HOW THE ESTIMATE WAS MADE Bulletin 7, referred to by Director of the larger cities of the United States for 1901, 1902 and 1903, and under the head of "Method of Estimating," says: "The method prescribed by the committee for estimating the population of cities having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1900 and the states and territories exclusive of these cities was as follows: "First-That the population be esti-be computed as a whole. Third-that the population of the states, exclusive of cities separately computed, be computed as a whole, and the state total obtained by addition of the urban and rural population computed as above described.

"Fourth-That Information be secured concerning the changes in the boundaries of incorporated places, to be taken into consideration in the estimates.

"Fifth-That the method of estimating employe be the arithmetical method, namely, that the growth in each year is equal to one-tenth the decennial increase, or one-fifth the quinquennial increase between the two previous censuses.

"Sixth-That where the corporate limits of cities are extended and the new territory added does not correspond to minor civil divisions or enumeration districts, the population of which can be determined, local inquiry be made to ascertain the approximate population in-

"In accordance with the plan outlined, letters were sent to the city engineers requesting a description of any annexation of territory that had been made between June 1. 1890, and June 1, 1903, giving the month and year of the annexaand its area in acres. From a majority of the cities prompt replies were received, but a number failed to respond even to a second request. An effort was then made to obtain the data needed from the postmaster, mayor, or other city official, and in every city from which no information could be obtained the population was estimated as though no change in area had been made. Immediately after the question of annexation was decided, letters were addressed to the mayors and postmasters of the cities asking for an lon as to whether any unusual changes in the city's development or industrial growth that affected the normal growth of the population had occurred since June 1 1900, and if so to what extent the popu lation had increased or decreased. They were also requested to furnish their estimates of the population of the city for Unfavorable Crop Reports and Failure of 1901, 1902 and 1903. The estimates made by the mayors and postmasters were generally based on the number of names found in the city directories, a large majority using 21/2 as the multiple, and the remainder, with a lew exceptions, 21/4. The results of local censuses were furnished in several cities, but under the instructions they could not be accepted."

It will be noted that Director North's etter contains no statement that the figures contained in the news dispatches re-ferred to were incorect and it therefore terioration of the wheat crop and of uns natural to assume that they are official. For five days past tarian congregation tomorrow at 11 Midding 8.60 Suffolk, L. The siege was abandoned when the service papers were accepted by counsel. The father retfred seven years ago and turned over his business to James, to whom he gave power of attorney. He now charges at least $1,000,000 worth of property has been conveyed by the son to the latter's wife and alleges he discovered this after having arranged for the sale of $150,000 worth of real estate in Hoboken.
