State Convention in New York Assembles Today, and Up to the Time It was Called to Order Situation Unchanged

SHEPARD FOR GOVERNOR

His Friends Are Making An Active Canvass for Votes for Him and in the Event He Is Successful, Palmer May Be His Running Mate

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Up to the time the democratic state convention was called to order the general situation underneath all the flying rumors and counter-claims, was essentially unchanged.

Mr. Hornblower was escorted to the platform and after routine business, confirming temporary secretaries as selected by the state committee, had been disposed of, he began his speech.

MR. HORNBLOWER'S SPEECH

After accepting the temporary chairmanship of the convention, which he said he considered a duty, as well as an honor, Mr. Hornblower said:

It is arrogantly assumed by the national platform of the republican party and by their candidates for president, that the record of that party is unassailable.

Plans are being rapidly consummated, says the Herald, for the rehabilitation of the shipbuilding combination. Within a month the last foreclosure sale of the several plants will have been completed.

THE POSTAL FRAUD

The republicans take credit for the exposure of the postal frauds, but we may be pardoned for questioning whether this exposure has been quite as vigorous and unrelenting as our republican friends have us believe.

THE PANAMA CANAL

We are told that the acquisition of the right of way for the Panama canal is a result accomplished by the administration which is of inestimable value to the people and to the country for all time to come.

THE PENSION ORDER

So, again, with regard to the pension order, by means of which the executive department alters the pension laws of the nation and usurps the function which belongs to the legislative body.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN

Congressman Gillespie is making an active campaign of this congressional district, and is meeting J. M. Mallett of Cleburne, the populist nominee, in joint debate. Last week the two candidates spoke in Comanche, and we are indebted to the Comanche Chief for the following report of the event:

J. M. Mallett and O. W. Gillespie, candidates for congress for the populist and democratic parties respectively, had a joint discussion at the court house Monday night.

Mr. Mallett opened, and with all due courtesy to the old gentleman, made the weakest attempt at a speech perhaps ever made in the county. He tried to follow the speech Tom Watson made in New York, but got badly lost at times. He handled only one subject, and that was free silver, making the same old harangue the populist speakers used to make sixteen years ago.

Mr. Gillespie devoted a few minutes only to Mallett's harangue, and then launched into an able discussion of the functions of government. He said that the democratic party had made two campaigns with a western man as the candidate, with free coinage as the issue, and a southern man as campaign chairman. They lost in both campaigns. This year, they turned to the east for their candidate, and the east and middle west for the campaign managers. The whole political world recognizes the fact that free silver is not and cannot be an issue for some time at least.

A leading populist was heard to remark after the discussion, that both of the speeches were the sorriest he ever heard in the county.

Judging from the above, the Comanche meeting of the two congressional gladiators must have been a very tame affair. If Gillespie's speech was in any way disappointing to his friends down that way, it must have been owing to the fact he had no foe worthy of his steel. The democratic standard bearer is usually amply able to take care of himself upon the hustings, and the fact that he was renominated after one of the hardest struggles ever fought in this district, is also ample evidence that he possesses the confidence and esteem of his people.

It is hinted that the hope of Mallett to be elected this time is on account of disaffection in democratic ranks over the fact that Gillespie secured the nomination, which is alleged to exist principally in Johnson county, the home of the very able gentleman Congressman Gillespie defeated for the nomination.

The Telegram cannot believe there is a scintilla of truth in these rumors. While the good people of Johnson county may have been disappointed in the failure to land a favorite son, they are good democrats down that way, and not given to the knifing of democratic nominees just in order to vent their feelings of disappointment. They are built on broader and more liberal lines than that, and now that these rumors have been given publicity, will no doubt rise up in the majesty of their wrath and poll the biggest democratic vote in comparison with population, of any county in the district, as an answer to the calumniation who would intimate they are treacherous.

Mallett, the fossilized remnant of populism making the race against Gillespie, is about as weak a specimen of the creed as could have been jumped up in several days' journey. He is a back number, and while he was at one time dignified with the nomination for governor by his party, it was more the result of shortness of material out of which to manufacture candidates, than any fitness on the part of Mr. Mallett for the gubernatorial chair.

Like the army of populist candidates who have gone before him, Mr. Mallett's one ardent desire seems to be to run for office, and as the running is all the satisfaction he gets out of any campaign, none would deny him that satisfaction were it not for the fact that he does not even reflect credit on the ghost of populism that is now stalking through the land in an effort to frighten the timorous.

When Mallett says that Tom Watson will be the second man in the race for president of the United States, he gives evidence of a senility that is perhaps due alike to his age and the circumscribed visage of his political horoscope. All thinking men, and all men who are in touch with the live political issues of the day know and realize that Tom Watson will be well down toward the tail of the list of those who "also ran," and that no one knows who any better than Watson himself. As a defeated democratic congressional aspirant in his home state of Georgia, Tom Watson is venting his spleen on democracy by aiding the republican party as far as lies in his power, which fortunately for the best interests of the country, is very limited.

The congressional campaign in this district must continue to be a very tame exhibition, for the reason that what has been pitted against the democratic nominee cannot put up anything but a very tame exhibition of ignorance and general incompetency. Gillespie will be re-elected by such a majority as will make Candidate Mallett wonder what it was that hit him at the November election.

The message of President Diaz to the Mexican congress now in session says the national finances are in excellent condition. The total revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30 were more than $5,000,000, which is a gain of $8,000,000 over the preceding year. The nation is steadily advancing in the development of its latent resources, and prosperity abides throughout the republic. No mention is made of the impending monetary reform, which contemplates the placing of the finances of that country on the gold basis.

It does look like it is about time for the democratic campaign managers to put away that Parker gold telegram, sent to the St. Louis convention. The world has already accorded the nominee of the party all the praise he is entitled to for having the courage of his honest convictions, and further parade of the matter will but add to the suspicion that it was a shrewd campaign dodge.

Nineteen indictments have been returned against the alleged lynchers of a negro at Huntsville, Ala., and that fact ought to carry joy to the hearts of southern critics in the north, who feel so much interest in the situation. In the meantime, that Indiana mob, which run a negro out of town against the protestations of "his real nice white wife," will probably escape indictments.

Japan has called out her militia, which is her reserve, and this will result in sending 125,000 more men to the front. It is said that the fighting material in the mikado's empire will be almost exhausted when this draft is filled. The little yellow men are making glorious history for their nation every day of their lives.

Information comes from Germany that the subjects of the kaiser are very much opposed to the Monroe doctrine, but neglects to state officially what they are going to do about it. The Monroe doctrine is a doctrine that will always stick. It was not created for the special delectation of European countries, but to make them keep their distance.

SCHLEY'S STORY

"In penning these memoirs there has been no wish to detract from the services of others, no desire to enter unbidden, unbidden or rude words of those who may have differed in their views, but to set forth the facts and services of a life that has been clean in its devotion to home and to country, and steady in its purpose, from youth to its meridian, in giving the best years to duty conscientiously done for all that is near and dear to man—home, home, country.

Neither the lapse of time nor the change of circumstances has wrought any change of faith in the expression from the heart penned in those first moments of the great battle of July 3, 1898.

"I am glad that I had an opportunity to contribute in the least to a victory that seems big enough for all of us."

Such are the closing words in "Forty-five Years Under the Flag," by Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N., which D. Appleton & Co. will publish in a few days. In these memoirs Admiral Schley describes his service in the navy from his appointment as acting midshipman in 1855 until his retirement.

In all the book the word "I" does not appear, except in the quotation that ends this. The admiral speaks of himself in the third person, but the reader does not lose the impression that "the writer endeavored to do the work self before him without fear of personal consequences."

Schley will be best remembered by the Greely relief expedition and his part in the battle of Santiago. He writes thus of the final rescue of Greely and his surviving companions after infinite difficulties.

searchers was heard in the camp, and Brainard and Long went out to the cliff overlooking Kane Sea to learn what it might mean. To their joy, the promised was real; for not long afterward the heralded ships were in sight.

"The success of the relief ships in 1854 was made possible in the fullest measure by the officers and men who shared the dangers and exposures with the commander, and who were willing to undergo any privation or to undertake any risk to reach and rescue their imperiled countrymen.

"They did so with much credit to themselves and with much renown to the navy and to the nation."

Admiral Schley deals with the battle of Santiago most exhaustively, and his book will confirm those who were his adherents in the lamentable controversy which followed it in their opinion that he did most to win the victory. A single extract will sufficiently indicate the admiral's tone in this part of his narrative:

"From a confidential document under the title, 'Executive C. Third Session, 55th Congress,' a communication by Mr. Long respecting 'advancements in the navy,' it is seen that the commander-in-chief's movements in Siboney on that morning were under the orders from the department to meet General Shafter. This order, then, furnished an explanation of the commander-in-chief's signal and subsequent movements eastward on July 3, 1898.

"It supplies, too, evidence of temporary assignment to a new duty, taking him on shore to the headquarters of the army. It fixes incontestably also the status of the commander of the second squadron as senior officer present in command before Santiago after Senor's withdrawal.

"If the battle here related had miscarried, or if through mismanagement Cervera or any of his ships had escaped that day, there would have been no difficulty whatever about who was in command, or who would have had to bear the blame. It is as certain in that event that there would have been no effort to prove that the New York was within signal distance, no claim that it was a captain's battle, nor any other of the sophistries that were invented in the aftermath of controversy about this great victory.

"No instance is recalled where great success was won in battle where every participant was not anxious to share in the glory, but no instance is remembered where any subordinate ever desired to share with his superior the odium of defeat. Santiago alone would be unique as one of the world's great battles won without anybody being in command. If defeat had occurred the commander of the second squadron would have had to take his medicine just the same."

Admiral Schley describes New York's reception of Admiral Dewey in the summer of 1899, and writes: "Upon invitation of the municipal authorities of the metropolis the writer assisted them in doing honor to that great American commander, who had been for over four years his comrade in arms.

"The route followed by this imposing parade was literally packed with people from all parts of our country, who occupied every available foot of the pavements, steps, windows and platforms erected at a number of points along this route. Those who were in this vast procession as it moved on its destination appeared to be passing through a canyon of humanity.

"The tumultuous enthusiasm which distinguished the occasion as this cortege passed onward found expression in almost deafening applause. The shower of flowers from fair hands, the great American commander, who kept at Washington Square.

"From Thirty-fifth street and Fifth avenue to Madison square a bombardment of flowers from house-tops and windows, from doorsteps and pavements, was kept up. How many of these fell in Dewey's carriage the writer could not know, but those which reached his own carriage literally filled it, almost snowing him under, as it were. The air seemed to be filled with flowers, as if they were being rained down upon this vast procession."

"Bailey is one of the few democrats who has not learned wisdom by the experiences of the present, and about the only one of the democratic orators who keeps up his personal abuse on Roosevelt.—San Antonio Light.

And Senator Bailey is being roundly abused and vilified by the republican press all over the country. Bailey is not a man to turn the other cheek.

A rich Texas gentleman, hailing from San Antonio, being favorably impressed with the Idaho building at the World's Fair, has bought the same and will remove it to San Antonio to use as a residence.—Terrell Transcript.

That is the usual Texas manner of doing things. When a Texan has money to burn he will buy anything that happens to appeal to his fancy, regardless of what it may cost.

The Dallas police have inaugurated new tactics in their anti-gambling crusade. They now claim that men having no other occupation than that of gambling are vagrants and are subject to arrest when found on the streets.—Brownwood Bulletin.

The gentlemen of the cloth usually have an easy time in Dallas, and it is only when spasms of virtue hit the head of navigation on the Trinity that they are regarded as common old vags.

It worries some people to understand how Pierson Morgan can support Roosevelt and look Crocker Cleveland square in the eye at the same time.—Texarkana Courier.

The situation with Pierson seems to be that he made all possible out of democracy during the Cleveland administration, and is now simply cultivating new territory.

And now Hon. Cone Johnstone of Tyler has been mentioned for governor in 1906. If there is any one who has not been mentioned for candidate for governor two years hence, he must be very unpopular in his own locality and with his local newspaper friends.—Beaumont Journal.

All Tyler men are looked upon with suspicion when it comes to matters gubernatorial, for the average Tylerite is very foxy when it comes to politics and more than one of them is known to be willing.

Hose with pockets in them are said to be a bad job just now, and some cheerful idiot remarks that he hopes it will become fashionable for young ladies to stand around with their hands in their pockets.—McKinney Gazette.

The dear girls will never do it, for the simple reason that it is a mannish custom, and it would be so awfully inconvenient.

Capitalists can find so many fields for profitable investment in southwest Texas that it is a difficult matter to determine which is most attractive.—San Antonio Gazette.

And they can find so many glittering opportunities in the vicinity of Fort Worth that it were but idle for the mto look elsewhere.

ONLY A LITTLE MILLINER

BY MORRIS COLEBORN.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst, Great Britain Rights Reserved.) I was awfully glad Uncle Jack asked Captain Herrick to join us in Blairinch, although he declares he is about as much use on a grouse moor as a bull in a china shop.

That's all rot, of course, because, though he is a soldier, he's not at all a bad shot, but when it comes to swimming or handling a boat, well—that Captain Herrick doesn't know isn't worth talking about.

He's such an awfully good-natured chap, too, and gave me no end of tips about swimming, and once he cut the shooting, just to come down to the lock and show me the long back stroke.

However, as it happened, I didn't get a chance of learning it that day, because when we got to the shore, the first thing we saw was a small sailing boat trying to make the bay at the other side of the lock. Captain Herrick stood watching it for a couple of minutes, then:

"By George," he said, "if the duffers don't take care, they'll be upset as sure as a gun."

Then he whipped out his glass and watched the boat rushing up the lock. Just as she came from under the lee of the hills the wind caught her and she keeled over like a cockle shell. I could see one chap hauling away at the sail, but the second Johnnie seemed to be doing nothing except holding on to the first.

been for Captain Herrick I should have gone down like a stone. He swung round in a second and put out his arm.

"Buck up, Reggie, old man," he said, "we'll reach them in another couple of minutes, and they're all right as long as they can make a noise."

All the same I was jolly glad when we got across and found the two women clinging to the bottom of the up-turned boat. One of them was a stout old party in a big, mushroom-shaped hat and a waist—the other was a slim young girl, possibly her daughter.

The old lady was yelling fit to take your head off. She stopped in the middle of a shriek when she saw Captain Herrick and me swimming toward them.

"Oh, save us! Do save us!" she howled.

"All right, you must obey orders," said Herrick. "Put your arms on my shoulder so—no, not around my neck or we shall both sink. That's better! Can you swim?" he said, turning to the younger woman.

of wet sponges. By the time Captain Herrick had finished buttoning the old lady into his dry coat and given her a pretty stiff drink from his flask, I had got the girl into my blazer, and she was most awfully pale, and shivered till her teeth chattered again.

Captain Herrick poured some whisky down her throat as if she'd been a baby, but even then she didn't buck up.

If only we had been with a reasonable distance of a boat fire and a cup of hot tea we could have got the woman round in no time, but there wasn't a cottage within three miles, and even Captain Herrick wasn't equal to carrying the stout old party so far as that, while as for the girl—I really didn't see what we were to do, and I said as much to Captain Herrick.

"Do? Reggie," he said, coolly; "why, fetch up the boat, to be sure, it's been drifting in shore for the last ten minutes."

As it turned out there wasn't much wrong with her, though it took us a good time to right her and rig up a square sail which we found jammed under the seat in the stern.

The two women had bucked up ever so much, the old one in particular, and when we came back, it was to find her scolding the girl for all she was worth.

she asked us how on earth we supposed she was going to wait all that time shivering in her damp clothes. Then the girl snipped in:

"You know quite well, auntie, dear, that we are going back to Craigrorn in the Sea Foam," she said coolly. "You are far too wet to sit here arguing, so the best thing we can do is to start at once."

That settled the matter, though it didn't prevent the old lady from grumbling the whole way back to Craigrorn.

However, none paid much attention to her, for to tell the truth we had about as much as we could do to manage the boat.

It wasn't until Captain Herrick was helping her into a fly at the head of Craigrorn pier that the old girl remembered to thank him.

"You must forgive me being so ungracious, Captain Herrick," she said, "but the prospect of rheumatism is apt to make us old folk rather cranky and—"

Of course Herrick said she was as sweet-tempered as an angel, or words to that effect, and when she asked us if we would drop in and have tea with them one day, Captain Herrick accepted like a shot.

"I ought to have a card some where, if I can only find my purse," she said.

"Ah, there it is!" producing a rather pulpy-looking old leather bag and handing Captain Herrick a very damp piece of cardboard.

"You won't forget that we are at home in the afternoons until 5 to 6," she said.

"No, I shall certainly not forget," Herrick said, looking straight at the girl, who for some reason or other blushed right up to her pretty eyes.

It was not until the carriage was out of sight that he looked at the card in his hand.

the fact that the younger Miss Merryweather is an extremely nice girl, and about as keen a sportswoman as they make them.

"Why, she landed a three-pounder in the stream at Craigrorn only last week, and she—"

"Oh, she fishes at Craigrorn, does she?" said I.

"Of course, why not?" said Captain Herrick sharply.

Only that she'd better not let Lord Craigrorn catch her at it," said I; "he's awfully down on poachers."

A couple of days later when I heard Captain Herrick ask Uncle Jack if he might take the cutter as he was going across to Craigrorn, I smelt a rat.

hanging across the window that made it so dark, but I gave a regular jump when a little cracked voice came from behind a pile of band-boxes and asked us what we required.

"I want to see Miss Merryweather if she is at home," said Captain Herrick as coolly as you please.

"I am Miss Merryweather," said the owner of the cracked voice, and a little gray-headed woman came from behind the boxes and stood smiling at us over the counter.

I've often wondered since how he did it, but Captain Herrick never turned a hair, only pretended he had come in to get some gloves for his mater, and felt sure he could rely on Miss Merryweather's taste to select them for him. He bought six pairs, and though he led the conversation round to old ladies with mushroom-shaped hats and young ones with auburn hair and brown eyes, we came out of the dark little shop as wise as we went in.

Captain Herrick hardly said a word when we went back to Blairinch, and I heard Uncle Jack had visitors, were just making tracks for the gun-room when we heard the sound of a girl's low laugh.

Captain Herrick stopped a moment as if he'd been shot, and then marched straight into the drawing room.

Merchants of the Town Are Distributing Prizes to Farmers who Sell Their Staple, But Many Are Holding It

A PURCHASING AGENT Members of Farmers' Union In a Neighborhood Send One Man to the Grocer to Buy the Supplies for Numerous Families—Money in Bank

TEMPLE, Texas, Sept. 26.—For the third successive Saturday the merchants and other business men of Temple conducted a public distribution of premiums to the farmers who marketed their cotton in Temple during the week just closed. A requirement is that every farmer who participates in these awards must have sold his cotton here. As a consequence there were fewer entitled to participation this time than at the two previous events, owing to the fact that most of the cotton ground is being held by the owners for the mythical 10 cents. Only about a thousand bales were sold here during the entire week, 350 of which were turned loose yesterday, when the price paid for best cotton went to a dime. Notwithstanding these facts the largest crowd of farmers yet assembled was on hand on the public square when the public announcement of the fortunate prize winners was given out. The premium of $25 in gold went to D. F. Bickle of Bellfield, $10 in gold to W. J. Cooper of Oenaville, $5 in gold to J. W. Lemons of Pelton, W. M. Garrison of Heidenheimer, W. T. Lemmons of Temple, G. W. Hendricks, Oscar and T. B. Peery of Oenaville. Ten premiums of $2.50 cash were also distributed and twenty merchandise gifts from various merchants. The premium plan is working to the entire satisfaction of the originators and is regarded by them as being very beneficial in its results.

saving their money and one of the local banks is responsible for the statement that more negroes are depositors at this time than ever before known. Yesterday an old negro with his wife and eight children showed up at the bank and deposited their earnings, which collectively amounted to a good round sum.

Conductor Con Sullivan of Temple, who has a run between Temple and Galveston, was confronted with a problem on his last trip, concerning which the time card was silent and one not contemplated by the conductors' contract. At a point near Brenham, where the colored population is painfully in the majority, and which station happened to have no operator, a negro woman and girl alighted from the train in the wee small hours of morning. The woman had an armful of bundles and the girl was supposed to follow with the baby. The program was carried out as per above with the important exception that the girl in the excitement forgot the baby. The train pulled out before the mother discovered her loss and later Conductor Sullivan, in working his train, came upon the picknapping fast asleep on a seat. Just what action to take in the emergency puzzled the conductor for some time as S. and D. reports are not generally for passenger trains and there were no promptings under the blue-colored vest that whispered to him the possibilities of adoption. He finally settled the difficulty by unloading the infant at Posenberg, which was the next morning picked up the bundle and dropped it off into the arms of an anxious black mother. The means of sustenance provided for that baby during its nineteen hours of separation from its mother's breast are matters concerning which the deponent saith not.

DEATH OF A CHILD

Letta, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Engledow, died here last night at the family residence in North Third street of peritonitis, after an illness of about ten days. The condition of the child had not been regarded as serious until the last few days, when the exact nature of the complaint was made known. It was at first thought that she was suffering from an attack of appendicitis and the ailment appeared to yield to treatment for a short while, and her parents were sanguine of her recovery.

SWIFT WILL NOT CLOSE

Swift & Co., who have maintained a branch house in Temple for the past two years, recently announced the intention of closing their agency here on October 1. When this announcement was made there was such a wave of protest from the local merchants and the dealers in the numberless small towns tributary to Temple that the management reversed its decision and decided to keep their local branch open here. The intention was to consolidate the Waco and Temple houses as a measure of economy, but when it was ascertained that an overwhelming number of their patrons preferred Temple

WIND, HAIL AND RAIN DAMAGE DES MOINES

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 26.—Terrific wind, hail and rain storm has damaged many thousand dollars worth of property at Oskaloosa. The building occupied by Spencer's wholesale grocery firm was demolished; the Illinois Central depot was unroofed, and practically all the business houses were damaged more or less severely. Reports from other parts of the state indicate the severity of the storm. At Albia the hail was said to be five inches deep.

THE FARMERS' UNION

The Farmers' Union in Bell county is getting into action in a manner that has not been looked for by those who have not kept up with its affairs. The members have very little to say or make public, but that they are sticking together and howling to the line is plainly apparent. Yesterday a representative or "purchasing agent" representing a club of twenty farmers was here with a list of groceries desired by the club for the use of their families. Every grocer in town was given a chance to sell the bill, which amounted to about $200. Just what percentage was saved it was not possible to learn, but if matters arrive at a pass where the merchant can deal with one man representing a community he can afford to make better prices, for there will not exist a necessity for a large clerical force at good salaries to provide for.

NEGROES ARE DEPOSITORS

Cotton pickers in from the country over-run the town yesterday and today, all having some cash in their pockets representing the fruits of a week's picking. A good many of the colored people are as a distributing market it did not take the company long to conform to the popular demand.

WORK OF A WAG

A local wag recently returned from the World's Fair and possessed of a humorous desire to create a little consternation among mothers with babies, related to a reporter of a local paper that at the kindergarten at the fair grounds, where fond mothers deposit their offspring for care and attention and receive a numbered brass check as a substitute, while they absorb the sights, some mismanagement was painfully apparent to those who regarded the social equality subject as something more than a bug-a-boo to frighten innocent voters. His tale was that on certain day all the babies had been called for except one, and at a late hour a woman appeared with a check corresponding to the one tagged on the infant, and lo and behold, the attendant trotted out for her a jet black negro baby, that being the only one left. A number of doting mothers, upon reading the account, then and there cut out any fugitive intentions that may have possessed them to visit the fair, for a repetition of such an occurrence with them as leading characters was something not only not to be tolerated, but not to even be thought of. The next issue of the paper, however, clarified the situation materially. It stated that the affair had been satisfactorily explained. The woman who had presented the check was of darker and the baby was hers. Thereupon several wiser families drew deep breaths of relief and World's Fair travel from this town immediately got a hump on itself.

THE CROPS IN TEXAS

Texas cotton growers seem to be ben on getting twelve cents a pound for their cotton this year. Many have had this idea conveyed to them through the good offices of the Farmers' Union. Others have acted individually in the matter. At many points the merchants and the men of finance and the banks have come to the assistance of the farmers and are helping them to hold off for the twelve cents. At Arlington very few bales of cotton are being sold, as the planters are all holding back for the better price. The local bankers and the merchants there are assisting them in tiding over until the price is reached. Many farmers are of the opinion that to make any profit in the cotton-raising business at all they must get such a price for that staple.

The initial trip of the Katy cotton train, which has been delayed the past week, was made yesterday from Denison to Galveston. The time made on the Dallas division was not very fast and it stayed there last night, but today is expected to be rushing toward Galveston with all possible speed. The train is an innovation in railroad circles and is being watched with interest by all interested in cotton and its delivery to the seaport.

General Passenger Agent A. A. Glisson of the Denver, was yesterday presented with a large watermelon weighing 85 pounds. The melon was raised by R. R. Rankin, who lives on a farm near Wellington in Collingsworth county.

Over 5,000 bales of cotton have been received at Hillsboro so far this year. This is estimated to be over half the crop. The corn crop has practically been neglected by the farmers in their efforts to gather in the cotton. There is still a scarcity of pickers all over Hill county. No preparations have been made at all to plant the fall wheat and none will be until the bulk of the cotton has been gathered.

A farmer near Cleburne has made over $200 on one acre of land by raising pole beans. The gentleman believes in diversification and will next year greatly increase the acreage in pole beans.

Sweet potatoes are selling at 75 cents to $1 a bushel around Terrell. The crop raised there this year is a large one and is netting the growers big returns on the crop.

Mrs. Weisslitz, president of the German Women's Club of Buffalo, N. Y., after doctoring for two years, was finally cured of her kidney trouble by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Of all the diseases known with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless prompt and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave careful study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ill-fated disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women.

Read What Mrs. Weisslitz Says.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For two years my life was simply a burden. I suffered so with female troubles, and pains across my back and loins. The doctor told me that I had kidney troubles and prescribed for me. For three months I took his medicines, but grew steadily worse. My husband then advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and brought home a bottle. It is the greatest blessing ever brought to our home. Within three months I was a changed woman. My pain had disappeared, my complexion became clear, my eyes bright, and my entire system in good shape."—MRS. PAULA WEISSLITZ, 176 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Proof that Kidney Trouble can be Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel very thankful to you for the good your medicine has done me. I had doctored for years and was steadily growing worse. I had trouble with my kidneys, and two doctors told me I had Bright's disease; also had falling of the womb, and could not walk a block at a time. My back and head ached all the time, and I was so nervous I could not sleep; had hysteria and fainting spells, was tired all the time, had such a pain in my left side that I could hardly stand at times without putting my foot on something.

"I doctored with several good doctors, but they did not help me any. I took, in all, twelve bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of Liver Pills, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and feel like a new woman, can eat and sleep well, do all my own work, and can walk two miles without feeling over tired. The doctors tell me that my kidneys are all right now. I am so happy to be well, and I feel that I owe it all to your medicine."—MRS. OPAL STROM, Dalton, Mass.

PICKS MUCH COTTON

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Sept. 26.—Walter Stages, a 12-year-old boy, who is picking cotton for J. D. Collier, five miles south of town, is making a reputation as a rapid gatherer of the fleecy staple. From Monday morning to Saturday noon of last week this young boy picked 2,365 pounds of cotton, an average of 430 pounds a day. At 60 cents a hundred his earnings are $2.58 per day.

PICKERS ARE SCARCE

WACO, Texas, Sept. 26.—The situation as regards cotton has not changed materially in the past few days. The fields continue white, and the pickers continue scarce, so that prices remain up from 50 to 65 and even 75 cents a hundred in some cases. The weather in this county has been particularly favorable, and there has only been one slight interruption in the way of rain, though sections near here have had a good deal more moisture and interruption. The yield here will be up to or a little ahead of last year, it is thought, if it can be gathered, but there is an element of doubt in the matter on this score which must be reckoned with.

J. W. Rigbins, who has a business in Bryan as well as Houston, is impressed firmly with the idea that the country has been blessed by the ravages of the boll weevil rather than injured. He states that the banks of Bryan have just double the individual deposits for 1904 that they had in 1900, and thinks this is directly traceable to the manner of cultivation pursued by farmers since the boll weevil came. On the first of January, this year, he states, the banks there had more money from depositors than ever known before, and as stated, the amount was double that of four years previous.

FILIBUSTERS ARE TO MAKE A VISIT TO HONDURAS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Secret service employees are reported to have been watching for several days in the rotunda of the custom house, in the harbor among ships clearing for the American ports for a filibustering expedition which is suspected of fitting out here. The department of state has been in communication with Salvador Cordova, the consul general of Honduras here, over the matter.

About a month ago New Orleans newspapers contained advertisements that called the attention of the consuls of the Honduras government in New Orleans to the efforts of the American Association there to raise a company of some 400 men. The newspapers stated at that time that the expedition was being formed by an American firm that has pecuniary interests in Central America to go there and protect its interests. It was said that the expedition was to go to a point about three days' distance from New Orleans. Honduras is just that distance from New Orleans. Detectives were put on the matter at the request of the Honduras government and it is said they found that about 400 men were to be given uniforms similar to those worn by United States soldiers, with guns and ammunition and that two rapid-fire guns were to be taken along. The detectives learned that an expedition was to start also from New York and another from Pittsburg.

The state department was notified and the preparations at New Orleans were stopped at once. So far as known no preparations have been made for raising an expedition here.

POPULISTS IN THE COURTS SECRETLY MEET

Conference Held in This City Friday and Every Effort Is to Be Made to Defeat Congressman Gillespie—Democrats Do Not Fear Defeat, But Work Is Being Done to Prevent a Heavy Vote in Opposition to the Ticket

The populists of this congressional district are up and doing there is no longer any doubt in the minds of those who are watching the local political situation. A meeting of some of the leading members of the district was held in this city last Friday. The meeting was a secret one and had it not been for the talkativeness of one of those in attendance the general public would not even have known any wise of its existence. The meeting was held in the parlor of the Richelieu hotel Friday afternoon, and a second meeting held in the evening, Milton Park of Dallas was among the members of the party present, as well as congressional nominees, J. M. Mallett, of Cleburne, and "Stump" Ashby of this city. What the confab was about not one of those present will give out, but it is surmised and upon pretty good grounds, at least, that there is to be conducted in this, the Twelfth congressional district, a hard fight to send Colonel Mallett to congress. It is said a plan of conducting the fight was mapped out and that in Tarrant county is there to be an especially vigorous campaign conducted. "Talent" from other parts of the state is to be thrown into this county and from this time on the campaign is to be one of education and enlightenment.

One of those attending the meeting has as much as said to a third party that "Stump" Ashby, the "Demosthenes of Tarrant county," was to stump this portion of the district, as is also Milton Park of Dallas. Meetings will be held on the street corners and in public places and a short of hand to hand campaign is to be made by Colonel Mallett in the country districts. The same kind of a fight is to be made here as was made the past several weeks at Comanche and in that county. What effect the drastic measures of the populist party will have on the American Association, it is not known, but it is a certainty that the members and leaders of the party are determined to make a brave stand for the causes and principles which they represent.

While the Gillespie forces do not believe the populists will make a showing in the campaign, yet the democratic fences are being watched closely.

COTTON PASSES THROUGH

Over a hundred bales of cotton passed through the city today going from Azle to Arlington. It is a part of the cotton raised by the members of the Farmers' Union of this county and is to be sold with other cotton in bulk at Arlington tomorrow.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 20.—A man who is regarded by secret service officers and the authorities of Oyster Bay as a dangerous crank, was apprehended here today. He is J. E. Reeves, a medium-sized, roughly dressed man, about 40 years of age. He was walking to Sagamore Hill when arrested. He told officer Tyree, who apprehended him, that he wanted to see the president on important business.

Believing from the man's manner that he was insane, the officer took him before Justice Franklin for examination.

To the justice Reeves said that six years ago he died in Jersey City and that he went to heaven in an automobile. While there he received an important message from the president Roosevelt, which he is directed to deliver personally. He refused to say what is the nature of the message, as he declared he could communicate it to nobody but the president. He declared to the justice, however, that he had written a book on his experiences in heaven, which he desired to have published.

Reeves, who talked as if he had enjoyed some educational advantages, said he was a resident of Baltimore.

Justice Franklin, after an examination, being convinced that the man was insane and very likely dangerous, deputized one of the secret service men to take him to Mineola, where a formal inquiry as to his mental condition will be held.

Hi Smith is still on trial charged with assault to murder.

Two new suits were filed in the district court, J. H. Armstrong vs. Ellen Lawson Dabbs, debt and foreclosure, and Fay Thompson Chambers vs. Judge Watts Chambers, divorce.

In Judge Milam's court Will Massey got a fine of $25 and thirty days in jail, Jake Davis a fine of $1 and one day. Dave Herman was convicted of aggravated assault and will have to face a fine of $25 and thirty days. Jesse Timmons was declared not guilty of the charge of assault.
