

FORT WORTH GIVES ROOSEVELT RECORD-BREAKING RECEPTION

Crowd of More Than Thirty Thousand Makes His Seventy-Five Minute Visit Continuous Ovation

PRESIDENT MUCH PLEASED

Praises Valor of Texas Soldiers, and Greatness of Lone Star State—Plants Tree in Library Lawn—Forced to Make Second Speech

"President Roosevelt's reception in Fort Worth was the greatest ovation he has received since leaving Washington," said a representative of the Associated Press, who was with the presidential party.
"In decorations, enthusiasm and perfection of arrangements, Fort Worth surpassed every other city in Texas," said another member of the party.

The largest crowd that ever thronged the streets of Fort Worth welcomed President Roosevelt this morning when he arrived from San Antonio.

The presidential special arrived at 9:45 o'clock and left at 11:15. Forty-one minutes of the president's visit were occupied by the parade in which he rode. The remainder of the time was occupied by his address in the square facing the Texas and Pacific station, getting to and from his train, and shaking hands with enthusiastic admirers.

During his visit of an hour and fifteen minutes the president was seen by probably 30,000 people. Twenty thousand people crowded into the square facing the Texas and Pacific passenger station, and overflowed into the streets entering it.

The president's visit was characterized by what many regard the best speech he has delivered since coming to Texas, although not the longest. It included the ceremony of planting a tree in the lawn facing Carnegie library, the first tree the president has planted since leaving Washington. The presidential parade was distinguished by the presence of nine veterans who fought for Texas freedom in the war with Mexico.

OVATION BROKE RECORDS

The ovation which greeted the president exceeded in enthusiasm any given in the history of Fort Worth. There were business houses and public buildings more beautifully decorated; and never before did a cheering crowd two miles long stand in line to honor a guest of the city.

It was a genuine American welcome, warm, impulsive and sincere, at times bursting out into cheers that could have been heard half a mile away.

And, withal, despite the eagerness to see the first president who ever visited Fort Worth, the long wait in the hot sun, and the continual movement caused by fresh additions to the crowd, the people were orderly. The arrangements of the local committee were carried out with a perfection seldom attained in much larger cities where big police forces are obtainable for handling the throngs.

Of the greeting, the part that seemed to touch the president most, was the eagerness with which he was followed to his train after his speech had ended. In some of the other cities visited, where the crowds had stood for hours waiting the train's arrival, and vainly tried to listen to the president's address, there was generally a movement to get away by noon on the outskirts of the crowd, as soon as the president finished speaking.

In Fort Worth this morning no sooner had the president finished and started for his train, than there was a simultaneous movement in his direction. Thousands pushed past soldiers and police in an effort to catch a last glimpse of him, and finally completely surrounded the special train.

It was a genuine bit of tribute which seemed to please the president more than any incident of his brief stay.

TRAIN ARRIVES AT TIME

Throng of people waited in the streets surrounding the Texas and Pacific passenger station this morning for several hours before the arrival of the presidential train. The crowds were so dense and so anxious to see the chief of the nation that they crowded without ceremony, trying long before the arrival of the special to get the best point of vantage. Buildings, box cars and roofs were crowded to their limits. Officers cleaning the yards and the station platforms of hundreds of people, but despite this more would come into the place and would fight madly for a vantage point for a first glimpse.

Promptly at 9 o'clock the reception committee reached the station. Chairman Davidson at once gave to all white ribbons marked "Reception Committee" and carnations, some red and some white. Mr. Davidson selected a committee of four: D. T. Bomar, J. N. Winters, William Capps and Major J. S. Powell, to go within the gates and welcome the president.

Patently the crowd surged to and fro, waiting for the train. Those fortunate enough to have a vantage point at 9:40 o'clock discerned to the east of the station on the main track of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas the pilot train. Shortly after it had passed into the yards not fully five minutes elapsed, the president's train was seen crossing the yards from the south to the north. Reaching a switch it was backed into the station on track No. 5. As the train came slowly into the yards, clocks and watches showed the time to be 9:45 sharp. The president's special had reached Fort Worth and the station on the minute of the schedule.

Standing on the platform of the rear coach was a number of the president's party. Cecil A. Lyon, state chairman of the republican party in Texas, under whose guidance the tour is being made in the state, was the first to step from the coach, doing so on the north side. He greeted the reception committee with a handshake all around. At this point several telegrams and the presidential mail was delivered to Private Secretary Loeb, the president's secretary. Postmaster George W. Burroughs handed it personally to the secretary. George Neils, manager of the Western Union Telegraph office in the station, delivered the telegrams.

After a few minutes the president came from the car and with hat in hand bowed right and left to the cheering crowds. He smiled one of his famous smiles and looked as if he was so far satisfied with the reception accorded him. Then stepping from the train, he grasped the hand of William Capps first and gave it a hearty shake. Then in turn he shook hands with the entire committee of five. Cal Elliott, the officer of the day, then stepped forward and was warmly greeted by Mr. Roosevelt. The president then started toward the gate leading to the depot.

Colonel James Hays Quarles, standing at one side with a large knobbed cane in his hand, was made the cause of a reference to "The Big Stick," and the president laughed heartily and shook hands. The president then shook hands with local newspaper representatives, still laughing at the big stick idea.

The committee led the way through the gates to the exit into East First street side of the state. As he walked with a committee on each side he bowed right and left to the cheering people who here caught their first glimpse of the president.

Other members of the party were then in turn placed in the carriage as previously arranged. The parade started up Main street, amid a thunderous burst of long and continued applause.

In the second carriage was Dr. Alexander Lambert, the president's physician, riding alone. In the third carriage were Brigadier S. M. Young of the United States army, Congressman Oscar Gillespie, Judge Edward R. Meek and Burk Burnett. In the fourth, Colonel Stewart C. Hutchison, Sam H. Cowan and C. R. Brown of New York. The fifth contained Lieutenant Porteus of the United States army, Cecil Lyon, David T. Bomar and J. N. Winters. In the sixth carriage were A. L. Allen, Sloan Simpson, Major K. M. Van Zandt and A. L. Allen. The secretary of the Board of Trade, J. L. McGrew and Jack Elliott, press representatives, and W. G. Newby were in the seventh. Clarence Owsley and three press representatives occupied the eighth carriage. In the ninth were Dr. J. L. Cooper, Dr. William Rounds, S. B. Hovey and N. A. Dodge. In the tenth carriage were Arthur Goetz, Judge N. B. Moore, L. D. Cobb and C. D. Reimers of The Fort Worth Telegram. In the eleventh carriage were W. C. Forbes, L. M. Barkley, Clyde Jack Jr. and J. C. Martin. Following these came five alumni of Harvard, the president's Alma Mater, and then came a trolley with a large party of society women.

On each side of the president's carriage, near the rear, walked two big secret service men, and at their sides were two more. The carriage was surrounded by these officers, policemen, deputy sheriffs of company D, Fourth regiment, Texas National Guard. Two companies of militia marched on each side toward the sidewalk, clearing the street of the crowds. The formation of the parade following the carriages was as follows: Woodman band.

Company L, Fourth regiment, Texas National Guard, in company front.

Militia and cadet companies, in company front.

Tally-ho. Polytechnic College band. Mexican War Veterans, in carriages.

Grand Army of the Republic on the right of street, Spanish-American and Sons of Veterans in center and Confederate Veterans on the left, all in column of fours.

Civil organizations. Automobiles, three abreast, in charge of W. G. Turner.

Major C. O. Elliott, Major P. M. Hunt, Captain J. E. Homan, Captain J. L. Terrell and Captain Forest Moore acted as guard of honor to the president, whose carriage was closely watched at all times.

The militia companies in line were: Company F, Second infantry, Waco; company K, Second infantry, Waco; company M, Second infantry, Hillsboro; company A, Third infantry, Tyler; company I, Third infantry, Corsicana; company A, Fourth infantry, Decatur; company H, Fourth infantry, Wichita Falls; company L, Fourth infantry, Cleburne, and a company from Waxahachie.

PLANTING OF TREE

The passage of the president along Main street was followed by a rush for Houston street and the Carnegie library; the crowd being eager to witness the planting of the tree on the library lawn. A hole had previously been dug in the center of the lawn toward Houston street. The president's carriage coming down Houston, they turning into Ninth, was greeted with cheer after cheer from every point around the library building. The law on the Houston street side was roped off and officers kept the crowd back.

After a slight delay an opening was made across the Ninth street sidewalk and the president, accompanied by Mayor Powell, Sam Davidson and Sloan Simpson, walked quickly across the lawn. A shovel lay near by in the pile of dirt. Sam Davidson thrust the shovel in the dirt, then handed it to the president, who placed the shovel in the hole. He then waved the shovel, bowed, smiled and lifted his hat and hurried to his carriage. The tree is a small elm.

NEGRO CHILDREN SING

Passing down Ninth street, the president was greeted by six hundred negro school children of the city, who were massed in front of the city hall. The children enthusiastically waved hundreds of American flags, and, as the carriage approached, sang a stanza of "The Star Spangled Banner."

FLOWERS FROM NEGRO CHILDREN

When the carriage was directly in front of the city hall, a 12-year-old negro girl, Willie Curry, ran from the crowd of children and thrust a bouquet of carnations and ferns in the president's hand. The presidential carriage then stopped and he waved his hat, smiling at the group of children.

A warm reception was given the president in front of the stand erected on the Peter Smith triangle for the use of the city officials and their families. He responded by repeated bows. The procession then turned into Houston street, heading for the Al Hayne triangle and the speaker's stand.

Through the unwillingness of the school board to have city teachers take charge of the school children, for whom space was provided surrounding the court house, when the president passed the court house only about 300 children were on the grounds. About a third of those carried back.

The court house square, however, was crowded to its capacity. People were massed together on the grounds while the court house windows and porches were crowded with enthusiastic people waving flags and handkerchiefs.

As the carriage conveying the president passed the court house square he bowed from one side of the vehicle to the other in recognition of the ovation that was being given him.

After the parade had started up Main street the crowd for a moment stood still and then with a rush made for the speaker's stand. Wires had been stretched to keep them back. Men, women and children fought for the best positions. During the time elapsing from the starting of the parade to its return to the triangle it was all the police and the Fort Worth Fenibles could do to fight the people back.

Several women fainted from the crush and were taken through the unoccupied street to the sidewalks on Houston street.

The officers went into the crowds and fought them back with force. In several cases using clubs, varying their efforts by mounting boxes and beseeching the people to keep from pressing.

On the roof of the Texas and Pacific freight depot, in the windows, on box cars in the yards, in the buildings facing the square and at every place of vantage crowds were packed too closely to move. Men climbed telephone poles and several boys climbed to the very top of the Al Hayne monument.

The young man at the top held in his hand a flag tied to a cane.

After a wait of just 41 minutes the president reached the triangle and was driven directly to the stand. Crowds at the Houston street entrance were forced to the sidewalks by the police and soldiers, causing a wild scramble.

As the president's party entered the triangle he was again cheered on all sides.

Leaving the carriage he climbed to the platform and was introduced by Mayor Powell, who said:

MAYOR POWELL'S WELCOME

"Fellow Citizens—'Tis my privilege and honor to present to you the president of our loved country, who has caught and holds the American heart and conscience with a firmer grip than any public man since the immortal Lincoln. He has made himself the most colossal figure of this century by his indomitable courage to do right, and so long as men like him are at the head of American affairs Lincoln's prophecy of a 'Government by the people' will be a reality; Jefferson's the prophecy of governments deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed will be exemplified and his own simple words, first uttered, I believe, in the south, which is just beginning to know and honor him, 'Every man will have a square deal.'"

"Fellow Citizens, our President,"

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS

The president said: "Mr. Mayor and you, my Fellow Citizens—I need not say how profoundly touched and impressed I am by the greeting I have received today, a greeting which is such as I have received throughout Texas, and O, my friends, while thanking you from the bottom of my heart for so much of the greeting as effects me personally, let me say that I appreciate to the full the infinitely deeper significance of the fact that it is the greeting of the great state of Texas to the president of the United States." (Cheers.)

Here the president was interrupted by the arrival of the Confederate and Grand Army camps, bearing their flags. There were cries of "Put down the flags. We want to see."

The president, stopping, bowed good naturedly and addressing the veterans, said: "The audience wants to know, will it be possible to put the flags down. They have a misguided desire to see me." (Laughter.) The flags were lowered.

Continuing the president said:

"And now, O, fellow Americans, the rest of you I know will agree with me, in saying that profoundly though I am touched by the greeting of all of you, yet the greeting which touches me most, because it argues to us much toward the welfare of the country, is the greeting of the veterans of the civil war—the greeting of the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray (Cheers), mingling together now, each of whom, with all the courage and all sincerity of conviction fought for the right as it was to him, and who are now united forever and ever in allegiance (Cheers) to our common flag and our common country. There are present other veterans, the veterans of the Mexican war, the men who fought to round out the work done by the pioneers of Texas when they established the republic of Texas, the men who completed the work begun under Thomas Jefferson when the Louisiana purchase added to our domain all the country west of the Mississippi, and made us a mighty continental nation.

"And let me thank my comrades of the National Guard (Cheers) for the escort they have given me, and for their part in doing the duty of keeping alive the spirit which has always made the sons of Texas the most formidable of foes, as they are the most faithful of friends. (Cheers.)"

"And, O, my fellow countrymen, I cannot begin to express to you how impressed I have been all my four days trip through Texas—when one with your material growth, not only with the view of material prosperity which assuredly looms before you, but with that character of your men and women, and with the steps that you are taking to educate the next generation so that they shall be citizens of benefit to Texas—of benefit to the entire United States. (Cheers.)"

"You have here a territory that is an empire in itself, and you have what counts for more than all else (cheers), you have here what counts for more than all else—the stuff out of which good citizenship is made. We need in this country good laws, and we need fearless and honest officers of the law, but what we need most is the right type of men and women behind the law. If the homes are right—if the average citizen is all right—there is not much question of our getting our problems solved successfully, and we are going to have them solved successfully because the home is all right, because the average man is a man and the average woman a woman in the true sense of the word. After all I have come to the conclusion, traveling through this great land of ours, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and over Maine, Washington and Montana and Texas that the chief thing we need is to have Americans know one another. I am willing to bet on the result (cheers) if you will just get them together."

"Now that is what impressed me most in going through this country and speaking to the various audiences; not the points of divergence, which are only small, but the points of fundamental unity. We have got our troubles the same as all nations; some of them belong to a given locality, but we are going to solve all the problems ahead of us, because, as a nation, I think we have the necessary courage, honesty and common sense to enable us to work out our salvation."

"And now, here at Fort Worth I want to say a word of special greeting to the representatives of the great industry in which I have always felt a peculiar interest—the stockmen. (Cheers.) I lived a number of years in a cow country myself, and always looked back, not only with keen pleasure to that time, but with the realization of what it taught me to have lived out in a country where all the wood didn't grow on trees. (Laughter.) But things were a little different from what they were in the east, and it gave me a chance to realize the immense country, fair."

NAVAL CLASH IN FAR EAST SEEMS NEAR

Russian Baltic Fleet and Admiral Togo's Squadron Believed to Be Less Than Thirty Miles Apart Today

JAPANESE FLEET NOT YET LOCATED

Thirty-five Russian Vessels Sighted Near Singapore, With the Enemy's Scouting Cruisers in Same Vicinity

LONDON, April 8.—Sudden shifting of interest in the war from land to sea and the apparently imminent prospects of a fateful battle between the Russians and Japanese squadrons on the China sea have revived all interest shown here in the earlier developments of the struggle in the Far East. It is taken for granted that Admiral Togo's ships, reported to be in the neighborhood of Singapore in the middle of March, are still in that vicinity and the report from Penang on the west coast of Malay peninsula that twelve Japanese ships were seen steaming ahead of the Russian warships is interpreted to mean that the former are scouts sent out and when their object is accomplished they will retire to the main body of the Japanese squadron. The report about the numbers of the Russian ships vary, but at any rate over thirty-five battleships, cruisers, colliers and torpedo boats passed the port of Singapore. The underwriters here presume from the northerly course they are steering that after passing Singapore the Russian ships will attempt to reach the French port of Saigon, Cochinchina.

However, it is pointed out that the Japanese squadron of twenty-two ships may still be off Korororua light where it was reported March 14. In such event the naval forces this afternoon are only about 80 miles apart, and may be in touch at any moment.

Russian Fleet Sighted

PENANG, West Coast of Malay Peninsula, April 8.—Two steamers which have arrived at Penang report the sighting of a large Russian fleet in the straits of Malacca. It included twenty-five transports and was steering toward Singapore.

The steamer Kumsang reports having sighted twelve cruisers, presumably Japanese, steaming some distance ahead—evidently a Japanese scouting squadron.

There is much excitement here and in Singapore over the anticipation of an engagement in Malayan waters.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlement, April 8, 2:10 p. m.—The Russian fleet (reported by the British steamer Tara) has been sighted heading apparently for Durian Straits, 37 miles southwest of Singapore.

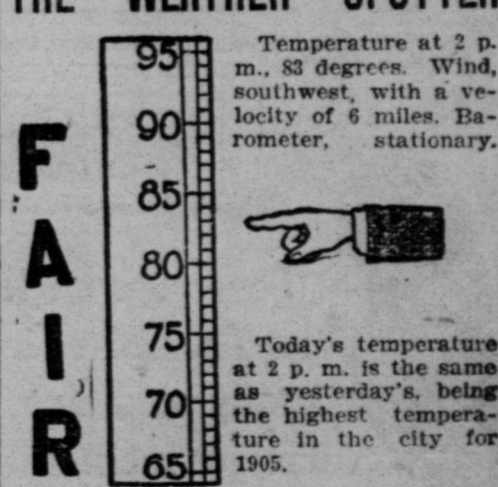

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlement, April 8, 3:10 p. m.—The Russian fleet is passing, steering northeasterly, toward HONG KONG, April 8.—In consequence of the appearance of a Russian fleet in the Straits of Malacca, the China squadron is preparing to put to sea.

WITH THE CATTLEMEN

BAD YEAR REPORTED

At the annual meeting of the Hansford Land and Cattle Company, the president said the directors met the shareholders with feelings of deep regret and concern at having to present the report of a year so disastrous as the last season had proved. There had been a material reduction in the expenses in America, and they would continue to economize as much as possible in all directions. From South Dakota, where they had some 6,000 steers, they had a favorable report, the winter, although sometimes severe, having passed without any serious losses. They had about 45,000 acres of land in Texas which was still unsold, and which they were now in process of gradually realizing. These were becoming more valuable from the rise which was general in land in Texas. They had also a fine farm in New Mexico, near the ranch, and, as a township was being formed adjoining it, the value of the farm would in all probability be materially increased. Then they had the cattle (20,000) and the horses and mules, 40,000 of the cattle, they had about 6,000 head of steers maturing for market in South Dakota, part of which might be sold this season. The rest of the herd would consist chiefly of cows, from which they hoped to have the usual percentage of calves, also the calf-brandings of 1913 and 1914. Of the branding of 1913 there were steers of 2 years old to be sent to South Dakota.

NEW MEXICO CATTLE

SILVER CITY, N. M., April 9.—During the past month 12,000 head of cattle have been contracted for delivery from this part of the territory. The principal buyers were: G. H. Chesman, representing Colorado firms; W. H. Patterson of California; A. J. Nesbitt of the American Live Stock and Loan Company of South Dakota, and J. B. Kendrick of Wyoming. About five thousand of these cattle will be loaded from the local stock pens some time in May. This is one of the largest spring cattle sales from this county for years and will place a large amount of money in the hands of the cattlemen and will greatly improve business in this locality. The above does not include all sales as yet, as there will be a number of smaller contracts made within the next ten days.

RANCH DEAL CLOSED

A Memphis, Texas, dispatch says: Colonel William H. Gray of Chicago, head, was in the city today and closed a deal by which he purchases 1,820 acres of Panhandle dirt, together with 1,000 head of registered cattle. This elegant ranch is located in Oldham county, and is one of the finest bodies of land in the state. Mr. Gray says he will erect a summer home on the ranch that will cost him $45,000.

BIG RANCH SOLD

If there is anything in signs, N. T. Wilson will soon be back in the cow business again. He has just bought something over 38,000 acres of land in Pecos county, near Fort Stockton, from Kuben, Loeb & Co. of New York. This gives him in the neighborhood of 52,000 acres out in that country, he having bought about 12,000 acres about two years ago. Mr. Wilson is a good single-handed talker and very entertaining, and it is rare that a newspaper can trap him into giving up data on which he has made up his mind to remain non-committal. The Express reporter, who asked him Wednesday about his reported purchase, and he fessed up, but that is far as any progress was made. He may go back into the cattle business again and he may not. Perhaps he realizes that while cattle are selling on a level with a fellow's back in the markets that it is a poor time to start out to stock a 50,000-acre pasture with yearling steers at an extraordinarily low price. He was also painfully reticent in regard to the price he paid for the land, but said it wasn't over a dollar per acre. If so, there is not much probability that he has made a bad bargain, no matter what he intends to do with it.—San Antonio Express.

ARE ARIZONA SALE

The first sale of steer cattle made in Eastern Graham county this season was closed recently between the Stockton Brothers and J. C. Cureton, a commission buyer of Silver City. Prices paid were $11, $15 and $18 per head. The order for a thousand head.—Phoenix Stockman.

PASTURE BIDS REJECTED

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9.—Only five bids were submitted yesterday at the office of the commissioner of Indian affairs for pasturage leases in the Kiowa Comanche reservation in Oklahoma. None of the bidders will receive a lease, for the reason that all were below the minimum limit fixed by the interior department. That limit was 25 cents per acre per year. In consequence, all the bids will be rejected by the secretary of the interior, who may or may not re-advertise the pastures for rent. Cattlemen who hold grazing leases in the Osage country are sending to the interior department vigorous protests against the quarantine regulations adopted by the agricultural department, which make compulsory the dipping of cattle shipped from Texas and Indian Territory points into that country. Some of the lessees threaten to surrender their leases if the objectionable regulations are not revoked. The objection to the dipping is based partly upon the expense involved, but chiefly upon the contention that it results in great injury to the stock.

FIFTH AVENUE HAS FEWEST BABIES BORN

Birth Rate in Fashionable District Found Lowest in New York—East Side Presents Marked Contrast

NEW YORK, April 8.—Sixteen thousand babies were born in New York in the last four months. Figures compiled by the bureau of vital statistics show that Fifth avenue has the lowest birth rate of any street in the city. Less than ten births were reported in the wealthiest section of that thoroughfare. The heaviest birth rate is on the East Side, near Division street, where the conditions are the reverse of those on Fifth avenue.

ALDERMAN'S RESIDENCE

A petition was read by the secretary questioning the right of Alderman Parker to represent the Third ward in the council, because of rumored non-residence. Alderman Parker demanded a committee be appointed to investigate the matter. The mayor appointed Aldermen Ward, Zurn and Wagaman.

ELECTION RETURNS

The returns of Tuesday's election were then canvassed by a committee appointed by the mayor, consisting of Aldermen Henderson, Newby and Lehane. The returns showed that W. V. Gilvin for assessor and collector received 1,593 votes, James H. Maddox for city marshal 1,292 votes and Andrew McCampbell, Jr. received 499 votes. Gilvin and Maddox were declared elected and are to be sworn in Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

SECRET VOTING

On motion of Alderman Parker the council then went into executive session. At the close of the session it was announced that in compliance with a special election was to be called by the mayor and city secretary to fill the vacancy caused by Alderman Newby's resignation. Also that the selection of school trustees would go over until the next meeting. The council adjourned without resuming open session.

OFFICERS ANNOUNCED

City Secretary Montgomery read the following appointments after adjournment to a large crowd of anxious applicants: Mayor pro tem, John F. Lehane; city secretary, John T. Montgomery; city attorney, E. C. Orrick; assistant city attorney, Virgil Parker; city auditor, J. J. Nunnally; city recorder, C. T. Prewett; city engineer, John B. Hawley; street commissioner, J. W. ALDERMAN IS CHALLENGED

Petition Questions the Right of Judge Parker to Represent Third Ward

The city council in regular session Friday night appointed city officials; canvassed Tuesday's election returns, appropriated $35,852.81 for March accounts, ordered paid $1,800, awarded in condemnation proceedings, contributed $250 toward the erection of a monument to the memory of J. Peter Smith and granted ground for its location; appropriated $150 for Fort Worth Benevolent Home; accepted resignation of Alderman Newby and ordered special election to be held; held up for referendum an amended proposition of the Fort Worth Garbage Company; appointed a committee to investigate Alderman Parker's right to hold office; granted permission to Mrs. J. La Cava to move store on Homphill street; listened to several petitions and then adjourned to meet Tuesday afternoon.

On motion of Alderman Lehane, Colonel H. C. Hallway was invited to address the council. Colonel Hallway called the attention of the body to the excellent services of the sexton at the city cemetery and urged that he be retained. He also requested that he be paid a salary of $40 per month, instead of $25, as now paid. The matter was passed for the time, but in secret session was increased to the amount asked.

WANT CURFEW LAW

Upon being granted permission by the council Rev. R. Hamlin presented a petition asking that the curfew law again be enforced and some provision be made for the ringing of a bell or the blowing of a whistle at the desired hour for children to leave the streets. The petition was signed by teachers and principals of the public schools, ministers, church societies and others, in all about 250 signatures. Alderman Moreland stated to the council that he favored such action, but said it had been declared unconstitutional. The petition was referred to the judicial committee.

SCENIC RAILWAY

Exclusive privilege of running a scenic railway in the city park was asked by T. McCurdy, the matter being referred to the public grounds committee. A request from E. B. Dargett, asking for two lights to be placed on Pacific street, was referred to the water works committee.

PETER SMITH MONUMENT

Following the reading by the secretary of a petition asking the council to grant permission to erect a monument on the city triangle near the St. Patrick's Catholic church, the council was informed that thirty-nine citizens had subscribed the sum of $2,200 toward it, and asked that the council contribute the sum of $250, assuring the members it would meet with the approbation of every citizen. Both the site and appropriation were granted, the latter to be paid on Dec. 1, 1905.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Automobilists must now pay a toll of 1 cent a mile for machines holding two persons and 2 cents a mile for three persons or more on all toll roads in the state of New Jersey. THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "The Telegram" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and need attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root will set your whole system right, and the best proof of this is a trial.

53 Cottage St., Melrose, Mass. Dear Sir: Jan. 11, 1904.

"Ever since I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root, and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time. I continued its use and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water today and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition.

I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am,

Very truly yours, I. C. RICHARDSON. Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but it promptly cures kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, without feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion, or Bright's Disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in The Fort Worth Daily Telegram. The genuineness of this offer is guaranteed.

MADE OUT FOR ALDERMAN

400 KILLED IN SPANISH CAPITAL

To the Voters of the Sixth Ward of the City of Fort Worth:

Gentlemen—Out of deference to the requests of a number of my friends, who reside in the Sixth ward, I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the position of alderman from that ward—a position recently made vacant by the resignation of Mr. W. G. Newby.

The office carries with it practically no salary, and if the occupant there is honest, no perquisites.

The duty that I feel is due my me to the city of Fort Worth, which I have called my home for over fifteen years, the pride which I feel in the particular ward in which I live, and the honor of representing, even in so humble a way, a ward citizenship that has no superior in Fort Worth, alone prompt me to do something I never did before in my life, namely, run for an office.

In doing so, I shall make but one promise, and that is to honestly, faithfully and courageously work, according to my very best judgment and ability, for the best interests of my city in general and my ward in particular.

I ask the vote and support of each resident and citizen of the ward, and for each one that so honors me I assure him, in advance, of my sincere gratitude.

In conclusion, I beg to express the hope that if I should be honored by election to this position that when I vacate the office my honesty and my integrity may be as unblemished as that of the worthy gentleman whose seat in the council I seek to occupy.

Subject, therefore, to the action of the democratic party, I hereby announce myself a candidate for alderman from the Sixth ward.

Respectfully,
E. W. TEMPEL
Fort Worth, Texas, April 8, 1905.

E. W. Mitchell Who Made a Million in Corner of 1868 Will Be Buried

CHICAGO, April 8.—Edward W. Mitchell at one time a leading figure on the Chicago Board of Trade, organizer of a corner in wheat in 1868, and once worth millions, is dead at the county hospital at seventy years of age, a pauper.

His fall came in 1870, only two years after he had cornered the wheat market and made a fortune. Since then he has lived in the hope that one day he would regain his former wealth. His failure, however, had so shaken him that he never regained his position, but grew poorer and poorer, until in recent years he depended entirely upon the charity of his friends. Members of the Board of Trade have made up a subscription to help defray the funeral expenses.

Russian City Terrified

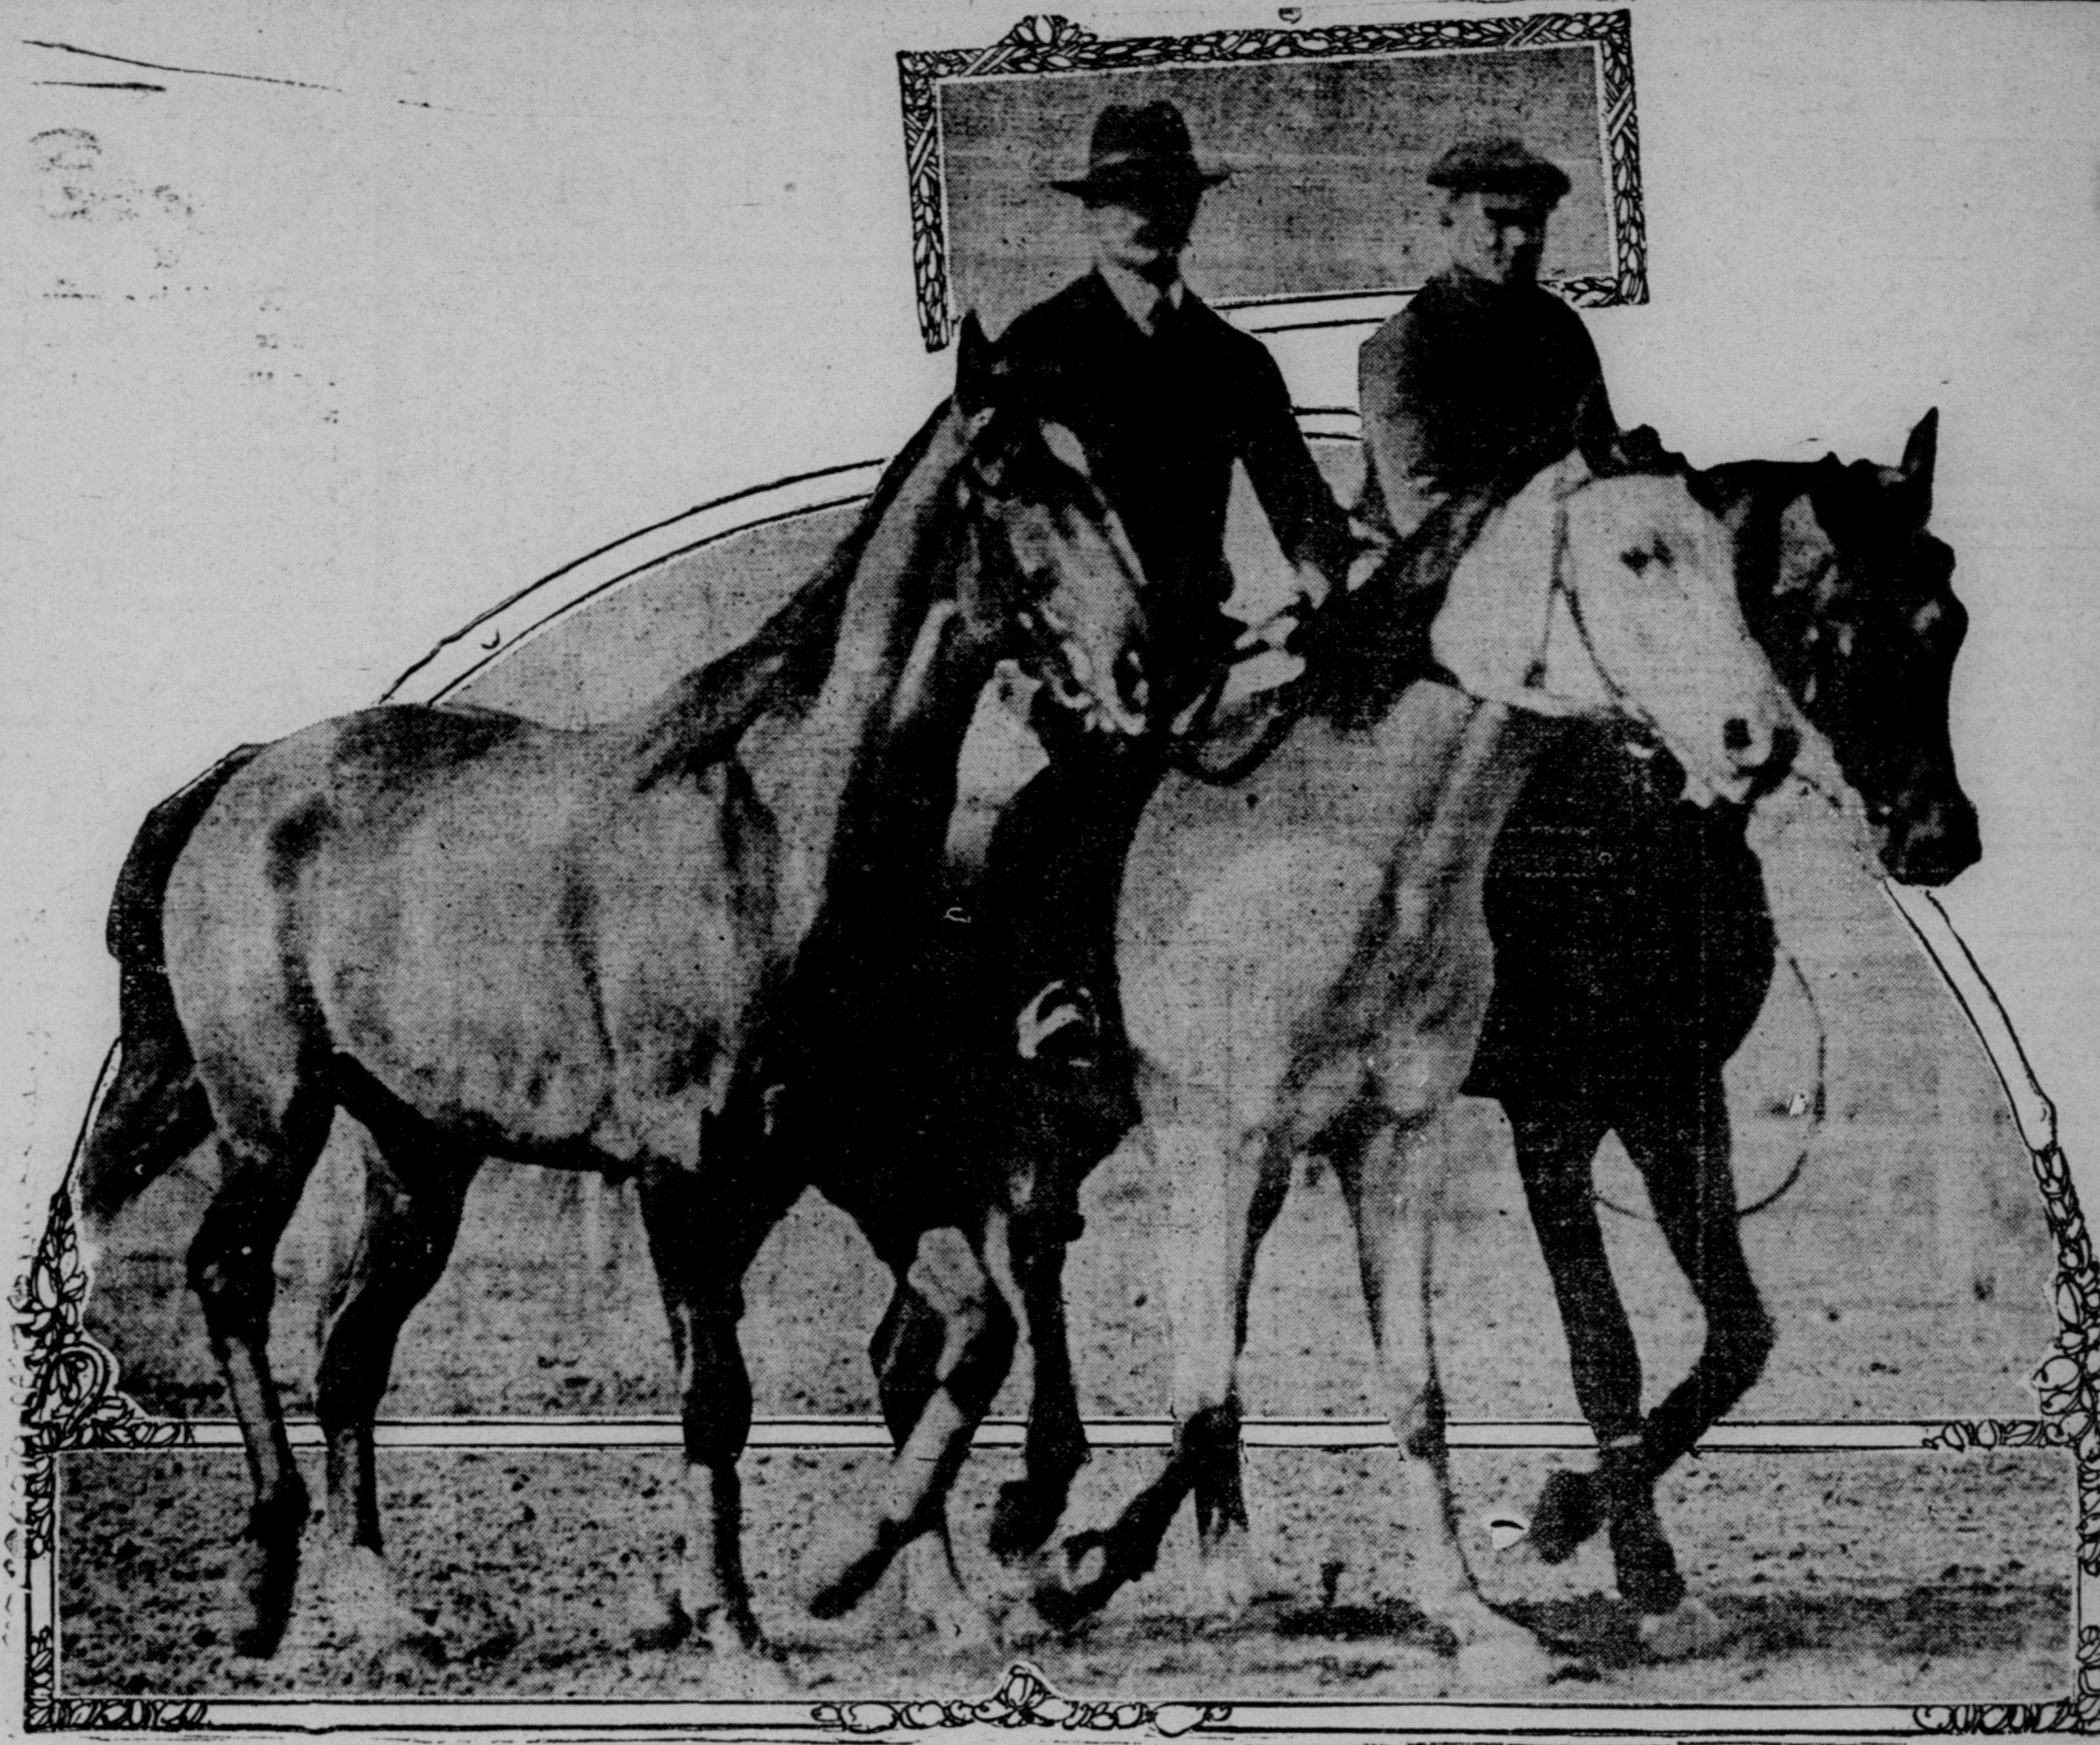

REVAL, European Russia, April 7.—This city has just recovered from a great fright. Consequently people remained indoors in a state of terror all day long, but nothing happened. In hundreds of houses, however, red flags were ready to be flung to the breeze.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT
Theodore Roosevelt, president of all the people of the United States, was the guest of the citizens of Fort Worth for a few hours this morning, and he was given such a reception as was well calculated to make him glad he came to Texas and to Fort Worth. Thousands of visitors from outside the city were here to assist Fort Worth in receiving and honoring the great head of this mighty nation, and it was an event that will be long remembered by every participant.

There was much admiration for President Roosevelt in Texas prior to this visit, and his coming seems to have set the whole state into a perfect blaze of patriotism. The love and respect shown Theodore Roosevelt must have been a genuine revelation to the man, who had no doubt come to Texas with the belief that he was thoroughly hated by every partisan democrat in all this great state. When he came among us and saw the old Confederates arm in arm with the Union soldiers and every democrat in the state just as eager to do homage to his many virtues and his greatness of heart and mind, he must have felt much better for the coming. He must have felt such feelings of pride as he never experienced before, and he must have gone away from Fort Worth a much bigger and broader man than he was when he came into the state.

Theodore Roosevelt, president of all the people of these United States, stands for the very highest type of American citizenship. He is one of the greatest presidents the country has ever produced. He is big enough to rise above all questions of party polity when the interests of the country are at stake and stand for that broad principle of Americanism that should be the inspiration of every true and patriotic citizen. The president has disappointed none of the people of Texas during his visit to this state. Now that the curtain has been rung on his visit, the people of Fort Worth are proud they were afforded an opportunity to see and greet him, and he made many warm friends by his coming. Fort Worth is a democratic city in a democratic state, but Fort Worth democracy is big enough and broad enough to take off its hat to true greatness every time it presents itself. Fort Worth feels honored in the coming of the president, and the only regret is that he could not remain longer and come in closer contact with the splendid type of American citizens who have made this city what it is.

THE SUNDAY NEWSPAPER
There are many people who have a mistaken conception of the Sunday newspaper, and bitterly oppose it on the ground that its publication as well as its enjoyment involve a violation of the Sabbath. As a matter of fact, the bulk of the work done on the Sunday morning issue of every newspaper issued Sunday mornings in Texas is accomplished before the midnight hour has been reached, and the man who objects to his Sabbath morning paper on that account is straining at a gnat in an effort to swallow a camel.

The Sunday issues of the leading papers of the world represent the very best effort that can be combined on such publications. There is not a metropolitan newspaper in all this broad land that does not make a specialty of its Sunday morning issue, and why? Simply because there is an unflinching demand for such a publication. The people want it and they are going to have it. In the eyes of some people the reading of a secular newspaper on the Sabbath morning may constitute a great sin, but the great majority of the people cannot be convinced that such is the case. God Almighty when He had finished the work of creation in six days, rested on the seventh and blessed and hallowed it. The general conception of the proper observance of the Sabbath day is that it must be regarded as God's day—a day of rest, of meditation and of communion with God. The reading of a newspaper on the Sabbath morning cannot be right-fully interpreted as an act of sacrifice or of disobedience to God. It is no more a sinful act to read a newspaper Sunday morning than it is to smoke a cigar or indulge in some other form of harmless rest and recreation. No man is any worse when he finishes the reading of his Sunday paper than he was when he started on the undertaking.

The Telegram issues a Sunday morning issue that is the most popular of its seven issued during each week. The Telegram tries to make its Sunday morning issue measure up to its conception of what a Sunday morning paper should be, and judging from the kind words of appreciation that come constantly from its patrons, it cannot but believe that its Sunday issue is doing more for the Master's work than the other six issues combined. It is given to all men to serve God according to the dictates of their own hearts and consciences and the talents and abilities with which they have been endowed. The Telegram respectfully submits that it is doing its part of this work according to the talents with which it has been endowed, and according to the dictates of its own conscience. The Telegram believes it is violating neither the law of God nor man in the publication of a Sunday morning issue.

There are newspapers that are unfit to be read on the Sabbath morning just as there are newspapers that are unfit to be read any morning during the current week. But The Telegram does not belong in either category. This paper is clean enough to go into the bosom of any man's family; it is moral in its tone and it is "tolerably religious." It has ever sought to inculcate respect for the law, has taught morality and sobriety, and at no time has it been remiss in directing the feet of its readers toward a higher plane of citizenship and a closer walk with their Creator. These things come within the conception of The Telegram as to what is constituted in the word "Duty," and the paper has never yet failed to measure up fully in that particular respect.

There are good people who disagree with The Telegram on the proposition that a Sunday newspaper is a necessity, and they are doubtless perfectly sincere in their views. They are also entitled to entertain those views without let or hindrance. It is simply a difference of opinion as to what is right and wrong, and the only real difference after all is that men continue to see things differently. The Telegram believes it can serve God and its people by the issuance of a Sunday morning paper, and it has made it a rule to send nothing into the thousands of homes it enters every Sunday morning that is not calculated to make its patrons the better for its coming.

The Telegram is perhaps less subject to the shaft of criticism on account of its Sunday morning issue than any other North Texas newspaper, but the fact that the objection is occasionally met has seemed to call for a frank declaration on the subject, and it is given with malice toward none, but with the best of goodwill for all.

It has never yet become necessary to apologize for the Sunday morning issue of The Telegram.

New Jersey is another eastern state that has just sentenced a woman to the gallows. Mrs. Annie Vallantina is to be hung in that state May 12, on a charge of murder, unless her attorneys are able to save her through an appeal to the supreme court of the United States. There ought to be enough punishment in imprisonment for life to satisfy a female murderer. The idea of hanging a woman is repugnant to all manly men.

You can no longer do your fine drinking in cold storage establishments in local option communities. The governor has signed the bill which makes such action unlawful. The fine drinking man is being continually smoked out of his last havens of refuge and soon will be compelled to do his tipping in the bosom of his family.

It is now authoritatively announced that congress is to be called in special session on Oct. 16, and our railway friends might just as well begin to make up their minds to accept the inevitable. They have had a long and prosperous season of haymaking, and the time is about to materialize when they have to come within the pale of the law.

Jim Hogg said at Dallas that democrats were willing for the republicans to assist them in welcoming Theodore Roosevelt, the great democratic president, and he came very near designating what Theodore Roosevelt really is. He is nearer a real democrat today than the only man elected as such in the past forty years.

Perhaps when the Russian commander of the lunatic fleet gets in close proximity to a real Japanese torpedo boat he will ever afterward be able to distinguish the characteristics of English fisher craft.

The city election is now over and there is nothing left to disturb the equanimity of our people. The time is ripe for every progressive citizen to put his shoulder to the wheel and do all in his power for the advancement of the public interest.

A BID FOR FREEDOM
BY GUY BOOTHBY

"Right you are, I'm your man. It's not perhaps the best time to pick up geese, but there's a fellow I know lives two miles from Leatherhead who may be able to do something for us. What do you say to running down tomorrow afternoon?"

Having no other engagement, I promptly accepted, and it was agreed that Lacey should send him a telegram in the morning to inquire whether he had anything he thought might suit us.

"Whether it was that I was overtired or not I can not say, but I could not sleep. I could not get my thoughts away from the memory of that beautiful girl whom I had seen at the theater that evening. Her face haunted me hour in, hour out.

Next morning I was early astir. I made my way down to the embarkment and then set out for a brisk walk towards Charing Cross, thence by Northumberland avenue, and thence by a circuitous route to Mayfair. Every one knows the duke of Bamborough's magnificent house. For my own part, I had good reasons for wishing to have a look at it.

ville after her, as full of mischief as a young monkey, and prouder of her brother than anything or any one else in the world. It seems that society has knocked the girl out of her and has left a woman of fashion in her place."

An hour or so after breakfast Lacey put in an appearance. It appeared that he had sent the wire to the man near Leatherhead, and had received a reply that he had in his stable four animals that he thought might suit us. We went out and carefully looked the horses over, but the ground was too hard, of course, to try them. At the dealer's suggestion we agreed to come out again as soon as the frost broke, when, should they prove satisfactory, we would purchase them.

That evening I wrote to the principal house agent in the neighborhood of Burdnean to find us a small residence. Our lucky star was evidently in the ascendant, for four days later the frost broke, and the house agent wrote to say that he had found us just what we required. We paid a second visit to the stables, tried the horses and found them excellent.

I often look back now upon that first night's dinner in our new abode, with Jim Lacey at the other end of the

I SAW A TALL, GRACEFUL FIGURE EMERGE FROM THE DOOR.

By the time I reached it the maids were just getting astir. Upstairs the blinds were still down, and as I watched, I could not help wondering which might be the room occupied by the Lady Olivia. In order that it might not be thought that I was watching the house I walked to the end of the street, and then returned on the other side of the road. Before resuming my homeward walk I turned to take one last look at the house. To my astonishment I saw the footman, who had been talking to a maid on the steps, move a little on one side and then bow. A moment later I saw a tall, graceful figure, that I easily recognized, emerge from the doorway and come down the steps.

Reaching the corner she made her way down Upper Grosvenor street. For a moment I stood irresolute. Early as the hour was, should I take advantage of the chance presented to me and make myself known to her? It was a dangerous step, but it was just possible that it might succeed.

I waited till she reached the bottom of the street that led to Park lane. She turned to the left hand, whereupon I went down South Audley street as fast as I could go, turned up Park street, and then, trusting to my luck, made my way up Park lane. When I turned the corner she was only a few paces from me. I walked up to her and raised my hat.

"I hope you will forgive my rudeness and that I am not making a mistake," I said. "Are you not the Lady Olivia Belhampton?"

She was not in the least put out, but looked steadily at me out of her gray eyes.

"That is certainly my name," she answered. "Is there anything that I can do for you?"

"Is it possible that you do not remember me, Lady Olivia?" I said. "I am sure I must have changed a good deal since you last saw me. Your brother Greenville and I were great friends. I have very vivid recollection of a boating party on the lake at Bramleigh castle, and your doing your best to upset me out of an American canoe."

"Surely you are not Mr. Gravesson," she cried. "Roger Gravesson?"

"That is my name," I answered. "You will forgive me for speaking to you in the street?"

"But, Mr. Gravesson, where have you been all these years? We have neither heard nor seen anything of you."

"Walking up and down the world," I answered, "from Dan to Beersheba. I only arrived in England yesterday."

"And are you going to stay long?"

"All depends," I answered. "I may be here a month, I may be here a year. At present I am anxious to get a little hunting, but this sort seems likely to last."

Seeing that she did not wish to be detained any longer, I bade her good morning and went on my way in the opposite direction.

"She's not the same jolly little girl that I used to know in the old days," I said to myself as I walked along. "I can see her now, with her long hair flying in the wind, running across the lawn with Green-table, young handsome, clothed in the knowledge of the big world, which is an education that comes to few. I put the kasbah behind me; it was only a nightmare, a ghoulish memory that I must school myself to forget. But as I raised my glass of port to my lips I seemed to see that room in the palace, the sultan loling upon his cushions, and those dark, distrustful eyes fixed upon me. Almost mechanically I put my glass down, and a deadly chill swept over me.

"What's the matter, old fellow?" inquired my companion. "You are looking very glum."

"I was thinking," I replied. "I was dragging up old memories."

"Well, I must say you are a cheerful sort of party," said Lacey. "What's the matter with you? You are not drunk, I know, because you take scarcely anything, but you are as glum as a sick owl."

"Never mind, old boy," I said, rising from my chair. "I shall be better in the morning. Let's get to bed. We have plenty to do tomorrow."

Reaching my own apartment, I threw open the window and looked out. Across the valley I could see the lights of Burdnean Hill.

CHAPTER VII.
Our first morning out was perfect. The sky was blue, the wind in the right quarter, and it needed only a glance to see that the going would be fine. The meet was some five miles distant and was a favorite one.

"I wouldn't change places with an emperor," said Lacey, after we had given our hacks a smart half-mile over a piece of common land beside the road.

"Nor I with a sultan," I replied. And I can assure you with the utmost truth that I meant it!

The master and the hounds had just arrived. The field was a big one, though I fear a large proportion of them were intentional Macadamites.

All this time I was keeping my eyes open in the hope of seeing Lady Olivia. At first I thought she had not arrived, but at last I espied her on the farther side of the hounds.

Leaving Lacey to his own devices, I walked my horse round in that direction. If she had looked lovely at the theater, she was even more so now. Her habit fitted her to perfection; her hair was neatly coiled beneath her hat; and the toe of a particularly smart boot peeped out from beneath her skirt. She was splendidly mounted on a thoroughbred bay with black points, who looked fit enough to win the grand national. Taking advantage of the conversation I had with her that morning in Park lane, I rode up to her and wished her "good morning." She was evidently surprised to see me.

Colds

A cold is always the result of undue exposure to low temperatures. The rapid cooling of the surface, when not balanced by proper reaction, produces the congestion and inflammation of the nasal and bronchial membranes, commonly called a cold. As the slightest cold predisposes the individual to attacks of the most severe and dangerous character, the necessity for its quick cure need not be emphasized. Take as soon as the first indication of the cold appears and all dangerous results will be avoided. It not only cures a cold quickly but counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. This fact has been fully proven during the epidemics of colds and grip of the past few years. No case of either of these diseases having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, has ever been reported to the manufacturers or come to their notice, which shows conclusively that it is not only the best and quickest cure for a cold, but a certain preventive of that dangerous disease—pneumonia.

There is no danger in giving this remedy to children as it contains no opium or other harmful drug. It is pleasant to take.

gleanings From the Exchanges

After the adjournment of the Houston convention the credit staff writers clubbed together and collaborated on "the passing of Hogg." He paraded this way again yesterday and had something of interest to say about the glories of the commonwealth, the rule of the people and the emancipation of the producers of wealth—all on account of the American nerve of Theodore Roosevelt. The staff writers should get together and make another wild pass at the Texas champion of the Panama canal.—Dallas Times-Herald.

The anti-Hogg batteries have already unlimbered and opened fire in consequence of that late Dallas speech. The "reorganization" guns are barking the loudest in the engagement, but the aim is wild and scattering. The people of Texas know James S. Hogg too well to be influenced by these attacks. They also know the people who are making them.

In his speech before the legislature Senator Bailey declared that in the fight against the encroachments of corporations the Texas democracy is looked upon as a model and as a guide. That is true concerning the railway corporations. But the beef trust and the oil trust do not sidestep in Texas any more than they do in Illinois or Ohio.—Waco Times-Herald.

Texas has some people who do not want the trust question further agitated. Petitions are being circulated in this city asking the state legislature not to appropriate $15,000 for the attorney general to use in an effort to put the trusts out of business in Texas. "And what do you think of that?"

A great many mendicants have been seen on the streets of Denton recently, and hardly a day passes that the public is not called upon to drop a nickel or dime into the hat of some apparently worthy blind person. Denton people must have a reputation abroad for being very liberal.—Denton News.

It must be a mistake about so many mendicants being seen on the streets of Denton, as it hardly seems possible that any of them have escaped from Fort Worth. This city is the mecca for all of the tribe who are able to travel, and those who can't travel on their own means are generally sent here.

Governor Lanham in his address yesterday during the reception of Governor Herriot suggested to members of the legislature not to forget that their people might be glad to welcome them home again early. He also congratulated them over the fact that so far they have done but little harm.—Austin Tribune.

When Governor Lanham congratulated the state legislature on having done so little harm, he did not cover the entire subject. He should have also explained that the honorable body has done but little of anything except jam wind. It takes a very strong windstorm to do much harm, and that engendered at Austin has been very scattering.

The joint legislative committee appointed to investigate the operations of the beef trust in Texas will probably hold another meeting within the next few days. Members of the committee have received many letters from stockmen and others giving information which may lead to obtaining valuable evidence against the trust. These letters will be laid before the committee at its next meeting.—San Antonio Stockman.

The rapid appreciation in cattle values as reflected in all the market centers seems to be exerting an effect in the direction of curbing anti-beef trust talk. Cattlemen seem to think the market manipulators have reached the point where they are willing to turn loose and are turning loose. This idea seems to have something behind it, for cattle are bringing better prices now than for three years.

The old conundrum is revived by some late in the day sports—When shall we revise the tariff? That is easy as falling off a log. We will revise the tariff when the present schedules are not meeting the revenues of the nation and conducing to her vast increase in business. So long as trade is good and wealth increases and money is easy why should these schedules be changed? Next congressional session may see some changes made, but not that general revision of the whole tariff schedules that so many democrats and a few republicans cry for.—San Antonio Light.

You mean the tariff will be revised when the people of the United States drive the republican party to it. And it is dangerously near that point now. The president is sufficiently astute to recognize the situation and would head it off. But other party leaders are so blinded by devotion to trust principles that they are content to remain in a position constantly inviting disaster.

Russell Sage announces that he has finally retired from the busy scenes of life and will spend the remainder of his days in quietude at his country home on Long Island. The great money maker is 89 years old and was, until a year or so ago, able to look after a large volume of his vast business interests. He cannot, in the natural order of things, live much longer, and the question might well be asked what good his immense wealth will do him after all the struggles of burdensome days and sleepless nights spent to accumulate a great pile of shining dollars? His wealth runs up into hundreds of millions, yet it will not purchase a single hour of life nor make the precincts of the grave any brighter or easier than the last resting place vouchsafed to even the poorest and most miserable of the land. And the same worm that feeds upon the dust of the mendicant will be the last companion of him whose wealth is almost beyond computation.—Beaumont Journal.

The entire human family is continually engaged in a mad race for the accumulation of the elusive dollar, and the few who succeed in the undertaking generally find they have sacrificed all else in life worth having for something that is really gross. If accumulated wealth could be carried out of this world, or if it could purchase the things lost in its acquirement, the situation would be different. But the millionaire has the same death rattle in his throat as the beggar, and his flesh becomes food for the same worms. There is more in life than the accumulation of wealth, but many men do not realize it until it is entirely too late.

Jan. 1, 1906, is the day set by the International Typographical union for the observance of the eight-hour work day in book and job offices. In this connection it is a fact worthy of note that already seventy-eight local unions of printers have established for their entire membership forty-eight or less hours per week.

FORT WORTH'S RECEPTION

sequence of a matter which a little concerns western Texas, and which concerns still more the Rocky mountain states, and that is the question of irrigation, and nothing that I am proud of in connection with my administration that having done my part in making the movement for irrigation a national one. Here in Texas you have rivers and harbors—we want to improve them nationally so as to make them navigable—and on the other hand you have regions where we want to take care of the headwaters of the stream, so that the farmer, in security, can take care of his crops. Texas has such an enormous extent of territory—a territory so widely diversified that almost all the things which culminate in some particular state, all come to the front in Texas, and therefore, we have a right to expect that more than almost any other state Texas stands for an epitome of our whole national life. And let me repeat here what I have said to various audiences, and I mean it literally, every word of it. I did not need to come here in order to be a good citizen, and a good American, but if I had needed it I would have gotten what I needed here. (Cheers.) And although I came to Texas as a private good American, I want you to understand that I feel that no president, while he is the president, can afford not to come to Texas, for he will leave, no matter who he is, a better American than he came. (Cheers.)

INCIDENTS OF THE VISIT

Back of the stand where the president spoke had been erected a framework on which was stretched bunting. Back of the framework was an eager crowd straining to see the occupants of the stand, but unable to do so. When the president arrived at the end of the parade, a movement was made to tear down the bunting so that the crowd behind the stand could catch a glimpse. Police rushed to the back of the stand to stop them, but the president, motioning the officers to let the bunting be torn down, said: "His acquiescence to the crowd's desire provoked a hearty cheer."

COTTON MARKET IS DULL

Past Week Has Been One of Light Trading—Movement Has Been Unusually Large

NEW YORK, April 8.—The past week was one of extreme dullness, the public practically having no interest in the market, the crop being too large to buy cotton for an investment and selling is practically prohibited by a lack of protection at New York, where the stock is so small 75,000, against 108,000 bales.

The movement to market is of such magnitude as to surpass all expectations, 10,886,000 having been marketed already, against 9,272,000 last year, the movement of the past week amounting to 250,000 bales, compared with 60,000 last year. The market has been so narrow for the want of speculation that values remain practically unchanged when compared with this day a week ago, July closing at 7.46c today, against 7.46c Saturday. There is some talk of a great deal of cotton being shipped to the northern markets for delivery on May contracts, rumor having it that large freight engagements have been made here for immediate shipment to New York, and it is said Memphis and points in Texas will forward to the north a great deal of cotton, principally low grades.

The May position at New York still maintains a premium, nevertheless, but it is a question if the market will hold if 5,000 bales or so be tendered the owner of long contracts, as the impression prevails that the interest on the long side of the market is a speculative one purely and will not take care of the deliveries to be made. As regards the new crop preparations, reports from the state agricultural departments of Alabama, South Carolina and Georgia show as much fertilizer sold to date as was sold up to this time one year ago and other states report no material reduction.

In relation to the proposed decrease in acreage, reports are rather against the possibility of there being anything like the original proposition to reduce it 25 per cent, some points in Alabama report an increase over last year, and advices from the exterior to the effect that no important reduction will be made in that state, in the southwestern portion of which state the new crop is coming up to a good stage and the continuous rains during March have made it imperative on the part of farmers to plant cotton, and they have no other alternative. Business is suffering seriously for the want of activity, but it seems that the market will have to seek a lower level before the public will interest itself and the sooner manipulation is checked the better it will be for all concerned.

LIVERPOOL COTTON

(By Private Wire to M. H. Thomas & Co.) LIVERPOOL, April 8.—The spot cotton market was quiet, with middling quoted at 4.27d. Sales 5,000 bales. Receipts 18,000 bales, of which 15,800 were American. Futures ranged in prices as follows:

THE LIVE STOCK MARKET

Run of Cattle Continues Large, Receipts Nearing 2,000 Mark—Hog Supply Light—Market Active

NORTH FORT WORTH, April 8.—The run of cattle today was agreeably large and consisted almost entirely of steers. Total receipts were 1,796, against 521 Saturday of last week, 686 the same day in March and 1,188 the corresponding day in 1904.

The bulk of the steer run was grassers, though a large proportion consisted of fed stuff. Packers and outsiders were waiting for the run and the resulting market was active and strong. Fed steers averaging 1,361 sold towards the top, $5, with the bulk between $4.35 and $4.90. The big run of grass steers afforded considerable chance for leeway in prices, and these ranged from $4.40 to $4.10. Cows were very scarce, and hardly enough in sight to make a market. Top $4, on extra heavies with the bulk, such as it was, between $3 and $3.25.

For a wonder, the Saturday market brought in a good supply of bulls and stags, and on these the best market of the week resulted, fat bulls selling at $3.10, the average of which was 1,598 pounds, while fat stags, averaging 1,375 pounds, sold at $3.85.

Calves were a water haul, so far as numbers were concerned. The few that were in sight sold steady with prevailing prices. A good outlet for choice calves is in sight at higher prices.

HOGS

The supply today was a little above the average for a Saturday, 1,500, against 878 Saturday last week, 730 the same day last month and 477 the corresponding day in 1904.

The quality was not equal to the previous days of the week's close, there being many of medium quality, with plenty of lights and pigs.

Trading began early, with an active movement and hogs sold steady to strong. Top were $5.40 for hogs averaging 241 pounds, with the bulk from $5.10 to $5.35. Pigs had a good demand at $4.10 to $4.50.

THE HERO'S MEMORIAL
President's Address Made Facing Monument Erected to Al Hayne, Whose History is Clouded

The Al Hayne monument, fronting which President Roosevelt made his Fort Worth address, was erected by the citizens of Fort Worth under the auspices of the Woman's Humane Association in 1892 at a cost of $2,500, raised by popular subscription. The monument was a recognition to a dead hero for sacrificing his own life to save others.

Alfred Hayne was a small contractor of Fort Worth, having several contracts for bridges on the Denver road out of this city. During the spring palace festivities on the night of May 29, 1890, the palace, which stood in the triangle, caught fire. In the building, and especially on the second floor of it, were many women, children and men. Owing to the fierceness with which the flames burned, they were unable to make their escape from the building except by jumping to the ground some eighteen feet below. Hayne remained in the building and passed the frightened people of the windows to the firemen below. When all had escaped Hayne jumped from the window on the north side of the building, falling in a heap, breaking a limb and severely injuring himself internally.

After he had fallen those about the burning building saw his condition and grabbing a ten fly threw it over him, carrying him away from the mass of burning debris in which he had fallen. Hayne was so badly hurt that he died the following day, May 31.

At the earnest solicitation of the Woman's Humane Society funds were raised to erect the monument with the fountain for watering horses at its base. The monument bears the following inscription: On the north side, "Memorial Fountain, Erected by the Public Under the Auspices of the Woman's Humane Association, 1893." On the east side, "Most Noble is That Fame Which Rests on Heroic Deeds of Love and Sacrifice." On the south side, "In honor of the hero of the Spring Palace Fire, Al Hayne, Who, Unselfish As Brave, Died That Others Might Live." On the west side, "Alfred S. Hayne, A. J., 1849-May 31, 1890. London, Eng. Fort Worth, Texas."

Under a canopy at the top of the monument supported by four pillars is a stone-carved bust of the hero. At the base of the beautiful monument is a watering trough surrounding it. The entire monument is made of Texas stone.

Nothing is known of Alfred Hayne, except the place of his birth and that he has one brother living. He had been in Fort Worth for several years prior to the time of his heroic deed. The story of his noble deeds, however, are known throughout the entire country and visitors to the city consider a visit to the monument one of the most important of the city's interesting points.

The Glory of Maternity.

Nature, if left alone, will cure for itself; this might have been true at some pre-historic time, but since for ages it has not been left alone, but has been bound down and fettered by the observations and mandates of society, it can no longer care for itself.

At no time does the truth of this appeal to us more strongly than at that period of a woman's life when she is about to become a mother. Nature must be assisted at this crisis, and for this very contingency

MOTHER'S FRIEND

It has been devised that the muscles and tissues imprisoned and weakened as they have been by the stress of our higher civilization, may fulfill without undue suffering a possible lasting harm, the functions for which the Creator intended them.

Mother's Friend by its kindly offices softens and relaxes these parts and enables the mother to be, to pass through the parturient period a more actual crisis without suffering, and to herself and an easy delivery of her offspring.

It is applied externally as a massage, and is a non-irritating, soothing, and most efficacious liniment. $1.00. All druggists. Our book "Motherhood" sent free on request.

FORMER TURF FIGURE HAS THROAT SEVERED
Winfield Pope, Now New York Bartender, Slashed by Razor, Parting His Neck Muscles

NEW YORK, April 8.—Winfield Pope, formerly a wealthy horse owner on the Pacific coast, who in recent years has been earning a livelihood as a bartender in this city, has been probably fatally wounded by P. J. Ware, a mulatto bell-boy.

Pope's neck was cut half through, all the muscles having been severed so that he was unable to control his head when found by the police. According to Ware, the fight was started by Pope who, he said, invaded his rooms in Thirty-first street, and attacked him with a revolver. Forcing back his assailant, Ware says he seized a razor and slashed him across the back of the neck from one side of the jaw to the other and made his escape.

GRANT'S TOMB CRUMBLING

Waterproof Preparation to Be Placed on Mausoleum for Its Preservation in Future

ELABORATE DECORATIONS

City Dons Gala Attire in Honor of President's Visit and Presents Brilliant Appearance

When the president and his party stepped from the rear platform of the special train, American flags, tri-colored bunting, hanging in neat clusters and cleverly draped, his lithographs surrounded with bunting and rosettes, greeted his eyes whichever way he looked. The train sheds of the Texas and Pacific passenger station on each side of track No. 5 were festooned in gala decorations. Passing from the train shed to the station platform and then to the street on the East Front street side through a lane of flags and bunting into the open air, each turn or look only showed him he was surely welcomed to Fort Worth.

From the station, as he looked out upon the buildings on East Front street, again superb decorations could be seen. Not a building, in whatever direction he looked, had been left without some decorative demonstration that the stars were anxious to welcome the head of the American nation. The front of the station bore pictures of the president in the shape of stars surrounded with bunting. Long streamers of it hung from the stately building in graceful profusion. From the top of all the buildings floated the American flag. On every side were stars with "Welcome" on them.

Turning into Main street from East Front the sight was imposing. Looking up the street, it appeared to be a sea of red, white and blue. Across the street at intervals of half blocks were ropes of tri-colored pennant flags. Each building along the entire street on both sides was decorated. Flags, bunting, rosettes and perhaps a little cheaper at the William Henry & R. E. Bell Hardware Co., 1615-17 Main street.
