DISPATCHER SANDRA RAINEY displays the new police radio equipment purchased by the county.

County receives new radio

Earlier this year, Floyd County Judge Choise Smith coordinated his efforts with Karen King, SPAG director of Floyd County, to apply for a grant through SPAG to the Criminal Justice Department. The purpose of the grant was to obtain funds needed by the county to purchase new radio equipment for the Sheriff's office.

The grant was approved and the county received $6903.75 to go towards the purchase of the new radio equipment.

The Sheriff's department received the new radio equipment about two weeks ago. The difference in the cost of the radio equipment and the grant was paid through the Sheriff's department budget normally used for their automobiles.

The $9205 equipment replaced the department's 10-year-old radio equipment that was requiring repair at great expense each month.

The equipment will be used by the Department of Public Safety as well as county and city law officers.

Arts and Crafts Festival slated

A wide variety of displays and a well-known Western artist have contributed to the projected success of the 1983 Floydada Lions Club Arts and Crafts Festival. Doors will be open to the public (at no admission charge) from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, November 19, 1983, at the Massie Activity Center in Floydada. The show affords an excellent opportunity to shop for unique and unusual Christmas gifts, as well as "Showcasing" local and area artistic talents.

Floydada exhibitors include Vivian Roberson, Gleva Smith, Jo Goen, Ann Glasscock, Weldon Fannon, Sherre West, Sara Probasco, Mrs. J.R. Turner, Eva Lee Nichols, Jerry McGuire, Ron Dunaway, Stan McClendon, and Bill Gray. Artist-author Kenneth Wyatt of

Cynthia Van Hersh, and Kay Roach. As of November 1, there were still a few booth spaces available.

Throughout the day, Floydada Chapter #31, Order of Eastern Star will operate the concession stand, featuring snacks, sandwiches, and other refreshments. The Women's Division, Floydada Chamber of Commerce, will have a baked-goods booth. This is one of the most diversified festivals in the last several years, and, "Is one pre-holiday event you won't want to miss," claims Bill Gray, project chairman for this year's crafts festival.

McDaniel honored

A long-time employee of Southwestern Public Service Company in Floydada received a service award at a dinner at the Lubbock Country Club, Tuesday, November 1.

Lewis McDaniel was honored for 25 years of service to the Company and its customers.

Southwestern Public Service honored 92 of its Southern Division employees at the dinner. The 92 have served a total of 1,650 years.

Bert Ballengee, president and chief operating officer of the Company, presented the service awards.

This year, Southwestern will recognize a total of 385 employees in four states who have served a total of 5,805 years.

Southwestern Public Service primarily provides electric service to a population of more than one million in a 70,000-square-mile area of the south plains and Panhandle of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle, and southwestern Kansas.

Tax office retained

Floyd County voters decided to keep the office of Tax Collector, as an office of an elected official.

The special ballot for the addition of the tax assessor-collector had given rise to some controversy in the county for the past several weeks.

The office, which handles over a half million dollars a year will remain as it has been for the last 50 years.

444 Floyd county residents voted to keep the office. 286 opposed the addition.

Floyd county had a very light voter turnout in Tuesday's election.

Less than 700 Floyd county residents made it to the polls Tuesday.

Son manages business

James Widener, son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Widener of Plainview, has taken the position of store manager at the Floydada branch of Buddy's Food. Born in Floydada, Widener was raised in Plainview and graduated from Plainview High School. After high school he attended Texas Tech University for two years and then moved back to Plainview where he attended Wayland Baptist University for one year.

He and his wife Karla have been living in Plainview the last five years where he has worked in the pricing department at Buddy's Food in Plainview.

He said the store will be doing some minor remodeling this month and that they "will be doing some competitive price changing. Pricing will soon be close to the same pricing of their Plainview store. We hope to have this change made by Christmas," he said. Widener said he hopes to move to Floydada but said he wouldn't know for about six months.

"I enjoy the friendliness of the people here, we've always tried to base our business on friendliness," he continued

VOTER turnout was light Tuesday.

Do you love your child ?

Dear Parents and Guardians:

It is estimated that over 150,000 children are reported missing annually and thousands are found, unidentified. In the event that a child disappears or is abducted, it is essential that law enforcement officers have clear and accurate fingerprints to assist in the investigation. This information could help protect your family. Fingerprints are a positive means of identification and a necessary part of every child's home identification file.

Volunteers from the Alpha Mu Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will provide a free fingerprinting service to the students of the Floydada Public School System on November 15, 1983, from 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. at the Floyd County Agriculture Building located on the Southeast corner of the square. This is a voluntary program and children must have a signed parent/guardian consent statement to participate. If you wish to have your child fingerprinted, please bring him or her to the Agriculture Building on the above date. The fingerprints cannot be taken without your signed consent. After permission is given, only one set of fingerprints will be taken and the fingerprints will be returned home for parent or guardian safekeeping.

Fingerprints remain the same all through life. It is the surest means of identification known to man. It would be an efficient tool of identification no matter how much time has elapsed between the child being reported missing and the possibility of the child being found.

Please make every effort to participate in this program with us.

Sincerely,
Judy Lloyd, President
Alpha Mu Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi

FREEDOM: WORTH THE RISKS

In 1981, 16,794 businesses went bankrupt. In 1982, that figure grew to 25,346. Taking those numbers by themselves, the nightly news portrayed a gloomy picture of the American economy: dying small businesses closing their doors and disappearing. The death of entrepreneurship.

But the bankruptcies did not occur in a vacuum. There are two other numbers you may not have seen reported - the number of new businesses incorporated. In 1981, 581,242 new businesses incorporated. In 1982, 566,942 new companies sprang to life.

The past two years have not seen the death or decay of American entrepreneurship, but rather a vigorous revival thanks in large part to the reductions in the capital gains tax of 1978 and cuts in personal income taxes in 1981.

Starting a new business is hard work and risky. The marketplace is a strict taskmaster. Consumers are fickle. Many new firms fail. Indeed, surveys of successful entrepreneurs show that many have failed more than once before they found the right good or service at the right price.

The genius of America is not that we are all guaranteed to succeed at whatever we undertake-for we have no such promise. The genius of America is that we are all free. Free to make our own choices. Free to succeed. Free to fail. Free to try again.

With that freedom comes the responsibility for our decisions-and the risk of making mistakes. Such risks can be frightening. In our personal lives we make decisions with great consequences. Where to live. Who to marry. Wrong decisions can be costly.

In business, entrepreneurs must decide where to locate. What product of service they should provide, and at what cost. Employees face the choice of what business to work for-there are more than 11 million businesses in America to choose from.

All these decisions carry with them the risks of choosing incorrectly. And governments around the world have grown large and powerful by offering to reduce those risks at the cost of human freedom. Oh, the 25,000 bankruptcies in 1982 could have been prevented. All the government would have had to do was tax the successful new firms enough to subsidize the losses, and presto-no bankruptcies. (But who, then, would spend the time and effort to start a new shop or factory?)

In France, the nationalized industries are free from risk. They will never go bankrupt. The taxpayers of France are shelling out almost $8 billion this year to eliminate risk. Nor do industries go belly-up in the Soviet Union. But on the other hand, when was the last time you heard about a technological breakthrough or new product from behind the Iron Curtain? Certainly we can reduce, and sometimes eliminate, risk, but always at the cost of freedom and innovation. (One can always protect oneself against an automobile accident by staying in bed.)

Science has learned through trial and error to cure diseases, create energy from the atom, and splice genes. The American economy has become the greatest in the world-producing one quarter of the goods and services in the entire world-by allowing Americans the freedom to try and make their dreams a reality. Sometimes they fail, but on balance, they move us forward by creating new jobs and wealth.

Yes, there are risks as well as rewards in the vibrant and dynamic free market system. Not every wildcat strikes oil. But as we look at the nations around the globe, and peek behind the Iron Curtain, we must remember that the practice of trading away our freedoms for the promise of security entails great risks of its own.

Bell changes

Although the breakup of the Bell system isn't scheduled until January 1, Southwestern Bell is getting a head start in November by issuing a more detailed customer bill that reflects some of the coming changes.

Jim West, Community Relations Manager of Southwestern Bell, said the new statements will break out components of phone service to be provided by different companies next year. However, Southwestern Bell will continue to issue only one bill for services previously provided by the Bell System. Only one payment need be made by customers.

Southwestern Bell and other Bell operating companies are revising their bills before the scheduled breakup of AT&T as part of an overall plan of simulating the post-divestiture world as soon as possible.

"We want to make a smooth transition and help our customers to get accustomed to the changes by introducing the new bills now," Mr. West said.

Beginning with the November billing, he said, long distance charges for all Southwestern Bell customers are to be split into two categories. One set of listings will be for long distance charges from Southwestern Bell. These are for toll calls made within the surrounding service area, which Southwestern Bell is to continue handling.

Calls made outside the local calling area won't be handled by Southwestern Bell after Jan. 1, those calls are to be listed separately. The separate invoices reflect the fact that beginning next year, AT&T's long distance network will be a separate company not affiliated with Southwestern Bell's local phone service. Previously, all long distance calls were billed together.

Southwestern Bell will act as a billing agent for AT&T and has offered this service to other long distance companies.

Another change that will be implemented later is separate page listings for local service and equipment, which in the past were grouped together.

The reason for separate listings for service and equipment is because on Jan. 1, all equipment currently leased from Southwestern Bell will become the property of AT&T. Southwestern Bell, however, will continue as a billing agent for AT&T.

Since Southwestern Bell will continue to provide local service, that charge will be separate from the equipment.

Each page will list a phone number that customers can call for questions regarding the itemized charges. Each company will be responsible for handling questions concerning its services.

What's the Gas man doing here?

That's Roger Garms, Energas' Floydada manager.

You are likely to find him at any activity that relates to the well-being of the community. He is in business here just like the grocer, the clothing or farm store operator. What happens in the civic life of the town affects him, his family and his livelihood. As an Energas manager, he has a lot of responsibilities... and one of them is to help make the town a good place to live.

So, when you see an Energas man at a civic meeting or in your alley, you can be sure he's there for a good reason.

Energas people can do and want to.

Let's talk.

Information about your changing telephone service from Jim West, Community Relations Manager

Countdown to divestiture

It's now less than two months away... "it" being the break-up of the Bell System. On Jan. 1, 1984, Southwestern Bell and 19 other Bell operating companies will formally sever ties with AT&T in the largest separation in American corporate history.

No longer will Southwestern Bell and its 19 sister companies be affiliated with AT&T. No longer will the oft-used term "one Bell System" be applicable.

Instead, the Bell operating companies will be reorganized into seven independent regions (with Southwestern Bell making up one of those seven).

What this means to you is that beginning Jan. 1, the various telecommunications services you've previously received under one roof will come from two or more companies.

Southwestern Bell will provide local phone service, limited long distance service and various other offerings such as Custom Calling services, public telephones, mobile phone service and white and yellow page directories.

AT&T, on the other hand, will offer long distance service and terminal products, will retain its manufacturing and research arms (Western Electric and Bell Labs), and will assume ownership of all Bell-owned equipment presently being leased to customers on a monthly basis.

In preparation for the break-up, we at Southwestern Bell Telephone will be making changes in certain operational procedures before the end of the year so that "all systems will be go" come Jan. 1.

This phase-in will give you an opportunity to learn about, understand and ask questions concerning new procedures before they're permanently in place.

Here's one example of how we're preparing for a post-divestiture environment: Between now and the end of the year, you'll start being referred to AT&T Information Systems when you call Southwestern Bell Telephone to inquire about leased equipment.

Also, by the end of the year, all Southwestern Bell Telephone customers will notice a change in the way their monthly telephone charges are listed. Since different Bell companies will provide different services beginning in January, your monthly bill will be broken out accordingly — with each supplier's charges listed on separate pages.

We want you to know

As always, if you have questions about these or other matters related to your telephone service, feel free to contact me. Or, you can call Southwestern Bell Telephone's toll-free number for divestiture information — 1 800 555-5000 — anytime between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

In addition, complete details about various divestiture-related issues can be found in the insert which accompanies your monthly telephone bill.

At Southwestern Bell Telephone, we believe the more you know about what will and won't change with divestiture, the easier this transition to a new era in telecommunications will be for you.

One of the questions I get from time to time is, "What options are available to me on the installation of inside wiring?" Good question. Right now there are three options available to the residence customer. First, a customer can provide his own wiring. Second, a customer can have a contractor install the wiring. Third, we'll be glad to provide and maintain the wiring and bill you accordingly.

Remember, if you have something to talk about, don't hesitate to drop me a line.

Ambulance personnel certified

Metropolitan areas of Texas traditionally have provided emergency medical care through trained and certified emergency medical care personnel, but small towns and rural areas have depended heavily on volunteers.

A new Texas ambulance law states that, effective January 1, 1984, all Texas communities must comply with minimum standards of training and certification of emergency medical care personnel.

Variances will be granted to small communities and rural areas that can prove hardship (that they have only one person available for emergency medical care). These communities will then have to demonstrate efforts to comply with the standards.

"This law could have far-reaching implications on rural governments' ability to deliver emergency medical care," Charles P. Bubany, Texas Tech University professor of law, said.

Floydada will not have to worry about their emergency medical care people being qualified for their jobs.

All but two of the Floydada ambulance drivers have their ECA or EMT training. All of our ambulance attendants are certified.

Presently the ambulance service is trying to raise money to purchase a canopy for the front entrance of the hospital. The cost of the canopy will be about $2500.00. Anyone wishing to make a donation or a memorial for the purchase may contact the Caprock Ambulance fund at the hospital.

Free fingerprinting session slated

A fingerprinting session will be held on November 15. Parents should accompany their children to the Courthouse Agriculture building (located on the Southeast corner of the square) from the hours of 4 to 8 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Alpha Mu Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and Texas Farm Bureau. The Floyd County

Sheriff's Office will assist and provide training for the chapter members.

In the event that your child is kidnapped, missing or runaway, it is a good idea to keep a copy of fingerprints. Also, keep recent photos of your children on hand in the event that a search for a missing youngster becomes necessary. A written description should

Ambulance personnel certified

Metropolitan areas of Texas traditionally have provided emergency medical care through trained and certified emergency medical care personnel, but small towns and rural areas have depended heavily on volunteers.

A new Texas ambulance law states that, effective January 1, 1984, all Texas communities must comply with minimum standards of training and certification of emergency medical care personnel.

Variances will be granted to small communities and rural areas that can prove hardship (that they have only one person available for emergency medical care). These communities will then have to demonstrate efforts to comply with the standards.

"This law could have far-reaching implications on rural governments' ability to deliver emergency medical care," Charles P. Bubany, Texas Tech University professor of law, said.

Floydada will not have to worry about their emergency medical care people being qualified for their jobs.

All but two of the Floydada ambulance drivers have their ECA or EMT training. All of our ambulance attendants are certified.

Presently the ambulance service is trying to raise money to purchase a canopy for the front entrance of the hospital. The cost of the canopy will be about $2500.00. Anyone wishing to make a donation or a memorial for the purchase may contact the Caprock Ambulance fund at the hospital.

Free fingerprinting session slated

A fingerprinting session will be held on November 15. Parents should accompany their children to the Courthouse Agriculture building (located on the Southeast corner of the square) from the hours of 4 to 8 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Alpha Mu Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and Texas Farm Bureau. The Floyd County

Sheriff's Office will assist and provide training for the chapter members.

In the event that your child is kidnapped, missing or runaway, it is a good idea to keep a copy of fingerprints. Also, keep recent photos of your children on hand in the event that a search for a missing youngster becomes necessary. A written description should

Turbeville-Burleson repeat wedding vows Sept. 23

United Methodist Church of the Covenant in Arlington was the site for the 7 p.m. wedding ceremony uniting Terry Dianne Turbeville and Sterling Todd Burleson on September 23, 1983. Reading the vows was Don Spinks, minister of the United Methodist Church of the Covenant in Arlington.

The couple are the children of David Turbeville of Bedford and Georgia Turbeville of Arlington, Texas and Omar Burleson of Lockney and Rita Burleson of Andrews.

The altar was flanked with two white candelabras accented with greenery. An arrangement of pink carnations, white daisies, baby's breath and ivy centered the altar. White satin bows marked the pews.

Musical selections were presented by organist Wes Stewart of Arlington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of white silk organza over taffeta. The sleeveless gown featured a stand-up lace collar, fitted bodice and a deep yoke of Schiffler embroidered lace. The full skirt of silk organza was edged with a row of Venice rose design lace trim that completely circled the skirt and flowed into a chapel length train. The veil was of organza held with a row of Venice rose lace that completely circled the chapel length veil. She wore elbow length lace gloves.

She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations, white daisies, with touches of white button carnations, purple status, baby's breath and fern, intermingled with white satin ribbon streamers.

Following tradition, the bride wore pennies her shoes marking the birth dates of she and the groom as something old; something new was a pair of pearl earrings, which were a gift from the groom; something borrowed was her sister's anniversary ring, which she wore on her right hand; and something blue was her garter.

Dara Turbeville of Bedford attended her sister as maid of honor. Gay Sayen of Arlington and Gale Wages of Houston, both sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids.

Attire of the bridal attendants was of sheer illusion lined in taffeta. The identical dresses featured a sweetheart neckline with an illusion shoulder ruffle over the full elbow length sleeves. The long dresses had a fitted bodice and full skirts. They were all rose frost color. They carried nosegays of pink carnations, white daisies and baby's breath enhanced with pink and silver satin ribbon streamers.

Male attendants were John De Felice of Denton, best man; and Craig Ellison of Lockney, Steve Warren of San Angelo and Paul Turbeville, brother of the bride of Arlington, groomsmen.

Michael Chad Sayen, nephew of the bride of Arlington and the groomsmen acted as ushers.

A reception followed the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Don Wages and Mrs. Mike Sayen, sisters of the bride, assisted at the reception.

Jamie Edwards of Grand Prairie presided at the register.

The bride's table featured a three-tiered white wedding cake decorated with pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Crystal and silver appointments completed the table decor. The groom's table held a German chocolate cake served with coffee from a silver coffee service.

Following a weekend wedding trip to Dallas, the couple is at home in Bedford.

The bride graduated from Sam Houston High in Arlington and now attends Tarrant County Jr. College in Hurst. The groom graduated from Lockney High School and now attends North Texas State University in Denton. Both are employed by Dillard's Distribution Center in Ft. Worth.

A rehearsal brunch was hosted by the groom's parents at the Holiday Inn Great Southwest, Arlington, Friday morning.

Zumwalt wins state title

Deon Zumwalt, South Plains Honey Bee Queen, was named State Honey Bee Queen at the annual beekeepers association convention held in Austin Friday night at the Sheraton Crest Hotel where 350 were registered.

She competed with 4 other regional winners from the Rio Grande Valley, Texhoma, the Trinity Valley, and Austin.

The competitors were at least 18 years old, a regional queen and had never been married. They were judged on personal interviews, on an oral recitation of an essay at the convention, their ability to communicate with people as well as appearance. Their scrapbook was also judged.

"It was an honor; it really was," commented Zumwalt upon winning. "However, I had done a lot of work. I had done 140 promotions in 180 days just prior to the contest."

Zumwalt got into beekeeping in 1979 as a hobby with her dad and brother when they were given 2 hives by her uncle. When her brother left home, Zumwalt assumed more of the duties. They presently have 4 hives.

Miss Zumwalt was accompanied to the convention and contest by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Zumwalt of Floydada.

She was crowned State Honey Bee Queen by Cray Briggs, of Dallas, last year's South Plains Honey Bee Queen and first runnerup in the American contest.

"I want to visit as much of Texas as I can as the Texas Queen. The better I know Texans, the better I can represent my state so that Texas can take the American title."

Zumwalt will compete with 18 to 20 other girls on the national level at the American Honey Bee Contest in mid January in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

She welcomes the chance to give programs or make public appearances in behalf of the honey industry.

Appointments can be made by contacting Jamesie Colson, P.O. Box 2247, Lubbock, Texas 79408 or you may call (806) 744-6086.

UIL makes changes

How will the proposed changes in the present UIL standards effect the Floydada Independent School District?

Floydada school officials don't think the changes, if passed, will have that great an effect on the Floydada school system.

Floydada schools have always required three subjects be passed for students in the 7th through 12th grades participating in extracurricular activities. The passing grade in Floydada is 70 in comparison to UIL passing grade of 60. If the bill passes in February, students will be required to pass four subjects rather than three.

Floydada School Superintendent Jerry Cannon said "This will put more pressure on the students academically but should prove no problem for our students."

LORI BECKHAM SAM CRABTREE
Band Sweetheart Band Beau

Band director Richard Bouton said due to the fact that "Floydada's standards are already higher than UIL's it shouldn't effect the school's participation in extracurricular activities."

KAREN LLOYD
1st runner up

On the issue of revising the Five-year rule so that a child being retained in the seventh grade for competitive purposes would lose the final year of high school eligibility, Cannon said "we usually hold back students that are having scholastic problems when they are in the first grade."

All of the proposals are simply "leaning toward the academic" stated Cannon.

THE ST. MARY MAGDALEN CATHOLIC CHURCH held a Halloween Party October 29. Mothers and teachers dressed for the event.

Nursing Home Happenings

Monday morning began with anticipation of the Halloween party which the Companions n' Caring volunteers hosted for the residents. The party was worth all the anticipation! With a table covered with home baked cream pies for refreshments...success of the party was certain. Mr. Dubois really enjoyed the pies. He sampled a piece of each kind...and they were all good! Kim Sherman, our music therapy friend from M.H.M.R. Center in Plainview, joined us for the party and entertained with music a fun later in the afternoon. A special thanks to the Companions n' Caring volunteers who baked pies and helped with the party, and to the visitors who came.

On Halloween evening thirteen of the residents stayed up to welcome the "trick or treat" children. The residents enjoyed seeing the "little spooks" dressed in their halloween costumes. Thank you children for giving us all...A TREAT!

Monday and Tuesday was "beauty shop day" with Dolaras and Ruth busy fixing hair for the ladies. The other residents stayed busy with "coffee time", devotions, exercise class, Bible Study and just talking visiting with one another. Francis Childs enjoyed having her son and daughter-in-law attend devotions with her on Tuesday.

Wednesday, Sue, Una, Emmitt, Addie, Lura, Ruth, Ona, and Hallie played bingo. Sue and Lura won the most games and the most bananas. Lura was the black-out winner.

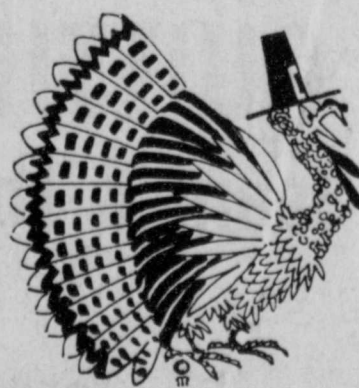

Thursday, everyone was happy to have Rev. Earl Blair lead the devotion time for us. It is a blessing for the dear people here when caring persons always have time for them. The bus trip on Thursday afternoon was especially enjoyable. After Iva, Bennie, Addie, Emmitt, Nannie Belle, Lura, Una, and Mrs. Birnie had ice cream cones and Dr. Peppers. Evelyn drove us to the Baptist Encampment. The scenery was beautiful. Everything was so green, the colors of some of the trees were changing, and there was water in the creek...the prettiest setting we have seen there all year. Evelyn then drove us around town showing us the yards, so colorful with marigolds, mums, geraniums and at last...green grass!

After supper on Thursday, Donna Anderson, Abby Battey, Mitzi Nixon, and Julianne Cornelius brought cocker spaniel puppies, complete with yellow ribbons around their necks, out for the residents to enjoy. Everyone really enjoyed holding, cuddling, and talking with the puppies. There was picture taking also, as each resident had their turn holding the puppies. The puppies enjoyed the attention; one was so content in Bennie Wilson's lap...she fell sound asleep. Thank you, girls...and puppies...for a delightful evening.

Nettie Adams joined the coffee time group on Friday morning and added interest to the discussions with her insights. Mrs. Adams, representing First Baptist Church, is now leading the devotion time on Fridays. Friday afternoon the movie fans were in their special places early to watch the two films...with popcorn again today.

A special welcome to all the volunteers and visitors who have taken time to remember their friends and relatives.

Retracing paths of courage

Remarks by Dennis A. Joyner
National Commander
Disabled American Veterans

I was in Vietnam only 32 days when I was wounded. On Veterans Day, 1969, I found myself in an Army hospital, struggling to heal and pull my life back together after losing both legs and an arm.

There, in that hospital ward, I learned that everybody makes sacrifices in war. Some sacrifices are just greater than others.

I was surrounded by so many young Americans who had made great sacrifices...whose bodies or minds had been torn by war. Some, like me, would never walk again. Others were blind or deaf.

All of us were examples of war's terrifying consequences of the sacrifices so many were duty-bound to make for our country.

I was in a hospital ward that contained pain and suffering, but that same ward was full of overflowing with courage, conviction and commitment.

The same courage my fellow veterans showed on the battlefield was everywhere on the ward. It was the courage to overcome pain and heal. It was the courage to pick up the pieces of physically broken lives and start anew.

You could look at the face of each patient in that ward and see the conviction that each brought to his personal struggle. It was the overpowering belief that "I will survive. I will heal. I will persevere."

And you saw through the pain and past the suffering that these young veterans had not lost their commitment to this nation and the values we cherish. If anything, for many, that commitment was made stronger by the battlefield they'd survived. They had seen, up close, what happens to a nation when its will is weakened. They had seen...and fought...the enemies of democracy and freedom.

These are some of memories that come back to me every year on November eleventh. Memories of the kid down the hall screaming out his pain in the middle of the night. Memories of the sweat that poured from a friend's face as he learned to walk on a plastic leg. Memories of the grins and cheers that accompanied the news that a patient had healed and would be discharged from the hospital.

Yes, Veterans Day means much more than just another holiday. It gives me a chance to retrace such scenes of courage and sacrifice. I recall how glad I was to make it back home alive. And I remember the awesome courage of so many who didn't.

I remember other scenes, though - scenes I couldn't understand when I left the hospital and went back to civilian life and college. They were the scenes of a society that had been ripped down the middle by the controversy of the Vietnam War.

I saw the hostility generated by that war spill over into hostility toward the veterans who had fought that war. Veterans, more than any other group of people, have earned the right to call themselves Americans. Yet they were branded as traitors. Veterans spilled their blood in defense of the values that made this nation great. Yet they were accused of forsaking those values.

In the process of heaping scorn on Vietnam veterans, the prestige of all of American's veterans suffered. It didn't matter whether a man or woman served in World War I, II, Korea or Vietnam. Veterans...all veterans...were systematically being denied the right to their price.

For me, the courage I'd seen on the battlefield and in the military hospital stood in painful contrast to the scorn thrown at America's veterans on the street.

When I saw what was happening, I feared for the future of America. For when you ridicule the defenders of a nation's values, you ridicule that nation.

My fears for America, however, were eased. They were tempered by the realization that no nation...anywhere in the world...can match the United States in its collective resiliency of spirit. We resolve our philosophical differences, heal our spiritual wounds, better than any group of people in the world. Our notions of freedom and democracy demand it of us. We are quick to defend those notions, quick to recognize our errors, and quick to seek compassionate solutions to our problems.

One year ago today, on this very spot, I saw what was, for many of us, the beginning of that healing process. During the National Salute to Vietnam Veterans, I saw a nation struggling mightily to bind the wounds that the Vietnam War had opened. I heard Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger say that, never again, would this nation send its young into a war it did not intend to win.

Many of us present during the week-long celebration felt we were witnessing a rebirth of national spirit. And in the process, we witnessed a return of pride; pride not just in being a Vietnam veteran, but a veteran, as well, of any of America's wars.

People today still question America's involvement in Vietnam. And until we're sure we have the answers, that questioning is good. People today still ask me questions; questions that tell me they are still confused about that war, still confused about our national policies back then.

Was I bitter about losing three of my limbs during the war? Did I think it was worth the sacrifice in a war the United States didn't win? Did I feel guilt or shame about my service in Vietnam?

Would I do it all over again? My answers to these questions, I have no doubt, are much the same as the answers given by the majority of this nation's veterans.

No, I'm not bitter about any sacrifices I made to serve my country. You serve, you sacrifice and you thank God you're a citizen of the greatest nation the world has ever seen.

The principles that make us serve our country affect millions of lives...not only in the United States, but around the world. Those principles don't make us want to die in a war. But they make us proud to offer our life, if it will keep this country and its people free. Our willingness to fight to the death in defense of the precious freedoms we cherish is not an unusual American trait.

If you think only a few feel that way, look around you. Look here at Arlington National Cemetery and the row after row of brave Americans who felt freedom was worth fighting and dying for. Look to the countless military cemeteries across this nation and around the world. Look to America's history, a litany of people who said, time after time, "What I've got here is too good, too dear to risk losing. I must fight and fight to the death if need be to defend this wonderful land called America."

Oh, yes. I would do it all over again. America is worth it. The ideals for which our country stands are worth it. The American people-with their dedication to freedom and justice, here and throughout the world-are most certainly worth it.

But we are particularly reminded on this November eleventh that our fellow veterans are worth it. They're worth every bit of our loyalty and support. My fellow veterans of all this nation's wars are the strongest reason why I can say...I'm proud I served my country. I'm proud to call myself a veteran.

To the man who lost his sight in the explosion of an artillery shell in the trenches of World War I, I say, "Be proud too!" To the nurse who continued to give medical aid to the wounded after she was captured at Bataan, I say, "Be proud!"

To those of us who came home from the wars in Korea and Vietnam to a society bent on stripping away that pride, I say, "That pride is not theirs to take. It's yours. You bought it with blood and pain and sacrifice. Be proud!"

proud!"

In recent years, considerable attention has been given to the readjustment problems experienced by many Vietnam veterans. There's nothing wrong with this.

In fact, the Disabled American Veterans is proud of the role it played in bringing these problems to light. We're proud that we helped develop and refine the methods that are proving successful in dealing with these problems.

But in focusing on these and other problems that veterans face, we must never forget to give a full measure of credit to those who have readjusted well. We must not forget those who gave greatly to their country when they were young and in uniform, and continue to contribute to our society today in civilian life.

When we were in uniform, we learned about things like discipline and dedication. As young soldiers, sailors, airmen or Marines we found true meaning for word like loyalty and duty. They were lessons etched on our souls by the realities of combat.

For most of America's veterans, those lessons are the foundation of our lives. Those same lessons are the reasons why America has no finer citizens than veterans.

Dedication...to our homes, our families, our communities, our nation. Loyalty...to all these things and the values that made this nation great. Duty...to God and the principles of democracy and freedom. And the discipline...to never turn our backs on our fellow veterans, to never forsake the values for which we fought so dearly and to never forget our pride in being a veteran.

Elderly taxpayers may file affidavit to postpone paying delinquent taxes

A taxpayer aged 65 or older may take advantage of a special type of property tax relief—deferred payment of delinquent taxes on his homestead—by filing a sworn affidavit at the Floyd County Appraisal District office.

According to Shelia Faulkenberry, chief appraiser of the district, after the "over-65 tax deferral" affidavit has been properly filed, taxing units may not press or initiate delinquent tax suits on the homestead involved as long as the elderly taxpayer owns and resides at that property.

If a lawsuit has already been initiated to collect delinquent taxes on the homestead, an affidavit asserting age and ownership of the property must be filed with the court in which the suit is pending, Faulkenberry said.

Faulkenberry said that forms for the deferral are available from the Floyd County Appraisal District office. The form should be completed and signed by the applicant and his signature witnessed by a notary public or other official authorized to take oaths, she added.

For the elderly homeowner considering application for tax deferral, Faulkenberry stressed that it allows postponing payment, but that a lien remains on the property for delinquent taxes, penalties and interest. "Those amounts continue to accrue during the deferral period," she said. "Once the applicant no longer qualifies for deferral—that is, if he no longer owns or resides at the homestead—all those accrued amounts become due and payable. Taxing units at that time may sue and foreclose on the accrued delinquencies, penalties and interest."

The over-65 taxpayer may pay, or fail to pay, any taxes due on the homestead without altering the protection of the deferral, Faulkenberry said.

More information is available by contacting the Floyd County Appraisal District at 806-983-5256, County Courthouse, Room 107, Floydada, Texas 79235.

ENVIRONMENTAL FACTORS AFFECTING INDOOR PLANTS PART 2

Last week we covered the first three factors affecting indoor plants growth: light, humidity, and air. This week we will address the other four major factors: temperature, water, soil mixture, and fertilizers.

4. Temperature—Most house plants tolerate the normal temperature fluctuation in the home, but they will grow better if the temperature is ten to fifteen degrees less at night than during the day. This cooler temperature reduces food loss at night when the plants are not manufacturing food.

Most foliage plants will do best at night temperatures of 60-50 degrees F. African violet, gloxinia, poinsettia, and begonia also require a night temperature above 60 degrees F. However, most other flowering plants will have a more intense flower color and a longer flower life if the night temperature is kept between 50 and 60 degrees F.

5. Water—Whether plants are watered from the top, bottom, or by use of a wick makes little difference. The important thing is that the soil be kept at the right moisture level and that it does not become soggy.

Plants should be checked daily and watered only when the soil becomes slightly dry. When watering from the top, apply enough water so that some drips from the drainage hole, and after about ten minutes, discard the water that remains in the saucer. Even watering from the bottom, the pots should not be allowed to stand in water for extended periods of time.

Plants in sunlight and those in small pots and actively growing will require frequent watering. On the other hand, newly potted plants and those growing in containers without drainage holes should be watered more sparingly.

After watering plants growing in containers without drainage holes, the container should be tilted on the side so as to allow excessive water to drain freely. Soggy soil conditions which limit soil aeration is the most frequent cause of loss of plants growing in such containers.

6. Soil Mixtures—The essential characteristics of a good soil are that it hold water and at the same time be porous enough to allow air to get to the roots. Perlite and vermiculite are good substitutes for peat moss.

The following three types of soil mixtures are suggested as guides:

(a) For most flowering plants: 1 part soil, 1 part peat moss, 1 part coarse sand by volume.

(b) For foliage plants and some flowering plants such as African violets, tuberous begonia and gloxinia: 2 parts soil, 2 parts peat moss, and 1 part coarse sand by volume.

(c) For cacti and succulents: 1 part soil, 1 part peat moss, and 2 parts coarse sand by volume.

7. Fertilizers—House plants should be fertilized only during periods of active growth. Regular periodic fertilization during the seasons when plants grow very slowly may cause serious plant injury. For this reason, it is generally best to use the appearance of the plant itself to govern the time of need of fertilization. As long as the plant maintains its normal green color and is producing a sufficient number of flowers, no additional fertilization is needed. As a general rule, the average house plant will require about four or five feedings a year.

Follow the directions on the package for applying the water soluble fertilizers and if there is any doubt, cut this rate in half and apply more frequently. For applying dry fertilizers, such as an 8-8-8, about one-half teaspoon to a 6" plant is adequate.

I like country living because ...

BY CHARLES TAYLOR
Editor, The Texas Farmer-Stockman

This has nothing whatever to do with fertilizer efficiency, foreign trade, tractor maintenance or PIK participation. It doesn't get into yield per acre or good irrigation practices. In fact, it doesn't have anything at all to do with how succeed in agriculture, only how to enjoy it.

I'm showing my age here. Some of the items in this list date back for more years than I care to admit. A goodly helping of them probably don't even exist anymore, except in the back of an old dresser drawer, out in a corner of the barn or in memory. But just to keep things even there's also a sprinkling of good stuff from a newer generation as well.

Here goes with 112 things most people, including me, like about country living.

*Overalls. Holsteins lined up for milking. Mailboxes with the flag up. Real front porches with real swings on them. New cut alfalfa. Roads that jog around big, old cottonwoods.

*Dogs that wait for the schoolbus. Country stores that still sell cheese by the hunk and bologna by the slice. Clover.

*Fourth grade boys at the county fair in new cowboy boots. Pickups parked around country churches on Sunday morning. Syrup buckets. Club calves. Stone fences.

*A martin house without sparrows. Three rows of blackeyed peas out along the edge of a cotton field. Iron bridges. Country towns that still don't need a traffic light.

*A tree full of roosting guineas as the sun goes down. Lone elms left standing in the middle of wheat fields. Butter-milk.

*Feed sacks made of real burlap. Mesquite log fires. Baling wire. A drink of well water from a galvanized bucket that hangs down from a squealing pulley.

*Whippoorwills. Hats with brims wide enough so your ears don't get sunburned. Barlow knives. Double bit axes.

*Ducks on a pond. Gates. Tall pine trees in low fog. Roads that don't go anywhere in particular, not even to the county seat. Colts, calves and lambs.

*Rain. Hilltops good for looking off of. Log walls still standing on old barns. Mockingbirds that chase off cats. Coffee. Hardware stores. Country schools.

*Cornbread. Big biscuits. Low water crossing over rocky creeks. The smell of cottonseed meal. Yucca in bloom. Windmills.

*Well worn harness. Brown wrapping paper. Red bandanas. Kerosene lanterns. Spurs. Tin cups.

*Denim. Silos. Nails. Roasting ears. Windrows. Wood stoves. Dominoes. Fourth of July rodeos.

*Fiddles. Grass. Wild plums. Broke-in boots. Pinto beans. Rhode Island red roosters.

*Branding irons. Brush arbors. Singing from hymnbooks with square notes. Dried apple pies. A wave from the pickup you just met. Green tomato relish. Pitchforks. Hemp ropes.

*Come-alongs. Diesel starting fluid. Blackberry cobbler. Turnip greens. Trail made by dogs. Horses with their head over the fence. Rusty threshing machines.

*A spare set of gate keys. Red eye gravy. Screw down hose clamps, not the snap on kind. PVC pipe. Elevators three miles away poking up on the horizon. Wagons.

*A blue ribbon tacked on your daughter's bedroom wall. Church steeples. Smokehouses.

*Brown eggs. Terraces. Full planter boxes. Halters. Hay. Neighbors.

*Sleeping porches. Show rings. Kids fishing in farm ponds. Cattle in deep grass. Feed stores.

By Mary True

Within the last few years a new appliance has emerged in the small kitchen appliance market—the FOOD PROCESSOR. A food processor is a versatile countertop appliance that claims to do the work of a mixer, blender, grater, shredder, slicer, knife, and whisk.

All the food processors basically have the same parts—a base houses the motor, a bowl that attaches into the base, a pusher to feed food through the tube on the top of the machine and a variety of blades and discs that fit in the bowl to do the processing. Most processors come with the slicing plate, shredding plate, steel blade (for blending, chopping, and grating) and a plastic blade (for mixing soft foods or liquids and kneading). Optional blades may be purchased for special purposes.

As versatile as the food processor may be, they can't do everything. Food processors can't whip cream or egg whites and many of the processors lack the power required to knead dough for breadmaking. The capacity of the food processor bowls may limit the quantity of food processed.

Tasks that can be performed by a food processor (some brands will complete a task more satisfactorily than others): CHOPS—Onions, parsley, mushrooms, raw meat, nuts and vegetables—makes crackers and bread crumbs; SLICES—Sausage, onions, potatoes, cucumbers, carrots, zucchini, mushrooms, fruits and cooked meats; SHREDS—Cheese, onions, carrots, raw and cooked meats, shreds cabbage uniformly for cole slaw; BLENDS—Dips, dressings, sauces, and soups—make delicious fillings and frosting; GRATES—Parmesan, Romano and other cheeses, onions, coconut, carrots—even potatoes for potato pancakes; MIXES—Cake, cookie and waffle batters, salad dressings and luscious dessert toppings; KNEADS—A variety of doughs for quick breads yeast breads, biscuits, rolls and coffee cakes, and pastry; PUREES—Peas, tomatoes and fruits for delicious soups, stew and sauces.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

COTTON TODAY

A NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL SERVICE

Cotton Use Reported: Domestic textile mill use of cotton in September was at an annual rate of 6 million bales, according to the National Cotton Council.

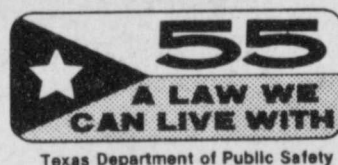

This was 2.7 percent below the August figure but 16.1 percent higher than the level a year ago.

Although September use did not match the strong August rate, it compares favorably with results for June and July, the Council says. Moreover, September's consumption exceeded the January rate by 7.9 percent.

Cotton's share of total fiber use slipped to 22.5 percent, compared with 24.1 percent in August and 23.1 percent in September, 1982. On the cotton system spindles, cotton's share settled at 60.3 percent, following a 61.1 percent mark in August and 60.5 percent a year ago.

Export Sales Reported: Sales of cotton for 1983-84 delivery increased a net 88,200 running bales during the week ended October 20, according to the National Cotton Council.

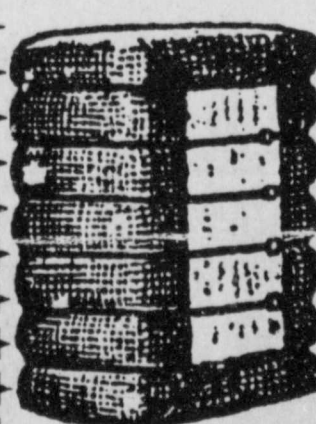

South Korea was the top buyer with 23,400 bales. Other major buyers were Indonesia, 21,300; and Japan, 10,700 bales.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with rules and orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to re-file evidence and appropriate tariff(s) in support of a request to establish rates for the use of certain complex inside telephone wiring in the amount of $54.5 million annually. This request was previously a part of the considerations in Docket 5141 and now has been re-docketed as Docket 5420.

Customers who do not own the Complex Inside Wire associated with their Customer Premises Systems (such as PBX and Key Systems), and who utilize Southwestern Bell's wiring after January 1, 1984, could be affected by this request. On January 1, 1984, all of the Customer Premises Systems presently provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be transferred to a subsidiary of AT&T and that subsidiary of AT&T will be almost exclusively responsible for the charges pursuant to the proposed tariff on January 1, 1984. After January 1, 1984, customers who purchase their Complex Customer Premises Equipment and do not purchase, but continue to use, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's inside wire will be subject to the charges proposed in the tariff.

The proposed effective date for these new rates is January 1, 1984.

Persons interested in intervening in this matter should file a written motion expeditiously with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, as the Hearing on the Merits in Docket 5420 is set for November 21, 1983.
