AMUSEMENTS

George Ade's "College Widow" is like champagne. It has spirit, bead and bouquet. Its spirit, a story of a struggling college's efforts to win a Thanksgiving football game.

The gallery couldn't understand the college sentiment, but it quickly caught the excitement of the football game story and the simple little love tale woven in between the drop kicks and touchdowns.

As a comedy, "The College Widow" is funny, fast and fascinating. There are no off-side jokes, the dancing is confined to the fragment of a single waltz.

MILLERS NEED FREIGHT CARS

Shortage Discussed at Meeting of Southwestern Owners

Texas and territory millers are complaining of great difficulty in securing cars.

To discuss the situation a meeting was called for Oklahoma City this week at which there were present several representatives from the Millers' Association of Texas and Kansas.

It was declared by President Ruth of the Oklahoma association, that the shortage of cars in the Kingfisher section has forced many of the mills to shut down.

A better pleased audience than that which filled Greenwall's last night would be hard to find.

"HOOGLIGAN IN NEW YORK"

One of the coming attractions at Greenwall's opera house for one night only, Monday night, Nov. 29, is Franze & Brown's big sensational comedy drama, "Hooligan in New York," with Will H. Wheeler as "Happy Hooligan."

"WOODLAND"

Henry W. Savage will bring to Fort Worth on Wednesday night, Nov. 27, at Greenwall's opera house, his magnificent production of the very latest Pixley-Luders' comic opera, "Woodland," which delicate and fascinating story of life in fairy bird land caught the fancy of even Jaded Broadway, and led to a remarkably successful run of the pretty musical concert at both the New York and Herald Square theaters in New York.

The scene of the first act is King Eagle's royal court in the forest, and the time is just before sunrise.

Thousands of Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Almost every one, from personal experience, knows that the effects of any kind of severe physical strain are felt, first of all, in the small of the back—in other words, in those Vital Organs, the Kidneys.

WOMEN suffer untold misery because of the nature of their disease is not always correctly understood; in many cases when doctoring, they are led to believe that womb trouble or female kidneys are the chief cause of their ailments.

Perhaps you suffer almost continually with pain in the back, bearing-down feelings, headache and utter exhaustion.

Your poor health makes you nervous, irritable and at times despondent; but thousands of just such suffering or broken-down women are being restored to health and strength every day by the use of that wonderful discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

Not only does Swamp-Root bring new life and activity to the kidneys, the cause of the trouble, but by strengthening the kidneys it acts as a general tonic and food for the entire constitution.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Swamp-Root, is so realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

In taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has ever been discovered.

In a few days after taking your wonderful Swamp-Root I began to feel better. I was out of health and run down generally; had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time.

I did not realize that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Root, as above stated.

It goes right to the spot and drives disease out of the system. It has cured me, making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers.

PLAINLY OUTLINES HIS POSITION. A few days ago a delegation of railway employes waited upon the President in Washington to protest against his idea of railway rate regulation, with the plea that they would suffer in consequence of the disturbance of existing conditions.

With most of the general statements that you make I agree," he said, "but I am not sure that I agree with your application of them. There has been comparatively little complaint to me of the railroad rates being as a whole too high.

"But I am convinced that there must be an increased regulatory and supervisory power exercised by the government over the railways. Indeed, I would like it exercised to a much greater extent than I have any idea of pressing at the present moment.

"All I want in any rate legislation is to give the government an efficient supervisory power which shall be exercised as scrupulously to prevent injustice to the railroads as to prevent their doing injustice to the public.

These railway employes were doubtless sincere in the protest they made to the President. The big railway corporations of the entire country have been engaged in what they have been pleased to term a campaign of education for several months, and it is safe to presume that these educational facilities have been extended to their own employes with the same impartiality that they have been administered to the balance of mankind.

But the matter from the standpoint of the big railway managers, the employes honestly believe that the regulation of interstate railway freight rates will seriously affect their salaries. It is probable that they have been told that a reduction in rates means a reduction in wages, and that if they would preserve the existing equilibrium they must fall in line with the movement having for its object the prevention of regulation.

But these railway employes need not be afraid of any dire calamity resulting from the adoption of the presidential idea. There is no intention existing in any quarter to rob the railways of one tithe of what they are justly and legally entitled to receive as compensation for services rendered.

All Texas must insist on the choice of the proper kind of legislative material next year. It is a matter of momentous importance.

insisting that they shall also be included in its provisions. They ask nothing for themselves they are not free to accord to the other fellow, and they are equally determined that the other fellow shall not have any squarer deal than is meted out to them.

As matters now stand, the railroads have the thing all their own way and the people are holding the sack. Texas is deeply interested in the situation from the fact that Texas is the greatest producer of beef cattle of any state in the union, and the great bulk of these beef cattle go to market as interstate commerce.

RENOUNCES THE HOME MAN. The esteemed Arlington Journal does not favor conservatism in the Texas state political campaign, but signs for the election of a man as governor who will be able to demonstrate that rottenness and corruption in high places is stalking abroad through this fair land.

After reading many press comments on the gubernatorial aspirants' speeches at Dallas, and pondering over the matter considerably, we are beginning to arrive at certain conclusions. One is that there is not much to our fellow countryman C. K. Bell.

The Journal would not be rabid or unreasonable in its suspicions, but to go on for years after year assuring the people that the Texans are too honorable to do a wrong in state, county or municipal matters, is entirely untenable, and we don't believe a man who makes that the main plank of his platform can win, neither do we believe a man that believes such would make much of a governor.

Brooks said some pretty good things. Among others he declares against nepotism, and says if elected he would give the head of every department a new broom and tell them to sweep it out, kinfolk and all.

Others besides candidates for governor spoke, among the best of whom was our Tarrant county man, Hon. W. D. Williams, for railroad commissioner. Williams never fails to acquit himself with honor and make friends wherever he goes, and yet that is not his chief stock in trade; some men make a great many friends but never do anything else.

The announcement of the position of the esteemed Journal can but bring the keenest of disappointment and chagrin to the distinguished Tarrant county citizen who aspires to be governor. He had counted absolutely on its support, realizing that his election depended on its decision, and now that this has been made adversely, it will perhaps prove a blow from which he will never entirely recover.

The Journal is not fully advised as to Judge Bell's feelings in the matter, but knowing the character of the man so well, it is believed that in a choice between defaming his state and not occupying the executive chair, this man whose faith abides in the honor and integrity of Texas democracy would accept defeat as a welcome portion.

The Journal is a fine type of that class of citizenship which finds in Judge Bell an ideal candidate. His leanings in a certain well known and well defined issue are so well known and appreciated that they appeal with great force to those who desire that issue to become a dominant one in the impending state campaign. It is not a question of conservatism, for there is nothing conservative about the individual who can sully the fair name of his state to obtain political preferment.

Senator Dryden of New Jersey, who is the head of a big insurance company, will introduce a bill in the coming congress providing for federal supervision of life insurance. Who knows but what the day may soon come when we will have federal supervision of our ice and coal dealers and a federal officer to call around every morning and ascertain just exactly what we have had for breakfast? It looks like we are fast coming to the point where we have no self-confidence and must turn to the federal government on the most trivial excuses.

A false emperor has appeared upon the scene in Russia, and it is said that he already has more than 50,000 adherents. The troubles of the Muscovite empire have apparently only begun. Nothing short of utter and complete revolution will satisfy those unfortunate people.

The new claimant to the Russian throne who has just appeared upon the scene of action must be looking for trouble, and certainly has taken the proper steps to find it. The man who wants to be emperor of Russia at this time is certainly a man of iron nerve.

The state railroad commission is still engaged in an effort to make the railways run their passenger trains on time, but so far there has not been much change in the situation. Texas roads claim they are compelled to wait for their eastern connections.

If we sell all our turkeys at the tempting prices now being offered for them, what are we going to do for a Thanksgiving bird ourselves? And there is the big Christmas dinner also to be provided for.

The Sunday Telegram leads all the others in quality if not in quantity. When you get The Telegram you can always realize that you have just about all that is worth having.

AMONG THE EXCHANGES

Brother Cooper of Beaumont will try for congress again next year. He was defeated in the last election by a man Mr. Cooper did not think was serious in the race. The new man campaigned at the forks of the creek while Mr. Cooper campaigned in a few of the larger towns.—Tyler Courier.

Overconfidence has been the undoing of many politicians. While they have been content to rest at home in fancied security, the other fellow has often so undermined the foundations of their political houses that a collapse has come as complete as unexpected.

The attempt of the insurance agents to capture the meeting of the policy holders at Dallas was certainly nerve, and has shown the policy holders that the big companies are fighting to keep the old regime in power.—Mineral Wells Index.

The insurance agents were very promptly voted out of the Dallas conference, although they were also policy holders. The policy holders without any strings to them are the people who took charge and conducted the meeting.

The Telegram is all right; so is Colonel Wynne. He would make Texas one of the best governed states ever had, and we would be glad if he would enter the race and receive the nomination.—Graham News.

The people of Tarrant county are going to send Colonel Wynne to the state legislature next year. His filling a state office is a matter of the future.

Gassaway Davis, late democratic candidate for vice president, has announced himself as opposed to a law regulating railway rates. One consolation, his influence in the democratic party is away below par.—Childress Index.

Gassaway Davis is the father-in-law of Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, and Steve feels the same way concerning the regulation of the railways. It is one political question on which the family is thoroughly united.

In one of the city's humblest little homes, where no luxuries and very few comforts ever come, where poverty stares and sickness lingers, lies an aged woman, dying of consumption, and the only relative who sees or comforts her is a 14-year-old girl, who has been her faithful and only servant for more than a year.

It comes to the Tribune on good authority that a negro congregation in this county is being ministered to spiritually by a negro preacher who has but recently completed five years' service in state prison for theft of a horse. He came home and was met in the pulpit. The members of that congregation do not do themselves or their race credit. And as for honoring God—why, the Almighty is not supposed to be cognizant of the episode.—Waco Tribune.

Perhaps the brother has passed through the fire and become purified. He should be given a chance to make good and condemnation withheld until he fails to measure up. His flock betrayed a forgiving spirit. It remains for him to now demonstrate what he really is.

There are to be so many questions before the legislature and congress, and so many men aspiring to represent the people in those bodies, if the voters do not call for the platforms of the candidates pretty soon they will not have time to read them all before election.—Stephenville Empire.

The packers will probably succeed in balking the government until they have raised enough funds, by advancing prices, to meet their fines with equanimity.—Galveston Tribune.

The packers, if convicted, will not be permitted to pay their fines with equanimity—it will require good, hard coin of the realm. And besides, there are other penalties that may involve a close acquaintance with cruel prison bars.

LITTLE TALES WELL TOLD. NEW EXCUSE. There was a man in Atlanta who once suspected a negro in his employ with tampering with the contents of his wine cellar, especially with a certain brand of fine whisky. The employer decided to adopt measures to verify his suspicions. He allowed the demijohn holding his "private stock" to become empty; then, instead of refilling it, he placed his pet brand in bottles, labeling each one "poison."

WHEN ELOQUENCE FAILED. A certain excellent but loud-voiced member of the bar was addressing a jury. Finally, in a perfect hurricane of sound, he closed his argument and sat down.

The jury was impressed and the other side was in danger. The barrister opposite had a sad, watery eye and a hatchet-like face. He sat patiently through the tumultuous gusts of his friend, and after the reverberations of the closing crash, he rose quietly from his seat.

"As I listened to the thunderous appeals of my learned friend," he said, addressing the jury in a drawing tone, "I recalled an old fable. You will remember, gentlemen, how the lion and the ass agreed to slay the beasts of the field and divide the spoil. The ass was to go into the thicket and bray and frighten the animals out, while the lion was to lie in wait and kill the fugitives as fast as they appeared. The ass sought the darkest part of the jungle, and lifting up his awful voice, brayed and brayed and brayed. The ass was quite intoxicated with his uproar, and thought he would return and see what the lion thought of it. With light heart he went back and found the lion looking doubtfully about him.

WHY IT FROZE. A colored preacher announced one Sunday morning: "Brethren and sisters, I shall discourse this mornin' on de power ob de miracle, an' I am gwine ter take as example de chilfren of Israel a-crossin' of de Red sea.

ONE ON THE JUDGE. A story is told of a police magistrate in Cincinnati who, having an extraordinary amount of business one morning, was disposing of his cases at the rate of some two or three a minute, with great exactness and dignity, being, as is usual in police courts, judge, jury and lawyer all in one.

HE TOOK IT BACK. I was in the village general store when a farmer drove up and entered with a package in his hand and said to the proprietor: "Look a-here, Lem, you sold me half a pound of tea in this package the other day."

EQUAL TO THE OCCASION. At the sidewalk of one of the ferry houses in New York stood a police vehicle, backed against the curb waiting its load. Walking leisurely in the center of the pushing, racing mob from a landing ferry boat was a tramp, all rags but placid of manner. At his side walked a bluecoat, who led him to the waiting patrol wagon. As the tramp was about to enter he bethought himself and standing on the steps he leaned far out to one side, and to the driver he called in the drawing voice of a bored boulevardier, "Home, James!"

VERSES THAT RING

TO ONE SOMEWHERE. The Goddess I know not nor worship yet, if but that men tell me be true, You will come in the future, and therefore these verses are written to you.—Kipling's "To the Unknown Goddess."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS. You can't always tell—unless you are a woman. The uglier the man the prettier the girl he marries. A stiff upper lip doesn't amount to much if the lower jaw is too limber.

QUAKER REFLECTIONS. It's the cheap skate that cuts no ice. The literary pork packer should adopt a pen name. Does time ever hang heavily on the hands of a clock? You can't keep a good man down if he keeps up appearances.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR. A woman loves to love, a man to be loved. A man's wife is hardly ever ashamed of him unless he is in politics.
