MAY DESTROY HOPE OF PEACE

War Party Believes a New Navy Can Be Created and Put in Commission

ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.—The government authorities appear to be very much encouraged by the latest reports in regard to the naval situation in the far east.

REVIVES HOPE

The war party has seized upon this dispatch as a nucleus around which to construct hopes of the renewal of the campaign.

The council of war, it is said, is almost unanimously of the opinion that a continuance of the war, no matter what the expense would be, would be preferable to the presentment that Japanese will demand great sums in negotiations for peace.

EVIDENCES OF UNREST
Incidents of unrest are multiplying in various sections of the empire and one demonstration by 15,000 workmen attended by more or less disturbance occurred today and in a charge by Cossacks and police.

OYAMA ORDERED TO PUSH BATTLE

TERRIBLE SLAUGHTER WAS DONE BY JAPANESE

Three Surviving Russian Ships Present Terrible Scene Upon Arrival at Manila

MANILA, June 3.—Three of the ships of Rojestvensky's fleet which escaped destruction or capture in the Sea of Japan, reached Manila today, as told in the afternoon dispatches.

They are the protected cruisers Aurora, Jentchug and Oleg. They are so battered that they are virtually wrecks. Their hospitals and between decks are literally packed with wounded and dying.

For a week they have sought a refuge, floating hospitals, their hundreds of wounded and mangled men suffering horribly and many dying, the surgeons being unequal to the herculean task of caring for them.

The Aurora is the flagship of Rear Admiral Enquist, in command of the battered squadron. They were beaten in the battle with Togo's ships on Saturday last. More than half their complement of men was killed or wounded. Most of their guns were put out of commission.

Were Battered Hulks
They were battered hulks today when they crawled slowly past Corregidor Island, just at sunset and were escorted by the squadron of Rear Admiral Train and coast guard cutters in the bay.

When the Aurora anchored Admiral Train went on board and offered the services of the squadron in caring for the wounded Russians. Preparations were made to remove these to the naval and other hospitals in Manila. Each ship had on more than 100 wounded. Many of these had been frightfully torn and mangled by bursting shells. The scene on the Russian ships between decks was indescribable.

Offered Assistance
Rear Admiral Train's squadron, consisting of the battleship Ohio, his flagship, the battleships Wisconsin and Oregon, and the cruiser Cincinnati and Raccoon, were maneuvering in the gulf of Lingayen when the Russian warships were sighted. Admiral Enquist fired the salute of thirteen guns, which was answered. Admiral Train then formed his fleet and the nominal Korean rulers are not even consulted by the Japanese officials. The emperor is practically a prisoner, with no will other than that of his Japanese master.

Koreans Impressed
Thousands of Koreans, according to these reports, are impressed for duty with the army as carriers and anything which is needed by the Japanese is taken at prices fixed by the takers. It is this course which has caused so much dissatisfaction among the Koreans. It is believed here in certain quarters at least that it is the purpose of Japan to make the country as unpleasant for the natives as possible, with the idea of having the surplus population of Japan crowd them out all together and make Korea practically a second Japan.

Proposed Bond Issue
AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—A report was current in political circles at the state house here today that when State Health Officer George R. Tabor returns from his bridal trip he would formally announce for congress from the Sixth district on the democratic ticket Scott Field of Robertson county and Richard Mays of Navarro county are already in the field. For the past six years Scott Field has been representing this district in congress.

Proposed Bond Issue
AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—Judge Kennon, former of Dallas was here today and had a conference with the attorney general regarding a proposed bond issue for Dallas county, in accordance with the act passed by the last legislature. Judge Fore is county judge of Dallas county.

THE CRY IS STILL FOR WAR
The War Party in Russia Still Cries for More Fighting and Will Get It

A General Movement Against Linevitch Is On

THE CRY IS STILL FOR WAR

The War Party in Russia Still Cries for More Fighting and Will Get It

LONDON, June 3.—The emperor of Japan has forwarded orders to Marshal Oyama to begin at once a general movement of all the land forces against the troops under Linevitch.

Cable advices to this effect were received here this morning and by this time, it is believed, the entire Japanese in Manchuria is on the move.

Taken in connection with the reports of disaffection among the Russian troops in the Far East, which necessitated the execution of 325 soldiers last week for mutiny, news of another Japanese victory may soon be looked for. It is believed that the last Japanese move has for its culminating point the attack upon Vladivostok.

Serious as are the reports from Manchuria as to the effect that the Russian naval disaster has had among the czar's troops the situation is even more forbidding in Asia. Russia seems to be on the verge of open outbreak and it is doubtful if the expected calling of a national assembly will relieve the pressure.

Still Cry For War
In many circles the opinion is openly expressed that a general assembly summoned by the czar would quickly pass beyond the power creating it, seize the reins of government and precipitate the long expected revolution for the time being. It is believed, therefore, would be no movement looking toward peace. The czar refuses to see that Russia is hopelessly beaten, even after the disaster in the Korean straits, and in official quarters the cry therefore is still for war.

What this will mean only the future can develop. At all events there is nothing to prevent Japan now from advancing and wresting from Russia every part of her territory on the Pacific. Details of Rojestvensky's absolute rout continue to come in and the grief of the Russians is rapidly turning to rage. It is now stated that there was also mutiny in the fleet and Admiral Nebogatoff's surrender is explained on the ground that the sailors locked him and his officers in their cabins at the height of the battle and ran up the white flag. Nebogatoff, it is said, was compelled to hang eight sailors for mutiny long before the fleet reached the Far East.

Rojestvensky's Plans
From cabinet reports from various points in Japan it is now seen that Rojestvensky's plan was to divide the Japanese strength at the outset and he sent his best cruisers ahead to scout the straits of Tsu Shima. He hoped to avoid a general engagement and to reach Vladivostok with the least possible loss. His scouts informed him that the Japanese fleet had really been divided, that part of it was watching the Tsu Shima straits, while the other vessels were guarding the Tshugara straits.

Expecting, therefore, to meet an inferior force in Tsu Shima straits and with the fleet formation designed to deal with such a force, he headed toward the straits.

Togo Too Sharp
Togo, however, had apparently anticipated just such a movement on the part of Rojestvensky. For weeks he had waited in the vicinity of the Tsu islands which can be seen from Japan and Korea, refusing to be lured away and forfeit his advantage. He held the inner line with the battleships and Vice Admiral Kiamura with the cruisers and the two divisions closed in upon the surprised Russians as already related in the dispatches.

PRESIDENT'S SECRET AT LAST MADE PUBLIC

Wish of Entire Diplomatic Corps That Roosevelt Lead in Effort for Peace

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The secret officials of the ambassadors and ministers of President Roosevelt regarding sundry preparations for peace in the Far East is out.

The ambassadors who have spoken to the president on the subject of peace are: Count Cassini of Russia, Baron von Sternberg of Germany, Mayor Des Planches of Italy, Sir Mortimer Durand of Great Britain and Kogoro Takahira of Japan.

Aside from those interested territorially and otherwise, it might be said that the whole diplomatic corps is in favor of President Roosevelt taking the lead in the matter of bringing about an accommodation between Russia and Japan. There are the best of reasons for believing that the president is making use of Secretary of State Hay, now in Europe, and that within a week Ambassador Meyer at St. Petersburg will get instructions from Roosevelt: "That the war must stop, and at once."

CENSUS DIRECTOR MAKES APOLOGIES

S. N. D. North Replies to Fort Worth Board of Trade Protest

Under date of May 31 Director North of the United States census bureau at Washington, in reply to a letter from Captain B. E. Paddock who sent him a copy of the Board of Trade resolution censuring the report of the bureau for giving the population of Fort Worth so ridiculously low, writes the Board of Trade as follows:

"I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of a copy of the resolutions adopted by the Fort Worth Board of Trade, relative to the estimate placed by this office on the population of the cities of Texas, and the same has received my careful consideration. In response to what appears to be the wishes of your directors, the bureau of the census will hereafter omit the computation of intercensal estimates for Fort Worth, except as they may be absolutely necessary in the work of the bureau.

"In order that you may fully understand the attitude of the bureau, permit me to explain why and how this necessity arises. The census office is engaged in the preparation of a report upon the wealth, debt and taxation of the United States, as of the year 1902. It is also charged by law to annually collect the social and financial statistics of cities of 30,000 population and over. In these reports it must compute the per capita debt, the per capita taxes, and many other computations which involve population figures. It must either fall back upon the population figures of the census of 1900, or it must compute the increase in accordance with a law which applies with equal impartiality to all communities. There can be no question that the latter method brings the most accurate results.

"Again, the bureau is required by law to compile and publish annually the mortality statistics of all states and cities where deaths are properly registered. One purpose of these reports is to establish the death rates of these cities. It is necessary in order to establish the annual death rate per thousand of population, to determine approximately, in the years between the federal and state censuses, the population of these cities. It is essential that the same method of approximating population shall be applied in all cities in order that there may be a scientific uniformity in the municipal death rates established by the census. That is the reason why the office determines the increase in population by the method of computation based upon the annual average growth of each city as shown by previous censuses, rather than by reliance upon directory canvasses, school censuses, police censuses, or any of the other methods by which communities are wont to compute growth. Taking the cities as a whole, it has been found by careful study and comparison, extending over a long period of years, that the census method reaches results much closer to the actual facts than can be attained by resort to these local counts or estimates, which are always more or less affected by local pride or local conditions. The aim of the office is to deal fairly by all cities, and it must apply the same rule to all. Otherwise, it would be forever involved in charges of discrimination and favoritism.

"The only exception it can make is where intermediate state census determines the official population. But to avoid arousing local prejudices, the office long since announced that it would not compute the population of cities where intermediate censuses show an increase, now in other cases where, for any special reason, as in the case of Fort Worth, it is felt that the computation does not approximate the increasing population with sufficient accuracy."

PADDOCK'S REPLY

To the above Captain Paddock Saturday replied as follows:

"S. N. D. North, Esq., Director of the Census, Washington, D. C.:

"Dear Sir—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your esteemed favor of May 31, relative to the estimate placed by the census bureau on the population of Fort Worth.

"I thank you for the trouble you have taken to advise me upon the methods adopted by your office to arrive at the population of cities. It is needless, I suppose, to discuss this matter further, but I cannot refrain from directing your attention to the fact that the statistics gathered by your department, in order to possess any value whatever, should be as near accurate as it is possible to make them. I agree that the method of computation used by you is probably the best that could be devised under ordinary conditions, but when this method, for special reasons, does not even approximate the increasing population, it seems to me that other sources of information might be utilized.

"I note you say that one purpose of these reports is to establish the death rates of these cities. You will readily see what gross injustice is done our city in this one particular. There were 403 deaths of citizens of Fort Worth during the year 1904 and according to your system this makes about 16 to the 1,000, but when the actual population is taken into account it is about half this number.

"People who are looking for a new location first inquire about its health. Your figures make it a very unhealthy location. The facts would show it to be one of the healthiest places in the union. However, as I stated before, probably discussion is futile, and we must submit as gracefully as we can to the injury imposed, and content ourselves with the reflection that any person who visits Fort Worth expecting to see a crowd of 20,000 people, as stated by the bureau of census, will be forced to the conclusion that if other reports emanating from the same source are not more accurate than this, they cannot be of much value.

"Thanking you again for your kind attention to our complaint, I am,

"Yours very truly,

"B. E. PADDOCK, Sec'y."

Work will commence Monday morning on the new buildings to be occupied by T. R. James & Sons. The new plant will be located at Stop 3, about two miles from the Texas and Pacific station, on the Interurban.

There will be a two-story building with basement 100x150 feet, and a one-story building with basement. Besides manufacturing saddlery, harness and shoe findings, the new plant will have the only tannery in Texas and the only one in the south outside of Tennessee and Georgia.

The new industry will be watched with interest, as according to the statement of T. R. James, the success of his tannery will mean that Fort Worth will become the leather center of the southwest and northwest.

Mr. James says that the packing houses in North Fort Worth are able to supply ten of the largest tanneries in the United States with hides, so that it will not be necessary for Fort Worth tanners to go away from home for their raw material. The tanneries in Georgia, which have made such a big success, have to import 50 per cent of their skins. The natural market of a successful Fort Worth tannery will extend as far north and west as Montana and Wyoming.

The new plant is expected to give an impetus to real estate in its immediate neighborhood and Mr. James predicts that there will be another small colony around it in a few months.

MUST REPAIR ROADS

Rural Free Delivery to Stop Where Travel is Hard

Bad condition of some of the roads in this county may lead the Federal government to take cognizance of the fact, according to a report circulated in Fort Worth Saturday.

Some time ago farmers who live on the David Rowland road in the White Settlement, about ten miles west from this city, made complaint to the officials at Washington that the bad condition of the road interfered with the rural mail carriers, and asked that something be done. Word has been received from the post-office department at Washington that if the road was not fixed the rural route along that road would be discontinued.

It is understood that the matter of repairing the road will be taken up with the county commissioners at its next regular session.

MANY HAVE STOMACH CATARRH AND CALL IT DYSPEPSIA

Two Beautiful Women Cured of Stomach Catarrh By Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. G. W. Davis, 1418 11th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"After suffering some time with indigestion and dyspepsia, and having tried so many remedies without relief, I was persuaded by some friends to take Peruna.

"After using several bottles, I found such good results that I can cheerfully thank you and praise your wonderful medicine, Peruna, to my friends in general."

MRS. G. W. DAVIS WASHINGTON, D. C.

Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Flatulence, Palpitation Of the Heart, Are All Symptoms Of Stomach Catarrh.

WHAT IS DYSPEPSIA?

DYSPEPSIA is a term that has long been in use. It is intended to include all disturbances of the digestive organs. If the stomach is inflamed and digestion ceases, it is called dyspepsia. If the saliva fails to perform its function, it is called dyspepsia. If the glands of the stomach dry up, and no longer secrete the peptic juices, it is called dyspepsia. Catarrh of the stomach is called dyspepsia. It is really a form of dyspepsia.

How Catarrh Affects Digestion.

When catarrh attacks the mucous membranes of the stomach, the glands that secrete the gastric juices are deranged, the gastric juice is rendered inert and perverted in its action.

No one can have a healthy stomach or anything like a healthy digestion so long as they have catarrh of the stomach.

It is useless to try to remedy dyspepsia caused by catarrh of the stomach by taking pepsin powders or other dyspepsia remedies.

A Rational Treatment.

The first thing that must be done is to remove the catarrh, when the dyspepsical symptoms will disappear. The stomach that is free from catarrhal congestion will do its work properly.

Pe-ru-na, the Correct Remedy.

Peruna has become famous as a dyspepsia medicine only because it cures catarrh of the stomach.

So many cases of dyspepsia depend upon catarrh of the stomach, that the two diseases are becoming confused in the minds of many people.

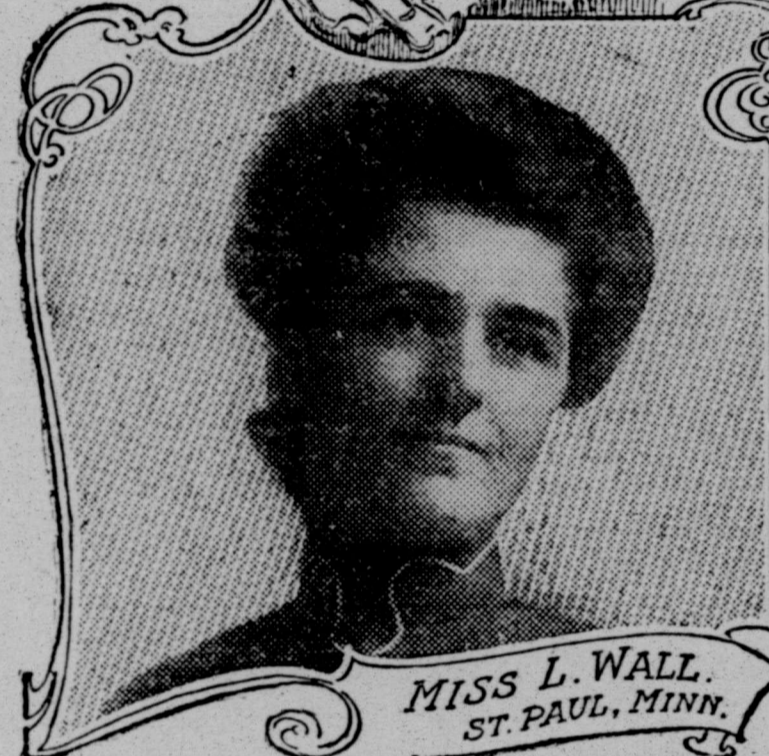

Not a Dyspepsia Remedy

In the ordinary sense, Peruna is not a dyspepsia remedy. It cures thousands of cases of dyspepsia by curing catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the liver and catarrh of all the digestive organs.

Whenever any one is troubled with dyspepsia any length of time, catarrh of the digestive organs may be suspected.

Do Not Waste Valuable Time.

There is no use in wasting time with other remedies. Peruna reaches the spot at once and removes the cause. Its cures are permanent, as it removes the cause.

MISS L. WALL ST. PAUL, MINN.

Run Down in Strength, a Result of Stomach Catarrh.

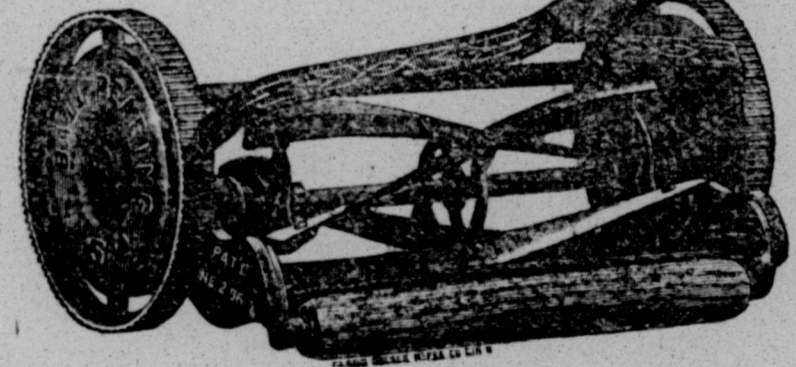

Miss L. Wall, 350 N. Dale street, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"Last spring I had a very severe case of catarrh of the stomach and bowels. I was very much run down in strength and lost my appetite.

"I took three bottles of Peruna and found myself gaining very quickly in every way.

"I also had catarrh in my head, which has been entirely cured. I thank Peruna for the health I am enjoying."

TORPEDO BOATS IN ACTION

Torpedo boats played a very important part in the battle of the Korean straits. They were largely responsible for the sinking of most of the big ships of Rojestvensky's ill-fated fleet. Togo lost three of them.

King Victor Emmanuel Shows Surprising Knowledge of South

ROME, June 3.—United States Senator A. O. Bacon of Georgia, who recently had a long interview with King Victor Emmanuel, discussed with his majesty at some length, so it is said, the manifold advantages offered by his state and others of the southern states to the Italian immigrants who have a knowledge of farming. This is a subject in which his majesty is very deeply interested. Through special instructions sent to the Italian consular officials in the United States, the king has become thoroughly posted as to the general condition surrounding the lives of his former subjects in the United States and has become thoroughly impressed with the advisability of putting a stop to the tendency among the Italians to congregate in the large cities and to devote themselves largely to the roughest kind of labor.

ALDERMEN DIVIDED ON WATER SUPPLY

Advisability of Service Outside City Limits Causes Discussion

The question of denying residents outside the corporate limits the use of city water, as proposed by a resolution of Alderman E. P. Maddox at the meeting of the city council Friday night, bids fair to become a bone of contention among the council members.

About half of the aldermen favoring cutting off the water from these outsiders—the other half being of the opinion that it is a good proposition to sell all the water possible, whether outside the city or in.

Alderman Maddox, the originator of the move has said: "Persons who live out of the city and do not bear the burden of taxes are not entitled to equal privileges of legal residents. They should not be given the benefits of the city water-works. The custom of supplying outsiders with water induces men to build just outside the corporate limits, thus escaping taxation but reaping the benefits of taxpayers."

Lost Under Bed

After the entire neighborhood had been alarmed at the child's absence and a hurry call had been sent to police headquarters, Donald Chism, 2½ years old, who could not be found at his home at 5 o'clock Saturday evening, was found two hours later, soundly sleeping under the bed at the residence, 914 east Belknap street.

LAST VETERAN OF 1812

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The recent death of Hiram Cronk, the last soldier of the war of 1812, revealed the fact that there are still three pensioners on the list charged to the revolutionary war.

Mrs. Esther S. Raymond of Plymouth Union, Vt., widow of Noah Raymond, who served under George Washington in the revolutionary war, has been drawing a pension for fifty-two years. She is now 90 years old and is hale and hearty.

The other two revolutionary pensioners are daughters of soldiers. They are Sarah C. Hurlbut, Little Marsh, Pa., aged 88, and Rhoda Thompson of Woodbury, Conn., aged 83. At present these two ladies bid fair to reach the century.

Burton-Peel Dry Goods Co.

A Store Not of High Prices, But of Higher Qualities at Fair Prices

Burton-Peel Dry Goods Co.

Actual Believable Reductions Keep us Constantly Busy

Truth telling and truth selling go hand in hand here. Burton-Peel have no need to resort to flimsy excuses for drawing trade. Our reductions are bona fide—and therefore, meet with the hearty response they deserve—as witness the ceaseless activity in all parts of this great store. The impregnable armor of these superior values holds the store safely in first place, far removed from all competition. Tomorrow, we start a reduction movement that has for its legitimate purpose the leveling of great stocks. The wise sailor with land in sight shortens his sails; the wise merchant with the season's end in sight, follows the same course. Extra bargains are to be had in every department—just the things wanted for personal wear and home use, at prices that pass all precedent. Read on—note each item; come, share the bargains.

Exceptional Values in Women's Wear

We're forcing selling under the strongest possible pressure of value-giving. We're "rounding-up" the ladies' suit stock for this season, and all Woolen and Silk Suits you may pick up at a THIRD from regular price. These occasional sales arouse all the enthusiasm one would expect from the bargaining of the class of garments we handle. There's nothing better at any price—we can say that without any qualification whatever, for it's only saying what every woman who knows this stock says. So when it comes to the time of clearance, the excellence of the goods emphasizes the importance of the bargains at the reduced price. You'll do well to look over the line of suits to wear traveling and at the resorts this summer.

THE TELEGRAM'S "Who-Where-What" CONTEST

WHO Are They? WHERE Are They Located? WHAT Do They Advertise?

$25.00 in Gold will be paid by The Telegram to the first seven persons sending correct and nearest correct list of Fort Worth firms represented below, and answering questions asked. Every number represents a concern regularly engaged in business in Fort Worth. Anyone ought to win a prize if they act in time. Prizes are as follows: 1st Prize, $15 in gold; 2d Prize, $5 in gold, and five prizes of $1 each

The contest is open to everyone except employees of The Telegram and their families. Everybody that reads The Telegram is authorized to try for a prize. The last answer received before the contest closes may be the correct one. If there is any doubt in your mind as between two concerns, call on or telephone the concern you believe the number represents, and they will tell you if it refers to them.

Contest closes Thursday, June 8, at 6 p. m. This will give out-of-town readers of The Telegram a chance to have their answers reach us in time to be in the contest. The winners will be announced in next Sunday's Telegram. Answers may be sent by mail or in person, and should be addressed to Editor "Who-Where-What" Contest, The Fort Worth Telegram, Fort Worth, Texas.

Should there be more than one correct list of answers, they will be placed in a large basket and the first drawn will receive the prize; the second one, second prize, etc. Should there be no correct answers, the one nearest correct will receive first prize; the second nearest correct, second prize, etc.

While some of these questions regarding Telegram advertisers appear very simple, there are others that are hard to solve. In fact, there are several that will cause a great deal of thinking and re-reading of the advertising.

In other cities where these contests have been given, the successful contestants are usually those who verify their guess by phoning the advertiser and ascertaining if the reading notice refers to his ad. The merchant in every case will advise you whether or not it does. Contestants who usually lose are those who take too much for granted, and find after their list is inspected that they might have won a prize by merely telephoning or calling on the merchant.

As a guide, it may be stated that each advertiser in the contest has given space in today's Telegram of 12 or more inches. Their ad. may be set down one column, or it may be across two or more columns. Their ad. may be considerably more than 12 inches, but not less.

Fort Worth merchants are alive to the importance of this contest, and the majority of them have made some very inviting bargains for Telegram readers. Lists must be numbered in the order of paragraphs as given on this page. You need not enclose the page; send your list marked 1, 2, 3, etc., without the questions, merely giving answers to questions asked.

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

By Lillian Russell

If ever an age was mad about anything, this is the age and personal loveliness is the mania. A beautiful woman is mistress of all she surveys. The nation worships her. Pretty faces take the place of art in the theaters, in the picture galleries, even in literature, so far as novels are literature.

A shopkeeper recently pointed out to me a volume of which an enormous number had been sold. "Is the story good?" I asked. He replied: "Not particularly, but look at the illustrations."

It is only in the business world nowadays that women are required to have any brains. In the home, where intelligence is most needed, attractiveness counts infinitely more. Outside of the home, particularly in social and artistic life, the tie that binds man and woman is the tie of beauty and the Beast.

Almost any husband will urge that what he admires in his "helpmeet" is loyalty, interest, economy. A few husbands tell the truth when they say this. The majority of them do not. They trump in order to save money for her spending the money on some girl whose opinion of Solomon.

Mind, I'm not urging the gentler a bit, or to deliberate waste. I merely tremble, which the comic writers to the greater fault with women. The wife who saves a wrinkle is likely to regret it.

The little worries of women—about the cook broke—are transient things, nothing to remind your mate that the p came home, but there would be the visit. "Puffin' frothings, not great trouble!" The part of the sensible female is she usually does those of her husband matter of necessary lotions and furl the virtue of obligation in these matters eyes are the windows of the soul; in m

C. F. Schultz, a member of Post A. St. Louis, addressed the meeting. He said he belonged to the largest post in America.

Mr. J. Foster of Chicago, while not a member of the order, also made a few remarks.

The next meeting of the post will be held Saturday, June 17.

BOYCOTTS ST. LOUIS

Indian Territory Merchants Will Not Buy From Missouri's Metropolis

ARDMORE, I. T., June 3.—Because of Hitchcock's persistence in enforcing the collection of tribal tax a movement has been started among territory merchants to boycott St. Louis business houses. It is pointed out that the business interests of St. Louis are not in sympathy with the Indian Territory and have refused to aid the territory. St. Louis is the home of Secretary Hitchcock.

A resolution will be presented at the meeting of the Indian Territory Commercial Clubs at Okmulgee, June 6, regarding the boycott.

TIED CANVAS ON WHEELS

To Keep Reapers from Sinking in the Wet Ground

WACO, Texas, June 3.—With canvas-wrapped wheels, to prevent sinking in the muddy earth, reapers a few days ago began harvesting oats in central Texas. For the past three or four days, however, it has not been necessary to use canvas on the wheels, as the earth has dried up rapidly. Grain shows up nicely, and oats will in some cases make 90 bushels or over to the acre. The quality is better than usual. Frequently at the harvesting season there are showers almost every day, keeping the grain wet, but the rains have been several days apart, leaving it in nice condition. The acreage is not very heavy, but it is thought the yield will be satisfactory. There is not much wheat, but it looks very well.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

The Original Remedy that "kills the Dandruff Germ"

DON'T BLAME YOUR MIRROR

Many ladies compel their mirrors to bear silent witness to needless hair destruction. Day after day they see beauty and attractiveness despoiled by the removal of great combings of slightly diseased hair that could be saved. If your mirror could talk it would plead with you to "save your hair—not the combings." It can be done with Newbro's Herpicide, which kills the microbes that causes dull, brittle and lusterless hair, also dandruff and falling hair. Destroy the germ and the hair's natural luster and abundance will return. Marvellous results. An exquisite hair dressing.

A SCENE ABOARD TOGO'S FLAGSHIP "MIKASA"

A remarkable deck view of Togo's flagship, the Mikasa. The scene on the Mikasa was taken while the flagship of Togo lay in the harbor at Nagasaki. The big twelve-inch guns in the forward turret have a deadly record of efficiency. The discipline of Togo's ship is of the most rigid character and made a marked impression on naval attaches who visited the ship when she lay off Port Arthur. The picture to the right shows Admiral Nebogatoff, who commanded the second squadron, which followed Rojestvensky's fleet and joined it off Salgon. He also was captured by Togo, together with 3,000 men.

RAILROAD NEWS

The local Commercial Agents' Association held its regular monthly meeting in the Santa Fe office Saturday afternoon for the transaction of regular business. There was a full attendance of members. The association was recently formed for the purpose of bringing the commercial agents of the different lines together in social and business intercourse, especially the former. It is believed by the members that by coming together once or twice every month the best interests of all concerned will be subserved. The discussions Saturday were varied, and interesting only to those connected with the association.

NEW OFFICER COMING

General Passenger Agent C. W. Strain of the Frisco announced Saturday that Frank M. Griffith, who was recently appointed southwestern passenger agent of the system, with headquarters at Dallas, will arrive in Fort Worth today. He will assume charge of his new position Monday. Mr. Griffith has represented the company at Birmingham as a division passenger agent. The appointment was made effective June 1.

AUDITORS INSTALLED

The Cotton Belt has installed auditors on all passenger trains on the main line and all branches. Some fifteen men who were brought to Texas from St. Louis and who have been receiving instructions at Tyler, were given the positions. This system has been in vogue on the Southern Pacific, on the western division, and has been very satisfactory to the company. It is more than probable that other Texas lines will adopt the system.

PROSPECTORS' TRAIN

Three sleepers containing 50 members of the Pan-American Land and Colonization company, passed through Fort Worth Friday en route to the north from making an extended trip through the southern part of Mexico. The party went north over the Katy line. They have been prospecting in the Chiapas country and say they are well pleased with conditions in that part of the republic. As a result of the trip it is expected that a great many Americans will locate in Mexico.

Official announcement is made by the state chairman of transportation that for the seventh International Epworth League conference to be held at Denver July 5 to 9, the Fort Worth and Denver City railway ("the Denver Road") has been selected as the official route from Texas and that in connection with that line arrangements have been perfected for special service leaving Fort Worth at 9:55 a. m., July 4, the schedule being such as to put delegates and friends in Denver early the following afternoon.

FACTORY CLUB OFFICE

Headquarters Established in Wheat Building Saturday

Headquarters of the Fort Worth Factory Club, recently organized, following the suggestion appearing in The Telegram, were opened Saturday in room 501 of the Wheat building, which has been completely furnished by the organization. Secretary Hard Butler is in charge of the offices, which will be used Monday night at 8 o'clock for the meeting of the board of directors to take up for the first time consideration of propositions made for the establishment of industries. Several propositions, Secretary Butler announces, have already been made and will be canvassed at the meeting. Election of a vice president will also be held at the meeting.

OFFICERS TO GO ALONE

New Order Issued by City Marshal Madex

Chief Maddox of the police department has announced that hereafter no police officers will cover their beats in pairs. This custom, according to Chief Maddox, will be stopped immediately, so that hereafter each policeman is supposed to cover his territory alone except in case of emergency.

"My men have been going in pairs for the last few weeks for the reason that a large number of them are new at the work. In most cases, I assigned them to duty with old men, so that they could better learn the work and duties as an officer. Now that the new men have become thoroughly broken in the pairing system will stop."

As was reported in Saturday's Telegram there was some complaint at Friday's meeting of the council in regard to the police officers going in pairs while on duty.

Masonic Home Graduation

But two pupils will graduate from the Masonic Home at the annual exercises, both of these being girls. They will be Mary Herndon of Lakey, Texas, and Ida Odell of Hidalgo, Texas. No program has yet been arranged for the exercises, which will be held the latter part of June.

Auditorium Prize

An additional prize for the auditorium list was offered Saturday night, W. F. Sterley of the Denver road notifying the chairman of the committee that the Denver will contribute a Portland ticket for the Lewis and Clarke exposition, to be offered with other prizes.

BASE BALL GOSSIP IN TEXAS LEAGUE

Panthers Are Developing Into Well-Rounded Team and Should Win Games

What are the chances of Fort Worth to win the pennant? Is the question being asked by the fans at night...

Hard work and almost continual shifting has worked the Panthers into a well balanced fielding team...

In this connection Sullivan, whose fielding game is almost perfect, is counted upon to develop his batting to earlier records...

Willis, whose hitting to date has been a disappointment to the fans, may be counted upon for development as the season continues...

The loss of Bates seems to have been well offset by the securing of Blasingim, who is catching a good game and hitting in splendid style...

Burleson at third is perhaps doing the most consistent work on the team, his accurate swift throw and wonderful batting in recent games marking him a good one...

Hubbard is now playing a consistent game at second and has developed into one of the best sacrificers in the league...

With attendance at the games warping the retention of the present aggregation, their moulding into one idea team and adoption of modern run getters like the squeeze play...

Wagon Matthews, umpire in the Texas League during the season of 1904, is now managing the Baton Rouge, La., team...

Jack Jarvis, who formerly used the old return bat with which Boles established his record last week, is helping some in maintaining the standing of Matthews' team...

and began assisting by word and deed the fighting of the flames. He remained at the fire until it was under control.

The Corsicana franchise seems to be playing a game of hide and seek. Reports that Doak Roberts is to put the team on its feet, however, should relieve all uneasiness...

SCHEDULE ISSUED BY CITY LEAGUE

Local Pennant Winner to Play Dallas League Leader for Championship

At Rosen Heights park this afternoon the second games of the City League will be played between Keller and Denver at 2 o'clock and between Heights and Armour at 4 o'clock.

Several new faces will be seen in Armour uniform, namely Muller, Boyd, Orr and Cartright.

President Ray McKinley of the City League was in Dallas Thursday and announces that Dallas has just organized a city league and games have practically been arranged between the pennant winners of each city for the amateur championship of North Texas.

ELKS WIN HANDILY

Defeat Eagles in Charity Game by Score of 9 to 3

A large crowd witnessed the ball game at Haines Park between the Eagles and Elks Saturday. The game was a well played one, being finally won by the Elks 9 to 3.

Burnell of the Eagles hurt his finger in the sixth inning, and Isbell went in the box while Burnell went to fight field.

The line-up of the teams was: Eagles—Fear, center field; Gray, shortstop; Hobson, third base; Burns, right field; Isbell, second base; Carter, first base; Fogz, catcher; Barkley, left field; Burnell, pitcher.

DOUBLE HEADER AT AUSTIN TODAY

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—The Austin baseball team will be at home Sunday morning from their trip over the circuit. The team will play the Fort Worth team Sunday afternoon, and it was announced yesterday that it will be a double-header. The first game will be called at 2:45 p. m., and the second will follow immediately after.

One of these games will be in place of the game played here some time ago between Fort Worth and Austin, in which Austin won, and which game was subsequently declared void, due to the fact that Austin put Ables in the box, he being one of the pitchers on the Dallas team. According to present indications, Slater and Stovall will pitch for Austin, while Boles and Christman will twirl for the visitors.

CHARTERED AT AUSTIN AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—A charter was granted today to the San Luis Mining Company of Fort Worth, with a capital stock of $20,000. The incorporators named are A. A. Billingsley, Henry Lucas and A. J. Nix.

FORT WORTH DROPS A GAME TO WACO

Christman Loses His Own Game by a Series of Bad Plays

WACO, Texas, June 3.—Fort Worth dropped the third game to Waco this afternoon. Christman pitched for the visitors and by hitting a man, failing to field a hit and making a wild pitch, all in the first inning, practically lost his own game, as the Tigers scored three runs, where they should have had none.

FALSE AND TRUE SPECIALISTS

Exist everywhere. There are good and bad in all lines of business, and professions. YOU MAY HAVE BEEN DECEIVED BY ALLURING AND DECEPTIVE ADVERTISEMENTS appearing in the daily press—"free treatment schemes," "no pay until cured" schemes (charging you more for medicines than you would pay for a safe and guaranteed cure WITH MEDICINES furnished by a reliable specialist), "free trial samples," "electric belts" and cure-all specialists SUCH TREATMENTS CANNOT AND NEVER WILL CURE YOU.

located here two years ago, fitted up offices with X-ray and all the other electrical, as well as instrumental outfit, including microscope and all forms of electricity, as well as other devices for the successful treatment of all cases in his special line, such as you will find in Chicago, New York and the other larger centers.

Dr. Milam has demonstrated in two years' practice that he cures his patients, that in handling some six thousand people at least 98 per cent are satisfied that he has given them more than was promised.

Hundreds of cures at your very door whom you can visit daily and get the facts are certainly worth something to you when you desire to be cured.

Fort Worth and vicinity has many Specialists in other lines of medicine, but it remained to be shown by Dr. Milam that a first-class Specialist for chronic and private disease could come here and do an advertising work and be recognized as the leader in this special line.

Dr. Milam stated he would confine his work to the line of a specialist and he has not only done it, but proven to the general practitioner or family doctor that he is in no way a competitor.

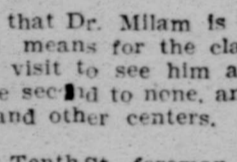

While he has applications daily to make visits in acute cases he refuses, leaving that to the family doctor, in whom he recognizes a place in life that no specialist can take, and offers nothing in word, deed or act to their high and honorable calling; in fact, all the high-minded and busy family doctors are his friends, and almost daily send him cases, proving that ability, even against prejudice, will win in the end. Dr. Milam brought his family here at once, and having become a resident as well as a property owner, has shown his confidence in Fort Worth.

IF YOU ARE A SUFFERER

MAN

WOMAN

Of Blood Poison, Vari-cocelae, Hydrocele, Stricture, Loss of Manhood or Weakness, Drains, Impotency, Kidney or Bladder Diseases, and other conditions peculiar to men.

Of Nervousness, Back-aches, Suppression, Leucorrhoea (whites), Falling of Womb, or other ovarian troubles, Blood Poison and other specific diseases.

DISEASES OF MEN AND WOMEN

Of a chronic nature, such as Rheumatism, Catarrh of Stomach, Kidneys or Bowels, Lumbago, Heat, Typhoid, Piles, Pleurisy, Itching of Rectum, Laryngitis, Coughs and other conditions, do not put off the matter of consulting some first-class specialist. I charge you nothing for a consultation and if not cured it is your own fault. I am prepared and can cure many difficult cases that the family doctor would not touch, or could not cure if he did. My charges are in reach of all suffering people.

Dr. Milam's patients all speak like the following:
Mr. A. F. Schark, who has been identified with the city in a business way, says: "I went to two prominent local doctors in this city, suffering with rupture. They told me they would have to perform an operation, one of whom began to arrange hospital quarters for me. I did not know Dr. Milam, but he was referred to me as an able specialist and I went to seek advice before submitting myself to the operating table, having already had a similar operation. I did not state what the other doctors had stated to me, but simply presented myself as a patient. Dr. Milam after examining me proceeded to replace the rupture. While it required several minutes to do it, he did it without operation or pain to me, thereby saving me not only an operation, but all the results of same with the time to be spent in a hospital with the usual extra cost, to say nothing about extra and unnecessary pain."

"I can say to the public that Dr. Milam is not a special in name only, but REAL, all the word means for the class of work he claims to do. I suggest that you make a visit to see him and get his opinion, which I have every reason to believe second to none, and I have visited many of the best specialists in Chicago and other centers. If he makes a promise, he will do it."

Mr. J. E. Truitt, 1130 East Tenth St., foreman for the Denver City Ry., says: "I went to Dr. Milam a month since, after having been advised by my family doctors that they could do nothing for me, suffering with a bad case of asthma, and had not been able to sleep for months. I liked the way Dr. Milam talked to me, and decided to at least make a trial. And after a few days' treatment I began to improve, and have constantly until today I am at my usual work, sleeping regularly, and you might say, all night. It is even surprising to believe that so much could be done for a man in so short a time. I have been under treatment just a month and feel now like a new man. I do not hesitate to say that I know it only a matter of time that I am cured and to recommend all sufferers to this specialist. You will find him courteous, positive and pleasant, and I believe if he promises something in your case you will get even more. My treatment has been worth a hundred times the cost, and the cost has been nominal."

THE MONTH OF ROSES

BAER TELLS "WHY JAPAN ALWAYS WINS"

Victory of Mikado Comes Because of Ten Years of Preparation

"Why Japan Wins" is the subject of an article by Lieutenant J. A. Baer, U. S. A., in the current number of Harper's Weekly. Japan's success is due, Lieutenant Baer says, to that nation's painstaking preparations for the struggle, extending over a period of ten years.

"When Port Arthur was taken from Japan by the European powers after the China-Japanese war and 'lensed' to Russia," says Lieutenant Baer, "the mikado gave to General Terauchi, the minister of war, $100,000,000 and ten years' time in which to prepare for a war with Russia. If war was to come it was to be of Japan's making; it was to come when Japan was ready and not when Russia might wish to force it upon her."

Japan's plan of preparation might be outlined under the following heads, according to Lieutenant Baer: First, the increase and reorganization of the army and navy; second, a thorough study of the probable theater of operations and the preparation of various plans of campaign; third, the construction of seacoast fortifications and naval stations; fourth, the perfecting of the supply department; fifth, the education of favorable European public opinion, and finally, the incitement of the Japanese people to a state where they

HOW THE ARMY WAS BUILT
Before the war with China, says the writer, Japan had a standing army of 70,000 men, with 200,000 reserves. After the war the mikado had an army of 120,000 veterans as a basis for reorganization, and such trained leaders as Generals Yamagata, Osako, Nodzu, Oyama, Nogai, Kuroki and Terauchi and Admirals Ito, Togo and scores of other army and navy officers.

After the war with China the old law of military service was altered, the minimum age of enlistment was lowered from 20 years to 17 years, so that at the outbreak of the present struggle there were 260,000 men in the standing army on a war footing, 150,000 in the territorial army and about 150,000 more well trained men in the general reserve and militia who could be counted upon at the first call for troops. At the same time the twenty-eight warships that had proved their mettle at the battle of the Yalu were overhauled, the old replaced by new, and a

The Runabout that is Perfect

Every criticism that we ever heard of has been done away with in the new Improved Standard Runabout, now offered for the first time.

Lamps and horn are included in the purchase price, $650 f. o. b. factory.

SOME OF THE CHANGES
The new side springs make it as comfortable as a Touring Car. New ratchet differential brake; new hub brakes lined with camel's hair belting; new circulating pump; starting relief at side of seat; flaps on front mud guards; priming cup is added for cold weather; piston pin is bigger and four piston rings instead of three; automatic oiling system—in fact every little thing strengthened and improved to make the car "simply perfect."

The transccontinental trip shows the Oldsmobile Runabout can successfully stand the strain of hard roads and continuous driving. It is built for hard, daily, practical use. The same money cannot buy as good a car.

SECOND CHILD DIES OF SEVERE BURNS

Bodies of Negro Children Partially Cremated by Oil Explosion

Alberta Overton, the younger of the two little negro girls, who was burned in the oil explosion at their home, 315 South Main street yesterday afternoon, died at 2:30 o'clock, ten minutes after her sister, Elsie, had died, and one hour after the explosion.

The death of these two children is one of the most horrifying tragedies known here. The children were daughters of Lucy and Orange Overton; were seven and four years of age, respectively.

While their mother was ironing clothes on a board in the kitchen of the three-room house, the unfortunate children played on a near porch where an iron heater was placed.

Elsie, the elder of the children, saw the fire in the furnace dying out and attempted to revive it by pouring kerosene oil from a gallon can.

In an instant the explosion followed, tearing the can to bits and hurling the child inside the kitchen.

Flames from the explosion ignited the clothing of the two children, enveloping them. Elsie ran frantically toward her mother, preading the fire

AMERICAN STEEL

A London Expert Says America is in the Lead

NEW YORK, June 3.—Among the passengers who sailed today on the Campania was Charles B. Beardshaw of London, European agent of the International High Speed Steel Company of this city, who was one of the English delegates to the international railway convention.

Mr. Beardshaw is very enthusiastic over the industrial prospects of this country, particularly in connection with the steel trade.

"The gigantic strides made in the steel industry in all its branches," said Mr. Beardshaw, before sailing, "are marvelous. The display of iron and steel manufactured at Washington, more particularly in connection with the higher grades of steels, such as those used exclusively in tool making, was most remarkable and was a notable evidence of the future that is in store for the steel industry of the United States."

"I was more particularly struck by the exhibit of a new brand of steel known as 'combination' steel, which bids fair to oust nickel steels from the market in certain lines, particularly in the manufacture of axles and other parts of automobiles, where there is a constant vibrating strain. This steel is a combination of low grade steel and soft iron, so blended that remarkable results are attained."

"I should not be surprised to learn that there is as great a future in store for this combination steel as was predicted and decreed for high-speed and other expensive steels. The facts show that the higher grade steels are now coming into their own."

Mr. Beardshaw has been an interested visitor to the great steel manufacturing centers at Chicago, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Boston and elsewhere. He said that he was bewildered by the volume of business done and the celerity with which transactions were carried out.

UNITED STATES INCLUDED

Would Protect World From Future Wars and Preserve International Peace

LONDON, June 3.—Already there is a discordant note in the rejoicing over the success of Great Britain's eastern ally, Japan.

Europe has been compelled to revise her ideas of Asiatic strength, and of Asiatic capacity, and while there is little stock taken here yet in the talk of the "yellow peril," it is admitted that there is a probability at least that it may develop.

British Opinion

Lord Lansdowne, as foreign secretary of Great Britain, clearly contemplates, as Chamberlain recently announced that he also does, a further development of the Anglo-Japanese alliance as an essential sequence of Japan's mastery in the Far East.

A Fantastic Dream

On the other hand the Westminster Gazette says: "We don't desire a fresh coalition against us for the joint defense of interests which are supposed to be threatened by a triumphant Japan."

Cautious Statesmanship which will make Japan Great Britain's partner as the defender of India, and which will indirectly bring her into eastern European relations.

As for Russia, much as they desire peace, few responsible Englishmen expect it. Russia still has half a million soldiers in the field, is now relieved from all naval expenditure, and can collect enough gold to guarantee her debt.

CITIZENS RESENT STREET ACCIDENT

Motor Cyclist Injuring Old Man Is Threatened by Enraged Pedestrians

Muttering imprecations and threatening to mob him, a crowd of angry men followed Price Noel of this city about the streets Saturday night, after he had run down an old man named Brown, corner Sixth and Main streets, while riding on a motor cycle. Followed by the throng Noel made his way to his office at 106 East Sixth street, and there procuring a pistol kept the men at bay.

Noel was later arrested charged with fast riding on a motor cycle and pistol carrying. He gave bond and was released.

After the affair Noel gave the following account of the incident. According to his statement he was riding on a motor cycle, going east on Sixth street. At the intersection of Sixth and Main streets there was a crowd at the crossing. As he passed on the machine the old man stepped back from the crowd and was run down before the motor could be stopped. Immediately the crowd collected, threatening and declaring that he had killed the old man. Noel prevailed upon the throng to let him go to his office, which was done, the crowd following. After putting up his motor, Noel returned to look after the old man but found him gone. In the meantime Chief Maddox was notified and arriving on the scene, placed Noel under arrest.

"I did my best not to run down the old man," said Noel, "but he stepped back so quickly that I could not help it. As it was I stopped the machine as soon as possible and turned into the curbing. The crowd followed me to my office and acted so ugly about the matter that I was forced to get out my pistol to protect myself."

Noel conducts a messenger service in the city and is well known.

The old man Brown who was injured is well known about town and is a cook by trade. Due to his old age he was considerably shaken up and shocked by the collision but is not in a serious condition.

WOODMEN PLAN BIG PICNIC AT HANDLEY

Camps and Circles to Meet for Annual Outing and Field Events

Lone Star Camp No. 2, W. O. W., and Maple Hurst Grove No. 5, Woodman Circle, have arranged for a barbecue, basket picnic and ball at Handley Tuesday, June 6.

A number of invitations have been sent to other camps and groves to join, and a large crowd is expected to attend. Various committees have completed all arrangements. Cars will leave the court house promptly at 10 o'clock and every thirty minutes after during the day and evening.

A large wagon has been procured to carry out lunch baskets, etc. The wagon will leave the court house at 9 o'clock, and will collect baskets at the court house, the Traction company's office, J. A. Todd's office and at Front and Main streets. All lunch baskets should be labeled with name and address of the owners.

The various committees will leave here at 9:30 a. m. so as to meet all visitors at Handley as they arrive from different points.

The following program has been arranged: Speaking from 11 to 12:30, by Mayor T. J. Powell and other prominent speakers; dinner from 12:30 to 2 o'clock; matinee from 2 to 3 o'clock, followed by an exhibition drill by the Maple Hurst Guards, and a short program consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, fancy dances, etc.

At 5 o'clock various races will take place and prizes will be awarded. The events scheduled include races and contests for men, women and children. Prizes offered by city merchants are offered in each.

One of the most charming affairs of the week, beautifully planned and carried out, was the open meeting given at the residence of Mrs. W. F. Sterley last Tuesday in honor of the Penelope Club.

The reception committee in the parlor was composed of Mesdames Agnes Geor, A. H. McCarty, Boyd Clark, E. Gamble, Grace Lantz, Mesdames Sterley, Crimmins and Gamble added their cordial greetings in the parlor, which was beautifully decorated with American beauty roses and trailing smilax, while Mrs. Edlebrook, Mrs. Julia Hill, Mrs. John Kee, Mr. C. M. Brown were stationed in the library, which was decorated in rose pink, and green.

The pretty punch stand in the library was in charge of Mabel Ross of Fort Worth and Ethel Moore of Cleburne.

A German orchestra was stationed on the second floor in the hall and added very much to the pleasant affair, and it was especially adapted to the occasion, as the orchestra had just finished the year's study of Germany.

There will be the regular monthly meeting of the P. A. R. next Thursday afternoon, at the residence of Miss Ruth Wingfield. The hostesses will be Miss Wingfield, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Flannery and Miss Triplett.

A PROBLEM OF EDEN

Being a Recital of Events That May Have Taken Place When Eve First Saw Adam

When Eve, in the garden of Eden, first caught sight of Adam, she naturally must have gazed upon him with considerable astonishment. Although it is not biblically stated, it is not irreverent to presume that, in answer to Eve's look of inquiry, that Adam might have relieved her perplexity to some extent by handing her a card on which was written:

MADAM, I'M ADAM.
"Well, well," laughed Eve, "that's a funny statement."
"And, how so, madam?" asked Adam.
"Why," replied Eve, "because one can read it backwards or forwards and yet it reads the same."

"That is true," said Adam, "and now, madam, in how many ways may my introduction be read on this card?" and he handed her a card thus inscribed, like the one seen in the picture.

Legend does not say as to whether Eve ever figured out the problem, but, perhaps, some who are interested in this simple history of events may calculate what her answer would have been had she taken up the subject.

WITH THE CATTLEMEN

PACKERS BREAKING VENGEANCE

A telegram received from St. Louis Thursday by one of the leading commission houses here which was generally circulated and read by local cattle raisers, announced that since Monday the cattle market at St. Louis had declined 40 cents per hundred weight. The decline was not based on heavy shipments because the supply had not been unduly large, nor was it on account of inferiority of material because that received was of very fair quality generally. This telegram caused deep indignation among the local stockmen. The only suggestion regarding the problem's solution was that it was probably done by the packing houses in revenge against the cattle raisers because the government's determination to fully investigate the methods of the beef trust is popular with the stockmen generally. The stockman is hammered harder and harder all the time and his productions sell for less and less on the hoof to the trust, while the consumer pays the slaughterers more and more for the dressed meats.—San Antonio Express.

American packing houses, and when we reach our homes nothing but words of praise will be heard from us. Foreign trade in meats is considerably hampered in many European countries by a suspicion that things are not conducted properly, and that the converting of animals into food products is not done with cleanliness as the one main object. But this inspection has proven the rumors unfounded. The inspection system employed by your government and the general tidiness of things in your packing houses is highly recommended.

CLEAN PACKING PLANTS

There was a renewal some weeks ago of the foreign agitation against American meats and meat products on the ground of the alleged unsanitary conditions of American packing houses. A London medical paper printed the alleged observations of a prejudiced observer, and these were made a basis for a lot of untruthful talk. The falsity of the charges was long ago disproved, both abroad and at home, but it was pleasant to have a group of distinguished foreign visitors see the Chicago packing house district last week for themselves, and to hear their comments.

These men were delegates to the International Railway Congress, and included some of the ablest railroad men of Europe. They were taken for a trip of inspection through the stock yards and made a lengthy and careful examination of the packing plants. They were amazed. They had heard of the alleged filthy condition of the American packing houses, and it surprised them to find such neatness and cleanliness and to see the perfection of the organization and conduct of such immense business.

One of the visitors, a prominent Belgian railway official, said in comment: "In Europe we often hear unfavorable comments regarding the packing establishments in your country and their general unsanitary condition, but this tour of inspection sets at rest any suspicion that foreigners may have entertained regarding the methods employed in the

RAILROADS ARE DEFIANT

Ten years ago, because of an increased charge of from 50 cents to $1.50 on each car of live stock brought into or sent out of Chicago on western roads, a uniform increase of $2 a car was added to the freight bill.

The Chicago Live Stock Exchange fought this arbitrary increase. Finally the interstate commerce commission said the charge was excessive. The United States supreme court said the rate was wrong.

But the rate is still collected. Thus you have railroads not only ignoring a ruling of the interstate commerce commission, but the order of the United States supreme court.

Under the law as it stands there is no method of relief. It is a plain case of robbery, but it is so done that the robbers, though known, cannot be halted or stopped. There are hundreds of similar incidents to this. They are to be found in every American city having terminal roads. These things can be stopped when the interstate commerce commission gets the power to declare a rate wrong and to name a right rate and enforce it. "We railway men carry you wrong and to the bill to enable the government to control freight rates must become a law."—Chicago Examiner.

SHORTAGE OF CARS

EL PASO, Texas, June 3.—Cattle shipments are unusually heavy over nearly all railroads centering in El Paso. Many trains of stock pass through the city daily, destined chiefly for points in Colorado, the Dakotas or Kansas, although the regular shipments to the Los Angeles packers are maintained.

So great is the demand for stock cars that some roads find difficulty in providing a sufficient number of cars to handle all the stock that is ready for delivery to them, even though they have a larger number of cars in service than they have had at this season for several years past. Frantic appeals for cars have been sent out by the traffic men.

IS HIGH WATER MARK OR A CAR SHORTAGE

El Paso Reports Falling Off for the Week in Cattle Receipts

EL PASO, Texas, June 3.—Either the high water mark of the 1905 shipments is passed or the shortage of cattle cars is making it impossible to handle the stock as rapidly as it is presented for shipments. Possibly the two influences have combined to cut down the total number of cattle shipped during the past seven days from the total of the preceding week.

Washouts at points along the Rock Island between Santa Rosa and Dalhart for several days interrupted traffic. The Santa Fe for a number of days was unable to transact the usual volume of freight business. Other roads have had their difficulty with high water.

Quarantine July 1

Dr. Louis Metsker of Albuquerque, chief of the government inspection service in New Mexico, has declared that a positive quarantine shall be laid against some of the eastern New Mexico counties, some of them adjoining Texas, beginning the first of July. The southwestern and central counties have been declared free of mangle, and the inspectors from those districts will be sent to the northern counties and to those in the Pecos valley to assist in taking preventive measures against the disease. The New Mexico cattle sanitary board has announced that relentless war will be waged against all cattle disease. The members of the sanitary board at Las Vegas, N. M., have appointed a committee to draft rules relative to the precautionary measures which must be taken by all stockmen. Dipping of herds in the infected districts will be compelled. Additional members will be added to the force of inspectors to make it possible to deal with the evil.

Knockout Drops

Hugh Torrance, the wealthy Deming cattleman, was a victim of knockout drops a few days ago. According to the reports which have reached El Paso, Mr Torrance was on his way to Colorado, on a Colorado and Southern train, when his peculiar symptoms were observed. He was removed from the train at Colorado Springs, and the police found that he had suffered the loss of all his cash, except a quarter of a dollar. A $150 diamond ring and a valuable gold watch and chain were left upon him.

Scab Disease

Arizona sheep owners are uniting in a movement to eradicate the scab disease from their flocks. At Del Rio, Cordes and other points the sheep owners have begun dipping their sheep, appointing skilled inspectors to approve the solutions and oversee the dipping. The work is being done under a law passed in the legislature two years ago. The law has been practically a dead letter in most parts of the territory. This year the sheepmen are attempting to bring about its rigid enforcement.

Flood Damage

Floods along the Rio Grande have wrought great damage in the ranches north of El Paso in New Mexico. Miles of fertile fields have been covered with water. In the Berino and Anthony districts, a few miles above this city, the banks have been overflowed in a number of new points, entailing great loss. The cattlemen, however, are doing but little complaining. In the flooded districts few cattle are raised. The moisture that has been so abundant has maintained the ranges in the best possible condition.

Gossip of Shippers

J. B. Kindrick of Sheridan, Wyo., has been cutting out stock from the G. O. S. ranch near Silver City, N. M., for immediate delivery. The cattle are to be driven overland to Deming, at which point they will be loaded.

J. C. Smith shipped 29 cars of twos and threes over the Pecos Valley to Everett, S. D.

Charles Tudor and Trave Windham shipped slightly over 300 head of twos and ones to Kansas, from their ranch in the Pecos.

James Cowgill shipped $50 head of cattle from Van Horn, Texas to Kansas.

Hysham and Neel shipped several trainloads of cattle from Douglas, Ariz., through this city, to northern points.

Cattle shipments over the El Paso and Southwestern road have maintained a high average. Three or four trainloads have come in almost daily.

A. A. Cox of El Paso county shipped 26 cars of cattle to Harrison Haley at Rifle, Colo.

The Corralitos Cattle Company has shipped a quantity of cattle north in bond.

M. B. Huling shipped 1,700 twos and threes to Kansas from the Pecos.

Twelve carloads of cows from Mrs. Kendall's ranch at Riverton were shipped to Kansas City.

A. J. Nisbett shipped a trainload of cattle from the Chico company, Mrs. Carpenter, Portwood & Jackson, Stockton Brothers, Diamond Bar ranch and others near Silver City to Kansas.

Stump Robbins shipped five cars of yearlings to Fort Worth.

The Rex Cattle Company shipped from Kent ten cars of cattle to Fort Worth.

A carload of Arizona horses passed through this city on their way to the rain circuits in the middle west. The horses were largely from Phoenix. The owners were William Meyers, Charles Kles, Dr. Duffield, J. C. Adams.

A Rare Purchase

Which Should Interest the Swell Dressing Women of the Land.

A look at the future. Those of us who shall be permitted to live until the autumn will see a craze for plaid styles in ladies' dress materials. Those of us who live still longer—until another spring, will see the same gay plaids in summer materials. A New York syndicate bought in Paris just 100 pieces of Silk Plaid Organdie. We have 10 short pieces. Next year they will be copied in American goods, and the price will be 50c per yard, no doubt. We are going to sell these 10 pieces on Monday, one pattern to a person, at 25c or $2.50 pattern; limit one pattern to a customer.

Exactly Half Price

5 pieces solid colored red and blue Linen, 27 inches wide—nothing so desirable for children's dresses, and no material washes so easy. A good linen for suits for street or traveling, worth 30c per yard; Monday, 15c, as long as it lasts.

Shopping Bags

It would seem possibly like a foxy tale to you, but nevertheless it's true—that this house has sold in the last 90 days more than five gross of shopping bags. Of course, it's the quality and price. We have a few odds and ends of broken lots, which we will offer Monday at one-third off from regular price. Get yourself a good one for 50c and 98¢

Ladies White Lisle Lace Hose

To go with any suit you may have, and nothing is so pretty and neat, as well as comfortable. We offer 50 dozen, very pretty designs in lace effect and dropstitch; the 50c quality anywhere; for Monday 35c

Childrens Lace Tan Stockings

So much in demand and much worn, many patterns to select from; Monday the 35c quality for... 29c

Suit Cases Reduced

Made of the very best leather, corners are well braced with an iron inside rim, double stitched, and would be cheap in many stores at ten dollars; Monday $6.45

Silk Finished Shepherd Plaids

In Gingham—looks better than silk, wears three times as long and is thoroughly washable. No dress waist or skirt is quite as neat and ever ready for any occasion as a shepherd's plaid. 27 inches wide, offered for, the yard 25¢

Ladies White and Col. Silk Gloves

No article is so essential to a well dressed woman as a pair of silk gloves. We have a beautiful line, in any color and white; elbow length for evening and the street glove, for 50c, 75c and $1.00 per pair.

Trunks

The Indestructible Kind. The kind the railroads can't smash and you know what that means. A trunk you may if you wish, travel around the world and yet have a trunk—that's the kind of trunks we sell, and at a saving to you of 33 1-3 per cent. We buy direct in carload lots and therefore we save any middleman's profit. If in need of a trunk or will be soon, see our line—from $2.75 up to the best that's made.

Two Very Essential Traveling Articles

OUR LAY SERMON

A long time ago a question was asked which has since been repeated many times: "Who hath sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" Quite independent, however, of any answer which might in a given case be returned to the question, it is undoubtedly necessary that the laws enacted for the protection of human society should, as they do, hold the individual responsible for his acts. The protection of the law is the first duty with which society is charged. And while justice may demand that in the punishment of crime only the morally culpable should be punished, it is self-evident there could be no protection for society if this were the rule of law. It is doubtless true that in a large percentage of crime no moral guilt attaches to those who commit the crime. The moral culpability extends back to one or more ancestors of the persons pronounced criminal by the law. In other words, not this man but his parents sinned, that he was born blind. Physical, mental, moral defects or weaknesses, these make the great majority of criminals. And in large measure is not the state itself often responsible for at least the last two named?

It is the state responsible for the perpetuation of species with regard to those who are charged with crime? Many of the advanced thinkers of the day answer in the affirmative. We have just seen the state medical society of Louisiana pass resolutions demanding the asexualization of the criminal, the insane and the defective. Many of the leading medical men of the country have contended for years that it is the duty of the state to step in and stop the multiplication of this class of unfortunates.

There is a great natural law which has established the immutability of the content that like shall beget like. This is well illustrated in the case of our own children. We say that child has its father's nature and disposition or that little one has inherited all the admirable traits of its mother. This is but an admission, on our part of the well known natural law of reproduction. If the predominant traits in our character are reprehensible they are going to be faithfully reproduced in our children, and may be more highly developed in some of them than others. Just as one child may inherit the major portion of our vices, another may claim the greater part of our virtues.

The state is responsible then, for the development of the criminal only so far as it permits the marriage and reproduction of the criminal classes. Some spasmodic efforts have been made along the line of curbing this evil at various times in the past, but no real or lasting benefit has accrued from such action. The general verdict is that the man who proposes such action is too radical and that interference in this direction by the state could be but little short of criminal. The time may come when the present advanced thought in that direction will prevail, but the world is not yet ready to resort to the experiment.

As to the other feature of the case, we have the Word of God for it that the iniquities of the father shall be visited upon the children, even to the third and fourth generation. In the abstract this does not appear to be a very just application of God's law, but the obvious intent was to make sin so obnoxious that we would not indulge when we knew that the bad effects of that indulgence would be handed down as a legacy to our posterity. Just as we know the wages of sin is death, so do we know by the same authority that the punishment for sin may extend to our children and their children's children. The fact that the child did not participate in the commission of the original sin does not shield it from punishment. According to the Word of God, that child must suffer in its innocence for the sin of its parents, just as the people of today are suffering from the effects of the sin of our first parents in the Garden of Eden.

Actual participation is not required for the individual to be convicted of crime for violations of the law of the land. He may simply be an accessory, may have planned and advised, or received some direct benefit from its commission. In the eyes of the law such an one is equally guilty with the principal, and has to answer.

The man or woman who is predisposed toward crime through the disposition of the parent in the same direction, has no justification on that score, but must answer for the parental shortcoming by paying the price. It may be that the original sinner has escaped just retribution while on this earth, and retributive justice only succeeds in overtaking posterity after it has perpetrated a similar crime. In that event the truth of those great laws is exemplified from the fact that like has beget like, and the sin of the father has been visited upon the child.

"Who hath sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" The man may have been innocent of any crime himself, but he is a sinner from the fact he is the product of the union of sinners. He has come under the ban of God's displeasure from the fact that he is the child of sin. And God is an unjust God, you say. Perhaps so, from your viewpoint, but God is a truthful God. He warned your parents along with all the balance of mankind that if his laws were violated the consequences would be visited upon posterity. It is your misfortune that there is no escape from the consequences of sin the victim is not responsible for, but those are the things that should have been thought of and provided for by your progenitors. As you reap the consequences of your father's folly, you are thus admonished to look to the future of those who are to come after you. The hundreds of millions of people now in the world do not feel that they were in any degree responsible for the mistakes of Adam and Eve back in the days when the world was young. But while countless generations have passed since that memorable scene in the Garden of Eden, we are today reaping its effects, just the same as if it had occurred yesterday. It is hard on us to have to pay the price of Adam and Eve's folly, but we are paying it all the same. And the debt will not be entirely liquidated until all things human shall have passed away.

Adam and Eve sinned in the beginning, and the whole world that has come after them has had to pay the penalty. The father sinned, and the son who comes after him must pay the price. Many of us who are today suffering from the hand of affliction may not understand what has brought the wrath of the Omnipotent One down upon us. We may have led Godly lives and achieved the things of this world as nearly as possible. But back of it all there lies the hidden and forgotten misdeeds of our ancestry, and we of today are paying the price.

Our parents sinned, and we were born blind. These are the things that should admonish us to be careful as to the real character of the legacy we are leaving to our children. The laws of God are immutable. The law of the land must and will be enforced. There is no justification for us in the fact that it was our parents who sinned. We have to bear the consequences all the same.

We were born blind for our parents' sin. They may have escaped here, but retribution has overtaken those whom they should have left a cleaner legacy.

"TOTE FAIR"

The expression of one employed in the south to indicate about what Roosevelt means when he speaks of a "square deal." To tote fair is to do the right thing. And it may be said that the hope of the future is largely bound up in the inherent desire of the Anglo-Saxon race for fair play. There are standards of equity that we must by every means hang onto. As for instance: The lawyer whose palm itches for a bribe, who uses unfair methods, who stoops to dirty tricks, is looked upon by decent lawyers as "unprofessional." He does not tote fair.

The athlete who takes advantage of the rules of sport is barred from the game. He does not tote fair.

Even the prize fighter is not allowed to strike below the belt. He is not permitted to strike a foul blow. He must tote fair.

Now— If this desire for fair play and scorn of unfairness can be carried over into the commercial world we shall have a standard that will count for much.

When a business man takes unfair advantages by securing special privileges

Every editor desires to make his paper a clearing house for the ideas as well as for the news of the day. It is a joke as old as daily newspapers that when an Englishman is in trouble he writes about it to the London Times. He does, and this national habit has contributed, more than anything else, toward making the Times powerful.

Letters from readers are always welcome, whether the writer be indignant, pleased, sore, in trouble or so happy he feels the editor ought to know about it. Long letters or short letters, sarcastic or sympathetic, in prose or verse, written in blood, ink or charcoal—all are cheerfully received, eagerly perused and impartially considered.

denied his competitors he should be looked upon with scorn. He should be socially ostracized. He has not toted fair.

Let it be recognized that success achieved by unfair methods is only successful failure. There will be less crowding out of competitors. Let it be felt and talked about that the business man who makes a fortune by receiving rebates denied his rival has not toted fair, and there will be less of it.

Way down deep in the heart of Americans is a love of fairness. Every man must have his chance—an open field and no favor. Every man must tote fair. The condemnation that follows a revelation of unfairness is a hopeful feature.

Paul Morton is to accept the presidency of the New York subway immediately upon his retirement from the office of secretary of the navy, and will draw an official salary of $50,000 per annum. This is an amount equal to that paid the president of the United States, and the gentleman ought to be able to get along comfortably on that sum.

William J. Bryan is to make an extensive trip over European countries for the purpose of studying municipal ownership and other problems in which the public is directly interested. Already the prophecy has been made that the great campaigner will return to his native land a rank socialist.

The putting on of a new train to Mineral wells by the Texas and Pacific railway is a movement that will call for the hearty commendation of the traveling public. The great Texas health resort has become a very popular point with the people of the entire southwest.

Congressman Stephens of the Panhandle district, says it would be very gratifying to him if the people of his district would permit him to serve them as congressman for several more years. And that is just the way all congressmen feel about it. They turn loose with a great deal of evident reluctance.

Judge Rufus Hardy wants to go to congress from the Corsicana district, and says he thinks the time has come when all democrats should unite. There was a time in the past very remote past when the voice of Judge Rufus Hardy was not raised for democratic unity in Texas.

Cotton acreage in Alabama has been reduced about 12 per cent, according to the official estimate, and that is a fraction less than half the general agreement. The Texas reduction appears to exceed that of any other state, but much of the Texas reduction was wholly involuntary.

Austin city officials have been indulging in a little scrap among themselves, and as a result the city has been without street lights for the past week. The officials should settle their rows in some other manner than by leaving the city in darkness.

Texas schools for Texas young people should be the rule with all Texas parents. If we are to build our schools up to the highest degree of efficiency we must begin that work by extending them the proper patronage.

While Admiral Togo and his gallant sea dogs have the floor, poor old Chicago is compelled to take a back seat. But there is something doing in the Windy City all the same.

The beef trust did not show its appreciation of the three weeks' suspension of the investigation at Chicago by reducing the price of meat. In fact, the beef trust seems to be powerfully set in its ways.

An Iowa professor solemnly alleges that all musicians are cranks. The learned professor doubtless lives next door to the young lady whose friends insist she is a prodigy on the piano.

The railway property rendered for taxation in Tarrant county exceeds $2,000,000 in value, and that is pretty good evidence that Fort Worth is a great railway center.

The railways of the country seem to be confident they can continue to control the rate question just so long as they are able to control congress.

China is boycotting our cotton goods in return for our Chinese exclusion act. And China needs our cotton goods a great deal worse than we need her almond eyed heathens.

"Greater Love Hath No Man"

(Richard Metcalfe in 'The Commoner')

NAN PATTERSON, the "Floradora" girl charged with the murder of Caesar Young, has been discharged. For the second time a jury has failed to agree as to her guilt or innocence, and she will not be required to undergo another trial. The prosecution has doubtless concluded that it will be impossible to convict the defendant, and so the state is to be saved additional expense, while the public is to be spared further recital of the details of this disgraceful affair.

But there was one satisfactory feature to the long drawn-out trials. That was the devotion displayed by the distracted father toward his wayward daughter. When, during her first trial, Nan Patterson stepped from the witness stand after having passed through the ordeal of a relentless cross-examination, the old man put his arm affectionately around his child and said: "You did splendidly, little girl. When the jury returned with the verdict that it could not agree the newspaper dispatches say: 'The father of the accused, who has been by her side ever since the trial began and whose tender care and devotion to her has been the most touching of the trial, tried to comfort another girl. The old man's face and mournful expression robbed the words he uttered of force and meaning as he said: 'Don't worry, little girl; it will come out all right yet.'"

Somebody has said that the true test of love is the willingness to endure and suffer for another; that it is the suffering element that measures love, and that characters that are great must necessarily be characters that shall be willing. No human can accurately describe that love. It is wonderfully elastic, and as child after child is born into the family covers all, giving the same portion to the newborn, while lessening none of that enjoyed by the others. The good mother who says she feels that the children she loved best, said: "The one who is sick," pointed out in a happy way the only difference a parent can feel in his attitude toward his children. We love best the one who is sick; we love best the one who is crippled in body; we love best the one who has some weakness, for which he is not entirely responsible; we love best the one who has fallen, even though he fell as Nan Patterson fell, even though the doors of society are closed against him, even though all but the hope of heaven has been denied him.

Tale of a Russian Officer

Recently there was released from the Russian military prison on Sakhalin Island, in the Pacific ocean, says the Chicago News, an officer whose grim exploit a number of years ago sent a thrill of horror through Russian society. Prior to the time he was attached to a crack engineering corps and was recognized as one of the large money lenders in the Russian capital, who, apparently captivated by the officer's charm of manner, never hesitated to grant the loan asked for and never once pressed for repayment. At length the officer, having run to the end of his tether, became engaged to a wealthy Russian woman. The only cloud that darkened his happiness was his fear lest the money lender to whom he owed such enormous sums should publish the fact of his fecklessness and so ruin his chance of making a good marriage.

He thought his worst fears were realized when, a few days after the engagement had been publicly announced, he received a letter from the creditor, stating that the writer was preparing a nice little surprise for him on his wedding day. In desperation the officer went to the money lender and demanded to know the

WHY LAY THE BLAME ?? OF FATE ?? ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Copyright, 1905, by American-Journal-Examiner.)

A bevy of intellectual and cultured people were discussing a domestic tragedy the other evening, and the discussion brought out some interesting points of view concerning the principles which lie at the foundation of our homes.

A man who had seemed to be a happy and devoted husband of a good and charming woman for ten years had suddenly informed his wife that he no longer loved her, and that for two years he had been acting a part, as he was infatuated with a girl of twenty-one. "I will support you and see that you want for nothing," he said, "but you must give me my freedom and leave me to follow the leading of my heart."

The wife, who had not suspected any change on her husband's part, was overcome with despair and frantic with grief. She begged a friend to find who was her rival, that she might go on her knees to her and beg the return of her erring husband. The friend replied that such a course of conduct would be as fruitless as undignified, and urged her to speed the departing husband with as much readiness as she had welcomed him the ideal husband a decade ago. The subject under discussion was whether the man acting a brave or an ignoble part in making a clean breast of the matter and declaring the truth to his wife.

One man of the party thought him brutal. "He would have been far kinder to let her remain in ignorance of the true condition," he said. "If the fellow could not control his infatuation or the other woman, then let him at least be kind enough to deceive his wife about it." All the other men disagreed with him, and of course all the women became indignant at such a suggestion. All agreed they would rather be slain than deceived.

One man expressed deep pity for the "poor fellow," and seemed to think his plight more pathetic than that of the wounded wife. "A man is not in fault for falling out of love," he said. "He could not help it, and the only thing for him to do and be decent was just what he did."

"Two women mildly suggested that a man might avert such a disaster as had befallen the husband by turning his back on the first indication of a dangerous infatuation, as hundreds of wives do under similar indications. "It is vanity and self-indulgence and selfishness which leads nineteen men out of twenty into such situations," they said. Then there was a wild protest from the men, who objected to any such unromantic view of the sex.

Later, another man in speaking of the case, took a larger and more sensible view of it. "It is egotism," he said, "which gets men into such disasters. Ninety-nine men in a hundred, even married to a woman of a beauty and a paragon of all the virtues and a Circe of seductiveness, would find opportunities and temptations after a few years of accustomed marital happiness if they chose to look for them and to consider them as possible diversions."

"This man struck the keynote of the whole subject. Such temptations are not unique, nor are they any evidence that a wife has failed in any respect or that the husband's love has died. They are mere incidents of magnetic attractions, which would pass and be forgotten in a brief period of time if the man or woman did not encourage them and feed the fires of a momentary flame with the fuel of rendezvous letters and frequent associations.

It seems a remarkable thing that so many well meaning, intelligent and otherwise sensible men and women will deliberately bring ruin into their homes by the indulgence of amorous fancies when by the exercise of a little self-control and the subduing of the selfish and self-indulgent impulses in the beginning the beauty and sacredness of the marriage tie could be preserved.

Marriage means something more than the wild fervor of the honeymoon. It means continual self-denial and continual character building. It means cultivating a sense of personal responsibility regarding the life, the reputation and the happiness of another human being.

When a man takes this fact into consideration and accepts it as a part of his marriage obligation he will realize that it is a nobler thing to crush and crushingly crush the impulses of human vanity and selfishness and to relinquish many opportunities to the woman he has chosen for a life companion.

And if he possesses any real moral worth he will find with each temptation overcome, each self-indulgent impulse subjugated, a deeper element of a greater love for his wife growing in his heart. Just as he will find that love cheapening and soiled and tattered by permitting himself to become involved in amours, which he may signify with the name of love or infatuation.

There is nothing on God's earth so near to perfection as the love of a man and woman who have passed safely into the haven of mature life, loyal lovers, friends and comrades, after fighting and vanquishing the pitiful emotions and impulses which have assailed them along the voyage; for the man and woman with the temperament capable of the love that makes paradise never reach this port of peace without having encountered and overcome these enemies to loyalty.

It is indeed "egotism," not deity or fate, which leads the great majority of husbands and wives who stray from their allegiance into the divorce court.

The Sunday Morning Newspaper

(Editorial in Dallas Times-Herald.)

Onward the car of progress rolls, for weal or woe. The hand on the dial plate of Time cannot be turned backward. The general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church, in session at Fort Worth, discussed that venerable topic, "Observance of the Sabbath."

The committee on Sunday observance made a report on facts submitted by fifty-two out of the eighty-two Presbyteries, showing that disregard for the Sabbath is on the increase, that Sunday school attendance is on the decrease, freight trains being run with accustomed regularity and Sunday newspapers continue as usual. Reference was made to the fact that so long as the railroads insist on not giving their employees a day of observance, they may expect disastrous wrecks. The committee recommended that a conference be held looking to a remedy of this question.

This is a free country, thank God, and all creeds are tolerated, and men of particular creed are not persecuted or crucified, for their inability to see things as others see them. The Sunday newspaper has been discussed so often that the subject has been worn to a frazzle. In this glorious land of ours the man who has religious scruples about reading a Sunday newspaper has the great American privilege of casting it aside. He can read it on Monday, if he wishes to keep up with the world's procession, or he can skip the events of one day's history of human affairs. There are millions of readers of the Sunday newspapers; there are good men found, here and there, who say they do not read the evangelist of civilization—the lever which moves the world, revolutionizes conditions, destroys oppression, lifts up the weak and lowly and seatters the seeds of progress far and wide. The fearless newspaper is the archangel of justice and its searchlight is the terror of evil-doers, tyrants, ants and snakes. It came long ago. It was welcomed by the sons and daughters of men, it is here to stay, and become powerful and more in demand as ignorance disappears from the haunts of men, and Superstition loses its grip upon the human mind and its simple yet sublime teachings of the Nazarene are accepted by those who walk this earth.

WHITELEW REID'S HOME IN LONDON

Leased From Captain Holford Who Won't Sell

MRS. MACKAY TO ENTERTAIN

Much in City of London at This Time of Interest to All Americans

BY PAUL LAMBETH. Copyright, 1905, by the Hearst News Service.

Dorchester House, which Mr. Whitelew Reid has taken for a term, will never be sold by its owner, Captain Holford, the king's favorite equerry.

When in town Captain Holford occupies only four rooms in this huge mansion which overlooks Hyde Park, but he has lent it for great functions on more than one occasion.

Captain Holford received a very large sum for a few weeks, but he always regretted having lent it.

Mrs. Mackay Returns. All Americans in London are sincerely glad that Mrs. Mackay is back again in London with the intention of entertaining once more on the same splendid scale which made her house in Carlton Terrace the most talked-about place in town a few years back.

Mrs. Mackay has not given a dance there for some years, and her concerts have been few and far between.

Her cotillon, which she is to give very shortly, will be the smartest little function of the year.

Colonel W. H. Chesborough of the famous Chesborough "Vaseline" Manufacturing Company is lying ill at his house, No. 19 Cadogan Place, and his life is despaired of.

Mrs. Chesborough was one of the most beautiful American women in London at one time, and even today she is extremely pretty.

The Chesboroughs' little "musical dinner" given regularly throughout the winter season had become famous.

She was to have presided over the Charles II. stall at the big bazaar given at Dean's Yard, Westminster, in aid of the Westminster Hospital.

For instance, the Charles II. stall, at which Mrs. Speyer was to have presided, and at which the Countess of Yarmouth (nee Thaw) and a bevy of American girls finally did duty, was used as a candy store.

The earl has considerably "toned down" his taste for things theatrical, which are always the most interesting in London.

American are scrambling for invitations to Mr. Alfred Rothchild's parties, which are always the most interesting in London.

YOUNG KING TO SEE BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Capital City of France Preparing a Great Treat for the King
When He Attends the Theater in Paris—Has Approval of President Loubet

Special Cable to The Telegram.
BY PAUL VILLIERS.
(Copyright, 1905, by the Hearst News Service.)
Paris Bureau of The Telegram.

PARIS, June 3.—When King Alfonso of Spain enters the Paris opera house to be present at the gala performance given in his honor, he will see below and around him all the most beautiful women of Paris—that is of the whole world.

house filled with more or less aristocratic snobs, Manager Gailhard intends to invite only women of perfect face and form. He has been given free hands to do as this by President Loubet, who came to his office the other day in his usual unostentatious manner and said: "M. Gailhard, as you know we are about to receive the King of Spain, who will be glad to spend an evening at the opera. Instead of following the usual official program, just invite whom you like and give whatever opera you see fit."

"The king is a very democratic young man, and I am sure you can select an audience which will please him better than the crowd of snobs usually present at such occasions."

M. Gailhard, who was very much pleased, assured President Loubet that he would take care that the young king should see "the finest display of feminine shoulders covered with diamonds and pearls that the world can display."

The young king is popular here even before any one has seen him, thanks to the many anecdotes showing his kind heart which are being told about him. Had he employed a regular press agent the soil could not be better prepared.

It is only a few days since we were told of his sharing his basket lunch with two poor women to whom he had given a lift in his automobile, and now comes another story which again shows the goodness of his heart.

The king was riding in his carriage up the mountain of Tibi Dabo, according to popular belief the place where Satan tempted Christ, when a boy who was anxious to get a good view of his king fell under the horses' hoofs.

The king jumped from his seat and in full view of the crowd picked up the unconscious boy and carried him into a hotel nearby. The proprietor, a dyed-in-the-wool republican, by the way, approached with uncovered head.

To enter the hotel, undress the boy and convince himself that he was only scared but not hurt, was the work of a moment, and the king in his joy exclaimed to the mother of the boy: "I exempt your son from all military service, madame."

In the meantime an enormous crowd had gathered, cheering the king, and an old man stepped up to him and said in the patois of the country: "We love thee dearly, little king, and we pray that God will bless thee. Thou beginst thy reign like our kings of old, may thou ever continue thus, and may all happiness be thine. Blessed be the mother who bore thee."

The republican proprietor of the inn swore that he would mend his evil ways and become a loyal supporter of the king, and asked: "May I not offer your majesty a little refreshment?" "Indeed, you may," the king replied, "give me a glass of your best wine."

Since then there is a sign over the entrance to the hotel under the name of the proprietor—"By Special Appointment Purveyor to the King."

A Great Man

Those who claimed that the simple-minded Cardinal Sarto of Venice was hardly fit for his exalted office as head of the Catholic church, and that he would never be able to comprehend the movements of the times, are daily becoming more convinced of their error.

For every day that passes the personality of Pope Pius X stands out in clearer relief against the sombre background of the antiquated Vatican.

Pope Pius is reforming the Catholic church, he is abolishing the many traditions which hampered it from times of old, and which none of his predecessors cared, or dared, disturb, and his name will go down in history as one of the greatest successors of St. Peter.

Even in France the admiration of the Pope is growing, and his many reforms are being praised everywhere.

Beginning with cutting down the extravagance of the papal court, he has since brought about many changes of vital interest to the church.

He has abolished the hundreds of orders within the church and limited their number to six. He has exterminated many of the abuses practiced in the cloisters, and he has put an end to the exaggerated adoration of saints which had entirely put the figure of Christ in the background.

Has Not Forgotten

Parisians have not yet forgotten the trick of Thomas Pays, the American swindler, who made a living selling trousers, or parts of trousers, which he declared had once covered the lower extremities of Victor Hugo.

It seems, however, as if this was not his only trick. A few days ago a man appeared at the office of the public prosecutor, who has charge of the case against Pays, who has not yet been tried, and said: "I have read in the papers about the swindle with Victor Hugo's trousers

SMUGGLERS MEET WITH A SURPRISE

Instead of a Lecture They Receive Sentence in Galveston County Jail

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 3.—The petty smuggling along the Rio Grande is to be stopped by Judge Walter Burns of the Federal district court has his way about it. There are many Mexicans of the lower class who make their living by smuggling articles across the Rio Grande in lots of small value. The bulk of this unlawful traffic is devoted to supplying "doggeries" on this side of the river with mesquit, which is a fiery intoxicant made by the fermentation of the juice of the mesquite plant.

It has long been a problem how to deal with this class of violators of the federal law. The United States river inspectors arrest scores of these poor smugglers in the course of a year. Until the last term of the federal court at Brownsville it had been the custom of the judge to discharge the prisoners charged with minor offenses of this character after having given them a lecture on the evils of their nefarious vocation. Of course, this leniency was not applied to the hardened professional smugglers. They were treated as real criminals, and always got the full punishment provided by law.

Judge Burns came to the conclusion that the good effect of reducing the traffic that he had expected, so he took a new tack at the present session of court here. There was a big bunch of Mexicans brought before him, all charged with smuggling. They were a nondescript lot—old men, with haggard expressions and stooped of shoulder; young men, good looking and debonaire of spirit; old women, with serapes drawn close about their heads and shoulders, their dull eyes peering out with an unwonted show of interest at the scene about them; coy and blushing señoritas, whose lustrous eyes shone pleadingly upon the court officials.

Sixteen of this picturesque group of prisoners entered pleas of guilty when the charges of smuggling were read. To their astonishment, instead of being let off with a severe lecture, as had been the custom heretofore, Judge Burns sentenced them to imprisonment in the Galveston county jail, for terms ranging from thirty days to six months each. When the sentences of the court were interpreted to the group of prisoners the women set up loud wails. One old woman, 68 years old, who had been found guilty of smuggling sixteen pieces of drawwork, pleaded with Judge Burns to remit her sentence:

"How can civilized people humiliate womankind for punishing them for being honest and virtuous?" she asked him in tearful Spanish. "We must work to live; if we do not work we would have to steal, or do perhaps worse. We must have some way of making a living. Is it wrong to smuggle when it violates no law of God?"

Several of those who were under sentence to be deported to Galveston lived in the town of Matamoros, situated across the Rio Grande from Brownsville. Some of them were women with small children at home. They were bemoaning their fate and the fact that they would be sent away from their children without an opportunity to bid them good-bye. Judge Burns called these women before him and asked them what was the matter. They told him. He studied a moment, and then spoke to the women impressively.

"I have no desire to impose unnecessary hardships or cruelty upon you," he said. "You may return to your homes in Matamoros and remain with your friends until tomorrow morning, when I shall expect you to report here and be ready to be sent to Galveston."

The women expressed their gratitude and then hurried out of the court room and crossed the river to their homes in Mexico. Although they were outside of the jurisdiction of the United States when they reached Mexican soil and they were well aware of the fact, they were upon their honor to return and undergo the punishment assessed them. Every one of them was back in the court room in Brownsville at the appointed hour next morning.

One of the men prisoners was asked by Judge Burns if he desired to return to his home in Matamoros before undertaking the journey to Galveston.

"Sir, Senor," the man replied eagerly. "I have a mother and two sisters, who will miss me greatly, especially were I not to bid them good-bye, as I am their support."

"You may go home now to see them, but I shall expect you to report here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock," Judge Burns said.

"Without bond? Do you mean that I may absent myself without giving bond?" asked the prisoner.

"Certainly," replied the judge. "I have great faith in you, and know you will not disappoint me."

The man kept his parole faithfully.

Peasant While Plowing in Field Finds Ancient Cellar

(Copyright, 1905, by the Hearst News Service.)

BERLIN, June 3.—Plowing in his field a few days ago, a peasant from the village of Hohennauen, was astonished to see his team of horses and plow suddenly disappear into the ground, nearly pulling him down with them.

Calling out all his neighbors they succeeded in getting the team out of the hole after many hours' work with picks and shovels.

When the hole was examined more closely it proved to be the cellar of a medieval house and an archaeologist from this city who is at Hohennauen now declares that he has reasons to believe that the whole village of Vozellin, which was buried centuries ago, is located under the fields of Hohennauen.

The government will be asked for money to dig out the sunken village.

The Avenue of Victory

Newspaper Enterprise Association. BERLIN, June 3.—Immediately upon the arrival of the Duchess Cecillie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin at Bellevue castle the formation of the gorgeous procession to accompany her on her state entry into Berlin was begun. This ceremony is the most spectacular of all the events connected with the wedding of the crown prince. The line of march covers several miles of the most beautiful portions of the German capital. From Bellevue the procession passes through the two main avenues of the Tiergarten, a beautiful park of 500 acres. About a mile along the route Duchess Cecillie's procession crosses the Avenue of Victory, which is lined by marble statues of thirty-two bygone rulers of the house of Hohenzollern, all direct ancestors of the kaiser, and terminated at the north end by the great Column of Victory, a monument 290 feet in height, erected to commemorate the triumph of the German army in the wars with Denmark, Austria and France, waged just before the foundation of the present German empire. Leaving the Tiergarten, the procession passes through the Brandenburg Gate which forms the western end of the Unter

Admiral Togo the New Nelson

When Admiral Togo embarked at Sasebo on Feb. 6 to meet the Russian fleet sent out from the Baltic he had a short respite from a year's service afloat in which he had rivaled the exploits of the most famous sea captains of history. With the destruction of the Russian Pacific fleet at Port Arthur at the end of 1904 the first part of his mission was completed, and the enthusiastic greetings given him at Tokyo when he returned to the capital with his chief lieutenant, Admiral Kamimura, and the chief of his staff, Shemamura, was eloquent testimony of the appreciation on the part of his countrymen of the services of "the Fighting Admiral," the Nelson of Japan.

Japan put her whole trust in Admiral Togo when the Mikado sent him out in command of the navy built up in the ten years following the Chinese war for the struggle with Russia. Their confidence was justified not only by the brilliant opening of the war, by which he shut up the Russian fleet in the death trap of Port Arthur, but by the patience with which he maintained the blockade through wearisome months. At all hazards he reserved his biggest warships for future eventualities when the immediate object was obtained, and kept his fighting force in a wonderful state of efficiency. He lost two of his battleships, the Hatsuse and the Yashima, which struck floating mines; two cruisers, two coast defense vessels, a submarine and sundry torpedo craft in the eleven months' blockade, but the annihilation of the Russian Port Arthur fleet of twenty-seven war vessels was an immense compensation for this expense.

Togo Heihachiro, placing the baptismal name second in the Japanese custom, is now only about 55 years of age. Like most of his fellow officers he is a Satsuma, belonging to the traditional clan of fighters. As a lad he was sent to England and placed on board the merchant training ship Worcester, moored in the Thames, where he learned navigation under Captain Smith, and having impressed his teachers by his obedience and application, passed on like other Japanese officers to study at the Royal Naval College at Greenwich. His service in the Japanese navy was uneventful until in 1894 he was a captain, and at the very outbreak of the war with China he attracted the attention of the world by the promptness with which he sank the transport Kowshing, a ship sailing under British colors and engaged in conveying troops to Korea, which the Japanese regarded as an act of war. It is a curious coincidence that the captain of the Kowshing happened to be a former classmate of Togo's on board the Worcester, and that the Japanese commander should also meet ten years later in battle another Worcester companion, Admiral Enquist, the Russian second commander under Admiral Kozestvensky.

Togo, by the sinking of the Kowshing, became a popular hero, and his daring service in the war were recognized by the Mikado in promoting him to the rank of rear admiral, with a divisional command.

The war became practically certain before the end of 1903. Togo was picked to serve his battle-ships until they were summoned for battle while using his torpedo flotilla for night attacks on Port Arthur harbor. The chief conflicts in which Togo's ships were subsequently employed were in the battle of April 13, when Admiral Mikahara went down with the Petropavlovsk, and on Aug. 10, when the Russian fleet made a dash for escape, but were driven back with the exception of the Travevitch and some other ships, which were either destroyed or interned in neutral ports.

When Admiral Togo and Kamimura visited Tokyo, at the beginning of this year, they were received by the Mikado, who thanked them for their services in the country and the throne and presented to each admiral a gold watch bearing the imperial crest and a bag of gold.

Admiral Togo is short of stature, and inclined to stoutness, but he is a typical sailor. A grizzled beard and mustache hide much of his face. A contemplative retiring manner causes him to be unobtrusive in the street, but those admitted to his presence on board his ship instinctively recognize in the admiral a supreme master of naval strategy and tactics, a man of immense self-control, laying his plans with unerring judgment and pursuing them to their execution with dauntless resolution and certainty.

MADAME TOGO.

sent for the chief command of Japan's naval forces, Vice Admiral Kamimura, who had won a great reputation as a commander of the Akishima in the previous war and had been acting as head of the naval education, was appointed Togo's second in command, while Rear Admiral Dewa (formerly staff officer to Admiral Viscount Ito, commanding in the Chinese war), Urin and Hashiba were made divisional commanders, with Captain Shimamura as Togo's chief of staff officer.

On the eve of hostilities Vice Admiral Togo was placed in command of the leading squadron, which was gradually increased till all the nation's warships were maneuvered and the mobilization carried out so effectively that when negotiations were broken off within three days Port Arthur was attacked and the fleet there crippled and two Russian ships sunk at Chemulpo.

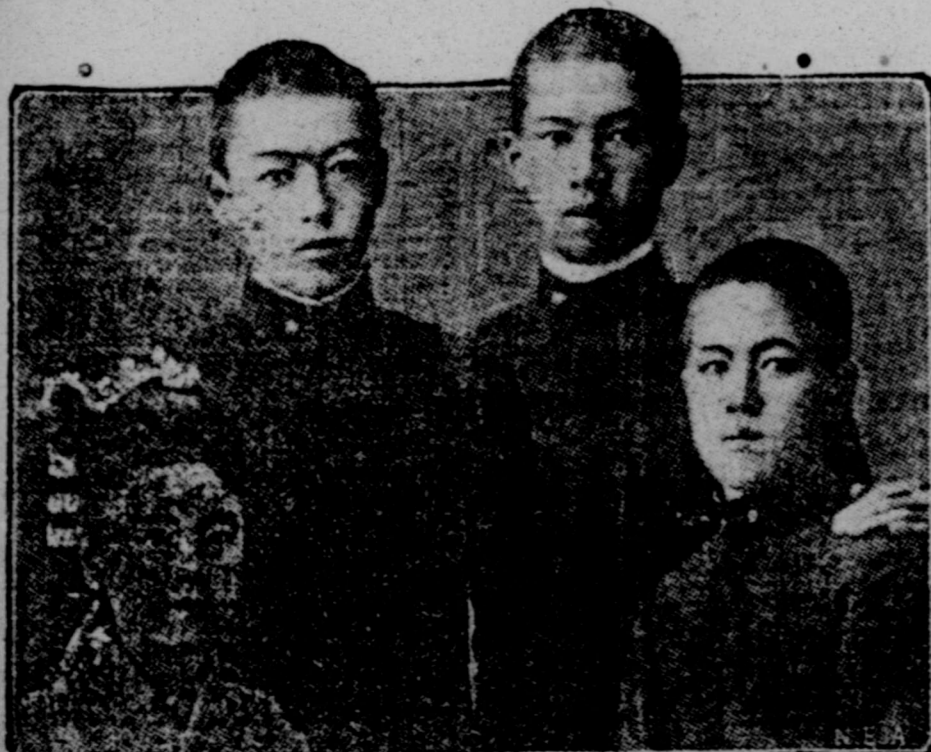

This initial success in the first week of the war gave Japan the necessary command of the sea for the transport of Kuroki's army to Eouan. Togo proceeded to establish a new naval base in islands in the Bay of Peking, where he could re-

STEPS NEEDED TO ADVANCE FORT WORTH

Fort Worth needs a live, wide-awake commercial organization, untrammelled by tradition and not circumscribed by a paucity of ideas, one that is ready to enter the arena of accomplishment and manifest the fact that it is a power for good under whose dominion the reign of the "knockers" will come to an end. It is not because the hearts and minds of our citizens are recreant to any particular duty; or that they would hesitate to point a way, but because of the absence of an energetic organization to enter the lists against an array of opposition or a combination of untoward circumstances which are militating against the progress of our city. We have a Board of Trade, but it lacks the support that it needs. Such an organization must be composed of and have the active co-operation in its operations and progress of representatives from every department of trade, commerce and society within this city. Bankers, merchants, professional men and employes alike, inspired by a determination that Fort Worth shall take her place among the prominent cities of the United States. There must be harmony within the ranks and the laying aside of personal gain to the exclusion of general good. The members of such an organization must make up their minds to give of their time and their money to the support of a progressive union, which must know no limitation to the scope of its operation. Spasmodic efforts will not do the work, but a strong pull all along the line will undoubtedly be crowned with success. So let's rally to the support of the Board of Trade and give it the support it needs. A. & L. AUGUST.

DECLARED BANKRUPT BY HIS OWN REQUEST

Federal Court at Austin Grants the Request of August Kasper of Maxwell

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—The petition of August Kasper of Maxwell, Caldwell county, to be declared a bankrupt, individually and as a member of the firm of Williamson & Kasper, the other member of the firm being John R. Williamson, was granted yesterday by Judge T. S. Maxey in the federal court. The case was set for June 24.

ACTING HEALTH OFFICER

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—Dr. J. H. Florence, who is the acting state health officer during the absence of Dr. George T. Labor, has been connected with the quarantine service of the state for the past two years. At present he is stationed at Brownsville, but was formerly at Aransas Pass.

LICENSE SECURED

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—The Mutual Life Insurance Company of Fort Worth has been licensed by the insurance department to solicit risks in the state. Office fees paid $6.

COLLECTIONS REPORTED

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—The International and Great Northern Railway Company reported to the comptroller collection of $201,103.71 for the quarter ending March 31, 1905, and paid $2,911.04, the 1 per cent occupation tax required by law.

CONGRESSMAN SHEPPARD

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—Congressman Morris Sheppard of Texarkana reached Austin yesterday. He will be here a few days and the purpose of his visit is to deliver the address of the day at the unveiling ceremonies of the Woodmen of the World Sunday afternoon.

ENDEAVORERS TO MEET

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—The fifteenth annual session of the Christian Endeavor Society of the state will be held here on June 20-22. Already great preparations are being made by the members of the local union to entertain the delegates. The state program committee is preparing an elaborate program. Among the noted Christian workers who, it is expected will be here, is Rev. Ira Landreth of Nashville, Tenn., and Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, who assisted Governor Joseph Folk in the noted raid on the hoodlums of St. Louis and Jefferson City.

GRAIN DEALERS MEET

Complete Arrangements Made for State Convention June 6 and 7

The committee of the local grain dealers, to arrange for the coming convention of the state association to be held in Fort Worth June 6 and 7, held a meeting in the Board of Trade rooms Saturday afternoon to wind up the affairs of the committee.

Chairman G. C. Mountcastle announced that badges for the convention have been procured and received. Mr. Mountcastle also announced that the meeting was called to hear reports from the various committees on progress of work.

The ladies of the visiting grain men will be entertained by local ladies at the Worth hotel. A barbecue will be provided. It will take place at Handley at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, June 7. The ladies will be given a trolley ride at 10 o'clock in the morning, June 7. The start will be from the Worth hotel.

A band of music has been secured. It will furnish music at the Worth hotel and will accompany the convention members to Handley.

The convention will be called to order at the city hall at 9 o'clock on the morning of June 6. The address of welcome will be made by Mayor T. J. Powell. The response on the part of the association will be made by G. C. Mountcastle.

It is expected that 250 grain men, many accompanied by their ladies, will be in attendance on the meeting.

ADDRESSES GRADUATES

Miss Winchester Gives Parting Advice to Her Class

At the graduation exercises of the Fort Worth Kindergarten College last Thursday, Miss Myra Winchester, in presenting the diplomas to the five young ladies who have completed the course of training, addressed them at length upon the subject of the work they have perfected themselves in.

She explained that the success of each depended upon their own efforts; that they were free and should first conquer their own selves. "Put your heart and soul into your life; live it abundantly and in full measure," she said. "When the thing you cherish most vanishes from you and you are disappointed, is yours, remember Job stumped and shorn of all that could make life desirable, still saying:

Backache

THE OUTWARD SIGN OF INWARD DISEASE

Oh! That horrible, crippling, miserable, agonizing backache. You feel it most every morning, and at times during the day. Sometimes it comes on regularly once a month and stays with you, for a week or more of torture, that makes you look old before your time.

No matter what they may tell you, or what you believe or imagine, backache, in women, is nearly always due to female disorder. It is MEN who have kidney trouble—WOMEN have female trouble. The only cure for women's backache is

WINE OF CARDUI Home Treatment For Women

It never fails to relieve backache, headache, bearing-down pains, dizziness, cramps, abdominal pains, cold spells, scanty, painful or profuse menstruation, and the general misery from which weak women suffer almost all the days of their lives. Sold by every druggist in $1.00 bottles.

Write Us a Letter freely and frankly, in strict confidence, telling us all your symptoms and troubles. We will send free advice (in plain sealed envelope) how to cure them. Address: Ladies' Advisory Dept., The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

"A MIRACLE." "I am one of those women," writes Mrs. C. C. Zamora, of Starkville, Colo., "who are sometimes cured by a miracle. I cannot find in the English language words strong enough to express the benefit done to me by Cardui."

W. C. T. U.

The state president of this organization gave encouraging words of the work in different parts of the state, at the call meeting of recent date. Especially was some of the new legislation at the state capital commended as being the "most good for the most people."

It was voted that Flower Mission Day should be observed Sunday, June 11. All members are requested to help in this work. It is the work of every member of the W. C. T. U. by some act of love for others on Flower Mission Day to bring "good tidings"—news of the immortal love that has never left the world; that never forgets the tears of earth's sorrowing children; that lives only by its loving, and loves all loving into life.

We who wear the white ribbon are not all strong, nor all rich. Some of us find it hard to open our lips in expression of sympathy. Some of us have not the gift of the written word of tenderness. Some of us are tied to duties that seem to leave little or no opportunity for the special service of the Flower Mission. Yet for every one of us, however we may be shut in by such seemingly hindering circumstances, there is a path up the mountain reaches, free for our feet, so that we may take unto us all the meaning and comfort of the prophet's word. Who cannot put out a gentle hand to touch a pale cheek or stroke a tired brow? Some of us can heap up lovely flowers. Some of us can give of our money, some of us of our physical strength. The little lad who had a scrap of a lunch—put up perhaps by a tired mother or sister—lent to the Lord and fed the thousands. Ah, we never know!

Let us ponder the prophet's word at this time. Whatever smallest deed of love we do that has its birth in divine love is the running of our feet along the mountain way; is the bringing to the world's eager ear the good tidings of love; is the song of the redeemed to the sorrowing world! "Thy God reigneth!" MRS. LUSE, Press Superintendent.

The value of shells, tortoise and others, gathered in Cuba last year, amounted to about $75,000, and of sponges, $500,000. Of the latter the United States received 35 per cent and Europe the remainder, France being the principal buyer.

In Germany the number of servant girls who have savings banks accounts is nearly three times as large as that of shopgirls who have them. Are you lacking in strength and vigor? Are you weak? Are you in pain? Do you feel all run down? The blessing of health and strength come to all who use Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. J. P. Brashear.

AT LAKE ERIE

ASKS FOR A RECEIVER

Case Grows Out of Kirby Lumber Company Matters

CAMERON, Texas, June 3.—In the case of W. B. Wortham and wife against John H. Kirby and receivers of the Kirby Lumber Company, a plea in abatement of the receiver was sustained. In the first case George L. Hume of the First National Bank of Austin intervened and asked for the appointment of a receiver for the Wortham farm. The court announced it would hold up the decision until next week.

ORATION ON DAVIS

Judge C. C. Cummings Addresses U. S. D. C.

The daughters of Julia Jackson chapter Saturday observed the ninety-seventh birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis in the rooms of the Sons of Confederate Veterans in the court house. While the attendance was not large on account of the excessive heat, those who were on hand enjoyed a treat by an address delivered by Judge C. C. Cummings, historian of Lee camp, United Confederate Veterans, who spoke at considerable length upon the life and achievements of the president of the southern Confederacy.

Today the daughters will bestow crosses upon several of the veterans during the afternoon following the adjournment of the regular meeting of the camp. While this feature is under way, Master Adrian Ford will deliver a recitation. The bestowal will take place in the sons' rooms.

CREDIT MEN IN SESSION

Discuss Establishment of Adjustment Bureau Here

H. E. Gardner was elected vice president of the Fort Worth Credit Men's Association at a meeting which was held at the board of trade rooms Saturday afternoon. In order to fill the position it was necessary for Mr. Gardner to resign his position on the directory of the association. This was done and A. D. Hodgson selected to fill the vacancy.

Bylaws for the association were presented by A. P. Foute and after being read were adopted. Most of the meeting was taken up in discussion of sending delegates to the meeting of the national association of credit men to be held at Memphis, Tenn., June 14, 15 and 16. Delegates and alternates were selected as follows: E. I. White, R. E. Bell, Paul Waples, A. P. Foute and Stanton Palmer.

The proposition of a local attorney to organize an interchange and adjustment bureau for the association was considered. It was decided to induce him if possible to attend the national meeting at Memphis, thus to get pointers on the organization of such a bureau, then to return here and take up the work.

The local association is expecting a visit from F. W. Standard, president of the national association, who will pass through Fort Worth from Denver en route to Memphis. President Foute of the local association has been communicating with Mr. Standard with a view of having him here next Saturday for a banquet and meeting. Nothing definite has been announced, however.

EIGHTEEN DIPLOMAS

WACO, Texas, June 3.—Texas Christian University has closed one of the most successful terms in her history. The session just closed has been largely attended, and eighteen graduates received diplomas, besides graduates in special lines.

A Woman's Prayer

It is notable that in the despondency caused by womanly diseases, there seems to many a suffering woman no way of escape from pain except at the price of life itself. It would be sad to record such a story of struggle and suffering except for the fact that in such dire distress many a woman has found a way back to health and happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The one and only remedy for leucorrhoea, female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, so absolutely specific and sure in curing these common ailments of women, as to warrant its makers in offering to pay, as they hereby do, the sum of $500 reward for a case of the above maladies which they cannot cure.

"Your medicine almost raised me from the dead," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "My urine was like brick dust, and I had pain all over me, and such a dragging feeling I seemed I could not do my house work. One day I found a little book, I read it and wrote to Dr. Pierce, and in a few days received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no backache no headache, no pain at all. I used always to have headaches, previously to the monthly period and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. Took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and three vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and was completely cured. Accept no substitute for 'Favorite Prescription.' There is nothing just as good. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser—sent free on receipt of stamps to cover expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers; or 31 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y."

Some Little Stories Well Told

LAW OF EMINENT DOMAIN

"Let me tell you where greed and avarice come to the surface as in no other case," said the old lawyer, as he tilted back in his chair.
"It's when a new railroad wants the right of way across the country. I was thinking of a case that happened twenty years ago, and in which I played a part. In running the line the surveyors crossed a swamp belonging to a farmer. It was at the back end of his farm and of no value to him. He had never had one shilling's benefit from it. When I was sent along the line to buy the right of way the farmer's price was $1,500.
"Why, you only ask that price for your whole farm," I protested.
"That's so, boss, but this railroad has got to pay my price or it can't cross my land."
"I argued with him for two hours, but could make no impression, and I passed on to return a month later.
"Well, will you take $60 now?" I asked.
"My price has gone up," he announced.
"Tell the old railroad that I'm asking just $2,000 for the right of way."
"Did you ever hear of eminent domain, my friend?"
"Eminent domain is nothing to me either pay my price or run your old line somewhere else."
"We took the case into court," said the lawyer, "and of course the land was valued and condemned. The commission awarded the farmer the sum of $5 damages, and when the case had been decided he came up to me with the money in his hand and asked:
"Is this what you call a case of Eminent Domain?"
"This is eminent domain, sir."
"And it cost me $48 to find it out?"
"I think I would have paid you about $75 for the right of way."
"And now I've got $5! That Eminent Domain may be the biggest kind of a fool, but dog my cats if I don't reckon I'm a bigger one!"

THE RETORT COURTEOUS

A passage between Senator Foraker of Ohio and Senator Carmack of Tennessee, is being retailed at the capitol. It is with reference to the railroad rate legislative program, both senators being members of the interstate commerce committee, that has recently closed a series of extensive hearings.
"By the way, Carmack," said Senator Foraker, in a playful spirit, "what is the democratic attitude on this proposed legislation going to be?"
"Really, I can't tell you," responded Senator Carmack. "We haven't had time yet to consult the president."

"destiny." One day it appears that the corporal, while off duty, was preparing to take a little horseback exercise and recreation. A private observed that the corporal took care to attach a brace of pistols to his saddle. "Hello!" shouted the private to the corporal, "what are you taking the guns for? They won't save you if your time has come." "True for you," grimly responded the corporal, "but I may happen to meet an Apache whose last day has come."

THE DOG DEALER

I am an unscrupulous dog dealer. I had for sale a very fine Irish terrier. His mother cost me $500 and his sire cost $750. I thought my get, my pup, now a year old, worth $200, and so advertised him.
I was incensed by an offer of $10 over the phone.
Partly never saw the dog and said any good ratter would do him (this I had claimed for mine); he did not care for pedigree, breeding or cost of parent dogs.
A bright idea struck me. I knew a curly-haired alley dog I could get for 25c. I told the fellow I would accept the $10 offer. He asked me to meet him at depot with the dog. He was going home on a suburban train. I had him at depot with the curly-haired alley dog, which, by the way, I had got an option on, but at 50 cents, not 25 cents, as I expected. My customer sneered when he saw the dog, but handed me a $10 note.
I smiled when I thought of my joke. Next week I received a postal card from my customer that read: "Your dog is the best ratter I ever saw. He caught 42 rats the first two days. He is worth all you advertised him at, $200. I would not sell him for $300."

THE HOT ONE

August Belmont, at a certain directors' meeting, was describing a fraud that had been brought to light in a proposition laid before the board, says the Buffalo Inquirer.
"These gentlemen," said Mr. Belmont, "gave themselves away. They stood convicted out of their own mouths. They were like the innkeeper's family that conducted the weekly raffle.
"In this raffle the prizes were turkeys, ducks, young pigs, baskets of eggs, and such like rural commodities. A quantity of steel disks, numbered 1 to 25, were put into a black bag, and the little daughter of the innkeeper put her hand in the bag and drew a disk for each speculator in turn. The person whose number was the highest got the prize.
"Well, it had been noticed that the innkeeper's wife got the prizes frequently, but nothing was thought of this by the simple, honest, rural folk.
"One evening, though, the little girl, with her hand in the bag, paused. It was her mother's turn, and she did not draw forth her mother's disk in her usual quick and careless way. She rummaged about. The other rafflers looked at one another oddly. The innkeeper said:
"Come, come, child, hurry up."
"But, father," said the little girl, "I can't find the hot one."

SHE HAD EXPERIENCE

The following story is told of Bishop Niles of New Hampshire, while he was in Boston attending the Episcopal convention.
The bishop, who is a very tall, heavy man, was seated on one of the low settees in the Public garden, and when he started to get up, found that he had great difficulty in reaching his feet. While in the midst of his struggles a wee tot of a little girl came along and offered her assistance. The bishop ceased trying to rise, and, after surveying the little girl critically, replied that she was too small to help. The little girl persisted that she could help, but the bishop was just as sure that she could not.
"Well," said the little girl, finally, "I've helped grandpa lots of times when he was lots drunker than you are."

NEW ONE ON ARKANSAS

Champ Clark, representative from Missouri, dearly loves a good story at the expense of the state of Arkansas. "One day," said Mr. Clark, as a train from the east pulled up at the dinky little station of a most depressing town in the fever-and-ague district of Arkansas, a passenger, thrusting his head out of a car window, demanded in bitter tones of a dejected looking citizen who was leaning against the station door: "Tell me what do you call this dried-up, dreary, God-forsaken place?" "That's near enough, stranger," replied the native in a melancholy voice; "let it go at that."

THE GREAT AUTHOR

Pretentious ignorance sooner or later is generally "hoist with its own petard." That's near enough, stranger," replied the native in a melancholy voice; "let it go at that."
A pompous person applied to the editor Bennett for a job as editorial writer.
"What are your qualifications?" asked the editor.
"I know all the literary men of England," replied the applicant.
"H'm, h'm," said Bennett, "you must know Dickens then?"
"I was a reporter with Dickens," "And Thackeray?"
"I helped Thackeray with his 'Book of Snobs'."
"And Tennyson?"
"I have broken many a pipe with Tennyson."
"And George Eliot?"
"At the dinner at which this story was told even the ladies, who are informed, joined unreservedly in the spontaneous outburst of laughter."

THE CAR WENT ON

Two Columbia students cut classes the other day and went out for a lark. As they turned into Broadway from One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street they looked around for something in the way of excitement.
"Say, kid," said the taller of the two as an open car stopped in front of them, "you don't dare kiss that girl in the Alice-blue hat."
The "kid" sized up the pretty girl at the end of the seat and turned to his friend.
"What do you bet," he said.
"Bet you two bucks."
The "kid" gave a hurried glance about for an insurance against the minions of the law, sprinted after the car, which meantime had started, and swung on to the step beside the girl. A resounding smack rose above the buzz of the car. Before even the girl could realize what had happened he had dropped off. Then the girl screamed and the conductor hurried forward to her seat to learn what had happened. She was so excited that the car traveled two blocks before she could explain. The conductor, possibly by her screams, pulled the bell and stopped the car.
"I wonder what I ought to do?" he asked of a stout, dignified citizen who sat in a rear seat.
"Pull the bell and let us go along," said the dignified person.
The girl, who had stopped screaming and taken refuge in tears, turned indignantly.
"Oh, you heartless man," she said.
"Good Lord, woman, do you want to tie up the whole system because a young rascal kissed you?" he asked.
She did not answer and the car went on.

A DOUBTFUL PROPOSITION

A few years ago when they were operating cable cars up and down a steep hill in one of the New England cities a middle-aged lady, who had never seen them before, entered a car one day that contained only two other people, seating herself as near the conductor as possible, and when he had collected her fare she spoke to him and said:
"Is this car perfectly safe?"
"I hope so, madam," replied the conductor.
"Have you ever had accidents on this awful steep hill?"
"Well," replied the conductor, "there have been a few small accidents; nothing serious."
"Where would I go," she then enquired, "if this car should get away and go sliding down this steep hill?"
"Well, madam," said the conductor, "it would all depend on how you have lived your past life."

DEFINITION OF TWINS

When asked to write a short composition on some interesting experience Johnny, after much labor, handed his teacher the following:
"Twins is a baby, only it's double. It usually arrives about 4:37 in the morning when a fellow is getting in his best kicks sleepin'. Twins is accompanied by excitement and a doctor. When twins do enny thing wrong, their mother can't tell which one to lick, so she gives it to both of 'em so as to make sure. We've got twins to our house, and I'd swop 'em enny day for a billy goat or maw' anything."

While Tom Lewis, the detective in "Little Johnny Jones," was taking a stroll about Rochester, he came across an old negro who, as he watched an ice man slide ice through an opening in the asphalt, laughed uproariously.
"Observe how easily amused he is and yet there is nothing to laugh at," commented Mr. Daniels to his friend. "Still they tell us the colored folks have a keen sense of the ridiculous. You'll notice that most of the successes in the minstrel business are white men, however." Then, "Hey, uncle," he shouted, "do you think it's funny to watch a man slide ice down into the caller of a saloon?"
The old man straightened up, scratched his nose thoughtfully for a moment and then replied:

"Why, boss, I 'low dat performance do tickle dis ol' man. It suttently does, boss. You see, sah, he's a new ice man, an' 'stead o' slidin' ice down in de basement, he's jes' slidin' it into de sewer."
OLD RIPS' ABSENTMINDEDNESS
When Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio was in Louisville a few days ago the subject of conversation turned on the late Joseph Jefferson, with whom Governor Herrick was intimately acquainted. Jefferson, like most men with the divine spark of genius in them, was at times absentminded. An instance of this peculiarity was told by Governor Herrick, who said that Joseph Jefferson was once introduced to General U. S. Grant in a New York hotel. It never occurred to Jefferson that the little silent man with the square beard was anyone of particular eminence.
They happened both to be going up stairs in the same elevator, and Jefferson merely to be polite inquired:

"You live in New York, do you, Mr. Grant?"
"I have made this my home since '63," replied the general.
It then came over Joseph Jefferson who it was to whom he was speaking.
"Here, stop the elevator," said the actor, "I want to get out; the next thing I know I'll be asking you whether you were in the civil war."
DANGERS OF LURID LANGUAGES
Uncle Joe Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, was entertaining at luncheon a certain austere Quaker friend, and was regaling the latter with the story of the collapse of a life insurance enterprise in which he had lost money. Uncle Joe interlarded his remarks with burning phrases, torrid expressions and lurid words that caused a great uneasiness on the part of his straight laced guest. He was filling his lungs prior to another explosion, when the Quaker exclaimed:

"Joseph, will thee take some advice from me?"
"Why, certainly," answered Uncle Joe.
"Well, then, thee had better lose thy language or take out a posthumous fire insurance policy."
TORTURE OF A PREACHER
The story of the torture of Rev. O. D. Moore, pastor of the Baptist church of Harpersville, N. Y., will interest you. He says: "I suffered agonies, because of a persistent cough, resulting from the grip. I had to sleep sitting up in bed. I tried many remedies, without relief, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which entirely cured my cough, and saved me from consumption." A grand cure for diseased conditions of Throat and Lungs. At W. J. Fisher's, Reform Pharmacy and M. S. Blanton & Co., druggists; price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

GRAIN

CHICAGO GRAIN LETTER

CHICAGO, June 3.—Wheat—World's shipments estimated at 1,400,000 bushels larger than week, a decrease in passage is expected. A good cash demand...

The weather in that section is reported as hot. An eastern gale prevailed in today's market, due largely to lower cables and an easier start to the northwest markets. These latter centers subsequently recovered, bringing steadiness in the market. Early in the session south-western houses were good sellers of wheat which had a depressing effect late in the session. At no time did today's market display its recent snap. There were more of a disposition to go slow in face of the southwestern selling. Today's reaction indicated that underlying conditions have all changed. Stocks are small and the cash demand here and in northwest is still urgent. This, to our minds, gives the market a very firm foundation. Considering the glowing crop prospects, it would be unwise to expect any sensational advance, but on the other hand a scarcity of wheat would likely deter any pronounced pressure. It still seems likely a trading market and is fairly broad.

CORN—PRIMARY RECEIPTS

were about 40,000 bushels less than a year ago. Shipments were very little under the same time last year. This market looks on an easier feeling right from the start, and on every little show of strength was subjected to much profit-taking. As in yesterday's market, the leading bull house was the principal seller. Conditions are somewhat better, as the market has had a reasonable decline from the top figures and it is still out of line to stimulate the cash demand. Sentiment is just a shade bullish, but the general feeling of the trade still seems to favor the bull side.

OUTS—THIS MARKET SYMPATHIZED

altogether with corn, and while declines were not as extended as in other markets, they nevertheless seemed to show a disposition to halt. We see nothing in this market to lead one to head over either side. It is largely a scalping market, with trade almost wholly local and the most that can be expected is a small scalp on either side.

PROVISIONS—HOGS CLOSED STEADY

Speculative market closed off on profit taking and through sympathy with other pits. Trade is extremely dull and nothing at the moment in sight to warrant a broader market. Still seems likely a scalping market of moderate proportions.

THEODORE H. PRICE TALKS OF COTTON

NEW YORK, JUNE 2.—The government report on cotton condition and acreage, issued today, effectively negates the pessimistic private reports previously received and taken in conjunction with the large surplus of this year's crop remaining on hand, seems to point to the probability of a serious decline in the market. The report says that there had been actually planted up to May 25, 28,150,000 acres, and as it is universally conceded that at least 20 per cent of the crop was abandoned, that date, there is logically indicated a probable increase in acreage this year.

The department's revised report of last year, published in the autumn, stated that 5.3 per cent of the total acreage of 31,730,371 acres planted in cotton last year was abandoned. It follows, therefore that the total acreage from which last year's crop was produced was 30,152,853. From this year's report it appears that on May 25 there had been actually planted in the south an area of only 2,033,853 acres less than that which produced last year's crop, and that of this season's planting yet remains to be done, but planting and replanting are still actively in progress, and are likely to continue for some weeks yet to come.

The weather in that section is reported as hot. An eastern gale prevailed in today's market, due largely to lower cables and an easier start to the northwest markets. These latter centers subsequently recovered, bringing steadiness in the market. Early in the session south-western houses were good sellers of wheat which had a depressing effect late in the session. THE LIVESTOCK MARKET

THE WEEK'S MARKET

Cattle came to this market for the past week in very liberal supply, the total receipts reaching 20,000, including calves. In the preceding week receipts were 17,891 and for last year 14,148. Hogs fell short in numbers from the former week, being 7,200 in, against 7,362 for the preceding week. The sheep supply amounted to 4,000, against 3,106 for the week previous.

Weakness developed in the steer trade early in the week, and continued until the week's close, the last three days' market being drabgy in the extreme. Prices closed the week 25 cents lower. Cows have had a better market than steers, but close the week 10c to 15c lower. Calves have had a boom during the latter part of the week, and close 50c to 75c higher.

WITH THE PARSON AND THE COWBOY

MACON, Mo., May 27.—"When the Methodist conference sent me out to New Mexico as a sort of scout for the contemplated advance of the church I did most of my preaching to empty benches, and was beginning to get homesick when a little circumstance occurred, which brought me back to the warm hearts of the cowboys," remarked the Rev. W. B. Wheeler, pastor of the M. E. church south. "Looking back over the vigorous years of my pilgrimage in the west, and the great good the Master permitted me to do with those untamed but chivalrous spirits, I am convinced the incident was not a shot in the dark.

"While holding sparsely attended meetings down in the cattle country, near the forks of the Galisteo river, I was waited upon by a six-foot cattleman known as 'Little Charlie.' He wore the regulation sombrero, red handkerchief, flannel shirt and belt bristling with shooting irons and ammunition. He shook hands and I invited him to take a chair. He did so, pulled out his pipe, filled it and reached for a match.

THE PARSON AND THE COWBOY

"Smoking go here?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, I smoke some myself."

"He slowly lit his pipe, got the smoke curling vigorously, and then remarked as he looked indifferently across the street where a woman sat on a restless broncho:

"Had a rain across the range yesterday."

"Glad to hear it; were you needing water?"

"Rather."

"Fore silence. Finally, he was sociable. I hunted my old pipe and began scraping it out. When I finished he patted his pouch of tobacco over to me.

"Got it from a greaser—one o' Juarez riders—pretty damn good!"

"Across the way the lady was having trouble with her mount, which persisted in cavorting around like a circus donkey.

"She seems to be waiting for some one," I said.

"He nodded complacently.

"I couldn't for my life imagine why he kept his wife waiting on the frisky animal while he sat there with no apparent purpose.

"'Hain't you better go out and tell your wife to come in and take a chair till you get ready to go?' I suggested.

THE COWBOY WAS EMBARRASSED

"A lugubrious grin spread over his face and seemed to shake the roots of his hair.

"'Hain't my wife," he said.

"Oh!"

"Be you the man that runs the gospel church here?"

"'What outfit you ride for?"

"'Methodist.'"

"'Humph!'"

"Silence again, and more antics by the impatient animal across the street. Finally the woman let her steed have rein and headed it for the porch where we were sitting. She didn't stop until she was right among us.

"'What does he say, Charley?' she inquired.

"'Hain't asked him yet.'"

"'You ain't?'"

"'Nope.'"

"lightning or earthquake," said Miss Kate; "there'll be a few friends there and after the song and dance is over we'll give you the time of you like—eh, Charley?"

"'Make 'im feel like he's jist killed a grizzly by his lonesome,' said Charley, expressing his highest idea of human felicity.

"He started to get on his horse to accompany her, but suddenly came back, pulled my ear down to his lips and as he slipped a gold eagle in my hand, whispered, sonorously:

"LITTLE CHARLEY'S" REQUEST

"'Put the 'obey' in good and strong person!'"

"The affair at No. 4-44 Consolidated was a dazzling success. Kate looked at me suspiciously when I came down 'good and strong' on the 'obey' part, but she stood up to it like a little man," as she afterwards described it. The boys were so delighted that they insisted on having the event recorded in the Cattlemen's Herald, and honored me with the request to do the literary work. In due time the cattle paper came out with this announcement:

"'Again have two members of the human family expressed themselves as being in harmony with the Divine declaration that it is not good for man to be alone, and at No. 4-44 ranch in the territory of New Mexico, on Nov. 18, 1880, Little Charley Montague and Miss Kate Densmore took upon themselves the beautiful vows that made them husband and wife; or, in other words, one of Los Cerrillos' fair daughters, and a Baron de Cattle of the Galisteo did mutually agree to graze on the same ranch, use the same stamping ground in fly time, water at the same trough and lick salt from the same log, and always to be within lowing distance of each other until one of them is put on the trail which terminates in the Great Beyond, where the pasture is ever fresh and green. And when the roll call is sounded on the judgment day and the heavens are thrown back as the scroll and the revelations of wrecked and ruined worlds scroll forth to the fat of eternal rest, may these two pilgrims from the dusty highway of earth hang their weary bones on the gallery-rack of immortality and register on the same line. 'We meet to part no more.'"

"From the date of the paper's issuance our little 2x4 church on the range was crowded with worshippers, and the hat that traveled around among them came back to the pulpit loaded with coin."

WOULDN'T THIS SURPRISE YOU?

DALLAS, Texas, June 3.—The annual report shows that the consumption of water for the city during the fiscal year was 2,307,509,855 gallons, which is an increase over the preceding year of 10.94 per cent. The cost per 1,000 gallons pumped into the mains was 1.14 cents.

"I hurriedly assured her that such a thing couldn't possibly enter my head or any other man's head, and she smiled a gracious acknowledgment. By this Charley had knocked the ashes out of his pipe and arose to his feet. He stood behind us grinning a complacent 'yes' to all the 'boss of the Standard' was saying. The lady slashed her dancing pony savagely across the neck, and used some expletives calculated to let him know her opinion of his unruly conduct.

"'We want you out at Charley's at 5 p. m. this eve, without fail for thunder.

SOME CURIOUS LOVE LETTERS

Men and women find many and varied ways of conveying their messages of love. Some have shown remarkable ingenuity, as, for instance, in the case of a young California tinsmith.

Soldering tops on tins of fruit all day offered very little opportunity for romance until he bethought himself of making the top of the can a message of his wishes.

"I want an Irish wife," he wrote. "Write to John O'Meara, Morton street, San Francisco." He left the rest to fate, and fate was kind. The fruit can was opened by a modest housemaid. She was a New England girl, but she had an Irish friend, and she kindly passed it on.

Perhaps for fun the nurse opened a correspondence with her distant fellow-countryman, and to make a long story short, the romance culminated in the girl throwing up her position, journeying to San Francisco and marrying the tinsmith.

Another most extraordinary love message is in the possession of a woman residing in Cheshire, England, and is cherished by her with almost sacred regard.

Written on a biscuit, it was borne to her as the last message from her hero, who was shot in the African war. Strange to say, though it was sent by mail, it reached its destination very little the worse for wear.

It could be easily read with care: "Dear Eva—We are expecting a big fight 'at daybreak. Have no paper, so am utilizing some of my grub to send you my love.

"CHARLIE."

A pretty romance was the outcome of a message written on an egg that traveled from England to an American farm. The girl of 19, who desired "a nice man" to correspond with her with a view to matrimony, was rather fortunate, as the egg when cooked was placed in the egg cup of a smart young commercial traveler employed by a large London firm.

Desiring to marry, the young man opened a correspondence, and soon found his way to her home to claim her as his bride.

Not the least original was the method of securing a husband adopted by a girl whose name was "Flo" Martin from Tasmania:

An apple first caused woman's woe. Forced Eva from Eden to depart; But one may help poor me to know The Eden of a good man's heart.

This verse was scratched on the glossy surface of a big apple, the apple fell into the hands of a lonely old bachelor, and now, though his wife still writes verses, she uses paper, not apples, for her effusions.

He wrote to her, and as the photograph she sent in answer proved satisfactory he soon chose her for his life-long companion.

There are doubtless many other such strange ways of securing a wife or a husband, but perhaps, unfortunately, they do not become known.

Czarina of Russia, who has made all preparations for flight to Denmark should a revolution result from the news of the Russian naval defeat.

Vacation Days

Mean days of rest and comfort. But whether it's the business man or the college youngster, there's one very important thing to consider—

THE CLOTHES QUESTION

Unless they are correct—have that loose, airy, comfortable, yet stylish effect; half the pleasure of the year's outing is lost. And THE CLOTHES WE MAKE OR SELL have all these points combined in an artistic and economical way.

ALL SORTS OF FANCY WORSTEDS AND THE BLUE SERGE SINGLE AND DOUBLE-BREASTED,

A SWORD MISLAID

BY AMBROSE PLATT

But I was not a person to be played with. I followed her, pushing my way forward with a recklessness that earned me many ill looks and muttered curses. I caught her at last leaning upon the arm of Mr. Addington, whom I knew slightly, and who had good cause to know me, for my sword had earned him a pretty considerable fortune, although for that he had never shown me any gratitude. There was only one life between Addington and the title he craved for. But I was no bravo, and he knew it. He had even cut me in the street quite lately, but I greeted him now with superb forgiveness.

"You will hate me robbing you of your partner, Mr. Addington," I said suavely, "but her grace has sent for me." Her grace smiled at my impudence though I confess it deserved no such indulgence. "Twas but to give you a message, my lord," she answered. "A friend expects you in my green room." Her eyes at the same time said so much to me that I fell back with a low reverence. I turned at the door and found her glance had followed me; her regard was sad as death, but mocking, scornful and full of pride.

Annoyed almost past endurance, I strode along the passage toward a room I knew full well. I threw the door open without knocking. In sheer ill-temper at my errand, and entered. A pair of huge chandeliers, ablaze with lights, cast a golden radiance, which dazzled my vision after traversing the long dark corridor. For a second I was almost blinded, then, sight returning, I was stricken blind, indeed, and speechless. A maid most brilliantly attired and all ablaze with jewels stood in the very center of the room, and on my side entrance she fell back a pace or two with a pretty gesture of alarm. I stood like a fool, dumb, abashed and lost in marvel at the wonderful loveliness of this maid, whom, strange to say, in some sort I seemed to recognize.

SHE TURNED UPON ME THE EYES OF A LIONESSE AT BAY.

where to attend, for the duchess said that your life was in constant danger. But I knew you were brave, and I, who cannot spell your English tongue, made her write warning you not to come, and then I was sure you would. Was I not wise?"

"Wise!" I echoed, amazed at this child's knowledge of a man's nature. "Ay, indeed. But what service can you require of me?" She pouted her scarlet lips till I had to hold myself back from recklessly attempting a taste of their sweetness. "Promise first," she whispered. "Anything," I cried. "On your word?"

"Why, yes." "Say after me—I, Caryl Franks, promise you, Clarisse d'Arras, on my word of honor as a gentleman, to do anything you ask me."

I must have been bewitched—I, the cool-headed gambler—for I repeated the formula without a fragment of hesitation. "Then," said the countess, "I want you to accompany me to France tomorrow night."

"The devil!" I muttered, quite agitated. "This is my bad day!" I arose and paced across the room in a chaos of agitation. It flashed to my mind that here was a trap set for me by my enemies; not for a moment did I suspect the girl, but then a decoy may be dandy, however innocent of evil. But the girl stared at me, plainly confounded by my demeanor and catching her glance I came to a stand. "You promised," she said tremulously. "Who put this matter in your head?" I demanded sternly. Her lip trembled, she looked like a scolded child. "You promised, monsieur," she repeats, "you must give me a reason," I said coldly. She came and stood by me. "The day added bluntly, "in all this I see no necessity for me to quit England." Mademoiselle drew herself away, very plainly offended. "I am foolish to have expected too much from you, milord. I beg you to forgive me. I shall seek a protector elsewhere."

"A protector?" I grasped. The girl threw out her arms with a little tragic gesture. "The sloop which will bear me to France is a smuggling craft, milord, commanded by rough men, and my unhappy position forbids that I be accompanied by any woman, even my maid."

"I shuddered to think of such a situation for this delicate and undefended lady, but my suspicions were by no means allayed. "Is there no one of your older friends, mademoiselle, who might—" She interrupted me. "I have no friends, milord, only lovers, and they are all bound to the service of De Sevrington. Henri himself would risk all to be with me, but it would mean his ruin and would work no good."

"Is the duchess aware of all this?" I questioned suddenly. The girl's face went crimson under my inspection. "It is she who has vouched to my brother for your good, milord." She whispered the words in charming confusion. This news confounded me, but I urged a last plea. "But when we shall have arrived in France, mademoiselle, how will it fare with me? I am an Englishman, and England wages war with France."

The girl for answer took from her bosom a small square of paper which she handed me without speaking. It was a passport and safe-conduct signed by Napoleon himself, and gave to Henri, Count d'Arras, the privilege of visiting, journeying through and quitting France for purposes of state. "But," I cried in perplexity, "this is for your brother."

She smiled bewitchingly. "There are few persons left in France who know my brother save in name, milord." I gasped for breath, for in a flash I could perceive that a great, a glorious prospect had opened its arms to embrace me. "Not Napoleon?" I demanded sharply. "No, milord." "Not Talleyrand?" "No, milord." "Not Fouché?" "Surely Fouché!" "Not even Fouché, milord, although Henri met him once in disguise when General Pichegru was arrested. But in any case there is no need for alarm, milord, since you are to return to England as well paid and they have engaged to bring you back immediately I am landed—if such be your wish."

It was impossible to misunderstand the note of contempt she threw into these last words, but I laughed out merrily and put the passport in my pocket. "My dear sister, permit me to salute you," I cried, and advanced a step. She threw me a glance which at once disdained and consented. I put a hand on her waist, and she kissed me lightly on the lips. I felt her body shiver against me like an aspen leaf. But of a sudden she broke away. "How dare you?" she muttered. "How dare you?" I asked in a storm of weeping. "God send a patient man to such a woman for the sake of two creatures at least. I own I could have sworn like a mose-trapper I was so exasperated, more especially as it was thus Elfrida found us. She turned upon me the eyes of a lioness at bay."

"Coward!" she cried. "Could you not see the girl is a baby just from her countenance?" "And a coquette to boot," I snarled. "Go!" she commanded sternly. "D'Arras waits you in the card room." I strode off without a backward glance. Black murder in my heart. D'Arras was there and evidently awaiting me, for the moment I entered he cast a look my way and full of question. But I was none too pleased with myself, and therefore at odds with the world. "I eyed him disdainfully. "Will you play, milord?" he asked, quite disconcerted. "It's too hot," I declared unavailingly. "But half the room stared at me in wonder. "Franks says it's too hot to play," said Lord Feversham in a voice so comical that his words were greeted with a roar of laughter. "Quite so, my lord," I retorted pointedly, "but in the garden I fancy it is cool enough for a pleasant walk."

Feversham, who was a full-blooded youngster, would have taken me at the word, but Frank Elyon forced him to keep his chair. "Bosh!" he cried cheerily. "What's the matter with you tonight, Franks; the words were uttered in jest." I saw I was wrong, and I am not one of those heartless creatures who would kill a man out of pure malice, moreover I admired the boy's courage. He could barely handle a sword in those days, though in after years he acquired a pretty knowledge of fence, as the notorious Colonel Elyon learned to his cost. "The fact is I have a headache," I said lightly, "and if needs must I'll try the garden by myself, unless you'd care to join me, my lord," and I turned to D'Arras.

He jumped at the opportunity. "But with pleasure," he cried and took my arm. A buzz of comment followed us, but I fancy neither of us cared. Once in the shrubbery and in a place we made quite certain was free from observation, D'Arras faced me impatiently. "Well, milord," he muttered, "I assume from this meeting that you have consented to oblige us."

"Upon certain conditions, count," I replied coldly. "Name them." "Well, in the first place I require to be satisfied of your good faith. How am I to know that this is not a plot of your friend De Sevrington to get rid of me?"

CHAPTER VI "You have my word of honor, milord," said D'Arras with earnestness. "I bowed. "I am sure you will not misunderstand me, count, when I say that I require even greater assurance, but there are matters of politics between me and the marquis and he appears to be a weighty man in your concerns from even the little your sister has informed me." The count considered deeply for a moment. "True," he said, "from your standpoint your request is not unreasonable. The fact is, my lord, that I have great hopes for my sister. This upstart, Napoleon, whom they call God light, has, in his effort to buy me to his cause, offered me an alliance which I am disposed to accept, more especially as it in no way pledges me in return. He offers to marry my sister to the crown prince of W—" the Empress Josephine. You see the upstart is anxious to surround himself with good blood and the nobles of France stand aloof."

"Can you trust such promises, count?" I inquired contemptuously. "He dare not break them!" cried D'Arras with anger. I shrugged my shoulders incredulously. "And your sister—she is in favor of this alliance?"

The count swore under his breath. "She knows nothing of it. I have kept her purposely in ignorance, but she would gladly welcome any fate which might save her from a marriage with De Sevrington, whom she hates and I—and I." He repeated these words with savage emphasis, but nevertheless my suspicions were alive again. "And the proof of what you say?"

I believe that D'Arras would gladly have knifed me by this, but he forced himself to composure, and drawing from his pocket a paper he pressed the same upon me. "Read this at your leisure, my lord, and return it me tomorrow." I may state here that the paper was a formal letter from the Corsican emperor to the count, proposing a marriage on the terms which D'Arras had revealed to me.

He proceeded forthwith to give me minute instructions about the journey and my care for his sister. His plan was that, after landing at Brest, I should escort the countess to Versailles, using his passport en route, and then, without hazarding an interview with any person other than a lackey of a soldier, hurry back by another route to Boulogne, to which port the sloop would in the meantime proceed and there await my arrival. He promised that he would provide his sister with an ample stock of French money for us both and all other things needful and that I should have $1,000 for my trouble on my return. Finally he approached the last portion of his designs. "Tomorrow," he declared, "I must spend all my time with

De Sevrington in order to allay any doubt which may subsequently arise in his mind take care that he sees my sister. During that time, which will be between breakfast and noon, it will be wise for you to proceed to Gravesend and there await my sister's arrival in the hotel called the Red Anchor.

"She will follow you in the early afternoon and remain in your charge until after midnight, when I hope I shall be with you. At daylight a boat will put off to receive you from the sloop, and then— He shrugged his shoulders expressively. I assented gravely. "I shall in all things do my best," I assured him. "Remember," said I, "I charge you with my sister's honor."

"I disliked the reminder, but replied coldly. "It will be safe in my keeping." And then we separated lest we should be seen entering the house together. I own I felt a certain admiration for the man; it was impossible but to believe that he was a triple traitor—to England, to Napoleon and to the dethroned Bourbon king—and yet he bore himself with a fine dignity, the consequence of his princely blood, perhaps.

I searched for the duchess everywhere to take my leave of her, and found her, after long seeking, alone in the green room. She was pale and cold as snow. I bent before her and murmured softly, "I come to pay farewell, Frida, perhaps forever." "I was not all insincere, for my errand was full of peril."

"It were better so," she answered. "And is that your kindest thought of me?" I asked reproachfully. She raised her eyes to mine and I could have wept for the sadness there. Then of a sudden she threw herself, for the first time, unreservedly upon me. "Swear to me you do not love her?" she cried passionately, gazing at me as if she would read my very soul. "Whom?" I asked quickly. "Clarisse," she muttered.

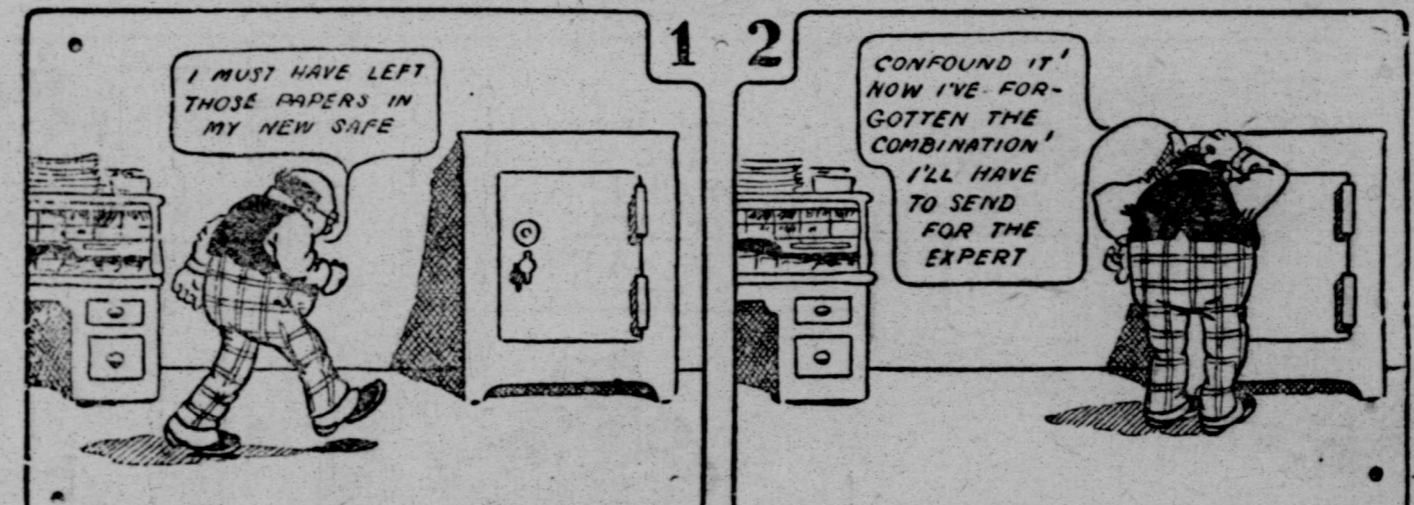

For the life of me I could not answer her. I could not truthfully say yes or no, and to Elfrida I would not lie. She detected my embarrassment and swept from me on the instant, hiding her face in her hands. And yet this woman knew that in the past I had been a rake, a spendthrift of emotions, and she had never chided me for that. I was in a maze to understand her, but her grief cut me to the heart and I approached her full of gentleness.

"Dear friend," I said softly, "bid me love or not to love and I will serve you faithfully. In all things I am yours, and gladly, gratefully; the sweetest and best woman God has been pleased to make."

But she turned to me next instant, her lashes wet with tears and her eyes shining with a light I had seen but once since then in the eyes of any human being—a light which made me feel in the same moment base and noble, and brought a hardness in my throat which bared me of power to speak. "Go, Franks," she muttered brokenly, "and God keep you; only—kiss me once before you go."

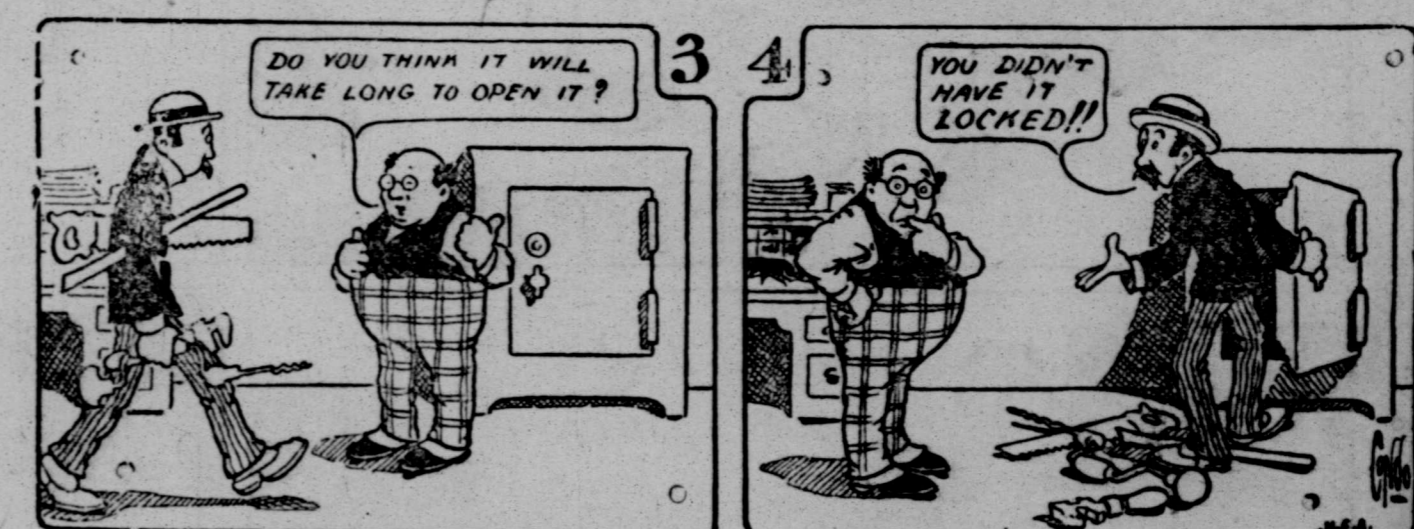

I stooped and our lips met in a long, clinging kiss, a kiss which, my soul be the forfeit if I mistake, failed to spot her saintly purity. God bless such women, say I; they are rare, but where they exist weak men are transformed to better creatures in spite of all the machinations of the devil. Elfrida fell to the couch half swooning, and I, with a mangled sorrow aching all my heart, walked blindly to the door, and hurried thence with set face like one who walks in dreams.

MR. SHORTMIND HAS THE USUAL EXPERIENCE.

As he had just bought the safe, of course the papers were in it.

The worst of forgetting the combination was that even it was locked up in the safe.

The expert came with a wagon load of tools.

Though it was a short job, the expert's bill was long enough.

THINKS PRICES WILL GO LOWER

James L. Harris, general live stock agent of the Wabash, a close observer of live stock conditions, does not take a hopeful view of the future of the beef steer market. He gives it as his opinion that with the possible further advance of strictly drylot steers of 50c to 75c the latter part of June, the great beef steer prices has been created. There may be, he thinks, some small reactions as the result of variations in the supply from day to day, but on the whole he looks to see short-fed and wintered beeves decline still further.

"There are two reasons for this," declares Mr. Harris. "One is that a world of cattle were carried through the winter on roughness, the supply of which was abundant and the quality good. They went on grass in exceptionally good condition, and are now gaining rapidly on a ration of corn and oil cake fed on the grass. They will begin to arrive on the market by the time the run of drylot cattle drops off. They will not make very good beef, but they will furnish plenty of it, and it will be within the reach of people of modest means. Then grass cattle will be early this season. Texas grass cattle have been coming for several weeks and in extra good condition. Territory cattle will begin to move to market earlier than usual. All this means an abundance of cheap beef. Of course there will still be a demand for corned beef, and prime drylot cattle may go a little higher in June, which is usually the case at that season.

"Another reason is that the supply of vegetables this season is enormous and they are, consequently, very cheap. Vegetation has been of rank growth, and lettuce, radishes, onions, peas and all that sort of truck can be bought for a song. Trainloads of it are being shipped out of Texas from sections which a few years ago did not produce enough for home consumption. Then there is an enormous crop of strawberries, and they are unusually cheap. The people are eating vegetables and berries instead of meat, because they are cheaper. This is having, and will continue to have, a depressing effect on the dressed meat market. "And as to hogs, well, I never saw so many hogs in the country in all my life. There are hogs everywhere. Buyers at little crossroads stations are shipping three or four loads a week without apparently making much impression on the supply. There are lots of hogs running after the cattle that are being fed on grass, and they will keep the summer market well supplied. There is no disease among the hogs anywhere, either." Mr. Harris has recently been down through the territories and Texas, and he says he never saw wheat, oats, corn and cotton looking better. He found no evidence of rust or fly in the wheat, and says the stand of corn is good and the plant has a healthy color. And grass everywhere in that section, he says, is abundant.

UNCLE SAM, A HORSE BREEDER

By A. S. Neale. Horse breeding is a new industry for Uncle Sam. The government recently appropriated $25,000 to start the work and the first breeding stock has been purchased. The American wants a carriage horse with all the style and action demanded by the European, but one that can go at a faster gait, and endure longer trips. The English hackney comes near the ideal, but lacks the speed and endurance demanded. Occasionally an American trotter shows the desirable qualities. Not many of this class have been brought out, as the trotter has not been bred for work in heavy leather. Dr. Salmon, of the bureau of animal industry, proposes to use in this breed building work trotters that show the desired conformation and action. The stallion chosen to head the stud is Carmon, a horse formerly owned and shown successfully by Thomas Lawson as Thunder Cloud. He has the ideal carriage horse conformation and action, combined with speed and endurance. Nineteen mares and fillies of similar type have been bought to mate with him, and the entire stock is now located at Fort Collins, Colo., where the breeding headquarters is to be. It will take time and money to establish this new breed, and fix the type so firmly that it will be reproduced with regularity. The first appropriation will only begin it.

Carriage Stallion Carmon and one of the Fillies to be used as Foundation Stock for American Carriage Horse Breed.

SWELL CLOTHES AS WORN BY SWELL. PHILADELPHIANS AT CAPE MAY

SNAPSHOTS TAKEN FOR THE NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION BY MISS EVA DEAN.

Newspaper Enterprise Association.

CAPE MAY, N. J., June 3.—The Sunday clothes of Philadelphians at Cape May make a sight worth seeing.

Snapshots taken for the Newspaper Enterprise Association show some of the elegant costumes worn by swell Philadelphians and give an idea of the surpassing richness and beauty of their new summer togs.

Since it is cool most of the time on the seashore, the suits worn are rather heavier than one would expect in summer. The figure at the right shows a coffee-colored chiffon velvet trimmed with squares made of cream-colored silk braid. The hat is of cream-colored lace straw, to match the trimming of the suit, and a cream-colored silk bodice completes the brown-and-cream color scheme.

The woman at the left wore one of the simplest suits seen. It is a hand-made chiffon cloth suit of champagne color, trimmed with white lace and gilt buttons. The skirt is made with groups of plaits from the waist to the knee, and two-inch bands of the material, stitched with champagne colored silk, are set on around the foot of the skirt. The sleeve of the jacket is unique, the puff is finished above the elbow with vertical rows of shirring and footed with a band of tucked champagne colored silk with a ruche of lace above and below it. White gloves and a champagne colored straw turban, trimmed with bands of champagne velvet ribbon and a white bodice, complete the outfit.

The figure at the left of the center shows a violet voile made over violet silk. The gown is elaborately trimmed with insets of white lace. These insets are outlined at the top, in the form of a scallop, with bands of corded voile. Below the lace the voile is made into two-inch horizontal tuck. Bands of cording are used on the dressy coat, and insets of lace form the yoke effect in the coat and ornament the sleeves. This band of cording consists of five rows of cording and the edges of the band are finished with a very narrow shirred frill. The sleeve is a large puff, shirred in the center of the outside, from shoulder to elbow. The cuff is of lace and corded bands. The woman who wore this suit wore white gloves, a white lingerie bodice, and a violet colored straw turban, trimmed with violets and touches of pink ribbon.

The gown at the right of the center is a gray voile over rose colored silk. The whole skirt is tucked in tiny tucks from the waist to the knee, then it is finished with horizontal rows of wide tucks in two groups of three tucks each and at the head of each group is a ruffle of gray velvet ribbon, just the width of the wide tucks. A panel effect is accomplished with rows of trimming from waist to foot of skirt. The trimming is a peculiar combination of gray, rose and palest green, which, though bought by the yard, looks almost like tiny puffs of materials sewed together in a row. The coat is trimmed with the same trimming. The suit is worn with a cream colored bodice, the colors of the suit are carried out in the hat. The colors were carefully blended and gave a decidedly French effect.

sole with a lace overdress trimmed with black chantilly lace. The model can be copied in India linen, sheer muslin or any of the sheer white or colored materials. The trimming may be along the line here shown without being so elaborately used. Valenciennes lace applied to India linen makes an attractive and serviceable gown.

GOWN FOR A BRIDESMAID

Suitable for the gown of bridesmaid or maid of honor is the simple embroidered mull gown recently worn by Miss Drina De Wolfe, the actress. The gown is embroidered in large polka dots and trimmed with insets and a ruffle of wide valenciennes lace. A transparent yoke of valenciennes lace finishes the bodice. The girde is of ribbon matching the gown. The gown is kept in all white, or girde and collar may be in tints. The shirring at the top of the skirt and about the sleeves should be changed to plaits if the gown is of all washable material.

MARGARET SANGSTER'S DEPARTMENT ON RACE SUICIDE

BY MARGARET E. SANGSTER. (Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

No dispassionate critic can fail to see that a great and praiseworthy change has come over the spirit of American homes in the last score of years. Before our president called general attention to the diminutive size of American families, and sounded his warning note about race suicide, a reaction had set in for the betterment of conditions that were deplorable.

A much more wholesome sentiment obtains among women than formerly as regards the dignity of motherhood. To this the Mothers' Congress and the numerous mothers' clubs throughout the country have contributed, and the oft-repeated opinions of those who believe that child culture is not beneath any woman's genius, have brought an uplifting influence. The expectant mother is not now an object of pity among her acquaintances. Motherhood has become an admired and coveted state even among married women of fashion—and many families are fearlessly going beyond the two or three children who constituted, not long ago, the ideal American group.

Race suicide is therefore not a menace to be dreaded, from the standpoint of the man who loves his country and hopes to see her sons and daughters born in numbers sufficient to keep the balance steady against the swarming crowds of the foreign-born, as a counter pole to the throngs who see the light in homes of deepest squalor and poverty. The comfortable, thrifty, intelligent, hard-working, plain-living and high-thinking American citizen is to have his table surrounded by bright, clever, lovable children, life's crown and life's truest wealth.

When, then, does a threat of danger interpose itself? The race suicide we have reason to fear, how shall we define it?

To me, at least, it seems that our greatest present peril lies in the lowering of our standards of integrity, in our acceptance of commercial success as the only success worth having, and in our mad desire for ease and luxury. We are becoming effeminate. Our boys and girls shrink from labor. One finds the children and grandchildren of toiling men who earned their living by the sweat of their brow and the exercise of their muscle, shirking chores about the house, evading mere work on the plea of athletics or of study, and spending money with a freedom and irresponsibility that bode ill for the future.

The education of rich men's sons too often tends to make them idle and elegant incapables, globe-trotters and spendthrifts. The education of rich men's daughters trains them in social charm and distinction, but too much neglects the homely virtues. Else why do so many of them fall readily into the trap when a foreign adventurer with a high-sounding title seeks to recoup his wasted fortunes with their father's wealth?

Middle-class folk, if anyone will own to being middle-class, are far too snobbish. Real worth is overlooked in favor of pseudo refinement and society veneer. People who should know better are guilty of the vulgarity of worshipping money, and God help us, we are all too anxious to make money. So anxious are we for the things that perish with the using that we strain every nerve, sacrifice health, good temper and self-respect to get on, to secure more money, to add dollar to dollar and acre to acre. "One million," I not long ago heard a woman exclaim: "What is one million? Why, in this period it is nothing but genteel poverty!" This is what we instill by precept and example into the lives of our young people.

So it has naturally followed that snobbishness flourish. Young men in their haste to be rich, break down with nervous exhaustion. The sanitarium receives them. They live to be nervous wrecks.

or improve to walk softly all their days. Herein is a danger that points strongly at race suicide.

Another peril is in the ill-discipline among women of character and reputation in certain indulgences and recreations once doubted or scorned by their class. The card table in the drawing room, the practice among women of playing bridge whist for stakes, small, it is true, but wakening the gamester's passion, the practice of talking wide socially and in public places, as at restaurants and in hotels, both tend toward blighting our finest and noblest instincts. For it is not only vulgar, coarse and garish women of the nouveau riche type against whom these complaints are with reason lodged. Delicately nurtured, beautiful and well-bred women suffer themselves to fight ennu and to drift with the fashionable current, playing cards by daylight, as if the ghosts of their grandmothers were not hovering over them in stern surprise. They sip cordials and pick-me-ups at dainty tables, as if they had never heard of temperance and propriety. This talk is not written to enforce total abstinence; it is intended to remind good women of the cruelty and sin of putting temptation in the way of others and of causing the weak brother to stumble.

Race suicide may as truly be wrought by those who enervate the race, who kill its valor, deplete its virtue and mock its self-denial, as by those who limit the number of its newly-born.

The cry of the pessimist is perhaps unreasonable. But the most obstinate optimist cannot shut his eyes to the fact that we readily condone acts of dishonor that we once condemned, and that we are too tolerant of excuses for wrongdoing if they present themselves in royal purple with a golden clasp. The old note of poverty and simplicity needs to sound its austere signal in our ears if the soul-suicide of the race is to be averted.

In every land and age vast resources, and large material wealth have been stepping stones to corruption. Too much luxury paralyzes endeavor. From time to time somebody's shipwreck startles us; some one in whom the public have had confidence suddenly is discovered to have abused that trust, or in some way to have gone wrong.

We need an overwhelming sentiment against graft, and in favor of purity and honesty. Only in the home can this be nurtured. Only there by those who love their country and fear God can race suicide be averted. Let us learn from the memories of our glorious past, from the Spartan traditions of those who have gone

GOLF Makes Plump Arms

Newspaper Enterprise Association.

Just now fashion says women must wear short sleeves. The women with bony arms squirm a little, but still they chop off the sleeves. For bones no bones woman must be in fashion.

Nothing improves the arm so much as exercise. The beautiful arm is the arm that has muscle. The size, roundness and plumpness of the arm is muscle. A firm muscle improves even the appearance of the skin.

The woman who pounds a typewriter all day usually has a plump, round forearm. The woman who stands all day scrubbing up and down on the washboard, has, as a rule, little need to mourn over a thin, skinny arm. Some beauty doctors have advocated sweeping as a means of developing the arms.

But the woman who wants to improve her arms without working does it by playing golf. Beating carpets would do just as well, but golf sounds more aristocratic.

Few games possess the fascination that golf does. And at it women have a chance to compete on almost even terms with men.

The benefits derived from golf are many. Combined with the long walks over hill and dale, the swinging of the clubs bring strength, health and independence of movement.

Not every woman, however, can afford to spend the time or money necessary to learn the game thoroughly. This being the case, benefit can be obtained by practicing shots in the home or in the back yard.

Buy a driver and a putter. Both may be had at a reasonable price, and, dressed for the occasion, go into the yard or the basement, or into any room where the full swing of the driver will not smash glass or spot wall paper.

Standing with the feet well separated, to give firm footing, grasp the handle of the driver firmly, swinging the head of the club over the right shoulder. Mark a place on the ground or carpet where an imaginary ball rests, with a free arm movement as if to strike the ball, turning on the toe of the right foot as the club swings upward.

Let the body go with the swing of the arms, easily and steadily. Practicing this, say twenty times every morning, will result in a better carriage, while the effect on developing arms and neck are wonderful.

A splendid exercise for the arms and back is the use of the putter. The short, stiff-arm strokes, will round out arms in a remarkable manner.

A DAINTY TUCKER

The dainty little tuckers declare a woman carefully and becomingly dressed. Ellis Jeffreys has a stare gown of lace elaborately trimmed with gold applique, but the distinctive feature of the low cut bodice is the dainty lace tucker, run with narrow velvet ribbons and drawn close to her beautiful neck. The lace softens and enhances the beauty of the neck and shoulders. The gown is worn with two strands of beads. One of gold fits closely about the throat. The other is a long chain of pearls and gold links for a fan, smelling salts bottle or lorgnette.

Good Stories Well Told

LEE AND GRANT

An incident worth remembering occurred at the funeral of General Lee, just after the services were concluded at the church. Lieutenant U. S. Grant, as adjutant of the parade, was stationed before the church door, and, from his horse, directed the honorary pallbearers to their places in the double line through which the casket was to be borne to the caisson. Among this escort of civilians were several old Confederate veterans wearing the uniform in which the dead general won his fame as a soldier. These officers wore on their collars the insignia that in the Confederate service indicated the rank of captain. Immediately, in accordance with the military training which requires a junior officer to dismount before addressing his superior, the young lieutenant sprang from his horse, and, on foot, assigned Lee's old comrades to position. The action possessed no military value. It was simply an inherited respect for the army of gray shadows. But those who remembered the magnanimity of the boy's grandfather at Appomattox must have been touched by this second coming together of a Grant and a Lee.

BETTER THAN WHISKY

"During the war of the rebellion," said the old veteran, "certain of us boys used to take a big drink of whisky whenever there was any likelihood of a battle, and most of them thought it helped them to fight.

"Something was found better than whisky, however. When Grant went for Lee in the Wilderness all of us got soaking wet from the downpour of rain, and all of us had to pass the night in our wet clothes. As a consequence about forty men of my company got up next morning with toothache.

"There was no time to do anything before we rushed onto the firing line, and forty madder men you never saw. Their aching teeth made them feel like killing somebody, and they improved the chance.

"It was said of us that we fought harder that day than ever before or after, and that if we had only kept it up every man would have received a vote of thanks from congress."

DOUBTED THE DOLLAR

Hannibal Hamlin, for many years a United States senator from Maine, and vice president during the civil war, was wont to tell the following story on himself:

"An Englishman by the name of Pearson, while passing along the main street in Bangor, stepped in a hole in the sidewalk, and falling, broke his leg. He brought suit against the city for $1,000, and engaged Hamlin as counsel.

"Hamlin won his case, but the city appealed to the supreme court. Here, also, the decision was for Hamlin's client.

"After settling up the claim, Hamlin sent for his client and handed him $1,000.

"What's this?" asked the Englishman. "That's your damages, after taking out my fee, the cost of appeal and several other expenses," said Hamlin.

"The Englishman looked at the dollar, and then at Hamlin. 'What's the matter with this,' he said, 'is it bad?'"

HINTS FOR A JUNE WEDDING

The bride must acknowledge her wedding gifts by letter as fast as they are received and must mention the name of the particular gift.

At the most informal wedding, custom requires the bride not to mingle with the guests until after the ceremony. She should not appear until the moment has arrived for the ceremony.

The thoughtful bridegroom will not impose his presence upon the bride during the last day of single blessedness until a half hour before the time set for the ceremony.

The maid of honor and the maids should be careful to do any personal favor for the bride and her mother that lies in their power.

During the ceremony the maid of honor holds the bride's gloves and bouquet.

The best man looks to the comfort of the bridegroom. He holds the ring, presents the fee to the clergyman and looks after the groom's hat and gloves.

It is the duty of the guests to be on time for the wedding, to offer congratulations and best wishes after the ceremony.

Money and not to leave the house without speaking to the bride's parents, and they should call upon the bride's mother within two weeks after the wedding.

At home cards are often sent out when no invitations have been issued. The at home cards should be engraved and should be mailed as soon as possible after the vows have been taken.

Gifts should arrive, if possible, two days before the wedding. Any belated gifts must be acknowledged immediately upon the bride's return from her wedding journey.

THE SILENT HONEYMOON A bride in Korea must be entirely silent on her marriage day. If she utters a word, or even make a sign, she becomes at once an object of ridicule.

Her silence must be absolute, even in her own room, though her husband may tempt her to break it by coaxing, or by taunts and reproaches, for she knows that all the women servants are lurking about and listening and even the utterance of a

A FACT ABOUT THE "BLUES"

What is known as the "Blues" is seldom occasioned by actual existing external conditions, but in the great majority of cases by a disordered LIVER.

THIS IS A FACT which may be demonstrated by trying a course of

Tutt's Pills

They control and regulate the LIVER. They bring hope and buoyancy to the mind. They bring health and elasticity to the body.

FURIOUS WRITING

"For seven years," writing George W. Hoffman, of Harper, Wash., "I had a bitter battle with chronic stomach and liver trouble, but at last I won, and cured my diseases by the use of Electric Bitters. I unhesitatingly recommend them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine, to have cured such a bad case as mine." Sold by W. J.
