Nicholas, Unable to Handle the Empire Yields, and Romanoff Dynasty Comes to an End

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 30.—Tonight the autocracy of Romanoffs and the old order of things will cease to exist in Russia.

Emperor Nicholas has surrendered and Count Witte comes into power as minister president with an imperial mandate which will enable him to convert the farcical national assembly into a real legislative body, elected by greatly extended suffrage and confer on the people fundamental civil liberties including free speech and the rights of the habeas corpus.

M. WITTE, WHO BECOMES NEW HEAD OF RUSSIAN EMPIRE

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 30, 12:55 p. m.—The city continues outwardly calm, but there is most intense excitement beneath the surface.

The committee believe the longer an open collision which will force a show of hands can be averted the better are the chances.

During last night fighting occurred at the Polytechnic school, where a number of students are held as prisoners.

The city is filled with false and sensational reports, set afoot by the revolutionists.

In many places students and strikers are fighting the "Black Hundreds," as the lards of roughs are termed.

On account of the food shortage, even the first-class restaurants have increased prices.

The infantry, of whose loyalty the authorities are doubtful, keep in the barracks, and the Cossacks and gendarmes, who show no disinclination to shoot down people on sight, are left to deal with the crowds.

At one of the barricaded corners yesterday the students, on the appearance of the Cossacks, mounted the barricades and appealed to them to join the people.

Similar scenes are occurring everywhere. Crowds are fleeing before the charging Cossacks, invading private houses and hiding in garrets and on the roofs.

WITTE AND TREPPOFF AT OUTS

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 30.—Differences have developed between Count Witte and General Treppoff, and while the precious moments pass, the emperor, surrounded by the imperial family, remains shut up at Peterhof, seemingly hesitating as to what course to pursue.

Grave doubts are expressed as to whether even the imperial guard can now be relied upon. Discontent is rife.

A meeting of the municipal council was held yesterday at which a deputation of thirty members of the strikers' committee appeared.

SWEETHEART ARRESTED

Rings Found in Second Satchel Lead to Identification by Girl's Mother

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 30.—That the dismembered body found in a suit case at Winthrop, on Sept. 21, is that of Susan Geary of Cambridge is the belief of the girl's family and friends and of the Boston police department.

Instead, however, a message was received by the company's manager from "P. A. Smith, M. D., Boston," which stated that Miss Durrell was suffering from stomach trouble and would be unable to report for several days.

Miss Geary dropped out of sight after that, and so far as the police are concerned, they have been unable to find anyone who either saw or communicated with the girl.

As soon as Mrs. Geary's suspicions were confirmed by the description of the rings, a message was sent to Mr. Nathan at Pittsburg, asking him to come to Boston and bring the girl from the Hotel Henry.

NATHAN IS ARRESTED

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 30.—After a long and searching examination at police headquarters last night, after 1 o'clock this morning Morris Nathan, secretary to the manager of the Shepherd King Company, was held on a charge of murdering his sweetheart.

Report of Methodist Women's Foreign Missionary Society Read at Meeting at New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—A membership of 217,000, receipts amounting to nearly $200,000, 275 missionaries spreading the gospel in India, Malaysia, the Philippines, China, Korea, Japan, Mexico, South America, Bulgaria, Italy, Germany, Norway, Switzerland and Africa and twenty-two new missionaries sent into the field—these were among the impressive facts printed to the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church at the society's anniversary meeting last night.

The year just passed had been one of great progress and more encouraging results, as shown in this, the thirty-sixth annual report, which gave an interesting resume of the work done, embracing the following statistics:

The auxiliary societies number 5,996, with 169,327 members, young people's organizations, 1,578, with 43,959 members; King's Herald societies, 953, with 21,679 members; Little Light Bearers, 9,678. There are 106 conference secretaries and 222 district secretaries, besides officers and superintendents for every department of the work.

Dr. Heber Jones, superintendent of the Korea Methodist Episcopal mission, spoke of "The Triumphs of Christian Woman in Heavly Lands." He said in part:

"Our women missionaries, fearless and unflinching in their devotion to the cause of the heathen's thoughts in relation to women. They have inspired with new ideals the womanhood of Asia by lifting their voices against foot-binding and polygamy and they have given a new impulse to education. No heathen nation, unenlightened by Christianity, ever started a school for girls. Paganism educates its boys; Christianity educates its girls and its boys."

SUSPICION AROUSED BY RICH WOMAN'S DEATH

Body of Mrs. Margareta Todd Found in Railroad Cut Near Philadelphia

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—It was learned yesterday that wealthy Mrs. Margareta Todd, who was found dead Friday night in a railroad cut in a suburb of Philadelphia, had arrived in that city and had left there, presumably for New York, when she met death.

Coroner Scholer said last night that he considered the circumstances of Mrs. Todd's death suspicious, but that he had no jurisdiction, as she died in another city. He would, however, he said, prevent the funeral from taking place and order an investigation if requested to do so by the Philadelphia coroner or police.

The body of Mrs. Todd will be buried today, and the police will be on hand to prevent a clash between the factions warring for control of her big estate.

In the dead woman's apartments in the Von Hoffman, at 29 West Twenty-sixth street, yesterday, Mrs. George Howe, the step-daughter, passed the day behind barricaded doors and guarded by two private detectives. Down stairs in the office of the hotel, lawyer Ingersoll Lockwood, announcing himself as the dead woman's trustee under an old will, held possession, with two other private detectives.

The identity of the mysterious woman who drove with Mrs. Todd to the train in Jersey City and then disappeared, has not been discovered.

Mrs. Todd's estate is estimated to be worth from $200,000 to $1,000,000. She was nearly eighty years of age and had been successful in real estate transactions for years. She was three times married, her last husband being Louis L. Todd, former owner of the Vendome and Marlborough hotels.

Her only children are Mrs. Frank Toussay, widow of a well known publisher, and Mrs. George Howe, an adopted daughter. Mrs. Toussay is now in Vienna and has been called to come home at once.

Trouble over Mrs. Todd's will and an alleged effort to have her execute a new one on the night before her strange death have added to the mystery surrounding the whole affair.

NINE ESCAPE IN JAIL DELIVERY

Drop Forty Feet From Hole in Wall

SAW WAY TO FREEDOM

Joe Wolf and Walter McMillan, Under Long-Term Sentences, in the Party

Nine prisoners in the county jail escaped early this morning by sawing their way out of steel cells, cutting through the brick walls of the jail building and then descending to the ground forty feet below by means of a rope made from a dozen jail blankets.

County Jailor O. B. Deason furnishes the following list as the prisoners who escaped, their ages and the charges upon which they were held:

Joe Wolf, 25 years, convicted of robbery with the use of firearms, forty years' sentence; jailed Jan. 19, last.

Walter E. McMillan, 29 years, convicted of robbery with the use of firearms, a companion case with Wolf, thirty years' sentence; jailed Jan. 19, last.

G. W. Callahan, 43 years, swindling, ten years.

W. M. Oxley, 24 years, diamond robbery, six years' sentence.

John Butler, 25 years, diamond robbery, six years' sentence; companion case with Oxley.

Don Murray, county court case.

Henry Phillips, county court case.

Will Carey, county court case. (Returned and gave himself up to the officers.)

A fourth county court prisoner, whose name the county jailer does not know, carefully planned.

From the best information that Jailer Deason is able to get the delivery took place about 4 o'clock this morning while the jailer and other prisoners were soundly sleeping.

The manner in which the delivery was made and the plans carried out indicate, according to Jailer Deason, that the whole work was done by professional jail-breakers.

Plan of Escape

The men who escaped were locked in cell No. 4, on the third floor, Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock by Jailer Deason. It is not known definitely when the men began the last details for the escape, but it is thought they took up the work about midnight.

A patch thirteen inches square on the east side of the lower part of the cell wall was cut out by the use of a three-quarter diamond drill and a diamond saw. The drill had been attached to a piece of mop handle. These implements are missing.

From the floor of the cell was found an old corkscrew that had been converted into a saw. This, it is thought, was used in sawing through the brick wall, after which the brick were forced out of their position.

The hole in the wall was made on the east side of the building on the run-around, or general jail room, about ten feet below the cell from which the men escaped. Hanging on the outer side of the jail was a rope made of at least a dozen blankets. Down this the prisoners slipped to liberty.

Two of the men who escaped were locked in the cell directly beneath the one on the upper floor from which they escaped. They cut their way through the steel floor and passed out along with those in the upper cell. Wolf and McMillan were in the upper cell.

Allan Given

Within fifteen minutes after the delivery occurred the county jail officials knew of the escape. Young Carey went directly to his home and told his father of the escape. The father of Carey at once notified the officials and Jailer Deason spread the alarm. Deputy Sheriff's at once set out on the trail of the escaped prisoners, the first sight of the home of Joe Wolf, but no information of Wolf or any of the others was learned.

Other Cities Notified

Dispatches were at once sent to Weatherford, Dallas and other places, but up to noon no tidings of the escaped prisoners had been received in this city.

Young Carey objected to escaping with the other prisoners in the run-around. He forced him to go out with them for fear he would give the officials warning and frustrate their escape.

Two small files were found this morning on the floor of the jail and had evidently been used by the men in cutting the prisoners' way out of the steel cage. Fifteen small bolts had been drilled out of the patch of steel through which the men passed on their first exit from the home of Joe Wolf, but no information of Wolf or any of the others was learned.

Investigation to ascertain the manner in which the tools were secured is now under way.

HILLSBORO, Texas, Oct. 30.—The revival meeting conducted by Rev. M. C. Johnson of Corsicana which has been in progress at the Cumberland Presbyterian church in this city for the past week, has been well attended and much interest is manifested in same.

Five different services were held at the church yesterday, and it was announced that the meeting would continue throughout next week and probably longer.

The inspiration of the meeting is "The Glory Song," which has full sway at these services, and which is so popular in England and the colonies, being sung by Messrs. Torrey and Alexander in their great revival meetings now being held in the British Isles.

REAR ADMIRAL AND SON ARE ATTACKED

LONDON, Oct. 30.—A dispatch to the Evening Standard from Shanghai says that Rear Admiral Train, commander in chief of the American Asiatic Squadron, and his son, Lieutenant Train, have been the victims of a savage attack by Chinese outside Nanking.

The American officers were pleasantly surprised when the admiral accidentally shot a Chinese woman, slightly injuring her. Hundreds of villagers thereupon surrounded the officers, took away their guns, knocked the admiral down in the mud and held Lieutenant Train as a hostage.

Forty American marines landed and were attacked by the mob of Chinamen, who tried to pitchfork the officers. The marines were obliged to fire twice. The Chinese officials refused to restore the officers' guns and supported the villagers.

Nanking has been active in the movement for boycotting American goods and is a central point in the activity on the part of Japanese students.

Other Escapes

There have been several notable escapes from the county jail in former times. On Jan. 25, 1891, L. H. Dillard, jailer, was seized by inmates. A struggle ensued, during which he was badly pummeled. He was finally overpowered, and the following prisoners escaped: George Pierce, George Maxwell, Charles Bruno, Dick Paul, George Harvey, Ben Kite, Tom Smith and Tom Spillman. Some of them had been convicted and others were yet to be tried. All of them were recaptured, Harvey at Wopoka, Kan., the others in Fort Worth and near here.

Another delivery occurred Feb. 10, 1905. The men who escaped were Walter Howard and C. J. Oche. The latter lived at Houston. Both were returned to jail.

Local Railroad Men Declare Electricity Will Open New Fast Time Era

"Has the limit of speed on railroads been reached?" was the question put to a group of railroad men today by a Telegram representative, in view of the statement made recently by President Newman of the New York Central to the effect that he thought modern trains ran too fast.

The reply by a well known local general passenger agent was that it had not been reached, and would not be until the electric locomotive had been developed to its highest point of efficiency and was in general use. Electricity will be the motive power of the railroads of the future, the others declared almost unanimously. Experiments, they declare, are being made in this country and abroad to develop and perfect the electric engine.

The New York Central has been making tests with an electric engine for some time on a six-mile line outside of Schenectady. This engine, with a train of flat cars loaded with sandbags to represent the weight of passengers, has attained a speed of eighty-five miles an hour.

That it can go faster is not doubted. When the demand comes for faster trains than are now run, the big railroad will be able to supply that demand, in the general impression of the local railroad men who were discussing the question.

HEALTH RULE CHANGED

Cuspidor at Every Seat No Longer Required on Cars

A great relief has been given by the enforcement of the sanitary requirements provided for by an act of the Texas legislature, having reference to cuspidors in coaches. The change has to do with this feature of the law and hereafter the railroads will not be required to provide any specific number of them, as is now the case, nor will they be made to place in them a solution of formaldehyde or any other disinfectant.

Vice President Fay of the Southern Pacific says:

"The trouble with the cuspidor requirements, or at least one of the objections, was that the responsibility was all on the part of the railroads. They were required to do all and the public nothing. Passengers, for instance, might expectorate wherever they chose, and there were many who did not make an effort to do so. The responsibility was provided. The rules required that we have a cuspidor at every seat. This was frequently very objectionable to ladies and an obstruction to them. It often times interfered with the neatness of the car, and splashed out and soiled their dresses."

The modification does away with the requirement that disinfectants be used in the cuspidors, and that one be placed in each compartment. They will be kept in and a passenger in any seat where one is not provided may procure it by notifying the porter or other train servant.

SERVICE RESUMED

Passenger service over the Missouri Pacific from Louisiana was restored Sunday, the restrictions having been lifted some days ago, enabling the re-establishment of the former service. All the old trains are being put back into service and by the middle of the present week the system will have all trains working smoothly.

MORE HONORS FOR LOVETT

It is learned here today that Robert S. Lovett, whose home is virtually at Houston and who is well known in Texas railroad circles, and is at present president of the Houston and Texas Central, has had additional honors thrust upon him. He has just been made president of the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio road, a Southern Pacific property. Mr. Lovett is general counsel for President E. H. Harriman of the Southern Pacific system.

QUINCY LOOKING WEST

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy has evidently joined the companies which are now seeking Pacific coast outlet, according to a dispatch from Chicago saying the Guernsey branch is to be extended along the valley of the Platte and Sweetwater rivers, paralleling the Union Pacific for a distance of 412 miles. Eastern interests insist that it is the purpose of the Burlington to extend to Salt Lake City, and that it is likely that the entry there will be made about the time that the Western Pacific reaches the coast. This would indicate a coming alliance between the Hill and the Gould forces. This opinion seems to be borne out by the recent retirement of E. H. Harriman from the Rio Grande Western, and the retirement of Gould from the Union Pacific board.

It appears that J. J. Hill and E. H. Harriman are going to carry their rivalry to the point of invading each other's territory to the limit. Hill's line will enter Portland. The Burlington will strike at the main line of the Union Pacific, the Great Northern will re-enforce the Northern Pacific at Portland, and all three Hill lines build local lines into traffic centers properly tributary to their main lines in order to hold the country safe against invasion.

LOUIS JAMES

The announcement that Louis James is to be here at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, Nov. 4, "Insignia" at matinee and "Virginius" at night, is the most welcome, for the reason that the name of Louis James has been associated with the most pronounced successes ever achieved upon the American stage, and to present him in a big revival of his most famous character, "Virginius," is indeed a happy consummation.

Mr. James has been a welcome visitor here upon many occasions, for aside from his individual artistic effort, he is the only American star presenting the classic drama, who was born in America, is supported by an absolutely all American company, and is exploited by American management.

We are assured that not since the days of John McCullough has there been such a complete organization perfected, such a sumptuous revival made, or such a faultless delineation portrayed as this revival of "Virginius" by Mr. James.

NOTES AND PERSONALS

Work of construction has been resumed on the new Cotton Belt-International passenger station that is being built at Waco. Other lines interesting Waco will probably use the depot and its terminals.

General Passenger Agent Anderson of the Southern Pacific has been notified that the new motor car for service between Houston and Galveston, which has been tested and will be shipped at once. It is expected that the car will be in operation early next week.

That the Standard Oil Company controls much of the business of the cotton, Topeka and Santa Fe was developed at a meeting held a few days ago at Topeka by the stockholders. It was shown that the Standard owns one-fourth of the stock—$7,500,000. The amount of common and preferred stock of the company is $116,000,000.

It is learned here that the Santa Fe company is preparing to spend $100,000 during the next year on company reading rooms. It costs the Santa Fe $17,000 each year to maintain these reading rooms, which are practically free clubs for the entertainment of the employees. The company is going to build a new reading room at the Needles, to cost $50,000. It will contain a swimming pool and thirty-five sleeping rooms, similar to the one being maintained by the Y. M. C. A. at Childress, Texas, by the Denver Road.

AMUSEMENTS

"WAY DOWN EAST"

The interest felt during a theatrical entertainment generally has its source in the element of suspense in the drama performed, but the charm of "Way Down East," which comes to Greenwall's opera house today and tomorrow matinee and night, is largely due to quite an opposite quality. The characters in the play produced by William A. Brady are so thoroughly natural and the episodes in which they take part are so much like those in which similar people would be involved in real life, that most of the events of the piece may be said to be expected.

The story of Anna Moore, a gentle, clingingly affectionate and much wronged young woman in a household which has among its members so sturdy a lad as David Bartlett, almost invariably would result in mutual love. This being granted and the minutes to be worked by the good-looking Madeline, it is an easy step to an understanding of what follows. Squire Bartlett, the rigid old man, whose authority has never been questioned in his home, and whose interpretation of the "law" is a matter of no liberality, might be counted upon for the very administration of what he believes to be justice, which drives Anna into the thick of the drama.

The girl thus driven into a corner, sees what under the circumstances is the most natural thing in the world—turns on her accusers and with a rush of the pent-up emotions of years, proclaims the honored guest at her family board as her betrayer. It takes no stretch of the imagination after this to find the old squire, under whose icy exterior beats a warm heart, waiting and watching through the early hours of the night for the return of the girl and the son who has followed her.

The happy denouement of the play is the more pleasing to auditors because it comes as the logical culmination to an entirely natural sequence of events.

JEFFERSONS IN "THE RIVALS"

In speaking of William W. Jefferson's performance in "The Rivals" at Greenwall's, the Tribune, which is about the most conservative journal of that metropolis, said:

"It remains to speak of William W. Jefferson's performance in the play. His remarkable performance. The late Joseph Jefferson, it is said, has claimed that William once played the part and the audience never knew that it was not his father. This is a rash statement, but these were times long since when it almost seemed that it may be true. In face, form, gesture and occasionally voice, William Jefferson was entirely his father, and he deserves enormous credit for so early, at his age, into his father's shoes."

Joseph Jefferson will play Sir Luchan O'Trigger, the same character he has always played while touring with his father in "The Rivals." This organization, which is the same one with a few minor exceptions that was in support of the late Joseph Jefferson, should prove the best that ever appeared upon the local stage.

LOUIS JAMES

The announcement that Louis James is to be here at Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, Nov. 4, "Insignia" at matinee and "Virginius" at night, is the most welcome, for the reason that the name of Louis James has been associated with the most pronounced successes ever achieved upon the American stage, and to present him in a big revival of his most famous character, "Virginius," is indeed a happy consummation.

Mr. James has been a welcome visitor here upon many occasions, for aside from his individual artistic effort, he is the only American star presenting the classic drama, who was born in America, is supported by an absolutely all American company, and is exploited by American management.

We are assured that not since the days of John McCullough has there been such a complete organization perfected, such a sumptuous revival made, or such a faultless delineation portrayed as this revival of "Virginius" by Mr. James.

LOCUST TREE POISON

Three Children Die at Vermont Orphan Asylum

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 29.—Two more girls at St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum here became ill yesterday from the effects of the poisoning which caused the death of three children and the illness of seven others on Friday. Yesterday's victims were seized with violent convulsions.

The physicians think that the children's illness was due to eating the bark and leaves of locust trees, which are plentiful in the asylum yard.

Oklahoma Cities Having Construction Boom—Big Demand for Laborers

Oklahoma, as a whole, is settling up rapidly and is bound to be a good place to locate, he declares.

M. W. Barnes, a leading business man of Manitou, O. T., a small town twelve miles from Snyder, the spot made famous by becoming the hunting grounds of President Roosevelt and also called into prominence by a visitation of a cyclone that caused the death of more than 100 people, was in Fort Worth Sunday looking for cotton pickers who are wanted to save the immense crop that has been grown in Comanche county.

Mr. Barnes says that hundreds of pickers can find employment in his part of the territory for at least one month yet. The wages paid are 75 cents for the first picking and $1 for the second. He says that within the past few weeks no less than a dozen carloads of negroes have arrived at Snyder to pick cotton and as many more are needed at once. After looking around Fort Worth Mr. Barnes went over to Dallas to secure more men.

He says that there is also quite a demand for mechanics at Manitou. There is a building boom under way and carpenters are at a premium. The wages being paid are from $3.00 to $4 per day, and good mechanics are hard to get even at these figures.

As Snyder the first is a building boom and employment is furnished all comers. This is the result of rebuilding after the destruction done by the cyclone. At Manitou the Frisco railroad is putting up a new depot which has taken all the surplus carpenters.

Manitou is practically new town. Most of the business lines are represented, but Mr. Barnes says that there is a demand for clothing stores and a lumber yard.

The country adjacent to the place is settling up rapidly and will soon be densely populated. Between Nov. 10 and 15 there will be a public sale of 600 lots in Manitou, and he says that this event will bring hundreds of new people to the place.

Oklahoma, as a whole, is settling up rapidly and is bound to be a good place to locate, he declares.

As Told in the Tale of Miss Comfort Fairhaven is Very Ably Proved

"Fine weather for the hayin'," said Eliakim Fairhaven. To his material nature, God's sunshine and the grand glitter of earth and sky were but the instruments to fill his pockets with sordid gain—mere accessories to "a good crop."

Miss Comfort Fairhaven sat beside him knitting.

"Yes," said she. "Who's that a-comin' up the path?"

"One of the new hands, I calculate," said Eliakim, screwing up his eyes. "I didn't agree to give him his supper and board into the bargain a night afore the job begins—and I'm blessed if there ain't a little gal along with him!"

"Tain't no hayin' hand," said Miss Comfort, rising and going down the steps to meet a slender child of 9 years, who was leading a pale, bowed-down man, who walked with difficulty, leaning on a crutch.

"Heart alive, child!" said Miss Comfort, whose kindly nature involuntarily sympathized with all who were suffering or in distress; "what ails you? and what do you want here?"

"Please, ma'am," began the child, eagerly, "if you could give us a night's lodging—papa is so sick and tired, and—"

"No, I can't," abruptly broke in Eliakim Fairhaven. "This ain't no almshouse, nor yet a charity place."

Slowly and wearily the two poor travelers turned and plodded their way down the broad, dusty road—the languid footsteps of the invalid scarce keeping up with the tripping pace of the child.

They had walked what seemed to Esther Bell a weary way, when there was a rustle among the wild rose bushes that overhung the stone wall at their side and a voice called hurriedly to them to "stop."

"It's me," said Miss Comfort Fairhaven.

"Eliakim—that's my brother—he's gone over to the class meetin' at Squire Dundas's, and I cut down through the lots to overtake you. I tell you I can't somehow get your father's face out of my mind. You're sick, ain't you, mister?"

"I shall soon be quite well," he answered calmly—and Comfort Fairhaven's more experienced eye detected the hidden meaning which the little girl never once suspected.

"Where you going?" said kind Miss Comfort.

"We are going to my grandpapa," said little Essie. "Grandpapa was vexed with my mamma for marrying my papa and going to England, but papa thinks he'll take care of me now! But I won't stay with him unless papa stays, too!"

"I suppose you want to get to Lous-dade?" said Miss Comfort.

The man nodded.

"Eleven good miles yet," said Miss Comfort; "but I'll tell you what—I'll make Joab get out the wagon, and with a good horse and robe over the seats, you'll ride easy enough. They'll be back after Eliakim gets through shoutin' and prayin'—I hain't got no patience with that kind of religion—and while you're waitin' I'll bring down a smack o' bread and meat and a bottle of my currant wine. COMBINATION IS RULE OF THE DAY

Modern Trend of Commercial Enterprise Has Reached Even to Smallest Things

This is the age of combination. Gradually in all lines of trade the individual dealer has been driven by competition to form a coalition or work at a secured income from some other dealer who has combined or gone into business with increased facilities. Such combinations, in many instances resulting in better service to the public, through which the larger enterprises thrived, took in first dealers in businesses requiring large capital. Experience that improved service could be given and greater returns made in this way gradually spread along other lines until one by one various businesses were gathered into the net.

Finally the bootblack, who one time was everywhere doling teams, impurities while his customer balanced on one foot with the other on a little box, joined the tide. Stands with comfortable chairs established in public thoroughfares of the city would probably fail to reveal a single representative of the race, one time legion.

With the bootblack has gone the old time newsboy, for the same individual in those days combined the two trades to eke a livelihood. The former has been swallowed up by the larger institutions, while the other has met a still more complete obliteration, being superseded by the modern newsboy of good family and home, first selling papers, then having a route and later branching into a successful man of the day.

A modern Rip Van Winkle would miss the old bootblack and newsboy but soon feel compensated.

Order of Railway Conductors Meets E. R. Sheppard

E. R. Sheppard, grand conductor of the Order of Railway Conductors, was in Fort Worth Sunday and addressed the local division of the order at the Knights of Pythias temple in the morning. His headquarters are at Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Sheppard stated that the organization is in a prosperous state, there being 454 divisions with 36,000 members. The order now has $300,000 as a reserve fund for insurance purposes and has accumulated about $100,000 for the $15 a year per $1,000 insurance charged by the order.

The local division of the Order of Railway Conductors is also in a very prosperous state and has a membership of 226, which is far above the average membership of a division.

Mr. Sheppard left Sunday night for Mexico.

DIRECTORS PLAN Y. M. C. A. CANVASS

Officers and New Members of Board Elected at Meeting Sunday

Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association held a special meeting Sunday in the rooms of the Farmers and Merchants National bank and held the annual election of officers. Nearly the entire directory was present at the meeting.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, R. P. Smith; vice president, F. W. Axtell; treasurer, Noah Harding; recording secretary, W. R. Paddock; and new members of the board of directors were elected as follows: George Reynolds and J. C. Buchanan. A. E. Went was also elected to fill the unexpired term of A. M. Young, who has moved from the city.

After the election of officers the board discussed the plans of the new building and decided that three soliciting committees should be appointed to work this week in securing funds for the four-story building that is in course of construction. Fifteen thousand dollars is still needed to finish the building. These committees are to start an active campaign immediately, and it is hoped that a large sum can be raised this week. They will report at the adjourned meeting of the board, which is called for the Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The canvassing has not been going on since spring, when enough was raised to justify a start.

The committees are as follows: Committee No. 1—W. E. Connell, chairman; F. W. Axtell, W. C. Stripling, Noah Harding, George Reynolds, D. C. Campbell.

Committee No. 2—R. P. Smith, chairman; J. G. Rail, B. O. Smith, W. B.

THE SHEEP BUSINESS

The shepherds of the country have been in clover for the past three years in comparison with what the cattlemen have had to endure. They have received good prices for their mutton and wool has sold higher than for many years. So anxious are the wool buyers in the premises that they have flocked out to the range country and contracted all the clips possible in advance. Well posted wool men think the prevailing era of high prices will continue for some time, and the result can but be a very material revival in the sheep industry throughout the west.

Texas was at one time a great sheep country. All over the western ranges there were thousands of sheep and wool sales semi-annually were big events. Gradually the settlement of the country wiped the sheep industry entirely off the map in many western counties and New Mexico became the Mecca to which the sheepmen drifted. During the past two years there has been another change in the situation, however, and the sheep business is taking on new life. Texas cattlemen are finding that sheep may be run with profit on their ranges, and many of them have turned to sheep, some on a small scale, while others have invested in thousands. Viewing the matter from an unprejudiced standpoint there seems no reason why more cattlemen should not invest in sheep. In fact, the time seems propitious for a general awakening of the sheep industry. There is money in the sheep business, even on a small scale.

There has been a great reduction in the number of sheep over almost the entire world. That is the reason why wool manufacturers and importers are even now in the field contracting for the clip of 1926. In the last four years the supply of sheep in the United States has fallen from 64,000,000 to something like 47,000,000, a reduction of nearly 25 per cent. An even greater reduction has taken place in Australia as a result of drought. The sheep stock of European countries has likewise declined but not in the same proportion. Therefore the man who goes into the sheep business has reasonable assurance of high prices for some time to come.

The question may arise: Shall I go into feeding or growing sheep? It will not do for the cattle feeder to assume that because he knows how to fatten cattle he is therefore an expert in fattening sheep. The business of fattening sheep, like the business of fattening cattle, must be learned by feeding them. The most careful man will pay considerable attention, and hence it is entirely unwise for a man without experience to undertake it in a large way. The better way is to buy, if possible, some twenty-five ewes and a good buck of one of the mutton breeds, and get his education in this line at a minimum of expense. It would be difficult for him to lose anything if he knows how to take care of them, and he should be able at the end of the year to sell enough wool and lambs to give him back his money for his first investment, and particularly so if he has blue grass or other short pasture, and have his original flock intact.

It will not do for him to assume that pasture which is ideal for cattle will be ideal for sheep. The fact is that while cattle usually do well on such big grass as usually grows in the corn and grass states, sheep do not do well on that grass. In fact, the man who pastures his sheep on big grass a year like this will be very likely to get quite sick of the sheep business on account of the stomach worm.

Any man who thinks of going into sheep needs to heed the motto "change of pasture is good for sheep." The man who forgets this will in all probability have trouble and be disgusted with the business. Why is change of pasture good for sheep? The great enemy of the sheep is not the wolf or the dog, nor even flea trade, but internal parasites—tape worm, the worm which causes the nodular disease, but worst of all the round stomach worm. This last may be found in every flock of sheep, and particularly in the mutton breeds. If sheep are pastured more than one year on any one pasture, this pasture is likely to become infested; and if he uses this as sheep pasture from year to year it is quite certain that in years when grass has a rank growth on account of an unusual amount of moisture, that he will lose a large per cent of his lambs from this disease, and will spend a good deal of his time dosing them with gasoline and sweet milk or creosote and sweet milk, and will sometimes wonder which is the more expensive in the end, the remedy or the disease.

The worms, however, can be avoided largely by limiting his flock to one hundred or less on the quarter section farm, by fencing his farm sheep-tight, so that he can use the entire farm, by having his lambs come in February or March, and feeding oats as soon as they will eat them, which is when they are two or three weeks old, and oats and corn afterwards, then selling his lambs in June and keeping his stock through on short pasture during the summer season. By "short" pasture we don't mean poor pasture, but short grass.

Handled in this way a small flock of sheep will pay 100 per cent a year very easily at present prices. By this we mean that if twenty-five sheep and a buck cost the owner $150 he can sell $150 worth of wool and lambs in twelve months and have his original stock remaining. Whatever you do, don't let your flock increase faster than the capacity of your farm and your own ability to handle them properly.

FEWER AND BETTER CATTLE

The people of the corn belt states are up against a serious proposition in the matter of the deterioration in their breeding cattle. As the price of land in that section has become higher and the cost of producing good cattle has proportionately advanced, the farmers have shown a marked tendency to let the quality of their cattle run down, believing they can no longer afford to pay the high prices demanded for good breeding stock. This condition of affairs is redounding to the advantage of the Texas range men, from the fact that it necessitates corn belt feeders coming to this state to purchase the quality of young stock they desire to place in their feed lots. Tom Sotham recently purchased 2,000 calves of the range at Midland and shipped them to Illinois, where they were sorted into lots of 25 and sold at prices ranging from $12 to $23 around. It only required two days to dispose of the entire offering and Sotham may be expected to show up in Texas again in a few days after another big consignment. The leading live stock papers of the corn belt states are much exercised over the situation and are trying to educate their people up to the idea of improvement. The last issue of Wallace's Farmer contains the following:

Notwithstanding all that has been said, and no doubt with more or less truth, about the decrease in cattle breeding on the western range on account of avarice and avarice of hoofers, floods of cattle continue to pour into the great markets. The great majority of them are of inferior quality, and the inferior cattle are not confined to the range bred. In point of fact it is easier to get a class of steers of high quality from the small fenced ranges in Western Kansas and Nebraska, the Panhandle of Texas, and other of the best western sections, than it is to buy them in the cornfields of Iowa, Missouri, or Minnesota.

Why is it? The farmer has succeeded so admirably in breeding hogs that it is difficult to find a razorback of the same quality as the best of the breed. He has had similar success in breeding sheep and chickens. Why is it, then, that notwithstanding all the teachings of agricultural and breeders' papers, there is so little practical improvement in the class of cattle bred in those corn and grass states? In fact, we doubt if the quality of the cattle is as good in these states as it was twenty years ago. Why is it? Is it because of the increase in breeding cattle that he has in breeding sheep or hogs?

There is, however, the farmer's side of the question, which furnishes a sufficient answer to the question, and we desire to put it from this standpoint. The quarter section farmer keeps from five to fifteen cows. When he is asked to pay more than a hundred dollars for a bull he begins to dig his feet pretty closely, and the odds are that the average farmer will buy a grade rather than pay more than that. He can buy a boar, keep him for a year or two, and then sell him for all that he cost him, and he can do this. If he should buy a bull, he can fatten him at an expense of thirty dollars and sell him for from sixty to eighty. The expense of his bull, therefore, is from twenty-five to fifty dollars a year for the service of five to fifteen cows. Any price that he may pay over that he thinks he must add to the cost, doubting it if he pays a hundred and fifty dollars and troubling it if he pays two hundred.

We refer to this matter now in order to suggest a method of getting around this difficulty and breed better cattle, even if we don't breed quite so many. It is pure economic waste to buy a man without experience to undertake it in a large way. The better way is to buy, if possible, some twenty-five ewes and a good buck of one of the mutton breeds, and get his education in this line at a minimum of expense. It would be difficult for him to lose anything if he knows how to take care of them, and he should be able at the end of the year to sell enough wool and lambs to give him back his money for his first investment, and particularly so if he has blue grass or other short pasture, and have his original flock intact.

This explains why it is that we get such a fine type of cattle on the best ranges. These men have three to four hundred cows, and can afford to pay more for the best bulls than the man who has five to fifteen. They pay more attention to uniformity of type. In other words, they grade up more intelligently, because if they fail to secure a good class of cattle, they know the decline to the vanishing point. Farmers are slow to do this, but we insist upon it that it will not only be money in their pockets directly, but would add greatly to the value of the cattle in any given neighborhood.

Why is it that four or five farmers in a neighborhood can not agree to use the same breed of cattle? They could send one of their number to the best breeding herd that they know of to buy each one a bull, with the understanding that they are to change bulls every two years, paying a price to be determined by the quality of the calves and by the general disposition of the animal? Farmers are learning how to co-operate in insurance, in buying grain, in the purchase of machinery. Why can't they agree to work into each other's hands for mutual improvement in cattle by the selection of bulls? Our neighbors on the other side of the water are more practical in this matter than we are. They have adopted the custom of hiring bulls and ramming the year. Where a man has the reputation of being a good farmer and knowing how to take care of live stock, a neighbor who owns a first-class animal can afford to hire it to him for a year, and thus get the interest on his money.

We think one reason why we had better cattle in Iowa twenty years ago than we do today is because cattle were then kept in larger herds. In our own early experience we did not attempt to confine the number of cattle to the amount of grazing the farm contained. We depended on the range for that, and hence could keep a hundred head of cattle about as easily as we could keep fifty on the same acreage now. We could then afford to pay a high price for bulls. We despair of seeing any marked advance in the grade of cattle that are raised in the corn states until one or other of these methods are adopted. There is nothing except bad feeling that works more directly against the improvement of cattle than the practice of grade bulls. The grade bull is wholly unreliable. If either of the methods we have suggested were adopted the inferior registered animal would have to be sold for beef, while a first-class bull would sell for prices considerably in advance of what they bring now. In fact, farmers would be able to pay breeders' prices, and hence the breeders of the state would find sale for their choice animals among the farmers of the sections that adopted this improved method of handling their bulls. There are not communities in which Wallace's Farmer circulates in which this method can be tested during the coming year?

Yellow fever has about been wiped out in New Orleans, and conditions are rapidly resuming the normal in that city. Business is improving and the people are bravely preparing to again take up the work that was seriously impaired by their great affliction.

The extra session of the state legislature is to be convened Jan. 5, with the free portion of the program entirely eliminated. The governor is said to be very much opposed to the idea of charity work on the part of the solons.

Former Comptroller of the Currency Dawes is so positive that there is no such thing as a beef trust in existence, that he has been summoned to give evidence in Chicago in the cases against the big packers.

It is reported that Clarence Stewart of Grapevine will be a candidate for legislative honors again next year, and he enjoys the distinction of having already once represented this county in that capacity.

Ellis county has long been considered the banner cotton producing county in the United States. This year Ellis county will produce but $9,000 bales, as against 121,000 last year.

The heads of various departments of the federal government at Washington have been given orders to reduce expenses. That treasury deficit is growing too large.

Albert T. Patrick is about at the end of his row in his fight against electrocution in New York, but he has put up a game combat from start to finish.

Harvie Jordan advises the farmers to hold on to their cotton like grim death, but at the prevailing high prices they are turning it loose like greased lightning.

The Sunday Telegram always fills the measure as the cleanest and best Sunday paper issued in Texas.

The Dallas fair is now in full blast and well worthy the liberal patronage of all enterprising Texas people.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

It's up to some egotists to consult an "I" doctor. Gambling is its own reward—any way you look at it. Any miniature artist will draw the line at the finger of scorn. Charity sometimes begins at home and ends in the almshouse. A detestable fault is one we can trace to somebody we dislike. Often the girl with false bangs has the most to say about peroxidized tresses. A woman seldom makes a fool out of a man; she usually acts as nature's assistant. Even the pessimist who loat both his legs in a railway accident had no kick coming. A New York man lived two years with a broken neck, but it wasn't broken by a rope.

When a pretty girl meets a rival at a party her politeness comes as hard as pulling a tooth.

Of course, it's the proper thing for a man to have a backbone, but he should remember that it is jointed.

Occasionally the string on a man's finger only serves to remind him that he has forgotten to take it off.

Never judge by appearances. When you see a man standing in front of a well restauant picking his teeth it's a safe bet that he hasn't dined there in Chicago News.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

People are so naturally filigial, they are proud of being arrested in an automobile.

There is no such thing as good manners in the world when somebody steps on your corn.

The smart wives are the ones that make the husband believe they think the children have his brains.

A woman is so naturally deceptive she can walk further in tight shoes without admitting she is tired than a man can in comfortable ones.

It worries a woman to have money and not be able to spend it as much as it worries a man to spend it and not have the money to pay the bills.—New York Press.

THE BETRAYAL

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

"None at all," I answered. "Sir Michael Trogody was your mother's brother," he remarked. "He is still alive."

"I believe so," I admitted. "I have never approached him, nor has he ever taken any notice of me."

"You did not write to him, for instance, when Heathcote absconded, and you had to leave college?"

"Certainly not," I answered. "I did not choose to turn beggar."

"I thought so," he remarked grimly. "I shall have to talk to you for a few minutes about your father."

I said nothing. My surprise, indeed, had bereft me of words.

"Fate has dealt a little harshly with you," he said. "I am almost a stranger to you, and I could never be friends. Yet it is apparently fate to my lot to supplement the little you know of a very unpleasant portion of your family history."

"I was cashiered from the army for misconduct, and committed suicide. I know, too, that my mother's people treated her shamefully, and that she died alone in Paris and almost in poverty. It was scarcely likely, therefore, that I was going to apply to them for help."

exclaimed. "Why? I have done you no harm!"

"Perhaps not," answered, "yet I cannot see why we get by taking up this miserable history. It is both painful and profane."

"I will say no more," she declared, with a sudden note of dignity in her tone. "I can see why we get by taking up this miserable history. It is both painful and profane."

"Where was he?" I asked. "Again her eyes flamed upon me. Her lips parted a little, and I could see the white glimmer of her teeth."

"Oh, you shall not fence with me like a baby!" she exclaimed. "Tell me, or let me, or refuse to tell me! Which is it? Upon my honor," I said, looking at her earnestly. "I have no idea whom you mean!"

"Your father," she said. "Whom else should I mean?"

"What should I know about him?" I said slowly. "I have been told that he is dead. I know no more than that."

"It is not possible," she exclaimed. "I had never heard of it. When he left me he was less than three months ago—he seemed better than I had known him for years."

"All my life," I said, "I have understood that my father died by his own hand after his disgrace. Tonight for the first time I was told that this was not the fact. I understand, from what my informant said, that he had died recently."

"She drew a sharp breath between her teeth, and suddenly struck the cushioned arm of the carriage by her side with her clenched hand."

"It is a lie!" she declared. "Whoever told you so, it is a lie!"

"Do you mean that you have not seen him yourself within the last few weeks?" she demanded fiercely. "He left me to come to you on the first day of the new year."

"I have never seen him to my knowledge in my life," I answered.

Verses That Ring

"NO SECTIONALISM" A new cry has come, a new life to inspire. The heart of the nation to move and to fire. Its message our President bears in his hand. A bond to unite every part of the land in one common interest, on future's grasp. And binding each section in firm friendship's clasp. "No sectionalism" the clarion call—For "united we stand, but divided, we fall!"

The wound that once rent this great country apart, Has healed the lifeblood from the nation's heart. Aid needed—that that healing some memory mars; Then let us not cherish the least of its scars. When a weak nation cried in extreme of its pain, The blue and the gray came together again. But arranged on one side, with their union thus, And fought in one uniform, marched like sisters in love and in harmony dwelling.

Their bosoms with peace for each other fond swelling. And all to one mother unshakably true, Her interests the first in whatever they do. Let the north greet the south, and the east meet the west. For the glorious union each doing her best. All mindful of one and yielding to all. For "united we stand, but divided, we fall!"

mean an indefinite time. But all the distinctions to one side, it really looks as if we ought to be advised fully if we are really going to have a special session or are not going to have one. Over two-thirds of the legislators have signified their consent to a meeting in special session without expense to the state. What more is necessary to clear up the matter so that it can be clearly stated by those in authority that there will be or will not be a special session?—Dallas News.

The man who refuses to pay his poll tax loses his rights of citizenship and becomes a mere Chinaman in the eyes of the law. Pay your poll tax and don't be a Chinaman.

Dick Wynn carried Grayson for governor in a primary election which he ran against some big fellows and he might do again if he wanted to.—Sherman Democrat.

Dick Wynn has a host of friends all over Texas, who appreciate him for what he is—a patriot, a statesman and a gentleman of the old school.

The efforts of The Fort Worth Telegram to have its town become a cotton market are meeting with considerable success. This is the first time that Fort Worth has given but little attention in the past. A good newspaper is one that always hears opportunity's knock and makes the people listen also.—Collingsworth Courier.

The Telegram usually brings down the same old news after, and the Fort Worth cotton market now in full operation is but another evidence of the potency that lies in The Telegram's tow line. Next season the Fort Worth cotton market will be one of the biggest things in all North Texas.

Column respecting the life and labor of Joseph Jefferson have been written during the past few days. But does it not all resolve itself into this: I. He was successful. II. He was good.

Jefferson's fidelity to this presentation never growing weary of it, never becoming listless in it, is an inspiration to artists for all time.

The greatest and best legacy he gave to us was his life. Greater and better than the man's work—always is this true—his man.

As in his art there was nothing that was not clean and bright and beautiful, so in his life there was nothing that was not pure and upright and gentle. Unaffected goodness and sweetness of nature seemed spontaneous in him.

And this was so because he was good both in disposition and in aim. The strictest moral critic of the stage ago made an exception in favor of Joseph Jefferson. And this not merely because his private life was absolutely above reproach, but because it was recognized that his spirit was Christlike, childlike, in its very essence. He had both the gift and the grace of goodness. Surely his life is a beautiful memory.

And that is the purpose of the law everywhere, to protect the innocent and punish the guilty. Every man, white or black, is entitled to a fair trial when charged with the commission of crime.

Judge Terrell says that the special session of the state legislature will be called in the fullness of time. And to those who have been anxious to see that content tempers it seems to require an unreasonable period of time to get full.—Fort Worth Telegram.

Statenland Hyde made the word "soon" a laughable word. He was going to return "soon" from Europe to face his accusers. He has not yet returned. Hence, Judge Terrell ignored the word "soon" as a substitute. "Soon" means at a time very near. In the fullness of time" can be translated to mean when the time for the event or occurrence arrives, or it may

SON OF LI HUNG CHANG MINISTER IN ESTATE OF $7,000 LONDON, Oct. 30.—Li Hung Chang, the great Chinese diplomat, who was reputed to be the richest man in China, left an estate in the United Kingdom worth $7,000. He left no will and letters of administration have been granted in London to his son, Li Ching Mal of Peking.

Mrs. Leighuppe—Sitting up with a sick friend, I suppose? Mr. Leighuppe—You're nearly correct, my love—nearly. Setting 'em up for six friends.—Judge.

The price of a pretty face is $1.00—three packages of Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Brings red lips, bright eyes and lovely color. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. J. P. Brashear.

THE GUARD OF THE TRAIN WAS ATTENDING MRS. SMITH-LESSING.

soft and musical. The words seemed to leave her lips slowly, almost ingratiatingly, and she spoke with the precision and slight accent of a well-educated foreigner. Her eyes seemed to be wandering all over me, as if she were trying to find out if it amounted to that, never even suggested curiously or inquisitively.

"It is scarcely a pleasant journey at the time of night," I remarked.

"Indeed, no," she asserted. "I wonder if you know my name? I am Mrs. Smith-Lessing, of Brainerd Garage. And you?"

"My name is Guy Duane," I told her. "I live at a small cottage called the 'Hedge'."

"That charming little place, you can just see from the sands?" she exclaimed. "I thought the duke's head keeper lived there."

"It was a keeper's lodge before the duke was kind enough to let it to me," I told her.

"It is a very delightful abode," she murmured.

"She picked up her book, and after turning over the pages aimlessly for a few minutes, she recommenced to read. I followed her example; but when a little later I glanced across in her direction, I found that her eyes were fixed upon me, and that her novel lay in her lap."

"My book is so stupid," I said apologetically. "I find, Mr. Duane," she added with sudden earnestness, "the elements of a much stranger story closer at hand."

"That," I remarked, looking steadily across at her, "sounds enigmatic."

"He did not commit suicide, as you were told. He lived in Paris a life of continual and painful degeneration. Your mother died of a broken heart. There was another woman, of course, whose influence over your father was unbending, and at whose instigation he committed this disgraceful act. This woman is now at Brainerd."

NOVEMBER WEATHER FOR ELEVEN YEARS

Official Statement of Records Shows Average Date for Killing Frost to Be Nov. 11. The monthly statement of weather conditions prevailing in Fort Worth during the month of November, covering a period of eleven years, was issued today. Concerning the data in the compilation, D. S. Landis, official in charge of the local office of the United States weather bureau, referred to the opening statement in the circular, which reads as follows: "They are issued to show the conditions that have prevailed during the month in question, for the above period of years, but must not be construed as a forecast of the weather conditions for the coming month." The mean or normal November temperature has been 56 degrees. The warmest month in the period was that of the year 1892, with an average of 58 degrees, while the coldest was that of the year 1898, with an average of 51 degrees. The highest temperature was 85 degrees, Nov. 13, 1903, the lowest being 29 degrees Nov. 18, 1903. The earliest date on which killing frost occurred during the autumn was Oct. 22, 1898. The average date of killing autumn frost has been Nov. 14. The average date of the last killing spring frost has been March 16. The latest date of killing spring frost was May 1, 1903. The average amount of rainfall for the month has been 1.55 inches, while on an average not more than four days have had 0.1 inch or more rainfall. The greatest amount of precipitation was 6.89, recorded in 1902, while the least was a blank recorded in 1903. The average amount of rainfall in any one day was 3.25 inches, Nov. 15 and 16, 1902. The highest wind velocity reported was 42 miles an hour, from the northwest, Nov. 21, 1898.

NEW BANK FAVORED

East Texas Capitalist Offers to Take $50,000 Stock. Judge N. B. Moore, secretary of the Factory Club, announced today further development in the project for an additional national bank in this city. An offer to take $50,000 of the stock of the company has been made by an influential east Texas capitalist, official offer being received by Dr. J. L. Cooper this morning. Lower Main street business men interested in the undertaking are so far confident in regard to the matter. It is reported, however, that lease on the Bank of Commerce fixtures secured by Illinois investors expires today, leaving the field open.

SERVED LUNCH TO WIN PRO VOTES

Mrs. Rebecca Calhoun, Prominent W. C. T. U. Worker in This State, Goes to Pacific Coast. Word has been received here that Mrs. Rebecca Calhoun, who was for a long time president of the Central W. C. T. U. of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Calhoun, who attained prominence by serving lunches at the polls in the state campaign of 1887, was president of the local chapter from 1890 to 1894 and from 1895 to 1896. Previous to that time she was state corresponding secretary of the local chapter. Mrs. Calhoun was the first woman in Texas to go to the polls and serve lunch to the voters. She was president of the Ceresiana Union during the state campaign in 1887 and led about one hundred women to the polls to serve lunch and help gain votes for state prohibition.

WORK PLANNED BY UNITED STOCKMAN

Combined Interests Will Do Much for Live Stock Growers of the Country

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 28.—Live stock matters are attracting large proportions in Denver. A. E. de Riebles, the first vice president of the American Stock Growers' Association and general manager of the American Live Stock and Loan Company, said yesterday: "In the first place, the settlement of the differences between the National Live Stock Association and the American Stock Breeders' Association means that all the live stock producers will now have a medium through which all their interests, as producers and their requirements, can be presented to the public and the corporations with which they do business and attention given to them. The two associations were without doubt working to the same end, but differed in method, and the American stood out for the idea that it was better for the stockmen to carry on their operations and their particular business without the influence of such corporate interests as stock yards, packing houses and railroads as active interests in their association. The elimination of these interests has been accomplished without ill-will or friction of any kind and the friendship of the corporate interests has been retained and they have been brought to see the wisdom of separating in this way. The American stood out for these matters and the wisdom of its position was acknowledged by all. The result of its work has been satisfactory not only to the stockmen but to the corporations, such as the big railroads, who have been glad to acknowledge the good that the American Stock Growers' Association has done this year in various matters such as the distribution of stock cars and the movement of live stock to market." Stock Growers' Plan to Benefit Stock Interests. The American Stock Growers' Association has started a proposition that promises more than any other one thing to be of immense benefit to all of those interested in cattle, whether it be the producer, the packer or the railroad that carries it; this scheme is to go into a systematic campaign to increase the consumption of beef in the United States through various methods, such as instructing the people how to prepare the cheaper cuts and explanation of the nutritive value of beef as compared with other food products, and widely advertising beef as a food product. The committee that has been given the preliminary work in this matter consists of M. P. Hull, the president of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange; H. S. Boyce, a prominent live stock man, who lives in Kansas City; T. W. Tomlinson, the secretary of the American Stock Growers' Association; and Mr. de Riebles, whom they selected as chairman of the committee. This committee has already met with great encouragement, is practically assured of the necessary funds for this campaign, and the committee estimates that if it is possible to increase the consumption of beef in the United States one-half cent for each inhabitant per day, that it would mean an added consumption of nearly $150,000,000 of beef per year, or at $14 a head, 2,000,000 cattle. Such a result, and even a partial success, would mean a complete solution of the live stock problem in the United States so far as the relation of the packers, the producers and the consumers are concerned, because there would be such a demand for cattle that there would be no time to discuss the alleged grievances with the packers or others. Coming Convention Will Be Greatest of Its Kind. Dr. de Riebles said that the coming convention the last week in January will be the greatest event of its kind ever held in the country; that there will be a most representative crowd of men here who will be attracted by the two conventions, the proposition of uniting and the live stock show that has been arranged for that time. It is also intended said Mr. de Riebles, to celebrate the advent of the live packers as a feature in the Denver market. These people have come to Denver in a most modest way, without asking the city any bonus, such as was given

LIGHT RAIN FALLS

Trace of Precipitation Here Early This Morning. Texas is generally cloudy this morning, with rain at Dallas, Dubin, Kerrville, Lampasas, Mexico, San Marcos, Temple and Waco. There were slight traces of precipitation at Breham and rain is falling this morning in eastern Texas. "Temperature at Fort Worth for the twenty-four hours ending at 8 a. m., today ranged from 47 to 59 degrees. Light rainfall occurred this morning. A cold wave dominates parts of Missouri and the temperatures are within 10 degrees of zero in Montana. The freeze covered a large area, coming as far south as Topeka, Kan. Official statement of weather conditions reported is as follows: "The high barometer area with cold wave dominates the upper and middle Missouri valley, causing temperatures within 10 degrees of zero in Montana and freezing conditions as far south as middle Kansas. "Snow is falling in Kansas, Colorado, western Missouri and Minnesota. "Low barometer, causing rain in Oklahoma, Utah and Texas panhandle. "Rain is falling in North Carolina, Alabama and Florida. "The cotton belt is generally cloudy and rain is falling in the eastern portion. Temperatures are about normal."

CHURCH SERVICES WILL BE EARLIER

Ministers' Association Fixes Uniform Hour at 7:30 O'clock at Night Until April 1. Hour of Sunday night service in this city will be 7:30 o'clock until April 1, in the churches represented by their pastors in the Ministers' Association. A decision to hold service at this uniform hour was reached at the meeting of the association held this morning upon request of a number of the members. Several weeks ago a movement to hold a uniform service at 7:45 o'clock was adopted to prevent interruption of services by late comers. The time is now changed to fifteen minutes earlier. SERVICE RESUMED. The Queen and Crescent Route is advised by its many friends and patrons that the train service from Shreveport and New Orleans to the northeast and southeast has again been placed in operation on the same schedule as prior to the yellow fever quarantine. This is of vital interest to the traveler, as it means that he, or she, can again have the benefit of the Queen and Crescent Route's superbly equipped, unexcelled dining car service, observation cars, etc., also the equally important advantage of being able to save twelve hours' time in traveling between Dallas and all points in Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, North and Alabama. If you are contemplating a trip to this old state it will be to your advantage to see that your tickets read via the Queen and Crescent Route, and if you will write a letter to T. M. Hunt, traveling passenger agent, Dallas, Texas, he will be glad to furnish time tables, maps and detailed information, explaining the many advantages offered by the Queen and Crescent Route to the traveler. FEATURES OF STATES ELECTIONS THIS FALL

Anti-Graft, Anti-Machine and Anti-Crime Leading Issues in Many Sections

Special Correspondence of The Telegram. WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Never in the history of politics were there so many unusual situations as are presented in the half dozen state campaigns now in progress.

Anti-graft, anti-machine and anti-crime are the dominant notes in many states. In none of them do the terms "Republican" or "Democrat" carry any particular weight. Efforts to bug in national issues have proved ludicrous. The campaign in Pennsylvania is a veritable "thriller." Beginning with the revolt of the Philadelphia citizens against the effort of the gang to saddle dollar gas on them for fifty years later and better against the corrupt practices of the republican ring, until now the state is in the midst of a political revolution which will result in the election of an independent and efficient state government, and may even elect a democratic-prohibitionist candidate for state treasurer. The latter possibility is brought about by the failure of the Enterprise National bank of Allegheny, following the democratic caucus, and disclosing the fact that state funds to the amount of over a million dollars was loaned by the bank to politicians.

Ohio Revolt Against Boss. In Ohio the revolt against Boss Cox of Cincinnati is similar to the revolt against machine rule and political thieving in Philadelphia. A national interest has been lent to the fight on this local boss by the appearance of Secretary Taft on the stump, denouncing the most powerful boss of his own party in his own state. Called in to help the republican ticket, Secretary Taft shocked the politicians beyond measure by his bold declaration that he would not vote for Cox. There is no real partisan alignment, and it now appears a toss-up whether Herrick or Patterson will be elected governor. The real issues are liquor and party patronage. The democratic candidate, is supported by many prohibitionists—which means many republicans—and Herrick, the republican candidate, is supported by many democrats who are interested by the brewing and distilling interests.

Gorman Has Handicuff. Another state in which there is a fight to destroy a machine boss in Maryland. Here it is a fight to dethrone Senator Arthur P. Gorman. The office to be filled are the important, but a sharp light has been developed over the adoption of a constitutional amendment to disfranchise the negro. Senator Leader Rayner has come out against the amendment, and Gorman, an ardent supporter of the same, is in favor. Both are democrats, so there is a factional party fight.

About 19 per cent of the population of Maryland is negro, but the five amendments would take the voting privileges from many of the foreign-born population on an education test. It proposes to apply what is known in the south as the "grandfather clause," which is framed to give colored persons who were slaves, if Gorman wins he will be entrenched for years to come as supreme political boss, if he loses he will be down and out finally.

Odd Situation in Massachusetts. In Massachusetts there is a very odd political situation. The campaign is really between the two candidates for lieutenant governor. This grows out of the fact that it has become a hard and fast custom in Massachusetts for the lieutenant governor to succeed the governor.

The campaign now in progress in Virginia is interesting only in that it is the first waged since the negro vote was eliminated by constitutional amendment. The republican party of Virginia is now a "white man's party." The vote will show what the republicans can do when the negro is freed from the race issue.

Hearst's Strength Growing. The municipal campaign in New York city is as notable as any in its protest against political bosses and graft. The independent run being made by State Attorney Jerome, who defies both political rings, will, if it succeeds, set a pace in other cities. Aside from Jerome's race the most significant thing in the New York campaign is the increasing strength of the municipal ownership proposition. Already it is becoming apparent that Hearst is a more important factor than in former years, the regular republican machine nominee, and it need cause no great surprise if he polls more votes. While it was taken for an assumed thing a short time ago that Mayor George E. McChesney would be re-elected, this confidence has been shaken somewhat by the evident strength of the radical forces which find a rallying center in William R. Hearst.

RAILROADS ASK FOR FEDERAL HEARING

This morning attorneys representing the railroads entering Fort Worth, who have become defendants in an injunction case filed in the Seventh judicial district court some days ago by the local ticket brokers, to prevent them from interfering with the brokers in the sale of unused portions of excursion tickets went before Judge M. E. Smith and filed a petition for a removal of the case to the Federal court in this city. The action is asked on the grounds that the Texas and Pacific is a foreign corporation, being incorporated under the laws of the United States, and therefore gives the right to have the case heard in the Federal court. Attorney J. S. Davis, representing the brokers, said this afternoon that he will resist the removal of the grounds that the plaintiff's petition does not base its rights on Federal law.

DISTRICT COURT

Judge M. E. Smith of the Seventeenth district court this morning took up the damage case of A. R. Knowles against the Frisco and Northern Texas Traction Company. There are several other similar cases, resulting from a collision in North Fort Worth about six months ago. It is expected the Knowles case will consume the greater part of this week. It is looked upon as a test case. Judge Kirby Dunklin of the Forty-eighth district court this morning continued the Gus Bader murder case. The assault to murder case against Bader was also continued. Tire Irwin was fined $50 for disobedience of process. Judge Dunklin this morning overruled a motion for a continuance of the Lucy Wilder murder case. Attachments for several witnesses were ordered returnable instantly, and the court proceeded with the trial.

The young boy Carey also voluntarily surrendered. The sheriff's office has offered rewards for the re-capture of five convicted state prisoners. The sheriff will pay $50 for each prisoner.

Camp Going to Denver. W. T. Camp, connected with the Bank of Commerce, the doors of which were closed here recently, following the failure of the Denver Savings Bank, is in the city today, according to Attorney John W. Wray, and will go to Denver tonight.

Railway Mail Service. Following changes are announced by the railway mail service: Benjamin George, Fort Worth and Galveston railway postoffice, has been promoted to class 2; James T. Thompson, Nashville and Hope railway postoffice, has been transferred to Little Rock and Pine Bluff railway postoffice.

LETTER TO JOHN WARD, of Fort Worth, Texas. Dear Sir: You know all about shoes. How many customers have you who know anything about 'em? You have bought and sold shoes for years, and have learned what you know by your customers, liking one sort, and not liking another. They find out by wearing 'em. So with paint; but we go deeper. We are 150 years old in the business; and we make, not buy—we make a good deal of paint.

When you see an article well advertised in the newspapers, you may be sure it's a good article, for advertising only pays if the goods are honest and possess merit. The people who make a specialty of one advertised article, like Cascarets, Candy Cathartics for example, stake their whole business existence on it's doing what they say it will. They must "make good" as the saying is. Readers of this paper are urged to be sure that they get what they ask for, when they ask for an advertised article, for it's the good thing that is imitated and counterfeited. Don't accept substitutes! Insist on getting the genuine!

DO YOU? Listen—Every person on earth has something in his possession he no longer has any use for, but don't know what to do with. That person will be interested in the Telegram Liner Ads. Why?
