MAGAZINES AT SEVASTOPOL ARE FIRED, MANY PEOPLE ARE KILLED

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—The large ammunition magazines at Sevastopol are ablaze and all the soldiers stationed at the magazines are being abandoned. A number were killed by the explosions and more injured. It is not known how the conflagration started. The official version has it that carelessness on the part of a soldier precipitated the catastrophe, but it was reported that the fire was of incendiary origin and had been started by Roumanians.

of whom many are in the city. The explosions, which followed in rapid order and continued for nearly an hour, were of terrific nature. Their force shook every building on the east side, where the magazines are located, and thousands of windows were smashed. The entire garrison has been called out and the troops are lining the streets, permitting nobody but the firemen and police access to a large section of the city within which the magazines are located. They stand fairly isolated and there is no fear of a spread of the blaze to other but the surrounding government buildings.

ered authentic. There is a rumor of arsenic and it is believed that spreading the net over a wide area the authorities hope to arrest the perpetrators of the outrage before the day is over. Some weeks ago large quantities of ammunition were stolen by Roumanians who had evidently the aid of the Russian soldiers. A number of the latter were tried and sentenced for neglect of duty but there was a report current that a conspiracy of considerable extent had been unearthed.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—Sevastopol is located in the most southern part of the Crimean peninsula. The population exceeds 30,000.

KNOX DEFENDS

Former Attorney General of the President Makes Address Which Can Be Said to Have Come From the Candidate

A PERSONAL CAMPAIGN

Refers to Manner in Which the Democrats Have Attacked the Man and Not the Manner—Talks of the Pension Order

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 1.—Before an audience of 5,000 people in the Academy of Music tonight, United States Senator Philander J. Knox defended Roosevelt's official action in a speech which is said to have reflected the president's own views in every way.

The address was prepared with the utmost care and after a lengthy consultation it may be regarded as "official" and one of the most important utterances of the president. To-night's meeting was the largest held here since the inauguration of the president. It was under the auspices of the Manufacturers' Club and drew from all sections many important men, including Secretary Cortelyou.

The personality of the president has been assailed in the democratic platform and in authoritative democratic utterances both directly and by innuendo. His temperament is unsatisfactory, he is too impulsive, he acts too quickly, he is not the type of a statesman, he is not the type of a great officer, he is not the type of a great general, he is not the type of a great diplomat, he is not the type of a great statesman, he is not the type of a great general, he is not the type of a great diplomat, he is not the type of a great statesman.

Quick Work of a Mob With a Man Who Uses the Ready Sixshooter when Refused the Loan of a Dime

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 1.—John Morrison, a white man, shot and instantly killed John Floyd, son of a prominent farmer, 20 miles from here this afternoon.

Morrison was arrested shortly afterward but a mob stormed the jail, took the prisoner out and hanged him to a tree. The Camden guards, the nearest militia company, was ordered to the scene by the governor but the soldiers arrived an hour after the lynching.

Morrison was known as a desperate character and had killed four men prior to today's murder. He killed Floyd because the latter refused to loan him 10 cents.

RULES OF ARMY

Japanese Embassy in London Gives Out a Statement Showing Just How the Soldiers of the Mikado Are Controlled

CORRECTS SOME ERRORS

Full Statement of Method of Drafting Young Men for Service in the War Arm, and Manner by Which They Remain Until Forty Years Old

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The Japanese embassy here, in response to many inquiries referring in one way or another to the reason which prompted the government of the mikado to lengthen the term of service of reservists of the second class from five to ten years has authorized a very elaborate statement in regard to Japanese reserves if it should become necessary to send considerable reinforcements to the troops in the Far East.

The statement in part follows: "We have no knowledge here whether there is any truth in the report that the first national army has been called up or not but it is not sent to the Far East. There is another misconception we desire to correct. The statement is often heard that our losses in Manchuria will compel the government to call out the militia. Properly speaking, the Japanese has no militia serving three years with the colors. After they have served this term they pass into the first reserve for four years and then serve under the new order, a further period of ten years in second reserve, completing seven years' service. They then pass into the first national army in which they remain until forty years of age. This limit will now in all likelihood be increased to 45. After that age they can quit free of service.

"In December of each year all men of 20 years are called up and the others drawn by them. This drawing is done by certain numbers being chosen after the regiment has been made up to their strength the remainder are allowed to return home, but they must hold themselves in readiness during one year to join the colors. At the end of that year they pass into the second national army, which consists mainly of those who have never been trained. The first national army cannot be called up except in cases of emergency.

"The young men, who are not drawn for service, and who would, in the ordinary way pass into the second national army, are called to join the depots of the various regiments in the field who have suffered losses which must be made up. They are there trained and sent to the front. The reserves of both the first and second class, where they have been called up, are at present doing garrison work, and in the last extremity the first national army might be called up to take their places in Japan, allowing the garrison troops to proceed to the seat of war. If the government sees short of men they would not call out the militia or national army; but they have power to call up all the next year's recruits a year before their time and would probably do so."

Only once in the history of the Japanese has a proposal been made to call up the national army. That was during the Sino-Japanese war and the government had but the object in view to test its efficiency. But the war was over before the plan could be carried out. It may be that the authorities are now again considering the advisability of testing the men composing the first national army, but even in that case, they will not leave Japan. The law, as at present constituted, does not permit of their leaving the country for active service. The resources of Japan as far as men are concerned are not fully appreciated by many nations. If the occasion demands it an army of one million men could be sent to the Far East.

NEW SITUATION
MURKIN, Oct. 1.—Prolonged activity on both sides emphasizing the new situation, clearly shows the battle of Liao Yang is rightfully described as the end of the first stage of the war making necessary the adoption of new tactics by the Japanese and rehabilitation of the Russian army.

BREAKS DOWN

Senator Dolliver Is Forced to Leave Fairbanks Special at Portland Because of Trouble With His Throat

HAS MADE FORTY TALKS

Is in Fine Physical Condition But Muscles of His Throat Have Been Over-taxed and Physician Insists on Rest—Will Go to Colorado

CENTRALIA, Wash., Oct. 1.—The strain of speech making several times each day is proving to be too great a strain upon the vocal organs of the speaker with the Fairbanks special which has now almost reached the Pacific coast in its sweep across the continent and has resulted in Senator J. P. Dolliver of Iowa being ordered by his physician to cease his talking and give his throat practically absolute rest or serious consequences may result.

The Iowa senator has decided to obey the advice of his physician and will leave the special train at Portland tonight where he will consult a specialist. Senator Dolliver plans to go to Denver for rest and treatment and then make a series of speeches through Colorado lasting a week. Aside from the throat trouble, the senator is in good physical condition, but the muscles of his throat are overtaxed, his throat is sore, the membrane showing decided inflammation and the larynx is affected. This is his twenty-fifth season as a campaigner and never before has he had so serious throat trouble. He dislikes very much to give up his work, even temporarily but thinks it best to heed the advice of his doctor.

Senator Dolliver has made forty speeches on this trip and his witty style and the general entertaining quality of his speeches has made him amazingly popular.

Senator C. W. Fulton of Astoria, Ore., will accompany Senator Fairbanks as a companion speaker, possibly throughout the remainder of the tour.

PAYNE IS GROWING WORSE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Following the flattering announcement, today of a decided improvement in the condition of Postmaster General Payne comes the announcement that he is not so well. At 8 o'clock the following bulletin was issued: "Mr. Payne has been very restless this morning, but continued to take nourishment during the entire day. He responds well to the remedies employed. His condition is still very serious."

Dr. McGrander did not leave the sick chamber until some time after the bulletin had been issued and then appeared somewhat reluctant to discuss details. He said that he was making a strong fight, with the odds very much against him.

His appearance indicates that he was not so encouraged over the condition of his patient as he was at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. McGrander said he preferred not to discuss the restoratives being used, declaring that he thought sufficient the announcements that conditions as they arose were fully met with. It is understood that the patient was not able during the latter hours of the afternoon to retain all the nourishment given him.

At midnight, after an hour's labor with the patient the doctors retired to an adjoining room for rest. Secretary Whitney, who had been hurriedly summoned from his home, gave out the following bulletin: "12 midnight.—The postmaster general is resting quietly at midnight and the attending physicians, Dr. McGrander and Johnson have retired."

FAIR

G. P. MEAD OF THIS CITY RECEIVED

FOR THE TEXAS PRODUCTS COMPANY

In the district court of Dallas county a case in equity, the Texas National Bank of Dallas against the Texas Cotton Products Company, was filed asking the court to appoint a receiver.

The case was removed to the federal court before Judge E. R. Meek, who late Saturday afternoon granted the application and appointed G. P. Mead of Fort Worth as receiver with bond in the sum of $20,000.

The property of the company is estimated at about $750,000, all in Texas. This is the company which succeeded the American Cotton Company some three years ago and handled the round bale style of baling cotton. The company has nearly a hundred gins in the state, the nearest one to Fort Worth being at Arlington. None of these gins have been in operation during the year owing to litigation which has tied them up and of which the application for a receiver is the outcome.

On the appointment of G. P. Mead as receiver of the company it is expected the affairs of the concern will be straightened out and in the course of time all of the gins will again be in operation.

The style of the suit filed in the Fourteenth district court at Dallas two weeks ago was, The Texas National Bank against the Texas Cotton Products Company, alleging debt and asking for the appointment of a receiver. The judge granted that the defendants had the right to take the matter to the federal court which was done yesterday at Fort Worth. Granville P. Mead was appointed receiver. The Texas National Bank alleges that the defendant company owes it $20,800. The suit was brought, it is alleged, because of the American Cotton Company being thrown into the hands of a receiver. It is set up that the Texas Cotton Products Company is a branch of that concern.

short weeks ago. It was in everybody's mouth that the president and the trust magnates were "at outs" and that now they are falling into each other's arms. While his safety and sanity are being loudly recognized by them? It may be that it has been nothing but rumors, but if more than rumors then have been negotiations? Has there been a treaty of peace between the political and industrial magnates? Or is it a modus vivendi looking to peace "after the election?" If so, who negotiated the treaty? Why arranged the terms of the modus vivendi? What are its terms? Is it "inconsistent with the public interest" to let us know them? "All this" would be mighty interesting reading, as Horace Greeley used to say. Oh, the hypocrisy of these pretenses of trust-slaughter upon the part of our friends and political opponents!

But the failure to do anything is sometimes excused upon the ground that there are "good trusts" doing "a legitimate business" and that they ought not to be interfered with. Are there? To answer that question let us say what is a trust? What is the object of its formation? How does it practically attain its object? What is the government to be formed in, whole or in part? If so, how? And what is the measure of the jurisdiction of the federal government over it?

THE OPENING A FAILURE
LIMA, Ohio, Oct. 1.—In point of oratorical talent, as well as in attendance, the formal opening of the democratic campaign was a disappointment. Among the advertised attractions were speeches by James Campbell, General James B. Weaver and John R. McLean. None of them were present. Lima, in gala attire, made preparations for the entertainment of thousands of visitors. It had been predicted that not less than 20,000 democrats would assemble here. But incoming trains brought no crowds and what was to have been an imposing state opening of the campaign resolved itself into a fair sized district meeting. Cleveland was represented only by Tom L. Johnson. At 8 o'clock the visiting organizations paraded the streets and the speaking began at 2 o'clock. Colonel James Kilbourne of Columbus presided.

ENGLAND'S MOVE DISTURBS CZAR VERY MUCH
The Russian Government Fears to Lose the Balkan States, Under the Negotiations Now Pending

SOBIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 1.—Prince Ferdinand, it is now known, called M. Tzokoff, the Bulgarian diplomatic agent in London, to Sofia to an urgent council in connection with the new movement inspired by England for the federation of the Balkan nations.

Signor Giolitti, the Italian premier, after his conference with Count von Buelow, the German chancellor, requested from Prince Ferdinand a definite statement of what might be expected at the hands of the leading Balkan subjects which are looking for union. Prince Ferdinand, wisely, before replying, knew from M. Tzokoff exactly what Lord Lansdowne stood and how much pressure England would bring to bear in order to cause Italy and Austria to work whole-heartedly for the proposed federation.

RUSSIA FEARS TO LOSE THE BALKAN STATES
ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—Uneasiness is showing itself in government circles as a result of the patent effort of Great Britain and other countries to emancipate Bulgaria from Russian influence and establish the Balkan people on a more certain and firm basis of independence. It is highly probable that Russia and Germany are working together in the matter. The czar is aware of the nature of the negotiations between Chancellor von Buelow and Signor Giolitti. The Russian government, extremely sensitive to developments in Europe that appear to proceed from the assumption that Russia is disastrously weakened in the Far East. A determined attempt to wrest the Balkan Slavs from all suggestion of dependence on the czar would seriously try official patience.

INJUNCTION AGAINST WORKERS
INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—Judge Anderson of the United States court today issued an injunction against members of the Glass Workers' Union at Elwood restraining them from in any way interfering with the McBeth and Evans Glass Company. The latter is trying to run an "open" factory and the unionists have refused to work with non-union men. Many acts of violence are alleged to the unionists.

THE KEY NOTE

John Sharp Williams Has Something to Say About the Letter of Acceptance of the President

THE STAND PAT POLICY

Indication That Re-election Means Four Years More of Executive Control—Sees Peculiar Purpose in Selection of Cortelyou

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A ratification meeting under the auspices of the democratic committee of Kings county, Brooklyn, was held tonight. Comptroller Edward M. Grant presided and Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi was the principal speaker. In his opening address Mr. Grant made a plea for a cessation of the local factional fight in the democratic party. Mr. Williams spoke for about two hours and discussed the issues of the campaign.

In part Mr. Williams' letter of acceptance there is one note—keynote we may call it, which is certain and unmistakable, to-wit: that if the republican party is kept in power it will continue to administer the government without amendment just as it has been administered for the last three years. If so, then we are to have four more years of "standing pat" and of boasting of the past and of a "stand pat" policy. If so, then we are to have four more years of the "stand pat" policy, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, unchanged and unchangeable. If so, then we are to have four more years of reciprocal trade relations sought to be entered into by the other peoples of the world, even though in accordance with the recommendations of such distinguished republicans as Blaine and McKinley, some based upon treaties approved by Mr. McKinley, are to be trumped under foot. For four years extravagance is to go not only unchecked, but justified or lauded as an incident of our "stand pat" policy. For four more years international perfidy is to be exalted, because of the magnitude of the benefit we have reaped, or which we hope to reap. For four more years the industrial and social peace of the South is to be maintained, not by anything actually done or undertaken to be done, at least by inconsiderate talk and misleading conduct in high place. For four more years the "big stick" is to be continually held up as the national ideal in our relations with the balance of the world, and especially with the peoples of Central and South America. For four more years some of our manufacturers, who sell habitually to the foreigner at a reasonable profit in his own market, notwithstanding the tariff later, are still to find extortionate tariff rates a shelter behind which to charge the American consumer an unreasonable profit at prices 25 to 35 per cent higher than are charged to foreigners for the same goods, made in the same mill on the same day. For four more years the Northern Securities decision is to be held up as the be-all and end-all of trust-shaking, while other trusts are bidden god-speed as necessary agencies of modern development.

Another question, a question which I would like to have answered by the president: Is Mr. Cortelyou going to be re-elected to his old position after the campaign and election? Let there be denial of all men made chairman of the republican national committee? We can understand why Governor Odell should be chairman of the state machine. We can understand it from a very low plane of machine politics, but still we can understand it. He has a reputation as a "fixer" and "political politician" and "organizer" and all that. And in whatsoever execrable taste his acting in the double capacity of a presumably impartial chief executive of a partisan machine may be, we can yet perhaps better understand why he should be chairman of the republican state committee in New York than why he should be governor. But regardless of the question of taste, why was Mr. Cortelyou, of all men, put at the head of the national machine? His reputation was of a higher type than Governor Odell's. He has had no experience in like work and no reputation for peculiar fitness for it, unless, indeed, having been chief of the department of commerce and labor constitutes in itself peculiar fitness for the place—along some lines of antipathetic operation. Was the fact that he had been secretary of commerce and labor the reason why he was appointed on the president's demand? Was it the chief reason? Was it one reason? If so—the taste of the transaction is worse than that displayed by the Odell case. How comes it that, up to a few

CONNECTICUT

New Battleship Did Not Escape Injury at Hands of Vandals Who Plotted to Put Obstructions on the Ways

THE BOAT IS LEAKING

Loose Plate Close to the Keel Has Been Found—Opposition of Contractors to Construction Work by Government Believed to Be Cause

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The startling fact leaked out here tonight that the new battleship Connecticut, which was launched Thursday, did not escape injury from the hands of some unknown conspirators when they intended to send her to the bottom.

After the finding of the obstructions on the ways and their removal and the placing of guards, and the successful launching, it was thought the conspirators had been foiled. It is now learned from the navy department, who, however, are reluctant to discuss the matter, that the Connecticut was found to be leaking after she left the ways. An examination disclosed a loose plate close to the keel. It is now admitted that the obstructions discovered previous to the launching were spikes. It would seem the intention of the vandals to have the loosened strips ripped off by the spikes as the ship glided down the ways, sending her rushing to the bottom of the bay and causing damage that would delay her completion many months.

A report of the discovery has been made by Naval Constructor Robertson and has been corroborated by the assistant secretary of the navy. A special force of detectives have been detailed to investigate the affair. The broad assertion was made in some quarters that the intention was the outgrowth of the opposition to construction of ships in government yards. The steamer ship in the Connecticut, the Louisiana, was started at the same time at Newport News, where non-union labor, it is said, worked ten hours a day to surpass the union men in the government yard, working but eight hours per day.

NINE ARE DROWNED
LAS VEGAS, N. M., Oct. 1.—A report is in circulation here that nine persons have been drowned in the flood at Watrous. They are J. E. Stevens and family, consisting of three women and a child and a family named Villera, composed of four persons. The damage by the flood here is estimated at $75,000 and along the Santa Fe line the damage will foot up many thousands of dollars. Only one wire is working to Santa Fe and that is operating to the Denver and Rio Grande. All the other wires have been swept away.

POISONED EATING HASH
NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—About forty members of the 12th United States coast artillery at Fort Hamilton were poisoned by eating hash at the mess breakfast today, only two of them were seriously affected, namely, Drs. McIlhenny and Powell, the others, mainly officers, became ill but are now in a fair way to recovery. What disturbing element was contained in the hash was not known but an investigation has been ordered to determine the nature of the "poison and how it came to be in the food.

THE INTERURBAN LINE
BONHAM, TEX., Oct. 1.—The work of completing the permanent survey into the city of the Bonham-McKinney interurban was finished today. Engineer Miliken and his corps of surveyors will go to McKinney tomorrow and from there start to make the permanent survey of the road to Bonham.

The route from McKinney runs through Valhalla, Blue Ridge, Nabesaw, Trumb, Randolph, Ethulia and into Bonham. Along this route it passes through some of the best black land country in the state, and will open up a vast field of trade for both Bonham and McKinney. The work of the local committee in securing deeds to the right of way is progressing satisfactorily. Attorney McKinney, who is collecting the first instalment on the bonus pledges, is progressing rapidly and that feature of the work will soon be completed.

It was stated today by President Potter that in all probability the work of making the grade would begin by the first of November.

A JAPANESE DRUG STORE.

The Japs Use Pe-ru-na. This fact is testified to by recent travelers in Japan, who have observed Peruna displayed in Japanese drug stores, in show windows and by means of placards.

The Japs Use Pe-ru-na. This might or might not account for their strenuous, active habits. We are not prepared to say. The Japs are notably a healthy people. They are courageous, supple and capable of great endurance. Their climate is not very productive of catarrh and catarrhal diseases, yet they are in some degree afflicted with this world's scourge.

The Japs Use Pe-ru-na. They have been quick to adopt all American customs. They have adopted our manner of government, our fashions as to dress, our mode of warfare, our public school system, and they have even adopted our custom of taking Peruna for catarrhal diseases.

The Japs Use Pe-ru-na. The Japs are the Yankees of the Orient. They move quickly. They are positive. Peruna exactly fits in this sort of life. Busy people have no time to bother with catarrh. Colds are irksome and hold them back. They want to get rid of them quickly. Nothing acts so promptly as Peruna. Peruna prevents catarrh by nipping it in the bud.

The Japs Use Pe-ru-na. Quick action,—this is characteristic of Peruna and characteristic of the Japs. It is very natural, indeed, and inevitable that the Japs should use Peruna. They are up to the times. They adopt all good things. They do not have to be told twice.

War Artists Use Pe-ru-na. Mr. H. B. Manly, Assistant War Artist to London "Black and White" and "Collier's Weekly" during the uprising in China, writes: "When a man travels in extreme hot or cold climates he realizes how valuable a friend he has if he carries a bottle of Peruna. I know of no article in my traveling outfit which I have learned to praise higher."

War Correspondents Use Pe-ru-na. Mr. F. B. Richards, 609 E street, N. W., Washington, D. C., War Correspondent, writes: "Six years ago I was ordered to Cuba as staff correspondent of the New York Sun. I was in charge of a Sun despatch boat through the Spanish-American War. The effect of the tropical climate and the nervous strain showed plainly on my return to the States. A brother newspaper man, who had served in the war, induced me to give a faithful trial to Peruna. I did so. To-day, I am able to work as hard as at any time in my life."

Civil War Veterans Use Pe-ru-na. Corporal John Finn, veteran soldier of the Civil War, Grand Army man and commander of John A. Rawlins Post No. 1, Dep't of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, writes: "Peruna was recommended to me by many of my associates. I have found it a most agreeable and effective tonic, pleasant and soothing. I have suffered from rheumatism and catarrhal affections, and have found Peruna most beneficial."

Thousands Use Pe-ru-na. We have in our files thousands of testimonials like the above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of interesting endorsements Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving from grateful people who have used his remedy, Peruna.

CANADA'S NEW VICERINE

COUNTESS GREY.

LONDON—Countess Grey, wife of the new governor general of Canada, is not a typical London society peacock. She belongs to an older school and is serious minded and devoted to philanthropy like her husband, Earl Grey. She was Miss Alice Holford, of Dorchester house, and is one of a group of three sisters who twenty-five years ago were much talked of in London for their beauty and intellectual gifts and afterwards for their good marriages, for Lady Grey's sisters are Mrs. Robert Benson and Lady Morley.

But Lady Grey has spent little of her married life in London, she has followed the fortunes of her husband in his governorship of Rhodesia, and when in England Lord and Lady Grey care little for town amusements. They have just returned to Howick house, their splendid estate in Northumberland, where they will remain until they leave for their new Canadian home. Earl Grey is the lord lieutenant of Northumberland and Howick house is a beautiful Grecian dwelling built on the Northumbrian seashore. Although Lady Grey entertains very little in her own home in London, she occasionally acts as hostess to her brother, Captain Holford, who is the equerry-in-waiting to the king and the owner of Dorchester house, famous for its wonderful picture gallery.

Lady Grey is a woman of middle age, of fine appearance. She is widely cultured and is a brilliant musician. Her time has been chiefly devoted to a study of the arts. But she brings to her new position in Canada a wide knowledge of life and a reputation for unusual gifts in mind and character.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the old-fashioned remedy and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure, and it made you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

"The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect."

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small, chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers," will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

At the First Presbyterian church, Dr. William Caldwell will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Doctrine of Election in the New Light" at 8 p. m. on "A Life With or Without Power." Strangers and students are especially invited. A cordial welcome to all. Y. P. S. 7:15 p. m.

Gillon, will preach today at 11 a. m. theme, "The Cross of Glory;" at night there will not be services at the church, but the congregation will worship at the tent on Evans avenue. Rear Admiral Nikolaevitch Wirren, in command of Russia's shattered fleet since the fatal sortie in August.

the plumbers' union and the two contracts drawn up by each side respectively as printed in The Telegram of yesterday were thoroughly discussed. As stated the clauses in which differences exist are the first and second referring to the increase of wages and the number of jobbers and apprentices. The conference of yesterday afternoon resulted in no definite decision one way or the other, although after the meeting one of the employing firms stated that there was a bright outlook for a successful settlement without trouble.

Following the conference, a special meeting of the plumbers' union was called for this afternoon at the Labor Temple and it is likely that definite action will be taken at that time.

Preparations are now under way for the holding of a second large cotton sale by the members of the Farmers' Union along the lines of the sale recently held at Arlington.

An effort will be made to hold this sale about October 20 and it is predicted it will be larger in scope than the former offering as plans are being made to have it include cotton not only from this county but also from Wise and Parker counties.

Various places will be asked to bid for the sale. Merchants in this city and the Board of Trade have already been approached on the subject.

The official call for the second regular meeting of the Central Farmers' Union of Tarrant county, to be held at Gibson, October 7, has been issued by President McMeans. The session will be held at 10 a. m. and the regular business meeting will be followed by public speaking in the evening.

A meeting of the Teamdrivers' Union will be held at the Labor Temple this morning at 9 o'clock at which a plan will be considered for further organizing the drivers in this city.

The regular meeting of the Carpenters and Joiners will be superseded next Wednesday night by an entertainment under the auspices of the organization. A committee of the carpenters, consisting of Messrs. Patterson, Beze and Dalton visited the Dallas union during the week to arrange for more harmonious working rules.

A FINE OPENING

Remodeled and Refurnished Store Which Is One of Prettiest in the City, Is to Be Thrown Open to the Public

RHODES - HAVERTY CO.

Cordial Invitation Extended to the Public to Call and See the New Displays—Management Announces a Souvenir Sale for the First Day

Formal opening of the improved and remodeled store of the Rhodes-Haverty company at Third and Houston streets will take place tomorrow, extensive arrangements having been made by the company for the event.

The building itself, carpeted throughout, since the renovations made, presents one of the most complete furniture emporiums in the city. The Rhodes-Haverty Manager Hathaway announces they will carry exclusively, makes it a great center for the higher class of trade.

In the recent improvements special care was directed to the artistic effect secured, as well as the securing of ample, well lighted floor space, and the entire interior, from the artistic carriage canopy of stained glass to the balconies forming the second floor presents a pleasing picture to the eye. The show window spaces have been so arranged that the full light from the entire glass front of the building is thrown unobscured on the sales floors, which are large and roomy.

For the opening tomorrow several special features have been arranged by the company. In the first place, the present beauty of the building will be enhanced by the judicious use of palms and potted plants, in addition to the foliage always found in this establishment. Music throughout the day has been arranged for. Professor Mueller's five-piece orchestra has been engaged and will give three concerts during the day. The first will commence at 10 a. m. and continue until noon. At 3 o'clock the afternoon concert will be begun, lasting until 6 p. m. A concert will also be given in the evening from 8 to 10. The business hours observed on the opening day will be from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m.

In preparing for the opening, Manager Hathaway has had in mind purchasing as well as social features and has arranged for a special souvenir sale for the first day. The souvenirs will consist of a fine collection of tabacrets, foot stools of various patterns and many pretty rug designs. Mr. Trice, who has charge of the window decorations, which have attracted so much attention on Houston street, is preparing a special window display of the souvenirs, which will be completed some time today.

Although naturally taking pride in the store rooms now opened to the public, Manager Hathaway announces that still further improvements are contemplated and that the $5,000 expenditure recently made upon the property will be followed in the spring by the addition of several stories to the building to accommodate the constantly increasing trade.

The public is patronizing the company well and appreciates efforts to place the highest class of artistic furniture upon the market in this city and encouraging them in their collection of fine rugs, mission chairs and other pieces of furniture of the present vogue. In addition to these efforts, the company has devoted a department to a complete display of handsome office furniture and desks, which add so much to the general atmosphere of reliability and position of an enterprise.

In view of the approaching winter season a large part of the opening display will be devoted to kitchen stoves, which begin to supplant the gas cookers at this time of the year, and a fine collection of Garland stoves of all sizes and patterns have been arranged on the west facade of the first floor salesroom.

A MONEY TRAP ON MAIN STREET IS DOING WELL

"Bounced" When He Endeavors to Warn a Country Boy Against a Game

While a Telegram reporter was walking up Main street Thursday morning, he was attracted by a crowd in a place and stopped a moment to look on. The Telegram man had often heard of country boys being "skinned" of their money, but had never seen the system in actual operation.

A country lad stood before a gaming apparatus, and paying 25 cents for two chances proceeded to drop a small marble into a slot. The marble dropped through a series of slots and came out on a worthless cigar—this was the country lad's winning. There were other things beside the cigar on the board, however. On every other square was a knife, marked $1. If the ball rolled on this the man could either take the knife or one dollar—the knife simply covered up the apparent gambling. The country lad threw several times but his marble always came out on the worthless cigar, just missing the dollar.

The Telegram man, seeing the rustic thus cheated, for the machine was so arranged that winning was impossible, nudged the country man and whispered: "Don't you see you are being robbed?" Immediately a large, uncouth looking individual, who combined confederate and "bouncer," approached the newspaper

NEVER WORRIES IS NOW FUSION

A Successful Business Man of Fort Worth Says He Has Accumulated Wealth Because He Does Not Trouble

CAME HERE YEARS AGO TWENTY POP SPEAKERS

Thos. M. Huff Located in Fort Worth With Only Sixty-five Dollars and He Has Since Built More Homes Than Any Man in the City

A type of the successful Fort Worth business man, and one who believes the advancement of the city means his own advancement, is presented in the career in this city of Thomas M. Huff, who immigrating to Texas and starting life here with a total capital of $65, has amassed a comfortable fortune and embarked recently in one of the greatest private undertakings of the vicinity, a large retail lumber yard.

Mr. Huff came to this city in April of 1885 from Chattanooga, Tenn., landing at the Texas and Pacific station, as he incidentally puts it, with $65 in his pocket. Accompanying him were his wife and five children. A quick survey of the city convinced him of its future possibilities and with characteristic energy he at once began looking around for a promising opening. In a few days he contracted for the erection of three small dwellings, and by careful management succeeded in completing the transaction with a balance in his favor of $115.

With this capital he at once engaged in the cattle trading business and succeeded so well in it that at the end of the year he was able to balance his accounts and figure a profit to himself of about $1,500. He then felt the eventual value of Fort Worth realty, and at once became engaged in building, selling, buying, renting and exchanging at every favorable opportunity, continuing along this line until the present time. When the realty values, which had been previously unwarrantably inflated, came he at once began purchasing property in all sections at reasonable prices and frankly admits that the basis of his present fortunes was laid in this way.

When Mr. Huff can be induced to talk of himself he will say that the characteristic which he holds as most directly responsible for his success is his utter freedom from worry. "I never let anything deprive me of a full night's sleep, and when I have something particularly difficult on hand, I make it a point to go to bed several hours earlier the night before and get up the next morning thoroughly rested and tackle it."

"Yes, I believe I have built more homes than any other man in Fort Worth in comparison to my financial ability," admitted Mr. Huff in response to an inquiry as to his part in the building up of the city to its present condition as a city of homes. "The value of property in price from a few hundred dollars to $3,000, but the greater part built by me have been of the smaller sort, adapted to be the homes of working people."

Mr. Huff, who boasts that neither he nor his wife have ever had a sick day in their lives, is the father of thirteen children and retains the same hearty, open manner which characterized him upon his arrival in the city. His statement of freedom from sickness he unifies with a lay-up of several weeks with a broken leg. "Mr. Huff announces that he will continue his building work in the lumber yard. This yard is a roomy one, occupying a space of 200x220 feet on Railroad avenue, near the Frisco freight depot, easily accessible to lumber shipments. A frame office building has been erected at the yard, which at present contains about $9,000 worth of lumber of all sorts. A large supply of sashes and doors and general building materials are carried at the yards."

Interesting Facts

For Nearly Every Man, Woman or Child.

A short time ago we published an article recommending to our readers the new discovery for the cure of Dyspepsia, called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the claims then made regarding the wonderful curative properties of the remedy have been abundantly sustained by the facts. People who were cautious about trying new remedies advertised in the newspapers and were finally induced to give Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial were surprised and delighted at the results. In many cases a single package costing but 50 cents at any drug store made a complete cure and in every instance the most beneficial results were reported. From a hundred or more received we have spaced and published only a few of the latest, but assure our readers we receive so many commendatory letters that we shall publish each week a fresh list of genuine, unsolicited testimonials and never publish the same one twice.

From James Yemmelser, La Crosse, Wis.: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are doing me more good than anything I ever tried and I was so pleased at results that I gave away several boxes to my friends who have also had the same benefits.

From Jacob Anthony, Portmurray, New Jersey: I have taken Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with the best results. I had Dyspepsia for 6 years and had taken a great deal of medicine, but the Tablets seem to take right a hold and I feel good. I am a farmer and lime burner and I heartily recommend to everyone who has any trouble with his stomach, to use these Tablets.

From Mrs. M. K. West, Preston, Minn.: I have received surprisingly good effects from using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I gave one-half of my last box to a friend who also suffered from indigestion and she had the same good results.

From Mrs. Agnes K. Raiston, Cadillac, Mich.: I have been taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I am very much better, and feel very grateful for the great benefit I have received in so short a time.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a certain cure for all forms of indigestion. They are not claimed to be a cure-all, but are prepared for stomach troubles and are recommended to all persons where recommended them to all persons suffering from Nervous Dyspepsia, sour or acid stomach, heartburn, bloating or wind on stomach and similar disorders.

CANDIDATES FOR THE CITY OFFICES ARE ACTIVE

R. E. L. Roy Is to Be Assistant to County Attorney McLean and Two Attorneys Want His City Court Job

As the time approaches for the appointment of an assistant city attorney by the city council, increased interest is noticeable among those directly interested in the matter.

Thus far two candidates have been announced—Virgil Parker, son of Judge W.

R. Parker, alderman, and Harry C. Mart, who has been associated for years in the practice of law with R. C. Bowlin and Colonel R. M. Wynne.

The appointment will be made by the council about the middle of November, at which time Assistant City Attorney Roy ceases to exercise the functions of that office. It is learned Mr. Roy will become one of Prosecuting Attorney McLean's assistants.

There is also considerable interest attached to the race of B. M. Harding, who is city democratic executive committee man from the Second ward, to succeed John T. Montgomery, the present city secretary.

The friends of Mr. Harding are zealously working for his appointment. While this interest is being manifested in Mr. Harding's behalf, the friends of the present incumbent are equally as energetic in securing Mr. Montgomery's reappointment.

THE GRAIN CROP

E. G. Rall Has Returned From a Swing Around the Circle and Talks of Conditions Affecting the Wheat Yield

E. G. Rall, one of the leading grain dealers of this city, has just returned from a trip through a large portion of Oklahoma. He was seen by a representative of this paper and stated that the millers of that country are paying good prices for local wheat. They are encouraging the farmers to hold, realizing the shortage of the crop. The large percentage of low grade wheat being held is interfering with the delivery of contract wheat, as in many instances it cannot be applied on sales of No. 2 or milling wheat.

Mr. Rall says he found a large percentage of the good wheat still in the hands of the farmers, and none of them are willing to part with it for less than $1. The cost of transporting wheat from Oklahoma to Texas is 14 to 16 cents, and add this to the original cost of the wheat and it will make the prices in Texas readily from $1.14 to $1.15 per bushel.

He said: "Flour prices do not seem to justify the high price of wheat according to the millers' version and there is not a very active demand for wheat at these advanced prices. The consensus of opinion is that millers will have to pay to bring out the wheat, and I would not be surprised to see $1.25 wheat within the next sixty days. However, the price of wheat may go down from what it is now—such things have happened."

"The corn crop in Oklahoma and the Indian Territory is pretty good and bringing good prices, selling at from 35 to 40 cents in the ear, from farmers' wagons. Shipped to Texas the corn from these two countries would be worth from 50 to 55 cents per bushel. There is not much shipment of corn to Texas points as yet, and there may not be, as Texas has a very good corn crop itself, which looks as though the local demand will be supplied without going outside the state. Texas farmers are not disposed to take less than 40 cents for their corn in the only and physicians and druggists everywhere recommended them to all persons suffering from Nervous Dyspepsia, sour or acid stomach, heartburn, bloating or wind on stomach and similar disorders.

Monday Matinee and Night--Kersands Minstrels. Wednesday--Staters Theater Company. Thursday Matinee and Night--Staters Theater Company. Friday Matinee and Night--Staters Theater Company. Saturday Matinee and Night--Staters Theater Company.

With "Darkest Russia" for two nights and a matinee, Mason and Mason one night and Jane Corcoran and Andrew Robson in "Pretty Peggy," the week has been enjoyable in the amusement line. Next week starts off with Kersand's minstrels, and following it, with a dark night in between, will be an engagement by the Staters Theater Company for four nights and a matinee.

The past week closed with "Pretty Peggy." After seeing "Pretty Peggy" one may well wonder with Augustin Daly why none of the discerning writers of fiction had heretofore thought of taking Peg Woffington in her early life for a theme. Frances Aymar Mathews has given us the young Peggy, beginning with her entry into that London life in which her beauty and wit and genius gave her such enduring triumphs that now, 150 years later, she still lives in history and fiction, and on the mimic stage she adorned. It is not the same Peggy that we have, older and wiser and harder, perhaps, but still with a warm spot in her heart in masks and faces, and yet, although it may appear heretical to place the latter stage classic in second place, the new play concerning handsome Peg is more dramatic, more tense, of more unflinching interest than the old.

The play is simply beautiful. From the time the curtain goes up on that quaint circus booth of the olden time, true to the life, even to the engagement of a contortionist to imbue it with realism and the "Marcearonis" of the day making love to the performers, to the last scene, that of the Forest of Arden, with Peg trying to speak the epilogue to "As You Like It" and collapsing mentally and physically (an actual episode in Peg's career) in the midst of it, the interest is enchanted.

As for the new star, Miss Jane Corcoran, her work was really admirable throughout. She has caught the true spirit of the role, and whether as the saucy peoplyte with that delicious Irish brogue, always ready with a witty answer, as the woman scolding the man who lied to her and dismissing him on what was to have been her wedding day; or as the broose-hearted victim of her misplaced love, the target of her enemies, bravely striving to go on with her lines with trembling limbs and falling memory, she is at every point equal to the requirements of the role, and one hardly knows wherein her work is the most artistic. Her audience was most enthusiastic, so much so that it paid her the rare compliment of a double curtain call after the last act.

Her support is excellent. As Davy Garrick, Andrew Robson portrays the great actor not as actor, for the lines give no such opportunity, but as lover and lady killer, and he most ably acts as foil to Miss Corcoran. A startling and intensely dramatic episode occurs in the last act. There is a plot to disgrace Peg and cause her, to fall. Her rival seats herself in the box with Garrick, the Prince of Wales being in the opposite box. (These are seated in the actual box seats in the theater.) The plot involves the crying down of a French dancer with cries of "Treason!" in an effort to break up the play, and half a dozen of the performers, in court costumes, enter the theater from the rear, yelling "Treason!" and denouncing the actors from the auditorium. The effect can hardly be well described.

KERSANDS MINSTRELS

Kersands Minstrels come to Greenwall's opera house Monday matinee and night, October 3.

Kersands has surrounded himself with a company of men of rare ability, evidently selecting the best material afforded by the negro minstrelsy of this country. The show is admirably staged and the costumes a decided improvement over the conventional variety. Kersands himself is the center of attraction. He is as mirth provoking and fun loving as ever and his work is enthusiastically applauded. The first part of the performance is especially praiseworthy. Kersands has some excellent balladists and the songs sung are new and catchy.

No improvement of the specialties could be suggested. There is a total absence of suggestiveness in the numbers succeeding the first part and all of the performers are first class. The work of Craig, the contortionist, is worthy of special mention. He is an acrobat of rare ability and contributes materially to the success of the performance.

STATERS THEATER COMPANY

Staters Madison Square Theater Company is coming for four nights and a matinee, commencing Wednesday night,

October 3. There is plenty of entertainment on the boards for the patrons at Greenwall's opera house. This is one of the very best popular-priced companies on the road. Miss Leona Staters, the leading lady, is mentioned by the critics of the west as the most successful emotional actress playing at popular prices and her rendition of the leading role in some of the heavier dramas is said to rival the recalled stars of greater magnitudes. The repertoire of plays include some of the best known comedy-dramas and emotional plays of the day, and are played in a manner that arouses the interest of all who see them.

"Never mind what I tell you," said Staters' agent to The Telegram, "just wait until our company comes here. That is for you to find out how good it is and why we are so popular with all theatergoers. I don't suppose you would believe half I told you if I were to say just what I think of the company. So I just say nothing and leave you to judge for yourself after you have enjoyed one or two of our plays."

The Staters Theater Company comes to Greenwall's opera house for four nights and three matinee engagements, commencing Wednesday night, October 3. Ladies are to be admitted free on Wednesday night, when accompanied by a person with a paid 30-cent ticket, if purchased before 6 p. m. Wednesday.

The Dallas News had the following to say:

"A crowded house greeted Staters Madison Square Theater Company when it opened its engagement here last night and before the close of the first act standing room was being sold. The company has been considerably strengthened since its last appearance here and its presentation of 'Man's Devotion,' an interesting society drama, was thoroughly enjoyed."

Matinees on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"San Toy," the Chinese musical play which scored such a far-reaching success when it was first produced in this country at Daly's theater, New York City, will be exploited this season by John C. Powers in his original role of "Li," surrounded by several other members of the company that first sang it in this country.

might have been an actual life story. The characters are taken from life and the pretty tale is but the simple recital of chapters in a life's history.

A sunny, flowery garden with a dozen pretty maidens, wearing the quaint, graceful costumes of Colonial days and singing "Swing, Swing, My Pretty One, Swing," to the strains of sweet, seductive music, is the first picture in "Dolly Varden," the brightest and daintiest comic opera ever presented on the American stage.

There has been an epidemic of matrimony in Tim Murphy's company. A part of the gaiety in connection with celebrating the success of "Two Men and a Girl" was the wedding of Miss Grace Houston and Claude Stafford. In New Orleans Mr. Murphy was informed that Louise Dinsmore and John D. Oliver had entered into a matrimonial contract. Mr. Murphy bought some white ribbons for the trunks and entrusted it to his property man, but that individual proved physically or morally weak. He was induced to part with it to a persuasive wag and when the star entered his dressing room in Houston he found his trunk fairly swathed in white satin.

Manager Greenwall concluded arrangements yesterday for the appearance here of Wilson Barrett's famous drama, "The Sign of the Cross," which until recently has never been seen in the smaller cities, although the play has had most extraordinary success in this country for the past eight years.

BRUISED MEAT

Government Inspectors and the City Physician of North Fort Worth Are Conducting Important Investigation

THEY TRACED A CARCASS

Is Found, Killed and Skinned, But No Proof Could Be Had That It Had Been Offered for Sale—Something of the Method Followed

Despite rigid government law regulating the sale of diseased or bruised meat, it has just come to light in North Fort Worth that the cattle bruised and injured in shipment to the Fort Worth market, are being bought by certain parties to be disposed of later as good beef. The rejection of unfit stock is made at the scales, and the commission men have the power to sell these cattle to any one unless it is preferred to sell them to the packing plants subject to a post-mortem examination. Whenever such stock is sold outside the packing plants, the government inspectors caution the buyers that such cattle must not be killed for meat, and they make every effort to prevent butchers buying them. However, now and then a butcher will exercise his American privilege of buying what he can with the money he has on hand, and it was in this way that some of the damaged cattle have been taken to the killing pens of individuals.

Government inspectors at the stock yards rigidly examine every load of cattle before they are allowed to enter the pens. These rejected animals are either killed in the plants—subject to a post-mortem examination by the government—or they are allowed to go out as stockers for recovery later on. The purpose of the inspection is to see that these animals are not killed by outside parties and put on the local market as food, and in this end government inspectors co-operate with city authorities depending upon local regulations to prevent it. The cattle injured in shipment are known as "downers."

The "downers" or injured and sick cattle were removed from the stock yards but there was no definite proof that they were being butchered and sold as good beef. A discovery was made in North Fort Worth yesterday which has led to an investigation. In a North Fort Worth establishment a carcass was found, killed and dressed and hanging up as if ready to be cut up and delivered to the public. The inspectors identified it as rejected. No arrest could be made for there was no direct proof that the owner of the place intended to sell the beef, but nevertheless there was the "downer" skinned and dressed—the officers naturally drew their own conclusions.

The Telegram communicated with Dr. Paxson, the United States cattle inspector, but he declined to give out any information in regard to the matter for publication. Dr. Paxson did not deny that such an investigation was being made, and that he was working in conjunction with the city authorities of North Fort Worth. Dr. Gilmour, city physician of North Fort Worth, admitted also that an investigation was being made, but he would not talk for publication on the matter. The packing houses co-operate with the inspectors in looking out for the "downers," and in every case they lend every assistance in examinations, and diseased animals or those bruised which are rejected are not put on the market by the big packers. The complaint now is against small concerns or individuals, and just who these parties are The Telegram has not been able to learn.

ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE.

TOKYO, Oct. 1.—Discussing the Anglo-Japanese alliance, dated January 30, 1902, the Japi-Shimpo, one of the leading newspapers of this city, strongly urges revision. It suggests the removal of the restrictions in the treaty, as they are no longer advisable, and suggests making the alliance unconditional. Such a course it says would be highly beneficial, both to Great Britain and Japanese people. Large additions have already been made to the forces available for active service by the recent conscription regulation. It is now abundantly manifest that Russia will never be able to wear out Japan by numerical military preponderance.

A BOON TO SICK WOMEN

After four years of vain endeavor to regain her health by taking other medicines, Miss Beatrice Wood was made a perfectly well woman by taking Wine of Cardui, the most successful menstrual regulator and woman's tonic known to the science of medicine.

She took Wine of Cardui, and that is what we advise you to do.

Will you follow her example and be a well woman?

We could show you letters from 10,000 other women who praise Wine of Cardui as she praises it.

WINE OF CARDUI

No. 14 Main St., PENSACOLA, FLA., Nov. 20, 1903.

After four years of vain endeavor to regain my health I became acquainted with the merits of Wine of Cardui, through personal experience, and found it so excellent that I feel it due to you to acknowledge the fact. I had been suffering with irregular, scanty and most painful menstruation, and when the periods occurred I was unable to be up and had to stay in bed for a day or two. Nothing I took helped me until I used Wine of Cardui. It proved to be just what I needed. Within two months the serious pain had disappeared, my headaches were less frequent and not so severe and felt very much encouraged, but had to use your medicine for four months before I was entirely well and regular. I have enjoyed the finest health now for eighteen months. I am very regular and have no more pains and cat and sleep as well as could be desired. I feel your medicine is a boon to sick women, and most heartily do I recommend it to those suffering as I did, feeling sure that they will be cured if they will let other medicines alone and take Wine of Cardui.

AN ELEVATOR IS BADLY WANTED BY MANY

Court Officials and the General Public Very Tired of Long Climbs to the Top Floor of the Courthouse

A Telegram reporter yesterday interviewed many citizens as to the necessity for an elevator in the courthouse. It is learned that everything suggests an early solution of this question. There are many reasons why an elevator should be put into service in this temple of justice, the finest in the south. It is not infrequently that visitors from other sections of the country drop in at the court house for the purpose of looking through that imposing structure, but when they discover there is no elevator and it is either climb three or four long flights of stairs, whether willingly or not, in obedience to the command of the state.

Secretary Paddock promptly replied to the inquiries and it is probable that something definite may result from the investigation made.

DALLAS, TEXAS

The football season is now fairly under way and shows the remarkable feature of the three strongest eastern teams all developing almost entirely green teams. Harvard is the heaviest loser, having only two old men back. Yale loses half of her old team and last year's champions at Princeton have a team minus five line men, one of two quarter backs and a half back. However, the Tigers' chances are far from dismal, as the presence of a large number of last year's substitutes and several very promising freshmen have made a strong team almost a certainty. While not as confident as last year, the New Jerseyites are looking for another victory over Yale, and still another championship banner for the trophy hall. The team, as it now is, is heavier than that of last year, as the new freshmen are very stout.

CRIMSON PROSPECTS
Rarely in the history of football at Harvard has a season started under more discouraging circumstances than the one just opened. When college closed in June it was stated a number of last year's team would return, but up to date only three regulars have materialized, and the incoming class does not give any special promise of brilliant men.
Captain Hurley, right half back, "Don" Nichols, left half back, and "Ted" Meier, left tackle, are now in harness, but the others are on the absent list. Of the substitutes on the 1903 eleven Derby and Scouler, tackles, Mills, Harrison and Hanley, backs, and Carriek and Wilder, guards, have reported.
Coach Wrightington is not discouraged, as he feels confident that there will be some glorious fighting for the eight vacant positions.
Harvard suffered a severe loss when Lemoyne announced that he would not return to the gridiron this season. Last year the big freshman got his "H" in football and track athletics. Lemoyne was counted on to play left guard this fall and also to do the punting, but now Harvard is confronted with the proposition of making two new guards, a center, two ends, a tackle, a quarter back and a full back.

AT NEW HAVEN
The Yale eleven has just entered the scrimmage season, after the first week of practice, which has closed with drill in only the rudiments of play. Tom Shevlin, the veteran Yale end, summarized Yale's efforts during the week as follows: "We never do anything the first week but pass, fall on the ball, and catch kicks. Out west they begin by trying to see how many plays they can make in a minute. At the University of Minnesota, where I coached two weeks, they rolled off 148."
Yale's coaches have been working out experiments, trying out men in several positions, and leaving it an open question for two or three weeks which place the men will be finally fitted into.
Captain Hogan said that not nearly enough heavy men were at hand; that if accidents should play their usual mischief with some of the good men the team would go crippled this fall, and that the outlook for a strong second eleven was not as bright as was desired.
The weights of the heavyweights of the squad are: Boraback, 225; Kinney, 221; Cartwright, 219; Smith, 203; Erwin, 198; Hogan, 189; Shevlin, 191.

FOOTBALL NOTES
The season is on again.
Pennsylvania practically has its first eleven already picked, and is two weeks ahead of all the other big varsity teams.
The new umpire's horns, which will make a noise quite distinguishable from the referee's whistles, sound like the brass tooters used on sixty-horsepower automobiles.

There are few new wrinkles in football armor this year, and fewer head guards will be worn. This will be welcome news to the spectators, to whom headgear made all players look alike.
Ely, who was quarter back at Yale six years ago, and who had two ribs broken when crashing lightly made his famous tackle at New Haven in the rain, has succeeded ex-Captain O'Neill as head coach at Williams.
Dave Fultz, New York's center fielder, will not coach any college football team this year, but will give what time he can afford from his practice to assisting the coaches at the University of the City of New York.
Stands to accommodate 21,000 people are being planned for the football field at the New York American League ball park, which has been leased to the Columbia kickers after October 8.

Edwards of Princeton, McClug of Lehigh and Whiting of Cornell will be the officials for the Harvard-Yale game at New Haven.
Paul Dashiell is in supreme control at Annapolis. This is the first step in a new system at the naval academy. The team will be coached according to Yale methods.
Louis Mang broke the world's record of 35 feet 8 3/4 inches for three standing jumps, held by Ray Emry of the New York Athletic Club, by 1 1/4 inches, at the Mohawk and Mott Haven Athletic Club's games at Mott Haven.

Up to a week ago Monday the Boston American league club had played to 539,454 persons on its own grounds, and to a total of 917,232 on all games played, making it practically certain the world's champions will draw a total attendance of more than a million for the season. The figures are based on the club's books, not on estimates.
Cleveland and St. Louis played a fifteen inning 5 to 4 game in two hours and eight minutes in the second game scheduled for the day before darkness stopped play. This is the principal reason why the foul strike is popular in the National league.
John T. Brush is being forced into some desperate methods by his fears that his New York club may lose its practice with the Gotham public by playing a post-season series for the world's championship and getting kicked. In spite of his efforts to distract public attention by attacks on the honesty of the American league, the public's attention was not distracted. Then he put out a feeler in the shape of a proposed globe riding trip for the Gators. But the New York players revolted, and were sustained by the press and the public. McGraw's men insisted that they would play a post-season series with the American league champions, even if they had to wait until their contracts expired and play all the games on wanted the "Gators" series.
The players would bring them in the form of a percentage of the gate receipts. They cared nothing for prestige or what it would mean to Brush's receipts next year if they lost the series.

MINNESOTA FEELS LOSS OF HER STARS

ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 1.—The fact that the University of Minnesota is located so far north is one of her strongest football assets. The cool weather allows the varsity candidates to get into the pink of condition by the end of September.
While the Gophers are already well advanced in practice games, the majority of the big eastern and western schools have yet to line up for their first scrimmage against anything but scrubs.
Also, this fact enables the critics to form conclusions as to the strength of the Gophers. Dr. Williams will have a team this year much inferior to that which played last season. Such men as Rogers, Warren and Schacht are not to be found among the 40 or 50 candidates fighting for positions on the team. The weight is in evidence, but the fighting blood of the Indian and German has not displayed itself.
Minnesota's second game was played last Saturday against the University of Dakota, and although the varsity rolled up the largest score of the season, the game brought out some weak points that must not remain if Minnesota hopes to win the championship of the West this year.
Tschabold at left tackle, and Ricker at left guard, weigh over the 200 mark, but were the weak points in the line, yards through these men no less than seven times. They played high and displayed poor football sense.
The Minnesota ends are not up to expectations. Marshall and Luce, the two men who are playing the positions, regularly show tendency to fumble, but run fairly well with the ball.

The Gophers are using practically the same system of offense this year that proved so successful against the University of Michigan. A tackle is brought back and one of the halves takes his place in the line. The attack is made just inside of the end. The play is practically the same as that used by Harvard when the Crimson had Cutts to lead the offense.
The Gophers are beginning to plan for the game with University of Nebraska. The Cornhuskers, judging from their score in Saturday's game, will be one of the strongest propositions Dr. Williams' men will tackle this year.

THE YALE ELEVEN NEEDS SOME DRILLING

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Oct. 1.—After a week of practice the Yale football squad has given the coaches and Captain Hogan a line on the men. Despite the annual hard-luck cry of Mike Murphy, it is evident that an abundance of heavy raw material for every position save that of a kicking halfback is on hand. But it needs and lots of it to make a varsity team. If Hogan makes good his threat to bar men deficient in studies, there will be enough to form two elevens which will be enough any Yale is scheduled to meet before November, save Holy Cross.

Drake's Peppermint Wine.
A trial bottle is sent prepaid, free of charge, to every reader of this paper who has chronic Stomach Trouble, Flatulency, Constipation, Catarrh of the Mucous Membrane, Congestion of Liver or Kidneys, or Inflammation of Bladder, or any of the nervous system, and promotes a larger, purer and richer blood supply. Seventy-five cents at Drug Stores for a large bottle, usual dollar size, but every reader of this paper who needs medicine will be supplied with a trial bottle of Drake's Peppermint Wine, free of charge, by writing for it to Drake Peppermint Wine Co., Chicago, Ill.

The varsity and second elevens have been up daily. The coaches kept drilling the men in the method of play and obedience to signals. In order to get team work instead of individual play, Yale's plan will be to have the groundwork for the season. Fancy tricks will not be needed, because the coaches, owing to the weight of the elevens. Although Tom Shevlin has not been out, he is expected to come up to varsity form as a plunger fullback. In fact, he has been in the line for several years ago.

An idea of Yale's material is shown by the following array of beef: Five veteran men, Horaback, Kinney, Tripplands, and Bloomer, all over 220. Adover, Cates, who captured the Phillips' end, two years ago, will play an expert team. Stillman at right end, the former Amherst halfback, show up well on the scrum, and with Shevlin backwell is at quarterback. The scrum is all of good material, but as has been said, will have to be drilled thoroughly. Bowman, seen playing at fullback chief, has a count of kicking and to give on the scrum. He is a shoulder dislocation, as has been reported. He will be retired permanently. He is too valuable to the nine to be without football.

Yale's great weakness will be the lack of good punters, and unless a fine one comes among the men who reported yesterday on the opening of college, this handicap will likely play an important part in the games with the big fast elevens, blessed with good kickers. At present there is not a man who can lift the ball far enough to make the end run 40 yards, and 50 yards should be the minimum.

CONFIDENCE EXPRESSED BY CRIMSON PLAYERS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Oct. 1.—John Harvard has buckled on his armor and gears while the orchestra is rehearsing a dirge which will be respectfully dedicated to Eli Yale. The Crimson outfit has cut out the hard luck tales and every man trying for the eleven believes he can win for his team. Confidence is at high ebb.

The reason is faith in Captain Hurley and Head Coach Wrightington. Hurley is one of his men and they realize it. Implicitly they obey him. Wrightington is Hurley's boss. They get along well and are rapidly licking the men into shape. "Scotty" McMaisters, the veteran trainer, says the "parritch" is getting in its delicate work, and sees that the candles are snuffed at 10 p. m.

The assistant manager of the team is a star. He is Harold Kissam Vanderbilt, son of William K., and rejoices in the sobriquet of "Mike." He is showing his pedigree and is a hog for work. His brains in practical finance are galling to some of those less favored by the fickle goddess. He keeps tab on everything, even to shoe laces, while his score book is a wonder. He has invented a way for recording individual play and noting manifestation of faults requiring correction. He will be manager next year and is well liked by the men. He is thoroughly democratic and nothing of a star.

For some days the lineup has been: Hagden, 188; left end, Meier, 186; left tackle, Meier, 215; Bell, 215; Fadden, 200; guards, Cunniff, 233; center; Squibbs, 202; right tackle; Montgomery, 175; right end; Noyes, 151; quarterback; Hurley, 165; Means, 179; Nesmith, 166; Guild, 165; and the line. They have been alternated in the back positions.

Three physicians have been in attendance every day, but so faithfully have the men trained and so hard were they when they reported, that the ambulance calls have been very few.

Some time was spent in introducing the men to the dummy and all agree that acquaintance is a happy one, although dummeys is hard to get acquainted with. The men who are in the line are as follows:

A three-foot ladder, set on edge three feet from the dummy, was the dead line. The novices were started for the ladder and the run down over the obstruction, tackled the dummy by its neck extremities and played air ship for two yards. This follow-your-leader goes on daily. Cunniff, with his 233 pounds, came in contact with another earth, missing the proper level. Cunniff is game. He needs must be, because McMaisters is harping him and Hurley is running him to reduce his weight to the proper level. The absence of Le Moyne is not such a low as was feared. He dislikes training and is a hard man to get along with, so Hurley is just as well pleased.

Montgomery and Mills, the veterans, are expected to take care of the end positions. Big Bill Hurley is in good condition and will doubtless be fullback. For halfbacks the choice has a wide range. Hurley and Nichols hark in the regular glow. Others who are trying for positions are Lobbe, Guild, a nifty young giant; Osborne, huge Britton, who came from Oxford to finish his education; Fred Leserberg, who is finally out for practice, and who is the varsity pole autter.

Hugh Kernan has been under the tutelage of his famous brother Bob, skipper of the 1902 eleven, and reported with his head swarmed full of football lore and a fine physical condition.

The coaches have themselves as teased with the way the men have improved, and it is expected that after Saturday's game the 1904 eleven will be chosen.

WARNER HAS WORKED WONDERS AT CORNELL

THAI, N. Y., Oct. 1.—In one week of football practice at Cornell, "Pop" Warner has accomplished more than his predecessors in the last two seasons did in a month. The way Warner has handled the men on the gridiron shows skill never before seen at Cornell. From the first day of practice Warner has been the science of football.

Calling on hundreds of dummy tacklings, the field, and running about the field, Warner has been away with the men, and they were forced into the formation, and set to work. He has already a set of plays on the gridiron, which has been developed. Cornell eleven, which has been developed to give Cornell an all-around team of two or three heavy winners. Warner has devoted his attention to the backfield; now he will turn it to the line.

The Cornell line is worrying Warner. One freshman of line caliber has been developed. Cook from the university preparatory school at Cleveland, who has a reputation as an all-around athlete as a football player. He was scheduled for Princeton and the Tigers had announced his coming, when he appeared on Percy field and joined the squad. Cook is being played at guard and has done remarkable work. The practice games. Other heavy freshmen are expected to report upon the opening of the university which does not occur until the last day of September.

In the Cornell backfield Warner thinks that he has discovered a freshman magnitude in Birmingham, who is playing from Merceburg academy. Birmingham is a right halfback. Birmingham is a friend of Rice, the good player in the first year, but every one on Cornell backfield can play all around the back. Birmingham's position is Merceburg eleven, but he has shifted to right so Rice might have his old position. The pair make the fastest halfbacks Cornell ever had. Birmingham has shown wonderful ability at drop kicking. Time and again in the practice games he has dropped perfect goals from difficult angles and long distances. He will undoubtedly do the kicking for the eleven, and it remains only to be seen whether he can maintain his accuracy in actual contest, to make him the coming kicker on the college gridiron.

Captain Lynch is holding the quarterback position and running the team well. For the backfield position there are three good candidates—Halliday, of last year's eleven; Dewey, who was ineligible last year; and Cox, a promising freshman from Washington, D. C. With any one of these in the fullback berth, Warner believes he has a star backfield. If he is equally successful with the line, the Ithacans believe that they will again be able to twist the Tiger's tail and pull the wool over the Quaker's eyes.

RESULTS OF GAMES PLAYED YESTERDAY

IOWA STATE 88, CORNELL 0
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 1.—The Iowa State University walked away from the Cornell college eleven at Iowa City today, running up a total of 88 points to nothing. Fifty-eight points were scored in the first half and Coach Chalmers used half a dozen substitutes in the latter division of the game.

MICHIGAN 33, CASE 0
ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 1.—Michigan put over Case today to the tune of 33 to 0. Michigan's play was very uneven. The interference was imperfect and frequently the runner was downed for a loss. Heston was the bright star for Michigan, contributing several twenty-five yard runs and one sensational run of eighty yards for a touchdown. Michigan's goal was never in danger.

CHICAGO 54, INDIANA 0
CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Outplayed from the whistle to the horn, Indiana's team was demoralized by the University of Chicago's team by a score of 54 to 0, on Marshall Field this afternoon. The Hoosiers played football for about fifteen minutes but their injuries soon discouraged them and they weakened, being powerless afterward. Indiana was unable to withstand the heavy and fast Chicago backs at any stage of the game. The Indiana center made the mistake several times of trying to make downs within the shadow of his goal posts instead of punting out of danger. Each time he was held and the touch-down came easily.

TIGERS 10, GEORGETOWN 0
PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 1.—The Tigers defeated the Georgetown team by a score of 10 to 0 in a game full of sensational runs and line plunges. At no time during the game did the situation for Princeton become critical, the nearest approach to their goal being the 35-yard line. The first half ended with the score nothing to nothing, but in the beginning of the second, St. Simonian was severely injured for a touch-down from the 25-yard line. McCormick was pushed over the second touch-down.

HARVARD 24, WILLIAMS 0
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 1.—Harvard opened her football season here today by an easy victory over Williams by the score of 24 to 0. Harvard's play was much lighter than Harvard's and the latter team had no difficulty in breaking through the Williams line at will. Captain Watson of Williams, the greatest player the college ever had, was severely injured during the game, being badly cut about the face and suffering a fracture to his right shoulder.

PENNSYLVANIA 24, VIRGINIA 0
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The University of Pennsylvania showed a marked improvement in their play today and beat the University of Virginia 24 to nothing. Pennsylvania's team play was a good contrast to their play of last week and the visitors were unable to gain a touch-down until substitutes were put in the game in the second half. Smith made the four touch-downs for Pennsylvania. There was considerable fumbling on both sides.

KANSAS 34, STATE NORMAL 0
LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 1.—Kansas University defeated the State Normal team by a score of 34 to 0. The game was played in a sea of mud.

MISSOURI 6, KIRKSVILLE 0
COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 1.—Missouri University defeated the Kirksville Normal team by a score of 6 to 0. The varsity had all they could do to hold the Normal boys.

CINCINNATI 33, GEORGETOWN 0
CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 1.—The eleven from Georgetown, Ky., college came to Cincinnati today, but hardly even afforded good practice for the university of Cincinnati team, the latter winning 33 to 0.

OHIO 80, MIAMI 0
COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 1.—Ohio State defeated Miami on U. S. field today 80 to 0, the largest score ever run up on an Ohio gridiron by collegiate teams. The feature of the game was the long end runs by Walker, Swan and Hekin. The game was called in the middle of the second half on account of the exhausted condition of the Miami men. Williams and Kay were severely injured and taken to the Grant's hospital.

WILMINGTON 44, WILMINGTON 0
SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 1.—The Wilmington eleven completely outclassed the Wilmington, Ohio, team in the game.

CURES WINTER COUGH
J. J. Gover, 101 N. Main St., Ottawa, Kan., writes: "Every fall it has been my wife's trouble to catch a severe cold, and therefore to cough all winter long. Last fall I got for her a bottle of Horehound Syrup. She used it and has been able to sleep soundly all night long. Whenever the cough troubles her, she is able to be up and well." 25c. per bottle. H. T. Pangburn & Co.

YALE 42, TRINITY 0
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 1.—Yale won her second game of the season today by 42 to 0, from Trinity, who proved no match for the Yale team at all. Yale's 200 pound line found no resistance in Trinity's line and did not get as much of a try out as it would have received from its own scrub team. The game showed up the poor quality of Yale's substitutes. The regular varsity team showed up five touch-downs in the first half but the substitutes could only go through Trinity's line for two touch-downs. Donnelly, Trinity's left tackle, made a 60-yard run on a blocked goal from the field, Hoyt saving Yale from a score by overtaking Donnelly on Yale's 20-yard line.

NEBRASKA 46, GRINNELL 0
LINCOLN, NEB., Oct. 1.—On a heavy field Nebraska ran over Grinnell today, 46 to 0. Three of Nebraska's touchdowns were credited to Bender, who once ran around the Grinnell end for 40 yards.

NOTRE DAME 12, WABASH 4
NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 1.—Notre Dame defeated the strong Wabash team in the first game of the season 12 to 4. First touchdown was made by Shaughnessy, who piked a fumble and ran eighty yards for a touchdown. Hard line plunges by Notre Dame backs netted the second score.

PURDUE 18, ERLHAM 0
LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 1.—Purdue showed her first signs of strong football form today by winning from the fast Erlham eleven 18 to 0. All but one of the touch-downs were made in the first half by Purdue and then the varsity team was given a rest while substitutes were run in. The Purdue line was strong throughout.

WISCONSIN 45, FORT SHERIDAN 0
MADISON, Wis., Oct. 1.—Wisconsin had its first game today, easily defeating the Regulars from Fort Sheridan 45 to 0.

COLUMBIA 16, WESLEYAN 0
NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Columbia and Wesleyan met here today and Columbia scored a creditable victory, 16 to 0. By clever plunging free end runs, the wearers of the light blue succeeded in carrying the ball for long gains. Metzenthin, Columbia's star in the affair, made the first touch-down.

ILLINOIS 11, KNOX 0
URBANA, Ill., Oct. 1.—Knox was a hard nut for Illinois to crack and not until the second half were the Illinois able to score two touch-downs. Final score, Illinois 11, Knox 0.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—The national baseball commission today promulgated a decision regarding the claim of the Decatur, Ill., team to Player Grothe. A written acceptance by Grothe of the terms of the Decatur club was declared binding and the Chicago Nationals can therefore only secure his services by draft, although he is under contract with them.

INDIGNATION

Colombians Are Furious at the Demand by Capt. Sigbee for an Apology for Outrage on United States Shield

CONGRESS IS STIRRED UP

President Urged to Cancel Concessions to American Interests and to Detail Mails Commanded by the United States

guarded Remarks Are Made

St. Petersburg says, he was not able to supervise every movement of the various commands but in many instances lost track of them and had to rely upon the wisdom and strategic sagacity of the generals. Once put in a position where he can overlook the entire situation as commander in chief and not as a fighting commander, he will, it is being urged, be able to develop and mature a plan which will result in the defeat of the Japanese.

The czar has been told that most of the enemy's successes were due to the fact that Field Marshal Oyama was not hampered by the necessity of coming personally to the aid of his generals. It is plainly in imitation of the Japanese division of the army that the Russian reorganization is being planned. Gripenberg and Linvitch will occupy positions corresponding to those of General Kuroki and Ota and the generals to be put in charge of the Cossacks, if General Rennenkampf should be superseded, will have a command similar to that of General Nodzu. It is also stated that General Rudzefsky will in all likelihood be appointed minister of the interior for the police.

JAP'S AMMUNITION BURNED

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—General Sakharoff reports that on September 22 one Russian cavalry was sent to Canton to drive out the Japanese. A number of Junks, laden with Japanese ammunition, were burned but on reinforcements arriving for the enemy, the Russians were obliged to retire. On the day previous the Japanese guard had endeavored to advance from Yan Tsung to Fino Yapt but were repulsed.

FOR THE WOUNDED

CANNES, France, Oct. 1.—The Villa Meridien was opened yesterday as a convalescent home for Russian wounded officers. The dedication was accompanied by impressive religious services which were attended by Grand Duke Mike and a large number of Russian and French noblemen.

DEFENSES ARE COMPLETE

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—Mail advices from Vladivostok say the defenses around the town have been completed and everything is prepared should the Japanese attempt operation on the line of forts and the batteries surrounding forts have been cut down in order not to obstruct the zone of fire.

Zig zag roads lead to the batteries.

THE WAR NEWS

KUROPATKIN TO BE ASSISTANT TO CHIEF

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 1.—The report is circulated in army circles that the appointment of General Kuropatkin as assistant commander in chief is considered likely, and that in this event General Gripenberg and Linvitch will be made commanders of the first and second armies respectively. If this decision is really reached, it means a great victory for those who have been anxious to convince the czar that for the moral effect of it alone, if for no other reasons, General Kuropatkin must be left in supreme command.

As assistant commander in chief he will be the real guiding spirit of the army, for Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaevitch, whose appointment as commander in chief is considered certain, understands very little about actual warfare. He is being chosen simply because the czar has received credible information that the demoralization of the troops is largely due to the bickering among the officers, who have grown restless and who have lost faith in the cause of the army, and he believes that the presence of a member of the royal family alone can restore the proper spirit of solidity. It has been urged upon the czar for many days past that most of General Kuropatkin's misdeeds are due to the fact that he could not rely on his generals, but was unable to control them only because of the necessity of personally taking part in the battle. In this manner his many friends in

LADIES CARRYING REVOLVERS FOR PROTECTION

A Hugger Appears on Streets of Indianapolis and Assaults Unprotected Females in the Evening

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—The police department of Frankfort has issued special permits for carrying revolvers to a number of ladies whose work requires them to go from home at night. For several weeks a man has been lurking in the alleys, catching and hugging ladies who pass by and then disappearing. Miss Lena Griseom was hugged last night and applications for the privilege of carrying revolvers were made to day by a number of the ladies of the city and all were granted.

As the king of Italy also has a new boy at his home, it is but natural he should desire peace, and be the leader in a movement to adjust the situation between Japan and Russia.

HE FINDS HIS WIFE WALKING STREET OF DALLAS

A Story of Human Interest Which Develops in the Police Court in Dallas—Reunited Pair

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 1.—It seldom occurs that any cases which find their way into the corporation court are of sufficient interest, or importance, to attract any special attention of the court or are always in attendance at the court to give in evidence against some misguided mortal who may have fallen by the wayside in violation of the laws.

There was a case on the docket this morning against a middle aged man, who appeared out of place on the prisoners' row. He was neatly dressed, and his refined face was drawn and pinched by some secret sorrow. His name will not be mentioned, but the circumstances in connection with the charges of intoxication and associating doctored against him are of unusual interest. The woman in the case, the arresting officer informed the court, was in the city prison 11, and unable to appear in court, whereupon the prosecuting attorney requested the court to continue her case until Monday and also that of the man who had walked upon the public streets with her. The intoxication case was then called for trial. The defendant pleaded not guilty, stated that he had never been intoxicated in his life, and that the charge was unjust. His appearance bore out his statement, and after being questioned a few minutes, the court dismissed the case. After all the cases on the docket had been disposed of and the convicted were being led from the prisoners' row back to the dark cells, the party referred to, approached the officers and asked that they permit him to speak to the judge. His appeal was so earnest, and he appeared so distressed that the usual custom was set aside and he was led around in front of Judge Smith, who was at that time engaged in conversation with a number of officers, including the one who had made the arrest. Standing with his arms folded, and his head erect, the prisoner accosted the judge in a dignified manner, although it could be seen that a terrible struggle was going on within him, and that he was making a great effort to retain his composure. He related the circumstances in connection with his case, and at times his eyes filled with tears and his voice quavered with emotion and grief.

His story was as follows: "You Honor, this is the first time I have ever been arrested in my life, and I crave your leniency. The woman who is arrested is my legally wedded wife, and the mother of my four children, who are at present in the care of my mother in New York state. Until last night, between 9 and 10 o'clock, I had not seen my wife since we separated in Michigan four years ago. I hadn't the remotest idea of her whereabouts or whether she was dead, or in the land of the living. I am a cigar maker by trade, and have my credentials with me. (They were shown the court) and am a sober and industrious man. While walking down the street last night, I happened to raise my eyes and whose gaze should I meet but that of my wife; only one quick, frightened glance, but that was sufficient. I called to her and she came to me. We went into a restaurant at my instigation and ordered supper and a bottle of wine, such as we always served on our table at home in the days gone by. When we left the place and entered the street, imagine my surprise at being approached by the officer and both myself and my wife being placed under arrest. She was taken to one prison and locked up. I to the prison adjoining this court room. I happened to be in the city on business for my employer, who resides in another city. My wife and I have become reconciled. We are content to let bygones be bygones. I propose to take my wife home with me, and to once more reunite our children with us."

The distressed man almost broke down at this stage of his narrative, and every man within the sound of his voice appeared to sympathize with him.

The court and the prosecutor both agreed that the good intentions of the man before them should not be thwarted, and he was informed that the charge against both himself and wife had been dismissed, and that he might go to the prison and secure her release himself. The face of the liberated man brightened. He thanked the judge and attorney in a grateful manner, and hurriedly walked out of the court room.

conception in the minds of its creators of bringing all foreign and domestic commerce within the control of a single group of men.

"Its first manifestation was in the Northern Securities Company. How that company organized in New Jersey by three persons who subscribed to $30,000 of stock and obtained the power from the state to issue $239,570,000 more stock for anything they saw fit, and how, by a series of exchanges of certificates, the Northern Securities Company became the custodian of 35 per cent of the Northern Pacific Railroad shares, and 80 per cent of the Great Northern shares, and through these, all of the Burlington Railroad shares are matters now of common knowledge.

"It is also a matter of common knowledge that Theodore Roosevelt, when advised that this device was a violation of the law of the United States, with that unflinching courage and promptness which have always characterized him when confronted with a duty, directed that the question be submitted forthwith to the arbitration of the law.

THE EXTRAVAGANCE

"The attack upon the republican party based upon alleged lack of economy of administration and the existence of a supposed treasury deficit has been so completely met by the president that its authors who never believed it deceiving no one with their complaint but their worthy candidate, who evidently thinks that betterments are chargeable to operating expenses, and that the proper way to create a surplus is to borrow money payable in the future for the purpose of meeting the increasing expenses of our growing country. Of course it costs more to operate this government now than it did ten years since, and it will continue to cost more and more as we continue to grow and the people demand more of their government. If it is easy as the democratic platform declares to make large reductions in expenditures without impairing the efficiency of the public service, it is easy to point out what appropriations they have in mind to reduce. It is not so much a question with the American people as to the amount they spend as it is that it is honestly spent and that the things obtainable are more valuable to the country than the money itself.

"Democratic strictures upon the president have been condensed into the post platform expression of a desire for a president who respects and will obey the constitution and the laws.

"Do you suppose, my fellow citizens, that there is a man or woman in all this broad land who reads and thinks and underlies who does not know that the underlying forces in the opposition to President Roosevelt are a few men who are resolved to bend to their country's laws, and their underlying purpose is to punish the president for compelling them to do so. Joined to the class who characterized the president's efforts to enforce the law as an impudent interference with property rights are those whose bitterest regret is that he did not indiscriminately attack all business interests, whether innocent or not, of offense against the Federal laws, and who would have gladly welcomed general disaster if it would have brought them political success.

"When and how has the president violated the constitution of the United States, that greatest of all charters of government, or ignored the laws passed in pursuance thereof, as alleged by this extraordinary confederation? It is said in some questions that he violated the constitution and the law of nations by recognizing the independence of Panama and by negotiating a treaty with that republic.

"I reply that it is an executive function to recognize the existence of foreign powers and to negotiate treaties, and that there is no rule of international law that was infringed in the president's performance of either of these executive powers. The action of this government in this respect was the same as that of the principal civilized powers. There may be those who claim the president was impolitic and unwise in executing the law of congress requiring him to take the necessary steps which congress specified to secure the joining of the two oceans, but he was safely within his constitutional powers when he did so, and as to the policy and wisdom of this act that is for the American people to approve or disapprove.

JUDGE A. B. PARKER

"We have the authority of the gentleman who put Judge Parker in nomination that no man is greater than his party and no party greater than its principles, and it can not be successfully maintained that the personnel of party management or the character of democratic policies have undergone sufficient change and modification to justify the people in entrusting the control of their government to the democracy.

"I think it entirely fair to Judge Parker to say until, through David B. Hill and other political friends in New York, he became an avowed candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency, the country knew nothing and had no opportunity to know anything of him beyond the fact that he had filled the office of chairman of the New York state democratic committee; had conducted the campaign that resulted in the election of Mr. Hill as governor of New York, and that subsequently he became chief judge of his state, which position he seems to have creditably filled.

"The people of the United States, though naturally anxious, in view of his candidacy, to know Judge Parker's views upon national policies, were unable to gain any information beyond what his vote had indicated in former national elections. Judge Parker adopted a very unusual and curious policy of silence concerning public questions, which was broken only the day following his nomination and after the convention had begun to disintegrate. He then proclaimed his belief that the gold money standard had been irrevocably fixed (as, indeed, it had been by republican legislation in 1900), and that he would accept (as opposition), and that he would accept accordingly, if elected.

"Immediately his supporters proclaimed throughout the land that this first expression of Judge Parker marked him as a statesman of superior mold and heroic courage, and they have been exceedingly tenacious of this view and sensitive of its criticism.

"Now, without in any way seeking to put this matter in any other than its true light, I desire to question the truth of his slightest desire to question the truth of Judge Parker's utterance as to the irrevocability of the gold standard so long as the republican party remains in power, or his wisdom in making it, I do not think that the facts which all know and which I shall not repeat, justify such an extravagant characterization of the motive and nature of his performance.

"I am not questioning the wisdom of Judge Parker's decision from the standpoint of his own interest, nor, indeed, from the standpoint of the interest of the party, for I am sure it would have been to the party's great advantage to have frankly acknowledged the wisdom of the established republican policy of sound money, as they have been exceedingly compelled to do in respect to other policies of the republican party time and time again.

"There has been plenty of democratic hostility manifested upon the question of sound money, but it was by the heroes of '96 and 1900 who preferred rather to be right than regular."

"In conclusion the attorney general took up Judge Parker's statement in his speech to the national convention of the republican party, as developed, afforded a complete legal remedy against monopolies. Mr. Knox declared that, rather than assume an intimation on Mr. Parker's part to mislead the people, he preferred to assume that he did not know what the case had referred to. President Roosevelt's declaration in his letter of acceptance that "There is no corporation law in the United States" was sound, Mr. Knox said, for while the common law will serve in a case of one company against another, it provides no course of action for the prosecution of corporations in restraint of their trade and that a special United States statute is needed to serve as the remedy.

GLIDDEN FOR PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Frank O'Glidden, president of the National League of Republican Clubs, that will be the burden of the cry of forty delegates who have been chosen to represent Illinois at the national convention of the organization, which meets at Indianapolis, October 5 and 6.

Overtures which have been made in behalf of W. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, the present president of the organization and candidate for re-election, and Scott Bonham, a lawyer of Cincinnati, who is also a candidate, have been invariably replied that they have a candidate of their own who would be a great credit to the organization.

"The Indianapolis meeting promises to be one of the largest political gatherings of the year. A big delegation is expected to go from Chicago. Senator Beveridge and other well known public men will be among the orators. Provisions have been made for 100,000 delegates. Many of these will come from the southern states, through which President Moore traveled in the interest of the organization last year.

REPUBLICAN OPENING.

WARREN, OHIO, Oct. 1.—This city was through early today by reason of the opening of the campaign in Ohio by the republicans. At least 20,000 people were present when the parade started at 2 p. m. More people were expected by the enthusiastic local manager but over confidence in the length of the parade, the attendance somewhat from the tremendous figures given out as anticipated by the local committee. Twenty-five bands were in line and a number of uniformed clubs. The speaking began immediately following the parade. Temporary Chairman Sullivan introduced Senator Dick, who made a few brief remarks. Governor Herrick followed and was well received. He spoke on state issues. Secretary of War Taft followed Herrick and Senator Foraker spoke next. All of the speaker's remarks were along the lines in which they have been in other parts of the country.

SHIPPING STOVES BY TROLLEY IS THE LATEST

Arlington Made a Rush Order and the Dallas House Gave the Shipment to the Express Company on the Interurban

When the Haggerty Transfer and Warehouse Company of Dallas took charge of the Interurban express service between this city and Dallas the first announcement was "The Quickest Way," and it has succeeded in demonstrating it whenever called upon.

There is an idea in Arlington that it to be cold this winter, and the folk there are putting up stoves. The demand for stoves came quick and fast, and the Arlington merchants wanted more stoves and had to have them. A rush order was given a Dallas house for a shipment of stoves which amounted in weight to 10,000 pounds. The shipment was given to the Haggerty folk, and the electric freight car of the line made the run in short order.

W. L. Crawford, vice president of the Haggerty Company, who was here last night, a guest of R. E. Eagon, Fort Worth agent of the company, says: "It is the biggest single shipment by express coming out of Dallas ever, and we convinced the shippers by the quick work of loading and unloading and fast time made that we are really the quickest way."

Mr. Crawford is one of the prominent young lawyers of Dallas, who has made some success in the business world as well as in the legal profession.

KUROPATKIN IS FAVORITE

ODESSA, Oct. 1.—Private letters to military leaders in South Russia affirm that Kuropatkin remains the favorite of the czar and general staff and that his continuance at the head of the army in the Far East is assured. It is stated that an ornamental generalissimo may be appointed, but that when fighting begins again Kuropatkin will take the field with absolute authority. It is asserted that the cloud of speculation and rumor in St. Petersburg is the work of certain officials who think Russia's chances of victory will be promoted by giving Japanese the impression that confusion reigns at the capital.

A QUIET DAY

ESOP'S N. Y. Oct. 1.—Judge Parker passed a very quiet day at Rosemont today and left only long enough to attend the wedding of his former ward, Miss K. Lawton to Robert Livingston. At the reception which followed the services, Judge Parker toasted the bride. During the remainder of the day he answered letters and worked over a mass of documents that he brought up from New York. He will return to New York Monday morning according to present plans.

FEEDING A DOCTOR

His Body Changed by Change in Food

A convincing bit of testimony to show that a simple change of food can sometimes do to end apparently incurable diseases is told in the following article by a Chicago physician.

"The case is my own. I had been suffering for more than 25 years with nervous dyspepsia, insomnia, occasional kidney trouble, and general disturbance of my whole system. My appetite was affected and so I lost weight and strength, but most serious of all was the gradual failure of my memory, proving that my brain and nerves were not getting the proper food any more than the rest of my body.

"Three times I made the journey to Carlsbad, and spent a fortune consulting famous physicians and specialists in this country and Europe but never got any permanent results. All the medicines known to science failed to give me even temporary relief in spite of the fact that I was always exceedingly careful in my diet. I was on the verge of despair and never looked forward to being well again.

"One day about two years ago I was staying at a hotel in Minneapolis accompanied by a famous European physician, Dr. Werner, of Berlin, and there we noticed a new food on the menu called Grape-Nuts. Having the desire to eat I ordered some just to see what it looked like and then was persuaded to try it.

"What I experienced was not short of wonderful.

"Not only did the new food taste so good I relished it, but for the first time in many years I felt entirely free from the terrible pressure on the stomach which I had always suffered even after the lightest meal. On my return to Chicago my very first act was to order Grape-Nuts sent to my home, where the whole family relish it so they use it daily without any urging, and we expect to do so as long as we live.

"As the result only of this change of food to Grape-Nuts the awful disease which I suffered with for more than 25 years disappeared entirely in about three weeks. I have regained my health, strength and vigor and about 22 pounds in weight. All of this is due only to the thoroughly nourishing and completely digestible character of this food—Grape-Nuts." DALLAS FIXES FOR AUTO RACES AT FESTIVAL

A. B. Wharton of Fort Worth Will Go in the Event for the Championship of the State on a Five Mile Course

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 1.—The Dallas Auto Club has perfected the arrangements for the auto races which will be held here under the auspices of the club during the progress of the Fall Festival and Carnival at the fair grounds race track, and the program promises to be one of the best ever seen in the southwest.

It was announced at a late hour last night that a five-mile race had been arranged between the three acknowledged fastest cars in the state, which are the Peerless car owned by Howard Hughes of this city, the Pope-Toledo car owned by Mr. Wharton of Fort Worth, and the French Renault car owned by E. H. R. Green of Terrell. These touring cars will be stripped and sent over the track on a five-mile spin for the championship of the state. The rivalry between the owners of these cars is very keen and it is confidently expected that the fastest time ever made in Texas will be the result of this race.

The races will be held on the 9th and 16th of October and the following rules have been adopted and will govern the contests:

First—No car shall enter on the track after a race has been called, except by permission of the committee.

Second—After a race has been called cars will be allowed but ten minutes to make ready for the start.

Third—The judges shall be Edwin J. Klest, E. H. R. Green and Mr. Wheat, and their decision as to result of each race shall be final.

Fourth—The management of the races shall be entirely in the hands of the racing committee of the Dallas Auto Club.

Fifth—Bodies shall not be removed from cars. Lamps, fenders and hood may be removed. Body does not include detachable top.

Sixth—Judges may rule out any contestant for unfairness on track before or after starting.

Seventh—Races to be flying start unless otherwise provided.

The following are the various events, in all of Dallas ever, which have already been made:

First race—Free for all cars costing from $400 to $800, two miles. There are now four entries in this event, consisting of two Oldsmobiles, a Ford and an Orient Buick.

Second race—Three miles, special, in which an Oldsmobile, Ford, Cadillac and auto car will compete.

Third race—Two miles, special. Two White steamers have been entered for this event.

Fourth race—Four miles with full load, equipment and four passengers; standing start. Entries, Winton and Haynes-Apperson cars.

Fifth race—Match race, three miles special. Entries, Ford, Franklin and Cadillac.

Sixth race—Three miles, special, Ford, Cadillac, Pope Hartford and Oldsmobile.

Seventh race—Five miles, special, Peerless, Columbia and Renault.

Eighth race—Five miles for Times-Herald race held by Henry Hill, owner of White steamer. Handicap; cars costing $1,500 to $2,500; one minute handicap.

Ninth event—E. H. R. Green trophy cup. Each machine races separately and with load.

There are numerous entries for the road cars. Another feature will be a contest between an automobile and a horse.

Eleventh event—Free for all, five miles, with privilege of stripping car. Two entries.

It has been suggested that all entries should be made at once in proper classes by conferring with Chairman George A. Titterton. The above order of events is subject to change.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE EPISCOPAL COUNCIL

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 1.—The triennial convention of the Episcopal church begins its session on Wednesday. On no other occasion in the church has there been brought together a more distinguished crowd of clergy and laymen. The Bishop of Canterbury will perhaps be the most prominent personage. He will be the guest of Bishop Lawrence, while in Boston, who will deliver the address of welcome. A warm session is among the distinguished laymen. The various organs of the church make the triennial convention the occasion for their meetings. The services will extend over a period of nearly three weeks.

One of the most important topics which will be discussed during the session will be that of divorce. The clergy is to be equally divided on the subject, but the ministry, headed by Bishop Potter of New York, will make a vigorous fight for modifications of the church rules regarding the marriage of divorced persons.

Another topic for consideration will be: "What to do with the Negro in the South," and something like a repetition of the sensation created in this city last winter over the attitude of the Episcopal bishop of Arkansas, Bishop Brown, is likely to be created. At that time the bishop advocated lynching as a punishment to all negroes who did wrong and said that nearly every negro woman in the south was the mistress of some white man. A warm session is anticipated when this subject is called.

The presiding bishop of the general convention will be the Right Rev. Dabbs S. Tuttle, bishop of Missouri. This convention, which meets once in three years, is held in two houses, the house of bishops, whose sessions are behind closed doors, and the house of clerical and lay representatives, comprising four clergymen and several laymen from each diocese in the country. It is expected that only 10,000 delegates will attend the convention, which close October 25.

HAPPIEST MAN IN UNCLE SAM'S NAVY

"I am the happiest man in Uncle Sam's Navy. I must have got the piles from always sitting on the guns, for I have to get on them to clean them, as I am first-class gunner's mate in the after turret.

"I could not do any work when I had the piles, my shipmates did it for me. I certainly was in a bad condition; today there is no man aboard the ship in better condition than I am, and I can certainly thank Pyramid Pile Cure for the world of good it has done me. I used so many different medicines and spent lots of money until I used this remedy; it is the only one of the whole lot that did me any good.

"The first box nearly cured me, and I don't think I ever felt happier in my life. But I thought I got the real stuff at last. To make sure of a cure I used a number of boxes, also two boxes of Pyramid Pills and one and one-half boxes of Pyramid Ointment, and I still have four boxes of Pyramid Pile Cure left that I keep in case I meet anyone that is a sufferer of piles. I think Pyramid Pile Cure a million times." Julius A. Koester, U. S. Flagship Keatsarge.

The wonderful cures effected by this remedy are subject for remark among members of the medical profession everywhere. A little book describing the causes and cure of piles is published by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., and we advise every sufferer to write for it. It is a singular fact that one out of every four sufferers from this distressing complaint, and another peculiar feature is that it is no respecter of persons, attacking both those of high and of low degree, the laborer and the millionaire, the scrubwoman and the lady of fashion. We have pleasure in recommending Pyramid Pile Cure to all such, as it possesses merit and since it is sold by all druggists generally for the low price of fifty cents a package a prompt and speedy cure is easily within the reach of everyone.

The Elks scored a great triumph last Wednesday evening when they presented Victor Kuzdo and Mme. Kuzdo to their music-loving friends. Nothing that has emanated from the local lodge has done more to place the organization in a special place of favor with the outside public.

That the Elks appreciate their obligation to the arts in more ways than giving a smoker when some popular actor comes this way is one of the hopeful signs that we are entering upon better things for music and music's devotees.

The Kuzdo concert in the Elks' club rooms was brilliant socially as well as musically. A box party was composed of Colonel and Mrs. George West, Mrs. Jack Craddock, Major Elliott, Alf Luckett, Robert Littlejohn, Mrs. Wyso, Miss Labatt and Miss James of Texarkana.

An emphatic suggestion of the possibility of the Country Club for formal entertaining was given again last Thursday, when the dinner was followed by a cotillon, for which cards had been issued.

The cotillon after dinner attracted the following guests: Miss Edmondson of Memphis, Arthur Lee Grand of Louisiana, Miss Helen Allen Beaumont of Kentucky, Jeff D. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Edgington, Mrs. Olive Edgington, Scott, Miss Edgington, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCurt, Miss Fannie Bell McCurt, Miss Sparrow, William Bryce, J. M. Reynolds of Fishing Star, H. Reynolds, A. P. FOR THE BAZAR The successful bazar provides for the needs as well as for the whims of its patrons. With this in view a covery booth meets a long felt want. It is surprising to see how many who will buy nothing else will buy a bag of cookies or a pie.

Another booth that always pays is the linen booth. Here are common, coarse hand towels, something that every kitchen is never without; plain hemstitched table napkins, bath towels and even hemmed bath cloths, which are so much cheaper bought in the piece than one by one.

THE BAT DANCE The bat dance can be made attractively unique. Dress six or eight little people to represent bats. The wings can be made out of cloth, supported with old umbrella bows. Tiny short horns stand up from the head and shoes and stockings match the costumes. The girls' hair should match the wings, and the boys should have suits of the color of the wings. The whole color effect should be black or deepest gray. The arms make the upper support for the well wired wings.

"PIKE" AT THE LAWN FETE No fall lawn fete or church festival should be given without a "Pike." Plan for one of the attractions a mirror palace, a maze of mirrors. Charge a small entrance fee and make the maze sufficiently intricate to make the fun worth the fee.

A "shoot-the-shoot" can be simply arranged if the entertainment be given in a two-story building. A stairway, boarded over, can be arranged for this purpose.

Much of the fun of the "Pike" depends upon the "hawkers," who must be wisely and carefully chosen. For them all to talk at once and each to talk louder than the other makes the "Pike" a thing to be observed. The show can be arranged in such a way that it will cost a quarter to see everything along the way, and a little extra if the "Pike" is done show by show.

THE JAPANESE SINGING BOOTH may be made attractive. Much of the fun of the "Pike" depends upon the "hawkers," who must be wisely and carefully chosen. For them all to talk at once and each to talk louder than the other makes the "Pike" a thing to be observed.

BROADCLOTH AND VELVET

A broadcloth suit is always in vogue. This model is especially good form. The yoke and under sleeves are of all-over point Venice. The felt hat with rolling brim and plumes is the exaggerated high crown which French milliners are trying so hard to introduce.

One of the most enjoyable affairs was the entertaining of the ladies of the Calanthe Club by Mrs. S. N. Loyd, 818 Pennsylvania avenue, assisted by Mrs. T. McDonald, last Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 5. The home was beautifully decorated with roses and palms.

Beautiful Table Linens At Extremely Low Prices

The term Linen is a generic name for cloths woven from the fiber of the flax plant. It is one of the earliest of textile manufactures and has been made for so long a time that its origin is lost in the mists of history. Pieces are still in existence that were woven four thousand years ago, and in the days of Herodotus it was an article of Egyptian export. Fine Linen is said to have first been made by the Saxons in 1258, and while Irish Linen was used at Winchester as early as 1272, it was not until 1828 that flax spinning machinery was started at Belfast. Since that time, while the product of the flax has constantly been improved, its cost has been diminished until today Linens at once beautiful and durable, are so cheap as to be in universal use.

We are thoroughly conversant with the modern method of Linen manufacture, from the time the flax leaves the field; how it is at first scutched, broken, heckled; drawn, roved, spun, woven, bleached and finished, and know all about the values of the finished product in the various weaves, weights and widths. We are perfectly informed, too, as to the best sources of supply, and we buy in quantities to supply the demands made on our Linen department, direct from manufacturers' agents. We will sell them Monday at far lower prices than equal qualities can ordinarily be procured for.

LADY SOMERSET

The Kaiser's Children Are Portrayed As Angels in a Memorial Window Which Is in a Lutheran Church

CAUSES EMBARRASSMENT

Children of Owner of Estate Portrayed in Scanty Attire in a Garden, As Young Ladies Will See Themselves As Children of Nature

(Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.)

LONDON, Oct. 1.—In the Lutheran church in the ancient city of Speyer, built to commemorate the protest made by the diet of Speyer in 1529, by various princes and cities of Germany, which had embraced the Lutheran faith, there is a magnificent stained-glass window in the choir, with seven heads of angel children. These are the portraits of the kaiser's family. It is said that it was difficult to obtain his permission to portray his children as an angelic band, but that the members induced him to consent.

It is much to be hoped that these royal children will live up to the character that they have been given. It has always seemed to me an unfortunate thing to depict children in a manner in which they may much object in after life.

A friend of mine recently placed in his beautiful garden some ornamental marble fountains. The groups represented children playing with dolphins, and the drapery was, to say the least, scanty. The children's portraits were those of his sons and daughters, and it has always occurred to me that it might be an embarrassing moment when as young ladies they visit their father's home to see themselves portrayed as children of Nature.

CROWN PRINCE OF GERMANY

The most eligible bachelor in Christendom has passed from the matrimonial horizon, and many will be the brightened hopes among the pretty maidens in the Old World and in the New, who dreamed that possibly the honor of becoming empress of Germany might be in store for them.

The crown prince is credited with having been in the past a hero of many romances, but to the uninitiated he appears to be only a tall and rather sulky looking boy, although when he smiles he is particularly charming. Indeed this smile is supposed to have won a reputation even in the nursery, where they used to say to him on a rainy day, "Smile, and we shall have sunshine." The crown prince has from his earliest youth been overworked, and few and far between were the holidays that fell to the lot of the prince.

Not only, however, did lessons oppress the boy, but the emperor has shared Solomon's views as to the necessity of not sparing the rod. These things, combined probably with a certain amount of rather natural jealousy of the undoubted preference shown by the kaiser for his second son, have tended to make the crown prince somewhat morose.

Although scarcely out of his boyhood, he has already caused some anxiety to his imperial parents, and fell in love with another beautiful American girl, to whom he had the indiscretion to present a ring which had been given to him by his grandmother, Queen Victoria. Once more the crown prince's route was changed. The royal family met in anxious council, and it was finally decided that the girl should be chosen? Four or five were mentioned as possible, but finally, as the emperor hesitated, the situation was once more lost, for a third American girl had captured the heart of the susceptible prince at Bonn. Just as this promise was being made, the most difficult of all situations, a fourth appeared, and again a fifth. There was safety in numbers, and the prince, surrounded by this bevy of charming trans-Atlantic girls, played tennis, laughed and made merry in true student fashion.

Since those days he has shown great aptitude for military matters, and many sterling qualities, but that which will probably save him in after life is the fact that he has a strong sense of humor.

One day the kaiser entered the prince's room and asked him to go for a walk. "Certainly," said the prince, and then, seeing that his father was in naval uniform, he said with a smile, "But when are you going? To the aquarium?"

The fortunate little princess who is to be the future empress of Germany is said to be something of a tomboy. Indeed she acquired such a character in her earlier years that when the aristocratic Mocklenburg had the happiness of sending their little daughters to take tea at the palace, they always expected them to return with their frocks torn or soiled, as the widest rumps took place there and the but's attention was given to toilet or deportment.

It is refreshing, however, to know that this very young couple are like happy children together. They are spending the time at Gellensand, where they play tennis, soccer, and ramble together in the forest. The young Duchess Cecilie is adored by the old servants. She is full of sympathy and affection, and delights to brighten the lives of those around her. In

By Malcolm Clarke. (Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) BERLIN, Oct. 1.—The socialist convention in Bremen which has just ended shows better than anything how things have changed in Germany during the last few years, and how completely the kaiser is master of the political situation. The power of the socialist party is broken, or rather, the party has changed from a revolutionary party to "His Majesty's loyal opposition." No sensational resolutions were adopted by the convention and though an old-fashioned half-seditious speech was made by Dr. Liebknecht who advised the formation of a special committee to spread socialistic teachings in the army, he was soon quieted by Robert Fischer, who preached moderation, and it was decided that the power of the socialist party is generally thought here to be due to the wise policy of the kaiser, who has often shown that he has the interests of the workingman at heart, and especially to the government labor bureau, which was founded by the kaiser on the lines of the labor bureau at Washington. Baroness Bertha von Suttner, the Austrian noblewoman, whose book "Down With the Weapons," so affected the czar of Russia that he called the peace conference which resulted in the establishing of the international court of arbitration at The Hague, is on her way to Boston where she will take part in the peace congress. The baroness will give a series of lectures on her universal peace ideas in all the large American cities, and it is well certain that the United States is the country destined to bring about the end of war between nations.

Twenty-three is the lucky number of the czar's family. It was on the 23d of the month that she first saw her future husband, and a dozen fortunate incidents in her subsequent life have occurred on that happy day. Some days ago, remembering her lucky number, she determined that the twenty-third day from the child's birth should have a little celebration of its own; and this morning, accompanied by her husband and Father Gleb Zagorsky, a priest who has been much in evidence at Peterhof, she went to the child's cradle, and there offered up formal prayers for its future life. Then, tying a tiny jeweled ikon to the foot of its cradle, she took the child on her knees, while the czar, imitating the czar's usual address of the Russian monarch, solemnly presented the infant with bread and salt. Alexis Nikolaevitch, familiarly known as "Allosha," is the tyrant of Peterhof and the ruler of Russia's rulers. Since his christening he has not been much in evidence, and the outside public is concerned; but all accounts agree that he is a supernaturally healthy, chubby child, rosy all over, and gifted with a lung capacity which presages an oratorical career rivaling that of his imperial cousin, the Tsar.

The czarina seldom leaves him, and every morning before dressing the czar knocks at the door where the child reposes in its blue cradle, and asks in Russian: "Kak Alloshe sevodnia?" ("How is Alloshe today?") Nicholas is much interested in the infant's progress, and spends all the time he can spare from affairs of state in or near the nursery; but even his joy over his son and heir can not dispel the gloom which the continued bad news from the front has thrown over him. He has become exceedingly nervous. Uneasiness and dismay possess him all hours of the day, and sleep will not come to him at night. The private study of the Russian ruler resembles a central telegraph station. Dispatches pour incessantly in, and the air is expected to be present, and the news from the front is not exactly hopeful, and it would seem to have happened more than once that the veins in the forehead of the tsar were swollen with rage. The messenger is not easily differentiated from his message, and whoever happens to be in the presence of his sovereign, he be diplomatist or lackey, has no easy time of it. Everything goes too slowly to suit the tsar.

In Russia there still prevails, as of yore, the old Potemkin system of corruption here, corruption there, corruption everywhere. The tsar knows it. That makes him anxious. He flies into a passion. But to spend matters he has no power. The coin that bears his effigy is mightier than himself. TURBINE TORPEDO BOAT The first German turbine torpedo boat has just been finished at the navy yards at Kiel. Its engines are of 5,000 horsepower and great speed is expected of it. The kaiser is expected to be present at the trial, and if it is a success a great number of boats of the same type are to be built before next spring. CALENDAR OF FUTURE Alexander Lebedeff, the celebrated Odessa statesman, has just published an amusing book called "The Calendar of the Future," in which he predicts the course of history between now and October, 1905. The war, according to the Calendar, will terminate in March by the defeat of the united Japanese armies on the Yalu. England will intervene to save Japan from despolition, but upon Russia dispatching a vast army to the Afghan frontier she will give way. On May 16 Berlin will be burned to the ground, and this will be followed by great fires at London, Moscow and Vienna. The Vienna, Oct. 1.—In spite of the recent visit of Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria to Emperor Francis Joseph at Schoenbrunn, on which occasion the prince is said to have promised to use all his influence to keep his unruly people quiet, it looks as if Bulgaria is once more preparing for war. The Bulgarian army will be equipped with new field artillery of the latest model and the government has through the Bank of Dresden secured a loan of twenty million dollars. The loan was given on the express condition that the Bulgarian government buy the 450 guns needed for its army from the Krupp factories at Essen, instead of from Creuzot, as originally intended, and also place orders for all ammunition with German firms. The Bulgarian government also bound itself to buy all materials for the building of the new Eski-Sagra-Zaramb railroad, and all rolling stock for the road in Germany, and to employ German engineers in its construction.

MADRID, Oct. 1.—The people of this city are clamoring for the repeal of the new Sunday law which has been in force two weeks, and which forbids bull fights on Sundays, and requires the closing of all stores. It also forbids the publication and sale of newspapers. Last Sunday the streets of this city were almost deserted, everybody having gone to the country, where cafes and saloons were kept open, but to day it is feared that the lower classes will force the owners of public places to open up, and many people have declared that they will remain in the cafes all night so as to prevent them from closing at midnight. The authorities are determined to enforce the law, and a strong force of soldiers and police are held in readiness to prevent disturbances.

King Edward has appointed a royal commission to consider the existing methods of dealing with idiots, epileptics and imbecile and feeble-minded persons. It is the result of long agitation against such a pauper fifty years ago, and one in every 700 a criminal. Now only one in thirty-six depends on the state and one in 2,400 is committed for trial.

ROUND THE WORLD

G. M. Shilling, an American who started out to walk round the world for a wager, has just arrived in Berlin, having completed 22,000 miles—a distance equal to twice the circumference of the earth. He started bareheaded, accompanied by a dog from New York, on August 20, 1897, and the conditions were that he should complete the journey in four years without begging or borrowing money. It is said that he was to receive 1,000,000 francs if he succeeded.

Shilling has fallen in his task, but has continued his remarkable tramp three years beyond the time set, and is now determined to explore Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Belgium, England, Scotland and Ireland before returning home.

Among his most trying experiences was a walk from Adelaide across Australia to Perth. He followed the telegraph line, and obtained his water supply from the government tanks, which were often forty miles apart.

One day he arrived, almost dead from thirst, at one of these tanks, and found that it was empty. Seeing no other way out of his difficulty he cut the telegraph wire, and within twelve hours a party of engineers were on the spot to effect repairs. They saved his life, but afterwards threatened to put him in prison for cutting the wire.

From Australia he proceeded to India, and while at Bombay his dog died. He visited the Straits Settlements, and then went on to Canton, Shanghai, Peking, Port Arthur and through Manchuria to Vladivostok. Then he crossed to Japan, where the government took great interest in his walk and sent police messengers to accompany him.

Since then he has been in Egypt and in Persia, and is now in Constantinople. Traveling westward, he has arrived here after seven years' wandering.

HUNTING WITH HAWKS

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Copyright, 1904. The Kaiser's idea of reviving the ancient sport of hunting with falcons or hawks has been taken up with enthusiasm by Paris society, who has combined it with their present fad of automobilism.

Hawking meets are now being held every week and many hawking parties have taken place at the chateaux in the Normandy, where pheasants and quail abound.

Each sportsman drives to the meets in his automobile with his hawk perched on his thickly-gloved hand. When the coverts are reached the hawks leave their autos and the beaters begin to drive up the game and the honors of the day goes to the owner of the bird which has caught the most game.

Also hares and rabbits are hunted in this way. Retrieving dogs are used as the hawks are very ferocious, and if not prevented tear the game to pieces.

A SOCIETY FOR THE PROTECTION OF MEN

(Special Cable to The Telegram—Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) LONDON, Oct. 1.—A society for the protection of the rights of men has been formed here.

Its secretary and guiding spirit is a well known authoress who under a nom de plume some time ago startled England by her articles on the decadence of modern women. The society has two aims. The first is the protection of men by advocating changes in the existing order of society.

It is felt that the time has come when spheres of action should be dealt with and that men should not be handicapped in the stern fight of life by certain concessions to adversaries who presume upon their chivalry.

The society will undertake the fighting in the courts of breach of promise suits and will reward with some special distinction, yet to be decided upon, wives whose treatment of their husbands merits special recognition.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN RETURNS THE COPE

(Special Cable to The Telegram—Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) ROME, Oct. 1.—All Rome is singing the praises of J. Pierpont Morgan, who has returned to the cathedral at Ascoli-Piceno the cope of Pope Nicholas IV., which was stolen some time ago and which the American financier had bought in London. The thieves who stole it from the cathedral—a priest and a photographer—have been arrested and have confessed.

The arrest was effected by clever work of the police of Ascoli. Some years ago the cope was officially photographed, and postal cards with prints of this photograph were sold for the benefit of the cathedral. Some time after the theft the chief of police at Ascoli discovered that other postal cards, with the photo of the cope somewhat differently arranged, were being sold. Investigation showed that these postal cards were made and sold by a local photographer who, though formerly in moderate circumstances, had suddenly come to wealth and had made several trips to London and Paris.

He was arrested and confessed that he and the sacristan of the church stole the cope, which was sold in London to Mr. Morgan, who only bought it after having given the signature and photograph man who sold it.

Son of Don Carlos, Pretender to the Throne of Spain, Is Heartily Sick of War

WILL HAVE NO CROWN

Believes His Family Is Entitled to the Throne at Madrid, But Will Not Accept It if It Requires War to Obtain It—He Admires Russian Soldiers

BY PAUL VILLIERS

(Special Cable to The Telegram. Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, Oct. 1.—Prince Jamie de Bourbons, not one man among the 200,000 of the Spanish cavalry division, in a letter to a friend in this city, writes that the scenes which he is daily witnessing have filled him with hatred of war and says that if he returns alive to Madrid, he will probably give up his commission and devote all his time and energy to work in behalf of universal peace.

"War," he writes, "is a terrible thing, and now that I am in the midst of its unspeakable horrors, I have firmly decided never to take part in another. My family, I think, has valid claims upon the throne of Spain, but rather than have one drop of Spanish blood shed for my sake I will give up all the idea of wearing a crown.

"In this campaign, with its many disasters to our arms, I have learned to admire the Russian soldier. He has the courage of a lion when in battle and often becomes ferocious, especially when engaged in hand-to-hand fights with bayonets or sword, but he has the soft heart of a woman, and the way in which he forgets his own self to administer to the needs of his wounded, and still more so to one who has seen the cruelty of the Japanese, who often torture wounded prisoners to death.

"The spirit of the soldiers in spite of our defeats is unbroken and there is, I am convinced, not one man among the 200,000 of General Kurapatkin who does not for a moment that his beloved leader will drive the enemy into the sea."

SKELETONS UNEARTHED

What is thought to be the head of the unhappy Princess Lamballe has been found here by workmen who were digging a new street near the Chappelle des Enfants Trouves.

The work was going on under the eyes of M. Lucien Lambeau, secretary of the commission du Vieux-Paris, who was anticipating very few days ago it was known that the head of the guillotined princess had been buried in that neighborhood on September 3, 1792.

A number of skeletons of children were first found, and the work of excavating was nearly finished when one of the men brought to M. Lambeau a skull of unusually noble form, which undoubtedly was that of a woman.

It is remarkably well preserved, none of the teeth missing, and M. Lambeau declares he is certain that it is the skull of Marie Antoinette's young friend, whose unhappy fate was so undeserved.

NEW SUBMARINES

The government navy yards at Toulon and Brest are building a large number of new submarines, which are to be finished before the end of the year, and which are far superior to those possessed by any other country.

Two boats of this type are already in commission, and have during the recent maneuvers proved themselves more than a match for any battleship afloat.

The submarine "Y," as they are called officially, have engines of 600 horsepower and a submerged speed of 12 knots; but the new boats of the same type now under construction will have 1,200 horsepower and a speed of 23 knots, which will enable them to overtake any battleship and most cruisers.

Preparations are continually though quietly going on to make the whole French navy ready for war, which is a moment's notice, and by next spring all arrangements will be complete, and should occasion arise every French man-of-war, from the largest battleship to the smallest submarine, can be placed in commission with a full complement of officers, crew and ammunition within three days.

A HAUNTED CASTLE

If any American should want a genuine haunted castle he can have one in the most romantic and beautiful part of Brittany for a mere song, as its owner declares he will never again set foot in it.

Chateau de Taden, near Dinan, is the name of the haunted house, and until five days ago it was filled with guests who had come to spend the hunting season there.

Then one night they were all aroused from their sleep by strange noises and when the most courageous of the men started out to see what was the matter they found the furniture and chairs had been ripped up and clocks, mirrors and bric-a-brac smashed to pieces.

Similar things have happened nightly ever since, and even quilts and sheets in the bedrooms were torn to shreds. Even the dresses of the ladies and whom they have even subjected to unseemly hands on their wearers.

Gendarmes are now watching the chateau night and day, but all the guests as well as the owner has fled in terror, but the ghosts are still there, undisturbed by the sentinels several of whom they have even subjected to rough treatment.

The London Tailor and Cutter gives this valuable advice: "For cricket, boating, tennis and football, a tweed suit is essential for motoring, fishing and golf it is indispensable."

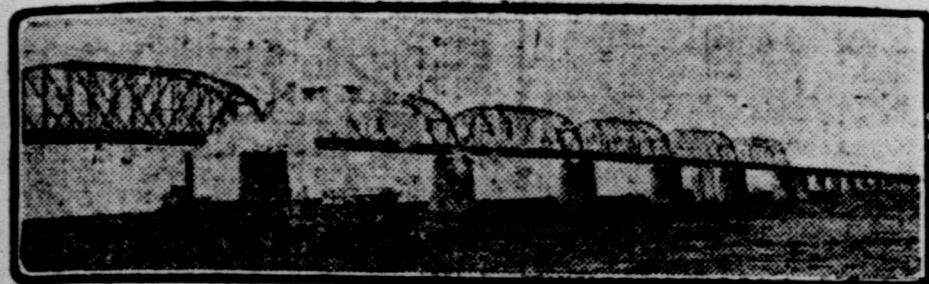

The Agricultural Bank at Sofia has decided to buy 5,000 iron plows, 200 grain sowing machines and 500 harrows, so as to be distributed among its patrons to increase the revenues of the farmers.

that of the Liao. Harbin is surrounded for hundreds of miles by a rich agricultural country, producing corn, wheat, oats, barley, beans, millet, hemp, tobacco, vegetables and fruits. The entire valley is an excellent wheat producing country, and the building of flour mills had proceeded rapidly in the last few years. It is certain that if war had not paralyzed the industry of these valleys vast quantities of flour would soon have been shipped to Europe from Harbin. With such favorable conditions surrounding it, the Russians began planning a city which should be a fit metropolis of their new empire. Early in 1903, under supervision of government engineers, architects and army officers began the work of building railway terminals, business blocks, administration and work buildings, and even since the war commenced much has been accomplished. Russians call Harbin the Moscow of the east. At present the place consists of the old town, three miles from the central depot; Prestin, or the river town, the present commercial center; and the administration town, in close proximity to the railway station. Before the railway engineers established this as their headquarters there was no native town in this vicinity, and the entire place is therefore a Russian product. It is distinctly a Russian city, and none but Russians and Chinese are permitted to own land, construct buildings or engage in any permanent enterprise. The land for miles has been secured so as to make it impossible for foreign influence to secure a foothold close to the city, and foreigners are not recognized as having any rights. The chief railway engineer is administrator, and up to the present has had complete control of everything. Harbin is the headquarters of the civil courts, the chief military post, and the main center of control of the army of railway guards. The administration city, therefore, consists of all the public and private buildings and shops necessary for these departments. Residences for the employees cover the largest area of this division of this marvelous city. The following are some of the principal buildings of the administration city: Building—Cost of Building. Administration building, three stories in height, having a total floor space of 3,600 square sagine (174,400 square feet), to cost when finished..... $618,000. Railway shops 1,287,500. Hospitals 372,330. Commercial school and girls' school 287,500. Technical school 128,750. Eight schools for teaching Russians Chinese and for teaching Chinese Russian 49,440. Club and store for employees..... 83,945. Hotel 103,000. Russo-Chinese bank 103,000. The administration expenditure on the city has been $16,450,000. Steamers—The Sungari river is navigable with light-draft steamers and native craft for 200 miles above the city, up both branches of the river, and much traffic has already developed on these streams, especially in wheat. From Harbin to the Amur river good-sized river steamers run daily. These steamers are fitted with comfortable cabins for first, second and third-class passengers. They carry cargoes and usually tow barges. The steamers are mostly of the stern-wheel type, burning wood, such as are in operation on the western rivers in the United States. The time required to go from Harbin to Harbinok, at the mouth of the Ussuri river, on the Amur, is five days. At this place these steamers connect with trains for Vladivostok. Carriage and Automobile Service—There are also about 400 nesochicks, or Russian carriages for public use, and the average earnings of these vehicles is $2.58 per day. There is also an automobile line ready to start four machines to operate between the old town and the administration city; each vehicle will carry ten persons. These machines are now on the ground and will carry passengers for 10 cents each way. This line is in connection with an electric tramway that is to run a loop line through the river town, or Prestin, and a double loop, or figure 8, line through the administration town. The leading industry of Harbin is the manufacture of flour. Eight mills are in operation, all with European machinery with one exception, and that is a small one constructed with American machinery.

THE POPULARITY OF GEN. KUROPATKIN

(Special Cable to The Telegram—Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) MOSCOW, Oct. 1.—How popular General Kuropatkin is among his troops is shown by a story which is told here in a letter from an officer at the front. Outside the commander-in-chief's house every Wednesday may be seen his washing hanging on a line—three plain gray shirts, some socks and a set of flannels. The other day, in a strong wind, a gray shirt blew over the fence and a number of subaltern officers who were drinking tea outside started after it. It was carried into the branches of a tree, and so many hands were stretched out that the shirt was torn in two. The officers decided that it was no use to return it, so they cut it up into a hundred little patches, which they kept for themselves and their friends. That night four lieutenants appeared at mess with gray patches pinned to their tunics. "What the devil does this mean," asked Colonel Khortevsky. "It is a bit of the commander-in-chief's shirt," replied one of the lieutenants timidly. Next day several of the men begged their officers for a few threads of the shirt to be worn as mascots.

IN PORT ARTHUR

Description of the State of Terror Which Exists Inside the Walls of the Besieged Garrison By Escaped Officer

OH! THE HORROR OF IT

Hospitals Crowded With Dying and Shops Filled With Dead. A Typical Charon Gathers the Bodies in a Lumbering Cart and Hauls Them Away

(Copyright, 1904, by W. R. Hearst.) PARIS, Oct. 1.—To realize the state of terror which must exist within the walls of Port Arthur at this time one should read the description given by Captain Legzinsky, the last Russian officer to escape through the Japanese lines. When one remembers that what he describes took place before the terrific bombardment of the last weeks, one shudders to think of what the heroes who defend that fortress, and the women who have remained with them to nurse the sick and wounded, must suffer now, and sympathizers of Russia or not, one can not help but admit that now, as during the siege of Sevastopol, the Russian soldier stands without a peer in unostentatious heroism and patient endurance. "The hospitals and houses," Captain Legzinsky says, "were crowded with dying men, but nothing exceeded in horror the interiors of some of the shops and stores in which along the counters, with heads hanging over one side and feet drooping over the other, lay long rows of those who had died, cast here for the brief interval between dissolution and burial. "Tracks of blood, as from a slaughter house, ran from these once spotless floors into the middle of the road, marking the path pursued by the interminable procession of death. One store I passed was crowded with town idlers and resting soldiers. "On the floor knelt an old woman in tears, and from the counter above, touching her own gray locks, hung a golden cataract of hair with above it the pale but unstained and yet beautiful face of a young girl, no more than 16, killed, though outwardly unharmed, by the concussion of a Japanese shell. "On either side of her—it was a contrast too terrible for words—lay rows of naked, grimy, unshaven and ferocious heroes—carved, dismembered, mutilated beyond words—born from the merciful hospital wards by merciful death. "I turned, sickened, away, but an unconquerable curiosity drew me back to the spot. Jolt, jolt, jolt across the cobblestoned road, furrowed and torn in places by Japanese shells, came three telegys (peasant carts) and drew up at the door. "A wizened, hideous old man, with a face like Charon's, chewing a straw, strolled indifferently into the chamber of horrors, and seizing the corpse of a boy soldier, cast it with a thud into the cart. The crowd looked on as at an interesting play—we had all become hardened. "That fellow has long ears," said a loiterer, grinning. "Then Charon reappeared. Unmoved as before, he cast his arms around the girl and bore her to the door. The old woman looked dazed and made no sign of understanding, but as the last cart rattled round the corner of the block, she walked to the door and screamed. "I had fought three days in the trenches and saw whole companies blown to bits. During those days all the accumulated horrors of earth and hell seemed to have raged around me. Yet not until I heard that mother's scream and watched that impassive but maniacal face did I feel the thrill of terror and despair which come to every man but once in his life."

The Mammoth and the Mosquito

What has come to pass in thousands of years seems hardly credible. Primitive man, a weakling in comparison to modern man, was able to conquer the huge monsters of thousands of years ago, such as the Mammoth, and to day they are dead forever; yet the mosquito and fly have never been conquered. It is now time for the scientist to devise methods for killing the mosquito and fly, so that they will go to join the mammoth and the monster lizards. The mosquitoes and flies are dangerous enemies of man because they spread contagious. The mosquito often carries the germ of malaria with his bite. The housefly spreads germs of disease over our food. These bacterial hunters are ever hunting for the weak spot, find a place in our blood, and then we suffer from grip, catarrh, consumption, or malaria. Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., says: "There would be no grip epidemics, the germs of consumption, or malaria would find no place in the human economy, if the blood were pure, if the lungs, heart and other organs were fed on good blood. Poisons should not be allowed to accumulate in the body; to be safe it is best to take a gentle laxative at least once a week." Such a vegetable laxative as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets contains nothing which could harm the system. For putting the blood in order, and as a tissue-builder and tonic for those weakened by coughs, colds, catarrh, grip, scabbing will build one up quicker than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This is a medicine made entirely of roots and herbs, without the use of alcohol. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send at once stamps for paper covered, or 21 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE TOP PICTURE SHOWS A STREET IN HARBIN. THE LOWER PICTURE IS A SCENE ON THE SUNGARI RIVER.

Harbin, the Russian base and the final subject of General Kuropatkin's retreat, is the geographical center of Manchuria, and was designed by the Russians to be the commercial center also. Harbin was to be the great mart of the rich valleys of the Sungari and the Liao, as well as the open gate of trade between Europe and eastern Asia. The valley of the Liao river produces and exports $10,000,000 worth of food products each year. It is a country where crop failures and famine are almost unknown, and where production is as regular and constant as in any place dependent on natural rainfall. The country drained by this river and its tributaries is approximately 62,500 square miles. Some of it is mountainous, but the largest part of it is level land and rich rolling hills, susceptible of cultivation. Almost every acre through which the railway passes is under cultivation. The soil is mostly a sandy loam, with a slight mixture of clay. Gravel and rock are seldom seen; it is, in fact, a serious problem with the railway to find enough

Lies About the Inside Inn

We don't believe in knocking, hence we're not going to say a word about the other fellows; but in simple self-defense we propose to absolutely refute the malicious statements circulated by the St. Louis hotel and boarding house fraternity regarding the ability of the Inside Inn to care for the crowds who daily seek its hospitable roof. We, therefore, make the following statements in all honesty and good faith, and are prepared to "make good" on each and every one of them: 1. The Inside Inn is able, at all times, to comfortably accommodate all who come, at whatever rates they wish to pay. 2. The enormous size and wonderful equipment of the Inside Inn—with its 2,327 bedrooms, and its immense dining halls seating over 2,500 people at a single meal—absolutely precludes overcrowding or discomfort. 3. The fact that the Inside Inn is situated upon a beautiful eminence and surrounded by a natural forest makes it the coolest and most delightful spot in all St. Louis. 4. The convenience, comfort and economy of staying right inside the grounds has been appreciated by all, and the management spares no pains to make the séjour of each and every guest thoroughly enjoyable in every way, and one of the pleasant memories of the great World's Fair. 5. The rates are very reasonable, ranging from $1.50 to $5.50 per day, European, and $2 to $7 American plan—including daily admission to the grounds. For further details or reservations apply The Inside Inn, World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER WILL CARRY CANADIAN ELECTIONS

OPPOSITION TO HIM WILL PLEAD FOR CLOSER RELATIONSHIP WITH THE UNITED STATES—LAURIER HAS A CINCH ON PARLIAMENTARY SEATS IN THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC—ISSUES OF THE COMING CAMPAIGN

MEN IN THE ISSUES OF THE COMING CANADIAN CAMPAIGN.

That the dominion elections will be held in the near future, is generally believed, but no one outside of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the prime minister, and a few of his intimates have any idea as to the date. It is significant that both liberals and conservatives are preparing literature, and it is expected that the campaign will be the hottest since the confederation of the provinces in 1867.

The elections were to have been held a year ago, but a hitch in the Grand Trunk Pacific railway deal and Laurier's ill health caused a postponement, much to the disgust of the conservatives, who had prepared tons of campaign literature, which is now valueless.

The main issue will still be the Grand Trunk Pacific railway project, though it is significant that the people of Canada are remarkably apathetic regarding this big deal. Conservatives admit that another transcontinental line is necessary, but they claim that the liberals are giving too many concessions to the Grand Trunk railway and that the government plans to build the line too far to the north. It was originally the purpose of the government to build westward from a point at the head of Lake Superior, but the people of Quebec kicked so vigorously that it was decided to extend the line through that province down to Moncton, New Brunswick. This extension will, the liberals expect, catch votes in Quebec, which now gives Laurier practically his entire majority in the house of commons. Out of 65 seats in that province, Laurier now controls 55, and it is assumed that he being a French-Canadian will continue to control them as long as he remains at the head of the Liberal party.

The conservatives will plead with the electors for support in their more closer trade relations with the United States. Canadians do not think that it is quite fair that imperialistic sentiment should be made a reason for closing neighboring markets to them, and they want to see decided changes in the fiscal policy. This general feeling will help the conservatives.

The conservatives, though they now disavow any such intention, will raise one race cry, and "Remember Dunderdonald" will be the slogan. Lord Dunderdonald, the hero of the recent general election, was dismissed by the Canadian government because he presumed to assert that Hon. Sydney Fisher, minister of agriculture, was introducing politics into the militia. The conservatives will maintain that Dunderdonald was harshly treated by the French-Canadian premier and will make what capital they can out of the incident.

It is likely that Laurier will be again returned to his hold on Quebec as secure as a rock on the battling leadership, and the rest of the dominion will split about even.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier became premier in 1896 and all indications point to a long term ahead of him. He was born November 20, 1841, in the province of Quebec, and all his ancestors were French. He was educated in McGill university and was admitted to the bar.

In 1871 he entered politics, being elected a member of the Quebec legislature. In 1874 he was sent to the Canadian parliament, where in a few years he rose to leadership in the liberal party. He became the legislative rival of Sir John Macdonald, the sturdy old Scotchman who was for so many years the conservative premier of Canada. These two men led opposite sides in the bitterest campaigns in dominion history, the younger liberal leader finally overthrowing the other. But they always appreciated each other's abilities, and at Sir John's funeral Laurier delivered an eloquent eulogy.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Crazy and Mrs. Hart, the consolation prize, a beautiful Haviland ash tray, was carried away by Mrs. Wares.

During the afternoon music was furnished by the following young ladies: Misses Marion Douglass and Nina Coppage.

After the contest the ladies were invited to partake of refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake. The guests of the club were Misses Septima and Melissa Smith and Marion Douglas. The members present were Misses Johnson, Colton, Hart, Addis, Wares, McDonald, Douglas, Cook, Loyd, Coppage, Crazy and Frazier.

The club will be entertained by Mrs. E. B. Sawyer, 33 Hyland avenue, Thursday afternoon, October 13.

A 1799 STYLE

Here is shown a combination of the Directoire and the styles which immediately followed it. The introduction of moire silk on revers and for bands is quite new. The full skirt is 1830. The suit is pretty in brown, red or green. The moire may match the color of the material or may be white according to the fancy. Fashion favors the light shades of the same color for revers, but not for bands upon the skirt. The material may also be the new Pekin silk in black and white stripes with a vest of white brocade. The lace jabot is pretty when reaching below the bust.

THE NEEDLE PARTY

Cards, cards, nothing but cards, afternoon after afternoon. There are neighborhood card parties and club parties until it seems that everyone has had cards enough to last a life time. But what shall I do with my guests? asks the anxious hostess. There may be nothing better than cards, but for a change almost anything is desirable. A needle afternoon at this season of the year is instructive as well as pleasant. Women have been away from home, at the sea shore, the lake shore, in the mountains, or even off for a short visit, and have seen many new stitches and many new designs in embroidery. Make this fact the basis of an entertainment. Invite the guests for 1 o'clock luncheon and ask them to come prepared to demonstrate the newest fad in embroidery or needlework. There are many kinds of embroidery and an afternoon thus spent with needles will prove a help in making Christmas gifts. Any new bit of fancy work will answer. Everyone must go prepared and willing to teach everyone else how to do the work she knows how to do.

HALLOWEEN ENTERTAINMENT

For a Halloween entertainment nothing is more spooky than the skeleton dance. It is nothing new, but it is seldom used at Halloween celebrations. The title is the ideal place for this fantastic performance. Drape one of the largest gables entirely in black, dead black. Set mirror at such an angle that they will reflect, not only the figure in the center of the stage, but will also reflect the reflected images from one mirror to another. If there are enough mirrors one dancer will be sufficient. If mirrors cannot be obtained train several dancers. The effect will be similar. The mirror frames must be concealed in the black draperies.

Dress the dancer all in black. Let the garment fit him closely. Leave no white object visible, he must be as black as draperies and floor covering. To make the skeleton, cut from white cloth the bones of the body and paste them securely to the cloth from which the black suit is made. Let these bones be rightly placed, those of the head where the head of the skeleton should be and the bones of the arm in their proper relations, etc. Set them exactly over the bones of the living dancer, so that the movements of the bones may correspond with the movements of the man under the black robe.

If there are mirrors paste a skeleton on the man's back, let it be the same as the one pasted in front, but if there are several dancers and no mirrors, paste the bones only on the front side of the dancers.

The dance, weird and wobbly, should be set to weird music. One of the attractive features of such a dance is the sudden disappearance of the skeletons. This is accomplished by merely turning the back to the audience. The spectators can not distinguish between the figure and the black of the draperies. The gable should not be too lighted.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

All-over lace waists are to be the rage this fall and winter. They will be lined with soft silk and chiffon. For this reason they need a support or their folds are lost in shapelessness. Here is a dainty support for the lace bodice. It is worn over the corset cover and holds the waist out without giving the stiff, ungraceful appearance which so many supports have given. Ribbon arm bands, falling just below the shoulders, hold the support in place. A pin can be used to hold the lace from slipping up.

Mrs. Miller served a luncheon and the guests had many chances of admiring the cozy home of the hostess. The players were Misses Andre Anderson, Nita Burton, Hollingsworth, Gibson of Dallas, Nita Hunter, Toddy, Edington, Washburn, Newlin, Elizabeth Tarilton, Louisa and Cornelia Vogel, Mrs. J. Malcolm Brown and Mrs. A. B. Wharton.

The fun possible when such a collocation of newly weds get together was happily illustrated. BEING A HORSE

There is an old expression, "I am a horse," and another which very often refers to an active politician as a "wheel horse," but it is a rare case that men are actually transformed into the equine species and made to do duty as man's best and truest friend. A few years ago "Uncle Smoky Brown," a well known West Texan ranchman, now gone to his reward, remarked in the little town of Snyder that he was a horse, and when the crowd affected to disbelieve him, he hitched himself to a buggy, putting on the regulation harness, and trotted several times around the public square. The crowd still expressing doubt that Uncle Smoky was really a horse, he got mad and ran away, coming in contact with the front end of a business house and tore the buggy into fragments. From that day on his claim to being a horse was never again disputed.

But over in the state of Mississippi they have a method of converting a man into a horse on short notice. Recently, Will and Julius Sullivan, living near Raleigh, went to see their uncle, who lived in Covington county. They called him out to the gate, and when he came to greet them, he was seized and taken to the stable. There he was harnessed to a plow and the two young villains compelled him to drag the implement through the fields just as if he was a sure-enough horse. At night the uncle was taken back to the stable, placed in a stall and given six ears of corn and a bundle of fodder. This method of torture was kept up for two days, and when the victim was rescued he was nearly dead from its effects. The nephews were arrested, and it is to be hoped, will be properly punished.

The first thing done to these young culprits should be to treat them like a negro very often treats a refractory mule. They should be brought into forcible and violent contact with a plow line until their hides show welts running in several directions. After having places skinned on them about the size of an average saddle blanket, they should be yoked together as oxen and hitched to a plow for a day's service at the regulation ox-gait. Then they would probably realize the difference between being a man and a beast of burden.

OUR LAY SERMON

"Thou shalt not steal."—Exodus xx, 15. The above constitutes one of the ten commandments given by God to the children of Israel, and it is just as applicable to the present generation as it was back in the early days of the human family. It is a principle that your father and mother endeavored to instill into your mind from the time when you first began to toddle about the house and before you had acquired the age of accountability. You must appropriate to your own use and benefit nothing that belongs to another.

Haas, the bank cashier, who threw $500 to a woman on the stage as an evidence of his sincere appreciation and was afterward found to be over $150,000 short in his accounts, doubtless knew of this commandment given by the God of the Israelites, and which has been handed on down to us. He was no doubt taught in his infancy that he must take for himself nothing that belonged to another, yet he was false to the law of God, the law of man, and the teachings of his poor old gray-headed parents. Now in a felon's cell, he is in position to consider these things from the standpoint of the man who dared, and what has he gained?

Young man, is not the fate of that individual sufficient to cause you to stop right where you are and ponder the situation before you go any further? Perhaps you do not intend to do wrong. The small amount of money you are daily pilfering from your employer does not amount to much. He will not miss it, and you honestly intend to return it. You intend to do the clean thing in the end.

But Hell is said to be paved with good intentions. You may have started out by taking the small change that you can get your hands on, but you will ultimately clean out the entire shop unless you stop right where you are. Haas doubtless began his peculations by taking but a few dollars, but he soon reached the point where he could afford to throw a $500 bill to a woman on the stage who pleased his fancy.

It was just like getting money from home. It came so easy, and without any manual labor—all he had to do was to stifle the wee small voice of conscience and take it. There was plenty of it there in the vaults, and he could fix it so that when his ship came in he could return it without any one being the wiser. Haas was not a thief at heart. He doubtless comforted himself at first with the thought that he was only an unknown borrower, who was negotiating a loan without having to go through the formality of putting up collateral.

Yet, in the end, he put up the dearest collateral that a human being could put up in any transaction. He put up his honor and it was lost. There are thousands of young men in the United States today who are standing right where Haas stood when he first began to do wrong, and they are on the verge of that precipice which always means ruin. The Telegram today counsels you to turn from the sin and error of your ways and again assume the position where you have a clean conscience and can look an honest man squarely in the face.

If you have been stealing from your employer, begin the work of restitution and repentance, and resolve in your heart that you will sin no more. Bow your head in grief and repentance before your Maker, ask Him to give you strength to put this temptation behind you, and resolve at that blessed moment that it has been put out of your life. You may be a thief, but bless your miserable, sinful heart, you are not so black but that you can find forgiveness and that peace that comes from a contrite heart. The dying thief upon the cross received forgiveness even at the last moment and entered Paradise with his Blessed Savior.

The present age is one of theft and graft. The whole world is actually teeming with it. Men in places of honor and trust are proving themselves to be common thieves every day of their lives. It is said that every man has his price, but the Telegram does not believe it. There is lots of the old Adam in us all, but that does not signify that we are all thieves. There are men about us every day whose lives give the lie to the assertion that we all might be thieves under certain conditions. They are men who may have been subjected to many of the very same temptations that have beset you, for they are human, and to err is said to be human. But they are men of force of character, who had the manhood sufficient to say, "I will not do this thing that will wreck and blight my life, and also bring the gray hairs of my dear old parents in sorrow to the grave."

They fought the fight and had the manhood to win. And that is just what you will have to do if you are now traveling the wrong path. That commandment which comes from God, says, "Thou shalt not steal." It does not say that you should not, but you shall not. The law of the land backs the law of God up to the same effect, and says if you do steal, you shall pay the price by wearing the stripes of the felon and serving in the state's penal institution. Don't flatter yourself that your crime will not find you out, for it will as sure as fate. Then you must pay the price, and those who are near and dear to you must also suffer.

Remember, that there is no evading the penalty. "Thou shalt not steal." Mr. Van Alen has gone to join Mr. Astor as a voluntary subject of the British king, and there is no grief in America over the loss of men who thus sell their birthright to acquire touch with British snobbery. Their expatriation is a national blessing. Let the good work go on.

It is now claimed that the modern game of football was a daily pastime of the ancient Greeks, and that fact is no doubt accountable for the aphorism that has been handed down to us to the effect that "when Greek meets Greek, then comes the tug of war."

A St. Louis clergyman says that the rich men of today are a curse to the church, but it is noticed that some of them come in powerfully handy about the time that church debts have to be raised.

If Uncle Henry Davis will only give out his letter of acceptance on a postal card in tabloid form, it will add much strength to the democratic national ticket. The country is surfeited with the other kind.

It is said that Editor Bryan is not saying much for Parker in the columns of the Commoner, but he is pounding the sawdust out of Roosevelt in his every issue.

The manner in which democratic presidential electors are resigning in Texas serves to disclose how weighty and important is the office of notary public.

It is said that General Kuropatkin is to be given command of the second army of New Granada by the president of the republic. He is said to be as well as the first, he ought to soon be ready to take charge of the third installment.

A report coming from Copenhagen that a czar's Baltic fleet was seen in the Gulf of Finland, who is to be the medium of Japanese control and influence in Korea, has seen twenty-three years' service under the government of Japan and has been decorated several times by the emperor. He first went to Tokyo in 1873 as secretary of the American legation. He is now spoken of as the coming ruler of the hermit nation, a title which he modestly disclaims, for he insists that he will be merely an adviser.—New Orleans States.

Russia gives England to understand that if she was not right busy now, she would have something to say on the subject of Tibet. There is a veiled threat, however, to see her later.

A Washington city man predicts the end of the world next year, and it gives rise to the suspicion that he is an other holder, and really has in mind the fate of the republican party.

Governor Vardaman of Mississippi still insists that he did not speak slightly of President Roosevelt's mother in law, and the best thing the governor can do is to let it remain a closed incident.

Business is getting good in Kentucky again along the same old lines. The feudists are pot-shooting each other in the same old careless way, and by election day business will be brisker than usual.

President Roosevelt promises that in due time the tariff will be revised by his friends. It is possible that the president has this last heart, and is conceding democratic success.

Senator Fairbanks is reported to be throwing up since the campaign is warming up in the east, and apprehension now felt that if the process continues there will be nothing left but a small wet spot.

It may be found later on that Tom Cat Platt has more than the proverbial nine lives, and he is not so dead as the present boss of the republican situation in New York would have him be.

The populists announce that they will have presidential electors in all the states of the union except two, this year, but what's the use.

Food For Thought

SHOULD GET TOGETHER Speaker Cannon and Chairman Babcock will have to get together some day for the campaign and agree on a date for the withdrawal of their "scare" about a democratic majority in the house of representatives. Of course it is not their purpose to let it stand up to the very day of voting.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HIS FIRST LOVE Robert Treat Paine, Jr., of Massachusetts, whose declaration for Roosevelt has given so much happiness to the supporters of that candidate, was, as he states himself, an original republican, but he imbibed certain populist ideas and, like many other populists, has gone back to his first love.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SMOOT KEEPS BUSY Instead of enjoying a vacation during the recess of congress the Hon. Reed Smoot is streaking it through the tall

Utah timber with the new gentle party at his heels and throwing things at him every jump. Life has been a pretty lively proposition for the Honorable Smoot during the last year or two.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE PANAMA STEAL The junketing committee of congress is about to visit the Isthmus and inspect the remains of the old Panama canal. Perhaps they might go on to Bogota and inspect the remains of that treaty with New Granada by which this government guaranteed to her the territorial integrity of her possessions on the Isthmus.—St. Paul Globe.

RULER OF KOREA Durham White Stevens, the unassuming American who is to be the medium of Japanese control and influence in Korea, has seen twenty-three years' service under the government of Japan and has been decorated several times by the emperor. He first went to Tokyo in 1873 as secretary of the American legation. He is now spoken of as the coming ruler of the hermit nation, a title which he modestly disclaims, for he insists that he will be merely an adviser.—New Orleans States.

A NATURAL RESULT The trial of Charles Kratz of St. Louis, accused of bribery, was postponed yesterday by reason of Mr. Kratz's illness. The amount of sickness among the hoodlums whose trials have been pending for more than a year is taking on the proportions of an epidemic.—Kansas City Star.

CALL HIM DENNIS John Alexander Dowle forbids his followers to call him Dowle. A good many of them will be calling him something even worse than that before long.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

GOOD CAMPAIGN MATERIAL That wild-eyed and bewiskered populist, ex-Senator W. A. Peffer of Kansas, has joined the republican party and says he will vote for Roosevelt as a better populist than Peffer. It's queer, but the republicans are not using this as campaign material.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FAIR MAY CONTINUE There is talk of running the World's Fair another year, with a recess in December to May. Maybe the president of the United States could see the big show next year.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ALL DEMOCRATS PLEASED Mr. Cleveland says of Judge Herrick, democratic nominee for governor of New York: "Certainly there can be no doubt of Judge Herrick's rugged honesty, great ability and unflinching devotion to democratic principles, and I am glad to see the younger element of the party so completely represented as is done by the nomination of Mr. Harrison." Every democratic element seems pleased at the work of the convention.—Chatanooga News.

SNOBBERY'S OWN INSIGNIA The English college of heraldry has discovered 177 American families who are entitled to its diploma of "exalted rank." Just what the English college of heraldry hears from some of the folks it has slighted.—Atlanta Journal.

SUGGESTION FOR SULLY Considering the confidence of D. J. Sully that there is going to be an eternal shortage in the cotton crop it would seem to save words and let him harvest the profits if he would devote his energies to raising cotton in the fields instead of trying to raise the price on the exchanges.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

JUDGE PARKER'S LETTER Judge Parker's letter of acceptance adds further to his stature of statesmanship. Contrasted with the violent declamations of his strenuous opponent, Judge Parker's letter is a plea for American liberty under, and not above, the law. He proclaims a doctrine of American government that is as timely as the influence of college republicanism, of imperialism, militarism and presidential despotism tend to shift our institutions from their constitutional base.—St. Louis Republic.

THE SWORD'S SONG Says Mr. Hayashi, a distinguished citizen of Japan: "Today we Japanese have battleships, torpedoes, cannon. The Chinese redden with the blood of our killed and of those we kill. Our torpedoes roar, our shrapnel shriek, our cannon breathe slaughter, and we die and are the cause of death. And you Occidentals say to us, 'You have won your rank; you have civilized yourselves.' Centuries upon centuries we have had artists, painters, sculptors, philosophers. In the sixteenth century we had published in Japanese the fables of Aesop. Were we then barbarians?" This with a mysterious Oriental smile.—St. Paul Globe.—Saturday Evening Post.

MOTHER OF TRUSTS New Jersey hardly makes any demands upon its citizens for financial support for state purposes, but it is said that there is an overflow of two millions annually from its copulent treasury for the benefit of the various municipalities. But in no other state does the taxation question run larger than there. Not satisfied with the output of the franchise industry, they want the railroads more heavily assessed and a more equitable distribution of the dividends.—Topeka Journal.

BEAUTIES OF IMAGINATION President Roosevelt declares that the treasury "deficit is imaginary." The world would be a pleasanter place in which to live if individuals could prove their debts were imaginary and pay them with imaginary checks.—Washington Post.

Cleanings From the Exchanges...

The game law of Texas is a good one as to its provisions, and the protection of fish and game, and the penalties it prescribes, but it lacks one vital enactment. There is no provision for the appointment of game wardens for each skin they own, and Fort Worth has nothing left to skin save a few beef steers that don't know that 14 miles east there is a better place to die.—Arlington Journal.

There ought to be room enough in Tarrant county for both Arlington and Fort Worth, but the Journal man evidently can't see it that way—he would crowd the place where the panther laid down entirely off the map. Tarrant county farmers may spend some time in looking for a better market than Fort Worth, but it is a waste of time and energy.

It is hard to practice philanthropy of any kind to any extent without being imposed upon. The man who gives away money or bestows it upon charitable or public objects is constantly preyed upon by human vultures who are anxious to gain something for nothing. When Captain Loyd of Fort Worth offered to pay the tax on all orphan dogs impounded and unclaimed, he little thought that the dogs turned loose with his tax on them would be caught again and returned to the pound, to be again redeemed with his carefully saved dollars. The good captain has repented of this method of exercising his humane nature.—Brownwood Bulletin.

The captain did not repent of the kindly instincts that prompted him to do a humane act. He simply declined to be held up by those who had designs upon his good nature.

The only Booker T. Washington president of Tuskegee Institute, has broken loose again. In a recent address before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, he said, in discussing the recent lynchings of the south, that "a white man can not shoot down a negro without cause and not lower himself, or a mob of white men lynch a negro and not bring shame on themselves and their race."—Honey Grove Citizen.

The adulation Booker has received at the hands of his friends in the north has turned his head so badly that it is feared his usefulness will be seriously impaired. He now seems to crave notoriety as a social lion infinitely more than he does as the head of Tuskegee Institute.

Governor Lanham has declined to disturb the farmers with campaign speeches. The farmers being an appreciative sort of a person, will no doubt extend a vote of thanks to the considerate governor.—Beaumont Journal.

But the Dallas Times-Herald is authority for the statement that the farmers of Texas are just dying to again hear that same old Confederate speech the governor has carried in stock for the past fourteen years. So, their lives should be preserved.

With Bailey and Culberson and Hoag and Cooper and Sheppard speaking in the doubtful states, the people of that section will gather an idea that there are giants in Texas these days, which, politically considered, are like unto the Sons of Anak of the olden times.—Bonham Favorite.

Texas has occupied a commanding influence in national politics this year, by reason of the fact that the political world is just awakening to the strength and power of her public men. And the day is not far distant when Texas will wrest from New York the honor of dominating the affairs of the nation.

Having discovered that he is not the whole democratic party, Mr. Pulitzer gets sour and reads the democracy of New York state a lecture for overlooking Mr. Pulitzer's friends and nominating for state offices men who can be elected.—El Paso Times.

Mr. Pulitzer started into the campaign with the idea that the New York World and himself would fight Roosevelt and the entire republican party to a finished victory. But lately he seems to have arrived at the conclusion that there are a few others who want to get out on the firing line, and he has very graciously permitted them to go so.

To enquiring friends from all over the state, we will say that the "possum crop in old Collin is all that the state ask. Our annual feast will be pulled off in October. Colonel Bill Sterrett of the Dallas News, poet laureate of the club, will be present and deliver a beautiful, pathetic, sentimental poem entitled "How the 'Possum Has the Collin." All those who know the colonel, will bring a jug in which to bottle the flowing tears.—McKinney Gazette.

The Gazette's annual "possum and later banquet has become an event of no little importance, and attracts attention all over the state. Colonel Sterrett is always the guest of honor, and never fails to do honor to the occasion.

Mormon elders have invaded Dallas. Perhaps they were sent to Texas to get inside information as to the practical workings of "the church in politics." The Salt Lake City saints have been exhorting their brethren to get out against the machine.—Dallas Times-Herald.

Perhaps those Mormon elders were attracted to Dallas by the information published in the Times-Herald recently that there are lots of Mormons in Texas.

If the mothers of the men who are doing the fighting could have a voice in the settlement of the war in the East would be settled in less than sixty minutes. But the mothers and wives are never considered by the war lords.—Bonham News.

No; the mother and wives and daughters of the men behind the guns have no voice in the fighting, but they are the chief sufferers. The thousands of brave men that have already been sacrificed to the dogs of war have left thousands of mourners behind, many of whom also are no doubt experiencing absolute penury.

A FAMOUS CORDIAL PARIS, Oct. 1.—(Copyright, 1904.)—If you should some day find that the chartrouse which you sip with your "petit noir" after dinner has a peculiar taste you will have cause for a suit against the French government, which has driven the Francs and who are now making it themselves.

The receiver appointed to manage the estate of the monks has decided to keep the brandy, and a well known scientist has been told to analyze it. The basis of the which large quantities have been found in the monks, but left with it was also a letter from the abbot in which he says that the brandy was his private property and that before leaving he "dealt with it as he saw fit."

Now no one knows what the wily monks may have put in the brandy, but the receiver declares it is all right and is going to use it all and says that he will soon be able to fill his orders for the cordial, the supply of which, I hear, is nearly exhausted in America.

THE MANUFACTURE OF TONY

Betty lifted her driver and swung around gracefully on her left toe, so that the heel was lowered, then the right shoulder. A firm expression of determination lit up her keen, brown eyes, and the little ball poised on a heap of sand, like a victim with its head laid on the block, seemed to be nerving itself in anticipation of the stroke.

The attitude was as correct as it was becoming, and no one but a hopelessly incapable amateur at the game, such as Tony, would have interrupted it. "This is the day," he said, "the 12th of February."

As though it was a house of cards, Betty's world took the attitude to pieces. First the driver was lowered, then the heel. After that she stood erect and the ball lost the tenacity of its expression. "One of these days you may make a record, Tony," she said, with admirable quietness; "but never tell me again that you like golf. Why, you haven't got enough interest in the game to see me make a bad drive."

Tony began in an humble way to rake up and sand with his lofter. "Caddy's more in my line, I suppose," he suggested.

She reproved him for ambition. "And what do you mean by the 12th of February?" she added.

were deeply engrossed in a passing study of theosophy. You could talk nothing else, but at last by the sweat of my brow, I brought you to the contemplation of my answer, which, with the most charming demonstration of sympathy, you asked to be allowed to put off till the 1st of February."

"Why do you sympathize?" inquired Betty. "Well, not so sympathetic to the 12th of January as you were on the 1st of February, when you deferred your answer still further till the 12th."

"Because today is the 12th," said Betty. "With a careful and studied precision that corroborated the truth of Tony's statement about theosophy, Betty rearranged her attitude, and once more the patient golf ball. There was a short pause, and then of her own accord she took the whole structure to pieces.

"I thought it was the 12th," she said quietly, as she turned. The whole fact of the matter was this: Betty Borraideale was by no means sorry that Tony had asked her to be his wife, that is to say, Mrs. Borraideale had insisted upon her accepting that point of view. Most mothers will admit that there is a small room for sentiment where it is necessary to marry a daughter. In the case of Tony the amount of sentiment was almost unusual, but so far it was mainly on his side.

Every time that he had applied for her answer she had dared the direct opposition to her mother's wishes and delayed her reply, for the simple reason that when a man seems colorless in character to a girl of 21 she shies indefinitely, sometimes accepting and finds herself in the field of matrimony. When she displayed before her mother these neutral traits of Tony's character,

Mrs. Borraideale weighed them willingly in the scale against the advantages in his position, and whether she surreptitiously pressed her finger down on her side of the balance or not, she always proved very satisfactorily that the colorlessness of his character was a color sequence compared with the excellence of his position.

In Betty's favor it should be said that she could not bring herself to give her hand when it held no compensation for the gain that would have been placed there in return. Such honorable scruples in a daughter of 21 are, no doubt, most distressing to a mother of 47, and there are probably a few people who would be found to sympathize with Mrs. Borraideale.

Yet so it was, and with every respect for Tony, Betty possessed sufficient strength of mind not to accept his offer, and plenty of vacillation in order to enable her to avoid the direct refusal.

As he had reminded her, this was the 12th of February, and yet she was no nearer to a definite determination, for during the month of vacillation that came between the two dates, she had been so busy with her apparently unattractive metal texture.

He was generous, good-natured, equal in temper, and absolutely without conceit, but these are nearly all negative qualities, far from likely to satiate the mind of a girl of 21.

She felt now, however, as they stood there on the course, that it had come to a turn in the tide of affairs when an answer was inevitable, and every thought in her mind seemed to point to the direct refusal.

It was not that her decision was influenced by the prospect of another and brighter horizon. As far as she could see, Tony was the only matrimonial asylum to the landscape which she had been contemplating for the last three years, ever since she had intended to drive. Her brain breast finds admirable soil in the mind of a girl just out of her teens, and she was quite young enough to think that the two happy marriages in the bush are infinitely more to be desired than the hollow gold of the marriage that lies in the hollow of the hand.

Accordingly, when she remarked that she thought it was the 12th of the month it was nearly the last struggle of her vacillation, which she knew could no longer be of service.

"It was the 12th," said Tony firmly. Betty looked down disconcertedly at the golf ball, and then an idea came to her assistance.

but he went hopefully into the clubhouse to get the rest of his sticks and engage a caddy.

He came out again Betty was just taking her seat in the intended driver. He watched the ball as it soared like a lark into the air.

"There goes my chance," he remarked, and Betty gave him the sweetest smile in the world as he started after it.

With a certain amount of despair Tony made his heap and his stick. One was as ineffectual as the other, and through a small sand storm he watched the brief career of his ball.

In three strokes Betty had practically forgotten the contest, but at the twentieth she remembered it.

seen also the smile that spread contentedly over his features as he noted the reluctance with which she accepted the caddy's advice.

It chanced again that, as Betty was in the act of making her final putt, the groundman stroled by on his way to the pavilion.

"What did she do it in?" he asked the caddy in an undertone. "Sixty-three, if she counts throwing it over her shoulder."

The groundman lethargically pursued his way to the pavilion. When the little ball had disappeared for the last time Betty gave her clubs to the caddy and waited for Tony's return.

She did not ask any questions until the flag was put back into the hole and he looked into her face with a question in his eyes.

Tony's train of thought and he looked up.

"How?" he asked. "They've got a more idea of sport than than—" His imagination failed him.

"How do you mean?" Tony asked again. "Why, that Miss Borraideale. She's a rum sort of golfer, she isn't much of a game to win when you tell lies about it."

In the ladies' dressing room, the window of which was open, Betty overheard and held her breath.

"Will you explain a little more what you mean?" said Tony quietly. The man felt uncomfortable, but he endeavored to justify his statement.

THE MOTHERS CLUB; WHAT THE ORGANIZATION MEANS

By Mrs. Theodore W. Birney. A few words regarding the Mothers' Clubs and the work of these clubs in bettering the condition of the child and the race have been prepared by Mrs. Theodore W. Birney of Washington.

Organized motherhood means hearts full of love for all God's creatures, kind words of co-operation for all existing organizations working for the betterment of humanity, faith in the possibilities of human nature, courage to go steadily forward, patience under adverse criticism or misapprehension, and humility in the midst of triumphs.

The organization of parents is the greatest trust company which history will have to record of this century. As President Roosevelt said in addressing a mothers' congress, "The standard of a nation's strength is found in its homes."

Membership in the organization is practically limitless, since any individual, married or single, man or woman, may join.

IN THE COURTS

Judge M. E. Smith of the Seventeenth district court yesterday morning began the hearing of S. E. Brauer, who is accused of having, on May 5 last, made an assault upon Engineer Ross of the Frisco. The case was concluded before adjournment of court last evening and given the jury, which returned a verdict acquitting the defendant.

After being out one day the jury which sat in judgment in the yesterday case against C. E. McDonald, yesterday noon returned a verdict assessing his punishment at a $1,500 fine.

The L. B. Curd murder case has been set down for trial in the Seventeenth district court, October 8. A venire of forty men has been ordered drawn by the court.

On October 11 the W. K. Logan murder case will be called up for trial in the Seventeenth district court.

The Oscar White assault to murder case has, by consent, been continued. The Andrew Crews murder case will be heard Monday.

COURT OF CIVIL APPEALS The regular session of the court of civil appeals convenes Monday morning at 10:30. There are twelve cases on the docket for hearing the first day.

The court has 215 cases on the entire docket, which is 100 more cases than were on the docket at the beginning of the last term. One hundred and four cases were filed during the summer vacation.

It seems there are several additional applications for clerk of the court, who is to be named at Monday's session. Five have already filed their applications, and there will be others. One of the more recent applicants is John Tarlton of Fort Worth.

The board of legal examiners for the Second supreme judicial district, which meets Monday in the rooms of the court of civil appeals, will pass upon the applications of five for license to practice at the bar in all courts of the state of Texas.

TAXES NOW DUE The tax collector's office has everything in readiness to begin the issuance of tax receipts for the year 1904. All taxes become due beginning October 1, yesterday.

Aunt Susan Terrell of Grapevine, one of the old pioneers of the county, has the honor of being the first person to pay her taxes. Colonel J. M. Peers is usually the first to settle his taxes.

B.B.B. BOTANIC BLOOD BALM A Household Remedy Cures SCROFULA, ULCERS, CALT RHEUM, ECZEMA every form of malignant SKIN ERUPTION, besides being efficacious in toning up the system and restoring the constitution when impaired from any cause.

We believe that in all professions and vocations the standards are higher than formerly, and the world's call is for trained and skillful workers in every field, save that of parenthood.

As soon as the men and women of America are fully awakened to the dangers to which their ignorance gives rise, there will be such appreciation of the rights of children to be well born, wisely bred and trained, as will place PARENTHOOD where it justly belongs—THE HIGHEST OF ALL VOCATIONS.

As far as possible, whenever the development, care and good of childhood is at stake, there has organized motherhood rallied. Mothers have used their influence in behalf of free kindergartens in connection with the public schools; in having school buildings properly constructed, lighted, heated and ventilated; have manifested an interest in the teacher which in time shall cause her to be universally regarded as a friend and helper, rather than as a machine, and which will demand that her salary be adequate to the faithful service she renders.

We regard the teacher as the mother's dearest friend. With her the mothers look upon the children FIRST as AS FUTURE FATHERS AND MOTHERS, NEXT AS CITIZENS, and the mothers' clubs are demanding that public educational systems adopt their standards of values in the adjustment of curricula.

We believe that from the kindergarten up through college, these two fundamental principles of education should have precedence. The question that some of these young men or women may never marry has no bearing upon the case; the probability is that they will, and the issues at stake are so vital that the good of the race demands that they shall be fully prepared for such high calling, whether or not they assume its obligations.

Such training we believe will give all a love of humanity, for they who can clearly realize their duty to the unborn will not neglect their duty to the living, and the boys and girls who have imbibed such teachings in the schools as well as in the home, will be the powers for good wherever destiny places them.

We do not believe "rights of children" is to be construed into the right to be impertinent, disobedient, rude, careless of what is due to others; but that the very reverse is intended by all intelligent students of child culture.

We believe the mere physical fact of motherhood does not constitute a woman a true mother. In many childless women the maternal instinct is as beautiful and strong as that of any mother.

When character building begins in the child and is given the greatest prominence in all education—all work—then will principle rather than policy dominate the lives of men and women, and truth and justice, twin attributes of character, will sit enthroned in human consciousness.

ALICE McL. BRINNEY.

Quite a number paid their taxes yesterday.

Collector Walker looks for a very large collection during the next few weeks.

A 10 per cent penalty is attached after February 1, if taxes are not paid by the last of January.

TWO MEN ARRESTED George Sewell and Louis Hart were arrested at Handley late Friday night by Chief Deputy Sheriff Hamil Scott and brought to Fort Worth. They were jailed on a charge of burglary.

They are charged with taking from the barn of Bob Delee of Glenwood, a set of harness valued at $50. The harness were found in the barn of Hart.

AFTER TAX DELINQUENTS The sheriff's office had much to do yesterday serving tax citations, the number being, as yet, more than in the previous eight years. One deputy thought the number would reach at least 2,500. These citations are on parties delinquent for the year 1902. They have until October 1, in which to pay taxes and redeem property.

A lot of 1,000 fresh mackerel which were sent from Fort Clyde, Tex., to Boston last week were disposed of at that city for $200. This is said to be the highest price ever paid in Boston and would bring the retail figure for the fish to 30 or 50 cents apiece.

At Hartford, Conn., it is proposed to sound a certain alarm on fire system immediately after each murder, as a signal to put the officers throughout the city on their guard at once. All suspicious characters could then be taken in hand on the shortest notice.

SAVED HIS LIFE J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1902. "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two months longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first application gave me great relief; two fifty-cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." 25c, 50c, $1.00. H. T. Cash Prizes to Careful Observers

To stimulate interest in The Telegram classified pages, three prizes of $1.00 each are going to be awarded EVERY WEEK to the three persons who will each week find certain misspelled words on this page in one of the seven issues of each week. Only the business manager of the paper will know on what day the words will be misspelled. It may be Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday or Friday, Saturday or Sunday. The misspelled words will appear only on one day of each week. New prizes will be awarded every week. The three who get correct answers to the paper first will receive the awards. There may be two words or names misspelled. There may be three or even four. Maybe more. No one will know except the business manager and none but him will know what the words are. Watch the Want Page every day, commencing next Sunday.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN. YOU MAY WIN A DOLLAR EASILY.

October 2. If you think that is the day read the ads on the want page very carefully. If it isn't, read Monday's paper carefully. If that is not the lucky day try Tuesday, and so on through the week until the right day turns up. It won't take you long to run over the ads every evening. When the right day comes around write a letter to the Contest Editor and tell him what you think the errors are. Mark the envelope "For the Contest Editor of The Telegram," and either bring or send it to The Telegram office. As each envelope is received it will be immediately numbered. The first three envelopes containing the correct answers will entitle the owners to the three prizes of One Dollar each. Each contest closes Saturday at 6 o'clock p. m. Each contest will begin with the Sunday morning paper and runs through the seven issues of the week. Telegram employees or members of their families not allowed to compete.

Market Quotations

NORTH FORT WORTH, TEX., Oct. 1—There has been a liberal supply of both steers and cows throughout the week, while the receipts of calves have been lighter than for some time. Included in the offerings there has been a larger proportion of good to choice steers and cows than during any week for some time, and also a fair supply of common to medium kinds. The packers have bought liberally throughout the week, causing an active market, but today's offerings met with a more indifferent demand, and the trading was slow to start. When the movement to the scales began prices showed little change from yesterday.

Steers—Prices of killing steers have ranged from $2.40 to $4.25 per 100, but the bulk of good fat steers have sold at $3 to $2.25, with medium steers $2.65 to $3. Packers have bought freely, but yesterday's market showed the effect of too liberal receipts, and prices declined 10c per 100 on such kinds as were selling at $3 and upward, and the market is closing with prices 10c to 15c per 100 lower on these kinds than on Monday.

Feeder buyers have operated extensively, taking the bulk of those going at $2.25 to $2.80 per 100, though some have been sold to feeders as high as $3.05. The demand for the light weight common kinds has been a little better, though prices are unchanged.

Cows—Full loads of choice cows have sold as high as $3 per 100 during the week but lists of sales show very few above $2.50, though there have been far more than the usual number at $2 to $2.25. Fair to medium cows are quotable at $1.65 to $2; canners $1.25 to $1.50. Prices are generally 10c per 100 lower than on Monday, and steady to 10c per 100 lower than last Friday.

Bulls—The demand from feeders has been better than for some time at prices ranging from $1.65 to $2.

Calves—Receipts have been light, but fully equal to the demand. Prices show little change, the bulk ranging from $2 to $2.75 per 100.

Hogs—Receipts for the week have been the heaviest for several months. The markets North have declined 15c to 20c per 100, and our market here has also declined about the same. The top today on Oklahoma hogs, weighing from 200 to 250 pounds, was $5.00. Texas hogs of the same weight and quality are bringing from $5.65 to $5.75 per 100, pigs and lights $5.25; stockers $3.50 to $4.50.

Sheep—The sheep market is in about the same condition as last week—market strong on good fat medium wethers, averaging from $0 to $9 per 100; mixed wethers and ewes, fat, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, if good and fat, $4.50 to $5. Stockers are selling from $2 to $2.50 per 100.

COTTON (By Private Wire to M. H. Thomas & Co.) NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Cotton opened easy in response to a further decline in Liverpool at a loss of 6 points. There was a good demand from shorts on the additional decline, but with the weather good, the week-end statement showing a big accumulation in visible supply and a bearish bureau report expected Monday, there was plenty of cotton for sale. Western interests and Wall Street seemed the chief sellers, while the southern planters bought on the decline. Trading was fairly active. Toward the middle of the morning a demand from shorts developed and prices rallied from a net loss of 8 to 12 points to a net gain of 10 points. Futures closed quiet at 10 points decline, middling upland, 10.50c, middling Gulf 10.75c, sales 100 bales. Estimated receipts at the ports today, 70,000 bales, against 52,345 last week and 47,314 last year; for the week 480,000 bales, against 438,317 last week and 305,415 last year. STOCKS (By Private Wire to M. H. Thomas & Co.) NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The stock market today showed unabated strength, nor was the improvement checked in the least by the character of the bank statement, which was regarded as unfavorable. The stimulus to the renewed bull activity appeared to be based upon a belief that the large interests were engaged in effecting amicably number of deals which would tend to harmonize and improve the entire situation. Sentiment was strongly influenced by the continued aggressiveness of St. Paul, which advanced over 1 per cent. Gains of 1 to 1 1/2 per cent were recorded by Louisville and Nashville and Norfolk and Western. Rock Island and Western preferred rose 2 1/2 and the common 1 per cent, on rumors that the road would be allied with the Rock Island system in the future. Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, on light sales, sold 8 per cent above yesterday's closing. States Steel sold about 1 per cent. There was an advance of nearly 2 per cent in Colorado Fuel and Iron, which caused sharp gains in Tennessee Coal and Iron and the Republic Iron and Steel issues. The market closed active and buoyant at the top prices. In the government bonds the three were off 1 per cent. Railroad and other bonds were strong and active.

MONEY ON CALL (By Private Wire to M. H. Thomas & Co.) NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Money on call nominal; no loans; time loans steady, market in opposition to the millers and the elevator people, they must be prepared to see comparative easiness on the cash situation with the further continuance of the liberal Northwestern receipts which, it is expected, will last throughout the present month at least, and perhaps well into November. Liverpool futures were from 1/4 higher to unchanged. Business was rather light and chiefly of a local professional character. December closed $1.12 1/2, after selling as high as $1.13 1/4 and as low as $1.11 1/2. The range of May was from $1.12 1/2 to $1.13 1/4, closing at $1.13 1/4. Corn had a quiet start, and for a few minutes the tone was somewhat in favor of a slight decline. That changed in course of the day and the market ruled firm and somewhat higher for the greater part of the day. Country acceptances were only of trifling extent from this state and much smaller from elsewhere. Liverpool was 1/4 higher for futures and 1/4 lower for spot corn. December closed at the top price of the day, 51 1-5, the lowest was 50 5-8. The May followed, closing at the top, 49 1/4, the lowest was 48 1/4. Oats ruled firm. A good demand by cash buyers exists. Elevator people were busy buyers, causing the firmness. To the bids sent to the country last night there was hardly any response. December closed at 21c, after selling as high as 21 1/2c and as low as 20 5-8c. The range of May was from 22 1/2c to 23 1/2c, closing at 23 1/2c. Rye ruled firm, good milling demand advancing the market. No. 2 sold at 30c f. o. d. Barley held steady and a fair trade was done. Maltling ranged from 40c to 51c. Provisions were strong and closed at about the best prices of the day. Outside buying and covering by local shorts were the features of the trading. Flaxseed was normally unchanged. A good demand exists, with light offerings. No. 1 Northwestern is $1.17 1/2 nominal; No. 1 Southwestern $1.10 1/2 nominal. Timothy seed was at a standstill. Country lots were quoted at from $2.20 to $2.60. LIVERPOOL GRAIN CABLE (By Private Wire to M. H. Thomas & Co.) LIVERPOOL, Oct. 1.—The following changes were noted in the corn and wheat markets: Wheat closed 1/4 up. Corn closed 1/4 up.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS (By Private Wire to M. H. Thomas & Co.) CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The grain and provision
