LISD Board Approves Call For Field House Bids, Hires Teachers

Lockney Independent School District's board of trustees voted Monday night to call for bids on the construction of a 40x50-foot metal building to be used as an addition to the present athletic fieldhouse, located at the school football stadium site.

After hearing about building plans from a representative of Tusha Builders and discussing the proposal and several options, the school board approved a motion to call for the bids. The Tusha representative quoted a "base bid" of $37,405 and recommended a five-percent "contingency allowance." Options under construction include either a half (25x40-foot) or full upper deck in the 20-foot-high building, and changes in the heating system.

Jim Warren, school athletic director, recommended buying a new clothes dryer, building additional lockers and shelving, and moving the boiler and restrooms to the new building, if one is built.

SCHOOL BUS REPAIR

ARE WE READY FOR THE UFW?

After 22 negotiating sessions, 28 Imperial Valley lettuce growers were still looking at UFW demands that had the potential to increase farm labor costs as much as 200 percent. Even though the growers' second offer of an 11 percent wage increase went unanswered, union negotiators screamed "Bad-faith" bargaining.

The magnitude of UFW demands for wage and piece work increase, limited work weeks and overtime compensation are distressing enough, but the union's apparent disregard for the farm worker's welfare during the negotiations is frightening. From the beginning of the 2 month old lettuce strike, striking farm workers have pursued a steady course of intimidation and violence. Yet, even after one death, 30 injured persons and $400,000 worth of property damage caused by vandals, UFW spokesman Mark Grossman was quoted while attending the union's first organizing convention in Texas. "We're going to repeat our California experience."

After speaking to one Imperial Valley lettuce grower who asked not to be named, it seems this "California experience" that Grossman is so anxious to bring to Texas would best be avoided rather than repeated. The grower had this to say, "You read about the big things in the paper, but there is a lot more going on than that. Strikers split into small groups to gang up on workers during the day, break locks and flood fields during the night. Recently a gang of four men pulled a farm worker off his tractor while he was raking hay. They beat him pretty badly."

Union spokesmen claim strikers entered the fields to "talk" to workers, only when workers refused to come out. Apparently union members believe they have an inalienable right to trespass as well as to expect farm workers to come flocking from the fields like mindless sheep to gather around their flag. Quite to the contrary! Trespassing on private property is, by law, a punishable offense and farm workers do, indeed, have minds of their own — often choosing not to talk to union organizers simply because they want nothing to do with them.

Farm labor strikes seldom settle without leaving a bitter taste in somebody's mouth, usually the grower's. However, in light of the present situation, there is no denying the UFW's existence — they're here to stay. In 1975, there were perhaps 5 UFW contracts signed in California. Today there are over 195 such contracts involving some 30,000 UFW members working in citrus, grapes, fruit, row crops, poultry and some contiguous packing houses. If history can be trusted and I believe it can, union contracts are no panacea for farm labor problems.

With a certain degree of realism, the UFW can be equated to the fish in a farm pond; drain the water from the pond and the fish will die. Just as surely as the fish drew life from the water, the UFW draws life from conflict. Chavez knows only too well that there is only so much water in the pond and that if his union is to continue its growth, he must either seek out or create new conflict.

This was the situation in the Imperial Valley when labor agreements expired in January and union negotiators demanded an increase in minimum wages to $5.20/hour. They weren't looking for viable solutions to farm labor problems. Instead, they were looking to create the sort of labor conflict the union has found so critical to its prosperity.

Inconsistent with UFW demands for more money, both government and private surveys show conclusively that the average farm worker feels that money is only the fourth most important issue for labor dispute. Ahead of money are fair treatment (1), job security (2), and personal recognition (3). These findings are well documented and provide valuable guidelines for making farm labor relations an integral part of good agri-business management.

The reasons are clear. Farm workers that have developed a sense of pride and association with their work, as well as their employer, are undeniably more dependable; more productive; and less apt to cause management problems. Good labor relations programs are a simple matter of preventing labor conflict. They require both time and money, but pay off in the long run with increased labor efficiency and higher levels of production, not to mention the incalculable bliss of not having the UFW around.

Historically speaking, unions have displayed a disturbing tendency to become more and more self-serving in their quest for size and power. The UFW is proving to be no exception and perhaps this is fortunate. After the recent display of intimidation and violence toward farm workers during the lettuce strike, the UFW's self-interest became evident. Now that the true union colors are showing, it's time for growers to take the offensive and institute effective labor relations programs that minimize costly labor conflict by keeping the UFW out of their fields.

Congressional Comment

I have introduced a bill (H.R. 3809) in the House of Representatives this past week entitled the Producer Elected Farm Policy Advisory Board Act of 1979. This bill will establish a vehicle whereby the nation's farmers and ranchers can bring direct producer input into the decision making processes of the Department of Agriculture on policies, procedures, programs, and practices.

I believe this will help to alleviate a common complaint from farmers and ranchers that the secretary and the department are not responsive to the needs of agriculture.

I have provided that the board will function for a period of five years, after which the Congress may review the board's record of achieving the objectives set forth in the bill prior to extending the authority of the board or letting it expire.

I feel that this bill will help to reduce the number and improve the credibility of existing appointed advisory groups in the USDA and will allow the nation's agricultural producers direct input by their elected representatives in the decision making processes of the Nation's agricultural policies.

Bonnie Julian Relives Trip

By Bonnie Julian
A lovely dream came true for me in March, when the Florida Julians invited me to accompany them to Hawaii for a weeks vacation, a trip my nephew David was awarded by his company, The Caterpillar Company in Miami. His wife, Judy, his 10-year-old daughter Susan, his Mother, Carla, and myself, made up the party.

I flew from Lubbock, early Wednesday morning, March 7, to the huge Dallas airport, where I met my folks from Florida. We went aboard a Braniff 747 jet around noon, bound for Honolulu, Hawaii, nonstop. We were to be on Maui, one of the eight islands of the Hawaiian group, and over 250 were aboard the jet plane. There were many things to keep us all occupied during the long hours, as we flew across the United States and then across the great Pacific Ocean. Delicious dinners were served, with snacks, cold drinks, coffee and fruit offered during the afternoon. Also, a movie was shown. The flying was smooth, and we arrived at the Honolulu airport in the early evening, and were greeted and presented leis.

We all flew in a smaller plane that took us to Maui, the Valley Island, where we were met at the airport by a bus which took us to the beautiful Maui Surf, the hotel where we were to stay. This was in the small town of Kaanapali, a quaint resort on Maui. We were all very tired and by the time we ate and were retired to our rooms on the sixth floor, we got to bed by ten o'clock, which was about 3 a.m. by our time, since we had lost five hours flying west to Hawaii. It took us two days to get over the "jet lag" as it is called.

We took advantage of every minute of every day as we shopped at the Maui Surf, visited the interesting spots around the area, and especially in the whaling village did we find much to see and to buy. David rented a car and took us shopping in the town of Lahaina, where we had delicious food and shopped to our heart's content one whole day.

Another day David took us all to the dormant crater of Haleakala, a volcanic mountain, where at the summit it was 10,000 feet and very cold. On the mountain we saw silverswords, a beautiful flower which only grows in volcanic ash. There were hundreds of thousands of them.

ward by a vote of 92 to 46. This bill would have resulted in doing away with our home-stead laws. It would have made older people in their declining years vulnerable to unscrupulous lenders could have really taken advantage of anyone who got in a financial bind.

Had this bill passed, a companion bill was waiting in the calendars committee that would have placed a proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot, which the people could vote on in the next general election.

To me, it was the most dangerous piece of legislation of come before the House, and I voiced strong opposition to it at both the front and back microphones on the floor of the House.

Unfortunately, not all bad bills are killed. One got by this week with a few votes to spare. This bill (H.B. 1358) obligated the State of Texas for an initial one million dollars for constructing and developing a large state veterans' cemetery in Nueces County. But even worse, it obligated the state government for the perpetual annual care of the cemetery.

This is only one example of the millions of pork barrel dollars that roll through our daily schedule now begins with office work at 6:30 or 7 a.m. and ends after midnight.

Junior Track Meet Set This Saturday

Youngsters ages four through 12 are expected to converge on the Floydada track this Saturday, May 19, for the first annual Floydada Junior Track Meet.

Robert Stovall, president of Floydada Quarterback Club, expects participants from this community and neighboring towns. The Quarterback Club is sponsoring the event.

Registration is planned from 9 until 9:30 a.m. Competition in field events is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

FINALS AFTER LUNCH

Preliminaries in running events are scheduled "about 11 o'clock," with running events finals beginning at 1 p.m.

Entry fee is $2 per participant. This enables a youngster to compete in all five events in his or her age group.

Boys and girls division are planned in the following age categories: 4-5, 6-7, 8-9, 10-11, and 12 years olds. High jump, long jump, and three running events (distance varying with age groups), are slated in each category.

Ribbons are to be awarded for first through sixth places.

"We invite the public to come out and watch these youngsters participate," Stovall says. There is no admission fee. The concession stand and restroom facilities will be open.

SQUARE DANCE

Floydada Whirlers Square Dance Club will host their annual Old Settlers Dance Saturday, May 19, at 8 p.m. at Massie Activity Center.

Jack Thompson of Tulia will be caller for the special event.

Members of the club invite everyone to attend, whether they wish to dance, or just watch the dancing.

Door prizes will be awarded, and refreshments will be served.

FTA OFFICERS admire the new trophy case the Lockney High School Future Teachers of America chapter recently gave the school. Left to right: Jody Nance, Jackie Gaskins,

The cane was nearly ready for harvest time. The weather was warm and lovely. We had rain only one day, when we saw the most beautiful rainbow, which seemed to touch down on a building near our hotel. It stayed clear and had startling colors for such a long time.

Food on the island was delicious, with pineapple, papaya, and all kinds of tropical fruits served in abundance. The days flew by as we toured the island, and one day we rode the "Sugar Cane Train", a Lahaina-Kaanapali and Pacific railroad which ran through the emerald green mountain sides and around the seashore. The whole island was a paradise of magnificent flowers. Among the most beautiful were the anthurium; and the state flower which is the hibiscus. The green velvet sugar cane fields were clear up high on the mountains sides and they were on the side of our hotel, with the beautiful, serene Pacific Ocean on the other side.

Most of the cars we saw were the smaller model cars. Even modest homes there, we learned, were twice as high as in the states. Buildings on Maui are restricted, as they do not want them to have sky scrapers and buildings over six stories. Maui is a quiet, peaceful island, and the people were so friendly and pleasant. We enjoyed so much one night a dinner engagement at the hotel with a Polynesian orchestra and hula hula girls. Each day shopping was a joy as we hunted for coral and other gifts to bring home to loved ones. The flight home was a little rougher than when we went over. We flew home by night, leaving Honolulu in the evening, and flying over the Pacific Ocean all night, arriving in Dallas in the early morning of March 14.

As I left my Florida family they went east and I went west to our homes and families, and I believe I had been away from home for a long time. I had realized that I was on home soil, but I will always have wonderful memories of my trip to a
