives out of the tribute of the gaming tables at Monte Carlo. The Monaco Budget is duly presented in the "Figaro," and it appears that the principality has an ample revenue quite apart from the gamblers. Why, a thousand a year is raised upon matches alone! The company which provides the refreshing seabaths of Monaco, to say nothing of the theater and sports, pays a handsome contribution. So modest are the prince's personal wants that his minister of finance has not given him a halfpenny for three years. The total income from the Casino is devoted to the cause of charity and the advancement of science. "If you have lost all your money at the tables, be consoled by the thought that it is healing some poor creature in the hospital, or otherwise spreading the arts of peace." This should be inscribed in letters of gold over the portals of the Casino.

Peremptory notices to the public are so general in New York city that no one asks whether they are good manners or not. Everybody is so used to being hidden to "step lively" by the unkempt servants of public service corporations, or sternly commanded to "excuse me" by the hurrying pedestrian who runs one down, that "keep off the grass" does not seem offensive. It is interesting to know, though, that that sign has been banished from London's park. "No smoking allowed," which used to adorn many public and private rooms, has assumed a less minor form. The London county council has set a good example in the tone of its necessary warnings, which generally contain a reminder that their property is the people's own property. The politest notice, perhaps, is one in a London churchyard: "You are kindly requested not to throw paper or refuse into the garden."

The attendance on the opening day of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is now reported officially to have been 187,793. When the great white city in Chicago, in 1893, unbarred its gates, the assemblage numbered 137,557. But that was more than a decade ago, and this country has made amazing progress in population and national development since then.

The possibilities of the English language are never better shown than when some western musical critic lays himself out in judgment upon one of Mr. Conried's operatic stars. Mme. Sembrich recently sang in San Francisco, and a newspaper critic of much distinction pronounced her "The peerless canary of colorature."

These fellows in the two parties who are insisting upon a short platform ought to remember that it is the longest pole that gets the persimmon.

JUDGE B. R. WEBB LOOKS ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION

WELL KNOWN FORT WORTH MAN DISCUSSES THE CONTEST WHICH DEMOCRATS ARE UP AGAINST— HE WONDERS IF AN ALLIANCE WITH WINNING FORCES WILL NOT JUSTIFY DEPARTURE FROM JUSTICE, BECAUSE OF ENDS GAINED

Austin, Texas, May 21, 1904. To the Editor of The Telegram.— As the next one of the great political contests quadrennially occurring in this country draws near at hand public interest in the political situation becomes more intense. When Jeffries stripped in the pugilistic ring, displaying his massive proportions, Fitz turned to his bottle-holder with the remark, "We are up against a big thing, my boy," and that is about what every observant democrat is thinking just at this time, whether or not he gives audible expression to the thought.

The republican party, entrenched in power, is presenting a solid front against the discordant and divided hosts of democracy. It is united upon a man for its standard bearer who is bold, aggressive, adroit, crowned with civil and military honors, and who has achieved a success never before witnessed in the history of the republic.

That of a unanimous party endorsement for the presidency of one who attained that office through the death of the elected president. Not from the days of Grant until now, more than a quarter of a century, has any man had such a dominating influence in the republican party that it has assembled in national convention, as it will do this year, with only one man before it for the presidential office.

PLATFORM WILL BE BOLD

That the republican platform this year will be bold, outspoken and specific in its demands is a solid fact. Besides these considerations there is yet another factor of political success, more potent perhaps than any or all others, which at present operate in favor of the republicans, and it is that at this time, under republican rule, and in the face of the favoring conditions, the country is enjoying an unusual degree of prosperity. Men, especially unthinking men, are not disposed, under prosperous conditions, to change to other theories of government, and even thinking men hesitate at the prospect of a disorderly silence during all the clamor of the contending factions.

MUST CHOOSE A CHAMPION

But a champion must be chosen; and against the mighty cohorts of the Assyrian, gleaming in purple and gold, are we democrats going to trot out some little David from the grassy hills, armed with a sling and a smooth pebble and depend on Jehovah to back him? Not on your sweet life, says one. There is a better way than that, he says. Since the republican party, with the aid of the trusts, the tariff and the moneyed influence, seems to keep on winning, it will be the best policy for the democrats to stand in with that all-powerful influence, fight the devil with fire, and beat the rascals with their own weapons. If the democrats win, they will at least have the spoils, the federal offices, the fat emoluments, the long-termed judgeships, the quistorial marshalships, and the 30,000 postoffices besides; and these, my dear sir, are things not to be sneezed at, and considerations not to be lightly passed by.

FIGHT WILL BE BITTER

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. B. Ball of Beal, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her. Guaranteed by Matt S. Blanton & Co., and W. J. Fisher, druggist. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottles free."

almost total surrender of the distinguishing principles of the party; and, above all, his candidacy for the nomination presents the chance for some third man to be eventually agreed on as a compromise who will fairly represent what the democratic party stands for in this government. If there was a fair, even chance of the democratic party winning in this election by a surrender of its distinguished principles and a going over to the money power, the proposition would at least have a business aspect, but to sell out and get nothing in return is wholly indefensible from any point of view.

And thus the poor old fellow kept prating on of the things that are not seen, being invisible, as vainly as the blither sounds his drum, booming in the seditious jingles, wholly oblivious of the fact that we are now living under a new dispensation wherein men ask, with Web Flanagin and not Ralph Waldo Emerson "What are we here for?" Think of how many roystering republican rascals there now are drawing $5,000 to $30,000 a year as foreign ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary, clothed in purple and fine linen and called to stand before kings and princes, while we servants hang our heads on the willows and are exceeding sad. Let us remember that if at first we don't succeed, we should try, try again—and by some other way. Life up your voices then in loud acclaim, O ye of little faith, and keep your entranced gaze fixed steadily upon the golden prize which organized capital holds aloft to view as you help to swell into a grand chorus that cry of the ancient days— "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" B. R. WEBB.

Behind the Sweet Peas

A Memorial Day Story
By DAVID LOWRY

Copyright, 1903, by David Lowry

THE Widow Lacey loved sweet peas, and it is of her great bank, her monster wall, of sweet peas I am thinking now as the locusts' song swells, grows faint, rises again stronger, then suddenly ceases. Just so it rose on that July morning when the earth trembled under the tread of the armed hosts that marched toward Gettysburg.

There was a time when the widow neglected her flowers; when she sat on her porch with her sewing or knitting unnoticed, her hands lying motionless in her lap, while she seemed to be gazing at nothing, unless it was the line where the earth and sky met in the west.

The broad road crossed the hills there. Perhaps she was thinking of her son Jack, who was away somewhere. She never knew exactly where.

AN OFFICER RODE THROUGH THE VILLAGE.

Jack was marching with the hosts that swelled the ranks of the Union armies. But one day the widow received a letter that brought tears and brightness to her face again.

Jack was promoted. It wasn't the money, he wrote. It was the honor. He was the youngest captain in his division. But above everything else it was the certainty that he would obtain a few days' furlough. If it was only for one day he would hasten home to her.

So the widow resumed life again where it had apparently snapped off when Jack marched away. Everything appetizing and healthy grew apace in her garden. Her flowers were the envy of all her neighbors. But her sweet peas! They were the marvel of all who passed that way. In height, thickness and beauty they surpassed all that eyes had ever witnessed.

It was Archie Ray, an old flame of the widow's, who said one day: "Dashed if I ever see anything like them vines, Mrs. Lacey! Must be an uncommon growth you've got. Why, a man coming along the lane back there can't see your house till he gets bang up against it. I'd given all I was paid for fighting in Mexico just to get behind a screen like that at Monterey. Why, it'd mask a battery nicely."

Twenty good yards across the end of her lot the sweet peas stretched. The travelers on the great thoroughfare saw a mass, a blaze of lovely, variegated color. The widow's senses told her that they were as delicate, those flowers, as sweet and as fragile as the babes that had lain in her arms a brief time and then were recalled by the Otter of all bounty. She rejoiced now that Jack had laughingly put the treble higher even than she had desired.

One morning (it was about a month after Jack was promoted) his mother was stooping, scissors in hand, in front of her sweet peas.

As she looked lovingly on the wall of green dashed with the spray of unfolding buds and full blown flowers a low rumble fell upon her. It was like the rumble of a dying storm. The widow listened attentively. Yes, the sky looked dull over there where the sound came from; there was a something that foretold a change.

By the time her tables and mantels were adorned with fresh flowers the rumbling sound was more distinct and so regular and frequent that the widow walked out and looked up and down the valley. The meaning of the sounds she heard dawned upon her. The mighty armies had met in battle. The thick sky was only the dust made by countless feet as men marched in battle array. The rumbling sound was the boom, boom of cannon.

A strange hush fell over nature. The cows stood anxious eyed in the brook, the chickens moved about uncertainly in a wary manner, while the geese stood stupidly in the middle of the dusty road with uplifted heads.

Long before noon the rumble of artillery was distinct. The dust rose in clouds; dull red pillars ascended slowly, bulged and swayed, reflecting the sun's rays, warped and twisted themselves, then melted away. A strange sound, a muffled sound like the faint snapping of sticks, was wafted across the hills to groups of listeners gathered on the knoll opposite the widow's house. Then a fringe, the merest fringe, of men appeared on the horizon.

Fifteen minutes later a stream of wounded Federals limped through the village. The villagers were beside themselves with fear when the adjutant of a brigade, a handsome young man in a new uniform, rode through the village ordering the inhabitants to retire or be "caught between two fires."

The widow looked on composedly. She refused to leave her house. No arguments, no remonstrances, no inducements or threats affected her resolve. If the Federals were coming perhaps she would see her son.

The sun's rays on slanting muskets resolved themselves into shafts of white fire as wave after wave of men passed in undulating billows with muffled tread in dust ankle deep. The sheen of bright buttons, the glitter of scabbards, the glare of bright steel, danced along innumerable waves of infantry and cavalry. It seemed as if the coil steadily rounding the hill would never end.

This coil, this relentless coil, was indeed the leash, the rapidly loosening leash, that held the dogs of war. They were freed from the mighty strain imposed by long inactivity. Soon they would be at the enemy's throat. The fire that tipped their guns, leaping from file to file, would soon be dimmed by the awful glare of battle.

Suddenly a flash split the air in line with the widow's vision. A shriek that rent the heavens started her. She stood on her feet. Two more flashes—two awful shrieks, followed by a crash that seemed to lift the house from its foundations succeeded so swiftly that the widow shut her eyes. And then—his presence was simultaneous with the flashes—a man with angry eyes and a bearded face pushed her out among the soldiers now rushing past in a trot.

They paid no attention to her. They were looking forward; every man there had his head well up. Their eyes were fixed on something distant. The bursting shell high overhead solved the riddle. They were moving in the direction of the enemy's cannon. The widow cast one look at her house. An immense hole was torn in the gable. The roof yawned over the cavity in shell made in its murderous mission. In terror the widow sped to her low springhouse. It was scarcely higher than her bake oven. Standing there, she strove to regain her self command. The clamor of battle filled the summer air.

Out of the dimness and vagueness of confused masses twisting in tangled lines wherever she looked the widow slowly discerned a stream of wagons returning with the Federal wounded. They moved slowly at first, so slow that the road became blocked. Then the cries and oaths of the suffering, the awful groans and moans of the dying, drove the widow into the farthest part of her springhouse in an ecstasy of fear and horror.

But the imagination of a terror stricken woman is greater than contemplation of actual suffering. Soon the widow emerged from the springhouse again. God's sunlight, stained as it was; God's beautiful earth, blasted, torn ruthlessly as it was by wicked men, was a blessed relief from the sensations she experienced while seeking refuge in the earth.

So, standing there in the door of her springhouse, with the never ending chill of fear at her heart now, the Widow Lacey looked and listened like one in a day dream more frightful than a nightmare.

She could hear and distinguish voices now as question and answer followed. Vague apprehensions of defeat communicated themselves to the throng of men gathered on the roadway near her house. A single expression aroused her—"Battery B." With strained ear she hung on the response that followed. "Captain Lacey's battery will be here in an hour. Our orders are to remain here and support him."

"Is Lacy all right?" The widow clinched her hands. Oh, for the strength to pierce that crowd of men and horses! "He was all right fifteen minutes ago."

Jack—her son Jack was alive! Suddenly a cannon shot fairly cut its way through the throng, leaving a quivering mass lying on the ground where sturdy, brave men stood, a moment before.

The widow was shading her eyes with her hands, trying to banish the horrible vision, when the earth trembled under the sound of horses' hoofs, and a battery crossed the slope like a whirlwind, to be checked behind her bank of sweet peas.

An officer rode rapidly along the edge of the broad road. The way was now clear. What expostulations and pleading and threats had failed to accomplish was accomplished only too well by the shot that maimed and killed scores. The distance was not great. The widow beheld her son.

While the horses pawed and snorted the battery that had leaped up the hill behind the sweet peas as if sped there by Jove sent shell after shell into the very midst of the Confederates. But long before the earth rocked under the explosions of Battery B the widow's flying feet carried her swiftly toward her son. A trailing vine—or was it a rein?—caught her foot, and she stumbled and fell.

When she sat up and looked around her she was shelled by a huge bowler. Its gray face rose out of the emerald greenward as a wall, behind which she now cowered, trembling, quivering in every nerve.

The tops of distant hills were all crowned with batteries. In every direction as far as the eye could reach the woods were flecked with flashes.

They leaped from the haze of low lying smoke like lightning. Straight across great fields long lines of men moved until the guns on the top of the hills vomited fire. Then the lines wavered, swayed uncertainly and disappeared in the woods from which they had emerged.

They came out of the woods in even lines. They sought cover again in ragged, disordered masses. Sometimes they came out again, advanced, were torn apart and melted away in a haze.

The battle raged all around her. As far as eye could see the flash and sound of bursting shells met the eye and smote the ear. Gazing now wild eyed at the rain of missiles that filled the air, shrinking, clinging to the rock in the midst of that chaos of terror spreading sounds unparalleled in history, the widow stared as one who saw not, who heard not, like one to whom all sounds were a terror.

The struggle had been in progress five mortal hours when a mass of men and horses emerged from a fringe of woods just below her. The guns near the widow's house belched fire, the mass of men and horses advanced steadily. Another and another mass came after them until the entire slope was covered. An arc of fire from the batteries above them smote the seething, surging waves of humanity, men and animals dashed against each other in wild dismay, and the declining sun, seen through a veil of smoke, seemed to hang motionless in the west as the wavering, mutilated lines of assault faded away in a mist.

Then a silence, a grim silence as fearful as the uproar of all the battle sounds, fell on the scene. The stillness was oppressive. Birds' notes were hushed; the shrilling of insects ceased. All the earth was as silent as a burned out planet.

As far as the eye could see the widow looked on broken fences, crushed wagons, horses lying in uncouth shapes, vague specks that looked like broken and twisted fence posts. These last lay singly and in groups far apart from each other and at all angles. They covered the slopes whichever way she looked.

She was gazing now across the hill where Gettysburg lay when another gust of musketry swept up the slope. Another followed and yet another fainter still. Something pattered on the bare rock. The leaves of the tree near her trembled, then the rain that came to quench the thirst of the wounded and dying descended.

Was it the sweet relief from the steady roar, the confusion, the multiplicity of shifting scenes and sounds and from that crushing silence that soothed and calmed the widow or did nature send solace and blessed sleep with the rain?

At all events the widow slept. When she awoke with a start the earth was dripping. She rose on the instant, all her faculties sharpened. There was no rain of iron or lead now. It was God's merciful gift to man that refreshed and sweetened the slopes once more.

She experienced no difficulty in passing the weary, battle worn guards. They scarcely turned to look at the silent figure flitting past them. She turned a bend in the road. There, not 200 yards distant, she saw her house. A dull gleam of dying embers told her some one was lying there. Perhaps it was Battery B. As she neared the house shadowy forms resolved themselves into tired men buried in sleep, the embers into neglected camp fires.

But where were her sweet peas? Great rents were cut through the vines; half at least had been trodden into the ground by men's and horses' feet. Yes, and there was a cap. She picked it up and beheld the letter B.

Now she was seized with a horrible trembling. She put a hand over her heart and pressed on, on through her ruined plots and vines. Not a sound "But, young man, I don't owe Miss Mason any apology."

"That, sir, is a question which you must permit me to decide. Miss Mason is, as I have said, my cousin. We Ordways—there was a quiver of pride in the way which Donald pronounced the name—are not accustomed to receive instructions from outsiders upon matters of etiquette."

"What makes you think I owe Miss Mason an apology?" "Is it not enough, sir, for you to know that I deem an apology necessary?"

Now his prospective antagonist threw back his head and laughed loud and long. Donald waited patiently until the fit of laughter had passed—it was merely another item to be added to Mr. Douglass' count of rudeness. There had been nothing in the Ordway blood or the Ordway upbringing to teach this fourteen-year-old descendant of the cavaliers that there was anything ridiculous in his demanding, without condescending to explain, an apology from a bearded man of thirty.

"No," said Mr. Douglass, still half choked with laughter. "It is not enough for me to know that you consider an apology necessary. I must catch my train and will bid you good afternoon." With this he turned and would have walked forward, but that Donald laid a detaining hand on his arm.

"Then you must fight me, sir." "Now, look here, you young savage, why don't you pick out a man of your size instead of trying to pick a quarrel with a little fellow like myself?" Evidently Mr. Douglass was inclined to consider the whole affair a joke, for he threw up his arms in a position of defiance which Donald could readily see was burlesqued.

All that could be demanded of even the Ordway courtesy was passed, and the limit reached, Donald struck with all his might at the head of his antagonist. But the antagonist would not fight fairly. He simply grasped both

Miss Lettice was crying. It was in the mind of Donald Ordway, a brave hearted gentleman, aged fourteen, that this fit of tears had to do with the visitor who had just left her. Therefore it was befitting that this visitor should return and make prompt apology to Miss Lettice for anything in his words or actions which might have caused tears. It seemed to Donald that it was both his peculiar duty and much to be valued privilege to bring back this visitor and see that the apology was made, even if it should be necessary to resort to force to accomplish the desired end.

There would be odds against him, he reflected, as he thought of the stranger's broad shoulders and athletic appearance, but odds in battle were not to be considered by an Ordway, nor was it well that one of the family should contemplate the bare possibility of defeat in any warlike undertaking. Of course defeat was possible, but one could and did put it out of his mind in going into battle.

Therefore Donald set out hastily along the oak arched driveway which led to the big gate. It was his calculation that he would be able to overtake the late visitor just outside the boundary of the Ordway demesne, and this cheered him, for it would not do to attack a guest within your gates. Once outside the gates the duties of hospitality do not shield the offender. This was in the code of Donald's blue grass country and was not to be questioned by one who was raised upon the lessons furnished by that code.

And just beyond the big gates he did overtake the visitor, who was walking along the roadside toward the station, slashing angrily at weeds with his cane. Donald had not figured on the cane and wished that he had thought to provide himself with a weapon of some sort. But there was no time to hesitate, and he made haste to put himself alongside his adversary to be.

"Pardon me, sir," said Donald, "for interrupting you." The whole procedure must be carried through with perfect politeness. Rudeness, even to an enemy, was never justifiable. Donald recollected having heard his father often say that.

The man with the cane came to a stop. "Well, what is it, young man?" he said, somewhat brusquely. This brusqueness was very ungentlemanly, thought Donald, but the man was a northerner, and this, in Donald's eyes, showed that he knew no better.

"You are Mr. Douglass?" He had seen the card on the tray in the hall. "Yes. What of it?" this brusquely, as before. Then, "Did Miss Mason send you after me?" with a trace of eagerness in his voice.

"Certainly not, sir," said Donald, with dignity. "I have come on my own account, sir." It was not in the code that one should drag the name of a woman in the quarrels of men.

"Well, what do you want?" The brusqueness was again quite evident. "It will be necessary for you, sir, to apologize to my cousin, Miss Lettice Mason."

"Apologize to Miss Mason?" "You have heard me correctly, sir," Donald was greatly rejoiced at the firm dignity of his own tones. He felt that he was carrying through his part in the affair in a way which would have won the sincere commendation of his father and even of his grandfather, who had been the most famous duelist of his day and state.

"But, young man, I don't owe Miss Mason any apology." "That, sir, is a question which you must permit me to decide. Miss Mason is, as I have said, my cousin. We Ordways—there was a quiver of pride in the way which Donald pronounced the name—are not accustomed to receive instructions from outsiders upon matters of etiquette."

"What makes you think I owe Miss Mason an apology?" "Is it not enough, sir, for you to know that I deem an apology necessary?"

Now his prospective antagonist threw back his head and laughed loud and long. Donald waited patiently until the fit of laughter had passed—it was merely another item to be added to Mr. Douglass' count of rudeness. There had been nothing in the Ordway blood or the Ordway upbringing to teach this fourteen-year-old descendant of the cavaliers that there was anything ridiculous in his demanding, without condescending to explain, an apology from a bearded man of thirty.

"No," said Mr. Douglass, still half choked with laughter. "It is not enough for me to know that you consider an apology necessary. I must catch my train and will bid you good afternoon." With this he turned and would have walked forward, but that Donald laid a detaining hand on his arm.

"Then you must fight me, sir." "Now, look here, you young savage, why don't you pick out a man of your size instead of trying to pick a quarrel with a little fellow like myself?" Evidently Mr. Douglass was inclined to consider the whole affair a joke, for he threw up his arms in a position of defiance which Donald could readily see was burlesqued.

of Donald's small hands in his own big palms, held them fast, and when the upholder of the Ordway name attempted to kick he found himself lying flat on his back.

"Now, youngster, come down off your high horse a bit and tell me what is the matter with you."

Searching his memory for some precedent of his own condition, Donald found none. His ancestors had, some of them, been imprisoned for upholding what they believed to be their right or their honor, but none, so far as Donald knew, had ever been so ignominiously treated as himself. The big tears welled up to his eyes and were prevented from overflowing only by pride. His opponent caught sight of the tears and at once released him. This was putting Donald on honor not to renew hostilities without due warning. He drew himself up with all the remains of dignity which he could command.

"You have the better of me, sir, in the matter of strength. But rest assured that I shall not permit the matter to drop. You will hear from me again, sir."

"Now, youngster, tell me what is the matter. If I owe an apology, you can bet I will make it at once."

Truly this northerner was not so entirely deficient in courtesy. It might be well to explain. "Miss Mason, my cousin, upon whom you called a few minutes ago, went to her room in tears as you left. I naturally take it for granted that you said something to offend her."

"In tears! Something to offend her! Are you quite sure about the tears, my boy?" There was eagerness in the questioner's tones. "Certainly I am sure."

"Then come with me and watch me apologize." And Donald's rather short legs found lurch difficulty in keeping pace with the longer ones of Mr. Douglass. In fact, Mr. Douglass reached the house a good five minutes before Donald came up, puffing and blowing. He could not understand why his cousin should be standing there in the doorway with her head on Mr. Douglass' shoulder and crying at the same time. He pushed forward fiercely.

"Oh, Donald, Donald, dear!" said Miss Lettice, smiling most happily through a mist of tears. Donald went forward more slowly, confronting something now which he did not pretend to understand. "I've apologized, Donald," said Mr. Douglass.

It was not to be expected that Donald, at the age of fourteen, should have arrived at an understanding of woman nature sufficient to comprehend that Miss Lettice had rejected Mr. Douglass and that the tears which she shed were tears of regret at her own action. Nor did he understand exactly the part he had himself played in bringing back the man who had been rejected—bringing him back to be accepted.

But, despite the fact that he was only fourteen, Donald was the best man at the wedding.

Monkeys Earn a Living. Monkeys are more than pets in some parts of the world. At Malabar, India, they are taught to work and have actually made themselves almost indispensable in the homes of the wealthy. The Malabar monkey is of the fine species known as the langur. It is very warm in Malabar, and there is a fan called the punka, which used to be kept in motion by a slave. It required a slave to work each punka, but now every punka in Malabar is worked by a monkey. It was an English officer who conceived the idea of making the langur work in that manner. The fan is a movable frame, covered with canvas and suspended from the ceiling. The motion is caused by pulling a cord. The officer tied the hands of the langur to one of the cords and then by means of another cord put the machine in motion. Of course the monkey's hand went up and down, and the animal wondered what kind of a game was being played. Then the officer patted its head and fed it with candy till soon the langur thought it fine fun to work the punka. The experiment was successful, and now thousands of monkeys are in harness.—Exchange.

A Meat Diet. There is just a little, tiny, infinitesimal error in the assumption that our primordial ancestors lived entirely upon uncooked fruits and nuts, a trifling miscalculation which vitiates the conclusion that what met our wants when we dangled head downward from a tree limb will meet our wants now that we have been turned 'other end up. The error is this: They didn't. No animal lives exclusively on vegetable or animal food. What's a chicken, carnivorous or graminivorous? Graminivorous, of course. It lives upon corn and oats and wheat, the seeds of plants, grass blades, the lettuce that you expected to eat, and all such. Yes, well, you keep them on that diet and see how many eggs you get. And then you give them beef scraps with their grain and notice the difference.—Everybody's Magazine.

Very Good Soup. There was a sound of revelry by afternoon in the barrack room, and it was quite evident that something had grievously offended the gallant sons of Mars. Presently the door was flung open and an officer entered. "What is the meaning of this disgraceful noise?" he snapped, and in reply the orderly banded him a basin. "Would you mind tasting that, sir?" he said. The officer did so. "Why, you ungrateful lot of rascals," he cried, "it strikes me you want something to growl about. I think this is very good soup indeed, and if it's good enough for me—" "Yes, sir; that's just it," interrupted the orderly. "They want to persuade us it's tea, sir!"

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

(LAXATIVE)

Comes to the Rescue of Suffering Humanity.

Miss Rose Huber, Secretary of the Young People's Christian Temperance Association, and who resides at 505 East Eighty-eighth street, New York City, writes:

Pepsin Syrup Company, Monticello, Ill.:

Gentlemen—I regard Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as far above other remedies on the market for all troubles connected with the digestive organs. On account of irregular meals, taken at unseasonable hours, I found that my digestion was all out of order. I had headaches, heartburn and a poor appetite. I doctored for three months, but I found no cure until my druggist told me of the many customers he had who had been cured by Syrup Pepsin, and he advised me to buy it. I took a dose the first night and awoke the next morning with a good appetite. I steadily improved, and after taking the third bottle found myself entirely well again. Yours sincerely, ROSE HUBER.

Look carefully to see if Dr. Caldwell's face is on the package—if it isn't don't buy it, but insist on getting the genuine.

All druggists. 50c and $1.00 packages.

TO CAMP IN A COTTAGE

The furnishing of a summer cottage is simple enough for the family that can afford to order what is needed and have it shipped or driven to the country. But for those to whom the summer outing is made possible only by observing strict economy it is necessary to plan the furnishing as simply as may be.

One essential in furnishing is the color scheme. White and green form the coolest color combination known. White is easily laundered and is always fresh and pretty.

Let us suppose that this cottage is somewhat of a tumble-down, and some good-natured farmer who owns two houses and lives in the new one has permitted you to go into the smaller house during the summer months. The house is an old one it must be thoroughly cleansed with soap, water and disinfectants. The roof, if it has been leaking, must be repaired as soon as the leak is found. A few holes through the sides of the house will not matter so much as a leak in the roof. The cellar, if there be one, must be cleaned and disinfected before the house is ready for the simple furniture which it is to contain.

The beds must be comfortable, or much of the benefit of the outing will be lost. Only the beds and the cook stove are necessities, the other "fixings" are luxuries in a summer cottage.

If the outside of the building is in questionable condition uproot a few vines, wild clematis, woodbine, etc., and move them with plenty of earth from the neighbor's woods to the cottage by the road. Train these carefully, keep them moist and before midsummer the building will be well covered; and when you come again next year the little house will be hidden in a tangle of greenery.

A pansy bed or a bed of cosmos will give pleasing results. On the shady side of the house plant ferns, masses of them. The cottage will be attractive enough before the summer is over.

The water is an important item. Perhaps you will be fortunate enough to locate near a spring. Maybe the cellar is cool. There may be a cave nearby where the water bubbles temptingly. But be careful about drinking the water from an un-used well.

If there are boys in the family there is a chance to fit up the yard with rustic furniture. It is not hard to make and its very roughness is its charm. The same furniture can be used for the house. It is pleasant to have the meals on the porch. If this is to be done it would be wise to inclose the porch in mosquito netting. It would thus be made both fly and mosquito proof and the evenings could then be safely spent on the porch.

There is a chance for exercise in the country and the rent need not be so much that it will prove a burden. And enough strength and enough nerve force can be gained to last through the winter. The country is more restful than the lake shore or the busy, noisy summer resorts.

back can be hung pockets made of denim. These pockets can be used for shoes, slippers and other articles. And in front of the pockets there will be room for other accessories which must be stowed away.

That these articles may be securely shut away, a second curtain with rod at top and bottom should be hung from the top shelf to the floor.

THE DARNER

The girl who wishes to work her way through school will find that the humblest means is likely to prove the most fruitful. The college darner is a "joy forever."

There are stockings to darn, oh, such stacks of them! There are buttons to sew on, there are bits of lace to be sewed on when the lingerie comes back from the wash. Some girl's clothing is constantly falling to pieces and mother isn't there; there are so many things to do that when it isn't absolutely necessary, from the standpoint of economy, the darning, mending, patching and button sewing is, with a sigh of relief turned over to the college sister who is willing to be paid for the accommodation.

There is a chance here, too, for the city darner, where bachelors are numerous.

There is a chance for a village darner and almost any darner, who will make herself known.

It is the woman who is willing to do for pay those things which other people can't do or don't like to do, who is sure of a handsome income.

A WHITE SILK COMMENCEMENT GOWN

The white Japanese or Chinese silks make charming commencement gowns when something a little out of the ordinary is desired. Here is a silk combined with insertion and stitching. The dove collar effect is not effective except in soft fabrics. The insertion on the skirt is united with groups of vertical tucks in a broad band effect.

SCARLET SHOES

To be properly dressed a woman must have shoes to match her gown. Scarlet shoes are worn in Paris. Whether the American will adopt this rather unique fad remains to be seen. The effect is certainly less startling than would be expected. The shoes are not worn with any but plainest and most severe suits, and seem to give just the needed touch of smartness to the otherwise ordinary toilet.

PORCH CUSHIONS

Porch cushions are almost a necessity nowadays. Some useful ones can be made from matting. Cut for each cushion two squares of matting, as large as you wish the cushion. Bind each square with a hand of bright colored cotton, firmly stitched. With a shirring of the cotton join the three sides of the squares, and after filling with excelsior or a thick pad, sew up the other end. Cord and tassels may be added if desired.

TO THINK ABOUT

They are never alone that are accompanied with noble thoughts—Sidney.

DR. TERRILL'S NEW BOOK ON DISEASES OF MEN

Just from the press, should be in the hands of EVERY MAN, YOUNG or OLD, in the United States. It contains information of unlimited value to all afflicted men. # DR. J. H. TERRILL

Mr. Houston says this insures him against any losses.

D. Hart, the Del Rio sheepman, is in the city for a day or so on business and is stopping at the Mahneke. Mr. Hart is referred to as a sheepman for the reason that he is best known as such, but he is in the horse business on a reasonably large scale as well, owing about 5,000 head of the noble animals, which he has been buying from time to time for the past two or three years. His horse business, however, is a sort of side line, his main interests being in sheep. He has not sold nor shipped his muttons this season and says that unless the market improves he will quite likely hold them over for another year. "We have had good rains," said he, "lately and the range is in good shape. I didn't get quite so much for my wool this year as last, but I have sold it. The talk of it being presidential year had its usual effect, whether there was any reason for it or not. Mr. Hart does not rely on the "Shoddy bill" now before congress, to give much relief to the wool grower in the event it passes. "There is a class that desires the shoddy article," said he, "on account of its cheapness and beside that I think it is better that we buy the shoddy article manufactured at home instead of having to depend on the foreign manufacturers for it. We import nearly 50 per cent of the wool we use, anyway. The making of shoddy goods would not, in my opinion, retard the sale of it, for when a man has an all wool suit priced to him at $10 to $15 he knows it is shoddy just as well as the man who is pricing it to him and he buys it because it is cheap and answers his purpose."

C. H. Becker of Pearall is in the city on his way to Alpine, where his firm has recently acquired interests. He says good rains fell in and around Alpine the early part of last week and that the country was thereby much benefited. Down at Pearall, he said, a good rain fell Friday and crop prospects are good, especially for corn and cotton. The weevil is giving no trouble now and the farmers are hopeful that they will, through the use of paris green and cultural methods, reduce his ravages to the minimum. About 30 per cent of the cotton in Frio county will be grown from the old stalks this year and the crop is about thirty days earlier than last year. The weevil from Moore south is scarce and the general opinion is that he either moved north or died before he had any cotton to work on, as he was in evidence earlier in the season. Live stock is in good shape and there will be few fat cows to go to market unless it is in the fall. The calf crop is heavy and, of course, the cows stand no show to put on a great deal of flesh until the surplus of calves are cut off and marketed. There will be a good sprinkling of fat steers going to market within the next thirty or forty days if the indications are sufficient, and I was glad to see an upward trend of the prices last week. I hope it will continue until at least the fat cattle are worked off and really fat stuff is about all that a cowman should ship with the expectation of getting anything like a satisfactory price."

R. B. Humphrey has returned from a short trip to Taylor, where he spent two or three days with his family. "The heaviest rain fell up there Saturday within my recollection," said he to the Express Tuesday. "This practically assures a bumper corn crop for old Williamson, and the boll weevil will have to drill another army or two and force the vacation of Dalmy, Kin Chou and Port Arthur to prevent the farmers from making some cotton, at least. Saturday was a great day for the farmer and grazier up there. There are only a few cattle on feed at Taylor now and if the market keeps on working higher, they won't be there long."

Moore & Allen sold a car load of grass cattle in Fort Worth Monday for the best prices of the year. There were twenty steers, with an average of 937 pounds, that brought $3.70, and four cows, averaging 1,127 pounds, at $3.25. The weight of both indicates that the firm is in full sympathy with the idea that the best are the cheapest. The cows were getting too old to be of further service as breeders and were among the first of the grade cows the firm has been using for several years. Mr. Moore said: "The cows, counting say five calves to each of them, have very well paid for their keep, besides bringing about $36.65 gross and having finished their labors on the ranch. The quality, of course, had much to do with their performance in the market, but not all. We have never permitted our cattle, and especially the young ones, to be short of grass. If a drought threatens, and they do sometimes, we lighten up our pastures so there will be enough grass for what is left. A good cow and good bull with plenty to eat are a better investment than four trifling cows and a bull that must subsist on scenery alone."

There is a new dip for ticks, William Ragland has just returned from a trip to his ranch at Driscoll and brings news of a new experiment successfully conducted by his brother, Thomas Ragland, on his registered Shorthorn bulls that were badly infected with ticks. He has a dip which has been on sale in Texas for the past quarter of a century and which is used extensively by hide dealers, butchers and others to poison hides in order to protect them from vermin. Mr. Ragland said: "Tom has a flock of goats and has been keeping this dip in a barrel in which to submerge his goatlings as he kills the animals from time to time. The name of the insecticide is the Buenos Ayres hide poison and is also mixed in the proportion of twenty pounds of poison to 500 gallons of water. His bulls were greatly annoyed by the ticks, which seem to have the same preference for live stock that a cowman has, and my brother concluded that he would give them a bath in the solution he had on hand. He had no vat, or course, so he applied it with his hand, and one application removed every tick without the least injury to the animals. I know they had plenty of ticks on them before the poison was applied and I carefully examined them when I was down there and did not find any. I do not know what the cost of dipping is in Beaumont oil, but at 20 cents per pound, which is the price at which the Buenos Ayres hide poison sells in 20-pound cans, at holding 2,000 gallons of the solution would cost only $16. How many cattle this would dip I am not prepared to say, but I believe that it would prove less expensive than either kerosene or Spindletop oil." Mr. Ragland's experiment will doubtless prove interesting both to the Texas Live Stock Sanitary Board and the Bureau of Animal Industry.

CURIOUS CONDENSATIONS.

An eagle the other day attacked a peasant who was driving to Boulieu, near the Swiss border. The fight lasted ten minutes, and ended in the eagle being hit on the head with the butt of the man's whip.

The total length of the navigable waterways of Belgium amounts to 1,260 miles. As the total area of the country is 11,373 square miles, there is one mile of waterway to every eight and one-half square miles of territory; 85 per cent of the navigable waterways is under the control of the state.

An Austrian statistician finds that the average lease of life of a medical practitioner is 60 years. Deaths due to tubercular consumption only amount among them to 7 per cent, thus showing how careful they are in taking precautions against infection. On the other hand, fully 40 per cent of doctors die of heart disease and nervous collapse.

A French chef who prepared a snow-like dish for the Duc de Chartres in 1774 is said to have been the first to make that cool luxury known as ice cream. Lord Bacon was possessed of the knowledge that there was a process of congelation by means of snow and salt; but to him this was a scientific fact, and he little dreamed of the idea that in after years this congelation would prove such a delightful refreshment.

After twenty years of dogged fighting Samuel Fessenden of Connecticut has secured control of the state republican machine. Fessenden fixed his eyes on the United States senate in 1884, when he was a prominent Blaine boomer, and has kept his object in view ever since. Fessenden's stubborn persistence recalls a remark he made at the republican convention in St. Louis in 1896. Joseph H. Manley of Maine was managing Thomas B. Reed's presidential boom, but capitulated when he realized McKinley's strength. Fessenden, enraged at this faint-hearted action, roared at Manley: "Joe, God Almighty hates a quitter."

We Want to Give Every Sufferer From Stomach Disorders of Any Kind, Constipation, Asthma, Sore Throat or Lung Afflictions, Our New and Wonderful Cure—It Shall Cost You Nothing

Milks' Emulsion will cure you of stomach trouble in any form, constipation, asthma, throat or lung afflictions. We are so confident of this that we have decided to give one 50-cent bottle free of charge to every sufferer. If you do not know the wonderful merits of this great remedy and are a sufferer from any of these afflictions, fill out the following coupon and mail to us. We will then send you an order which will be accepted by the druggist in exchange for the remedy. There are no restrictions; no obligations beyond your promising to take the remedy as prescribed. We will pay the druggist. Your only expense will be for the stamp and envelope necessary to send the coupon to us. This is an honest offer and your acceptance of it means your early and complete recovery from any form of stomach trouble, constipation, asthma, throat or lung afflictions with which you may unfortunately be afflicted.

Not a Nostrum

When your hands or lips are chapped the skin is in exactly the same condition that the lining of your throat, bronchial tubes or stomach is when those parts are troubling you. You wouldn't think of using any of the medicine on your chapped hands that you take into your stomach to cure your internal ills. That's just why so many people are chronically complaining of asthma, sore throat, lung afflictions and stomach troubles. The best remedy known for chapped skin is ordinary cream. Milks' Emulsion exercises the same healing and soothing influence over the mucous linings of the throat, bronchial tubes, stomach and intestines that cream does over the external skin.

When your throat is sore; when you have sharp, shooting pains in the chest; when your stomach is out of order, and the doctor calls it catarrh or indigestion, or any of the other common names, the afflicted parts are in the same sore, cracked and sick condition that your rough and wind-cracked hands often are in. Much depends upon the condition of your skin. When it is soft and firm there is no pain. When it is rough and chapped every move of the affected parts causes suffering. The skin, or mucous lining of the internal parts, performs important functions. When it gets into the rough and sore condition these functions are improperly and painfully performed. If it is the stomach, the proper secretions are not produced, the food is poorly digested, constipation results and from this may develop any of the innumerable afflictions which beset the human body.

It all starts from the unnatural condition of the lining of the affected parts. It is useless to treat indigestion or constipation, treat the mucous lining of the stomach. Restore it to its natural and healthful condition and all the other ills will soon disappear. Milks' Emulsion is just the thing to use when the throat is dry and sore, or when the secretions of the stomach

IN KERR COUNTY

J. W. Coffey of Knoxville was in Kerrville yesterday. Mr. Coffey reports the country abundantly blessed with rain, and everything in a prosperous condition.

George Lowrance, son of P. O. Lowrance, a well known ranchman of the Divide country, near Mountain Home, happened on an accident on Saturday evening of last week, at about 8:30 o'clock, in which the middle finger of his right hand was shot off. The young man left the ranch on horseback with a pack of hounds for the purpose of having a wildcat chase, and when some distance from the ranch he was in the act of loading his pistol, his horse starting at something, causing the pistol to be discharged, shooting the finger off near the hand as above stated. The young man was thrown from his horse, and walked some distance to the ranch of Charles Leine-weber, who brought him to this city the following morning. Drs. Palmer & Fordtran dressed the wound and he is now doing nicely.

MISS SARAH MacCOMB, 6036 Forrestville Ave., Chicago, Ill.

DANDERINE GREW THIS HAIR

And we can PROVE IT. If you want your hair to grow THICK and LONG DANDERINE is the remedy you will be obliged to use.

We have a standing offer to wager $1,000 that it is the only HAIR TONIC on the market to-day that will positively stop and cure Falling Hair and make HAIR GROW.

Average growth 1 1/4 in. per month for twenty consecutive months. By permission we herewith reproduce photograph of Miss Sarah MacComb, a lady who has lived in Chicago all her life and is well known to the city, especially on the South Side. Her hair before she commenced the use of Danderine would not reach below her waist, while now it touches the floor when she stands erect. This remarkable growth is the result of using Danderine, the greatest of all hair and scalp tonics, regularly as a dressing.

It Gave Her Hair New Life and will do the same for you if you give it a fair trial. Danderine puts new life and vigor in both the hair and scalp. It makes the hair fluffy, silky, and there seems to be no limit to the growth it will produce. There is no other that can be compared to it, as it is founded on new ideas altogether.

SHE IS WILLING TO SWEAR TO IT.

By request of Miss MacComb we reproduce the following letter: KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., Chicago, Ill. Gentlemen—I am having so many inquiries regarding the ad. that you are now running showing my picture that I am sending you this letter for the benefit of the public. I used Danderine for ten consecutive months and the growth of my hair was one and one-fourth inches per month, making a total of twenty five inches in twenty months. You are at liberty to use the letter uncensored, but I would like to see the trouble of answering the large number of inquiries which I am receiving daily. Sincerely, Chicago, Feb. 4, 1904.

NOW at all drugists in three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address and ten cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

LABOR NOTES

During the past week Rev. James S. Myers, pastor of the Christian Tabernacle, delivered his lecture, "Unionism and the Golden Rule," at Beaumont before a large audience. In discussing the lecture the Beaumont Journal says:

"In prefacing his remarks, Dr. Myers said that he did not come to Beaumont as a member of any labor organization nor as a member of Parry's famous Citizens' Alliance. He came as a preacher of the gospel and he believed that it was part of the province of the ministry to study the factors of human welfare and human progress, and these two great subjects were so closely interwoven with the cause of labor and the problems of the equitable distribution of wealth, that the speaker felt it his duty to make a special study of these problems, with a view of assisting his brethren if possible to a clearer and truer conception of their ideals and aspirations, and therefore a fuller recognition of their duties and relations to their fellow men." "Dr. Myers sketched tersely the growth of trades unionism and union labor organizations in America, and said that the principles of union labor were those of brotherhood and of human progress, and in the last and final analysis was an application to our daily lives of the sublime and divine precepts of the Savior of mankind."

"He said that there was a growing unrest throughout the country among the sons of toil, which was due in a large measure to the increased intelligence and power of thought on the part of the masses, which led them to a clearer perception that there was something radically wrong in the distribution of enormous wealth of this country and which made them rest about for a means of relief from economic wrong. He defined the meaning of the Parry movement and predicted that it was as yet only a nucleus of what might be expected. The encroachments and arrogance of corporate greed were symbolized in the movement and it would require all the efforts of the laboring men to resist the onslaught. He laid down the just and right principles for organization among laboring men and pointed out the dangers and folly of going too far in their demands at the expense of the justness and righteousness of their case."

"Dr. Myers spoke forcibly and eloquently upon these topics and it is undoubted that he will receive an audience this evening to listen to his lecture which will tax the capacity of the tabernacle."

THURBER PICNIC

Many of the local labor leaders and workers attended the big union picnic held at Thurber yesterday, among those going being C. W. Woodman and wife. The picnic proved one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings of labor folks held for a long time. Good music, plenty of food and a number of short speeches by prominent men in the movement for organized labor made the day a pleasant and profitable one.

JOINT MEETING

A joint meeting of the members of the Team Drivers' Union, No. 65, and the Hack Drivers' Union, No. 52, will be held this morning at the Labor Temple, for the purpose of amalgamating. Instructions have been received from General President Shea of the Team Drivers, empowering them to take in all members of the Hack Drivers.

MEETINGS THIS WEEK

Today—Joint meeting Hack Drivers' and Team Drivers', Typographical Union, Coopers' Union, No. 52, will be held at the Labor Temple, for the purpose of amalgamating. Monday—Pressmen. Tuesday—Cooks' and Waiters' Union, Painters' Union, Cigar-makers' Union. Wednesday—Mattress-makers' Union, Carpenters' Union, Electricians' Union, Label League. Thursday—Trades Assembly. Saturday—Brewery Workers' Union, Stationary Firemen's Union, Garment Workers' Union.

COMMERCIAL TELEGRAPHERS

In pursuance of the policy being adopted all over the country of meeting openly for the purpose of organizing, a meeting of the commercial telegraphers in this city was held Friday night, prominent leaders in the organization at Dallas being present at the session. A number of the local telegraphers were present and preliminary steps toward the organization of a local in this city were taken. A permanent organization was not effected, however. This step will be taken at a meeting to be called later, at which time officers for the union will be elected.

CATTLE OUTLOOK BRIGHTER.

"I should say that taken as a whole the outlook for cattle raisers is 10 per cent brighter today than it was three weeks ago, but there is still plenty of room for improvement," said J. M. Daugherty, a cattle raiser, who has ranches in New Mexico, two in El Paso county, one in Indian Territory, one in Andrews county and one in Kansas. "The range country will require another good soaking rain to bring up the grass as it should be at this season of the year. In fact there are large areas of ranges that will have not received a respectable wetting this year."

"While the railroads are giving cattle shippers a somewhat improved service, as compared with a few months ago, all the grievances that cattlemen have against railroads have not been adjusted by any manner of means. Agitation in this line will be continued until the whole matter is adjusted on an equitable basis. Take the matter of freight rates. Ten years ago I could ship from Catonsville, I. T., to St. Louis for $25 a car. Today the freight rate is $50 per car. The rates were either abnormally low ten years ago, or they are abnormally high today. Whenever a railroad puts in a rate too low, it is quickly removed; the $25 rate I refer to remained in effect for many years."

"Another factor that is mitigating against cattle raisers is that the poor condition of many of the ranges has prevented the cattle owners from selling their stuff. I have been able to dispose of only 1,600 yearling steers this spring. That is all that I could have sold, even if I had had buyers to make better offers, for the reason that the condition of the grass in the sections of the country where I have cattle is such that to drive the cattle to a shipping point would entail a loss too great to be ignored."

"The cattle business has passed the happy-go-lucky stage. We must watch the details of the business now with a great deal more care than was bestowed even five years ago. The man who succeeds in the cattle business today, is the man who knows how to turn sharp corners and how to take advantage of every opportunity that offers. The profit in cattle raising, such little as there is at prevailing prices, is made by cashing in on details that ten years ago were regarded as being too trivial to require any attention. The evolution in the business has been gradual and during the past three years has been considerable."

"Of course all cattle raisers are looking for an advance in prices. We are continually looking for that, at the same time conditions today warrant one in believing that this advance will come in the course of a few weeks. Everything is propitious for a higher market and there is nothing to be able to justify one in believing that the present low plane of prices can continue much longer."

WILL HOLD HEARING

The Interstate Commerce Commission last week issued an order to proceed of their own motion to investigate the freight rate situation and the service of railroads in live stock shipments in the West and Northwest. The investigation will be confined to the line west of the Mississippi river but will include the rates from Texas, Indian Territory, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arizona to market points but will include the rates and service from those states and territories to northern ranges. It will include all discriminations, preferences and extortions to and from all those states and Kansas and Colorado, North, East and Northwest.

This order was entered by request of the railroad committee of the Interstate Commerce Executive Committee, which was presented to the commission by Hon. S. H. Cowan, counsel of the committee, and Hon. Murdo Mackenzie. The hearing will be fixed at Denver and while the exact time is not yet announced, it will be during the summer or early fall, just as soon as the Interstate Executive Committee can prepare its case to be presented.

The effect of this hearing will be not only to get at the actual existing facts in regard to these matters, but to also secure from the commission a decision as to the reasonableness of these rates and service. All the lines serving the West as far as Utah and Idaho are to be investigated and the Interstate Executive Committee expect to be able to present a strong case. Cattlemen from all parts of the West will be asked to assist the committee in securing the evidence needed to show to the commission the actual existing conditions in regard to the transportation of live stock in the west."

AFTER MEXICAN RANCHES.

Owing to the fact that the day of great ranches is about past in the United States there is a heavy demand for land in the republic which is suitable for grazing purposes. Numerous tracts are being negotiated for and it is expected that several deals of considerable magnitude will be closed in the near future.

While in a large number of cases lands suitable for ranch property in the United States are being negotiated for remote from railroads, yet their cheapness compared with similar lands in other sections is affirmed.

WELCOME GIVEN TO LORD CURZON

Prime Minister of England Greeted Him in Brief and Unceremonious Manner

RISE HAS BEEN RAPID

No Young Man Has Come to Eminence More Rapidly Than India's Viceroy

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET.
(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.)
LONDON, June 4.—The welcome given to Lord Curzon when he arrived at Charing Cross station last week must have been as pleasing to him as all the great state ceremonials, with their oriental magnificence, to which the viceroy has been accustomed in the Indian empire. There was genuine astonishment on his face when, stepping from the train, accompanied by his lovely wife, he saw the large and distinguished crowd who were waiting to greet him. Men pressed forward to shake him by the hand, and the first minister to welcome him was the prime minister. In the brief and unceremonious words so characteristic of an Englishman: "How well you look! How are you after all these years?"
"First rate," said Lord Curzon. "Awfully kind of you to come." Lord Knollys had been sent by the king to tell the viceroy that he and Lady Curzon were to drive straight to Buckingham Palace, as the king wished to be amongst the first to greet the viceroy.
"He wishes you to come at once," said Lord Knollys.
"Now?" asked Lord Curzon.
"Now," replied Lord Knollys. And so he entered his carriage and drove to the palace, where he had an hour's private talk on Indian matters with the king. No young man has ever risen more promptly to eminence than Lord Curzon.
As a very young man he published in 1894 a work entitled, "The Problems of the Far East." This book excited the interest and admiration of a great many prominent men, who saw in it a power of discrimination and a foresight which are unusual qualities in one who was still so young a man.

In dealing with the political, social and economic conditions of the kingdoms of the far east, China and Japan and the relations of both to Russia and to Korea formed some of the principal features, and it is extremely interesting in the light of present events to see what the Hon. Geo. Curzon wrote as far back as 1894.
Japan, he said, has been blamed for squandering too much money upon armaments, military and naval, and for neglecting the requirements of industrial and commercial expansion, but the critics lose sight of the part which Japan aspires to play in the far east, and to which her present policy of expenditure and organization is strictly subordinated. That part is determined by her geological situation. Placed at a maritime coign of vantage upon the flank of Asia, she is peculiarly analogous to that occupied by Great Britain on the flank of Europe; exercising a powerful influence over the adjoining continent, but not necessarily involved in its responsibilities, she sets before herself the supreme ambition of becoming, on a smaller scale, the Great Britain of the far east.
He then proceeds to say how the great point which Japan can never lose sight of is the advance of the Muscovite from the north, and he further adds that the position which Japan has adopted in her friendly relations to China, with a view to guarding them against this common peril, will be strong enough to preserve the balance of power in the far east and to prepare the way by which Japan may attain to that high place which she yearns to fill among the nations of the world.
During his five years of government in India Lord Curzon has introduced several notable reforms. The splendid regiment, mainly composed of rajahs, which constituted one of the great features of the Durbar, is among the tokens of Lord Curzon's new policy. He is endeavoring to reform the young Indian princes by bringing him in contact with European customs and European ethics, and to send him back to his native province with a higher ideal of what his government should be. That this had undoubtedly been brought about in many instances is unquestioned. Only yesterday I was talking with some one who is intimately acquainted with some of these young men and who said that they were constantly bemoaning the darkness of their kingdom, their still uncivilized customs, the seclusion of their women, and many other points which unquestionably in the future they will live to reform.
In the high position to which Lord Curzon has attained by his own undoubted merits he has been loyally advised by his beautiful wife. Of all the charming American women who have come to our shores none is more universally admired than the Vicereine of India.
There is a story which is being told in England, and which originated in India, where it was related by an American gen-

THE AMERICAN ADVENTURES OF Marmaduke Squeezledeane Bart.

TOLD IN EXTRACTS FROM HIS DIARY

While away from my hotel today I felt famished, and decided to procure some food. My attention was attracted by various places bearing signs, but I looked particularly for a chophouse. I had much difficulty in deciding which place to enter, after seeing the great variety of signs displayed. One was, "Three-Cent Lunch Room," another was "Meals at All Hours" another was, "Regular Meals," others were, "Dishes prepared while you wait," "Oyster Bay," "Lunch Room," "Dining Hall," "Hot dinner lunch, with a glass of beer, 15 cents," "Merchants' Dinner" and "Quick Lunch."
I decided to patronize the latter, for I had some misgivings, and thought it advisable to select a place in which the ordeal would be over as soon as possible.
As I entered I found myself in the midst of a mob of people, racing for seats along the outside of a long counter. By rare good fortune I secured one of these seats without unnecessary roughness. It appears that the proprietor betrayed no surprise when I told him. He pointed to a sign that stated he was not responsible for it, and remarked cold-bloodedly that if I could not watch my chattels he could not, and that he had all he could do to keep foreign-looking strangers passing Canadian money on him.
I shall write to the Times about this.
I sadly fell into a line of pale persons with toothpicks between their lips, and passed out. My entire visit to this place had lasted only 14 1/2 minutes, which is one-fifth of the time I usually spend over a meal.

some functionary in the rear. He spoke in this wise:
"Wa-a-a in th' dark! Peacherinos two! Three up and spa-air over! Hame and! More oloo! A stack of wheats! Wan rare! A Charley ruche! Draw wan! Two soft! Irish stew! French fried! Sinkers!"
I must write to the Times about this.
By this time I was desperate, and had decided to tell him to bring me anything, but he was already waiting on a new relay of voracious diners. Finally I caught his eye and before I had the words out of my mouth he shoved in front of me a cup of cold coffee with milk in it, a wedge of pie and a plate of ham and eggs that a decamping patron had stated he did not have "time to wait for."
This I consumed in some discomfort, and attempted to pay the waiter, who laughed scornfully and shoved a greasy red card at me, telling me to pay at the desk, "you mutt."
I discovered that some one had stolen my umbrella, but the proprietor betrayed no surprise when I told him. He pointed to a sign that stated he was not responsible for it, and remarked cold-bloodedly that if I could not watch my chattels he could not, and that he had all he could do to keep foreign-looking strangers passing Canadian money on him.
I shall write to the Times about this.

to the meeting of those two men whose lives have been linked in so strange a way in that vast country, for which both have done so much, and the memory of whose work will remain indissolubly bound.
After the service in the Abbey, the interment took place in the little village churchyard at Pirbright.
Little Franz Vessey, the boy violinist, who is creating such a sensation in London, was summoned to play before the queen. The little lad, who is a merry child, was taken by his mother to Buckingham, accompanied by six ladies in waiting, the Lord Chamberlain and the queen's grandchildren. Her majesty spoke to little Franz in German, but it was not long before the boy took out his violin and began to play music which drew from the queen wonder and admiration. "How marvellous!" she would say. "Is it not beautiful?" And then came one of those little tender touches which endear the queen to the people of this land. She took the boy on her knee and asked him how long he practiced. Then her majesty kissed him and asked him whether he would play one more air for her, and that was Schubert's "Ave Maria." The queen followed every note, and said: "Is it possible that a child can give such wonderful expression to his music?" And as she parted from the boy she kissed him again, and said: "You play so beautifully that I could cry." And then little Franz was sent out into the gardens to play with the royal children, but he was soon back before his royal patron, asking to see the cannons, and to the boy's great delight he was shown the object of his search, and saw the cannons, which delighted him beyond measure.
It is happy, however, that these infant prodigies still retain joy of childhood. Little Vessey states that his idea of bliss is to eat chocolates all day and to ride in a motor car. His deft little fingers are now earning 350 guineas a day, so his desires will probably be satisfied—a strange thing in this world.
On May 10 Professor Charles Koett completed his fiftieth year as organist of St. Mary's church in Ottumwa, Iowa. His compensation has always been small. He began with a little melodeon, and it is said that he has never omitted a mass, vesper or benediction at which he had promised to play. He is now 69 years of age.

NEW GUN METAL LOCKET FOR CHATELAINES

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE LOCKET

DETAILS OF SLEEVE AND SLEEVE

BY MISS MANHATTAN.

New York, June 1.

From Paris comes a novelty that could have been conceived by no other mind than that of a Frenchman or French woman. It is a veritable stroke of genius, comprising as it does the good points of a cape with all its bad features eliminated. The novelty is a happy combination of a cape and a coat so designed that it can be either one or the other at a moment's notice and without the slightest inconvenience to the wearer in making the change. The great disadvantage to a cape is its lack of covering for the arms. When a wrap of any weight is necessary the arms require covering quite as much as the rest of the figure and a cape, no matter how long and voluminous it may be, never protects the arms on a breezy day.

The new cape-coat which has just emerged from the dressmakers in Paris is made of soft black taffeta and lined with white. When laid out perfectly flat the shape of the garment seems almost oval, with a circular piece cut out of the center for the neck and a straight opening running from here to the circumference. This part is slashed off down the front and the outer edge of the oval is cut straight across at that point which really the bottom of the front. A clever woman could copy the pattern from the photograph, which shows the entire outline of the cape, and the details of the trimming could easily be followed from the other illustrations. Even if you don't want to make it yourself the suggestions are excellent for the dressmaker to follow and she can make as many variations of the model as she chooses.

For the whole garment it requires about five yards of fine French taffeta and an equal number of white satin for the lining. Trimmings depend upon individual taste, for they may be elaborate or quite simple without spoiling the charm of the wrap.

The great feature of the cape-coat is the arrangement of the sleeves, whereby the arms can be thrust through vertical slits made in the sides of the cape for this purpose, or they may be held inside, in which case the cape will look very much like any other loose circular wrap. There is a collar that rises high at the back and curves down in front to meet the line of the cape. This part is overlaid with a black silk passementerie that continues on over the shoulders and across the back to simulate a yoke. This particular cape had a dark green lousine foundation for the yoke and collar, which made an effective background for the black trimming. Down the fronts and around the entire bottom of the cape were four rows of curious machine stitching executed so that on the under side only a fine black line showed, while the upper thread was of heavy green silk. By using a certain machine attachment this upper thread was made to run along like a rope stitch.

Outlining the cape and running either side of the two vertical slits was an application of inch-wide silk braid of a flat and plain design. Around the yoke it was put on deep curves and the intersections were drawn into points, but elsewhere the trimming was quite flat. The lining, which was of white, was plain white satin with a white and black passementerie extending down the inside of the fronts of the cape and around the inner part of the collar.

So far the garment is not unlike many others cut on about the same lines, but the novel part is found in the sleeves and the miraculous way in which they transform the simple little cape into a very smart coat. The sleeves are full ones of black taffeta put upon a lining of white which shows on the inner seam, where the black silk is left loose from the cut to the shoulder. It is turned back with a hem and over the white satin is sewed a strip of passementerie to match that which runs down the inside of the fronts. The fulness of the rather bouffant sleeves is gathered into moderately deep cuffs, which are wide enough to hold three or four bands of black braid over green lousine and at the hand they are finished with a frill of creamy lace. The sleeves are fastened to the inside of the cape at the upper point of the slit which comes well over the shoulder. When the arms are not thrust through these openings a very smart appearance is given the wrap by having the sleeves tucked back just a trifle to disclose the arms. The effect is not at all bad, for everything about the wrap is beautifully finished, so that it could be worn inside out if one chose to.

There is only one fastening to the front and this consists of a single hook and eye which is closed a very thin fancy black silk frog. No other trimming is needed here.

The variations that could be played upon this model are innumerable. For seashore wear blue cloth lined with scarlet would be stunning, and for such use the additional sleeves, combined with the looseness of the wrap, would make it an ideal garment. No matter how the wind might blow or how cold the breezes might become, the arms would always be well protected with this charming cape-coat.

In all white, with more elaborate ornamentation, the design would be excellent for an evening wrap. Great as so easily over any gown, and if the arms are bare this wrap supplies just the needed warmth. Alas, my mind pictures a striking scarlet cape-coat of silk or lightweight cloth lined with white and trimmed with just a touch of gilt and black souches black.

On the box seat of a coach such a costume would certainly present a strikingly attractive picture.

The newest shade of pongee, which is called white, but really is an ivory tint, is to be worn for smart street costumes, and to alternate with the jacket part of the suit it would be an excellent plan to have one of these cape-coats. It could be lined with the same shade in a lighter weight silk and trimmed in some of the heavy macramé laces or corded ornaments. You can quickly comprehend the possibilities offered by this chic idea, and I should not be surprised in the least if the cape-coat became as important a part of the feminine wardrobe as the raincoat or the opera wrap. It has its rare qualities and, besides, is so very sensible and serviceable.

Now that suits of ordinary voile can be bought ready made, the fashionable woman elects to have her spring and summer costumes made of very novel weaves which come only in imported fabrics or else to have them of some of the very expensive silks. The pongee already mentioned is considered very

Novelties for the Summer Home.

Summer homes are to be daintier and more artistic than ever this season, and for the woman who is contemplating the furnishing of cozy and airy quarters for the warm months there are the prettiest flowered fabrics that make one feel cool just to look at them. While the design suggests that of roses and flowering trellises, walls, windows, beds, chairs and doors will be hung and covered with some such material. If the furniture is purchased new this year the chances are in favor of its being wicker, tinted some harmonious color that speaks for coolness and comfort.

The one great point about summer surroundings is to have them make you think the thermometer is in degrees or more lower than it actually registers. Of course, to do this one must understand all the tricks of the art of resting the eye and giving it something calm and soothing to look upon.

There is a yellow shade of wicker furniture that comes in a perfect perfection in this line as anything imaginable. The great deep chairs, the tables, lounging seats, sofas, desks, and even screens and cabinets, are all made of this woven rattan to form substantial and comfortable pieces. There is a dainty green set, too, that tempts the prospective purchaser, for it has such a sweet, cool look about it that the holder can already see it installed in a large, airy summer room, or parts of it scattered over a spacious piazza.

With plenty of flowers and greenery this flowered fabric that is cool to the eye and to the touch there is no reason why indoors there should not be as comfortable on the hottest day of the summer.

Those who are not sticking to the flower motif for rooms have found many useful novelties in the Syrian shops down town. Long strips of linen embroidered in yellow, blue or white silk, can be purchased for the traditional song. The two-yard length is enough to hang at the sides of windows, and the pieces are not so wide as to obstruct the light or air. They succeed in giving a pretty finish to the wooden frame. On the palm-wood dining table a luncheon cloth and doilies worked in the same style carry out the color scheme of the room in a pretty way.

Hand-woven rag rugs have taken another lease of life, and will be one of the best purchases of the summer home furnisher. One of the shops on Forty-second street is making a specialty of such rugs woven in actual patterns and colors. The prices they ask for them would make our grandmothers blush at modern audacity, for they would think it exorbitant to pay almost as much for a rag rug as for an Oriental square. A fair price they are certainly worth and it must be admitted that there is nothing equal to one of these rugs for a matting or plain wood floor.

The greens are beautiful, and the tans, combined with yellow, are attractive enough to tempt anyone to buy one just for the sake of starting the necessary fittings for a summer home.

That these rugs are not woven in quite the old-fashioned way is readily seen when they are examined. The strips are free from knots and pieces, and there are no hit-and-miss patterns so characteristic of the antique article. Occasionally, however, one of variegated designs is put in the collection just for old times sake, and some people prefer it to the modern interpretation.

Mesh Corsets.

New ideas in corsets drift into the market almost as regularly as changes in fashions occur. To be sure, the corset either originates a style of dress or is originated by it, and so one would expect to behold frequent alterations in lines and cut. The latest novelty which we are urged to try is a corset made of a strongly woven net without seams and opening at the back or not at all, according to the buyer's preference. They are extremely long even for corsets of this day of the straight-front and exaggerated length of hip, and the only stiffening is at the sides, where there is a bit of ribbed material. The fronts and backs have steel, but these are so light and pliable as to scarcely count. The lower edge is finished with a binding of satin ribbon and at the top there is a crushed ribbon trimming made full across the bust to serve as a slight pad as well as a decoration. Garters are fastened to the front and to the deep hips, so that there is no chance for the stays to roll up.

Never since corsets have been worn has anything been designed which holds to the figure so perfectly as this one. It is made expressly for the woman of unusually good form and who likes to make the most of her slenderness and suppleness. For the stout woman such corsets are quite out of the question. She requires all the curve that can be secured by the aid of whalebone and steel.

When this corset opens in the back there are the customary laces, but when no visible sign of getting into it is found, then it is slipped on over the head and adjusted by means of small lacing under each arm. They come in the most vivid colorings, bright rose pink, corn-flower blue and deep cream.

Lace & Chiffon Opera Cloaks.

No garment demands more careful consideration among all the requirements of a modish woman's wardrobe than the opera cloak, and yet none offers an equal opportunity for individual taste and a corresponding personal triumph. One which was worn at the last royal drawing-room consisted of horizontal martingues of white valenciennes lace and ecru batiste embroidered by hand, with minute clusters of tinted roses applied on gulpure of a warm cream tint. Pale blue chiffon was artistically inserted so as to separate each row of dentelles. The peleries were finished off at the bottom, as were the petals which form the two fronts, with a full ruffling of a light blue chiffon. The lining was as artistic and as striking as the exterior of the garment. White chiffon had been gathered and caught around the shoulders and waist seams into a luxurious fulness that gave a certain distinct air of richness to the interior. This lining added much to the effect of the cloak when thrown over the arm or the side of the box at the opera. This striking cloak was not so as just to touch a trifle below the waist line behind and sloped gracefully to a point at the knees.

Cycling Suits Severely Simple.

Although cycling has given way largely to the swift onward rush in one's auto-car, yet thousands of women cling to the cycle, and no other sport demands so imperatively a distinctive costume of its own. The new cycling suits are of the plainest designs. The shirtwaist has simply a double-breasted front, and is front-closing, with large metal cases are trimmed with gold rings and stems, by which the case is opened, to show a divided interior, in which there is a small rectangular mirror, rimmed with gold, and on the opposite side an oval frame for a picture. It is an ingenious way to conceal the face of a dear one, and it gives such an excellent chance for a woman to take a hasty peep at her own reflection while ostensibly gazing at the picture on the other side.

The daintiest of these gungmetal cases are studded with very small turquoise. This bit of color relieves the soberness of the metal and makes them look a little less mannish.

A Chatelaine Trinket.

To supersede the vanity case there has appeared another little novelty that has enough sentiment about it to give it the approval of both sexes, especially as it seems designed for the purpose of offering a secure place in which to carry a sweetheart's picture. These cases look like small cigarette holders. They are oblong and have a fitting at the top that resembles the stem of a watch. Gunmetal cases are trimmed with gold rings and stems, by which the case is opened, to show a divided interior, in which there is a small rectangular mirror, rimmed with gold, and on the opposite side an oval frame for a picture. It is an ingenious way to conceal the face of a dear one, and it gives such an excellent chance for a woman to take a hasty peep at her own reflection while ostensibly gazing at the picture on the other side.

The Fox-Brown Girl.

Clad all in that beautiful new shade which, for want of a better rendition from the French, is styled "fox brown," a girl made something of a stir on Fifth avenue the first warm springlike day we had. From the crown of her head to the tip of her dainty walking pumps she was a symphony in this beautiful, but trying, shade of yellow brown. Her hat was a straw that exactly matched the color of her hair and reflected the tone of her costume. A duffy dog feather was its only trimming. Her coat and walking skirt were made of chiffon taffeta and even the linkerie of the sleeves was veiled in fox brown chiffon frills. Beneath her walking skirt one got glimpses of pretty little feet encased in silken hose and soft brown leather pumps that showed considerable of the hosiery, as pumps do. The blouse she wore with this costume was white, and so were her gloves, but with this exception there wasn't a sign of any color but fox brown.

Tricks of the Four-in-Hand.

The girl who prefers linen collars to stocks has found a novelty in a tie to go with this trim style of neckwear. It is a four-in-hand that has superseded the small butterfly bow, and from all appearances seems to have gone to the other extreme as to size. The new scarfs are very wide and long, and they tie in a knot that measures at least two and a half inches from upper to lower edge. It is very loose and soft, filling entirely the space between the ends of the turnover collar.

Materials used for these scarfs remind one of the gorgeous bandanna affairs that had a great vogue five or six years ago. Foulard silks, with large, gayly colored allover patterns, make the front of a shirtwaist striking, if nothing else. As for the style of knot into which they are tied, this is borrowed bodily from men's fashions. Men have recently made the large, loose four-in-hand fashionable, and in less time than it takes to write about it women calmly took possession of it because it suited them.

To Restore Thin Eyebrows.

The nervous rush of modern society is held responsible by the beauty doctors for the thinning of the eyebrows and lashes among fashionable women. A physician should be first consulted, so that the general system can be restored, but a good local application to the eyebrows and lashes must assist the doctor's science. A good wash may be made from one ounce of glycerine, two ounces of violet water and one dram of powdered quinine. Mix thoroughly and apply with a small fine brush. Great care must be taken to prevent the tonic from getting into the eyes, as it would result in a painful inflammation.

He—Do you think you can learn to love me?

The newest shade of pongee, which is called white, but really is an ivory tint, is to be worn for smart street costumes, and to alternate with the jacket part of the suit it would be an excellent plan to have one of these cape-coats. Boudoir of Mrs. Chaffee, Wife of Gen. Chaffee

A Typical French Boudoir Arranged by Mme. de Marguerite, Sister of Dostand, The Famous Playwright

Boudoir of Baroness Sternberg, American Bride of German Ambassador

Boudoir of Baroness Manchoux

BY WALDON FAWCETT.

The American woman with means to indulge her fancies is just now yielding to the fad which prescribes the boudoir as one of the necessary luxuries of the age. Already, moreover, there are indications that her sisters with less plentifully filled pocketbooks are casting for means to share in the delights of the essentially feminine possession. But in order to set things right at the outset it should be explained that the twentieth century American woman are not merely reviving the form of boudoir so popular in the Old World in bygone days. Instead they are giving the term a new meaning by a modernizing process that is a distinct improvement.

Before this new popularity of the boudoir swept across the country many persons supposed that the French word "boudoir" was virtually synonymous with the English word "bower." Such, however, has never been the case, even from the dictionary standpoint. A bower is presumably an entire dwelling, whereas boudoir refers to but one room in a house. The essential idea of the boudoir is a cabinet connected with the apartments of a lady, to which she may retire when she wishes to be alone or when she wishes to receive her intimate friends. The present-day enthusiasm for the "woman's own" room in the house has spread to America from England, where it began to take root several years ago and has been thriving ever since.

As has been said, Miss Columbia's daughters and their more progressive English cousins are giving a wholly new significance to the corner of the house whose name was formerly the butt of indulgent, if not contemptuous, masculine smiles. The up-to-date woman, however, object to the old interpretation of the word boudoir as indicating a place to idle and sulk in instead of a retreat in which to be busy and comfortable. Indeed, many women are calling their new boudoirs "dens" in preference to the old name. This is the keynote of its new uses. It is the equal of the man's smoking-room or study.

To feminine visitors to the home the rejuvenated boudoir is bound to prove the most interesting apartment in the house from the fact that much that in other parts of the house would be accounted frivolous is allowed in this reserved nook, while lace and embroidery, dainty draperies and, in fact, everything that savors of grace and lightness finds its proper and congenial sphere in these surroundings. Then, too, in this age of mansions for all the people who can afford them, and unnecessarily large houses even for people of moderate means, the boudoir is likely to fulfil a mission as a criterion of taste, since it is the only room where marked individuality is bound to assert itself.

It goes without saying that the whole character and contents of a woman's boudoir or "den" constitute an index of the owner's tastes, personality and belongings. No professional decorator or furnisher, no matter how great his ambitions, can do more than arrange the broad outline for mildly to fill in according to her own inclination and fancy. Thus it happens that although the drawing-room, dining-room and even library of a present-day American home may be largely a tribute to the owner's wealth, backed by the artistic ideas of somebody else, the bright particular spot presided over by the mistress of the household is pretty certain to be her own creation.

Most of the women who have lately spent considerable time in evolving and carrying out ideas for boudoirs for their own use have inclined to simplicity and straight lines. That ill-balanced and unstable structure known as the "cosy corner," which was once supposed to take the place of a more pretentious boudoir in the ordinary home, is no longer in good favor. The new fashion decrees as the proper site for a boudoir a room the walls of which are lined in plain material, preferably blue, with woodwork of the severest lines, with simple moldings.

Almost all the women who have devoted much attention to the subject appear to be agreed that the woodwork should be painted ivory white, or at least some light tint. Not only will white wear well if properly put on, but if kept clean it will retain its brightness for a much longer time than a paint of deeper color, whose original rich effect changes into somberness. With such a treatment it is customary in many instances to introduce a deep frieze of stencilled canvas. To gain the full measure of value from a simple decorative scheme such as has been mentioned it is also desirable to have every detail in keeping, and this harmony of color and decoration may be carried even to the fireplace tiles without entailing an extravagant expenditure. Indeed, one of the chief advantages of the simplicity of the new boudoirs is found in the opportunities which the treatment affords for attaining satisfactory results at comparatively small cost.

One of the best examples of how effective is a decorative scheme of blue and white—the most popular of all boudoir color combinations—is found in the handsome little boudoir recently fitted up by Baroness von Sternberg, the American bride of the German Ambassador to the United States. The walls above the white wainscoting are hung in sky-blue satin and curtains, portieres and upholstery are in the same material, festooned by rich velvet carpet of harmonious tint, set off by oriental rugs. There are several Chinese cabinets and other examples of oriental cabinetmaking and carving in the apartment; but the distinctive note of the whole ornamental scheme is found in a great collection of simply framed water colors of uniform size, illustrating the dress of women in all ages. These unique pictures are arranged in even rows just above the wainscoting.

In the case of a boudoir paneled and fitted with white painted woodwork a very attractive plan of adornment may be arranged by introducing a frieze of alternative printed paper hangings, the upper part of the wall space being decorated with a broad band of green cloth, with fawn decorations. An American boudoir which has drawn many expressions of rapture from members of the fair sex who have had a peep at it has an exceptionally deep frieze, ornamented with cherub heads, each one different, painted in oils on canvas and cut out and applied to the ground surface. The lower part of the wall is divided by panels of blue silk, with white stencilled ornaments upon them. The curtains are of dull green canvas. While blue and white in combination now rank high in milady's favor for boudoir decoration, it must not be supposed that they have a monopoly of the field by any means. Among the boudoirs which have come into existence during the past year or two are any number in which we find as a foil for white woodwork some tint of pink or red, and this category is included the novel den of Baroness Moncheur, a titled American woman, who was formerly Miss Clayton, daughter of Gen. Powell Clayton. Baroness Moncheur's "den" is a typical woman's haven. She is fond of horses and so there are many equine pictures, embracing both photographs and sketches in crayon and water color. She has a fad for collecting autographed photographs and the walls all but groan under a weight of such treasures. Finally there is a dainty writing desk, a card table, a bookcase of favorite volumes and a wealth of couches and chairs that seem to invite repose.

The French boudoirs of the Louis XV. and the Louis XVI. periods have many adherents among the fair daughters of the greatest republic. In these reproductions of French apartments the walls are divided vertically by fluted pilasters with Corinthian capitals, the intervening panels being framed with moulded borders. The windows are not sash windows, but are constructed like French casements, and are draped as is also the recessed opening. For these hangings Rose du Barry silk, worked in gold or silver thread is a prime favorite.

A representative French boudoir of the present day—a feminine apartment typical of the "New Art" has recently been completed in the new residence of M. Farcy in Paris. In this room the straight lines and right angles, just now so popular in American architecture, are in evidence and symmetry is the aim. The color scheme is in rose and green, and the windows are so arranged as to secure an almost absolutely uniform illumination of the room.

Probably the oddest boudoir in America is the "den" of Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger, the well-known society leader of New York and Washington, and who as "Julien Gordon" is one of the most popular American novelists. This "den" is in Mrs. Cruger's famous colonial home, and is known as the "low room" or "sunken room," from the fact that it is a sort of basement room which can be reached only by descending a flight of stairs. There are no electric fittings, and at night the room is illuminated by Venetian lamps and candles and the glow of the flames in the hearth. As though to complete the atmosphere of old-time romance a secret stairway leads from this secluded nook to a quaint garden, where screened behind boxwood hedges bloom all the flowers of our grandmothers. Another unique form of boudoir is the Chinese "den," draped with the wonderful Oriental embroideries on silk and filled with tea-wood tables and cabinets, rare porcelains, ivory carvings and the other incomparable art treasures of the Far East. Mrs. Chaffee, wife of General Chaffee, commander of the United States Army, has perhaps the best example of such a nook.

The partiality of many women for flowered hangings and upholstery to match finds reflection in the furnishings of many a boudoir. An illustration of what may be accomplished by adherence to such decorative principles is found in the "den" of Mrs. Reginald DeKoven, wife of the well-known operatic composer, and herself an authoress. Mrs. DeKoven's own room is a large, light, airy room on the second floor of her home, and the walls are done in a neutral tint that harmonizes with the gay colored hangings which, despite their blaze of color, do not appear in the least obtrusive.

Mrs. DeKoven's "den" is liberally supplied with autographed photographs—and there is nothing more appropriate or attractive for such an apartment—and interspersed with these are autographed sketches, artists signed proofs and other souvenirs of friendships with the people who do things in the world of art and literature. Several low bookcases are built against the walls, and these in common with Mrs. DeKoven's writing desk and much of the furniture of the room are enamelled in white. It may be noted in passing that cut flowers always appear to the best advantage amid the surrounding of a room such as this.

The furniture of the boudoir involves in its selection problems which are solved in almost as many different ways as there are mistresses who undertake the task. Spindle-legged furniture is, of course, well adapted to an apartment where there are few masculine callers to play havoc with such frailty and its popularity among women enables it to win the day in many instances. Mahogany furniture is likewise much in evidence in this class of apartments, and so is the enamelled furniture in whose favor there might be advanced the same arguments made for white woodwork. In French boudoirs gilt furniture, or pieces ornamented in gold and white, are accounted the proper thing. The newest idea, however, and one that is rapidly gaining ground, is that the boudoir should be furnished almost exclusively in prairie grass, reed, cane or rattan. Furniture of this class of material is unquestionably dainty in appearance, and ingenious manufacturers are now enamelling it in tints to conform to all imaginable decorative schemes and, going a step farther, are providing not only chairs, but couches, desks and dressing tables in this exquisite guise.

Hints for the Home Dressmaker.

A Corded Silk Shirtwaist.

The above model is a shirtwaist suit, with some trimming, but not too fancy for hot weather. The material used, a gray silk, with a white cord. The skirt in this design is side-pleated, left loose at the feet to make a sufficient fullness. The illustration shows the idea of tucking the waist. The irregular-edged insertings, which should be of Irish point, is ap-pliqued in a novel and pretty style. A suit like this should be unlined. The waist fastens in the back.

For a Girl of 12 Years.

This model is a wash frock of blue and white plaid for a child of 12. This little garment, although having the effect of a Russian blouse, is in two pieces. The trimming is of white linen braid and pearl.

buttons. These buttons should be put on with shanks to allow of laundering. This frock has a great deal of style and is original in design. It would also make pretty white chambray morning frocks for children.

A Graduating Frock.

This design is for a graduating frock. The fabric to be used is dotted Swiss, the trimming to be of Swiss insertion, with a combination of Valenciennes lace. The design above is very girlish and pretty, not difficult to make, and suitable for the occasion on which it is to be worn. The triple skirts are still being worn this season, and the idea of the sleeves, carrying out the same effect, is both smart and original. The four and a half yards of Swiss inserting are used in strapping the shoulder and hip yokes. The rest of the trimming is of the Valenciennes inserting.

Boudoir of Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger

"Doctor, you are the most jovial, even tempered man I ever met—do you never get out of temper?"

"One has to get out of patience to lose one's temper; and, as I am never out of patients, I am never out of patience."—Houston Post.

"Let me sell you a metal punch," said the agent.

"Don't need it," responded the proprietor of the Western hotel.

"But don't you punch holes in your meal tickets?"

"No, we shoot them in here."—Chicago News.
