

EVERY REPORT ADDS MORE TO THE ROOSEVELT VOTE IN ELECTORAL COLLEGE

ESTIMATES FROM HEADQUARTERS IN NEW YORK STATE THAT REPUBLICAN TICKET WILL HAVE 325 VOTES WHEN THE FINAL COUNT IS MADE—THE MAJORITIES REPORTED FROM DOUBTFUL STATES ARE IN SOME INSTANCES STUPENDOUS AND SURPRISE PARTY LEADERS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY—REPUBLICANS CLAIM MISSOURI FOR NATIONAL TICKET, AND ALTHOUGH FOLK IS ELECTED GOVERNOR, SOME OF HIS ASSOCIATES ON THE TICKET ARE DEFEATED—CONGRESSMAN COWHERD, CHAIRMAN OF DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE, IS DEFEATED IN FIFTH MISSOURI DISTRICT—WHILE WEST VIRGINIA HAS GONE FOR ROOSEVELT, THE DEMOCRATS CLAIM DAWSON STATE TICKET HAS BEEN DEFEATED—REPUBLICANS WILL HAVE HUNDRED MAJORITY IN NEXT HOUSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—President Roosevelt will probably have 325 electoral votes as a result of yesterday's balloting. Unofficial returns give the basis for this estimate, which, however, may be increased by eighteen votes from Missouri when the returns from that state shall be completed or, on the other hand, may be decreased by seven votes when the count is completed in West Virginia. Both sides claim the victory in Missouri, where the republican state committee believes it has elected Walbridge for governor by 2,000 to 4,000 and the state as well for Roosevelt.

In West Virginia the returns come in very slowly, but the republican victory is indicated.

A tabulated statement of the indicated result shows Roosevelt carried the following states with an electoral vote of 225:

Colorado, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Nevada, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, Washington, Wyoming.

Parker electors were elected in the following states, with a total vote of 151:

Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia.

Returns from Missouri, Maryland and West Virginia are awaited with great interest. The first named is claimed by both sides, although it is generally conceded that Roosevelt carried West Virginia by more than 10,000, but returns are extremely meager. Those so far received show only slight republican losses. It is thought probable that the legislature will be republican in both branches. This body elects a successor to Senator Scott.

The returns from Minnesota indicate the election of the democratic nominee for governor, Johnson, who ran especially well in Scandinavian counties. His success, however, had no effect on the national ticket, which went to Roosevelt by at least 100,000. Some republican newspapers still claim the state is not lost to their candidate, Dunn.

In Wisconsin, while the republican national ticket went through by a heavy majority, it is thought the legislature will be so divided between republican factions a deadlock may occur over the choice of a successor to Senator Quarles.

Complete figures are lacking from Iowa, but those at hand indicate the success of the entire republican state ticket.

While Colorado probably gave Roosevelt 10,000 plurality, it seems that the state ticket is in doubt. Scattered ballots were cast to the number of at least 40,000 and counting is very slow. On the Pacific coast republican success is general. In California where Roosevelt's majority will be at least 50,000 the next legislature will be republican by a large majority. It will select a successor to Senator Bard.

Reports from Nebraska are incomplete as to the state ticket and the election of Berg is claimed by the democratic state committee.

A feature of the returns from Missouri is the defeat of Representative Cowherd, chairman of the democratic congressional committee. Indications are that the next house of representatives will be heavily republican. Dispatches so far received show 202 congressmen have been elected by the republicans, against 138 by the democrats. Of the remaining districts thirty-two are now represented by republicans and thirteen by democrats.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 9.—Dispatches up to 9:30 o'clock show the republicans elected 230 congressmen and the democrats 128. Of the remaining eighteen districts seven are now represented by republicans and eleven by democrats. It is supposed the republicans will have a majority of about an even hundred in the next house of representatives.

SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON
WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—While Washington manifests no surprise over the result of the election there are very few even of the most sanguine republicans who were prepared for its overwhelming character. This is especially true of the two houses of congress. They did not as a rule, however, consider it possible the republicans could make gains in the house of representatives, much less hold their own in the senate, where preponderance of retiring republicans was great. Both of these results seem to have been accomplished.

Oliver W. Stewart, prohibition national secretary, estimates that Chicago cast 5,000 votes for the Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow. In 1903 the total vote cast in the city was around 2,500, and in the county was 3,500.

WASHINGTON INDICATIONS
Arkansas: Tonight and Thursday probably rain; colder.
Oklahoma and Indian Territory: Tonight and Thursday showers; colder.
East Texas, north: Tonight and Thursday generally fair; colder in west portion tonight; colder Thursday.
East Texas, south: Tonight and Thursday generally fair, light to fresh northerly to westerly winds on coast.

COLORADO
DENVER, Nov. 9.—Impartial estimates, based on late returns today, indicate Roosevelt's plurality in Colorado will be about 20,000, and that Alva Adams (Dem.) will have at least 5,000 plurality over James H. Peabody (Rep.) for governor.

CONNECTICUT
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 9.—Revised returns from every city and town give Roosevelt a plurality of 38,127. Lieutenant Governor Roberts, republican candidate for governor, led Judge Robertson, his opponent, by 25,971.

CALIFORNIA
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—Roosevelt's majority will be in the neighborhood of 50,000, and seven and probably eight congressmen will be of the administration's political creed. The next legislature will be republican by a big majority and the United States senator to succeed Senator Bard will be elected from the republican ranks.

CONGRESS
First district—Gillette.
Third district—Knowlan.
Fourth district—Julius Kahn.
Fifth district—E. A. Hayes.
Sixth district—Needham.
Eighth district—S. C. Smith.
All are republicans.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 9.—A large republican majority has been rolled up all over California, and from indications the vote will be the heaviest ever cast in the state. The plurality of Roosevelt is estimated will be 75,000, with a clean republican sweep of more important offices.

Eight republicans to congress have been elected by a party vote—a solid republican delegation. The magnitude of the republican victory can be better understood when it is shown that even the counties which hitherto have been invincible as democratic strongholds, have given way and returned a majority for Roosevelt.

DELAWARE
WILMINGTON, Nov. 9.—Roosevelt's plurality in this state will be over 4,000 while Lea, republican candidate for governor, has a plurality of nearly 3,500.

HAWAII
HONOLULU, Nov. 8.—Returns received up to 10 p. m. indicate that Kalanialoale, Republican, is re-elected congressman. The legislature will be republican.

ILLINOIS
CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—The fate of the constitutional amendment authorizing a new charter for the city of Chicago, is in doubt. It received a large majority in Chicago, but apparently thousands of persons failed to vote one way or the other. In the state the vote cast was affirmative—that is, 50 per cent of the total vote was in favor of the amendment, 15 per cent was negative and 35 per cent of the voters failed to do anything. The total vote in the state for the charter amendment must, to be effective, be equal to a majority of all the votes cast in the state for presidential candidates.

Socialist leaders declare that Chicago has given 40,000 votes to Eugene V. Debs, their candidate for president, and it was freely predicted that as many more would be cast in the state. As compared to the election of 1902 the vote is doubled, the total in Chicago then being slightly over 20,000. In the election last year the socialists cast only 14,000 votes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 9.—The latest figures from all counties in the state give Indiana to the republicans by probably 60,000. The republicans gain two congressmen, defeating Representatives Myers and Robinson in the Second and Twelfth districts. Many counties went republican for the first time and majorities are increased in nearly all others. The state ticket runs 5,000 behind the national ticket.

LOUISIANA
NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 9.—The bitter municipal campaign which raged here for the past six weeks terminated in the election of Martin Behrman and Congressman Charles Buck by substantial majorities. Feeling during the closing hours of the election was heightened by calling out armed citizen soldiers by the mayor to insure a fair count. However, there was no trouble of a serious character, the regular democrats winning by a majority of about four thousand. The national democratic ticket carried the state about 35,000 majority. The republicans took but little interest in the election. All democratic nominees for congress were elected.

IDAHO
BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 9.—Eighty-three precincts out of 482 in the state give Roosevelt 8,005, Parker 3,191. Gooding for governor 7,015, Heitfeld 2,011. Only twelve of twenty-one counties are represented in the returns so far. A plurality of 25,000 for Roosevelt is indicated by returns at hand and 15,000 for Gooding.

INDIANA
INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 9.—Incomplete returns at 5 a. m. indicate that Roosevelt's plurality will reach 60,000. Marion county, in which Indianapolis is situated, yielded a plurality variously estimated at from 9,000 to 11,000.

ILLINOIS
CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Eugene V. Debs, socialist candidate for president, has received thirty votes in his home precinct, twice what he received four

MARYLAND
BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 9.—Returns from over several counties are still incomplete, but there is no doubt the state has gone republican by a small majority. Republican State Chairman Hanna claims the republican majority will be 2,000. In the six congressional districts of the state three republicans and two democrats are elected, with the remaining district in doubt.

MONTANA
BUTTE, Nov. 9.—Roosevelt carried Montana by 7,200 plurality. Governor Toole (Dem.) has been elected by about 800 majority.

BRYAN DENIES IT
LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 9.—William J. Bryan today denied he will meet W. R. Hearst and Thomas E. Watson in New York a week from now for the purpose of taking steps toward organizing a new party. The statement he will go to New York for such a purpose was made by Melvin G. Fuller, manager of Watson's campaign. Mr. Bryan has some re-organization plans, but he intends to stand sponsor for them himself.

governor John L. Bates by William L. Douglass, democratic candidate, and the tremendous vote cast throughout the state was a noteworthy feature of yesterday's election. Douglass will be the first democratic governor elected since 1822. Roosevelt's plurality is nearly 90,000.

MISSOURI
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—The Republic (Dem.) this morning says that Folk (Dem.) for governor, has carried the state by 25,000 majority, but that the Roosevelt landslide in the country at large has affected Missouri and the national ticket has run behind the state ticket to an extent estimated variously at from 8,000 to 12,000. It states that Folk will carry St. Louis by a majority of about 6,000.

was City from the Fifth district, by a plurality of about 1,200.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 9.—The Star (independent) today claims republicans carried Missouri for the national ticket and claims the election of Folk (Dem.) for governor.

NEBRASKA
LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 9.—Chairman Allen of the democratic state committee said early today that Berge was elected governor and that the Republican majority in this (Lancaster) county would be reduced 1,000.

NEW YORK
NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Complete returns from Brooklyn give Roosevelt 113,404, Parker 111,559, Higgins 106,122, Herrick 119,481. Complete returns from Queens give Roosevelt 14,116, Parker 18,129, Higgins 13,352, Herrick 13,756.

NEW YORK
NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The latest returns from New York state with some districts missing indicate a plurality of 168,731 for Roosevelt and about 71,000 for Higgins. Roosevelt had approximately 206,000 outside of Greater New York, while the Parker plurality in the city is less than 38,000.

OHIO
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 9.—Revised returns today show that while the republican plurality on the national tickets in Ohio is approximately 200,000, it is about 30,000 less on the state ticket.

The socialist vote is less than was expected. While the republicans still claim all the Ohio congressmen except Garber, the chairman of the democratic state committee, who is re-elected in the Fourth district, says the democrats do not concede the Fifth, the Thirteenth and the Fifteenth districts.

OREGON
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 8.—The Oregonian estimates from complete and incomplete returns at hand that Roosevelt has carried Oregon by 40,582.

PENNSYLVANIA
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Roosevelt's majority in this state will reach the unprecedented figures of 400,000, and the republicans probably elected thirty-one of the thirty-two congressmen.

RHODE ISLAND
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 9.—At 5 o'clock this morning 127 districts for governor in Rhode Island gave Garvin (Dem.) 26,504, Uter (Rep.) 27,424.

Basing the estimate upon the vote cast last year in the missing districts it is believed that Uter will be elected governor by less than a thousand plurality.

The republican state general officers also have apparently been elected. With ten districts out of seventy-nine yet to be heard from in the first congressional district, Granger (Dem.) leads Stiness (Rep.) by 431 votes. The issue is still in doubt.

The legislature is overwhelmingly republican in both branches and insures the re-election of Senator Nelson with Aldrich in January.

SOUTH DAKOTA
SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 9.—Returns are slow, but late figures corroborate the estimate of 40,000 majority for Roosevelt. The state ticket is elected by about the same majority.

UTAH
SALT LAKE, Utah, Nov. 9.—It is safe to say that Roosevelt has carried the state by a plurality of over 12,000. The state ticket is still in doubt, although chance favors the election of the republican ticket throughout. This uncertainty is due to the amazing strength developed in Salt Lake City and county by the American party, which is fighting alleged Mormon church domination in both the old parties. While Salt Lake county has probably gone for Roosevelt by over 3,000 plurality, it is a question whether Cutler (Rep.) for governor will have a third of that. In some districts nearly every ticket voted was scratched. The legislature undoubtedly will be republican, insuring a republican success to United States Senator Kerns.

WISCONSIN
At large—Joseph Howell (Rep.) re-elected.

WISCONSIN
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 9.—While the election returns in Wisconsin are far from complete, estimates give Roosevelt and Fairbanks over 75,000 plurality in the state.

WISCONSIN
MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9.—The democratic candidate for governor, George W. Peck, concedes his defeat. The legislature will be largely republican, though it looks like a deadlock on United States senator.

WASHINGTON
SEATTLE, Nov. 9.—But a small portion of the vote on state senators and representatives in Washington has been counted. If the present ratio continues both houses will be strongly republican.

Bulletins received so far from the forecast on the gubernatorial race valueless. At the present time (1:30) Mead leads in the western part of the state, while Turner is ahead in the eastern part.

WEST VIRGINIA
ELKINS, W. Va., Nov. 9.—At 1:30 this morning Senator Davis said: "I have no statement to make for publication. The returns show that the country has gone overwhelmingly republican. I will be highly gratified if my home town and county give me a good vote."

WEST VIRGINIA
WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 9.—It is admitted by democratic headquarters that Roosevelt carried West Virginia by a majority of upward of 10,000, but it is claimed Cornwell, democrat, has beaten Dawson, republican, for governor and possibly the entire democratic ticket may go into office on the anti-Dawson wave. Republicans have the legislature on joint ballot, but by reduced majority, insuring the return of N. B. Scott to the senate. Republicans elected three of the five congressmen, while the democrats claim Walker over Dayton in the Second and Murdoch over Woodyard in the Fourth.

ASK CLAY TO EXPLAIN REPORT

WACO, Nov. 9.—At a meeting of the Texas Fraternal congress this morning a recommendation was submitted by Chairman Frazer of the committee on legislation asking that Insurance Commissioner W. J. The recommendation claims that the report is a great injustice to fraternal insurance societies and favors old line companies.

The recommendation was a hot one and will be acted on this afternoon.

NO SENSATION IN THE REPLY FROM COMMISSION

Mr. Colquitt Has Answered the Inquiries of Two Former Governors Regarding Consolidation Bill

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 9.—Railroad Commissioner O. B. Colquitt finished the reply of the commission to the letters of ex-Governors J. S. Hogg and J. D. Sayers yesterday and forwarded it to these gentlemen.

It is a very voluminous document of fifty-two closely type-written pages, and showing all the lines merged into one system.

The reply of the commission is entirely devoid of ginger or sensational features, and is devoted entirely to a complete and comprehensive treatment of the subject under consideration.

Three copies of the letter were made; one to be filed among the records of the commission, and one each for Governor Hogg and Governor Sayers.

A SWINGING LADDER TEMPTS A GIRL OF DARING FEET HANGING

BANGOR, Nov. 9.—Miss Alice Bolton, a Brewer high school girl of 15, accomplished a feat which none of the boys of the town has dared to attempt, and she is proudly wearing the title of the spunkiest girl in Brewer.

In South Brewer there is in process of construction a steel standpipe, 100 feet high and the great black tube at the pipe stands on the summit of a high hill, so that from its top may be had a view of the surrounding country for miles up and down the Penobscot. Alice Bolton longed for this view and asked to be allowed to ascend the standpipe, but the workmen told her that until the structure should be completed there would be no safe and suitable means by which a girl or woman could get to the top.

"How do you get up there yourselves?" asked Alice.

She was told that the men mounted to the top by a swinging ladder—a slender, swaying thing, dangerous for any but skillful climbers used to making such ascents.

Waiting until all the men had left the standpipe for their full noon hour, Alice entered the pipe through the manhole near the ground and looked up through the great black tube at the small circle of blue sky overhead. The swinging ladder was there in place—a series of light wooden ladders strung together with ropes and secured at the top by iron hooks over the edge of the pipe. Without hesitation she grasped the lower ladder and began her dizzy climb. Without once pausing she reached the top and peered over the edge of the pipe.

Determined to get a good look for her high climb, Alice clambered over the top edge of the pipe and sat with her feet resting on the narrow iron shelf or collar of the structure, which is about two feet below the top. No one saw her at first, but when the men began to come back from dinner some of them caught sight of white skirts waving in the brisk breeze and stopped to gaze in wonder.

The girl saw them and with a defiant wave of her hand started to descend. In a few minutes she was on earth again and told the wits that it was just no job at all for a swinging ladder.

OOM PAUL HAS HIDDEN HIS TREASURE

It Is Said the Millions of the Former President of Transvaal Republic Are Safe in the United States

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—There are certain persons in Berlin, close personal friends of the late President Kruger, who could give valuable information to England concerning the millions which President Kruger, before the invasion of the Transvaal by English troops, concealed, and for which the British government has been searching for many months without being able to find any trace of the money.

On very good authority, I hear that it was wily old Oom Paul who long ago succeeded in removing this money from Africa, and that before his death he made arrangements to have it transferred to America to be placed in the banks in the United States, so as to form a nucleus for a fund to be used in the future struggle of the Boers against England, which he felt will come some day when the Boers have recovered from the defeat suffered in the recent war.

THE MARKETS

Receipts of cattle for the early market were again moderate, only some 1,500 head appearing.

A good demand for feeders existed all day, and the good kinds were scarce.

In cows the short supply developed only two loads of the choice sort, the others consisting of common to medium.

Bulls were in good demand, mostly from feeders. The supply was shorter than on Tuesday, and while no advance was quoted in prices the market seemed to be a shade stronger.

A shortage existed in the calf supply, not half as many coming in as in the early part of the week.

Eleven loads of hogs were in the pens at the opening of the market. One other load came in before noon, making the total supply around 1,000.

The demand was strong from the start, and after a short session of sorting up, the whole drove moved briskly to the scales.

LIVES OR DIVIDENDS

Chicago Post. When are we to have an end of this terrible slaughter on our railroads, this holding of human life at such a cheap price that it falls below railroad earnings and stock dividends?

The wreck in Missouri, with its tale of twenty-nine lives, was one that never should have occurred—one that could not have happened if railroads everywhere in the country were compelled by law to install devices which have proved themselves to be valuable in avoiding the almost certain results of carelessness, mistaken judgment or overtaxed physical strength on the part of train crews.

We do not mean that there is any automatic mechanical contrivance in existence—or ever will be—that can fully take the place of human agency in the handling of railroad trains and in preventing accidents. But it is generally recognized that a block system goes a long way in that direction.

Of course, back of the block system and at different points throughout it are the men responsible for its perfect operation. These can be eliminated, but the fewer the human agents of whom alertness is demanded the less the probability of accident—that is, provided these agents are numerous enough for the proper performance of their duties.

Something must be done soon to reduce this awful railway slaughter. Dividends must not be allowed to rank human life and safety in the operation of trains. Ordinary passenger cars must be made stronger—as strong as Pullmans. The dozing engineer, the thoughtless dispatcher, and the guessing conductor—as well as all other persons and things that go to swell our appalling death list on the railroads—must be held in check by every device that has proved its practicability.

Congress has something to do toward making railway travel safer, and the people will demand that it be done quickly.

E. E. FOSDICK HOME IS AFIRE

At 3:15 this afternoon the residence of E. E. Fosdick, at the corner of Lake and Presidio streets, caught fire.

The department made a quick run and arriving on the scene the chief saw the heavy wind from the southwest end of the structure.

The residence of Mr. Fosdick is a handsome one. It is two stories, and is elaborately furnished, a complete modern home.

At 3:40 the fire in the Fosdick house was believed to be completely under control, with a probable damage of $1,500.

At that time, however, it was discovered that the fire had been communicated to the home of James Beard, 1304 Lake street, just south of the Fosdick home, and the firemen turned their attention to that structure.

The firemen worked under great difficulty. The wind of the bill was very strong and the smoke from the fire was dense. Every available piece of apparatus was called in question for the fight.

LESSON OF THE ELECTION

The result of the national election Tuesday did not surprise anybody but the republicans. They were surprised only at the completeness of the democratic rout. The democracy went into the fight worse than whiped from the very start. Abandoning all that the party had stood for during the last ten years, taking up a man as its standard bearer who represented the other extreme, and jumping frantically into the republican sound money band wagon, it is no wonder that the party went down in one of the most overwhelming defeats it has ever known.

When it was evidenced at the St. Louis convention that the men who had assumed the party reins were too cowardly to make any specific declaration on the financial question, and abandoned the usual plank, it was apparent that the opportunity was lost. When the candidate nominated sprang his famous gold telegram upon the country it was an act that was nothing more nor less than a deliberate slap in the face of the millions of voters who do not believe in the single gold standard.

Those Texas advocates of the lock-jawed judge who were so certain that his nomination would result in a sweep of the country from Maine to California, and who were so frantic in their advocacy of turning the party control over to peanut politicians of the Dave Hill stripe, may well look upon the result of their work with dismay.

The ideal eastern candidate, representing all that is dear to the heart of the eastern democrat, and all that is repugnant to the beller of the rank and file of the real members of the party, could not muster as many electoral votes as were cast for William J. Bryan—the man of unsond financial views and of alleged populist tendencies.

Where was democracy when the pile driver fell Tuesday? The answer to that question is found in the general apathy which marked every phase of the campaign so far as the democratic party was concerned.

The real democracy of the nation felt that it had been outraged and sold into bondage, and its enthusiasm never could rise above zero under such untoward circumstances.

The democratic party of the nation has been betrayed into the hands of its enemies. The democracy of 1904 was a spurious democracy, molded and shaped too much after the republican style to commend itself to the masses who had been taught that democracy was the party of the people.

There was so little difference really in the two platforms that a choice had to be simply made between the personality of the two candidates, and the Roosevelt personality was the more winsome of the two.

The average citizen of this great republic of ours has a profound admiration for the man who does things. There may not be an entire indorsement of the manner in which the things are done, but the fact that they are done appeals with telling effect upon the American heart.

Another mistake of democracy was in having their candidate make the race for the presidency on his immaculate dignity. The old proverb that pride goeth before a great fall was never more forcibly illustrated than in the case of Judge Parker.

At the time when he should have been appealing to the masses of the American people in an effort to convince them that no mistake had been made in his nomination, and assuring them that he stood for all the party held dear, he sat on his veranda and amused his little grandson.

The people of the United States did not know Parker. He has not been so prominent politically as to acquire a national reputation. He has done absolutely nothing to demonstrate he is a statesman above the mediocre, and when he sat down complacently to wait for the election to fall into his lap, he made a mistake that of itself would have been fatal to his party.

Judge Parker may be a very able man, and it is a conceded fact that he is an honest man, but that does not lessen the force of the blow that has just been dealt to the democratic party.

But perhaps it may be drawing it a little too strong to say that the blow has fallen on democracy. As a matter of fact, it has fallen on the self-constituted leaders of the democratic party, who wrenched the old bark loose from its ancient moorings and started it down stream heavily laden with mud instead of democratic principles.

Reorganizers and harmonizers of democracy, behold the evidences of your mighty work. It is a pretty high price to pay for your whistle, but the party pays it. You escape without any skinned places. You have done the work, not wisely, but too well.

But the grand old party of the people will come from under the wreck you have pulled about as devoted head. There are brave hearts and true hearts who will snatch the rudder from your incompetent hands and endeavor to pilot the old craft back into natural and tranquil waters. Even yet they will snatch victory from your crushing defeat, and again plant the democratic standard in the hearts of the people and upon the citadels now occupied by the enemy.

Democracy has sustained many defeats, but it has never been conquered. Democratic principles can never die, for the reason that they represent the only real hope of the people. The election four years hence will tell different story than that of Tuesday. At least we hope so. But it won't if Dave Hill and his followers handle the wheel.

In the meantime the reorganizers and fine-haired architects who built the last national democratic structure are again invited to make a careful survey of their work.

That campaign orator who told a Missouri political meeting that Joe Folk was a regular Carrie Nation in coat and trousers, certainly paid the distinguished gentleman a very doubtful compliment. It sounds very much like the negro preacher who in introducing them that while his skin was white, "thank God, he's got a black heart."

There are five women still drawing pensions at Washington, as the widows of men who took part in the revolutionary war. This war ended 129 years ago, and when we consider that fact it makes us shudder for the possibilities of the present pension list.

Texas is not the only state in the union that suffers from the carelessness of legislative clerks. It has just been discovered that by an error committed by the New York legislature two years ago, the statutes of that state require that the governor shall be a reputable practicing physician.

The Russians now admit a loss of 48,000 men and 800 officers in the ten days' fighting around Mukden, and these are probably far from the true figures. At any rate, it was a terrible price to render the god of war.

It is whispered from Austin that Governor Lanham intends that his second administration shall set in a perfect sea of glory, and is already at work on a message to the state legislature that will be a genuine corker.

The total cost of the Russian lunatic fleet now en route to destruction at the hands of the Japanese is given at $65,750,000. The whole outfit will look like thirty cents when old Togo gets through with it.

The $130,000 for the formation of a Chinese branch of the Red Cross society. The indications are that the Flowery Kingdom will soon need something of the kind.

Tom Watson says he sells cotton and writes magazine articles as a means of paying his campaign expenses, and this sincere declaration relieves the republican party of a most horrible suspicion.

Wages are pretty high in Canada at this time, the railroads of that country having much trouble in getting laborers to work on extensions at $1.75 per day.

A full-blood Oneida Indian has just been given a position as a motorman on a St. Louis street railway. Is this a new scheme to utilize the services of the noble red man as a danger signal?

It is urged that the principal reason that the mule is such a persistent kicker is owing to the fact that he has no hope of posterity.

The Japanese employed in the attempted reduction of Port Arthur do not appear to be advancing altogether as fast as the war expenses.

It is alleged that General Kurapatkin receives an official salary of $100,000 per annum, over and above his running expenses.

The frost is now on the pumpkin, and possum and taters are both ripe. What different does it make how the election goes, so long as these comforts are remaining.

Tom Lawson's pouring of Standard Oil on the political waters seems to have had the unprecedented effect of stirring up a mighty tempest.

The Japanese minister to the United States has just been successfully operated on for appendicitis. Who says the Japs are not now a civilized nation?

Pope Plus is said to devote several hours each day to the study of European politics. He doubtless finds the American article too strenuous.

A New York man has just refused $1,000 for a Black Minorca rooster. He must intend to keep that chicken to crow for Parker.

Senator Bailey was a visitor to the fair in St. Louis a few days ago, and is said to have received more attention than any other of the exhibits.

Negotiations are now pending for a treaty of arbitration between the United States and Germany. The big World's Fair is drawing to a close, and will pass out of existence with November.

Sleazings From the ...Exchanges... THE YELLOW HOLLY

The St. Louis Republic says: "Probably the most envied of all the men at the World's Fair last Saturday were the business and circulation managers of The Fort Worth Telegram, who were in charge of fourteen pretty Texas girls.—Mineral Wells Index.

The Telegram party attracted a great deal of attention at the World's Fair, but that was only natural. A bevy of fourteen beautiful Texas girls would attract favorable attention even in heaven, where beauty is supposed to be lying around promiscuously.

A paper of Texas recently announced to the public that it will give to its readers from now on Foster's weather. What kind of weather does Foster dish out? If it is any better than the usual kind, send some down this way.—Terrell Transcript.

Foster weather is the kind that usually throws the government forecasters into all kind of conniption fits by reason of its accuracy. It can be obtained from the columns of The Telegram in weekly installments. Watch the Saturday paper.

A five-foot vein of coal at Fort Hancock, near El Paso, 250 feet below the surface, has been discovered and will prove to be of much value to the Pass City. Cheap coal means much to a city like El Paso. It not only provides cheap fuel for warming the homes of the people but greatly enlarges the markets of manufacturing. A good coal mine near our doors would be of great value to Abilene. Coal prices are high and our annual coal bill runs up to pretty considerable proportions.—Abilene Reporter.

And every time the mercury crawls down a little the price of coal jumps up. Cheap coal is an important item for every city and town in Texas, but the indications are that few of them will enjoy the blessing this season.

Would it be impertinent to remind the democracy of Texas that there are some of the largest trusts in the state that are to be found on the globe. And Texas is overwhelmingly democratic. We ought to be able to put this and that together.—Texarkana Courier.

Texas has an anti-trust law that is now being tested before the United States supreme court. If it stands the fire, there are going to be some interesting developments in this state soon.

It is said that the people of the north and east are much worried over the question of the Thanksgiving turkey, fearing that the bird will not be obtainable at any price. Just now the birds are quoted at a very high figure, and Thanksgiving nineteen days off. Texas is getting to be a turkey producing state, and today she is capable of producing all the Thanksgiving gobblers needed to celebrate in these United States.—Denison Herald.

But the Texas turkey is a democratic bird and it would be a difficult matter to induce him to gobble Thanksgiving in a rock-ribbed republican state.

Those Russians who fired on the fleet of trawlers need to consult an oculist right quick. Their eyesight is something not to be depended on and it is dangerous to have them voyaging around the waters of commerce. Perhaps France in her friendliness could send a delegation of eye doctors aboard the fleet and avoid unpleasant mistakes in the not dim and distant future.—San Antonio Light.

It makes no difference about the Russian eyesight so long as the national preparator is in good running order. They will yet be able to prove that every one of those English fishing vessels was a Japanese torpedo boat and that there was a terrible naval engagement in the North sea.

The latest New York broker to go up the flue left assets valued at $7,000 and debts aggregating $500,000. Canada is certainly getting some very undesirable immigration from this country.—Austin Tribune.

Such is the usual fate of these latter-day Napoleons of finance. They flit across the financial horizon with all the brilliancy of a flaming meteor and pass out of existence and are known no more, just as this meteoric prototype. In the haste to acquire riches much is being done that does not measure up to the requirements of honesty.

The report of the interstate commerce commission shows for the year ending June 30, 1904, 53,130 casualties, of which 2,787 were killed and 51,343 injured. This is an increase over the year ending June 30, 1903, of 233 killed and 2,266 injured. If the report of the last two or three months is kept up the year ending June 30, 1905, will make a showing that will remind us of the slaughter of Mukden.—Amarillo Herald.

The frequency of railway accidents is actually appalling, and is causing a great deal of discussion all over the country. There is some agitation of the idea of compelling all roads to double track as a preventive measure.

The traveling grocers have been skinning the farmers down in Somervell county. They sell staves below cost, but make it back on spices, extracts, etc. One farmer bought a bill of $9.41. He showed it to his grocer, who agreed to furnish him the same goods at $6.—Stephenville Empire.

This same old scheme is worked on the Texas farmer every season when they have a little money in their pockets. The wonder is that it can be worked so many times in succession, but it seems to have no limit. The home merchant can usually discount any of these bills.

George Brendon attends a social gathering of shabby London gentility at Mrs. Jersey's boarding house, with his friend Leonard Train, a boarder in the house. His object is to learn from Mrs. Jersey his supposed knowledge of his birth. Mrs. Jersey is mysteriously murdered during the night. Twigs of yellow holly which Brendon wore in his buttonhole (given him by his sweetheart Dorothy Ward) found by Train, beside cold body. Inquiries reveal nothing. Train and Brendon had slept together and though Train can not reason out how Brendon had passed out of the room during the night (because Train had locked the door in a way that Brendon could not get out) he suspects Brendon guilty of the murder. Dorothy's mother, who hates Brendon and looks on his suit for Dorothy's hand with disfavor, speaks of yellow holly in Brendon's presence. Brendon claims he is innocent, but the latter denies claims because of belief that Brendon's mother's marriage had never been recorded. Lola Voley, a music hall dancer, loves Brendon because of service performed for her. Lola learns of Brendon's love for Dorothy and confesses that she has hired a detective, Bawdsey, to watch Brendon, because she, Lola, fears Brendon's success in proving his birth will draw him from her. At a dinner party given by Mrs. Ward, Derrington meets the former knows him not. Train is present and while Brendon and Derrington are testing each other Mrs. Ward draws Train's story of the night of murder and Train's conclusion of Brendon's guilt, and the story of finding of don't side of body. Train inadvertently connects Brendon with crime. Mrs. Ward is now satisfied. The guests bid the hostess good night. Bawdsey is on board with Miss Bull, who succeeded Mrs. Jersey as landlady. He secures rooms Leonard Derrington occupied on a pretext. Tells fascinating tales of travel and adventure to Miss Bull. She likes him and shows him to visit him at her boarding house. Derrington meets Mrs. Ward, Dorothy and Lola Voley. Bawdsey tells of love for woman and having been hired by her to watch him. Secrets revealed to Bawdsey by Bawdsey. Tells Brendon he is apt to be arrested for the crime, if he doesn't leave the country. Claims Lord Derrington and Mrs. Ward are both anxious to have him leave England.

Bawdsey tells Brendon of Mrs. Ward's information, Derrington admires Brendon. A party to see Lola dance. Dorothy meets Lola in park. A secretary, Mrs. Derrington advises Mrs. Ward, Ireland, the lawyer, tells Mrs. Ward he saw her at San Remo, when Brendon's father was in the country. A very unpleasant affair with Mrs. Ward. Derrington invited to dine with Lord Derrington. Both discuss Brendon's affairs and position. Brendon sees way clear to marry Dorothy. Lord Derrington helps to put him where his paragon should. He claims him as his grandson. Some interesting confessions are made by Derrington. Miss Bull is found to be Mrs. Ward's sister. Some past history recalled. The story of San Remo.

Bawdsey and Brendon meet. An interview is had. Bawdsey tells the evidence is in small favor with Lord Derrington. Bawdsey shown to have impersonated Lord Derrington on night of Mrs. Jersey's death. He wants Brendon to help him to marry Lola. Talks of the reward of £1,000. Brendon tells Bawdsey he suspects that the same person who killed Mrs. Jersey killed his father. Bawdsey starts an interesting tale. Derrington's water interest. Bawdsey makes a few interesting statements. Bawdsey tells something of the murder of Mrs. Jersey and why he was in the house about the time the crime was committed. A newspaper with the story of a woman answering the description of Lola is at hand. She had been caught in the act of tearing from the parish register a page. This was at Wargrove, in Essex. Brendon now knows that this is the place where his parents were married and Lola had gone there to destroy the evidence of his legal parentage, so she could marry him. Brendon hurries to the assistance of Lola and finds that she has not been taken to prison. Brendon and Lola meet and Brendon asks Lola to tell the story of her visit to Mrs. Jersey. The woman is repentant and does so. It is interesting.

(Continued from Yesterday.) "Stop! I must say exactly how it happened. Percy was leaning against the parapet of the parade in a careless attitude. He did not even move when I rushed on him with the stiletto, and had Ireland not caught my arm I should have killed him. Ireland said that he had followed me, thinking I was Violet Howard, to ask me to return to the hotel. He talked some rubbish about a gentle born English girl being out at night, but when he found that I was only a servant there was no more of that talk. Poor Eliza Stokes could have been out till dawn for all these gentlemen cared. They laughed at me, Percy leaning against the parapet, Ireland beside me, holding the stiletto carelessly in his hand. As I said, I lost my temper, and I told Percy what I thought of that fool Rosina Lockwood. He lost his temper also, but that only made me more angry. At last he dashed forward, and I believe he would have struck me but that Mr. Ireland intervened.

"I don't know exactly how it happened, but in moving Mr. Ireland evidently forgot how he held the stiletto and put out his hand with the weapon pointing outwards. In rushing on me Percy came against it, and it ran right into his heart. With a choking cry he fell dead. I was terrified and began to wring my hands. Ireland knelt down and found that Percy was dead. He seized my wrist and told me to hold my tongue lest I should be accused of the death. I said it was his fault. He replied it was an accident. But I had got the stiletto, I had tried to kill Percy, and Ireland declared that if I said anything he would denounce me as the criminal. I was terrified as I saw the danger in which I was placed. Ireland suggested that we should throw the body over the parapet on to the beach, and it would be thought robbers had killed Percy. I agreed, and we threw the body of my darling overboard. Oh, how my heart ached when I heard it fall on the cruel, cruel stones!

"With Ireland I arranged to hold my tongue, and on his part he professed he would say nothing. The next day the news of the discovery of the body came. Senora Velez, from whom I had borrowed the stiletto, knowing of my love for Percy and being in love with him herself, accused me of the crime. I denied it and said that if she did not hold her tongue I would tell her husband how she had loved Percy. She was a jealous brute, so she remained quiet. I gave her back the stiletto, which I had obtained from Ireland. We were both safe, but I was so ill that I left the hotel and returned to England. George Rates, who never suspected my share in the death, followed."

It was at this point that George ceased reading. He now knew the worst. His father had died by accident, and Ireland had been the unwitting cause of his death. Brendon wondered how the old man could have carried the knowledge all these years without speaking. He determined to have an interview with him. But at last he knew the truth about the death in San Remo. It incupated no one, and he could not see how according to Bawdsey—it could be connected with the murder of Mrs. Jersey.

CHAPTER XXII. GEORGE read the remainder of Mrs. Jersey's confession and then put it away. Even when he got to the end he could not connect the San Remo crime with that of Amelia square. It was in his mind to see his grandfather and tell the story to him, backed by the production of the confession. But on second thought he decided to see Bawdsey first. He wired for an appointment and received a reply stating that Bawdsey was going out of town at 5 o'clock that day, but would be in his rooms till then. Within an hour George was on his way to Bloomsbury.

On arriving he found that the detective expected him and went to his room. Bawdsey was still in a disturbed state, as he was most anxious to get down the country to help Lola out of her difficulty. He received Brendon irritably and in silence. George saw that the man was all nerves and did not resent his sharp greeting. He sat down and opened the conversation. "You are going down to see Lola?" he asked.

"Of course. I am much worried over her. She may get into serious trouble over this freak."

"Well, why not tell the judge she is insane at times? Then she will get off lightly."

"Would that be true?" asked the detective, struck by the idea.

"As true as most things. She really is not accountable for her actions when she gets into these frenzies, and in such a one she must have been to attempt the burglary."

"Poor soul! I wonder how she is now."

"Oh, she is not troubled much. Her spirits are as good as usual. She hardly seems to realize the enormity of her offense."

"How do you know?" asked Bawdsey, with a stare.

"Because I saw her last night. After I left you I took the train to Wargrove and had an interview with her."

"You might have told me, Mr. Brendon," said Bawdsey in a wounded tone.

"What would have been the use of that? I can manage my own business, I hope."

"Considering how I love her, it is my business also."

George shrugged his shoulders. "Well, you see, Bawdsey, it was your intention to see Lola first. I guessed as much, so I stole a march on you."

Bawdsey fenced. "I don't see how you can say that."

"I can. You know that Lola was in this house on the night the woman died."

"I presume so, since she got the confession, and she must have secured it to know where your parents were married."

"Well, then, knowing that, you wished to get that confession."

"Yes, I did," said the detective, "and why not? I desired to know if Mrs. Jersey said anything about the San Remo crime in it."

"I can tell you that. She did. I have the confession."

Bawdsey bounded from his chair. "Where is it?" he asked.

"In my rooms, locked away."

"I do call that a shame," grumbled Bawdsey. "You might have trusted me, Mr. Brendon."

"Might I? Would you have trusted me?"

"I do. You know I do."

"To such an extent as suits yourself. But would you have shown me that confession had it come into your possession?"

"You are not showing it to me," said Bawdsey evasively.

"That is not an answer. But I'll show you the confession whenever you like. Come, now, would you have shown it to me?"

"Since you have read it, why ask me that question?" snapped the detective. "You know."

"Yes, I know that you would have burned the confession. I know that to have a paper in existence which sets forth that Mr. Bawdsey's true name is George Rates is not to your liking. You are George Rates?"

Bawdsey shrugged his shoulders. "There is no use denying it," he said. "You have my wife's handwriting."

"Was Mrs. Jersey really your wife?" "She was. We married soon after we left San Remo. She was hard up or she would not have married me."

"And you went to the States?" "We did. There I took the name of Jersey and tried a variety of things, none of which came to any good. Then I left Eliza."

"Why did you do that?" "Because she was a devil," said Bawdsey, his face lighting up. "I tried all the means in my power to make her happy, but she was always quarreling and nagging and lamenting that she had not married that Vane—your father, Mr. Brendon."

"Did she tell you about the murder?" "It wasn't a murder," protested Bawdsey. "No, she did not tell me, but from a hint or two she dropped about getting money from Mr. Ireland I guessed that he had something to do with it. I came across to England, and I saw him. He told me the whole story."

"Did you get money from him?" "I did not. I am an honest man, although you do not seem to think so. I left all that blackmailing to my wife. She came over to get money out of Ireland. He simply said that he would tell the whole truth and call the woman a Velez as a witness about the dagger."

"But that woman is dead?" "Oh, no, she isn't," said Bawdsey coolly. "Lola told me that she was alive and still in San Remo. She could have made things very hot for my wife. But, falling Ireland, my wife—Mrs. Jersey, we will call her—had another string to her bow. She heard how Lord Derrington denied the marriage, and how you were living with your grandfather Lockwood. She went to Derrington and—"

"I know the rest. And you came to live in this house."

"Not at the time. I went back to the States, but as I could do nothing there I returned to England. Then I took up the detective business and called myself Bawdsey. I came to see my wife. She would not let me call myself her husband, and as I had no great liking for her, I agreed. I was in this house for a few weeks, and then I got my own diggings. I saw as little of Mrs. Jersey as was possible."

"Why was that?" "Well, sir," replied Bawdsey frankly. "I didn't hold with the annuity she was getting."

"In a word, you disapproved of the blackmail?"

"That's a good, useful word, sir," said Bawdsey easily. "Yes, I did. I never would take a penny from her, and when I lived here during the few weeks I paid my board. Yes, sir, I'm an honest man."

"I am convinced you are, Bawdsey, and I apologize for my suspicions. But in some ways—eh?"

"I didn't act very straight, you mean. Well, sir, I fancied, seeing what you know, that you might suspect me of killing her."

"No, Bawdsey. As you have acted so fairly all through, I am convinced that you are innocent on that score. But why did you say that the San Remo crime was connected with the death of Mrs. Jersey?"

Bawdsey opened his eyes. "Can't you see, sir? The stiletto."

"Oh, you mean that the weapon used by Lola was the same one as my father was killed with?"

"Certainly, Mr. Brendon. It belonged to Senora Velez, the mother. She gave it to Lola, for I saw it in her rooms before the death of Mrs. Jersey, and I recognized it from the description given by my wife."

"But there are dozens of stilletos like that one. Lord Derrington showed it to me."

"Yes, that's true enough, but you see, from what my wife told me, I knew that she had got the dagger from the woman Velez. It wasn't hard to see when I dropped across a similar weapon in the room of a woman also called Velez that it was the same. Now you see how it is that Lola knew so much about the death of your father and how she and I came to talk of the matter."

"How did you drop on the subject in the first place?"

"The name was enough for me. I saw Lola, and I fell in love with her, as you know. Then I remembered the name Velez and got an introduction to her. One thing led to another until I knew the whole story, and she admitted that the stiletto was the one with which Mr. Vane had been killed."

George thought for a few minutes. "Tell me, Bawdsey," he said at length, "did you suspect Lola of committing the crime?"

"Yes, I did," admitted Bawdsey frankly. "You see, she has a devil of a temper. I never knew that she had gone to see Mrs. Jersey on that night, although I might have guessed it because of the way she tried to learn the whereabouts of the house."

"You mean the crimson light? Her excuse was foolish I thought the other day when you stated it," said George. "But when did you first suspect her?"

"When I picked up the stiletto I recognized it at once. It was my intention to take it round to her, so that she should not be incriminated, but I was so upset—as I said the other day—that I forgot all about the matter. When I did think it was too late, for Derrington woke up and put on his coat, I wondered whether he would mention the stiletto to me, but he never did."

"Because he knew nothing about it," said George. "Mrs. Ward stole it, as I told you."

"Oh, I see how it is now. But I really did suspect Lola. I asked her if she was in the house. She said that she had been, although she denied it at first."

"How did you bring her to confess?" "I threatened to identify the stiletto. Then she told the truth—if it was the truth," said Bawdsey.

"Oh, I think so. I don't believe she killed the woman. Since she had got what she wanted—the confession—there was no sense in her committing a murder. No, I quite believe that she threw the dagger at Mrs. Jersey's feet, as she said."

Bawdsey scratched his head. "I wonder who did kill Eliza," he muttered. "If Lola is innocent and I am innocent," he looked at Brendon.

"I can't help you," replied George, rising. "The thing is quite beyond me. It must have been some one in the house."

"No," replied Bawdsey positively. "Remember Mr. Train heard a door close—the front door—some time about half past 11."

"That was you, was it not?"

"No, sir. I did not arrive till close on 12, and Mrs. Jersey was already dead. The door must have been opened and closed by the murderer, and he left just before I arrived."

"But how could he have entered? You alone had the latchkey. As to Lola, she slipped in while Mrs. Jersey was dismissing her guests."

Bawdsey shook his head. "I can't understand it, sir. Of course there was another gentleman who had the house for a short time." He looked meaningly at Brendon.

George looked puzzled. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"Well, sir," began Bawdsey, with his invariable formula, "I don't like to mention names, and I am sure what I say will go no further, but there is Mr. Ireland."

Brendon started to his feet, with an agitated face. "Ireland! Oh, no, that is impossible," he declared, "quite impossible! Why should he have a latchkey?"

"After your grandfather's death he was in possession of the house for a time, and the keys would be with him. In handing them to Lord Derrington he might have forgotten one."

"It's improbable."

"I don't think so. It was a chance, I think, at first, but when he knew that Mrs. Jersey occupied the house he might have found the latchkey useful to see her when he felt inclined. I dare say she tried to get money out of him again."

"But he refused her."

Fireman Is Stricken in the Cab by a Thrown Stone and the Engineer Runs the Whole Machine

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 9.—Passengers coming down the Norfolk and Western railroad from Norfolk to Wayne had a unique experience. They were riding behind an engine with a one-man crew. The engineer guided the iron steed from one flag station to another, when he would stop and fire up.

The act was necessitated through his fireman being stricken in the cab. It was first thought he had succumbed to an attack of heart disease, but investigation revealed that he had been struck with a lump of coal or a stone thrown through the cab, and his skull fractured. He will die.

Few if any of the passengers were aware of what had happened. The fireman, Walter Braden, was injured at a point near Radnor.

SOUBRETTE IS SAVIOR OF A COMPANY

She Did Not Blame the Boys, But if They Must Throw Eggs, Throw Them at the Manager

IRWIN, Pa., Nov. 9.—Incidental to the strike of the actors of a cheap dramatic company here there was a lively scene on the street in front of the opera house. Only a small audience was present, and it grew impatient when the curtain did not go up at the usual time.

At 9 o'clock there was a demonstration in front of the opera house. The manager announced that some of the actors had "laid down" on him and that there would be no performance. Money would be refunded at the box office, he said. There was a rush from the house and nearby stores had a call for eggs. Back on the stage the company was getting ready to go to the hotel. As the stage people turned into Main street several eggs were sent whizzing close to them. After they had splashed against the walls, one of the actresses, Miss Molly Magill, singing and dancing soubrette, addressed the crowd of egg-throwers.

"Boys, I can't blame you much, but I want to tell you something. We have not had a cent of salary in eight weeks. We have been abused and starved, and many a night we have not had a bed to sleep in. We have finally made up our minds to quit and take chances on the street. You would not work under these circumstances, and you must not blame us. If you must throw eggs, throw them at the manager."

The speech had the desired effect. The little party proceeded to its hotel unmolested. The egg-throwers waited for the "manager," but he had received a tip and slipped from the house unnoticed.

WEATHER FORECAST

The weather tonight and tomorrow is to be cooler. Last night to many in the south it was extremely chilly. The biting blasts of cold winds were felt on all sides. Today it is much warmer and since the election returns are about all in the weather has moderated and once more the hum-drum existence of life is resumed.

As a matter of fact it begins to look as if there was to be but little winter in this portion of the state. Not yet has a real frost visited here, and plants which are usually taken in at this time of the year are yet in the yard. The season is an exceptionally mild one and the prospect of much cold this winter from present indications has gone glimmering away for the time being.

LOU DILLON EQUALS THE DELMAR RECORD

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 9.—Lou Dillon, the recently dethroned queen of the trotting world, has been driven by Millard Sanders a mile in 2:01 1-4, thereby equalling the record recently established by Major Delmar for the distance, without the aid of a pacemaker or wind shield in front.

The little chestnut mare was provided with a perfect track and climatic conditions. The quarter was passed in 0:29 3-4; without faltering Lou Dillon kept on to the half in 1:29 1-4, making faster time for that distance than characterized the recent world's record-breaking attempt of Major Delmar. The marvelous flight of speed was continued to the three-quarters pole, which she passed in 1:29 3-4. From there on home ground Dillon seemed to tire. She finished the final quarter in slow time, concluding the mile in 2:01 1-4.

SLAPS WOMEN ON THE FACE WITH FLAT HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Palmer S. Ely of East Orange, the son of a wealthy publisher, caused a commotion in the elephant-house in the Central Park "zoo" by rushing through the crowd, slapping women and girls across the face with the flat of his hand, and when men attempted to stop him he pushed a little girl dangerously near the trunk elephant, "Hattie."

The latter incident brought on the greatest excitement. The elephant, chained in the rear of box stalls, and they are separated from the sightseers only by a horizontal bar. They can almost reach the people with the tip of their trunks.

A shrill scream of fright went up from the child, and the women of the throng, already highly excited, joined her in cries that she be saved. The commotion excited "Hattie." She swung her trunk through the air, and handed her over the bar to the outstretched hands of a hysterical mother, who then made off through the crowd.

Then the keeper seized Ely, who is a little more than six feet tall, and he broke and fought in mad flight. He backed through the crowd, fighting off Snyder. The crowd scattered before him, and their cries brought Policeman Coyle and Detectives Moran and Little. It was all the four men could do to overpower the wild-eyed little man, and he fought them all the way to the Arsenal station.

After Ely had been taken to the Arsenal he raved about wanting to go to Twenty-fourth street. It became necessary to confine him in a straightjacket to keep him from doing himself bodily harm.

Thousands of Men and Women Die Every Year of Kidney Disease Because They Don't Know In Time They Have Got It. Don't fail to keep watch of your health. Just let your kidneys at least once a month. Just let a tumblerful of morning urine stand 24 hours, and if it becomes cloudy, or particles float about in it, or if a reddish-brown sediment forms, it is positive proof that your kidneys have been diseased for months and are utterly unable to do their work, and unless properly treated at once, Bright's disease, diabetes, uric acid and blood poisoning, with fatal results, will surely follow.

NEW TRACK RECORD FOR AN AUTOMOBILE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Frank Croker, driving a 75-horsepower racing car, has made a new track record at the Empire City track from one mile to twelve in a twenty mile trial against time. On his thirteenth mile one of the tires of his machine exploded and he had to withdraw.

The first mile was covered in 57 3-5 seconds, four-fifths of a second better than the previous amateur record of

WAILING SOUND IN CORNFIELD IS HEARD

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio, Nov. 9.—A 200-acre field of corn four miles west of Portage contains a mystery which as yet has not been solved. Up to Thursday fifteen men were engaged in husking the corn and for some days they had been annoyed by a wailing sound. They became alarmed at last at these warnings, and quitting work instituted a search for the cause of the strange sounds which resembled the wailings of a child in distress.

Every foot of ground has been gone over and still the mystery remains unsolved. The big corn field has been visited by hundreds of people, who have searched the big field of corn, fearing that a child had become lost in the wilderness of standing corn. The entire locality is greatly wrought up over the affair.

The farm is owned by Stephen Lasky and adjoining Wolf farm, where a gang of counterfeiters were captured a few years ago.

HEAD IS BEATEN TO A PULP IN MAD RIDE

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 9.—Scores of horrified spectators saw Henry McCleod, 23 years old, ride to his death on a frenzied horse. Notice was first attracted to him when swinging into the saddle he drew a revolver from his pocket, brandished it in the air and fired several shots.

Frightened by the shots the horse plunged madly toward a railway bridge over Twelve Pole river, a short distance below Huntington. The horse crossed the bridge in safety, its rider swaying in the saddle, but just as it reached the other side of the stream McCleod fell, his right foot catching in the stirrup.

The horse, now frantic, galloped down the railroad track, dragging McCleod for more than a mile. The horse never left the track, and all efforts to stop it were futile until several railroad section workers succeeded in seizing the bridle. Young McCleod's lifeless body was discovered by the straggling crowd, and he had been beaten shapeless, and scarcely a bone was unbroken. McCleod was unmarried. His family, whose home is near Huntington, is one of the best known in the county. The young man had borne an excellent reputation.

FINDS WIFE STARVING AT GRAVE OF SISTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Kneeling upon the grave of her loved sister, whose sudden death had robbed her of happiness, Mrs. Katherine P. Hubbars, a young matron of Brooklyn, for whom her husband and two detectives had searched vainly for three days, was found in the cemetery, a mile out of Plainfield, N. J.

Her clothing was torn, her hands bleeding as she clasped them about the headstone and placed her lips to the grave name of her sister.

HAND IS CRUSHED IN THE MACHINERY

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov. 8.—R. A. Hall, cashier of the San Angelo National bank here, chartered a special train last night and went with Dr. E. L. Batts to Ballinger, returning this morning with his father, R. D. Hall, who had gotten his hand crushed in machinery at the Ballinger cotton oil mill. The major portion of the hand was amputated.

Four pelicans were killed on a pond near here. They are a rarity here and will be stuffed.

BOYS BARRED AT THE SHOW THEY COSTUMED

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 9.—The girl students of Missouri University gave a re-reproduction of the World's Fair last night the exhibition occupying the entire building. Leading features of the Pike were represented, including "Mysterious Asia," the "Plantation," the "Temple of Palmistry," "Gay Paree," "Fair Japan," Hagenbeck's animal show, the Boer war, the baby incubator and Hale's fire fighters.

The Boer war was the most sensational feature. Dressed in uniforms borrowed from the cadets, the girls presented a sham battle, using pistols, guns and explosives.

Dressed as firemen, the girls gave a representation of Hale's fire fighters at work. A small house was erected on the front porch of the main building. It was occupied by a number of girls supposed to be asleep and in danger from a fire which was started in the basement. An alarm was turned in, and in less than a minute the "firemen" dragging a miniature engine and hose cart, were on the scene and at work. Fire ladders were run up to the windows and the occupants of the house were carried out bodily. At a critical moment a hose broke and many of the audience were deluged, but the girls kept at work until all the occupants were carried out.

An alarm reached town that the university was on fire, and the real fire company was on the scene before the mistake was ascertained.

Hagenbeck's wild animal show was an amusing feature, the girls, dressed in animal skins, acting the parts of the animals. Several girls dressed as monkeys climbed ropes and did some high air "stunts" that made the audience hold their breath. No one but women were admitted, and the only part the boys took in it was to lend their clothes to the "coeds."

WHILE TABLE WAS SPREAD AND ALL WERE ABOUT THE BOARD, HE GOES TO THE BARN AND CUTS OWN THROAT

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 9.—The county coroner was notified of the suicide of Edward M. Murray in Pine township, on the northern border of the county. Murray, some time ago, bought a new farm near the savings of a lifetime, and built a new house on it. The house warming was set for last evening. He invited all the neighbors in for a grand supper, the first in the new house, and seating them at the table excused himself for a few moments. His wife hunted for him later when he did not return and found his lifeless body in the barn. He had cut his throat with a razor.

IN MEMORY OF CADILLAC

PARIS, Nov. 8.—At Montauban, the city of his birth, a handsome tablet was unveiled today to the memory of Cadillac, the famous French explorer of the upper St. Lawrence and great lake region of North America. # FORT WORTHITES TO INVESTIGATE NEW TOWN

They Are Going Into the Territory to Look at a Place Which Promises Much in the Future

Several Fort Worth people will leave here this week for the territory country to investigate the advantages offered by the opening of a new town in Grimes county, Choctaw Nation, to be known as Featherston. The place is located twenty-five miles northeast from South McAlester, I. T., on the Fort Smith and Western railroad, and bids fair to equal any of the boom towns that have heretofore been opened up to settlement in that country.

The town has already been laid off and the grand opening will occur in a short time. Already a number of business houses have been erected and preparations are being made to build several more substantial buildings.

One of the main enterprises of the place is the development of coal properties lying near. A company with $50,000 has already been organized to exploit the coal which is said to be of excellent quality. Colonel Robert Toomer is the general manager of the company.

One of the leading features of the place is recently discovered natural gas deposits, which are to be developed. The town is to be lighted by the gas, which is to be piped to all parts of the place. The gas is also to be used for fuel. The company that will develop gas find has been organized with a capital of $200,000.

A bank has been established in Featherston, with a capitalization of $25,000, and other leading enterprises of a commercial nature are in course of formation. It is the intention of the founders of the place to make of it one of the largest cities in the Choctaw Nation. The country surrounding the place is very fertile and consists of undulating prairies. Already much enthusiasm is being shown about Featherston. A newspaper has already been established.

M. E. Hindman, formerly of Fort Worth, has become interested in the place and will leave here in a day or so accompanied by several Fort Worth people, who expect to interest themselves in the town.

The school fund of the Choctaw Nation is the largest in the territory country, and exceeds that of any territory in this country. Grounds have been reserved on which educational and church buildings are to be built at once, while the promoters of the new townsite have made provision for a fine city park.

The country adjacent to the place is not now thickly settled, but it is believed that it will not remain so, as those back of the enterprise propose to build up a city second to none in the Choctaw Nation.

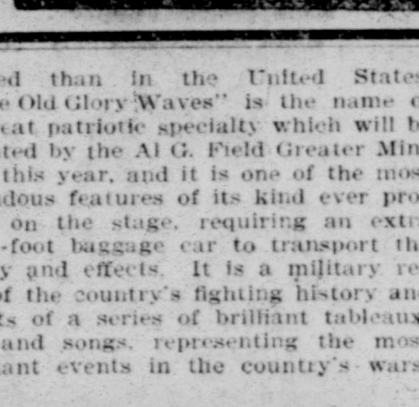

Colonel Pennington is one of the Fort Worthites who will make an investigation of the advantages offered by the new town of Featherston.

There is a physician in this city who prescribes this remedy in his practice, and I could secure affidavits from customers who have been cured of aggravated and chronic cases of constipation of long standing. ## TIBET AND THE GREAT BUDDHA IS A STORY

Wallace Munro Who Has Traveled in the Forbidden Land Tells What He Knows of the Country

While Tibet is so much in the public eye at this time, the following on the country and the great Buddha by Wallace Munro, manager of "The Forbidden Land" Company, is interesting, as he has traveled the country over and speaks from actual knowledge. "It is not always realized that it is in the sacred temple of Jokang of Lhasa, not in the palace outside, or in the city itself, that the spiritual life of Tibet and the countless millions of northern Buddhism is entirely centered. Yet what Tibet is to the world, and what Lhasa is to Tibet—so Jokang is to Lhasa, for it is the sanctum sanctorum of Buddhism and within whose holy walls there stands the most famous idol of the world, the great and only Buddha, jealously guarded on the one side by the uplifted figure of the mighty Tsong-Kapa, the Martin Luther of Central Asia, and upon the other by the guardian three-eyed goddess Falden-Lhamo.

"It may be interesting to learn something of this wonderful image's history. It is believed that the likeness was made from Gautama himself in the happier days of his innocence and seclusion in Kapali-vastu. It was made by Visvakarma—a man, but the constructive force of the universe—and is of gold, alloyed with the four other elemental metals, silver, copper, zinc and iron, symbolical of this world, and it is adorned with diamonds, rubies, lapislazuli, emeralds and the unidentified Indranila, which modern dictionaries prosaically explain as sapphire.

This priceless image was given by the king of Magadha to the Chinese emperor for his timely assistance when the Yavanas were overrunning the plains of India. From Peking it was brought as a dowry by Princess Kongo in the seventh century. The crown was undoubtedly given by Tsong-kapa himself in the early part of the fifteenth century, and the innumerable golden ornaments which heap the Killo-ko before the image are the presents of pious Buddhists from the earlier days to the present time. Among them are twenty-two large butter lamps, eight of a somewhat smaller size, twelve bowls, two "precious wheels of the law" and a multitude of smaller articles, all of the same metal. The crown is perhaps the most interesting jewel; it is a deep coronet of gold set round and round with turquoise and heightened by five conventional leaves, each inclosing a golden image of a stone. In the center below the middle leaf is a flawless turquoise six inches long and three inches wide, the largest in the world. Behind the throne are dimly seen in the darkness huge figures standing back against the wall of the shrine all round. Rough hewn, barbarous and unadorned they are, but nothing else could have so well supplied the background for this treasure of treasures as the Egyptian solemnity of these dark Atlantes, standing shoulder to shoulder on alar stones, where no lamps are ever lighted and no flowers are ever strewn."

COSTLY SHAMPOOING

Mrs. Jack Gardner Pays $25 a Week to Have Her Hair Cared For (Boston Cor. New York American.) Ten dollars every three days is the price that Mrs. Jack Gardner pays for fragrant, soft, clean hair. Of this sum $3 goes to the barber shop of the fashionable Hotel Touraine, and the remainder goes to the journeyman who performs the ablation for her. Not that she has any surplus of woman's crowning glory, but she considers that what she has is well worth paying for, so far as preservation is concerned. Her shampoo concoction is very simple—being nothing more or less than the whites of fifteen strictly fresh eggs, from her country estate at Brookline. This is the story of Angelo Carrari,

DEATH OF A TEXAN IN CALIFORNIA

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 9.—Governor Lanham has received the following self-explanatory letter from Governor George C. Pardee of California:

"I have been notified by the county coroner of Amador county, this state, that on October 16 there died at the Free Mount mine, near Amador City, a man who is said to be an ex-soldier, and whose name was Charles Hussey. It is said that he has two sisters living in Texas, and who would naturally desire to be informed of his death.

"The coroner has requested me to assist in locating his relatives. If any one desires to communicate with the coroner he should address George M. Hubbert, Jackson, California.

"Very truly yours, "GEO. C. PARDEE, "Governor."

"A MILLIONAIRE TRAMP"

"A Millionaire Tramp," which appears at Greenwall's opera house Thursday night, November 10, is claimed to be one of the best comedies on the road. The story of the play deals principally with the troubles and scrapes of the tramp, Jay Pierpont, though through the comedy there is a strain of sadness, the history of a wrecked life, a fall from fine repute to the rags and tatters that proclaim him to be nothing but a tramp, a turn from the association of refined people to that of the class who beat their way from place to place, drifting with the season. The play is a new one, and said to be thoroughly entertaining from start to finish.

NORTH FORT WORTH ROSEN HEIGHTS STOCK YARDS

Nash Furniture Company.

Friday night has been fixed upon by the North Fort Worth councilmen for the holding of their regular session which gave way last night to the press of election returns.

As stated in the Telegram, the polling place was changed from the school house to the city hall to avoid interference with the children and the count not having been made by the judges until a late hour, the regular meeting was called off, the aldermen viewing The Telegram election returns.

At the Friday night meeting the ordinance ordering the construction of the water works will be passed, this beside the approval of the pay roll being the only pressing matters under consideration. A decided impetus toward immediate water works construction has been had, as a result of the recent fires, three having occurred since last Sunday. The meat inspection question will scarcely be taken up at the coming session, as it is the desire of the city officials to await the action taken in Fort Worth and duplicate it, making the regulations for the community the same.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Wealth and poverty stood together in the batch of prisoners lined up on the bridge of the Yorkville police court. Two of the prisoners in the motley assemblage facing the magistrate were women, and they represented the two extremes of the life of the great city.
On one side, with her father, B. L.
Taylor, a wealthy lumber merchant, of Fifth avenue, was Miss Margaret Taylor, 17 years old, who was arrested for speeding an automobile. On the other side, and in striking contrast, was a little woman in a faded dress and tear-stained face, Mrs. Elizabeth Lynch, 55 years old, who had been found wandering in the streets carrying in her arms the dead body of her four-week-old baby, and almost demented from grief and hunger. The policeman who found her thought her intoxicated and took her to the station.
The society girl, in modish gown and wrapped in furs, listened to the pitiful tale of the woman, and her eyes filled with tears at the story of bitter poverty and suffering. She whispered to her father and he removed his gloves and drew forth a huge roll of bills. He pulled out several of them—$50 in all—and handed them to Mrs. Lynch.
The woman became almost hysterical in her gratitude, and could only say "Thank you, thank you," feebly for the gift. Miss Taylor spoke to her com-fortingly before she was led away to have her case further investigated.
The magistrate discharged Miss Taylor, holding that the evidence was insufficient.
Then Miss Taylor lingered while the case of Mrs. Lynch was heard. The magistrate refused to entertain the charge of intoxication made against Mrs. Lynch, holding that her condition might have been due to grief. But he decided to hold her for the coroner to investigate the death of the infant, and she was sent to the house of detention. Coroner Scholer said later that the child had probably died of pneumonia, brought on by ex-posure. He will investigate further, however.
"I don't know how I came to be discharged," added Miss Taylor, "I pleaded guilty, and I'm sure we were speeding as fast as the machine would go. We must have gone from Forty-ninth street in fifteen minutes. Oh, but didn't we lead that policeman a merry chase. We never would have been caught, either, if the traffic had not stopped us." And Miss Taylor and her clan laughed long at the memory of their little adventure.

ENGINEERS VOTING
ON A CHANGE IN
CONSTITUTION
Ballot Being Taken Regarding the Law of the Order Which Affects Matters Concerning Trouble
TEMPLE, Texas, Nov. 9.—Local divisions of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers all over the country are balloting on a proposed change in the order's constitution, which briefly provides that hereafter it will be necessary to have an executive committee to take an appeal from the general manager's decision. An issue shall not be made with any road or system of roads unless a two-thirds vote of the men affected is first obtained.
To form an executive committee of adjustment it will require a two-thirds majority of all members employed on the system of roads interested. If two-thirds majority is cast in favor of the formation of an executive committee that committee will serve on the road balloting for same. If a two-thirds majority is not cast then no executive committee will be formed and grievances will be continued to be adjusted in the old manner. The Santa Fe is now being polled on the executive committee proposition.

VOTING IN FORT WORTH
Fort Worth locomotive engineers of the various roads entering this city are today holding an executive committee that is not cast then no executive committee will be formed and grievances will be continued to be adjusted in the old manner. The Santa Fe is now being polled on the executive committee proposition.

Delightfully pleasant to the taste. Good

Gentlemen: Last November I was taken with a severe cold and cough. I used a bottle of standard expectorant and was not benefited in the least. I then tried another standard cough cure, but with no better results than with the first.
I was then recommended by a druggist at Covington, Ga., to try Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey and after using one 25c bottle I was completely cured. This testimonial was unsolicited, but you are at liberty to use in any way you may choose. In my opinion you have by far the best cough medicine on the market. Yours truly, I. K. NORMAN, Okla. Co.

court convened at 10 o'clock this morning and after the handling of one case the jury. The court also excused the petit jury until 10 o'clock Thursday.

In the appearance case of Frederick C.

title, the case was dismissed at the plaintiff's cost.

AS SEEN IN LONDON
LONDON, Nov. 9.—This morning's newspapers devote considerable space to the presidential election in the United States. Editorial articles in general express satisfaction with Roosevelt's success and express the opinion with the mandate from the whole people he will be better able to give effect to the strength of his character. The Daily Telegraph says President Roosevelt has before him a clear field for more effective prosecution of his ideas of naval administration and foreign affairs and makes the prediction he will leave some considerable mark upon his time.

AMENDMENTS FAIL
IN TRAVIS COUNTY
AUSTIN, Nov. 8.—Additional returns received today in Travis county show that the three constitutional amendments have more than likely failed to carry, having failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote. This was the only interest in the local election, there being no contest against the democratic nominees. Republican electors polled a heavy vote in this county.

RHEUMATISM
IS NOT A SKIN DISEASE.
Several years ago I was afflicted with what the doctors called Sciatic Rheumatism, or Lumbago, suffering from the most intense agony at times, and being confined to my bed about a year, although four of the best physicians (one of whom was my father) attended me during my illness.
They could give me only temporary relief, and I think they tried about all the remedies known to medical science, dosing me with strong medicine until my stomach got into such a condition that I could digest nothing, and neither myself nor my friends had any hope of my recovery. I was persuaded to try S. S. S., and before finishing the first bottle I found that I had the right remedy. I continued to take it until it cured me perfectly. This was about nine years ago, and I have been in splendid health ever since.
Murfreesboro, Tenn. J. D. MANSON, 2135 N. Senate Ave.

I was terribly afflicted with Rheumatism for eighteen months, and during my sickness tried the skill of many good physicians, all of whom pronounced my case hopeless. I was for a year in such a helpless condition that I was unable to differ or feed myself. I had filled at different times 52 prescriptions suggested by friends, none of them giving me any relief. I finally decided to include S. S. S., and took the first dose while hobbling about on crutches. After taking two bottles I found so much relief I was able to relinquish the use of one crutch, and a faithful continuance of the medicine relieved me of the other crutch, and shortly afterwards enabled me to go to my work. I have had no return of Rheumatism, although this was five years ago. J. O'MALLEY, Indianapolis, Ind.

Fiery liniments, drawing plasters and penetrating oils never cure a case of Rheumatism; because it is not a local or skin disease, but a disease of the blood caused by a sour, acid condition of that vital fluid. The kidneys and bowels get weak, the liver torpid, and the poisonous accumulations that should pass off through the usual channels of nature are absorbed by the blood and distributed into the muscles, joints and nerves through the circulation, producing inflammation and swelling of these parts, excitement of the nerves and other painful and disagreeable symptoms of the disease. Rheumatism sufferers look with dread upon the winter season with its damp, cold, changing weather, for the first slight exposure is liable to bring on an attack, and the sharp, cutting pains and feverish, swollen joints and muscles make life miserable with almost unbearable torture. Local applications will often give relief for a little while, but can do no permanent good, because the trouble is not within their reach; and even while the symptoms are being relieved by such treatment the blood is becoming more heavily charged with the uric acid poison, and the next attack will be more severe. S. S. S. cures this disease by arousing to proper action all the sluggish organs and going into the blood, driving out all the acid and poisonous matter, renewing and strengthning it, and toning up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. It contains no Potash or other harmful minerals, but is purely vegetable and is recognized everywhere as the surest and safest blood purifier. Our special book on Rheumatism will be mailed free to all who write, and our physicians will give medical advice to all sufferers, without charge. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

PADDOCK MAKES PROTEST ON A KNOCKER

He Says Statement in a Newspaper That Fort Worth Does Not Need a Board of Trade Is Incorrect

Captain B. B. Paddock, secretary of the Fort Worth Board of Trade, said today that the committee named at the meeting of the board last night will push the matter of building up the organization from now on. It is hoped to add at least one hundred or more new members to the board during the next few months.

The officials of the organization will make an effort to build up the membership to at least five hundred. The benefits to be derived from an active and hard working board of trade are manifold and Secretary Paddock is very anxious to make it one of the most efficient organizations of its kind in the state. During the meeting last night the Captain read to the members the work being done by several similar organizations in the east, and stated that Fort Worth could do just as effective work in building up this city as the same kind of organizations have accomplished in other cities. He could see no plausible reason why Fort Worth should not perpetuate a board of trade equal to that in any other city.

Captain Paddock deprecated the statement made in a morning newspaper that Fort Worth did not need a board of trade. It was such an assertion on the fact that this city had grown to the point where such a commercial organization had become useless. He said that such a statement should not have been made in the face of the fact that cities having from 100,000 to 350,000 population maintained boards of trade. He hoped that the citizens would give little heed to such publications, for he said they were apt to injure Fort Worth, provided, of course, people here gave consideration to the statements, which he did not believe they would.

"We want factories," said the Captain, "and the only way to get them is for an active board of trade to get busy."

CAPTAIN GEORGE H. GAILOR

RELATES A TOUGH EXPERIENCE WHILE ENGINEER ON THE C. AND P. R. R.

Captain Gailor writes that he was in very poor health and so nervous that some days he had to call his fireman to the throttle. He would be awake at night and look ahead to his next day's work with fear and dread. He had no appetite, his stomach rebelled at what little food he ate, and he was altogether miserable and discouraged. After trying many medicinal treatments any benefit Vinol was recommended, and he wants all his friends to know that it has made a new man of him. He says it has restored his health and strength, he sleeps soundly, and every morning he feels rested, strong and eager for work. He feels convinced that there is no other medicine in the world that will invigorate and create strength like Vinol. Our local druggist, Mr. R. A. Anderson, says that what Vinol did for Mr. Gailor it will do for any man, woman or child in Fort Worth, because Vinol contains in a concentrated form all the body-building, strength-creating elements of cod liver oil without oil or grease to upset the stomach and retard its work.

We ask every run-down, nervous, debilitated, aged or weak person in Fort Worth, and every person suffering with a stubborn cold, hanging-on cough, bronchitis or incipient consumption, to try Vinol on our guarantee. R. A. Anderson, Druggist.

will be given up her husband for the sum specified. She says that when the money is paid she will return to Europe, and her husband, after the expiration of a year, may sue for a divorce on the ground of desertion.

Additional evidence that Evelyn and Harry were married in Paris has been received by the Thaws here within the last three days. One of the best detectives in America was on his way to Europe before young Thaw and the former model reached New York. He went to work with a Scotland Yard man on the case, for the family did not believe the half-hearted response which Harry had sent in reply to the imperative demand to know if the stories from Paris about his midnight wedding were true. This messenger has been heard from. That Harry was married to Miss Nesbit is now the belief of almost every one within the Thaw circle of friends. Now comes word from New York by a personal messenger that Evelyn will consent to get out of the family's way for the sum of $250,000.

Miss Nesbit, according to intimate friends, has taken the ground that she is worth probably one-fourth as much as the earl of Yarmouth. That $1,000,000 was paid to the earl before he became a part of the Thaw family has been discussed ever since the wedding of Alice Thaw to the earl.

Miss Nesbit informed a friend that if the Thaws were willing to pay $1,000,000 to get on the family did not believe they can well afford to pay $250,000 to get rid of one to whom they object.

WOMEN STRUGGLE WITH GRIP ON THROATS

Drunken Father and Husband Is Killed by His Son for Assault on His Own Wife and Daughter

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 9.—Edward Howard, a pattern maker, was shot and instantly killed by his son, Arthur, aged 21 years, while the elder man had his wife and daughter pinned to the floor by their throats. He had been drinking and had quarreled with Mrs. Howard because she would not give him more money. The shooting, it is claimed by the son and mother, was accidental.

Mrs. Howard says her husband has been a heavy drinker for a number of years, his habits causing them to leave their home in Manchester, England. Last week he drank very heavily, and today demanded more money for liquor. Mrs. Howard refused him, and he ordered her out of the house.

As she started to leave he attacked her. The couple's young daughter ran to her mother's rescue, and Howard threw them both to the floor, and was holding them there by their throats when Arthur came in the door. The young man rushed upstairs and secured a revolver. Hastening back he caught his father by the shoulders as he bent over the prostrate women. As the father turned the revolver was discharged accidentally. Arthur and his mother insist. Howard senior lived but a few moments. Young Howard is under arrest.

MINSTREL PARADE ON THE STREETS TODAY

The Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels arrived in this city this morning and straightway make preparations for the parade. Without a doubt it was the finest minstrel parade ever seen in Fort Worth. It was formed at the theater at 11 a. m. and headed by Mr. Field behind his two beautiful white horses. Immediately behind him came the bugle corps in red uniforms. The minstrel men in gray clothes and high top hats next made quite a hit. Bringing up the rear was the band in red regalia. Classic and popular airs were played under the directorship of Burt Cutter. One of the features of the band was the large bass horn, said to be the largest of its type in the world. It was played by Mr. Boos, a little man, and quite overshadowed him when he got within its folds.

SCHOOL GIRLS ARE SMOKING CIGARETTES

Board of Education Has Investigated and Finds They Have Parties and Often Get Real Dopey

Because of His Broken Heart a Former West Virginia Doctor Wants to Kill Himself in Fit of Despondency

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 9.—This little town has never known so much excitement as that occasioned by the action of the board of education. A number of girl pupils in the town school, it is alleged, have been smoking cigarettes—not an occasional cigarette, but to such an extent that they became "dopey" and so courted an investigation. The town board of education has issued an ultimatum that any pupil of either sex in the town schools found smoking cigarettes hereafter will be expelled.

The board produced a roll of names of 150 pupils who had been found smoking. Many on the list were girls. Those set to look over the conduct of the children reported that many parties of school girls had formed little smoking clubs, where they enjoyed the soothing cigarette in peace each afternoon.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Because Miss Mattie Shanor, a pretty school-ma'am of Burt, Kossuth county, declined to marry him and announced her intention of wedding another man next Christmas, Dr. C. B. Grear, a prominent physician of Burt, made two unsuccessful attempts to commit suicide here. He talked freely of his love affairs and said he was dying of a broken heart. He is a graduate of the state university and is a prominent Methodist, formerly a resident of West Virginia.

A CONFERENCE TODAY ABOUT BRIDGE

Railroad Officials Meet With the City Engineer to Discuss Question of Replacing Hill Street Structure

As announced in The Telegram yesterday Attorney General Bell made a thorough investigation of the Hill street crossing affair while in this city yesterday, and assured Judge Beckham that he will cheerfully do all in his power to aid the public in the matter in any proper manner.

Although no visit to the crossing site was made by the Attorney General the matter was thoroughly discussed and the street conditions as left by the destruction of the crossing shown him on the city map.

A conference between city officials and railroad representatives is being held here today. It is believed that Mr. Thomas of the Texas and Pacific will do the right thing by Fort Worth. He has just returned to his desk at Dallas and has come almost immediately to Fort Worth to look into the matter. It is hoped and believed that he will recommend immediate action to relieve the trouble.

Following the conference of yesterday, Judge Beckham declared to The Telegram that the people might rest assured that the proper steps will be taken to open up the Hill street crossing and that they would be taken without delay.

VISIT THE SITE
Shortly after 2 o'clock Mr. Thorne and the street committee of the city council, together with General Manager Haines of the Traction company and Mayor Powell, left for a personal visit to the site of the Hill street crossing.

While waiting to board the car Mr.

CARDINAL GIBBONS TALKS THE RACE SUICIDE

He Says There Is Nothing So Sweet as the Prattle of the Children - Women Commit a Sin in Prevention

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 9.—The Newark Daily News printed an authorized interview with Cardinal Gibbons, obtained at the cardinal's home in Baltimore by J. Martin Miller, Washington correspondent of the News.

"The infanticide that is practiced in this country," said the cardinal, "is to be deplored. It is very properly called 'the murder of innocents.'"

"I mean not only the destruction of life before or after birth, but the defeating of God's plan and will by any means of prevention through the advice of physicians, or women of evil minds or hearts."

"The Catholic church regards it as a most grievous sin for women to teach one another how to foil the immutable law of God and of Nature. It is a great responsibility any woman takes upon herself when she imagines that she is doing her young and unsophisticated woman friend a favor by instructing her in these evil ways. The young married women of these times are often advised not to bring children into the world. Have a good time for a few years at least and don't be in a hurry, is the thoughtless and pernicious advice often given."

"Race suicide," as it is called by our president, is striking the very foundation of our civilization. President Roosevelt has done the republic a great service by placing his influence in this matter on the side of right, and he presents a happy example in the possession of a large family of children. The argument is often advanced that poor people can not afford large families, but it is a fact that, as a rule, the poor have more children than the rich. The rich can afford them, but do not have them.

"There is no music so sweet as the prattle of children. Men and women who are not blessed with children are much less valuable as members of society than those whose homes are made bright, cheerful and happy by the little ones."

"Infanticide was a dark stain on pagan civilization. As an evidence that human nature does not improve with time and is everywhere the same, unless leavened by Christianity, the wanton destruction of infant life is probably as general in China and other heathen countries today as it was in ancient Greece. With the possible exception of Thebes, it was sanctioned, and sometimes even enjoined, by such philosophers and jurists as Plato, Lycurgus and Solon. The exposure and destruction of newborn children was also very common among the Romans. Up to the last days of the empire there was no legal check to this inhuman crime, except by a law framed in the twilight of Roman history and which soon became obsolete."

"The father had entire discretion to preserve or to destroy his child. Paulus, the jurist, admits that fathers had this right. Augustus, who made some efforts to check the evil, not from motives of humanity, but alarmed at the decrease of population, set the bad example of exposing the child born to his granddaughters. Julia."

"We may judge how general was the custom of exposing infants throughout the Roman empire when Tacitus mentions with honor the Jews and Germans as the only people that considered it a crime not to rear all their children."

THE WAR NEWS

JAPANESE CONTINUE THE BOMBARDMENT

CHEFOO, Nov. 9.—The Japanese continue to bombard Port Arthur and the shells are falling so incessantly that the Russians have practically abandoned the works on the Rihing and the harbor. Citizen volunteers and the police are now reinforcing the garrisons of the forts, according to the stories of Chinese arriving here, sixty of whom left Port Arthur on November 8, owing to the high price of food.

So many men were killed on both sides during the last assault that many bodies lay unburied for days, and in some instances dogs which had been driven from the town assuaged their hunger by eating the dead.

In a few cases where this was seen by horror-stricken Russians sharpshooters killed the dogs.

Some months ago the Russians ordered that all dogs seen on the streets should be shot, with the result that half-famished creatures have been roaming the hills, having become savage.

The Chinese say that the forts on Golden Hill have done practically no firing for months past, and it is believed their ammunition has run short.

The demolition of the Chinese new town is almost completed, a thousand houses having been destroyed for the valuable free wood they contained. The town is constantly catching fire and the majority of the warehouses and stores belonging to foreigners have been burned to the ground.
