Description of the Battle at Ta Tehe Kiao Explains Russian Immunity From Damage by Furious Bombardment

SHRAPNEL WAS USED

The Moan and Drone of Coming Shells Could Be Plainly Heard and They Sailed Like White Winged Birds Overhead—Retreat Is a Surprise

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—A special dispatch from Liao Yang giving a graphic picture of the fight at Ta Tehe Kiao explains the Russian immunity from danger by the furious Japanese bombardment is due to the fact that the Russian guns were mostly behind a range of steep hills and were concealed cleverly by high grass and trees, and the Chinese, therefore, were unable to helicopter the position of the guns, as they formerly had done for the Japanese artillerymen. The Japanese have many large caliber guns and used shrapnel. They used also high explosive shells.

The fight was almost wholly an artillery battle and was a magnificent spectacle. The crest of the hills held by the Russians was converted into a raging volcano and earth was thrown up in geyzers by a continuous line of burst shells until the sand and dust hung in clouds overhead and fire among the trees and grass started by shells, added stifling smoke and heat to the awful glare of the tropical sun. Shrapnel like great white winged birds sailed overhead. The moan and drone of their coming could be heard plainly and the Russians threw themselves behind rocks and other shelters as the missiles burst. The Japanese shifted the position of their guns, both to escape the Russian fire and to try to bring the masked batteries of their opponents. Late in the afternoon they got in a position which enabled them to sweep the plain behind the hills occupied by the Russians and came dangerously near locating, though they did not quite find the Russian batteries. Everyone except the commanders were surprised and disgusted at the order to retreat. The Russians burned everything valuable at Ta Tehe Kiao before leaving.

FALL OF PORT ARTHUR IS DECLARED UNTRUE

TOKIO, July 29. Noon.—The rumored fall of Port Arthur is officially pronounced to be untrue.

SHIPPING RESUMES ON EASTERN COAST

TOKIO, July 29, 10 a. m.—(Delay-d)—The Vladivostok squadron has disappeared and it is possible that the raid is over and that it is heading seaward. It is expected that shipping will be resumed on the eastern coast. The Pacific Mail Company's steamship, Korea, will be held at Yokohama and the steamship Siberia at Kobe until their safety is assured.

The German Mail Steamship Company using Kobe as a terminal for the transshipment of passengers and cargo. The raid of the Vladivostok squadron has been an extremely disastrous one. It is estimated that 200,000 tons of chartered shipping has been held for days at a loss of seven and a half million dollars.

ARTILLERY FIRE COVERS ADVANCE

CHENG, Friday, July 29.—The attack on the right flank of the Russian southern army developed at 7 o'clock this morning. The battle opened with a heavy artillery fire under cover of which the Japanese infantry advanced along the railway until 11 o'clock the forward movement was checked. The fighting continued, according to last accounts, but the result is not known.

JAP GUNBOATS ARE PURSUING RUSSIANS

LONDON, July 29.—A dispatch to the Central News from Tokyo, dated today, announces a report from Oshima, says the Vladivostok squadron was seen this morning fourteen miles off Izu, seventy miles southwest of Yokohama. For Japanese warships are pursuing the Russians southward.

FIGHTING CONTINUES NEAR PORT ARTHUR

CHEFOO, July 29.—A junk which left Port Arthur Thursday last at midnight reports terrific fighting on land and sea, which then had been going on for three days. The highest Japanese authority here says the army and naval commanders of the besieging forces planned to begin a final assault Tuesday last and expected to effect the capture by July 29, but no official reports are expected from the army or from Admiral Togo until the present attack results in success or failure. The Japanese correspondents here are now sending junks to Miao Tiao islands, ready to enter the harbor at Port Arthur immediately after it is learned of the fall of the fortress.

The Associated Press correspondent learns from a reliable authority the movement of the Russian Vladivostok squadron was hastened to prevent an attack upon Port Arthur. At the same time the Japanese authorities realize that if these vessels were allowed to proceed unhampered any longer it meant a division of Admiral Togo's fleet with the outgoing Russian ships now cooped up by him at Port Arthur.

Most intense interest in the Port Arthur situation is taken, not only here, but at Shanghai and Tien Tsin. Many commercial concerns at these places are continually wiring here for news. In this city many wagers are being made at odds of 20 to 1 in pounds sterling that Port Arthur will not fall within the next ten months. German residents are offering and Englishmen are accepting the bets.

Union Men Who Apply to the Board of Charities in Chicago for Assistance Told That Nothing Can Be Done

COMMISSARY TO OPEN

President Donnelly Says the Organization Will Be Able to Care for Every Member and Those Dependent on Them—

CHICAGO, July 30.—The report was circulated today among the packing house strikers that applicants at the office of the bureau of charities had been turned away with the reply that nothing can be done for them. It is said this discrimination occurred only in cases of strikers and their families.

John Floersch, secretary of the Packing Trades Council, said: "There seems to be some truth in the reports. I understand that some applicants to the agents of the bureau of charities in this district have been turned away. Discrimination against the members of the unions has been shown."

Michael Donnelly said: "We are able to take care of our members and those dependent upon them, although no strike benefits have been paid, and the commissary department is not quite ready for opening. With regard to the bureau of charities I believe the fact is the institution is not in a position to assist any one."

Before the meeting of the allied trades, which was held today, assembled it was disclosed that a resolution would be introduced demanding that President Roosevelt give the word to the United States district attorneys all over the country to begin criminal prosecution against the big packing plants, which two years ago were permanently enjoined from combining to fix the price, not only upon the finished meat products, but upon live stock. It is to be urged upon the president that the best interests of the entire country are protected by the great strike, which has affected all parts of the country and widespread misery has been caused.

After the adjournment of today's meeting of the representatives of the Allied Packing House Trades it was decided to resolutions which were prepared asking aid from President Roosevelt would be presented to the meeting. It was stated President Donnelly would confer with Secretary H. D. Call of the Butchers' Union committee on this matter.

Today non-union workers in the plants of Armour and Swift began preparing cured meats. This class of work has not before been attempted since the beginning of the strike at the plant company, dependence being placed in salesmen and heads of departments formerly active butchers, who will be sent back to the benches and killing pen.

Armour & Co. are using new men more or less extensively.

QUIET AT KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, July 30.—Quiet prevailed today in the packing house district. An extra force of police and strike breakers passed in and out of the plants with-out a show of being molested. The situation showed but little if any change from yesterday.

THE BALL LAST NIGHT

The strikers' ball held at Hermann park last night was a decided success in every way. Although as yet it can not be definitely announced how much was taken in, at a rough estimate about $1,000 was the amount. Many tickets were sold in Dallas, as well as in this city.

The crowd last night was large and jolly and several prominent Fort Worth persons were present. The music was good, the floor was excellent and the weather lent a hand toward the completeness of the affair. Dancing continued until a late hour.

ARRESTS OF SOME OF THE STRIKERS

Bob Boozletta, R. A. White and J. Corbin, all striking packing house employees, were arrested last night by police, were arrested and placed in jail. They were arrested on warrants charging them with "unlawful assembly" in the stock yards district.

Another striker named Charles Butler was arrested on an indictment charging assault.

All four were admitted to bond in the sum of $200 each and were released from jail.

The order issued by Marshal Howell in North Fort Worth forbidding the strikers to assemble on the streets as they are being rigidly enforced. Yesterday afternoon the marshal supplemented his first order with another to the proprietor of a business at the corner of Exchange and Ellis avenues, nor of Exchange and Ellis avenues, commanding him to remove all settees from in front of his place. Heretofore the strikers have been using these settees and the order was given for the express purpose of driving the men from that part of the grounds.

It is quiet at the packing houses and the stock yards today, so far as the striking men are concerned and from outside appearances one would not realize that a strike was on.

There has been no disturbance of any kind reported by the officers and the situation seems to be as quiet as it could possibly be.

The arrest of the above men last evening was the only unusual occurrence to happen for several days.

JOINT TRACK SHIPMENTS

Stock shipments over the joint track yesterday numbered forty-two cars, thirty for St. Louis, ten for Kansas City and two for Fort Worth. The shipments consisted mainly of fat market stuff.

In 700 years the stone work of three successive parish churches erected at Regis, Staffordshire, England, has crumbled away, and it has now been found necessary to erect a fourth church.

CIGARETTES USED TO CONCEAL THE DIAMONDS

Smugglers Have Adopted the Boxes in Which to Conceal the Stones Which Should Pay Tribute

MOBILE, July 29.—The local customs inspector is on the watch for a new brand of diamond smugglers who have been turned to the south for the continuance of their business.

The new method is by loading them into packages of cigarettes.

The customs inspectors here and at New Orleans have noticed that numerous small dealers have engaged extensively in the importation of cigarettes from Cuba. Some of these dealers have been found to be connected in divers secret ways with certain jewelry firms in the larger cities of the north.

Now cigarette packages are being ripped open regardless, whereas, a few weeks ago, the inspectors were rather lenient, owing to the fact that importations were controlled practically altogether by one steamship company, whose vigilance in the country's customs receipts has never relaxed.

But the new scheme was too much for it to attack. Cigarettes must be accepted as freight intact, and remain in good order until discharged. So it is up to the inspectors.

It is believed thousands of dollars' worth of precious stones have been imported into the United States without the payment of a cent of duty. The suspicion has aroused the inspectors stationed at every port of entry for foreign commerce. They believe they have grounds to watch several people doing business in this city, and are vigilant far beyond their wont.

In the smuggling, by means of tobacco, the gold leaf plays an important part. Beaten so fine that a thousand sheets of it compose a bulk no greater than a small fraction of an inch, it is placed in leaf tobacco imported for cigar wrappers.

Gold leaf is an article of commerce on which there is a high rate of duty. Five hundred sheets cost $1.75 in duty, and to save the multiples of that sum due on several thousand dollars' worth of the material, this is how the smugglers work it.

REPORTS FROM THE SICK SAILORS

NEW YORK, July 30.—The United States dispatch boat Mayflower has arrived here, says the Herald's Trieste correspondent, bringing from the fleet at Flume three more ill sailors to be transferred to the hospital.

Dr. Perry of the Iowa, who was left in charge of the officers and men who are ill with typhoid fever at the hospital, when the fleet sailed away, reports that all those who are ill are doing well, with the exception of Lieutenant Hudgins, Chaplain Isaacs of the Kearsarge is recovering rapidly and it is thought he will shortly be discharged from the hospital.

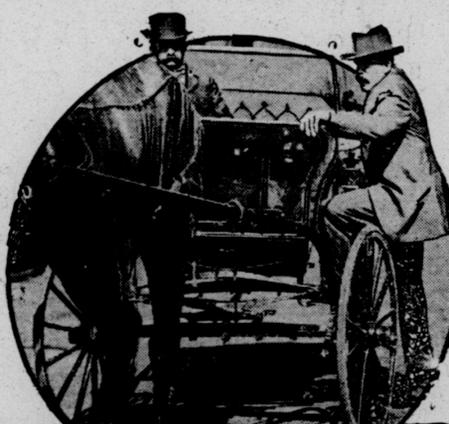

A DISAGREEMENT AS TO RIPARIAN RIGHTS

GREENWICH, Conn., July 30.—Edmund C. Converse, chairman of the executive committee of the United States Steel Corporation, and William J. Smith, one of the wealthy residents of Greenwich, have been joined jointly by Albert W. Close, a farmer, residing at West Stanwich, and 150 acres of land owned by them has been attached for $20,000.

Close claims that the defendants have damaged him greatly by damming up a stream on their property for the purpose of making a reservoir. He has fifteen acres, which he alleges have been made unutilizable. In one spot the water is said to stand nine feet deep.

HON. J. F. COOPER IN COAL MINES

Fort Worth Bar Association Pays Honor to a Former Associate Who Is Now of High Court in the Philippines

BANQUET AT DELAWARE

The Guest of Honor Discusses Court Practice in the Insular Possessions—Judge McLean Talks of the Federal Judiciary—Other Speeches

A large delegation of the leading members of the Fort Worth bar gathered at the Delaware hotel last night to do honor to Judge Joseph F. Cooper, a former member of the bar and now judge of the supreme court of the Philippine islands.

Those gathered at the banquet ranged from Judge Jarvis, the nestor of the association, to the youngest followers of the profession, fresh from Pollock, Ames and Greenleaf. One spirit, however, pervaded all, to honor Judge Cooper, and thus to honor their city and themselves.

Judge Cooper attired in Philippine Tuxedo of pure white occupied the seat of honor, to his right and left respectively being Judges McLean and Tarlton, the latter acting as toastmaster.

After the master of ceremonies, W. P. McLean, Jr., had amended his petition and guided the guests from the parlors to the banquet room, Judge Tarlton began the proceedings, by calling upon W. B. Paddock, who welcomed the guest of honor.

MR. PADDOCK WELCOMES

Mr. Paddock declared that it was fitting that he should be called upon to express the sentiments of the bar association having come from the same native state. "About the time Texas was adopting me he was adopting Texas. It is fitting also that the Fort Worth Bar Association, a representative body, should come together and express appreciation of the successes and attainments of one of its present members."

Describing the ties which always bind Fort Worth to her sons no matter how far removed, he expressed the thought that Judge Cooper would never see this time when he ceased to call Fort Worth home. Taking a crack at the flag and constitution with the constitution left at home contrary to the democratic ten commandments he continued: "But I should rather see and laws in the hands of good men than good laws in the hands of evil men. With you, Judge Cooper, the Filipino is destined to a bright future until you make it in reality P. I. U. S. A."

A closing wish that Judge Cooper might find in those Pacific isles a perpetual fountain of youth and wishing him continued success in his difficult mission the toast to him was drunk standing by the members of the bar.

JUDGE COOPER'S RESPONSE

Judge Cooper responded to the welcome in words of feeling, saying that upon one's return to home the greatest pleasure was in finding that you had not been forgotten. Thinking the members and Mr. Paddock for their kind welcome, he turned to affairs in the Philippines and delivered an able and interesting address on the judiciary of these possessions. He said that difficulties which have and do confront them.

The Philippine court, he said, was non-partisan, fully half of its members being democrats and southern men. Its appointment is not reward for party service. Three Filipino judges sit upon the bench and the chief justice is himself a Filipino. It is true, admitted Judge Cooper, that the heads of the departments in the islands are not natives. This, however, is due to the lack of material among them acquainted with American ways and customs sufficiently to manage the complicated affairs. This choice of American heads he characterized as one of expediency and not one of policy. If any policy followed it is to comply with the will of McKinley and give the natives preference. Along this line he cited the fact that the prosecuting attorney in every province but Manila is a native. There are no grand juries and prosecutions being filed by this officer from which the liberality of the government can be seen.

The lack of Spanish authorities, difficulty of language and the disregard for oath by the natives, Judge Cooper designated as the greatest difficulty met with by the judiciary. The native lawyers he classed as bright and active, fiery but not equipped with sledge hammer force of the American practitioner.

Describing to the amusement of his auditors the course of a case through repeated appeals upon challenges of the various officers even down to the bailiff so that the case hung fire for twenty years, he pictured the ceremonies attending the swearing of native prisoners and its after effect upon their evidence.

The legislature he characterized as wise and not cumbersome, and a body of men that would compare favorably with similar gatherings, not excepting even the venerable senate of the United States.

Confidence in the native judges upon the part of the people and the government, he stated, exists to such an extent to justify the hope that their qualities will within a short time result in the establishment of a government of prosperity to them and pride to us.

MAJOR J. J. JARVIS

Major J. J. Jarvis next responded to the "Early Texas Bar," announcing that since he had been assigned that subject he really felt he had got to be a man and was further convinced of it in thinking of the days when he found as contemporaries at the bar, Ochiltree, Hall, Burford, Farris and others who have now passed on to plead at a higher court.

No country in the world, he asserted, could have furnished better material for a supreme court than did this in

Dark Clouds Hover Over Anthracite Region and a Mammoth Strike Is Probable Unless Both Sides Get Together

ABOUT THE OLD AWARD

Operators Find Methods by Which They Avoid Allowing the Check-weighman Which Conciliation Board Declared Miners Could Demand

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 30.—The anthracite mine workers now face the most serious crisis since the big strike of 1902. In a few days there may be declared a strike of about 70,000 workers in the Lackawanna and Wyoming districts, followed by a strike at various collieries throughout the region where the mine workers have grievances.

The anthracite conciliation board, which met here Tuesday, adjourned after a serious disagreement. No arrangements have been made for another meeting. The operators have practically withdrawn from the board, and may formally do so, while the mine workers, maintaining their position, will enforce the fifth award of the anthracite strike commission, about which the dispute has arisen, by ordering strikes at every colliery where it is not observed. This will be done as a last resort, and the executive committee has already been given the power to order these strikes without further delay.

The fifth award of the commission was designed to remove the long-standing grievance of the miners about excessive docking, and the improper weighing of coal. This work was done by men employed by the companies, and the miners declared these men to retain their places had to be so partial to the companies that the miners for years lost much.

The commission decided that where a majority of the miners at any colliery believed they were not getting fair treatment in this particular they could, by a majority request, insist upon the employment of a check dock and a check weighing boss to look after their interests, these bosses to be paid by the miners.

Although it is fifteen months since this award became effective, it is enforced at comparatively few collieries, the operators having endeavored by delays, disputes and other methods to hamper the miners in requesting the employment of these bosses. They first disputed about the correct interpretation of the award. The conciliation board, in a letter to Dispute was a tie and the matter was then referred to Umpire Carrol D. Wright. His decision favored the miners. Later he made another decision, and followed it by an opinion expressed in a letter to Dispute. President D. D. Nichols of the United Mine Workers of America.

The substance of these decisions and the opinion was that at any colliery where a majority of the men demanded these bosses they should be appointed, and the companies should deduct a proportionate share from the wages of all the miners to pay them; that the companies could, if desired, request an assignment by each miner of the portions of his wages, and that refusal to make such an assignment was sufficient cause for discharge.

The operators now object to all the men being required to pay these bosses, claiming that some non-union men were not parties to the award. They also object to the discharge clause and Wright's opinion. These objections led the Scranton Coal Company, which has conducted the fight against the award, to request that the decision of Wright be reconsidered.

It was at this point that the conciliation board split. The operators voted to reconsider the decision, the miners' representatives said the decision was final, could not be reconsidered and refused to vote. Thereupon the operators said the meeting was over and departed. Later one of them stated it looked very much as if the operators would withdraw from the board.

In the meantime the miners' officers had decided to wait a few days to see if the operators do not change their minds and again resume conciliatory relations. If they do not, then the miners will act and the strikes are expected.

The miners say they have observed each award and decision of the umpire, despite the fact that the majority have not been in their favor, and now that a decision has been made against the operators, they must make the best of it. Unless the operators are determined to violate their agreement, they, too, must observe it, claim the miners.

ENTRE RUPTURE IS NOW BELIEVED

PARIS, July 30.—Although no official announcement has yet been made, it can be positively affirmed the rupture between France and the vatican is complete.

The Holy See's lengthy reply to the French note, though most courteously worded, merely amounts to a polite statement. The pope does not intend to infringe on the stipulations of the concordat, and is now withdrawing the letters calling Bishops Dijon and Laval to Rome.

It is not expected the rupture will have any immediate consequences beyond a mutual withdrawal of representatives of France and the vatican and a suppression of the embassy and nunciature, as the denunciation of the concordat requires a parliamentary sanction, consequently fresh developments are improbable until the appointment of new bishops comes up. Well informed persons do not believe the vatican will retaliate by withdrawing France's protectorate for eastern Catholics.

There is a legend that the first lace was made by a girl who preserved a beautiful bit of seaweed by catching all the dainty parts of leaves and stems to a piece of linen with fine thread.

BOOMING A NEW TOWN

Mayor Runs a Saloon, Gambling Room, Deals in Real Estate and in Gas and Electricity—Women Riding As-tride Visit and Gossip

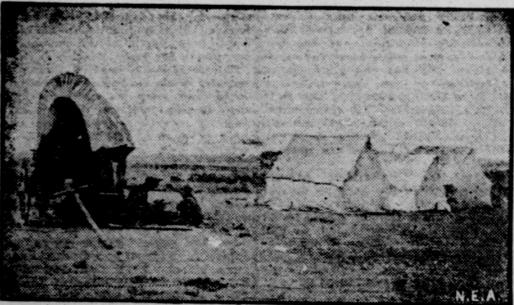

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., July 28.—People from all sections of the United States have come to register for a chance in Uncle Sam's land lottery. Harder of access than Bonesteel, Yankton or Fairfax, the vast crowds that sought these other places, particularly Yankton and Bonesteel, have not visited Chamberlain, though an unusual influx of strangers is an extraordinary happening in this typical western town. Normally there are about 1,200 people in Chamberlain. On the registration list there are 6,008. This includes everybody in Chamberlain eligible. The others are transients. Most of the outsiders leave town as soon as their names are down on the list. The ordinary practice has been for a train load to get in at 8 o'clock in the evening, register between then and 1 o'clock the next morning, and take a train out at that time. The result of this system is that Chamberlain has been disappointed. There has not been the "rush" that was expected nor the anticipated crop of dollars from the home seekers. Everybody here was ready, however, to separate the tourists from their loose change. Every other store building was a registration booth, with notaries public scrambling over each other for the privilege of making out papers at 25 cents a throw, while temporary restaurants, sleeping quarters and cheap shows overran the town. Gambling is wide open all the time at Chamberlain. Most of the "layouts" are in the rear of saloons, which flourish without curtains or effort at concealment of the spider webs within. Mayor Stanford, one of the most estimable citizens, part owner of the gas plant, electric light franchise, and also a large real estate dealer, runs one of the best patronized saloons in town, and conducts the "swellest" gambling place in the burz. His real estate office adjoins the saloon, over which is the gambling room. In this way Mayor Stanford has most of his interests thoroughly centralized. His office as mayor is at the city hall, but most people having business with him usually hunt him up at his saloon and real estate office. There is some dissatisfaction in Chamberlain just now because the mayor won't allow outside gamblers to "go as they please." Mayor Stanford says he will protect Chamberlain as long as he is the chief executive, and as gambling is one of the institutions of the town, his fatherly care extends to this as well as other of Chamberlain's mainstays. Everybody at Chamberlain chews tobacco and rides horseback—not excepting the women, save as to the chewing of tobacco. Every crevice or nook in the public buildings, the sidewalks and street crossings is tobacco stained. No one seems to mind this, however, as a dainty, well-bred appearing woman will stand complacently on a street corner conversing with some rough appearing character, perhaps a large cattle owner from one of the ranges to the west, while he masticates his cud and besprikles the vicinity, exercising a skillful care, though, to avoid soiling the lady's costume. The women ride horseback in Chamberlain just as they promenade a business street in large cities. And they ride astride, man fashion, with as much unconcern as any seasoned "cow puncher." They are certainly at home in the saddle. Even the children, boys and girls, have their ponies, and it is not an unusual sight to see several tots that people in the larger cities would hardly believe capable of alighting from a baby carriage, dashing about the town, guiding their (Original.) Titus and I were inseparable. Titus was my dog, a brown and white setter who cared for no one in the world but me. In the summer we would wander over the country together, in the autumn would hunt together. One morning when I started out, expecting to find Titus at the front door waiting for me, as was his invariable custom, he was not there. Nor did he again appear. He had been stolen. In town that winter I met Miss Jeannette Fearing. She chafed at being confined between brick walls, compelled to seek solace in an occasional ball or other similar entertainment, and plined for the summer home of her family, where she could ride on horseback, fish and hunt. This was manly, and I admired manly women. When with her, instead of being obliged to chat on the happenings in our social circle, I found her ready to discuss more important topics, and where she did not understand she was quite willing to listen. After enjoying her society at intervals through half a winter I met her one afternoon and was surprised at receiving from her a very cold nod. My first impulse was to go to her and ask for an explanation. Had she been another woman I would have done so, for women are easily offended, and doubtless some trifling act of mine had been misunderstood. But Jeannette Fearing I had considered above such petty misunderstandings, and if she had a grievance against me she should state it openly in a frank, manly way. I did not see Jeannette again that winter, nor indeed that summer. In the autumn I was invited to the country seat of a friend and had some excellent shooting, though I missed Titus and lost many a bird that I should have bagged with his assistance. When the party broke up I remained to get a day's shooting in a region some twenty miles distant where woodcock were said to abound. Starting early, I was driven to the ground, and with my gun entered the wood. I had had such bad luck with my host's dogs that I had brought none of them. I had bagged several birds when I heard not far away the report of a gun, and a few minutes later a dog broke through the underbrush and, seeing me, paused to examine me. In another moment he uttered a yelp of delight and came for me on the jump. I saw at a glance that he was my old friend Titus. While he was climbing over me, licking my face and hands, I caressing him, a woman wearing a short dress and high boots, carrying a gun, emerged from the brush and stood looking at me. What was my astonishment to recognize Jeannette Fearing. I raised my hat, and she returned my salute, but as coldly as when I had last met her in the city. "This is a singular meeting," I said. "Do you live near by?" "Our country place is a mile away." "And I am visiting near by." "Caesar, come here," she called. Caesar, as she dubbed him, demurred, and when she ordered him more sharply skulked along slowly, occasionally turning to me. With a bound he started in my direction and did not stop till he had his paws again on my shoulder. Jeannette looked puzzled. "How did you come by this dog?" I asked. "I bought him in the city last fall." "You are under the ban of the law, having in your possession stolen goods." "I shall be happy to pay for him." "I do not care to sell him, but you are quite welcome to him." "I am not in the habit of accepting presents from men." "We might leave it to the dog to choose his owner. Tite, go to your mistress." I pointed to Jeannette and looked sternly at the dog. He lay down on the ground, whined and thrashed the turf with his tail. But I did not cease my orders till he had gone to a point midway between us. "Now," I said, "we shall see whether he will follow you or me." I moved away. Jeannette, too, turned and walked on. The dog stood looking from one to the other. His distress was so great that he was both stopped. "For the dog's sake," I said, "I will ask an explanation of your changed treatment of me." "Last winter I wrote you a note to your club containing a simple request. You did not consider it worth a reply." "H'm," I said, pondering. "Another letter gone wrong." Then to Jeannette: "There is a man in the club with the same initials as mine and a similar name. He sometimes gets my letters and usually turns them over to me, but last fall he went abroad. He probably read your letter in Europe." She stood looking first at me, then at the dog, then on the ground. "Don't you think," I asked, "that a more manly way?" "I am not a man." "I have often endowed you with certain manly traits. A man, not receiving a reply to a note from me, would have come to me at once for an explanation." "A woman would scorn to do such a thing." "You have given me great pain." "And you spoiled my—my winter." There was a slight tremor in her voice. Having discovered something womanly I left off looking for manliness. I had gone up beside her and, taking her hand, said abruptly: "Let us own the dog together." Since the advent of a little stranger my wife has retrograded considerably. She has not now even the manliness to hunt with me. EDWIN CLARK.

A WOMAN'S UNMANLINESS

TROOPS TO HAVE A BATTLEFIELD OF FIVE MILES

General Corbin Has Completed All Arrangements for the Maneuvers on the Historic Field of Manassas. NEW YORK, July 30.—Major General Henry C. Corbin, commanding the Atlantic division, has completed all the arrangements for the joint maneuvers in Virginia to be held September 5 to 14, next, in which a force of 27,000 regular and national guard troops will participate. The force will be organized in two divisions, with corps headquarters at Gainesville. The first division will be in command of Brigadier General Frederick D. Grant, and its camp will be near Manassas, Va. The second division will be in command of Brigadier General J. Franklin Bell. General Corbin directs that no ammunition of any kind be taken to the camp by either officers or enlisted men. This will be supplied at the camps. The problems to be worked out by the troops have not yet been made public, but it is understood that the two camps will be maintained as hostile forces, and will attempt to surprise and out-manuever each other. The field includes fifty square miles of territory.

THE TEXAS CONTINGENT

GENERAL Hulen has designated the following companies of the Texas National Guard to attend the army maneuvers at Manassas in September: FIRST INFANTRY Capt. J. M. Porter, Co. A, Houston. Capt. E, Bremond. Capt. H. R. Covitt, Co. G, Bryan. Capt. O. E. Roberts, Co. H, Taylor. Capt. M. E. Guinn, Co. I, New Braunfels. THIRD INFANTRY Capt. J. T. Bonner, Co. A, Tyler. Capt. J. D. Jennings, Co. B, Timpsom. Capt. F. L. Irwin, Co. C, Tabor. Capt. Holman Taylor, Co. D, Marshall. Capt. A. R. Sholors, Co. K, Orange. Capt. C. A. Davis, Co. I, Corsicana. FOURTH INFANTRY Capt. H. E. Brady, Co. A, Decatur. Capt. H. F. Brown, Co. B, El Paso. Capt. D. A. McDaniel, Co. C, Bonham. Capt. B. C. Carter, Co. D, Fort Worth. Capt. H. R. Williams, Co. F, Dallas. Capt. J. S. Rankin, Co. I, Paris. Capt. T. E. Conger, Co. M, Greenville. The staff, General Hulen now thinks, will be made September 1.

COUNTY MUST PAY THE INCOME TAX

MADISON, Wis., July 30.—The attorney general has given an opinion in the case of the bequest of Mrs. Maria Murphy of Burlington, who left $100,000 to Lafayette county for a court house. The county authorities held that, since the money came to the county, it was exempt from the income tax. The attorney general rules that the county must pay the tax on the money, amounting to about $11,000, as the money was assessable before it became county property.

A RED TABLECLOTH SAVES A TRAIN FROM WRECK

New York Woman Knew of Impending Danger and Has Presence of Mind Enough to Give Warning

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 30.—A tree was blown down near a curve on the Hudson River railroad, a short distance from the home of Mrs. James McKenna, three miles north of this city, in a heavy thunder storm. Mrs. McKenna realized that a train was due and that the engineer would never be able to see the tree in time to stop the train before hitting it. She seized a red tablecloth and sped up the track, waving the red cloth.

She rounded the curve just as the train appeared a quarter of a mile up the road and the engineer brought his train to a stop.

Mrs. McKenna told about the tree on the track and added: "I hope I did not do wrong in stopping the train."

"Not at all, madam," was the reply. "You did perfectly right, and you are entitled to great praise."

The crew removed the obstruction and the train proceeded.

FACE IS SWOLLEN BY BITES OF MOSQUITOES

MONTECLAIR, N. J., July 30.—A man about 40 years old, who says he is John Almond, but who, because of weakness, is unable to give any account of himself, is in the hospital here, hovering between life and death as the result of exposure to storm and the attacks of mosquitoes. He was found in the dense woods near the Passaic lake.

Apparently Almond had been in the woods for several days. He was extremely emaciated and his face and hands were swollen out of shape from thousands of bites by mosquitoes and other insects.

Snakes seem to have a very poor sense of sight. The boa, for example, does not see at more than a quarter or a third of its own length; different species are limited to one-fifth or one-eighth of their length.

Market Quotations

NORTH FORT WORTH, July 30.—Reflex was brought to the market today by a light run of cattle. We have had in all about 10,000 this week. Only about 350 head came in, and the selling was generally steady, though there was little life in the trade.

But few steers were in. Packers wanted them and took them at steady prices, but nothing good was on the market. Some good heifers were in that brought $2.50, and this was the best of the butcher stuff. Cows were mostly common to medium. They sold out on a steady basis.

Calves were in good demand, and sold readily at steady prices. Packers want good veal calves.

Only one load of hogs came in today. Wagon hogs were in larger supply than usual, and total receipts were about 100. Buyers were still trying to get this market in line with those north, and took off another market from yesterday.

Quality today was mixed. The best sale was at $5.60, and the bulk were at $5.50. The market for the week closed strong to higher, compared with last week's close.

Miss Julia Dinkins won the silver medal for the best recitation in the contest given by the ladies of the local W. C. T. U. at the city hall last night.

A good crowd of friends and parents were present at the contest and interest did not lag from the beginning speech to the last feature.

The stage was appropriately decorated with such emblems as "The Salmon Mince" and signs and placards heralding the evils of tobacco and cigarettes.

Rev. Luther Little opened the exercises with a prayer and then the program was begun.

The first feature was a song and march by a chorus of little girls. This feature was heartily applauded.

Three-year-old Thelma Jones then sang a greeting song and in her tiny baby voice scored a decided hit.

The regular program then followed and delivered their recitations. The first prize was awarded to Miss Julia Dinkins with "On the Lehigh Valley Train" as her subject.

The judges were Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Ellison and W. W. Heathcote. Mr. Heathcote presented the medal. He also presented Miss Maude Dinkins and Miss Alma Pieter with a dollar each for excellence in recitation.

BOND QUESTION

Assistant City Attorney R. E. L. Roy Gives Interview on the Subject to The Telegram, Covering All Points

QUOTES CITY CHARTER Shows Where There Is Omission in Municipal Organic Law Which Makes a Difference When the State Law Is to Be Invoked on Subject

R. E. L. Roy, assistant city attorney, being approached for an interview on bond forfeitures in the city court, replied: "I am averse to newspaper interviews, but inasmuch as you insist on interviewing me about bond forfeitures in the corporation court, I am willing to tell you all I know about the matter. So propound your questions."

"Why are bonds given for appearance of defendants in the corporation court not collected?" "I will reply to your inquiry by referring you to the state laws and our city charter governing the forfeiture of bonds.

"First, I refer you to article 476 of the original procedure of this state, which reads as follows: 'Whenever a defendant is bound by recognizance or bail to appear at any term of a court and fails to appear on the day set apart for taking up the criminal docket or any subsequent day when his case comes up for trial, a forfeiture of the amount of his recognizance or bail bond shall be taken.'

"Next I refer you to article 477 of the procedure, which reads as follows: 'Recognizance and bail bonds are forfeited in the following manner: The name of the defendant shall be called distinctly at the door of the court house, and if the defendant does not appear within a reasonable time after such call is made, judgment shall be entered that the state is entitled to the amount of the defendant's amount of money in which he is bound, and of all applicable rules relating to bonds in which they are respectively bound, which judgment shall state that the same will be made final, unless good cause be shown to the contrary.'

"I also refer you to article 478 of the procedure, which reads: 'A citation shall be sufficient if it contain the following requisites: Among several requisites appearing in the charter is that the citation shall notify the surety to appear at the next term of the court, and show cause why the forfeiture should not be made final.'

"Now, take up our charter. Section 2 of article 5 of the charter reads as follows: 'There shall be no terms of said court (speaking of the corporation court), and said court shall be deemed open from 9 o'clock a. m. until 6 o'clock p. m. every day, five days a week being excepted, and all applicable rules relating to process, pleading, practice and procedure now established for the county court of Texas shall apply in said corporation court in Fort Worth, Tex.'

"The charter of the city charter confers civil jurisdiction on the corporation court for the forfeiture and collection of bonds, but from what I have just shown you, the charter does not point out the way forfeitures should be made and collected under the law, but it does give us the rules applicable in the state courts, when the charter explicitly says that there shall be no terms of the corporation court."

"If we sued on a forfeiture bond we would be compelled to be governed by the rules applicable to state courts for the forfeiture of bonds. When would we cite the sureties on the bond to appear? The law says at the next term. We have no terms of court under our charter."

"Why are sureties on the bond in the manner in which bonds should be forfeited, therefore we are governed by the rules relating to procedure in state courts. Therefore, we are without authority to proceed in the corporation court, but the law says that we are not to be governed by the rules applicable to state courts. This is the reason we have never sued on a forfeited bond in the corporation court. This matter has been thoroughly discussed with the city council, and with both the attorney general and the city attorney, and if you will examine the amendments to our city charter submitted to our representatives in the last legislature by the city council, you will find one covering this very defect, the forfeiture of bonds, but it failed to pass. Why, I do not know."

"Are the bondsmen notified of forfeitures?" he was asked.

"Yes, and I believe in nine cases out of ten, the bondsmen either bring out the defendants to the court after the forfeitures, or they pay their fines and the case is closed. Why, I do not know."

"Have any bonds been collected under your administration," the reporter asked.

"If you mean sued upon, no; for the reason I have just told you. If you mean bonds whose names appear on forfeited bonds remaining unpaid accepted as bondsmen in other cases, and why are principals on forfeited bonds accepted as sureties on other bonds?"

"I have nothing in the world to do with taking and the approving of bonds in the corporation court. That is a matter entirely with the police department. However, I will say this, that of the two hundred forfeited cases, you spoke of the other day in your paper, I honestly believe a very small percentage of that number failed to appear afterwards, and had their cases disposed of in the proper manner. From my observation, I believe of the city has practically no forfeited cases pending. Either the sureties or the defendants themselves come into court after the bonds have been forfeited, and pay the fines and costs adjudged against them, or stand trial and be convicted, or are acquitted according to the evidence in the case."

"I know Chief Rea and his force have been very diligent in apprehending defendants who forfeit their bonds, and in making bondsmen pay their fines and costs in cases where they have been ascertained to have nothing in the world to do with the taking and the approving of bonds in the corporation court. That is a matter entirely with the police department. From my observation, I believe of the city has practically no forfeited cases pending. Either the sureties or the defendants themselves come into court after the bonds have been forfeited, and pay the fines and costs adjudged against them, or stand trial and be convicted, or are acquitted according to the evidence in the case."

"I know Chief Rea and his force have been very diligent in apprehending defendants who forfeit their bonds, and in making bondsmen pay their fines and costs in cases where they have been ascertained to have nothing in the world to do with the taking and the approving of bonds in the corporation court. That is a matter entirely with the police department. However, I will say this, that of the two hundred forfeited cases, you spoke of the other day in your paper, I honestly believe a very small percentage of that number failed to appear afterwards, and had their cases disposed of in the proper manner. From my observation, I believe of the city has practically no forfeited cases pending. Either the sureties or the defendants themselves come into court after the bonds have been forfeited, and pay the fines and costs adjudged against them, or stand trial and be convicted, or are acquitted according to the evidence in the case."

WEATHER FORECAST

Long Existing Drouth in Arizona Has Been Broken by Copious Rainfall and Cattle-men Have Good Prospects

MORE THAN AN INCH Phoenix Reports One-fourth as much Precipitation in One Day as Usually Falls in One Year—Comparative Figures for August

The great drouth in Arizona, reported to have been the most severe since the disastrous days of 1891, was broken yesterday by good rains in that section of the country, probably meaning a saving of millions of dollars to the cattlemen.

Phoenix, where the average yearly precipitation is only 4 inches, had rainfall of 1.16 inches, and yet there is in charge of the local weather bureau, who was formerly stationed at Phoenix, reports that when the rainfall reaches down in the valley to Phoenix it is safe to say that the rain has fallen back through the valley and over there the situation there was most serious.

The agricultural crops were reported as suffering, garden truck generally doing better than the other crops. Fruit losses are reported from the Cochise county of the stock the Phoenix Enterprise said: "In a few sections stock are doing fairly well, but generally they are suffering greatly and large numbers are dying. In many places death is occurring in water pools, into which cattle have waded, but from which they are too weak to wade after drinking heartily."

Tucson also reported similar conditions, predicting a worse year than 1891, when from 40 to 60 per cent of the cattle died for lack of water. In detailing the situation the Tucson Star said: "The present season cattle have been dying off in great numbers in Southern and Southeastern Arizona. The greatest losses are reported from the Cochise and Graham county ranges. The San Simon Cattle Company are losing heavily. It is stated that they are skinning not less than forty cattle a day, who have fallen victims to the drought and lack of feed, and yet there are many in the canyons and elsewhere that are not found. These hides are, of course, out on the market. If the drouth should continue for two months longer the loss would be fearful to contemplate. However, there is every reason to believe that within the next few weeks summer rains will be with us and the danger will have passed."

The ranges throughout Skull valley were also reported as being burned up while Northern Sonora reported the stock dying on every hand from drouth.

VERY LITTLE IN TEXAS In this state little rainfall occurred yesterday, Cuero, with 24 inches and Corpus Christi, with 14 inches, reported the only government stations to report precipitation.

Generally fair weather with scattered showers Sunday is predicted for East Texas.

THE WEATHER BUREAU has issued a statement of the conditions for August prevailing for the last nine years regarding temperature, rainfall, etc.

This statement shows that the mean or average temperature for the month is 84 degrees. The warmest August was that of 1899, with an average temperature of 87 degrees, and the coldest that of 1900 with an average of 81 degrees.

The highest temperature reached in August was 108 degrees on the 28th of the month, in 1901; the lowest temperature was 65 degrees on August 30, 1900. The records in these two instances cover periods of five years only.

That first half of the present time, the month is 1.74 inches, four being the average number of days with appreciable rainfall. The greatest monthly precipitation was 4.78 inches in 1896, and the lowest in 1902, when there was scarcely a trace. The average velocity of rainfall in any consecutive 24 hours fell July 31-August 1, 1901, the precipitation at that time being 77 inches.

The average number of clear days for August is 20, partly cloudy days 10, and cloudy days 10.

The prevailing winds for August have been from the south, with an average hourly velocity of 10 miles. The highest velocity attained by the wind was 28 miles from the south, on August 24, 1900. The average velocity of the wind is based on the records for four years.

FORECAST The forecast for Texas east of the one hundredth meridian, issued at New Orleans, is as follows: East Texas—Tonight, generally fair; Sunday, probably scattered showers.

WEATHER CONDITIONS D. S. Landis issued the following statement of weather conditions this morning: High pressure centers over the eastern states based on the position of yesterday, a little north of the position of the low pressure center, the pressure is pushing in from the northwest, the point of its westward movement being over Western Colorado. Low pressure is over the west portion of the lake region, over Kansas and Nebraska, and another over New Mexico and West Texas.

The cotton belt is clear with few showers since last night. The temperatures are about normal. Minnesota and Arizona have been the centers of rainfall during the past 24 hours. St. Paul receiving 2.42 inches and Phoenix reporting 1.16.

Cool conditions prevail in Wyoming and Utah, the current temperature at Lander this morning was 42 degrees. St. Paul, Duluth, Omaha and Phoenix, Texas is clear. No rain in state except 24 at Cuero. Temperatures continue about normal.

NEWS NOTES OF STATE UNIVERSITY

Institution Now Has Children of Former Graduates Enrolled for the Term

AUSTIN, Texas, July 30.—Dr. Samuel Peterson, the new adjunct professor of political science in the University of Texas, comes to Texas from the University of North Dakota, where he has been assistant professor of economics and social science for the past three years. Dr. Peterson spent most of his youth in California. After being admitted to the bar at Los Angeles in 1892, Dr. Peterson went east to continue his studies. He entered Yale University and received his B. A. degree from that institution in 1895. Two years later he received his Ph. D. degree from Yale, then entered the Yale law school and received the degree of LL. B. in 1898, and of D. C. L. in 1

BETTER STAY AT HOME

Get the Panama idea out of your head. If you have packed your trunk and thrown up your job, unpack it and ask your former employer to take you back.

There are a few thousands of young fellows in this country who have an idea that in the construction of the great canal fat jobs will go begging, and that it will be a fine thing to chuck up the $30 a month place on the farm and draw $300 every thirty days on the great ditch.

Applications for places are reaching the canal commission at the rate of 1,000 a day already, in the face of the fact that there are no places at the commission's disposal.

Some time there will be a lot of work, and undoubtedly the rate of pay will be high. But you couldn't stand it. There isn't a more pestiferous hole on the globe than that same canal site. The climate is as different from that of the United States as dark is from daylight. Strange fevers, that slay almost in a night, abound, and disease is to be found everywhere.

Undoubtedly, all that can be done to make the surroundings healthful will be done; but even then it is probable that the digging of the canal will be done at the cost of thousands of human lives. The men who work and survive will be largely those who have grown up in hot countries, who are used to killing labor and who are physically stronger than the average American.

If you have any kind of a position that pays you decently and has a future in it, you will be wise to get the Panama idea out of your head. If, when the time comes, you will go, and have a family, in justice to them get your life insured, if any insurance company will take the risk.

RANK INGRATITUDE

It has been repeatedly announced and perhaps is commonly believed that the "Standard Oil crowd" is against President Roosevelt in the present campaign. The Roosevelt organs admit it with a frankness that is captivating. The removal of William Rockefeller's name from the list of campaign managers of the Union League Club was accomplished with high dramatic effect. There is left no ground for doubt that the Roosevelt managers are resigned to having it generally understood that the "Standard Oil crowd" is opposed to Roosevelt.

Maybe it is true. But if it is, then the "Standard Oil crowd" is guilty of an act of blackest ingratitude. That might, or might not, be strange.

Of all the monopolies that have profited by Roosevelt rule the Standard Oil is the fattest and the most favored. It has been sustained, or at least it has been free from interference, in the most effective system of "restraint of trade" known in commercial history.

It has been allowed to disregard all laws in producing its 48 per cent dividend for stockholders, with no official act or official word to make it hesitate or fear.

Other monopolies have been proceeded against or threatened, but the Standard Oil Company has been strictly unmolested.

Moreover, throughout the entire Roosevelt administration the Standard Oil bank has been given the use of the old custom house in New York free of tax and in receipt of a rental from the government.

It may be that the Standard Oil crowd is ungrateful for all this. It must be so, since the Roosevelt organs are so vociferously admitting it.

But it would strain the most elastic imagination to find what more the Standard Oil crowd might hope to get from the Parker administration than it is getting from the present one.

If it has overlooked anything it wants, it is a strange and unaccountable oversight.

A WORD FOR HEARST

Just a word for William Randolph Hearst.

Politically, he is down and out. Because he is in that unenviable position he is being lambasted from Maine to California, and being told that he is a fool, and has been a fool from the time that he laid the wires for the capture of the presidency on the democratic ticket. Some very bad people have succeeded in achieving office. Some men who are not fit to lick the boots of William Randolph Hearst, even supposing that half that has been said about him is true, have governed cities and taken millions from the pockets of the people.

Then, in the face of these known wrongs, why criticize a man who had an ambition, and set about accomplishing it. The bootblack on the corner has a legal and moral right to strive for the position of president, or any other office within the gift of the people.

The humblest toiler has a right to aspire to any height. He has a right to argue and plead and write and use all his force, all his genius, in the effort to rise.

There is a lot of liberty left in this grand country, and it is for the good of the country that it is so. When the final test came Mr. Hearst was turned down. He was not wanted, and his situation was no better or worse than that of thousands who have striven and lost. He exercised his prerogative as an American citizen, paid his bills and heard the populace cheer the man who was selected.

It is the American way, and so far it has proven successful in the aggregate. If the time ever comes when it shall be deemed a crime for any man who shall be possessed of enough reputation to be received in public life to aspire to any position, no matter how exalted, then will American liberty have become a farce.

There appears to be more to be explained about the taking off of F. Kent Loomis. Mystery and suggestion of crime hang over the affair, the thorough clearing up of which seems to involve more details of the now celebrated Abyssinian treaty. It seems incredible that Loomis's companion, Ellis, should have completed a mission instructed by the assistant secretary of state to his own brother. The manner in which Ellis proceeded with the state documents seems to indicate that the mysterious disappearance or death of a personal representative of the United States was a trifling matter. If Ellis did proceed with papers entrusted to another, is no explanation to be asked? There is that about the Loomis affair so unusual that the American people have a right to the fullest information concerning the entire proceeding.

The different factions that have heretofore existed within the democratic party are now getting so close together it is difficult to determine who is who and which was the other fellow. Behold how blessed it is for brethren to thus dwell together in amity while would-be leaders may be skulking in the brush with a blunderbuss loaded to the muzzle with schemes or so-called reformation and reorganization. At this stage of the game it looks as though Mr. Bryan is about the only prominent member of the party who needs reforming and reorganizing.

Over in Mississippi a new town has been established which it is proposed to name Vardaman, after the present governor of that state. An application to the postal authorities at Washington for the establishment of a post-office is returned with the information that it cannot be granted as the president objects to the name. Perhaps if the town was called Booker it would be made a presidential office from the start. Mr. Roosevelt should not allow his personal animosities to cause inconvenience to the people of any community.

Friends of Mr. Bryan are rising up in a few localities in defense of his course in the presidential campaign, but they are putting up a weak effort. The fact of the business is that the course of Mr. Bryan is almost indefensible. Harmony is what the democracy needs at this time, and it is no time for talk of reformation and reorganization. The job on hand just at this time is the reformation of the republican party through its enforced retirement from power.

An effort is being made by the Columbian congress to declare null and void all treaties with the United States, together with a severance of all diplomatic relations, as a result of the Panama canal. While that course would appear somewhat of an emollient to Columbian dignity, it will not restore the lost provinces. It is too late to close the stable door when the steed located behind it has been abstracted.

While states in the eastern corn belt are mourning over the poor prospect for corn this year, down here in sunny Texas the corn crop is already made, is of bumper proportions, and a portion of it is already being marketed. We do not claim to be in the great corn belt down here, but when we do go after a corn crop we make the so-called corn states look like 30 cents.

It is to be presumed that the Secretary Hay, in consequence of the continued seizure of American cargoes on board British merchantmen by the Russian navy, will soon proceed to demand Admiral Skrydloff alive or the Grand Duke Michael dead as reparation. These United States are not to be trifled with on the eve of a republican presidential election.

E. G. Senter has launched a monthly publication at Dallas called "The Lantern," the special object of which appears to be the justification of Bryanism past and present. Mr. Senter is an easy and fluent writer, but it is to be apprehended that he will soon smoke the globe of his Lantern if he adheres to his apparent policy.

The Elizabethtown (Ky.) saloon keeper that hit Carrie Nation with a chair must keep a fierce brand.

A Recall To Honor

By EDWIN L. SABIN

Copyright, 1908, by Edwin L. Sabin

THE fair grounds were a kaleidoscope, concentrating at the race course in a tossing sea of color, for the Kirby fall racing meet was in full blast, and this was the great day upon its week's programme. Town and country mingled—a restless, babbling, good natured throng, occupying, rank on rank, tier on tier, every inch of vantage space, or streaming over the surrounding turf.

Sitting in the middle of the amphitheater Harold Durr eagerly gazed across the track, looking for Alice. He knew that opposite to him, somewhere amid the carriages ranged inside the rail, was her snowy parasol with its floating ruffles of chiffon. It seemed to him that this parasol—her parasol—ought to stand out before him blazoned with the word "Alice." But fifty, a hundred, parasols, all snowy, all massed in chiffon, met his straining eyes.

When some months previous to this date Mr. Redding had awakened to the fact that the acquaintance, ostensibly casual, between his daughter and young Durr was assuming a more serious aspect he very promptly set his parental foot squarely upon the whole affair. For the present an engagement was quite out of the question. Harold was only a clerk, who, although he possessed abundant plans and ambitions, had not realized upon them.

It was better that for awhile intercourse cease. If in time Harold proved worthy, socially and in a business way, possibly he might again try his chances. Thus, midst tears and vows from the daughter and indignant protestations and resolves by the lover, Mr. Redding ended his point. Harold entered upon an indefinite term of probation.

The odds were in favor of Mr. Redding finally yielding. He saw that his daughter was utterly miserable, and, after all, Harold's character was above reproach. Poverty was the lad's only drawback, one which the banker was strongly considering remedying.

Still today, as for many foregoing days, Harold was on one side of the track, Alice on the other. It was now 3 o'clock. Several races had been dispatched, and the next upon the programme was of intense local interest. It was a contest in which were entered, two horses which had long been keen rivals, whose owners had agreed to make this match a decisive test.

The fever of speculation was waxing more and more turbulent in the crowd. Harold himself had no idea of wagering. He had been brought up to believe that betting was wrong. Besides, he could not afford to bet, and it was his theory that usually the winners are those persons who do not vitally care.

However, everybody around him was betting. Everybody was talking horse. Everybody was telling of prospective gains. Banterings, gay assertions, playful threats, flew thick and fast. Men were coming and going, bearing reports of doings in the betting ring, for, despite the pretended efforts on the part of the meet officials, underneath the amphitheater pools were selling at a lively rate.

Harold felt himself alone inert. He was pervaded by vague discontent. Everybody was winning; nobody was losing, except the pool sellers, and they were legitimate spoil.

To quiet his unrest he arose and strolled out toward the stairs. Impelled onward, he descended and in an instant was seized by the mob gazing about the bookmakers' stands.

A hand clapped him on the shoulder, and he heard a voice in his ear: "Hello, old man! Want a good thing?" He twisted his neck and looked behind him and saw that the speaker was Dicky Saddler—red faced little Dicky, a race track habitué.

"I'm not betting," replied Harold. "Oh, phaw," scoffed Dicky. "Put your wad on Seven Up—it's a cinch. Fact. Tip straight from the stable and I know what I'm saying. See?" And he was taken away.

Harold pushed through the throng and on the outskirts sought a corner where he might stop and think. His brain was buzzing. The contagion had been too unbridled to be resisted. Half unconsciously his fingers were crumpling and creasing a ten dollar bill in his pocket—all the money he owned.

Should he let the opportunity pass by? Dicky Saddler's tip—it had come like a command. Dicky ought to know. He was inveterate at the races, and he always won—that is, nearly always.

Mastered by an impulse to venture as far as he dared he elbowed a path to a spot whence he could read the figures chalked on the board beside a bookmaker's box. Seven Up was selling at odds of 5 to 2.

What a chance! With his $10 he could gain $25. He would use the money to start a savings bank account for himself and Alice. He had tried his best to save, but had been unable. Surely in such a cause betting was not wicked.

Thus he reasoned. If only he had more money available. But the $10 was the extent. Of course there in his hip pocket reposed the $100 that he had received just as he had been closing the office for the half holiday. It was part payment on a piece of real estate. Mr. Benthorne, his employer, had gone, and the safe was locked, so Harold had placed the five twenty dollar bills securely in his pocket until the next day.

Now, not for an instant did he consider intrenching upon this sum. No, he was sane even if he was excited. And he was honest.

Suddenly he cast hesitation to the winds. He stepped forward and handed his bill to the bookmaker.

"On Seven Up," he said. In exchange he received a bit of gray card, like a ticket, with hieroglyphics on it which signified that he had wagered with bookmaker No. 8 $10 to $25 that Seven Up would pass the wire first.

As he was pocketing the ticket and taking refuge in the thought that if he lost "it would all be the same in a hundred years" his eyes encountered the eyes of Mr. Benthorne, who was but a few yards distant in the crowd. Mr. Benthorne smiled and shook his head. He must have witnessed the transaction. Harold, with a guilty sensation, he knew not why, smiled in return and sought a place in the amphitheater above.

Hardly had he seated himself ere the race was called. The horses gathered at the post. In the amphitheater somebody stood the better to see. Then the movement spread like a wave, and the whole amphitheater was on its feet. Somebody brazenly climbed upon a chair. Immediately the brazen throng climbed upon its chairs also.

The horses fledget. A wait, a shifting of positions, a warning from the starter—down they came; a cheer—they were off! And a very pretty start it was.

"Imp! Imp! Go it, Imp!" "Seven Up! Seven Up!" "Mascot!"

Voices shouted and shrieked in exultation, entreaty and encouragement. Hubhub reigned, engulfing alike the frenzied and the self possessed. Just behind Harold a woman leaned forward and, snapping her fingers, screamed incessantly: "Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!" Harold, outwardly unaffected, said nothing, but with fervent curiosity followed the struggling bunch of horses.

"Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!" "Imp will win," calmly announced a man beside Harold, closing his field-glass with a satisfied snap.

Around the last turn, into the home stretch, down the home stretch, sped the horses, all but the two leaders enveloped in eddying dust.

"Imp! Imp! Imp!" "Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up! Come on, Seven Up!" A waving of hats and parasols, a volley of cries, and the race was won, but not by Seven Up.

"I lost a dollar!" Harold heard the woman behind him bemoaning. He abstracted from his pocket his ticket and stolidly scattered it in pieces. No more betting for him. He had learned his lesson and had received what he deserved.

Mechanically he put his hand back to his hip pocket to ascertain that the hundred was safe. During the interest attached to the race he had forgotten about this trust.

"What! Empty?" With an abrupt, cold tightening of his heartstrings his fingers rapidly explored. Scarcely could he believe them. Empty, empty, empty! He had been robbed, probably by some deft thief in the betting ring.

He sprang to his feet, urged by an inspiration to seek out Mr. Benthorne at once, infora him, explain to him, obtain his advice, tell the police, do something, something, some—ah, but would Mr. Benthorne credit his story? Ordinarily, yes. On this occasion, no. He had seen the bet laid—in truth, a ten dollar bet, but what was there as proof of the amount? The ticket? It had been torn to shreds. His word? If he had wagered $10, why might not he have wagered $100, comparatively little money to be placed on a favorite?

Harold could see Mr. Benthorne listening to the tale, could see him gazing penetratingly with those troubled, accusing eyes; could see him at the close sorrowfully walking away, speaking not a syllable in condemnation, but with a manner—oh, a manner!

No, he could not face Mr. Benthorne. The result would be the same in any case. He was disgraced. One hundred dollars was not much, but it was more than he could restore. To some it would mean nothing; to him it meant ruin. What a fool he had been!

And so his hopes of Alice were now as worthless as those bits of gray paste-board underfoot, where disappointed holders had contemptuously thrown them. No doubt it was just as well. Alice must be learning to forget him—very likely, among her gay companions, already had forgotten him.

He pulled himself together with a jerk and hurriedly made for an exit. When he arrived at his room he had his course planned. Forsooth, his choice of courses was limited. It was an explanation with his employer face to face or a note that would explain when the writer was far away. The latter—he would accept the latter. It was the easier solution.

They would not pursue him, to apprehend him, defaulter though he might be styled. He would quietly drop from view, and obliquely, denunciation and sermon would not reach him. Alice would be rid of him, probably gladly after her father had in glee borne to her the news upon hearing it.

An envelope lying upon the table attracted his glance, a blue envelope, addressed to him in her handwriting, a handwriting every dot and curve dear to him, treasured on many a scrap locked within his trunk. With devouring eyes he scanned the contents:

Dearest Harold—Papa has relented. Come quick, quick, quick! All is arranged. It's perfectly lovely. Come quick, right after dinner tonight. I can hardly wait. Lovingly, ALICE.

P. S.—Isn't it grand? Brave little sweetheart! He had done her wrong. She had not forgotten him; she had not wavered. Resisting bribe and derision, she had clung steadfastly to him, week after week, and now she had conquered.

"Too late? Should he say, 'Too late?' Should he be the deserter? Should he fall her? No, and again no! Her words had restored his courage. She loved him; she had rallied to his side just in this hour of need, and no longer was he a craven. He would not flee his responsibilities, by his action acknowledge his guilt and abandon her to the graceless task of defending the name of a recreant. He would remain and defend his own name. Alice would believe in him and would not cast him off.

He drew a long breath and squared his shoulders. He would go to Mr. Benthorne's house and await him and tell him all. Mr. Benthorne might be charitable; if not charitable, merciful. He ought to have told Mr. Benthorne in the grand stand. It was to be a hard confession, but confess he would and meet the issues.

And after Mr. Benthorne he would tell Alice. He reread the note, kissed it and tenderly placed it in the inside pocket of his coat; then, strangely buoyant, he went out of the door bent upon his mission.

Hugo and Garibaldi. The French poet Victor Hugo, whom Tennyson addressed as "victor in drama, victor in romance," sent an impassioned but little known poem on the disaster of Mentana in 1867 to Garibaldi. The Italian hero, also invoking the aid of the muse, replied in verse, of which the then exile in Guernsey expressed appreciation in the following felicitous words:

Dear Garibaldi—There was a lyre in the tent of Achilles; a harp in that of Judas Maccabaeus; Orlando sent a copy of verses to Charlemagne; Frederick the Second addressed odes to Voltaire. Heroes are poets. You, too, prove it. I read with deep emotion the noble lyrical epistle which you addressed to me, and in which you speak to the soul of Italy in the language of France. The same breath of justice and liberty which inspires you with great deeds inspires you with great thoughts. Farewell, illustrious friend.

SPORTING NOTES

Butler, first man up for Paris, threatened to give the boys in blue a run for their money getting a double to start with and coming in without extending himself on the succeeding outs. This run ended the threat. Paris was not able again to get in the game until the ninth, when Christman fell considerably down.

A COOL HAND

[Copyright, 1904, by C. E. Lewis.]
I was employed in a wholesale house in a city that shall be nameless, and rooming at a hotel, and one evening I had purchased the current magazines and sat down for a long read.

He fumbled in his breast pocket for a moment and then brought out the money. There were three separate packages—$5,000, $2,000 and $1,000—but he had tied them all together and made one large package.

"That's all wool and a yard wide, but it will shrink when you come to try it on," he said as he flung his feet off the bed and stood up. "I don't know that I blame you for refusing the trip to Europe, but please don't be an idiot in other directions. You shaver yourself, don't you?" he finally asked as he turned to me.

"I had a much worn suit in the wardrobe, which I handed out. "Rather a tight fit, but I'll make it do," he said as he began to peel off. "My object is not to pass myself off for you, but to get rid of the Scotch tweed. You can sell that suit for at least $10, and here's $25 for yours."

"I don't want your money." "Don't be finicky. That's no part of this boodle, but was honestly earned. I'll leave it on the dresser. Now, then, to wrap the money in this newspaper and take my departure. Look here, my boy; take this thousand and put it where it will give you a start."

"To goddy good to ever get ahead of the game! What course are you going to pursue when I leave the room?" "Kick myself for a fool and then go to bed!"

When he had closed the door I locked it and sat down. After a quarter of an hour had slipped away I tumbled into bed. I fell asleep after a bit, and it was 7 o'clock before I opened my eyes. While I was dressing I had to go to the dresser for a hand collar button, and the ink stained handkerchief caught my eye. As I picked it up—lo there was the $1,000 package of green backs in plain view! Did the man get away? Yes, he walked downstairs and out of doors unquestioned, and the detectives never got a clew on him after that night. He probably went to one of the depots and took a train. About the money, I returned it to the bank by mail, and my action is still a puzzle to the bank officials and detectives. I could enlighten them, but I shall not. M. QUAD.

DENISON CLERKS GET MORE THAN ASKED FOR

Settlement Between the Unions and the Employers Is Very Favorable to the Men Who Are Employed

R. A. Massey of this city is in receipt of a communication from Organizer Henry M. Walker, who conducted the recent struggle of the clerks in Denison, detailing in full the settlement finally reached in that city.

Under the terms of the contracts the clerks receive a full hour at noon and their time is shortened from thirty minutes to an hour on Saturdays, pay days and the day following pay days. No reduction of wages accompanies this concession.

RAILROAD NEWS

Don't Worry Club Has Drawn the Knights of Pythias Into Membership and They Will Be Next to Go to St. Louis

ADAMS TO HAVE CHARGE

Grand Keeper of Records and Seal Henry Miller of Weatherford Will Be one of Party, and Pink Downs of Temple Will Be Along, Also

On August 13 another coach excursion will be run by the Cotton Belt to St. Louis. Also on August 27 a similar excursion will be conducted. The round trip rate will be $13.60.

The "Don't Worry Club" excursions have become quite popular and the next one will include the Knights of Pythias. The club will leave Fort Worth on August for Louisville, about 200 strong, according to statements made today by Cotton Belt officials. This excursion will be personally conducted by Supreme Representative John M. Adams, who will have charge of the party.

He said today that a great many knights will take advantage of the opportunity to visit Louisville on this cheap rate, which will give them an opportunity of seeing the World's Fair as well as to take in the great convolve to be held at Louisville. The combination rate for the round trip from Fort Worth will be $21.85. The rate from here to St. Louis is $13.60 and from St. Louis to Louisville and return $8.25.

Among some of those who will attend from Fort Worth and vicinity, besides Mr. Adams, are W. A. Abey, J. C. Caperton, Henry Miller of Weatherford, Mrs. J. T. Cotton and Mrs. H. C. Shropshire of Weatherford, H. P. Brown of Cleburne, W. A. Fraser of Dallas, C. T. Roff and B. S. Rogers of Brenham, P. L. Downs and H. H. Swink of Temple, Judge W. S. Lemly and C. M. Wright of Glenrose, and many others whose names could not be had.

RAILWAY PEOPLE WED The marriage of Miss Mabel Morcom, daughter of the general manager of the Mexican Central Railroad Company, was consummated in the City of Mexico this week, the bridegroom being Paul Steffian, who is city passenger and ticket agent for the Central in the City of Mexico. The bride's uncle, W. Q. Morcom of St. Louis.

A Summer TONIC When worn out with the day's heat there is nothing so refreshing and invigorating as HORSFORD'S Acid Phosphate IS A BUSINESS MAN The business men who want a business-auditor of freight receipts for the Missouri Pacific, attended the meeting.

MAY BUY THE SAP A meeting has been in progress in St. Louis this week, attended by President Yoakum and officials of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass interests for the purchase of the latter road by the Frisco system. This is said to have been cause for the meeting. Vice President and General Manager Miller of the Brownsville road attended the meeting.

Information from Houston is to the effect that the deal will not affect the building of the Brownsville coast line north from Sinton to Columbia to connect with the Columbia Tap. If the deal is made the Brownsville road will have two entrances into Houston—one over the Columbia Tap and the other over the Sap.

RECORDS MOVED TO FORT WORTH E. B. Pierce, the recently named auditor of the Frisco, returned to the city yesterday and began active duties. There were received at the general offices of this company yesterday all the records, etc., that have accumulated during the time the road has been operated, while the offices of the auditor were at Sherman. The office at that point has been closed and most of the clerical force, with the exception of three or four who will come to Fort Worth, were transferred to the general offices of the company in St. Louis.

NEW RAILROAD PROJECTED The Kansas, Tulsa and Southwestern Railroad Company has been incorporated under the laws of Oklahoma for the purpose of building a line that will commence at a point on the Iron Mountain in the Cherokee Nation, pass through Cherokee, Creek, Seminole and Choctaw Nations, and through Pottawatomie, Cleveland, Lincoln, Oklahoma and Comanche in Oklahoma and Clay and Wichita counties in Texas, to Wichita Falls, a distance of 250 miles. The capital of the company is $2,000,000.

THE MISSOURI PACIFIC VACANCY Touching the vacancy of the general manager of the Missouri Pacific, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: There is continued speculation in railroad circles concerning the appointment of a successor to Vice President and General Manager Russell Harding of the Missouri Pacific. No information on the subject has yet been given out at either the St. Louis or New York offices of the Gould system, and it is presumed that the appointment awaits the return of President Gould from Europe. It is said that he has been in cable communication with the Rockefeller interests, but that no conclusion has been reached. It is also said that offers have been made through President Jeffrey of the Rio Grande in Mr. Gould's behalf to one or two able and experienced operating men. One of these resides at Mobile. General Manager C. S. Clarke of the Mobile and Ohio, who likewise has offices in St. Louis. Mr. Clarke is a brother-in-law of President Jeffrey, and was selected by the Southern railway interests to take the helm of the Mobile and Ohio when President E. L. Russell retired to resume the office of general counsel.

Vice President and General Manager A. Allison of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas has also been mentioned as the probable choice of the Rockefeller interests. Within the Gould official family the names already mentioned in the Globe-Democrat are still being discussed, viz.: Vice President and General Manager Britton of the Cotton Belt, Mr. Harding's successor on that system; Vice President and General Manager Thorne of the Texas and Pacific, Manager Edson of the Rio Grande, Manager Cotter of the Missouri Pacific. The Terminal manager, Alex. Robertson, who came from the Washash, is also mentioned among the operating officials.

IS A BUSINESS MAN The business men who want a business-like answer to questions, the appointment of Paul Morton as secretary of the navy is proving highly satisfactory. He is rapidly establishing the fact that a railroad man may fill that place as well as a lawyer. A man who occasionally has business at the navy department in Washington says it is a great relief to find at the head of that bureau a man who is not a lawyer.

"I was there last week," he says, "having occasion to ask Mr. Morton some questions, and he gave me direct and satisfactory answers. They were not couched in legal terms and hedged so thoroughly that they did not mean anything. The government stands in need of more business men in the highest and in other official positions. Men who are not afraid to decide things are the crying need of public offices."

DR. SLOAN GETS A TRANSFER TO THIS CITY

An Inspector of the Bureau of Animal Industry Is to Be Stationed in This City, Coming From Arizona

Dr. J. A. Sloan of the United States bureau of animal industry, who has been stationed at Nogales, Ariz., has been transferred to Fort Worth and will take charge of the affairs of the department at this place at once.

He gives out a report that the continued long drouth in Southern Arizona has ended at last, but that many cattlemen, before the grass came out again and the water holes were filled, will have lost fully 50 per cent of their stock. Copious rains are now falling, he says, and the roads are in very bad condition as a result, but the season has been so very dry that it will be several weeks before the grass is tall enough to do the cattle any good.

Only one season in the history of Southern Arizona has been worse on the cattlemen than the present, and that was in 1893. The drouth was probably as bad this year, but the cattlemen have developed more water this year than they had in 1893, and as a natural result there has been less suffering among the cattle.

Just as the doctor passed through El Paso en route to this city there were received at El Paso 500 head of mules from Chihuahua, Mexico, in bond for South Africa. The consignment comprises a part of a shipment of several thousand head to be made to the Transvaal country during the next few months.

The Idea Has Never Occurred

If a healthy laboring man will eat two pounds of solid food—of meat, bread, vegetables and fruit—these two pounds brought together in one heap would fill to overflowing the largest size dinner pail, and yet there are hundreds of grown-up men and women to whom the idea has never occurred, that if this mass is retained in the body day by day disease and premature death is an inevitable result. JUDGE J. F. COOPER naming Wheeler, Hemphill and Lipscomb, who blazed the way with decisions never yet surpassed. The early Texas bar he praised as liberal and broad men who first put into the books, the law giving the homestead to a family—a law which has since been copied by every state in the union and many foreign governments.

Urged by those surrounding the board Major Jarvis told many an interesting anecdote of practice in the early days, when to use his expression, "you carried your brief in one sash bag and a clean shirt in the other, and when the lawyer's friend was the larriest at the horn of his saddle."

CAPTAIN J. C. TERRELL
Captain J. C. Terrell told of the early Fort Worth bar, describing vividly those days of prosperity when the lawyers were the banks.

MARSHALL SPOONTS
Marshall Spoonst, whose maiden effort was made in response to the justice courts, apologized for his effort, saying that it was based on the anecdotal fact that he was sure to please, to wit, that if he failed to please in speaking, he was assured of giving pleasure in coming to a close.

JUDGE W. P. McLEAN
"The Federal Judiciary," fell to the lot of Judge W. P. McLean, who handed one branch of it, the circuit courts, with unglued hands.

AT THE CITY PARK
The following is the program for the concert at the city park, Sunday, July 31, from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m., by the union band:

NEW CHARTERS FILED
BY SECRETARY OF STATE
AUSTIN, Texas, July 30.—The following charter has been approved by the secretary of state, and filed for record in the state department:

which stand near the federal head.
"We are fortunate in that few of the circuit judges have proved corrupt. Few have been impeached and none convicted. Nevertheless they represent political power and are partisan generally. From the appointive judges thus arraigned, Judge McLean excepted the supreme court, the district courts, the territory courts and the supreme court of the Philippine islands.

JUDGE S. J. HUNTER
Samuel J. Hunter treated the "State Judiciary" in a lively fashion, asserting that good company had made him unloose harmlessly his bottled wrath ready to be flung at the courts for reversing his decisions.

JUDGE W. D. HARRIS
The playing of "Dixie" by the orchestra was the signal for a tribute to Emmett by the toastmaster, following which he called upon Judge W. D. Harris to respond to "Our Guest."

JUDGE D. W. HUMPHREYS
"The Ladies" was responded to by D. W. Humphreys, who disproved the alleged statement of his first sweetheart by showing that he was a poet and paying a tribute of praise and eloquence to women, especially southern women.

Reports Large Crowd at Confederate Gathering Held in Limestone County
Judge C. C. Cummings of this city returned yesterday afternoon from Mexia, where he went to attend the annual reunion of the Confederate Veterans, held near that city during the first part of the present week.

THE PARK CONTAINS ABOUT 100 ACRES OF LAND and was donated to the association by General Mealia. Judge Cummings states that the veterans made considerable money off the privileges, which were sold for $700.

THE JUDGE SPOKE FOR AN HOUR and was listened to with attention throughout the address. Dr. Rainey also delivered a short address.

WU TING FANG IS TO RETIRE TO A PRIVATE LIFE
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 30.—Wu Ting Fang, for some years the Chinese minister at Washington, according to his son, Wu Chao Chu, has resigned the vice presidency of the foreign board at Peking and is said to have permanently retired from politics.

CHINESE DIPLOMAT HAS TIRED OF THE BURDENS OF A PUBLIC CAREER AND WILL GO TO A COUNTRY SEAT
Wu Chao Chu said that his father has determined to lead a quiet life and has built himself a country home near Shanghai. The former minister is now at Peking, closing up his official business.

JAIL DELIVERY IS REPORT AT BELTON
One of the Escaped Prisoners Calls Fort Worth His Home. No Recapture Made

TEMPLE, Texas, July 30.—Telephone information was received from Belton by the local peace officers today that a jail delivery had been effected at the county jail there early this morning, resulting in five prisoners making their escape. Two of the men were George Pate, who calls Fort Worth his home, and a man named Charles Williams, both of whom were being held to await the action of the grand jury on five burglary charges each. Another one was Roy McCoy, also held on a charge of burglary, and two other prisoners held on misdemeanor charges. The men escaped by forcing out the bars in the cell window with an improvised iron bar used in patching the floor not long since. None of the parties had been recaptured at a late hour today.
