The Lamplighter

By Ken Towery

It may take a little while for this to get into print, but as it is being written, I have just come from a luncheon meeting with Ross Perot, the Dallas computer magnate who headed up Governor Mark White's educational study committee.

The day before, yesterday as this is being written, White announced he wants an additional $4.8 billion from the people of Texas to help fulfill his campaign promises primarily in the area of public education. A special session of the legislature may well begin about June 4, according to our lobby friends (they always get the word first), to take up the Governor's proposals. So the battle will soon be joined.

Few issues tend to concern Americans more, particularly on the local level, than the education of their children. It is a subject on which very few people are completely neutral, perhaps because each of us have personal experience with the subject. Survey after survey of Texans has placed the issue of education, along with the expense of it, at or near the top of voter concerns.

As things now stand more than half the taxes Texans pay, on state and local level, goes to educate their children. It will soon be even more.

Obviously there are reasons for our citizens to be somewhat alarmed by what they see throughout our education establishment. There is probably no need, at this late date, to go too deeply into the reasons for this. It was apparent two decades ago, when we turned our schools into arenas for social experimentation, that we were going to end up this way. Education took a back seat, nationally, to what was perceived as a greater good, that being the integration of our society under force law. That may or may not have been wise social policy, but nevertheless the result was just short of chaos. Broad policies had to be adopted which affected and afflicted schools far beyond the point of "original jurisdiction." Some perfectly good school buildings had to be closed as schools were combined, boundaries changed, and children bussed hither and yon to satisfy federal judges and liberal politicians. Endless arguments ensued as to what could or should be expected of students under those circumstances. The practice of "social promotions" became common, wherein some students were passed upward to the next class simply because teachers and administrators did not want the hassle of defending themselves against charges of "discrimination."

Finally the people have had enough. We will obviously never be able to "go back" to a more tranquil day. Time and tide has seen to that. But we can at least take what we have and improve upon it, if we put our collective minds to work on the subject.

Mr. Perot is an effective and persuasive proponent of his position. But I am not convinced that his recommendations (which are essentially Mark White's recommendations) are the complete answer. I am not at all convinced that the centerpiece of the White-Perot "reforms" will achieve the desired result. Both Perot and White are advocating that the elected State Board of Education be made appointive, with the Governor, of course, making the appointments. The makeup of the elected State Board, as it now exists, leaves much to be desired. A perusal of Mr. White's appointments to this point however, indicates he would do no better, and quite probably would do much worse. Perot says White has given him his personal assurance that nothing but honest qualifications for the job will be considered when he begins looking for members of the new Board. That would be a welcome switch, but at this point we only have the record before us.

Nor do I think it wise to downgrade the vocational training offered in our public schools. It is true of course that vocational activity frequently becomes disruptive to academic learning, particularly when schools go overboard to the

The Leibfrieds remember

Old Settlers Day in Floyd County makes it an auspicious opportunity to recognize long-time residents. Lorin Leibfried, who will be 79 years young the 22nd of June, was Floydada's first city mail carrier and retired after nearly 44 years of service on June 23, 1972. Bennie, his wife, refused to comment on her age when Lorin laughed and said "Everything, around here is an antique, but the dog."

Lorin, who is a second generation German, can recall moments in history that most Americans have only read about. During the first World War when Germany was the adversary, Lorin remembers government agents periodically searching their home to determine if the Leibfried family was hoarding rationed goods. However, he emphasizes that the community bore no animosity towards the Leibfrieds even though there were few German families in the area. Leibfried moved to Floyd County from Fisher County in 1924.

Describing the changes seen in Floydada through the years Lorin and Bennie stressed that "Floydada people still have that hospitable honest spirit, but there have been many cosmetic changes." During the twenties every building around the Square had a business. "Country people came into town on Saturday and stayed until midnight. Businesses tried to stay open until everyone went home." Leibfried remembered. There were three theatres in town in the twenties and thirties. Between 1922 and 1924, half of the square was paved, and all residential housing had windmills.

In 1924, the post office was located behind the bank, next to Wannie Hilton's Barber Shop. City delivery started in 1929 and Leibfried was the city's first mail carrier. The salary was $1700 full time for one year and he received a $100.00 bonus each year.

During the Depression, Leibfried was the only carrier and he made deliveries twice a day. In 1926, the Leibfrieds burned maize heads and cotton seed in a coal stove for fuel because the market was so depressed. Two banks failed in Floydada during the Depression, however, according to Bennie, "this did not affect them adversely, since they did not have an over abundance of money." Also, both had meager salaries that saw them through the rough times. Bennie recalls with humor that "cotton went to 4 cents per pound and when Lorin bought a new suit, it took eight bales of cotton to pay for it."

During the Dustbowl, in 1934 and 35, Lorin had to wet a handkerchief over his face for protection against the suffocating dust and gale-force winds. Through all the wind and dirt, however, Lorin never lost a letter to his knowledge.

After the conclusion of World War II, the country became more prosperous. Lorin philosophized that "when the farmer prospers, then everyone does. This was especially evident during Ike's administration. It was a boom time!" During WWII, Bennie worked at the ration board and related, "Lorin could get extra stamps for additional shoes, since he was a mail carrier. Salaries were frozen and stamps were used to buy many necessities, especially tires and gas."

When asked about presidential administrations, both Leibfrieds agreed that Hoover's was among the worst. Lorin was convinced that "Roosevelt put the country back on its feet and helped everyone with the New Deal." Leibfried believes that "the current administration needs to concentrate on balancing the budget."

Lorin states, that in his opinion, "the U.S. began losing esteem in the eyes of the world when Roosevelt's administration kept Patton from going into Berlin and let the Russians in at the Yalta Conference. During Eisenhower's administration, foreign aid was freely given, and it seems that the more other countries received, the more they hated the United States."

Retirement does not apply to the Leibfrieds; they always are occupied with various hobbies. Both are involved in needlepoint. Lorin also hooks rugs and Bennie quilts and does crewel embroidery. Lorin also makes between 250 and 500 large patties of peanut brittle per year which have earned him the name of "Mr. Peanut Brittle".

Bennie always can ascertain when Lorin is bored, because with ingredients for the patties always on hand, he gets into the kitchen and makes a batch.

Regarding his wife, Lorin warmly emphasizes that "she is the boss of the bunch and pulls me along." The couple have one daughter, LaJuana Jackson who is a science teacher at Perryton, three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

extent that students spend excessive time away from the classrooms. But there is no reason why the two, academic achievement and vocational training, cannot go hand in hand.

I know of course that I am not a good example, but during my high school years, long ago, I was very active in the Future Farmers of American organization, as were many farm boys. While many of our readers might argue the point, I do not believe it seriously undermined whatever capacity I might then have had for intellectual growth. We have to look elsewhere for the answer to that problem.

Many of the recommendations by Mr. Perot and his committee will be beneficial, if adopted. Despite all the arguments to the contrary, one cannot escape the moral truth that good teachers ought to be paid more than poor teachers, and good students ought not to suffer from the hands of educators who think like politicians or politicians who try to be educators. That is exactly what happens when all teachers, and all students, are considered on a par and treated accordingly.

Just as decisions regarding war and peace are too important to be left to the generals, so is education too important to be left to the colleges of education. The people themselves are going to have to get involved. After all, they pay the bill.

The legislative battles will soon begin. If you have views on what should be done, let Foster Whaley know. He's our legislator from this District, and he would probably like to hear from you.

Caprock serves community

Caprock Hospital in its present location opened its doors in October, 1967.

In conjunction with National Hospital Week and Texas Hospital Week, May 6-12, it is interesting to note how many improvements and additions have been made at the local facility in the last year.

Four heart monitors have been purchased. To be implemented in the intensive care unit. The remaining two, telemetries, are traveling monitors for use in the patients' rooms.

New fetal heart monitors have also been purchased for obstetrics. In addition a new isolette is used in delivery and the nursery for all newborns. An infant warmer has also been obtained for ICU care. Approximately 10 babies per month are delivered by physicians at Caprock.

The physical therapy department has had the most transition of any of the departments. A new blood gas machine for monitoring oxygen in the blood is only one of the new pieces of equipment that has been purchased in the almost totally new department. Caprock offers respiratory and physical therapy on an outpatient basis.

An annual fund raiser is scheduled for purchasing new equipment for the ambulance. Last year a stretcher was bought with those funds. A concession stand, sponsored by the hospital, is planned at Old Settlers but a fundraiser has not been set. The ambulance crew consists of four certified drivers and four attendants who stand ready to serve on a 24-hour basis.

The 40 bed hospital provides 85-90 general surgeries each year with a crew of four assisting the surgeon at all times. Services by three anesthetists are available.

Prenatal classes are presently being offered. New classes are offered about every six weeks. Aerobics are offered several times annually.

Floydada is fortunate to have a medical facility adequate to serve the needs of the area with the most up-to-date equipment. It is a vital ingredient in the growth of our community.

Party heads for state

The Floyd County Republican Party converged Saturday, May 12, in the First National Bank in Floydada with 25 attending. Albert Scheele, who was re-elected County Chairman in the Republican Primaries, May 5, presided over the meeting. Delegates elected to attend the State Convention were Henry Winter of Lockney, Bill Hale of Floydada, and Albert Scheele of Lockney. Alternates chosen were Carolyn Hale of Floydada, John Farris of Floydada and Keith Jackson, Mayor of Providence. Resolutions approved and sent as considerations for the State Convention were to support President Reagan's stand on reinstating prayer in the public schools and to support free trade in agriculture.

Preston Watson retires after serving 34 years

MR. AND MRS. PRESTON WATSON

"I've always heard that fish bite better in the Spring and now I will have a chance to find out," confided Preston Watson regarding his approaching retirement.

Thursday, May 10, Floydada recognized Watson for 34 years of dedicated service to its citizens, young people, and schools.

Watson, hired as head athletic coach in 1950, held the position for 10 years. After a brief hiatus, Watson returned to the Floydada Public Schools as a Texas History teacher in 1966, then as D.E. coordinator. 1974 was Watson's last year in high school as assistant principal and athletic director. Watson has remained at R.C. Andrews grade school for the last 10 years.

Mixed emotions regarding retirement have filled the few remaining days of school. Although he will miss the children, Watson related that he is looking forward to retirement with his wife, Laverne, who has been the 'anchor in his life'. Watson plans to travel extensively looking for antiques, combining business with pleasure, since Laverne is an antique dealer.

Noting the changes in the school curriculum and activities, Watson reminisced that "upon arriving in Floydada there was only a two man coaching staff and coaches were responsible for delivering boys home after workout. It was often nine or after when the coaches finally arrived home themselves. The Quarterback Club was soon organized and the parents took turns taking the team home relieving the coaches of the extra duty." Watson remarked that "the parents and townspeople have always been very supportive of the athletic activities."

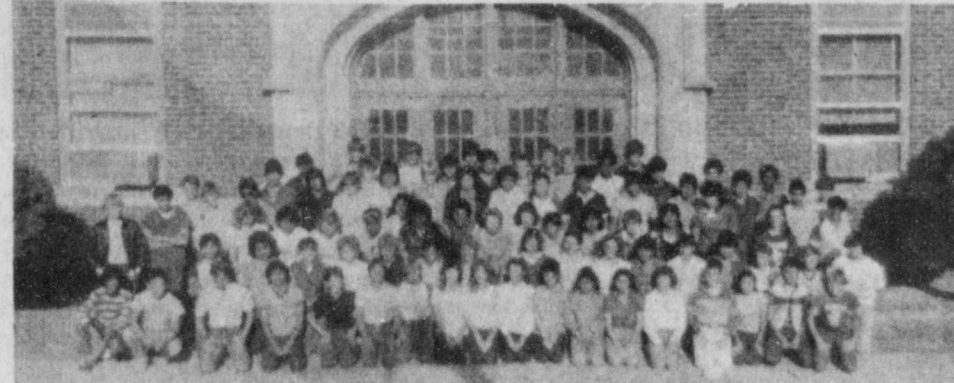

"Sports discipline young people teaching them values and goals." Watson "often measured his boys by how dedicated they were and in the men who persevered, he can see that dedication today in whatever pursuits they followed."

1952 signified one of his most memorable years in the teaching profession. As head coach, the Floydada Whirlwinds had won 10 consecutive football games with only seven total points scored against them. The bi-district playoffs were to be held in Amarillo and the adversary turned out to be Phillips, a football powerhouse. To put the icing on the cake, it began snowing in Amarillo. Watson excitedly recalls that "the boys could not stand up on the field, but kept slipping on the snow. At half-time the score was 7 to 0 in Pampa's favor. Watson sent someone to town for tennis shoes to fit the entire team. The tennis shoes replaced the cleats and Floydada was victorious, scoring 13 to Phillips 7. However, the following week, Childress tromped on the Whirlwinds ruining their chances for state." Watson philosophized that "in athletics, not only do students learn to win, but they learn to lose."

STATE WINNERS—Winners in woodwork state competition at San Antonio, May 11 and 12 were: F.L. Williams [not pictured], who won 2nd place with an antique washstand; Rene Garcia, who placed first with a perfect score of 60 points on his step table; Manuel Surez, who placed first on a dining table; Elesto Ovalle, also a first place winner with a bookshelf; and Roy Hill, another first place winner with a china hutch [not pictured]. The shuffle board game [shown] was a fifth place winner for Dennis Gooch and Scott Jarrett [not pictured]. Commissioners inpose new taxes on vehicles

A source of controversy in Commissioners Court Monday, May 14, was a resolution implementing a new tax in Floyd County. The resolution was passed with Choise Smith, Jack Lackey, and Sam Spence voting for the measure and Bob Jarrett voting against it with Thomas Warren abstaining.

The adopted resolution reads "Each vehicle in Floyd County will be charged an additional fee of $5.00 for registering a vehicle in the state with the proceeds being deposited in the County Road and Bridge Funds."

Jack Lackey and Choise Smith were both convinced that by adding this additional tax, it would take the tax burden off of property owners by forcing those who are not shouldering their share in the County, and taxing them. Lackey believed that "with the additional revenue, it might be possible to lower the ad valorem tax rate." Bob Jarrett voted against the measure citing the fact that "he could not conscientiously vote for additional taxes in the County when they could be faced with a surplus of revenue without the tax."

The following requests and contracts for the use of county equipment and machinery for private farm work were approved: Pat Frizzell, Doyle Poole, Eddie Smith, Joy Ward, and Paul Hrbacek.

Bud Barton and several area farmers met with the court concerning a county road which passes in front of the Barton residence. Gravel trucks traveling this road cause an unhealthy amount of dust affecting residents of the house and nearby fields. The County Judge will contact Jack Dill, owner of the caliche pit about the problem and will report on his answer at a later date.

Robert Webb, Lockney Fire Chief, appeared before the Court regarding a new truck to replace the 1964 International that the department now has. This will be considered in next year's budget.

A motion was made by Jack Lackey that $40,000 be transferred to the precincts with each precinct receiving $10,000 from the Revenue Sharing Fund.

Dr. Rex Allen of the Texas State Department of Health met with the court to help locate a clinic site for the Health Department in Floyd County. Services provided by the proposed clinic would be adult health services such as high blood pressure; family planning services; maternity services (prenatal care); well child conferences; crippled children's services; a disabled children's program; immunizations; tuberculosis clinic services; and information and treatment regarding venereal disease. Allen stated that these services would primarily be for lower income families. Allen added that for example, if a mother did not receive proper prenatal care which resulted in a handicapped child, the County and State would be out the added expense of care and treatment.

Discussed among the Commissioners were the pros and cons of a future clinic. The general consensus was that the County might not be able to afford such a facility and the situation would have to be researched further. The County Judge will look for a site and report to the court at a later date.

Randy Hollums appeared before the court requesting to relocate offices of the District Attorney to the Floyd County Courthouse as soon as possible. When the Professional Prosecutor's Act goes into effect, additional expenses will be incurred such as new office equipment and additional compensation for a secretary's salary. Members of the court discussed the feasibility of the move and will arrive at a decision at a later date.

Present were the following members: Choise Smith, Floyd County Judge; Sam Spence, Commissioner of Precinct #1; Bob Jarrett, Commissioner of Precinct #2; Thomas Warren, Commissioner of Precinct #3; and Jack Lackey, Commissioner, of Precinct #4.

JUNE WEDDING PLANNED—Mr. and Mrs. Marion Carter of Kirk, Colorado announce the engagement of their daughter Rhonda Kay, to Danny Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas of Lockney. A June 9 wedding will be held in First Assembly of God Church in Lockney.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

By Florence Van Hoose

Monday morning devotions were by Trinity Church. Shirley Varner, Mildred Thrasher, Lillie Cranford, sang. I read the 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians and Lillie led in prayer. In the afternoon Janice came from Plainview for ceramics. The residents always enjoy painting ceramics.

Tuesday morning devotions were omitted because the Rev. Neeley Richardson was unable to be here. He came early for the banana break. Several of the residents gathered around the TV and watched Price Is Right, which is real good therapy for the residents. It keeps them in touch with products-prices-excitement. In the afternoon we had a good time of Bible Study about Jesus as the King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Wednesday morning devotions were by City Park Church of Christ. The singers were Perry Zumwalt, Beulah Baker, Mary Spears, Eva Tackett, Lorilla Bradley and Elva Blum. Perry Zumwalt spoke about offering our lives as a living sacrifice and reaping the reward in this life and also eternity. In the afternoon we played bingo. Sue Thompson bingo'ed first and got thirty cents for coke money. Lura Brashears bingo'ed the most times and Ollie Birnie, and Sue Thompson bingo'ed on the blackout game. Bananas, candy, gum, sugarfree candy, and graham crackers were the prizes.

Thursday morning devotions were by the Rev. Earl Blair. I was in Lubbock for the monthly Activity Director's meeting. In the afternoon we had a class of crafts. The residents had given away all the book markers we have made so they were anxious to make more.

Friday morning devotions were by Mary Corley and Nettie Adams. Mary spoke about Grace. She used the scripture, "Blessed is the Nation whose God is the Lord." Eighteen attended. In the afternoon we went on the bus ride. We went out to Jessie Stuart's home and looked at her beautiful Iris's and she served some juice and donuts. Then we went on to Ralls and went shopping for a craft magazine, then on to the Dairy Queen and bought an ice cream cone. Those residents going on the bus ride were A.J. Huckabee, Emmitt Lawrence, Una Clark, Beno Wilson, Ollie Birnie, Addie Lindley, and Lura Brashears.

South Plains News

By Mrs. M.M. Julian

South Plains, May 14th:

Mother's Day was a lovely day on the plains, with morning services here at the South Plains Baptist Church, and at night Baccalaureate Services at 8:00 o'clock in the First Baptist Church in Floydada for our South Plains senior graduates. From the Baptist Church here we have two members who are graduating, Mitzi Julian and Stanley Sanders. There are six students from our area, and we are so proud of all of them, and wish them happiness and good luck as they go out into the world to make their living.

Visitors at the Baptist Church Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Wilson (Sue and Johnnie) and their son, Loran, from Crosbyton, who accompanied his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John and Oleta Wilson of Floydada where they were spending Mother's Day. Johnnie and Sue formerly lived here.

Mr. and Mrs. Nina and Richard Sanders had their oldest daughter, Regina and her husband, Bobby Craddock of Sundown here with them for Mother's Day and graduation and Baccalaureate services. Stanley was in the graduation services. The family had spent church services in Plainview with her mother, as they attended with her.

Mrs. Letha Mulder came home on Tuesday evening from the Central Plains Hospital in Plainview and is doing well at her home we are glad to say.

Kristi Julian from Texas Tech at Lubbock was here Sunday with her parents and then came back for Baccalaureate. Tuesday night she attended graduation services at the Floydada High School where her sister, Mitzi was in the graduation class of 1984.

Mrs. Barbara Chapman was in our area visiting different places Saturday morning. She is from Plainview and was formerly a teacher here at South Plains.

Mrs. Terry Julian's grandmother, Mrs. Kafir of Roscoe passed away in Abilene Tuesday night, and her services were held there on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. She had been an invalid for some time. We send our sympathy to all the family.

Mrs. Joyce Osborne and Mrs. Mamie Wood attended on May 7th, the W.M.U. Day at camp the past week, which was held at the Plains Baptist Assembly.

Mrs. Mamie Wood and Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Osborne were present at the Caprock Associational Workers' Conference in Silverton Tuesday, May 8th, at the First Baptist Church in Silverton. The Baptist W.M.U. speakers and the Caprock Associational speakers were just exceptionally good, according to those who attended.

Wednesday, May 9th, Hobby Club members met at the lovely, spacious home of Mrs. Neta Marble, at 11:00 a.m. for what has become, in the club an annual event with a luncheon, and everyone brought delicious dishes to enjoy. The party began with prayer by Mrs. Dot Cummings.

At the business meeting which followed the luncheon roll call was held with Mrs. Navolia Kinslow asking each one to give "A Game I Enjoy Playing." Mrs. Bonnie Julian brought the Thought for the Day. Fourteen were present for roll call. Games of Trivia were to be played later. Mrs. Sara Probasco reported on the Art Association and those who wish to learn more about this will want to meet in the Floydada First National Bank this coming Monday night at 7:30 p.m. and at the 1st National Bank in Lockney at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday night.

The next Hobby Club meeting will be "Breakfast at Mamie's" on June 13th, at 8 o'clock a.m. with hostesses assisting, Mmes. Letha Mulder, Ruby Higginbotham, Mildred Hamm and Dot Cummings. This will be the last club meeting of the summer with no meeting in July or August. Those who were present at the luncheon were Mmes: E.J. Kinslow, Grigsby Milton, Fred Marble, Harold Hamm, Jewel Fortenberry, Juanita Teeple, Bonnie Julian, Sara Probasco, Glynne Earle Cummings, Kendall Cummings, Peggy Roberts, Margaret Kitchens, Annelda Staples and hostess, Mrs. Neta Marble. Remember the next Hobby Club meeting with breakfast at 8:00 o'clock, at Mrs. Mamie Woods on June 13th.

Many from here were with mothers for the beautiful Mother's Day we had Sunday, and others called them, or visited with them at their homes. Everyone is busy with last of school meetings, picnics, graduation and Baccalaureate services at their schools.

Kelly Marble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marble is home for a few days with his folks here in South Plains, but will return to Lubbock where he was a senior graduate at Texas Tech in the recent graduation services. We send best wishes and congratulations to Kelly and others from our area who may be graduating.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Julian from Roscoe will be here this Tuesday evening from Roscoe to attend the graduation of their niece, Mitzi Julian. They will be overnight guests with their folks here.

23 local 4-H'ers bound for contests

After the last of the district 4-H contests were held Saturday, May 5, a total of 23 senior 4-H'ers from Floyd County had qualified to compete in the State 4-H Contests to be held at Texas A&M University on June 4-7.

Twelve senior (ages 14-19) 4-H'ers and eight junior (age 9-13) 4-H'ers competed in the District Method Demonstrations and Share The Fun contests on May 5 bringing home 6-1st places, 1-2nd place, and 1-3rd place. 1st and 2nd place winners in the senior division earn the right to compete at state.

The "Share the Fun" group won 1st place with the skit called "Floyd County 4-H Laugh-In". Cast members were all from the Lockney 4-H Club and included Libby Williams, Rusty Teeter, Matt Mitchell, Shawnda Brock, Lisa Terrell, Clay Adrian, Scott Howard, and Sherri Kinard. Gwen Lane did an excellent job as the accompanist on the piano. Share the Fun is similar to the U.I.L. One-Act Play except that there is a six minute time limit, and dance acts and musical acts as well as skits are allowed.

Senior Method Demonstrations were presented by Earl Broseh and Coy Holley of the Lockney 4-H Club.

Earl won 1st place in the National Resources division with a demonstration entitled "The Great American Forest - A Vast Storehouse." Coy won 3rd place in the Open division with a demonstration on Archery.

Twelve other senior 4-H'ers had previously qualified to go to State as members of the Range and Pasture

Grass Identification, Livestock, and Rifle teams. This year Floyd County qualified more 4-H'ers to go to the state U.S. is a strong market for seafood. However, the research effort in this country has not matched that for red meats and poultry. Japan has developed strong research in seafood.

6) Poultry restructured products are offered in good variety and more are on the way. At present, you can buy chicken weiners, thin sliced sandwich meat, chicken bologna, chicken loaf, chicken 'fingers', and turkey 'ham'.

RESTRUCTURED MEATS

In the past decade increasing amounts of restructured meats have been available in your supermarket at attractive prices. Restructuring adds value to meat by using new techniques to convert individual muscles or pieces of muscles of lower value into formulated products of higher value.

Restructured meat is not a fancy name for the type of meat we call hamburger. Actually, there are a variety of ways of processing the meat used in the restructuring process, ranging from very large muscles that are hand trimmed with a knife to flaking of frozen meat processed at about 26°F.

The lean portions and a controlled fat percentage are recombined by a 'massage process'.

Aside from extending our supply of desirable portions of meat, restructuring has a lot of other advantages:

1) Compared to its whole-muscle counterpart, a restructured roast, steak, lamb chop, ham, bacon, poultry or fish cut, the restructured cut may be between 25 percent and 40 percent cheaper.

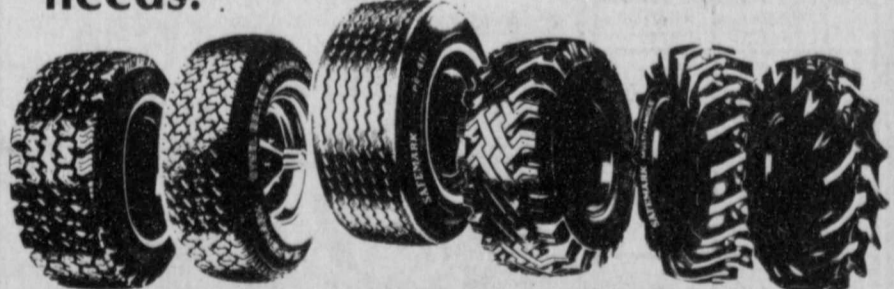

2) Portions of uniform size, nutritive value, texture, and palatability are feasible.

3) Pork products can be fabricated that are 100 percent edible. Boneless hams of very low-fat percentage; break-fast bacon of Canadian style or if you prefer it, conventional bacon with super-wide streaks of lean and very-narrow streaks of fat; pork steaks; and tasty forms of pork for fast-food preparation in the trade or home.

4) Lamb producers know that lamb is extremely high in nutrients and easily digestible but is unavailable in many markets and not competitively priced in others. This process can offer lamb patties and steaks with total control of fat content, texture, bite, shape, weight, flavor and juiciness at competitive prices.

5) Seafoods offer great potential for the restructuring process because the
