SOME PEOPLE AND 'TIS PROVED

Man Who Believes That Without Holiness No Man Shall See the Lord Sends the Railroad Money for His Fare

"The world is growing better," said General Passenger Agent Glisson of the Denver road, as he referred to a couple of "conscience-stricken individuals" who have just sent him checks for amounts claimed to be due that road for rides over that line. One letter was from a man who lives at Bowie. He states that five years ago he rode over the Denver road from Fruitland to Bowie and concludes his letter with the statement that "the conductor never fined me and I never noticed him. I have a religion that makes me want to do right, so I inclose you an order for 25 cents to pay the fare and interest."

The other letter was from a man who now lives in Chicago. He states that in 1898 he made a trip over the Denver road to Denver at a cost of $19 as against $24, the regular rate between Denver and Chicago, the difference being $5. In the letter the man says he incloses $2.50 to be applied on the balance $5, and adds: "I am endeavoring to straighten up the crookedness of my sinful life, after which I am going to India to work among the heathen. Will send the remaining $2.50 as soon as I can."

At the top of the letter head on which the man writes to Mr. Glisson is the motto: "Without holiness no man shall see the Lord."

THE CROPS IN TEXAS

People along the bayou in Brown county are gathering this year's crop of pecans. The nut this year is larger and better than it has been for several years. An immense crop is in sight.

Planters along the Brazos have found that the planting of cotton this year on land which was used for the raising of alfalfa last year has proved to be very prolific for the raising of cotton. At Paris several stalks of cotton have been shown of this year's crop, which was over six feet in height with all kinds of cotton on it.

Cotton pickers are still in great demand at Cleburne. The farmers are offering the very best inducements to the pickers to come to the fields, but most of them are either too lazy or desire to go further north, where they can get better money for their services.

Rains have fallen at Yoakum, Koperl, Belton, Georgetown and Crawford on Tuesday and Wednesday. The rain was in most cases a slow drizzling sort of a rain and did much to keep the pickers from working in the fields, when at this time of the year their services are so badly needed. The rains which fell were not heavy ones, but will do not good to ripened cotton.

The rice crop around Houston and Beaumont promises to be the best so far raised. The irrigation methods employed are an almost certain guarantee of a good crop. This year the best scientific methods have been employed and the results are most encouraging.

At Sunset and vicinity rains have fallen the past few days, and it is thought that this will do much toward putting the crop in a better condition.

A twenty-ounce pear has been shown in Walker county, demonstrating the fact that it is possible to raise fine fruit there. Many other pears have been raised which will weigh at least sixteen ounces.

Very little cotton has moved from the farms to the markets in the past few days. The farmers are either too busy in the fields or they are holding the cotton for better prices.

Dr. S. A. Knapp, the government expert, is to have a meeting of the men who had charge of the various demonstration farms throughout the state at Houston, the last week in October. This will bring together almost 6,000 farmers, some of whom will come to Houston and learn what the other men have been doing.

The Rio Grande river continues to run high and many of the low lands along the course are flooded. This continued wetness at this time of the year is almost unprecedented in the history of the stream. Many a farmer's crop in the bottom land has been lost on the strength of it.

A party of Illinois and Iowa capitalists are at present at Beaumont looking over the rice situation. The party has among its number General Nelson A. Miles, who is almost anxious to become interested in rice culture in Texas. The party will visit Houston and San Antonio, and then take a short trip over the Southern Pacific. The party is to be in the state for about ten days.

FROST IN RIVER BOTTOM
DENISON, Texas, Sept. 15.—Farmers report a slight frost last night in Red river bottom. No damage to cotton.

LITTLE IMPROVEMENT
WAXAHACHE, Texas, Sept. 16.—There is little improvement in the cotton situation in Ellis county with reference to sufficient labor to gather the crop. Nearly all the crop is now open and many farmers have not picked a bale on account of being unable to obtain help. So great is the demand for help that the city is practically free from negroes. It is almost impossible to get a man to cook, wash or do any kind of house work. Cotton has been rolling in at a lively rate this week and on account of the round gin closing down the square bale gins are away behind with orders. There are three square bale gins in the city and were received. There were fifty wagons loaded with cotton standing on the yard at one time yesterday morning.

NO YELLOW FEVER AT BROWNSVILLE IS REPORT

State Health Officer Tabor Has Statement of the Clean Condition of the Rio Grande Section of the State

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 16.—State Health Officer Tabor received a letter from Dr. J. H. Florence, state sanitary inspector at Brownsville, yesterday, in which he says things are quiet at that place and that there are not only no cases of yellow fever there, but not even a suspicious case.

Dr. Florence said he had recently visited the towns of Renovaya, in Mexico, and Kidalgo, in Texas, both of which were free from sickness of any kind.

There are two Federal sanitary inspectors in Brownsville by special invitation of the Texas health department, who, with the Mexican authorities, are co-operating with Dr. Florence, who has entire charge of the situation, in all works of sanitation and disinfection.

Dr. P. H. Shaves, one of the state inspectors, reports to Dr. Florence that he has lately done inspection work from Matamoros to San Antonio, on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, and on the Texas side from Brownsville to Rio Grande City, and found all these places and intervening country free from yellow fever, reasonably clean and in fair sanitary state.

Dr. H. K. Low, also representing the state health department, is in charge at Point Isabel and reports matters in good shape in that place.

MANY SUITS FILED IN ELLIS COUNTY

WAXAHACHE, Texas, Sept. 16.—Damage suits aggregating $65,155.45 have been filed in the district court this week against the Houston and Texas Central Railroad Company. Two suits for $10,000 each and one suit for $5,999 were filed in the early part of the week, and yesterday afternoon a suit for $41,155.45 was filed. The plaintiff in the last suit is L. Grych of Ennis, formerly employed by the Central as switchman in the yards at Ennis. The petition filed by the plaintiff alleges that on March 23, 1903, he was performing the duties of a switchman in the Ennis yards, while walking and trying to uncouple a string of moving cars he fell and his right foot was so badly mangled by the car wheels that amputation was necessary.

J. H. Jackson filed a suit against the International and Great Northern Railroad Company to recover damages in the sum of $2,350. The plaintiff alleges that his land has been damaged by reason of water backing on it from the defendant's railway dump.

MRS. SABRINA S. CARLE
The death of Mrs. Sabrina S. Carle, aged 71 years, occurred this morning at the residence of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Norman Nelson, 1251 Cannon avenue, Mrs. Carle, who had been living in this city some time, came from Clinton, Ill., to which place her remains will be taken tomorrow morning.

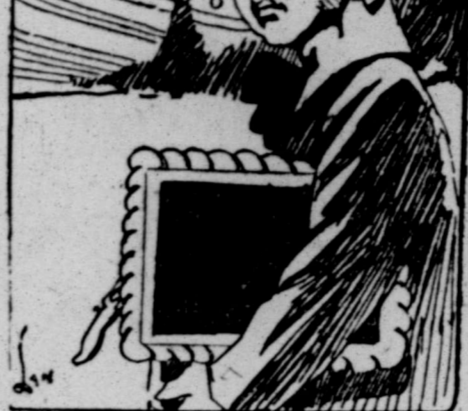

SELLS TO ROCK ISLAND
HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 16.—Dispatches from Chicago today saying Harriman has disposed of the Houston and Texas Central to the Rock Island in connection with the Alton deal created a great flurry here. Vice President Fay, Harriman's head man in Texas, believes the report is untrue.

PUBLIC SCHOOL FIRST DAY

Practically Four Thousand Pupils Went on the List in the White Department—Number of Colored Children Small

Practically 4,000 pupils enrolled in the Fort Worth public schools yesterday for the school year of 1904-05. Numerous applicants were refused admittance, some on account of age and others because they did not reside in the school district.

The children attended school this morning had their lesson assigned for Monday and were allowed to go at 10:30 o'clock.

Work begins in earnest Monday, and by that time the bustle and confusion which goes with opening days will be over.

COLORED SCHOOLS
The enrollment in the colored public schools in the city is unusually low, only 356 pupils having registered yesterday. The fact is accounted for because so many of the colored children are in the cotton fields.

CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS
Officer Clark of the local police force arrested a man about 5 o'clock yesterday evening for raising a general disturbance across the river at "battercake" flats.

The man was drunk and proceeded to curse and abuse men, women and children living in the river bottom. Police headquarters were notified and Officer Clark arrested the fellow. He was locked up, charged with drunkenness, disturbing the peace and abusive language.

IN FRONT OF A LAUNDRY
Great excitement prevailed in front of a steam laundry yesterday evening about 6 o'clock, when one of the laundry drivers engaged in a difficulty with a man who came to the laundry to see the driver about some alleged remarks that the driver had made about his daughter. A fight ensued, in which the father got decidedly the worst of it.

Officer Clark later in the evening arrested the laundry driver. He was charged with assault and pistol carrying.

RUMOR AFFECTS MARKET
PARIS, Sept. 15, 2 p. m.—Rentes are down 7/16 points to 98.40. There may be some thing in the rumor of Port Arthur having fallen, judging from the decline in French securities, but English consols for money closed only 1/16 better than last night, at 83 1/4, against 83 1/8. If Port Arthur falls into the hands of the Japs it will be a bullish factor in the cotton market.

4 p. m.—Rentes closed at 98.27 1/2 against 98.40 at 2 p. m. and 99.10 last night. This gives more color to the rumor that Port Arthur has fallen.

ORPHAN'S HOME WANTED
AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 16.—A large delegation composed of some of the leading ministers and teachers now in attendance upon the National Baptist convention called on the governor today and presented the matter of the establishment of a state orphan's home for colored children.

The discussion was altogether formal, but the whole range of the subject was gone over. It is probable that more will be heard of this matter.

Lies About the Inside Inn

We don't believe in knocking, hence we're not going to say a word about the other fellows; but in simple self-defense we propose to absolutely refute the malicious statements circulated by the St. Louis hotel and boarding house fraternity regarding the ability of the Inside Inn to care for the crowds who daily seek its hospitable roof. We, therefore, make the following statements in all honesty and good faith, and are prepared to "make good" on each and every one of them:

1. The Inside Inn is able, at all times, to comfortably accommodate all who come, at whatever rates they wish to pay.

WEATHER FORECAST

For the third consecutive day Corpus Christi experienced heavy rains yesterday, the report from the government station at that place this morning showing the rain to be still falling.

Little rain fell yesterday at other points in Eastern Texas, although the heavy floods in West Texas along the Rio Grande are reported as unabated.

At Laredo the Rio Grande was reported yesterday to have reached a height of 23 feet and to be still rising. Travel in this section has been interrupted and a number of bridges, including one of the Texas-Mexican railroad over Chacon creek has been swept away.

A number of houses are reported to have been washed away at Brownsville, where the yards of the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico road are under water. The Rio Grande is reported to be still far below the danger line, notwithstanding its rapid rise of the past few days. Late reports from Del Rio say that the rising of the water has come to a standstill at that point and it is now believed the worst of the flood is over.

Frost is reported last night as occurring in the Ohio valley, extending well into Tennessee. The upper Mississippi valley is also suffering from early frost.

Partly cloudy and warmer weather is predicted for East Texas tonight and tomorrow.

FORECAST
The forecast for Texas east of the one hundredth meridian, issued at New Orleans, is as follows:—Tonight and Saturday, partly cloudy weather; warmer tonight except in extreme west portion.

East Texas (south)—Tonight and Saturday, scattered showers.

WEATHER CONDITIONS
D. S. LANDIS has the following statement of weather conditions this morning:
The high anti-cyclonic conditions have moved eastward, and this morning the Atlantic coast country is clear, cool and light in wind movement. Low pressure with cloudiness is noted in the extreme northeast and northwest.

The country is practically without rain this morning except at Corpus Christi, where rain continues to fall. The Mississippi valley is partly cloudy to cloudy throughout.

Frost is reported in the Ohio valley and in the upper Mississippi.

Texas is generally clear except along the immediate gulf coast. Temperatures have changed but little except in the northwest, where the increase has been from 10 to 20 degrees since last report.

OF INTEREST TO THE STOCKMEN

It is reported that some of the South Dakota ranchmen are seriously considering the matter of moving a large number of their cattle to ranges west of the Cheyenne river, on the ground that the present price of pasture where they are, $2.50 per head, is excessive.

The scarcity of feeder lambs in New Mexico this season, owing to the severe drought that prevailed in that section, is compelling buyers to go to Utah and Wyoming to obtain the necessary supply.

Live stock agents of the various lines of railway say they expect a big movement of western cattle to begin October 1, if market prices will justify it.

Texas cattlemen who have been pasturing cattle in Kansas all the year are now in that state looking after the shipment of their fat stuff out to market.

Winfield Scott of this city, J. B. Wilson of Dallas and Captain E. B. Harrold of Fort Worth are in Shackelford county, looking at some of the best steers in that section, with the view of purchasing them to feed.

B. H. Hambrick of this city purchased three cars of range horses in the San Angelo country a few days ago, for which he paid prices varying from $20 to $47 around. The horses were shipped to this market.

Speaking of conditions in the Amarillo country, Howard Wilson, a prominent young stockman of that city, says: "We are overstocked at all points, and in fact, there are fewer cattle there than usual."

The northwest country has had a severe frost, but cattlemen say no damage will result to the ranges. In the corn states, it is said, no damage has resulted.

The world's fair cattle show opened at St. Louis Monday with 2,400 entries, which is practically double that of the Chicago World's Fair, and constitutes the greatest exhibition of pure bred cattle ever held in America.

Speaking of conditions up in the Canadian country, Sam Isaacs, of the well known firm of Isaacs Brothers, says: "Feed is plentiful that section and the Canadian district will be able to handle all the cattle in that country this fall and winter in good shape."

THE MEXICANS HAVE A HOLIDAY HERE

Today is the greatest day in Mexican history. All patriotic Mexicans, whether they be in Mexico or the United States, will observe the day, if they can. This is the day in the year 1821, after a war lasting from 1810, when the Mexicans drove from Mexico the Spanish.

Here in Fort Worth all good Mexicans are flaunting to the breeze the national colors, red, white and green. Tonight they are to have a small celebration on Calhoun street, and there is to be singing and good cheer. If one has noticed today he will have observed the absence of the hot female man and his familiar cry about the streets. This is his day of rest and he takes it in commemoration of the victory his forefathers won for him.

The Telegram absolutely guarantees a much larger paid daily circulation in the city of Fort Worth and surrounding territory than any other daily newspaper printed.

A RAY OF LIGHT ON IMMIGRATION

It is a relief to be able to read of the brighter side of the immigration problem, as Mr. Pew's article in today's Telegram tells it. The work that the American schools are doing in assimilating the children of the immigrant is marvelous and effective.

These little ones are having opened to them vistas of enlightenment, comfort and appreciation of the blessings of liberty. They, poor little things, are doing their share in fitting themselves for the uplift.

But this brighter side equalizes the dark side less than emphasizes it. How long can our educational system withstand the strain? If immigration is permitted to continue to advance in leaps and bounds while the average in quality steadily becomes lower must not the child labor evil alone soon offset the public school blessing?

How long can the national stomach keep pace in digesting the mass of raw material? And when the inevitable national indigestion shall develop how terribly must the whole body suffer the penalty of gluttony?

With the article today the present series is closed. The Telegram has performed its duty in setting out an unbiased and unprejudiced statement of present-day conditions. The facts as Messrs. Pew and Vandercook have found and related them require no discussion by the editor.

It has been a plain, unvarnished story told in simple but interesting style. There is food for reflection and discussion in the series of papers.

There is no desire to offend nor to unduly alarm and the series and whatever comment we may have made is commended to your serious, honest and patriotic consideration.

That something should be done to check the evil is evident. You would do well to send copies of these articles to your congressman and senator and suggest to him that he has a duty to perform toward you and toward your country—whether it be yours by birth or adoption.

PARKER CONSTITUTIONAL CLUBS

The fact that the democracy in the pending campaign stands for the constitution and a constitutional form of government by and for the people is well illustrated by the organization of Parker Constitutional Clubs all over the country. The city of New York has led off in this very timely movement and a large and enthusiastic organization has been effected with James C. Carter, president; W. H. Peckham, J. E. Parsons, Joseph Larocque and John G. Carlisle, vice presidents, and an executive committee composed of some of the leading members of the New York bar. The object of these clubs is explained in the following preamble:

"The object of the club is to advance the cause of constitutional government, civic freedom and adherence to law, through the election of Alton B. Parker to the presidency of the United States."

"The American people in their constitution have wisely separated the executive and law-making powers of government. They have wisely set bounds to the powers vested in the president, and in the president and congress jointly. Moreover, it has always been their will, obedient to the admonition of Washington in his farewell address, that their public officers should hold sacred the obligations of international law and international fair dealing, and should refrain from aggression upon other nations and peoples, and from needless intermeddling in their affairs."

"The American people, adhering to the principles and policies, have prospered and grown great vastly beyond the measure of any greatness or prosperity ever built upon other principles and policies, and have made a shining demonstration that there is no limitation of a republic wherein freedom and law are maintained, and the rights of weaker people are respected."

"This venerable and beneficent policy President Roosevelt has undertaken to reverse, and in its place to set up a policy of autocratic force. He has shown that a president who has the will to usurp legislative functions, to exalt the power of the executive above the constitution and to commit our nation to violations of international justice easily finds a way. His course, while filling the vacancy made by the death of President McKinley can only be taken as an earnest plea of what he will do if the American people shall by electing him president approve his tendencies and methods."

"Here is the issue which every American citizen must now decide. The American who was until recently the chief justice of the highest court of New York is the leader of those who stand for constitutional government of this country, strong and enduring in the union of liberty and law."

There is no reason why we should not have Parker Constitutional Clubs all over Texas. It is true that the opposition to democracy in this state is limited, but that fact should not prevent a wave of genuine democratic enthusiasm from sweeping over the state and cause the people to stand up for a constitutional form of government as typified in a democratic administration honestly and economically administered. The interest of the masses demands that there be a speedy return to democratic means and democratic measures, else the constitutional form of government bequeathed us by the fathers of the republic will become but a sham and a mockery."

The state of West Virginia is said to be the only state east of the Mississippi river in which there are more men than women. According to the official figures, for every 521 men West Virginia only has 479 women. This fact doubtless accounts for your Uncle Henry Gassaway Davis remaining in a state of celibacy. Knowing there are not enough to go around, he has been sufficiently self-sacrificing to stand out of the other fellow's way."

Lo, the poor Indian, is beginning to show his capacity for citizenship in a very practical manner. Some of the members of the Five Tribes in the territory are kicking up a rumpus and threatening to boycott the new government schools if negro children are admitted. The last congress appropriated the sum of $100,000 for the establishment of free schools among the five civilized tribes, and the Chickasaws, Choctaws and Osages are leading in the fight to have the negro children excluded."

The talk that is gaining currency all over the country that the fight at Liao Yang between the Japanese and Russians was attended by the heaviest losses in history is not borne out by the facts. The men engaged in this fight numbered 400,000, according to report, and the losses were 42,000, a fraction over 10 per cent. What is the matter with our own battle of Gettysburg? In that memorable engagement there were 150,000 men engaged, and the losses amounted to 49,000, or a little more than 31 per cent."

There is a leak in the government service at Washington, which always permits the estimates on the cotton crop to get into the hands of the speculators in advance of the time the information is made public. It is said that a recent occurrence of this kind is now being investigated, with a fair prospect of locating the patriot who is guilty of selling family secrets.

The cabinet officials could not decide what to do concerning the Lena incident, and passed the problem up to the president. As a result of investigation as to the condition of the vessel, it is announced that she will probably be disarmed until after the war and permitted to remain where she is. It will be noticed that no Japanese vessels are seeking disarmament as a means of saving grace."

A very large per cent of the land-hungry who recently drew claims in the Rosebud land distribution are vehemently asserting that the government worked them in the allotment. Having gone into the scheme with the intention of working the government, it is but natural they should get up on their hind legs and howl when they find the boot is on the other foot."

The Interparliamentary Union, in session at St. Louis, has asked President Roosevelt to intervene in the war between Russia and Japan, in an effort to bring about a cessation of hostilities. But the trouble seems to be that Russia is not yet willing to acknowledge that she has had enough. Until that time arrives it will be a waste of effort to talk peace."

The introduction of Parker chorus girls is a new idea in the present national campaign that will not commend itself to the general public. The chorus girl is all right when seen from behind, but she must seem just a little bit out of place in a presidential campaign, unless the idea is high-class vaudeville."

If Judge Parker wishes to make a ten strike with the people he can do so by cutting his letter of acceptance down to about three columns. It is safe to say that not one half of the men who had the opportunity to do so read the Roosevelt fulmination, on account of its length."

Senator Davis says campaign matters are in good shape in West Virginia and the outlook for democratic success is just as bright as it can be. Both New York and West Virginia seem to have been eliminated from the list of doubtful states in this campaign."

Russia does not stand any show in a stand up fight with the Japanese, but she can continue to make the poor and unfortunate Jew mighty hard to catch at home. The anti-Semitic riots that are continually taking place in the empire are a disgrace to modern civilization."

It is asserted that the female vote will settle the campaign in Colorado, Idaho, Utah and Wyoming this year, and the republican managers are hard at work trying to corral that gay and kiddy vote."

Reports from New York say that John D. Rockefeller is laying out a new flower garden at his country place, which will cost $50,000. He may embower that place with roses if he will, but the scent of Standard Oil will cling to it still."

The Baltic fleet has left Russian waters, ostensibly on a mission to the Far East, and when it gets in the vicinity of the Japanese fighting machines there is going to be more sorrow in the land of the czar."

Cleanings From the Exchanges

Several sandy land men have been marketing corn this week—some of them getting fifty bushels to the acre. When corn yields $20 an acre on $20 land there ought to be something doing.—Bonham Favorite.

Texas is not usually considered a corn belt state, but this year her farmers have corn to burn. They can do better than 40 cents per bushel, however, by feeding it to hogs for the Fort Worth market."

The question seems to be: What will we do with the Russian battleship Lena?—Beaumont Journal.

Just lean'er up against the San Francisco docks until that cruel war in the Far East is over."

Senator Bailey announces publicly that he stands ready to defend the commission law and the stock and bond law.—Tyler Courier.

And why should he not? Those measures are democratic measures, placed upon the statute books of this state by a democratic administration. Is there any reason why any good democrat should not support them? Senator Bailey is only doing his plain duty in the premises."

In the mountains of East Tennessee they pay the doctors' salaries out of the taxes, and everybody keeps well. This is almost as wise as the Chinese custom of making the patient pay the doctor when he is ill.—Houston Chronicle.

And in all portions of Texas there are many people who never pay the doctor at all."

Every democratic speaker on the stump in Texas is taking a shot at the trust—namely that is about the size of the trust that it is always profitable to shoot at. If we are bound to endure trusts in the nation because of the inactivity of the president and associates, we are not bound to endure them in Texas.—Denison Herald.

There are many statesmen who believe that state laws properly enforced will regulate the trust evil, and if we can not have an efficient Federal law in that regard there is nothing else to do but to fall back on the old principle of states' rights."

Dowle insists that he is right in his contention for the intermarriage of the negro and the white. Dowle probably realizes that he will have to look to the negro for recruits in the near future.—Austin Statesman.

Having been fed by the ravens in the long ago, it is but natural that Elijah should take a highly colored view of the situation."

In his home precinct Senator Willacy voted for prohibition, the vote standing ten for and nine against. This is the Senator Willacy who thought the time limit between elections should apply to both sides and introduced a bill accordingly, which brought him fame.—Waco Times-Herald.

Perhaps Senator Willacy really believes in the principles of local option, and only seeks to place both sides of this disturbing issue upon an equal basis. Another thing the people may not know is that Senator Willacy is a total abstainer. He never touches it."

Cotton pickers are in great demand, and there's no excuse now for idleness in grand old Texas.—McKinney Gazette.

Let every populist in the state take heed and proceed to get busy with their hands and give their tongues a needed rest."

Never in the history of political campaigns in this country has there been so slow, stupid and nerveless a one as this one now on between Teddy the Terror and Eker the Firm. It seems as if one was afraid and the other wasn't.—Orange Tribune.

Perhaps one is afraid and the other is glad of it. It is probable, however, that the Terror has been muzzled, while the Firm one continues to look on in dignified silence."

The deficiency in the state treasury, it is said, will reach the sum of $1,000,000 by January 1. Every tax dodger in the state ought to assume his proper share of responsibility for this state of affairs.—Terrell Transcript.

No doubt they feel guilty when they think of the condition of the state's finances, but none of them have yet signified any intention of starting a conscience fund."

Spasms of virtue never accomplish anything, as Dallas and other Texas cities will find from experience. The only method of suppressing an evil effectually is to put the lid on and keep it on.—Fort Worth Telegram. But who will put the lid on? Every candidate who announces in advance that he intends to suppress vice, if elected, is defeated by the people, so it is pretty evident that public morals are not going to be reformed at the polls.—El Paso Times.

Public sentiment is the power necessary to put the lid on, and it is then up to the officers of the law to keep it in position. No real reform can be successfully accomplished in any community that is not backed up by the people of that community. Officers can not do effective work unless backed up by the people at all times."

Through the Skin TO THE BLOOD.

Some of the most stubborn diseases enter into the system through the pores of the skin. The juices of Poison Oak and Ivy and other noxious wild plants, when taken into the circulation, break out afresh each season, and linger on for years unless antitoxin and driven out of the system.

Dye Poisoning from wearing colored under-clothing and hosiery is of frequent occurrence. Workers in Lead, Brass, and other metals are often poisoned by the chemicals and acids used in polishing. OUT OF THE WEST

By MAY HARRIS (Copyright, 1903, by the Frank Leslie Publishing House.) Japanese lanterns made soft points of light in the green gloom of the trees of the Brathwaite's grounds, and besides, a three-quarters moon lent a final touch of glamor. There were groups of people on the veranda and the steps leading to the garden were also occupied. From the brilliantly lit room the band enticed, and the sound of dancing feet made a deeper undertone to the music.

"Of course she is," Stafford said with some wrath. "Do you think I wouldn't know she'd be that, Mrs. Brathwaite?" Mrs. Brathwaite ignored—for reasons—the wrath. "The bishop was the worst upset of the two," she explained. "You know he perfectly adores Kitty, and he was always so glad that she had money of her own, as he will have so little to leave her. Do you know, he begged Robert to break it to her—Ah! There are the Grangers. Yes! And Kitty's with them! No, she doesn't know you are here."

has whole cohorts and phalanxes of principles and they keep him in such order! He used to waltz, he confessed—under pressure—and he was conceited enough to say he did it beautifully. He was provoked when I laughed and said 'There were things the bishop of Kumtofoo dare not do!' They laughed together. "I gave him a box of chocolates for consolation tonight and I left him eating them—absent-mindedly—and boring himself frightfully with a presentment copy of verses some one sent him. I saw Howell's new novel on the table. How he will revel in it—and the chocolates. No matter how they pretend, do you know, men really like sweet things?" "They do," Stafford said, coming out of his corner into the conversation.

ly with extinct speeches. "Gracious! Don't spring them all at once!" Miss Strong begged nervously. "They'd be dangerous. Think of having to listen to 'far-off, old unhappy things—'" "They needn't be unhappy things," Stafford reasonably suggested. They paused at the open French window. "There's a moon," he brilliantly added. "I saw it as we came," she explained. "You can see it so much better from the lawn." She lifted her eyebrows. "The moon must be rare in your part of the country."

mured. "Have you been light headed long?" "Ever since I first knew you," he responded. "I'm not responsible so you must be patient. I've had to pretend to be so—for three years." "Patient!" Miss Strong said. "Three years!" "You've made me miserable for a good deal longer than that, Kitty," Stafford said, gently. "It was bad enough at first, when things were equal between us. When they were not I went away. Do you know, he irreverently added, as he looked down at her face in the moonlight, "I've had you in my mind's eye—just like a picture in my pocket—the way you looked the last time I saw you?"

"So you bear malice," she said. "Do not. You're not the same person you used to be—I shall have to live up, in the future, to very different standards." "You mean?" There had been a significance in her voice that caught his ear unpleasantly. To Stafford it suggested the one definite thing he had feared during finding, true. "There is someone else, then?" he said quietly, with all the spring out of his voice. Miss Strong's comprehension flashed the situation. She demurely encouraged it. "You have heard nothing," she began, uncertainly. "Nothing," he said gravely. "How silent you are!" she commented after a few minutes. "My friends have been so nice about it—all of them. And you, one of my oldest ones—"

"You are mistaken," she corrected, coldly. "I am engaged to no one." "Kitty!" "Why you said just now—" "That I expected you to sympathize with me," she said with some emphasis. "You do not, I see." "You meant about your money! Is that what you meant, Kitty?" he cried, joyously. "As I live, I was never so glad at anything." "Glad!" she echoed. "I have come here as fast as trains would bring me, to tell you so. At last, Kitty! At last!" He had taken one of her hands in his, but she drew it away. "You went away because you lost your money. Do you think when I have lost mine—" "Ah, Kitty!" Stafford's voice had a tenderness she could not repel. "I think only that I love you!" "I am asking so much of you," Stafford said a little later. "To take you away from your old home—from your friends, and to give you so little. Just," his voice caressed her, "one man's love and faith forever." Tears he could not see filled Miss Strong's eyes. "No one was every quite so rich as I," she said, with deep content.

Mrs. Haskell, Worthy Vice-Templar, Independent Order of Good Templars, of Silver Lake, Mass., tells of her cure by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Four years ago I was nearly dead with inflammation and ulceration. I endured daily untold agony, and life became a burden to me. I had used medicine and washes internally and externally until I made up my mind that there was no relief for me. Calling at the home of a friend, I noticed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to give it a trial to see if it would help me. It took patience and perseverance for me to get in bad condition, and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nearly five months before I was cured, but what a change, from despair to happiness, from misery to the delightful exhilarating feeling health always brings. I would not change back for a thousand dollars, and your Vegetable Compound is a grand medicine.

City Ticket Agent of Cotton Belt Gets Back at Criticism of Printer's Ink Regarding Advertisement

TICKET REMOVAL SALE

Was In The Telegram and Has Attracted a Great Deal of Attention—Sold the Goods and Therefore It Was Not Deceptive

A month ago the local offices of the Cotton Belt were removed, and in order to push the sale of tickets, John M. Adams, city ticket and passenger agent of that road, adopted a new and novel method for advertising the removal sale.

JNO. M. ADAMS, C. P. & T. A. and asks: "Does this ad, which appeared in this evening's Telegram (an evening paper of the city) appear to be anything out of the ordinary for a railroad advertisement? Yes, it is decidedly out of the ordinary—too much so in fact, because in that one feature it is misleading. The natural inference would be that tickets are being sold at cut prices in order to reduce the stock before removal, which, of course, is not true. It would have been much better to advertise a few attractive trips, or perhaps a different one each day, quoting prices for transportation. It may be that most of those who read this ad will understand that it is just an attempt to attract attention by playing upon the time-worn removal sales so common in other lines; but it is bound to be misleading in some cases and therefore is not a good ad.

Mr. Adams yesterday mailed the following reply to Printers' Ink: Publishers' Printers' Ink, New York, N. Y.—Gentlemen: I have before me a recent issue of your valuable publication, and note the exceptions made to an advertisement of mine relative to a removal sale of tickets of the Cotton Belt route, which advertisement appeared in a current number of the Fort Worth Evening Telegram. Owing to the recognized leadership of your publication in the advertising world I would naturally hesitate to take issue with you in matters pertaining to your particular line, but in this case the facts bear me out in so doing. I have noticed that in the advertising field the greatest success is attained in changing the dress of ideas from the old, cast-off garments to the newer and attractive ones. Novelty attracts success whenever it does not degenerate into the sensational or become freakish. It is true that I did use "the time worn removal sales so common in other lines," but in my novel clientele would read them. Results proved that they did so. In the abstract, theoretically your statement that my ad was not a good one might be correct. But in the concrete, practical effect produced, I know by what I kept tab on results. More than three hundred people commented on it after I began taking account, perhaps as many more prior to that time. I have received letters from Missouri and Iowa complimenting the ad as a specimen of comments from this state in effect similar. No single advertisement of the Cotton Belt route written by me ever before achieved such results. Now I judge the effectiveness of them by results, and I got them. The statement that it is misleading...

Well Known Worker for Future of Orphaned Children Talks of Work Which is Being Done in This Line

CHILD SAVING SOCIETY

Will Attend National Convention Which Meets Soon in St. Louis Where He Will Make an Address—Much Good is Done Each Year

Rev. I. Z. T. Morris of Fort Worth, superintendent of the Texas Society of the National Children's Home Association, will attend the twenty-second annual conference to be held in St. Louis September 29 to 31. He will read a paper on "The South a Field for the Work of the Children's Home Society." Many others prominent in the work of child-saving will address the conference on similar subjects.

The Children's Home Society has become the greatest placing-out agency in the United States, and in the world for that matter. Therefore the work of placing dependent children in family homes and their subsequent care and supervision had largely absorbed the energies of the society, and in recent years there has been a rapid increase of the demand for the services of this class of children who are not proper subjects of the placing-out work.

All of the larger societies are meeting this demand to a greater or less extent and the study of methods becomes increasingly important. It is to further the good work that the St. Louis meeting is to be held, says Dr. Morris. "Few people, even those who are engaged in charitable work, realize the magnitude and importance of the work of the National Children's Home Society. It has spread from state to state until there are now twenty-six societies covering twenty-nine states. Each society is independent in its labors, but is federated with its sister societies.

The national society exercises no arbitrary control over the constituent societies, but the central organization exercises a strong influence through advisory co-operation. The national society employs the services of more than 200 people. It has cared for about 25,000 homeless children, of whom more than 12,000 are still under its guardian care, in family homes. It is now caring for 4,000 children yearly.

It maintains twenty-five receiving homes for the temporary care of children. These receiving homes are all small institutions, the average number of children in them being only about 500. The united expenses of the twenty-six societies which comprise the national society were about $250,000 last year and the societies have accumulated property in receiving homes, indemnity, etc., to the value of over $300,000.

There has been a steady evolution of the work and methods of the society. It was founded by Rev. M. V. B. Van Arsdale, who discovered that the best possible care for a homeless child was a well-selected family home. "Dr. Van Arsdale adopted the plan of handling children one by one, giving the largest practical amount of attention to the placing and supervision of the child. He restricted the state of Illinois appointed local boards throughout that state.

This plan of districts and local advisory boards has been adopted in other states as the work has developed. Speaking of the methods employed by the management of the national society, Dr. Morris said to the Telegram: "It has been the policy of the society to receive only children that were proper subjects for the placing-out plan, leaving the orphan asylums, children's homes, etc., to care for children whose parents were in temporary distress and who were likely to return to their parents, and leaving to other agencies the task of meeting temporary and accidental necessities of children who were not to be placed in family homes. In recent years, however, the work of the Children's Home Society has been broadening. In Illinois, Wisconsin, Kentucky and other states the society has been gradually undertaking the general work of caring for all children who are in distress. It is the rule of the Illinois society that any one who is in trouble about a child may come to the society and it will undertake the solution of the trouble. "With the development of the Children's Home Society there has come a constant gain in the quality of the work performed, partly through the experience acquired by those who have now been in the work for many years, and partly through the improvement in the quality of those who are chosen for the immediate work of caring for children. The work requires a high degree of intelligence, experience and adaptability. The problems to be solved involve the entire future of the children, and decisions must often be made by the agent

Fort Worth Folk Go to Suburb Where They Can Own Their Own Homes and Raise Poultry and Garden Truck A COLONY OF CLERKS Work in Fort Worth and Live Across the Creek in Riverside—Investments in Property in City and Suburbs Are Considered Good

ELLIS & GREENE. Real States, 708 Main St. Phone 1922.

From the center of the city to the country has been a move made by many persons during the past several years. These people have moved to small plots of ground near the city and have found it much healthier and less expensive. Many have either bought or rented a small tract of land of from an acre to five and spent much of the spare time in raising garden truck and poultry. At Riverside, on the east side of the Trinity river, there is a whole colony of clerks who work in Fort Worth stores and offices who have found that they can live cheaper, better and get more of the good things of life out in the country than they can in Fort Worth. Hence the exodus to the land across the creek. There the past year they have raised for their own consumption chickens, vegetables and had the fun and pleasure of taking care of them all out in the fresh air after the work of the day is done. The wife and the children during the husband's absence in the daytime, have had enjoyment in feeding the chickens and tending in the gardens. Whenever, during the summer months, fresh vegetables were wanted all that was necessary to do was to go to the garden and get them and if one wanted for the Sunday dinner a nice fat pullet he could get out after the chickens had gone to roost and take his choice. The good old family milk cow has furnished the home with fresh milk each day and always contributed its share of butter to the table. That is the ideal life and those who can not enjoy the pleasure of the rich in the city have been wise enough to go to the outskirts of the town. Along the Interurban, north of the city, and in fact in all directions are found those who formerly lived in Fort Worth, buying a plot of ground, not necessarily of much size, but enough to permit them to have the pleasure of cultivating some garden truck, raising a few chickens and having a gentle old "mooly" cow, which gives each day several gallons of milk for the family. The children during the summer months are allowed to romp and play at will and mother is not worried about them for fear of being run over by the street cars or of getting into trouble as do city youngsters sometimes. The children have daily opportunities to commune with nature and to study the wonders of the woods, which they do to their heart's content, and when it comes time to go to school to study books and the three Rs they part with old nature with true regret and pursue the studies all the harder, so they can get out into the woods after school to see the loveliness of nature with its autumnal garb.

SOME SALES AND IMPROVEMENTS A sale was made this week to O. J. Nevaert of three lots, 14, 15 and 18, in block 2, on St. Louis avenue, by E. E. Prickett for $1,800. The new owner of the property expects to have erected at an early date five cottages for renting purposes. This property is in the Felld-Welch addition. Mrs. S. B. Cooper has bought a lot at the corner of Magnolia street and Fifth avenue. She expects to erect a neat house, to cost in the neighborhood of $2,500, in the near future. The house is to have six rooms. A lot, 80x200 feet, has been sold to F. M. Knight and H. Martin by P. H. Tyler for $2,750 at the corner of Hampton and Weatherford streets. The property has a neat house already on it. The new owners expect to make some improvements to the newly acquired property. Fort Worth is establishing an almost national reputation as the home of wealthy cattlemen. During the past year a number have come to this city and erected nice homes, while others are figuring on doing so. They are in love with the place as a town in which they and their families can live and have a large number of opportunities offered here by the exceptional facilities this city has for the proper education of the children in the public and private schools. Rev. B. B. Ramage is erecting a neat home on Arlington Heights. The house is of modern design and is to cost a moderate sum. The home will probably be completed in several months and he will move in before the holiday season and enjoy the pleasure of sitting at his own fireside at Christmas. Ellison L. Hendricks, bookkeeper for the Hill Farming company, has bought a large Sunday school building in the Fairmount addition and had started the erection of a $1,000 residence, which he is to occupy. Seven acres of land in the Sylvania addition was sold last week to P. W. Stork. He will use the property for a home and engage in truck farming next year. The land was improved and will be further enhanced in value by other improvements.

IS A DICTATOR

(Continued from Page One.) realizes the latent energy in the man. His step is quick and assured, firm and straightforward, the step of a man of absolute resource and self-reliance. He walks with the carriage of a man of definite purpose, of a man with the object to attain and a clear perception of how to attain it, of a man of invincible resolution.

It is little wonder that such a man commands the respect and adoration of every one with whom he comes in contact. To his staff the viceroys stand as the exponent of uprightness and unflinching rectitude of conduct. To him duty is paramount, his duty to his czar, to his country, and to himself. From that high standard of conduct he can not be shaken. He pursues it himself. He exacts it from others.

A man of wide sympathies and catholic understanding, his world of interest extends to the remotest confines of the earth. A patriot, he is no Chauvinist. A champion of Russian development, he believes that he can do best serve the common objects of civilization. Careful in matters of detail, his mind is set upon the great things, upon the ultimate destinies of his nation.

Viceroy Alexieff stands for a policy—a policy of inflexible fixity of purpose, of unbending resolution to acclaim Russia's inalienable right to an open port in the China seas, to speed Russia's emancipation from the landlocked thralldom that has curbed her development for 200 years. It is no selfish policy. It is no antagonistic policy. It is a policy inspired by the desire to combine Russia's interests with the interests of the other powers. Viceroy Alexieff will retreat from nothing that he stated prior to the war. His policy then is his policy now.

I have his excellency's authority for stating that that policy is a permanent one. I seek no better guarantee. Douglas Story.

POLICE NEWS

Two Mexicans, brothers, were arrested by Police Officers Bilderback and Isham about 7:30 o'clock this morning for fighting in a saloon on Twelfth and Rusk streets.

The brothers had a quarrel over some money, one saying that the other took $20 from him. In the quarrel that ensued one of the Mexicans drew a knife and attacked his brother, cutting him badly about the right hand. The charge, assault to murder, was put against him.

A NEGRO AFFRAY About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Officers Henderson and Thomason appeared at police headquarters with Tom Chishalm and Joe McFarland, both colored, in tow. Both negroes were quite badly cut as a result of an affray in the Panama saloon.

BAKERS FORMERLY GAVE THIRTY LOAVES FOR A DOLLAR, BUT THEY HAVE MADE REDUCTION IN NUMBER NOW SOLD Recent sharp advances in wheat, caused by cold weather in the northwest, frost in Canada and reports of failure of the wheat crop in Russia, have been the cause of a score of troubles in the local flour and bread market. Bakers that were selling bread at the rate of thirty loaves for a dollar are now giving only twenty-five loaves for that price.

Turner & Dinger, who formerly did an immense business in wholesale bread, have taken off their wholesale bread wagon and are now only meeting the demand of the retail market. A. S. Dinger said to the Telegram this morning: "We had to do away with our wholesale bread wagon, other bakers are giving twenty-five loaves for a dollar and we couldn't afford to do this. That means only about 4 cents per loaf for bread, and when we have to pay that price for flour alone and then put in the cost of baking it is a loss of money to try to sell it at that price. On that account I have quit the wholesale bread business and am only supplying the retail trade at 5 cents per loaf. It is my opinion that the bakers who are selling bread at twenty-five loaves for a dollar are losing money.

You see the bakers are only asking an increase of 10 per cent for the baked bread, while they must pay an increase of 50 per cent for their flour. Minneapolis flour is selling for $6 and over per barrel, about 5 cents per pound. At that rate we can not afford to bake bread and wholesale it for 3 cents a loaf, a loaf weighing a pound. That makes the price of bread wholesale the same as the unbaked flour."

BUILDING FOOD To Bring the Babies Around

When a little human machine (or a large one) goes wrong, nothing is so important as the selection of food which will always bring it around again. "My little baby boy fifteen months old, had pneumonia, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak he was frequently thrown into convulsions," said a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit. When we got there he was so weak when he would cry he would sink away and seemed like he would die. "When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never had the food, we got some and for a few days gave him just the juice of Grape-Nuts and milk. He got stronger so quickly we were soon feeding him the Grape-Nuts itself and in a wonderfully short time he fattened right up and became strong and well. "That showed me something worth knowing and, when later on my girl came I raised her on Grape-Nuts and she is a strong healthy baby and has been. You will see from the little photograph I send you what a strong, chubby youngster she like that before we found this nourishing food. Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature demands, from which to make the soft gray filling in the nerve centers and brain. A well fed brain and strong, sturdy nerves absolutely insure a healthy body.

Senator Fairbanks to Be Sent West to Make Speeches for Republican Ticket, Starting Next Week

NO BARREL IS OPENED

Report That Very Little Money Is Being Spent in the Campaign Just Now—Question Whether the Democrats Will Open Chicago Headquarters

(Written for The Telegram by H. Gilson Gardner.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—George R. Cortelyou has been in the west and has put his foot down on all "confidence talk." Members of the executive committee at the Chicago headquarters have been asked to do less talking and more work. The republican national chairman will not admit that he is at all sure about republican success even in the west.

He has taken steps to find out more about political conditions, particularly in the states of Colorado, Montana, Utah, Nevada, Idaho and Indiana. The chairmen of the state central committees of nearly all these states have been summoned to Chicago to report local conditions and discuss the national outlook. The reports from Colorado and Indiana are both "bearish."

It has been arranged to send Senator Fairbanks on a long twenty-day western tour. It will begin about the 30th of September when he will leave Chicago in a special, and will wind up on the 12th of October when the vice presidential candidate will be back in Chicago again ready to go into Indiana if needed.

He will go to St. Paul and Minneapolis first, then northwest over the Great Northern through the two Dakotas, speaking from the rear platform wherever a crowd gathers. From the Dakotas he goes into Montana, Oregon, Utah, Idaho, Washington, then down to California as far south as possible as Los Angeles, and then back again by the Union Pacific through Colorado, Kansas and Iowa.

Two good speakers will go along with Fairbanks to relieve the "conservatism" of his remarks, and to keep the attention of the audience.

It may add something to the interest of the Fairbanks tour to keep in mind the fact (and it is not denied) that all this campaigning is regarded by the slim gentlemen from Indiana as a peculiar way of the choice of himself for the presidency four years hence.

Buzz! Buzz! Buzz!

Are the democrats, after all, to open headquarters in Chicago? The question has been reopened in a peculiar way. From republican sources, no less a person than Colonel Harry New, the news came that this was the plan of the democrats. Then another member of the executive committee happened to be in New York, and heard what convinced him that the report was true. Then Secretary Elmer Dover got further confirmation.

Then came a blasphemous denial by Roger Sullivan, democratic national committeeman from Illinois.

Then came a report that the democratic managers had changed their minds, and their plan.

Finally came an admission by the democratic committeeman that a branch headquarters would be opened in Indianapolis.

And that's where the matter rests. Nothing will be opened—not even a barrel—until the first of October.

A lot of interesting stories have been going about in Chicago about the supposed dissensions in the democratic campaign management. The gist of all is that Taggart is to be, or has been, sidetracked. They say that Sheehan, Belmont, Hill, Nickoll and Pashody have "overheaded" Taggart and have done their best to crowd him out of the management of the campaign in the east. All the talk of a headquarters in the west is said to be part of the plan to have Taggart "shunted up a siding."

The New Yorkers are under suspicion in Chicago of having given up hope of electing Parker, and being intent now on the sole purpose of carrying New York state, having in mind the $101,000,000 to be expended on the Erie canal. Taggart is said to be all the time "messing things up" by planning for a national fight to elect Parker, instead of concentrating on New York. All Taggart's plans to appease the radical Bryan vote of the west are said to make things that much more difficult in New York, where the Bryan propaganda is not popular.

The quarrel has been taken to Judge Parker, and his sympathies naturally lie with Taggart, who accuses the New York managers of knifing the national ticket to save the state. In his speech to the editors Judge Parker gave voice to the necessity of getting together if the republicans were to be driven from power.

It may interest some people to know that, up to date, the republican campaign has been run on less than half the money spent four years ago, and less than a quarter of that spent eight years ago. Marking time is about all that the force at Chicago has done up to date. That, and to perfect an organization which may or may not do some work later on.

It will be a four-week campaign, according to present calculations. Most of the spellbinders who are being enlisted by Jim Tawney are being scheduled for dates not earlier than October 1. Some few will begin the last week of September.

Eight years ago the campaign had been in full blast for nine weeks by this time, and four years ago it was well under way in August.

In the use of money this has been a year of "tapering off."

ONE MILLION IN INDIANA STATE TO CARRY IT

Practical Politics in the State of the Vice Presidential Candidate of Republicans Will Be Hard Fought This Year

(Written for The Telegram by H. Gilson Gardner.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—The presidential campaign managers of both parties are planning to spend many thousands of dollars in Indiana.

The state is regarded as the key to the situation. If Chairman Taggart can win the electoral votes of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Delaware, the addition of Indiana's fifteen electoral votes will do the business.

It is now announced that a western headquarters will be opened about September 20. It is said that Indianapolis, the home of Thomas Taggart, will be the seat of western operations. Here it is expected that Mr. Taggart will spend most of his time, leaving the management of the eastern campaign to Sheehan and others.

Until the wind-up of the campaign strict economy will be practiced by democrats and republicans. It is said that no money will be wasted "chasing rainbows," or making fruitless efforts in states which are not regarded as "doubtful." The money will be saved for a hot finish in Indiana.

Gossip from New York has it that the republicans have threatened that for every dollar the democrats put into Indiana the republicans will spend two. This is the reason which former Mayor John J. Hopkins brings back to Chicago. Mr. Hopkins, it is said, is to help place the money that is spent in the west.

The amount of money that will be used in Indiana is variously estimated. It is admitted by those who know, that the sum will depend in a measure on the outlook in the states of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Delaware. If these states will go democratic, the amount of money that will go into Indiana will be enormous. One of the democratic managers, who is in the confidence of the party, said:

"If we have a fighting show at the finish, we are assured that we can have all the money needed. That means half a million or even a million dollars, if that much is needed. If the election is to depend on Indiana, rest assured that Indiana will be carried if it takes the last shot in the locker."

An experienced republican politician was asked about the use of money for such a purpose as indicated and explained as follows:

"There are comparatively few votes which are capable of being bought outright. But by the liberal use of money it is possible to get the vote out, and thus to increase the party showing by many thousands. It costs money to get the vote out. By paying for it, it is possible to get political workers to go about with vehicles, calling on voters and taking them to the polls. Sometimes it is the practice to offer to pay a voter for the time he would lose; or if he wants to take a day off and go about among his friends, he might be paid the equivalent of a day's wages, or a bit more, and perhaps a little for some friend whom he could get. By this means the vote is increased. These are the practices which were employed in 1888 in Indiana and in other presidential campaigns when the state was very close. In this way the use of money is regarded as legitimate."

Practical politicians in Chicago say it will be largely a question of "how the money is placed" in Indiana. The democrats believe that Tom Taggart knows better than the republicans how to spend the money to get the best returns. But the republicans say that Harry New has not been in practical Hoosier politics for twenty years for nothing, and that, if it is a case of buy, he will bid as well as Taggart.

If it turns out that $1,000,000 is to be spent in two weeks in Indiana to influence the presidential vote, the spectacle should be one of some interest.

HELP IS NEEDED OF ALL KINDS JUST NOW

Men Who Are Idle in This City Are So From Choice as Employment Agencies Have Demands for Workmen

It is not necessary for the "women to do the work, while the men do the laying around," just at this time.

"The demand at ordinary times for labor in Fort Worth has always been good in the lines we handle," remarked a labor agent this morning, "but now with the exceptional number of requests for cotton pickers and for extra gangs the demand is far greater than we can supply."

Fort Worth is looked upon as the proper place for all the surrounding country to get cotton pickers and men for extra gangs. Here the farmer comes to get his farm hands and to this place comes the hotel keeper for his domestics and the extra gang foreman for the men to fill the list under him. Right now the demand exceeds the supply and the fellow who is "laying around" is doing so from choice and not because he has to.

Never before in the history of the town have the wages offered men to do work of this kind been greater. Up to 45 cents a day and the pickers must board themselves. As an extra inducement some of the planters near Hillsboro are offering to furnish a house for the pickers and furnish them with fuel, but this has but little effect toward drawing the pickers that way.

Section men have deserted the railroads and are now in the fields. Some of the roads which need the men badly have stretched the usual pay to $1.50 a day from $1.25 to $1.30, but this has no effect whatever on the men, who would rather work in the fields picking cotton. Extra gangs doing work on some of the roads have been almost depleted and the companies are finding it a serious proposition to finish the work they have started. It is said the Houston and Texas Central would like to have five hundred men, but can not begin to get them.

Persons who have use for domestics are also complaining that there is a scarcity of this kind of help. These people, who usually can be gotten to do this kind of work, are not to be found at the present time. They, too, have gone to the cotton fields and are as busy as they can be, making at least more in two days than they could make in a kitchen in a week. Even the farmers are complaining that they can not get at this time farm hands, offering them as much as $22 a month and a contract signed for a year. The labor situation here at the present time would indicate a serious shortage in help of the above enumerated kinds.

During several decades a number of methods for reproducing simple pictures, drawings and handwriting electrically at a distance have been proposed and partly carried out, but none of them has led to a result of technical importance. This seems not to be the case with the improved system of Professor Korn of Munich, whose success is due principally to the employment of a vacuum tube as an adjustable source of light at the receiving station.

American Methods of Education Do a Remarkable Work in Assimilating Them—To These Little Ones Freedom Is Rather Hazy Quantity

(Written for The Telegram by Marlen E. Pew. Copyright, 1904, by Newspaper Enterprise Association.)
NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—There is another and vastly brighter side to the immigration question of the day in America, and one that stands out in bold relief against the dark and dangerous side which has been shown in former articles of this series.

It is the hope, under the guiding hand of American institutions, for the second generation of the motley host that is sweeping through the nation's gates.

Public school teachers, librarians, social settlement workers, clergymen of the crowded tenement sections of any of the great cities, will tell of the really remarkable development of the offspring of even some of the most objectionable classes of aliens.

In the slums of New York, where the greatest proportion of foreign immigrants, in geographical relation, take up their residence, there are thousands of instances of children, whose parents were the product of European hordes for the propagation of moral depravity, beast ignorance and utter irresponsibility, who have advanced in from two to five years to a plane of educational equality with American children. Men and women of the hovel and ditch, the peddler's cart or the sweat shop, slave out their lives often without thought of personal advancement, so that their children may hoarded through hardship and privation, for the glorious purpose of sailing to the new world where a man could earn $1.50 a day, as against the 15 cents Malagano had been paid as a farm laborer from the time he was strong enough to wield the shovel.

The Italian was assisted, as about two-thirds of those who come here from Italy are, by a cousin in America, who sent him remittances from time to time with the understanding that the money should be returned as soon as Malagano was able to earn it here.

The family found a home in one of the filthy, ill-smelling tenements in Hleecker street, where they still live. Malagano soon learned the other side of the story and came to understand the proportion of things. While he could earn five times as much in a day here as in Italy his living expenses were plainly to be far in excess of anything he had ever dreamed of or had counted upon. The first thing he Association, organized to assist Italian immigrants. Two months passed and the family struggled to meet the cousin's debt and their heavy expenses. Malagano, for the first time in his life, knew what it was to have meat for himself and family more than once a week. Still, they scrimped and after six weeks returned to the cousin the sum of $12. This was progress.

In less than two months the children began, through their associations in the street to pick up the language of the adopted country, and in one year Giovanni Jr., the eldest of the brood, spoke English with some fluency while the others delighted their parents by being able to say scraps of broken English sentences. Four of these children are today under instruction at the Rivington street public school. They can read and write and sing "America" by note and, their instructors declare, give promise for future usefulness.

They are easy. If I don't fail I will graduate from the grammar school in two years. Then I want to work in a bank and help my father earn money so that we can live in Grand street.

"These words from a boy whose ancestors for ages had been subjects of oppression under unequal and partial laws, hopeless in their wretched condition, totally thoughtless of any progress beyond the mere getting of subsistence, and without even vague ideal probably of the meaning of personal or political freedom. The strange contrast in this, a typical instance, is between a life as a dumb laborer at 15 cents a day in the fields under the unmerciful lash of practical slavery, and the prospect of a measure of success as a part of a measure of an American banking institution. What a transformation of scope and opportunity in four short years!

Giovanni Malagano Sr. and his wife have not progressed much beyond their old state. They have, perhaps, saved dollars where in Italy they would have hoarded pennies; they have only in an unconscious sort of way enjoyed freedom. The boss still rules Malagano and his labor is quite as irksome as before. He has more meat and 10 cents a day for his rent of beer. But, all in all, the promised land would be largely a faded glory to him but for one thing—the prospect of great things for and from his children.

Professors, as are the majority of the husbands and wives who compose the alien horde, Malagano now has eight children in his brood, and as fast as they develop they will be entered in the public kindergartens and schools, there to absorb this wonderful knowledge that amazes the parents and is so far beyond their comprehension that they are fairly stupefied before it.

The Rivington street school is the roof tree, summer and winter, for 1,200-odd children, between the ages of 5 and 14. It is a fact that not one of these children are of American-born fathers and mothers. The parents of about one-third do not even speak the English language, and many have been in the country only a few years.

They are the children of peddlers, fruit vendors, bootblacks and all manners of trades and labor of the very lowest and least remunerative class. Most of them, their teachers say, are studious and quick to learn, when once they have the language perfected so that they are able to comprehend. The records of the Rivington street school compare favorably with the records of other schools in the city where American children are under instruction.

The children of Russians who predominate in the Rivington street section of the East Side, show the most rapid educational development of any of the foreigners.

Just at random one dozen children were questioned at the Rivington street school and the result composed a remarkable census and one that, so far as this and the scores more East Side schools are concerned, gives a fair idea of the progress of the rising generation of the children of immigrants.

Anne Neaderhara, who came to the country with her parents eighteen months ago from Galicia, is eleven years old, and, in addition to acquiring the language, has advanced to the second grammar grade. Her father is a tailor and earns $7 per week. "What does freedom mean?" the child was asked. "To go to school," was the quick response.

"What are you going to do when you grow up?" "Well," said the girl, after brief hesitation, "I will be like my mother and my teacher."

Anna Kessel, a dark-haired child of 7, had been five years in the country from Roumania. Her father is a push cart peddler, selling candles. He speaks broken English, but his wife speaks none. Anna is in the second grade. She said freedom meant "something nice" and she would be like her teacher.

Anna Hermann, 9 years old, came from Roumania, with her parents, two sisters and one brother, five years ago. She is in the third class, says that freedom means "a song," and would be a "sturdy lady" when she grows up.

Bessie Kessel, Anna's 9-year-old sister, is in the third grade, says freedom means "do what you want to," and wants to "help my mother."

Tillie Lerner, 7 years, third class, four years in the country, and whose parents speak no English, wrote on a slip of paper this line: "Freedom is right for poor people, but not in Russia. I am going to be a lady teacher."

Solomon Jacobs, aged 9, came from Austria with his mother four years ago, and is in the seventh grade. "Freedom is to be free," said he quickly, and he thought he would keep a store.

"UNCLE JOSH PERKINS"

"Uncle Josh Perkins," a brand new comedy drama with an original plot, plenty of thrilling dramatic action, a pleasing injection of lovely comedy and a sprinkling of high class musical and dancing specialties will be the attraction at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, September 17. In addition to mounting each and every act with a wealth of new scenery, Messrs. Frazee & Day have engaged a most acceptable acting company, several of this number being local favorites. The production is perfect and complete in every respect and should prove one of the best offerings of the present season.

"LYRIC OPERA COMPANY"

There is a secret in the ranks of the "Lyric Opera Company" which is keeping the theatrical world more or less worried. It is supposed as yet to be a dead secret, but a little of it managed to get past the lips of three of the prettiest members of the company and now it is traveling fast.

The Lyric Opera Company is to begin its week's engagement here at Greenwall's opera house Monday night, September 19, matinees Wednesday and Saturday, and that is why the theatrical colony here is making efforts to discover the names of the principals in the scheme on foot.

Everyone knows that all actresses have big tender hearts, but no one ever suspected that the dry war news from the Far East would touch them so deeply.

But so it seems, according to the much heralded secret, and now the three members of the "Lyric Opera Company" are to resign their positions after the engagement here, forget their bright career, and go to nurse the little brown men, who are expected to fall in battle in far away Korea.

Just why these winsome creatures should select the Japs to nurse back to life and vigor seems hard to guess. It has been suggested to them that probably the Russians are more in need of their services, at least so it would seem from what news we get, but the young ladies sniff and pout and say they never would nurse a big overgrown rough bearded Russian bear.

Giovanni Malagano, his wife and their half dozen small children, arrived in New York five years ago from southern Italy. They were not different from the rank and file of the 58,000 peasants and ruff scuff that entered and sought shelter here from that country during that year.

Especially is Giovanni an apt student. The writer talked with this boy as he sat in his rags in the squalid kitchen of his tenement home. He has a bright, black eye, clear olive complexion, a broad and promising forehead and a physiognomy indicative of strength of character and intelligence.

ROLLING MILL IS COMING HERE AT EARLY DATE

Fort Worth has the rolling mill. At 11:15 o'clock this morning Secretary Paddock of the Board of Trade walked into the board rooms, where there was already assembled W. K. Fogg, Jack T. Anderson, S. A. Joseph, formerly of Minneapolis; F. G. McPeak, E. L. Waggonman, Mayor Powell and a representative of The Telegram, and to the chorus of questions

MISS BESSIE JOHNSON, OF OHIO, DECIDES TO GO ON THE STAGE

Miss Bessie Johnson, only daughter of Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland, Ohio, has at last yielded to the entreaties of theatrical managers and will appear in October as Annie Russell's leading lady in "Brother Jacques." The initial performance of "Brother Jacques" with Miss Johnson in the cast will be at Cleveland on October 17. It was at the Colonial Club, Cleveland, that Miss Johnson made her first appearance in amateur work. The play was presented by the Cercle Francais, whose members are among the Cleveland four hundred. Miss Johnson was decidedly the star of the evening and met with an ovation from the guests of the Cercle. The only instructor she received in the interpretation of her part was from Mme. Deniveau, the author of the production. The training, even at this time, consisted merely of the work in feeling. Miss Johnson's talent being recognized by her instructor, she was permitted to "go her own way," with the success that surprised and delighted those who had not dreamed of her dramatic ability. It was soon after the presentation of the French play that Miss Johnson entered a dramatic school in New York. This was to satisfy the natural enjoyment of interpretation, and with no thought of a professional future. At the end of the dramatic course the class presented as a commencement a clever little play in which Miss Johnson was given a prominent, though not a leading, part. Her worth, though not a leading, part, was prominently commented upon. The day following she was offered a role in one of Chas.

acknowledged that he had "landed." Without further ado papers were then spread upon the secretary's desk and, beginning with Mr. Fogg, the gentlemen each in turn subscribed their names to the document which assures the rolling mill for this city.

Application was at once made for a charter and will be forwarded to the secretary of state. With these matters disposed of the meeting was adjourned, being followed later by a private conference among the men.

Within one month, Mr. Fogg stated, the mill will be broken for the new mill, which will occupy about ten acres of ground. The exact location, those interested say, can not yet be announced, as that matter will rest with the directors. It is practically admitted, however, that the site on the south side has been accepted, the fact that the location had dwindled down to that or one on the north side having been admitted by Mr. Fogg on his previous visit. That no representatives from North Fort Worth were present at this morning's meeting seems to show that the mill will be located on the south side on a site south of the stand pipe at the junction of the Frisco and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas tracks. The location there is said to be admirably adapted to the purpose.

Speaking of the project prior to the final signing of the papers, Mr. Fogg stated that the mill would have seven separate departments and that although it would be necessary to import from fifteen to twenty skilled men in the business, new to this section, the green help from this vicinity would be employed as much as possible. The men imported will be those having charge of the various departments as foremen of the threading floor, heads of department, etc., in the bolt works and foreman and boss rollers in the rolling departments.

"I am perfectly satisfied with Fort Worth and believe it the best possible location for the plant in the country. Were this not so I should not have hung on to the proposition so long. This is the fourth trip I have made to this city since my first visit last February and I am glad that at last complete arrangements have been made."

It was announced this morning that between 300 and 400 men will be employed by the mill as soon as it is in operation, and it is learned the citizens subscribing to the stock have a contract with Mr. Fogg for the employment of not less than 150 men at the start.

The total capitalization of the company, it is understood, will be $200,000 of this amount $30,000 having been subscribed by Fort Worth citizens.

Captain Paddock stated to The Telegram after the meeting that the full amount necessary from the citizens had not yet been subscribed, a few thousand dollars being lacking.

"We have, however," he said, "gone far enough to warrant us in taking out the charter and the plant is assured."

The plant to be erected here will be one of the most complete in the country, and in its building alone will require a large amount of work and furnish labor for many people. Electricity will be employed as the motive power, motors being placed in the different departments to do the work of each. In this connection, Mr. Fogg stated that the mistake so frequently made in such plants would not be made and that sufficient power would be provided for at the beginning.

"Some mills," he said, "underestimate their needs with the result that they are constantly dragging along with insufficient power, but this will not be the case with us."

It is also learned that another usual mistake of new corporations will not be made in this instance. That is the payment of large salaries to the officers. In speaking to the gentlemen this morning, Mr. Fogg said that those managing the plant would have an interest in it and at the beginning they must look to returns on the investment rather than to salaries. Mr. Fogg, himself, it is learned accepts an exceedingly low salary, less than that of many railroad clerks in this city.

W. K. FOGG, who comes to this city from Alliance, Ohio, where the plant is to be brought here is now in operation, has had a wide experience in the rolling mill and bolt factory business, and has impressed the men of this city as being a levelheaded man capable of managing the project in the most successful way. He admits that his bull-dog tenacity is his strongest point. This, he says, he learned as a boy from a resident of his city, who came to this country from Wales, unable even to write his name, but who by continually keeping at it built up one of the largest iron industries in the state. In addition to the men at this morning's meeting, many other prominent business and financial men of this city have subscribed to the stock of the mill, giving a backing which assures it a most able and conservative management.

As pointed out by Mayor Powell when the project was launched in this city, enormous amounts are being paid out in transporting metal to the north and east from this country and still higher rates are being paid on it again as it returns in the shape of finished product, which could as well be manufactured right here. In this line he pointed out that at the present time there was not a horseshoe manufactured this side of the Mississippi in this single line.

Steps, it is learned, are now under way to secure an extension of the street railway tracks to the location of the mill, which, it is thought will be accomplished by the time the mill is ready for operation.

Mr. Fogg, who is unaccompanied on this trip, will probably remain in the city for several days, until the charter for the concern has been granted by officers and directors elected and all arrangements completed.

There are still in use at Versailles cast iron water pipes dating from 1664 to 1688. The total length of these pipes is 15 1/2. A large proportion are 20 inches in diameter, the remainder being 12 3/4 inches. They have been laid in lengths of 40 inches, and are coupled by means of flanges and bolts. The 20-inch pipes are 1 3/8 inches thick and the others seven-eighths of an inch.

THE DRESSY COAT

The smart Directoire coat is more than ever in favor. The model here shown is of black velvet. Revers of pearl gray satin are braided with black silk. The sleeves are finished with a fall of velvet under which are set several falls of finest lace. Velvet and lace are never worn in the morning, and should be worn in the afternoon springily. The skirt with which this coat is worn is of rich figured silk, simply made over silk and chiffon. The hat is approaching the Gainsborough. Ties of chiffon add a smart touch.

Every woman, young or old, needs a big apron. Here is an apron made of gingham, the most serviceable and the greatest protection. All the dainty, fluffy ruffles can be pinned up and tucked away under such an apron and the chafing dish in the parlor or the gasoline stove in the kitchen will hold fewer terrors for the housewife. Across the front and about the foot of the apron is a cross-stitch design, neat and pretty.

OATH TO WHICH TEACHERS WILL SUBSCRIBE

Form Which All Public Educators in the Territory Must Sign Before the Government Will Pay Salaries for Work

MUSKOGEE, I. T., Sept. 15.—John D. Benedict, superintendent of schools for the Indian Territory, says that all school teachers who in any manner share in the appropriation of $100,000, made by congress at the last session for school purposes, will be required to take the oath recently sent out for all the government employes.

All the clerks, stenographers, etc., in the Dawes commission office and all other government employes have to take this oath, but for the school teachers in rural districts to have to swear is something new and unexpected.

Two forms have been sent out, the last arriving only a few days ago. The following is the exact wording of the latest one:

"I,, do solemnly swear that I have not since and including the first day of July, 1904, had, and do not have, directly or indirectly, in my own name or otherwise, through any agency, trust, confidence, assignment, or other concealment, or yet as agent, trustee, or adviser for another, any interest, fixed or contingent, in the principal, profit or result of any investment, or by way of commission, percentage or fee thereon, or with any person or corporation dealing in Indian lands in the Indian Territory, or in leases thereof or loans thereon; nor during any part of said time have I been or am I directly or indirectly owner of or otherwise interested in the stock of any such corporation, nor am I or have I been an officer, agent, solicitor, counsel, adviser or employee of any corporation, firm, partnership or person engaged in, or doing any such business in the Indian Territory.

"This will be rather inconvenient for some of the teachers, inasmuch as a great many of them are located many miles away from any notary public. But they will have to take this oath before their checks will be sent to them.

far up as they could go, when they were possessed of a musical mood, and commenced singing. As great volumes of harmony filled the dome, rotunda, galleries and halls of this granite structure, state officials and employes deserted their desks and offices for a time and came out to hear the music. The first floor was well filled with people, and the first and second circular galleries fringed with hundreds of heads, all looking upward to the place from whence the cadence came.

For ten minutes all were spellbound and sat or stood in a delightful shower of descending harmony and sweet concordance.

J. L. Conway, general live stock agent of the Santa Fe railway, with headquarters in Fort Worth, is here looking into the situation of the cattle business and ascertaining the prospect for business. He says he expects a heavy movement of cattle from along the Santa Fe branch within a short time. Since the settlement of the strike there will be nothing to hinder the shipment out to market of the fat cattle, of which there are a great many in this country, if the market is anything like good. He looks for a good movement from the points along the branch from October 1 on, and says there may be some shipments before that. He is preparing for the rush and says the Santa Fe proposes to handle the shipments in the same efficient and thoroughly satisfactory manner in which they were carried through in the past.

Beef prices are expected for this fall to be a good deal higher than for several years past. The sheepmen do not anticipate a heavy clip this fall, but they are all stocking up with sheep and the animals are scarce in this section. A great many of the sheepmen are new in New Mexico, buying sheep and large flocks are being driven across country with a few shipments by rail.

HERMAN E. HAAS ON THE ISTHMUS

Man Who Is Charged With Embezzling From the Corn National Bank Has Been Located

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Herman E. Haas, who is charged with embezzling $20,000 from the Corn Exchange National bank of Chicago, whose surrender to the American authorities has been asked for by Minister Barrett as an act of international comity, has been living on the Isthmus several months, says a Herald dispatch from Panama.

As the extradition treaty between Panama and the United States has not been ratified he is said to have believed himself safe. When Haas was arrested about $500 in gold was found in his handbag, together with letters from his wife in Massachusetts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Arrangements have been made by the officials of the Corn Exchange bank to have Haas brought to Chicago, where he will be put on trial immediately. Haas is now under indictment, the grand jury having brought a true bill against him after he was arrested for the first time in May of the present year at San Juan del Rio, Queretaro, whither he had fled. After the indictment had been voted against Haas he was released by the Mexican authorities and thus eluded the detectives, who had been sent to Mexico to bring him to Chicago. The search for him was then resumed and his arrest in Panama is the result.

LARGE CROWDS ARE STILL VISITING LAKE ERIE

Cooler weather seems to be having no effect upon the attendance at Lake Erie park. The crowds on the contrary even increasing, as shown by the throng each day watching the balloon ascensions of the Broadwicks.

DEAR FRIEND, IF YOU HAVE GOT A BOY I KNOW YOUR HEART WILL FILL WITH JOY, FOR IF HE'S TWO, OR IF HE'S TEN, YOU'LL FIND JUST HOW TO DRESS HIM WHEN HE GOES TO SCHOOL OR GOES TO PLAY; FROM SUNDAY UNTIL SATURDAY.

BUSTER BROWN

P. S. Washer Bros. got Suits like mine. BUSTER

"Twas in these clothes I gained renown
As naughty little Buster Brown;
But I was never naughty, NO!
Who says so, says what is not so.

I've always tried to do what's right.
I'm GOOD when I'm asleep at night.
And if I've made mistakes before,
I'll never do so any more.

BUSTER.

And then when I go out to play,
And want to romp with Tige all day,
Ma makes me wear this suit of clothes.
She says it wears best—mother knows.

Besides it's pretty for the street.
And grandma says that I look sweet;
And Tige seems pleased, so I don't care
Exactly just what suit I wear.

There is a time for everything.
There is a time to dance and sing;
And there's a time to laugh or cry;
And there's a time to live or die.

There is a time to fish, or shoot.
It's ALWAYS time to wear this suit.
It's just the style for Buster boys;
The kind of clothes a chap enjoys.

Hurrah! I'm out of school today
And Tige and I can play and play.
The boys and girls around our street
All bring their roller skates and skates.

And have the greatest fun in town,
But none has more than Buster Brown.
Because I've got the suit that suits
Both roller-skates and shoot the shoots.

At night when I go out to dine,
And want to look all swell and fine,
And want the girls to think I'm cute,
I always wear this stylish suit.

For 'tis, you see, my very best,
And I am fashionable dressed,
And Tige's as proud as he can be,
And hangs around and looks at me.

And when I take my little gun,
And go out hunting just for fun,
To see how many things I'll miss,
And see how Tige will laugh at this,

Why, then, I wear this suit, you see,
I think it's just the suit for me.
I like to shoot to hear the noise,
But not to kill—like naughty boys.

Most every day I go to school,
And when the weather's nice and cool,
And there is skating on the pond,
I stop and skate, for I am fond

Of skating, Ma is fond of me.
She bought be this nice reefer, see.
How comfy and how swell I look.
I guess Ma knows her little book.
