ler's Office. The City of Houston recorded the biggest percentage increase in sales tax collections among the state's larger cities, with revenues up 18 percent for the year. Houston's total for the year was $49.3 million. Dallas recorded a 9 percent increase for the year, with collections of $27.7 million. San Antonio received $13.6 million, a 10 percent hike, and revenues for Fort Worth totaled $9.8 million up 13 percent. Lockney's 1978 payments to date totalled $20,803.37, up six percent from the $19,488.36 paid in the 1977 fiscal year. Lockney's August check was for $1,291.03, compared to $1,136.12 last August.

Floydada showed a 19 percent increase for the year, collecting $48,946.14 this year compared to $40,946.66 in 1977. Floydada's August 1978 payment was $3,228.52, and that city received $3,008.35 in August of last year.

Other area cities showed these sales tax collections for August and 1978 to date: Abernathy, $2,770.82 and $23,884.55; Crosbyton, $1,804.03 and $20,953.59; Dimmitt, $4,592.03 and $71,368.30; Hale Center, $973.51 and $13,162.14; Lubbock, $372,700.80 and $4,365,881.10; Matador, $843.21 and $7,816.52; Olton, $1,770.99 and $21,675.75; Plainview, $29,230.55 and $421,781.76; Tulia, $4,668.57 and $67,746.25.

Probation Office Future

Depends On Commissioners

Recently this newspaper reported that government funding has ceased for the Floyd County Probation Office and at the request of the editor, Choise Smith presents the following review of the situation:

"The Floyd County Probation Office opened September 1, 1975 with Choise Smith being the probation officer. The first four months that the office was open it received thirty-four referrals with four juveniles being placed on official probation and forty-six receiving informal adjustment.

In 1977 the office expanded to serve all the 110th Judicial District which includes Briscoe, Motley, Dickens and Floyd County. Two hundred and forty-one juveniles referrals were received with nine cases being placed on official probation and forty-eight on informal adjustment.

In 1978 two hundred and sixty-one referrals were received. Fifty juveniles were on informal adjustment and three juveniles on official probation. The number of referrals received by the Probation Officer are from sheriffs office, city police, school officials, concerned parents and juveniles themselves. Mr. Smith likes working with youth and feels that the method of informal adjustment is the most effective with juveniles. They report to the Floyd County office twice a month and a home visit is made once a month. The juveniles from other counties report by mail. They write twice a month and a personal visit by the officer is made in their homes once a month. Informal adjustment also indicates progress since it is necessary for the juvenile and his parents to cooperate. Some juveniles are placed on informal adjustment on their first offense.

The three years that the office has been operating in Floyd County the office has handled one hundred and nine adult misdemeanor probationers. Placement on probation makes the offender more aware of the crime that has been committed and is less likely to commit the same offense again.

The Probation Office has been in operation for the last three years from a 100% grant from the Criminal Justice Division. This grant ended July 31, 1978. The month of August the office is being operated by adult probation fees.

Funding will have to be made by the counties of the District and the commissioners court's of the district. Both the counties of the district and the commissioners court's are aware that the program ends unless funding is made available from the counties.

Depot Dedication Set Thursday

Roaring Springs Depot will be dedicated Thursday in honor of Melton S. Thacker at 3:30 p.m. with B.M. Nelson, editor of the Dimmitt Castro County News as speaker.

Mr. Thacker owned and operated Thacker Supply Company for 55 years prior to his death in 1975. Melton Thacker founded his business on faith in human nature, and devoted a lifetime to his community. His store became a third generation business with son, Buzz Thacker and grandson, Jeff Thacker.

In February, 1970, Douglas Meadow, editor of The Matador Tribune, dedicated an entire issue to Mr. Thacker

The dedication is sponsored by the Predicta Study Club of Roaring Springs, and will be held on the first day of the "Old Settlers Reunion".

Floydada Senior Citizens Meet

Forty-six Senior Citizens, two new members, and two visitors met for the regular monthly luncheon at the Senior Citizens Center, Thursday, August 17. The two visitors, Larry and Joel Tardy, of Lubbock, grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Tardy, gave a program of piano selections, songs, and presented the painting of a beautiful picture which they gave to the center. The Senior Citizens appreciate these talented, young men taking time off from their activities to drive the 50 miles to bring this type of program. After the bountiful noon meal a business meeting was conducted. Mr. Field gave a progress report on plans for an addition to the center. Plans were discussed for raising funds for this project, and donations to a building fund were begun.

After all business was concluded, the group enjoyed several games of dominoes and "42".

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Bunch of Floydada and Mr. R.G. Finley of Breckenridge, formerly of Floydada. The couple have resided at 4201 Andrews Highway since a wedding trip to Cloudero and other points of interest in New Mexico.

Michael Ramsey On Honor Roll

AUSTIN, Texas--The College of Natural Sciences at The University of Texas named 488 students to the 1978 Spring Semester honor roll.

To be eligible for the natural sciences honor roll, students must earn at least 52 grade points during the semester, passing all courses undertaken. Total grade points are calculated by multiplying the number of semester hours by the value of each grade (A equals 4 points). The list, announced by Dean A.R. Schrank, includes Michael Lee Ramsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Ramsey of Floydada.

Body Scanner Installed At Methodist Hospital

LUBBOCK--Methodist Hospital's total body scanner system has been installed, and patients are being examined on both inpatient and outpatient schedules. Images from the body scanner permit physicians to study any portion of the head and body with unparalleled detail and accuracy. The certainty of diagnosis of many illnesses has been tremendously improved with the addition of the total body scanner, a sophisticated X-ray system combined with advanced electronic data processing, known as computerized tomography." George M. Brewer, hospital president, announces.

Located in the lower level of the east building, the scanner is adjacent to the EMI brain scanner, nuclear medicine diagnostic area and the Harlan Hodges Regional Cancer Treatment Center. The hospital's scanning system was manufactured by General Electric's Medical Systems Division. Any physician may order a scan for the patient on an outpatient basis. The scan images will be interpreted by a radiologist on the medical staff of Methodist Hospital, and a report will be given to the patient's attending physician.

Patients may check their insurance programs for coverage for body scans. Medicare provisions include costs of scans of the brain, but do not cover costs of scans made of other areas of the body, at this time. Plans are pending for coverage by Medicare of body scans. Methodist Hospital received approval to install the $700,000 system in October of 1977. Approval was granted by the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Austin. The Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church filed the application for certificate of need, and approval of the application was recommended by the South Plains Health Systems Agency. "The total body scanner enables physicians to locate benign or malignant growths when they are small, at a stage when they can be treated most effectively and at a stage when they might not be detectable by previously used diagnosis."

ic methods," explains Dr. Charles Votava, radiation therapist on the hospital's medical staff. Other diagnostic procedures include locating cysts, blood clots and aneurysms. Scans are made to evaluate some cases of trauma, particularly head injuries. "Physicians can evaluate the extent of many diseases as well as the patient's response to treatment such as surgery, radiation therapy or chemotherapy by studying scan images before, during and after a series of treatments," Dr. Votava adds. The high speed of scanner operation produces a clear picture, because it eliminates blur caused by natural biological movements such as breathing, heart beat and functions of the digestive system. If necessary, even very sick or very young patients can be still or hold their breath for these fast scans.

To obtain a cross-sectional view of the inside of the body in one thin "slice" approximately one-half inch thick, multiple X-ray absorption measurements, requiring a very low amount of radiation, are made around the body. For a typical examination, the patient is positioned on an examination table and moved into a doughnut-like opening in the scanner's gantry unit. On one side, concealed within the machine, is the X-ray tube. Directly opposite are the detectors, also hidden from view.

During the scan, both the X-ray tube and detectors rotate simultaneously in a complete circle about the patient. As it turns, the X-ray tube emits a tiny stream of radiation which is collected by the detectors. One rotation is completed within a few seconds. The enormous quantity of data required to produce pictures of body tissue is the reason a computer is required to process the information and reconstruct it into a useful image. The picture is a highly detailed view of a portion of the body with white representing bone, black for air and shades of gray for tissue density between these two extremes. The image produced by the scanner can be compared to viewing a single slice of bread without removing it from the loaf. A complete scanning examination might include from 6 to 10 individual slices to cover all of the area the physician wants to study.

During a scan, pictures are reconstructed within seconds and can be displayed on a television-like monitoring screen for the physician to see. Images with patient identification are stored on magnetic tape and are re-

Free Bumper Sticker Available

A free bumper sticker urging drivers to "Slow down...Save the Children" is available from Save the Children, the international child assistance agency headquartered in Westport, Connecticut.

The bumper sticker is the second in a series of what Save the Children calls Campaigns of Concern aimed at focusing public attention on safety and children. The first campaign offered suggestions on assuring playground safety for children.

It was conducted last summer. Officials at Save the Children point out that more than 4,000 children under the age of 14 died last year as a result of motor vehicle accidents - the highest single cause of death in that age group. Speed is a major reason for motor vehicle accidents, they add.

The Save the Children bumper sticker is available free from Save the Children, Box P, Wilton Road, Westport, Connecticut 06880.

Select Appliances To Aid Arthritis Sufferers

Select household appliances to aid the person with arthritis.

A person with arthritis may experience severe pain in trying to do everyday chores which others take for granted.

Some items that can aid the person with arthritis around the home include:

- (1) Two-handed cookware: two handles make cookware much easier and safer for handling.

(2) Electric toothbrush: some of the small manipulative movements needed for brushing the teeth with a regular toothbrush are very difficult for a person with arthritis.

(3) Electric knife: an electric knife can make the hardest cutting job in the kitchen relatively easy.

(4) Electric scissors: These are especially important for a person who sews or does any kind of draft requiring a lot of cutting.

(5) Electric can opener: the difficulty in turning the key of a manual can opener is magnified for arthritic sufferers.

Look for a unit with power piercing cutting blade so that the user doesn't have to make the initial cut.

(6) Portable steamer unit: a portable steamer unit which can help to steam out wrinkles in both sheer and heavy fabrics can, in many cases, eliminate the need for ironing.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or origin.

"The October issue will be devoted to stories dealing with the various ways Texas' bountiful harvest is stored," Brown said. "The new grain reserve program will be dealt with, as well as how to smoke bacon the old-fashioned way. In addition there will be an article on problems with grain dust explosions."

Brown noted that the TDA Quarterly is available to Texas residents free of charge. Send all requests to: Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, Texas Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711. The deadline is Sept. 1.

Over 341 million pounds of red meat were produced in Texas during May, 13 per cent more than a year ago, states Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

WHY TREE DECLINE

We have been receiving many calls the last two weeks regarding the decline in health and vigor of shade trees. Although many tree problems can be directly attributed to insects, diseases, or recordbreaking weather conditions, the problem of tree decline usually lies below the ground in some form of root stress. Often this hidden stress exists for years, and it is not until symptoms manifest themselves in the above-ground portion of the tree, i.e. leaves curling and dying; bare branches; smaller than normal foliage with varying shades of red, yellow, and green, that concern is realized. Soil compaction is probably the number one cause of root stress. It is essential that air (oxygen) enter through the soil so that it can be taken in by the roots, and that carbon dioxide, when given off, can readily move up from the root zone and escape into the atmosphere. Where soil compaction exists, this process cannot occur normally and results in the death of many roots. Other causes of root stress are poor soil drainage, surfacing materials, i.e. concrete or black top, installation of below-ground service lines, or any alteration of the soil levels (either the addition or removal of soil).

Girdling roots are another very real cause of shade tree decline. If trees are improperly planted or located in areas where normal root development isn't possible, their roots may eventually grow around the base of the tree, either just above or below the soil surface and gradually strangle the tree to death. If you are unable to see any girdling roots and see no evidence of normal outward flaring of the trunk as it goes into the ground, beware! Carefully dig just below the surface (2"-4") and you will probably find one or more roots growing around the trunk or other primary roots. If girdling roots are involved, cut the troublesome root or root with a sharp chisel. If this is not the problem, try to improve whatever the condition is that is causing the stress. Although each cause must be dealt with differently, it would be helpful to reduce the plant's demand on root system by carefully pruning back the top of the tree and removing any unwanted branches early in the spring.

If we can be of any help to you please call the County Agents Office at 983-2806. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, or origin.

Facts from a pro on driving to save
Q. Every summer I pass dozens of spewing water and steam from their radiators. What can I do if my car ever stalls in traffic? — J. B., Brownville

A. Pull over to the side of the road. Try putting the car in neutral and accelerating the engine. This speeds up the water pump, and the fan will pull more air through the radiator. Turn off the air conditioner, but turn on the heater for additional circulation. Open the hood to help cool the engine. Wait. What if the temperature doesn't drop? Shut the engine off and keep the hood up. Don't check anything immediately; a hose could burst and scald you. After the engine has cooled, add more coolant, or proceed to the nearest service station for repairs.

Q. While travelling through an unfamiliar town last week, I found myself turning left on a one-way street the wrong way. There were signs at the intersection to indicate that the street was one-way. How else could I have known? — V. S. W., Helotes

A. By paying attention to the pavement markings. They direct traffic just like signs. A yellow line in the center of a road divides it for two-way traffic. Drive to the right of a broken yellow line except when passing or when the right half of the road is closed to traffic. Never cross a solid yellow line, which marks a No Passing Zone. On one-way streets, the lanes are marked by broken white lines, and you may not cross any lane.

Q. Are smaller cars more dangerous than large cars? — L. B., Amarillo

A. Because of their lighter weight and more compact construction, it is more difficult for smaller cars to protect you under crash conditions. However, smaller cars tend to be more maneuverable than larger cars and, therefore, may reduce your chances of being involved in a serious accident.

If you have a question on driving, send it to Texas Office of Traffic Safety, P.O. Box 1165, Austin, Texas 78767.

Mondale says Carter aiding farm prices

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Vice President Walter Mondale claimed there was a "disaster situation in agriculture" before President Carter came to office and said the administration has acted since then to improve farmers' financial conditions. Before Carter, he said Sunday, there was virtually no farm legislation and Democratic efforts to improve minimum price supports "defeated by the administration."

Mondale, addressing a stock market fund-raiser, said prices have "dropped progressively" and "are up." "We expect more improvement going in the right direction," he said. "We're restoring overhanging surpluses."

Texas produced 4 billion pounds of cotton in 1977, and ranks among the states in cotton production. Agriculture Commissioner Brown.

Oscar Wilde identified a cynic as a man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

The member-owners of the rural electric cooperative know both price and value. They know price is higher largely because of higher fuel costs. But they also recognize that it is still a real value. When you weigh the price against the value of rural electricity, value tips the scales.

BREAKFAST CEREAL RELIGION

Ever read the side panel on a breakfast cereal carton? Usually we are told that this food provides us with a minimum daily requirement of certain vitamins and minerals. We are not experts on nutrition... but we do promote man's religious needs. We urge people to attend and support our churches. We believe you can't build spiritual vitality on minimal standards. Therefore, we don't guarantee that an hour in Sunday School will provide Christy with some percentage of the spiritual stamina life requires.

If you're bringing Christy to church every week, fortifying your own faith with sincere worship, and trying to cultivate Christian attitudes and a Christian atmosphere in your home—then you're fully aware that character and conviction grow from maximum standards.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor: Americans do have a right to know. The Iranian students are telling the people of free America what is happening in their country.

If you read the Congressional Records, publications by the John Birch Society or keep up with articles written by Americans for freedom and just plain people of the world, you will become acutely aware of the fact that these cruelties are now increasing by the tens of millions every year. You will also become aware to realize we are in the direct path of plans to conquer all free people.

The horrendous, torturous treatment and freedoms lost in other countries are warnings to us and it would be wise to take notice, even if they only cost $1.

The Insiders of our government are slowly cutting away our freedoms through the Trilateral Commission, Council of Foreign Relations and the Council of Economics advisers to mention only a few.

Americans may ask why our early warning system is not broadcasting the foreseeable dangers. Many of these warning agencies have been removed, such as: The Internal Security Division of the Justice Department, the Subversive Activities Control Board, the Attorney General's List of Subversive Organizations and the House Internal Security Committee. These were abolished, dismantled or eliminated.

It seems there is a worldwide battle between right and wrong; freedom and slavery; between Christian morals, amorality and immortality for the souls and bodies of men. May God help us.

Arnold Schwertner, Floydada

Dear Mr. Tooley:

Earlier today, a member of my staff attended a meeting here in Washington concerning the Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority and the need for some Federal assistance in completing the project.

I am pleased that both Floydada and Lockney would directly benefit from this water project and, in view of the serious shortage of pure water in the area, I will certainly do all that I can to be helpful in securing financial assistance.

Please be advised that I am immediately contacting both the Economic Development Administration and the Farmers Home Administration to urge their favorable consideration of the matter. As you may know, the new fiscal year begins October 1 and I think it is essential that these agencies are well aware of our joint efforts now.

With kind regards, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Omar Burleson

Hightower has truth on wrapper remedy

U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, went to bat for Panhandle farmers and consumers this week introducing legislation designed to require on-the-wrapper disclosure of the cost of agricultural commodities contained in every loaf of bread sold in America.

Coming at a time when rising food prices and near-record inflation have combined to make farmers money-grabbing scapegoats in the minds of many consumers, Rep. Hightower's proposal is the type of common-sense remedy we heartily support.

It likely won't bring down the price of bread, but it undoubtedly would serve to clear up erroneous assumptions that fault farmers for every increase in shelf prices. Other factors such as labor, transportation and the cost of non-agricultural ingredients necessary to arrive at the finished product are more often the real culprit.

"The time has come for consumers to understand what effect an increase in the price of wheat has on the cost of bread," Rep. Hightower said in a speech accompanying introduction of the legislation. "The wrapper often costs more than the wheat in that bread."

According to the Congressman's proposal, which was cosponsored by 12 other Congressmen, the required cost figure on the wrapper would be detailed using a cents per pound figure derived from the average cost of wheat or other products from the previous marketing year. The disclosure would be required to appear in a regular location and in print easily readable as compared to other information carried on the wrapper.

This information is readily available. Bakeries with efficient cost accounting procedures know to the penny what their costs of production are. Additionally, the National Association of Wheat Growers annually publishes Wheat Facts, a summary of information relating to the wheat industry. The current report was issued on June 1 and includes the very information Rep. Hightower proposes to require be disclosed on the wrapper of every loaf of bread.

According to the Association's report, one bushel of wheat yields 73 one-pound loaves of white bread. A one pound loaf of bread gives 2.6 cents for wheat to the farmer. Every dollar increase in the cost of a bushel of wheat should result in no more than a 1 1/2 cents increase in the price of a loaf of bread. And 100 pounds of flour yields 2.3 bushels of wheat, which is enough to make 117 loaves of 22.5-ounce bread.

Additionally, the Association reports that in 1970 when the retail price of white bread averaged 24.2 cents per pound, 2.6 cents was attributable to the cost of the wheat required to create that pound of bread. In 1977, the retail price had risen to 35.5 cents per pound, but the cost of the wheat remained at 2.6 cents.

If passed, Rep. Hightower's legislation would place these facts in front of every purchaser of a loaf of bread. Like the Congressman, we too believe the legislation offers the opportunity to foster a better understanding between farmer and consumer.

Large Soviet Grain Import Needs Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A U.S. State Department information exchange has established the Soviet Union's current and past estimates of Soviet needs for livestock feed.

The department said Wednesday the revisions "imply large Soviet import needs, not only for 1978-79, but probably for subsequent years."

The department has projected the Soviet grain crop would be 220 million metric tons this year, the level indicated in the Soviet plan.

But the department now predicts the Soviets will use 223 million tons of grains, more than they can produce even in a bumper crop year.

With good crops expected in the major grain-producing areas of the world, the department predicted a record world wheat and coarse grain crop of 1.1 billion metric tons.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service revised upward its previous estimate, made July 19, by 18 million tons.

The expected worldwide production increases are attributable to good crops in the United States, Canada and the Soviet Union and favorable early moisture conditions in the Southern Hemisphere growing areas, where most crops have not yet been planted.

Field Day Set At Halfway

HALFWAY - Finding good farmhands and getting the most productivity from them are among the many concerns facing today's cost-conscious farmer.

That is why one of the five major presentations on the annual field day tour at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station for Lubbock and Halfway will focus on labor management skills, said Dr. Bill Ott, resident director of the station.

The field day, which alternates between the facilities here and at Lubbock, will be held here Sept. 12. Tractor-drawn trailer tours of the 320-acre research site will begin at 1 p.m., offering detailed reports on the latest developments in crop research, said J. Joe Wright, research assistant and field day chairman.

The program is a cooperative presentation of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the High Plains Research Foundation, the Science Education Administration of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Weather Service.

In addition to the stop focusing on labor management, other stops will feature results of research on cotton variety and disease control, corn weed control, and mobile trickle irrigation.

The effective use of manpower is one of the most important skills which must be developed by the modern farmer. Extension business economist Wolf, from College Station, will present the best techniques on labor productivity in the field day program.

The emphasis will show how a manager improve his skills forming his role as of manpower. Among the topics discussed will be how to hire labor, train new workers, recruit, motivate, and lay out work following up on evaluating performance and releasing employees.

At each of the stops on the tour, from the Experiment Station and specialists Extension Service discuss the research to answer questions from producers, gardeners and owners. As an illustration, a large display of latest farm equipment will be exhibited by equipment dealers.

Some people once believed that mountains were formed by an enormous underground serpent moving about.

At each of the stops on the tour, speakers from the Experiment and specialists from Extension Service discuss the research answer questions from producers, gardeners and owners. As an addi- tion, a large display of latest farm equipment will be exhibited by area ment dealers.

Martin And Company Sponsors Showdown Day

Martin & Company will host a special "Red Power Showdown Days" field demonstration, featuring International Harvester's improved Series 86 tractors, at 3 1/2 miles north of Plainview, from 2-6 p.m. on Tuesday, August 22.

Along with the demonstration, the local dealer will hold a sweepstakes drawing. Participating farmers will be eligible for a national drawing, with a top-of-the-line 1586, 160 pto horsepower, two-wheel drive tractor as the grand prize. Complete details about the Red Power Showdown Days sweepstakes may be obtained from the local dealer. Including all Series 86 models over 100 pto hp, the field day will be "one of the biggest IH promotions ever," according to the dealer. He noted that farmers will have the opportunity to test drive IH's 986, 1086, 1486, 1586 and Hydro 186.

"They will be able to try out the new park-lock transmission and heavy-duty power shift TA, which makes shifting easier," the dealer continued. "Also, farmers will be able to judge for themselves just how quiet the Control Center is."

The dealer said the Control Center, a departure from the add-on cab of the past, is an integral part of the Series 86 models located forward of the conventional design. This permits maximum visibility and improved riding quality.

to provide them with information and put them in contact with potential Texas sellers. Many are here at the invitation of our international trade specialists, who seek out buyers in other countries in order to expand the markets for this state's farm and ranch products."

Brown noted that a recent visit by African trade representative A. Umerah of Lagos, Nigeria, may net Texas producers additional sales of rice, beef, poultry and livestock feeds. "We find foreign buyers anxious to purchase not only raw farm products, but many foods processed here in Texas as well," Brown added.

In addition to serving as coordinator between Texas producers and international buyers, the Department also provides information to foreign journalists who are interested in spreading the word about the Texas agriculture industry and its products, Brown noted.

"Texas farmers and ranchers are the most productive the world has ever seen," he said. "But as valuable as this ability is, we must actively market our products and continually strive for the profits our producers need to stay in business. Foreign trade is our best hope for achieving adequate profits, and it benefits both buyer and seller."

THE LANGUAGE OF TRADE--African trade representative A. Umerah of Lagos, Nigeria (right) is greeted by Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown during a recent tour of the Texas Department of Agriculture headquarters in Austin. Umerah was interested in purchasing Texas agricultural products for his country, and is one of the dozens of foreign buyers the Department hosts each year.

Foreign Buyers Welcome in Cowboy Country

AUSTIN--Texas Department of Agriculture headquarters are located deep in cowboy country, but it's no surprise to see African caftans alongside Stetson hats, thanks to the dozens of foreign visitors who tour the facilities each year.

"The Department serves as a focal point for foreign buyers interested in purchasing Texas agricultural products," stated Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown. "They always find our Marketing Division ready

WHO CARES IF YOUR ELECTRIC BILL IS HIGH THIS SUMMER? YOU DO AND...

WE DO

If your electric bill has jumped this summer, take a good look up at that Texas sun. Sure, we all like sunny days, but our friend the sun can be a villain in disguise. On these Texas scorches, you'll need your air conditioning to run more. Sometimes running day... and night... all night. Well, that runs up your electric bill. Just when vacation and school expenses are here.

We know you care about higher electric bills. And we want you to know that we care, too. We can't cool off the sun, but there are still time and ways to keep your bill from going much higher. Here are just a few:

- Turn the thermostat to at least 78, or even higher. The higher the setting, the more comfortable you'll be.
- Check your insulation.
- When you buy major appliances, including air conditioning units, run them through the Energy Efficiency Rating (EER) program. The higher the EER, the more energy and money you'll save.
- Clean and replace the filters regularly.
- Keep your drapes closed to block out the sunlight.
- Weatherstrip around doors and windows.

At Southwestern Public Service, we care about you getting the most for your energy dollar. Call us for suggestions to help you change the size of your electric bill for the better.
