Floyd Commissioners Approve 1980 Budget

The Floyd County commissioners Monday afternoon wrestled with the problem of how to accommodate the ever-increasing costs of running the county with the dwindling resources to do so.

The $1.26 million budget passed by the commissioners represented only a modest rise over previous years, but the available resources, at $1.28 million showed a trend toward less and less money able to be used for the purpose

To illustrate the court's dilemma, the county will end the year with an anticipated cash balance of only $12,455. That figure is even lower than the unusually low balance for 1979 of $18,342.

The balance recorded for 1976 was close to a half-million dollars.

Olin Watson, the county auditor, presented the proposed 1980 budget to the court for consideration.

Watson explained that the county could count on collecting slightly more than a half-million dollars in ad valorem taxes for the year, assuming that 95 percent of the assessed taxes would be collected.

Liability insurance for the county was expected to go up by $10,000, to an estimated $34,000 bill this year.

The commissioners agreed to raise their travel expenses from $150 to $200 a month, to compensate for the rising price of gasoline and oil products.

Watson noted that $55,000, a larger figure than usual, would be transferred from the general fund to the officer's salary fund.

The cannery expenses were reduced by $1,200. Watson suggested the money be saved by opening a month later or closing a month earlier, next year.

The court approved $5,000 for the care and feeding of prisoners in the county jail. Watson predicted that the set sum wouldn't be quite enough.

"Maybe people won't get into as much trouble next year," he commented.

The mixed-drink tax will bring in approximately $800 to the county.

The district clerk and the county treasurer received raises from their current salary of $10,146 annually to $11,983.

While the raise was more than the seven percent other county employees got across the board for cost of living, Watson explained that the increase was put in to bring those officers' salaries into line with other top county officers.

Watson predicted that the expenditures from the permanent improvement fund would be less this year because of the more efficient heating and air conditioning system now being installed in the courthouse.

A total of $75,000 was transferred from the special road fund to the precincts.

The court also allowed the county libraries $2,500 for additional books.

The commissioners balked at a request by Judge Choise Smith that the $2,600 that was eliminated from his salary by state action last year be included into the budget.

The money, salary for the judge's position as superintendent of county schools, was cut out after the state required that the district board close down as an official body. The judge, however, was required to remain in the capacity of superintendent ex-officio to oversee what county schools were left.

In contesting the judge's request, commissioner Bob Jarrett commented that he didn't think the increase was unreasonable, but "the money's just not there."

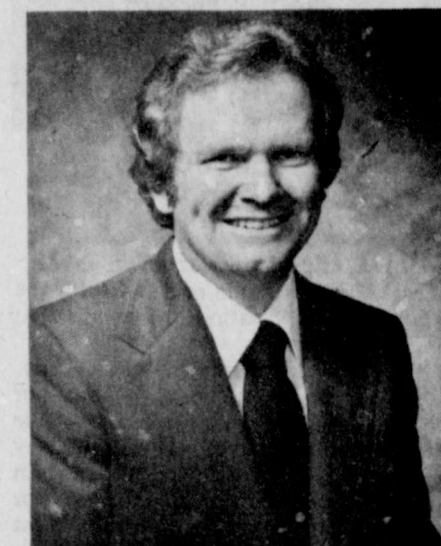

When the commissioners voted on accepting the budget as read, but striking the $2,600, Jack Lackey dissented from the majority.

Speaking to the court after the vote, county attorney Kenneth Bain warned the commissioners that miserliness now would come back to haunt them later.

"It's getting to the point that inflation is bad for everybody," Bain told the court. "When you get less and less over a period of years you drop back farther and farther. One of these years, the elected officials are going to need a big jump. You ought to face it and prepare for it."

Aiken Revival Sept. 16-23

REV. RON TRUSLER

Ron Trusler will be the evangelist preaching during the revival at First Baptist Church of Aiken.

The Rev. Trusler is the pastor of the Hillcrest Baptist Church in Amarillo. He is a graduate of Oklahoma State Tech and Seminary Extension SBC.

Gary Lloyd of Plainview will lead the singing.

Pastor James Kaler invites everyone to attend the meetings, to be held September 16-23. Sunday School will be at 10 a.m., the morning service at 11 a.m., and the evening service at 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday the services will start at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday night, the 22nd, will be Youth Night with a Hot Dog Fellowship after the service. After the morning service on Sunday, the 23rd, everyone will share dinner at the church.

County Votes Further Cuts In Revenue Sharing Budget

The Floyd County Commissioners Monday trimmed the proposed revenue sharing budget even further than was earlier expected.

The commissioners took action to cut allocated funds from the library building fund, the senior citizens association and the central plains mental health center after they discovered that no provision had been made to pay for a handicapped-access ramp for the soon-to-be-renovated agriculture building. The ramp will cost $2,299.

The commissioners slashed the library fund allotment from the first revision of $2,000 to $500. The senior citizens, who would have received $500 under judge Choise Smith's second proposal, received nothing. The share set aside for the mental health center was cut in half, from $3,200 to $1,600.

The new revenue sharing budget approved by the commissioners would use $375,299 of the available $376,700, leaving a $1,401 excess.

After refusing to consider granting the leftover amount to the senior citizens, the commissioners voted to put the excess toward remodeling the agriculture extension service building.

There was immediate protest from the small spectators' gallery.

"The senior citizens only need an air conditioner," one woman said. "A little could be left out."

But the commissioners stuck to their original decision.

The Floyd County Museum and the Day Care Center retained their shares of $500 each.

The jail remodeling project received the anticipated $291,000. A further $60,000 went for air conditioning and heating for the courthouse. The commissioners' precincts split $19,000 among themselves.

An earlier proposal to spend $2,000 for new furniture for the county judge's office was abandoned.

Lockney, Dickens and Kent counties, and east Hockley and northern Terry and Lynn counties, where extensive square losses have been reported.

The first egglay of this breakout was reported around August 25, and one additional egglay can be expected around September 15, unless nighttime temperatures stay in the 50's for 3 to 4 hours for several nights. The outbreak is especially heavy in areas where the cotton crop was planted late or delayed by rain.

Growers in the area are getting good control of the bollworm problem with applications of Ambush (R) insecticide at a rate of .125 to .15. This is one gallon of Ambush to 16 gallons of water or one gallon of Ambush to 13.5 gallons of water. Thorough coverage of the plant is important since worms are being found on the bottom as well as top of the plants.

Longhorns Host Friona Friday

Lockney Longhorns will be the number two of the young season Friday night when they host the Friona Chieftains. The Longhorns are looking for their first win — they lost their season opener to Tulla last Friday while they were outscoring Post 20-6.

Warren's Big Red team was denied victory in last year's contest with the Chiefs. The margin of defeat for the Longhorns was an extra-point kick which the 'Horns never got away. The Chiefs won that one 7-6, thanks to the missed conversion and a Lockney field-goal attempt in which the ball bounced off the goalpost crossbar.

The Chiefs are led offensively by quarterback Joe Malouf and running back Rod Owen. Warren says the Friona team boasts some excellent football players, and they're big.

The Longhorns should be in good physical shape for tomorrow night's contest. Kevin Turner and Rod Rodriguez suffered minor injuries in the game last week, but they should be ready to go Friday, according to Warren. The only personnel problem in the Longhorn starting lineup involves defensive end John Cummings, who may miss the game because of illness.

JV, FRESHMAN, JUNIOR HIGH TEAMS START SEASON TONIGHT

The Lockney junior varsity, freshman, seventh- and eighth-grade football teams begin their 1979 season tonight (Thursday) with games against Post. The JV and ninth-grade teams travel to Post, and the junior-high Shorthorns play the Antelopes here.

Warren said he was very pleased with the performance of the Longhorn offensive team Friday night in the 20-6 victory over Post, but "...we're still concerned about the defense. We've got some work to do on defense, especially against the running game," Warren told The Beacon.

The Longhorn head coach said he felt that the team was in "pretty good physical shape."

"We though our conditioning was evident in the fourth quarter," he said.

Mrs. Counts Tells Of 'Dream Vacation'

BETTIE COUNTS IN HAWAII

By Dottie Stansell

Mrs. Bettie Counts recently returned from a dream vacation in Hawaii, that began like this.

One night about the middle of July, she received a phone call from her nephew and his wife Bud and Jodie Pennington, who live in Houston. They wanted to know if she would accept an all-expense-paid trip to Hawaii for twelve days. When she told them that she would be happy to accept their offer, they informed her that they would mail her plane ticket to her and would await her arrival in Hawaii, July 25.

Several days before she left, Mrs. Edith Patterson, along with her Sunday School class from the Methodist Church and friends, honored her with an "Aloha" coffee and presented her with a money tree.

On the morning of July 25, her son Garland and Faye took her to the airport in Lubbock, where she boarded the plane about 9 a.m. for Hawaii. They landed at the Honolulu International Airport at 3 p.m., and she was met by the Penningtons, with a sweet plumeria blossom and island orchid lei. They had a 20-minute drive to their ninth-floor condominium apartment that had a balcony, overlooking the beach and the beautiful blue Pacific, with a view of Diamond Head in the background.

She said "From the time we got up the next morning until I arrived back in Lockney sixteen days later, we tried to see everything and visit all the places of interest.

"I loved the little shops at the Ala Noona Center, under the spreading banyan tree, which was a source of wonder to me. The roots grow down from the limbs and start another tree. This one tree must have covered nearly a block.

"We had a picnic on Waimea Falls Park (on Oahu's North shore). On the way we met a coconut vendor with diamonds in his teeth, and we stopped and ate coconuts and drank the ice cold coconut milk and ate dates from the trees along the road, and admired one of the most famous beaches in the world, and surfer's paradise, Bonzai Pipeline.

"We drove home along the route the Japanese took in the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, through fields of pineapple and sugar cane. That night we attended an open-air concert given by the First Baptist Church of Dallas youth choir. Cliff Barrow (who is with the Billy Graham Crusade group) was with the group. He came down through the crowd, shaking hands and waving to the crowd.

"We spent almost a whole day at Hanauma Bay. (This is a protected area for tropical fish) with a group of Campus Crusade kids. We took bread to feed the fish, which would jump up and take the bread out of our hands. In the afternoon we went swimming. A helicopter hovered over the swimmers and escorted them to shore to protect them from the sharks that were out that day. That night we had a steak cook-out on the beach with the youth group, at their beautiful summer quarters at the base of Diamond Head. The Hawaiian school for girls, 'La Peatra,' were our hosts.

"On Sunday, we attended church at the Waikiki Baptist Church, which was within walking distance of our apartment. That Sunday a choir of children from Sandy Springs, Georgia, sang several songs. Visitors that day were from Australia, New Zealand, Ireland, as well as 50 from the mainland.

"On Monday we took a boat to Pearl Harbor. We saw the devastation of war that was perpetrated on the island by the Japanese. Our planes land and take off from this air strip at Pearl Harbor. At night we attended the Polynesian Shows, Tihati's South Seas Spectacular at Waikiki Beachcomber Hotel, in the Bora Bora Showroom with authentic Polynesian music and dances and fire eaters. The host gave each of us a record of Polynesian music, and came over to our table and talked with us. We went to the Kodak free show, and saw the Hula dancers. They gave lessons to anyone who had the nerve to try it. A lot of children and young people tried it. We had a lot of fun and entertainment for all of us. My nephew took my picture with two of the dancers.

"We went to the Polynesian Culture Center in the afternoon. The singers and dancers rowed through the coral in native canoes, singing and dancing in their beautiful native costumes.

"We also visited the Iolani Palace. This is the only royal palace in America. It is the official residence of King Kalakaua and Queen Lili'uokalani, the last monarchs of Hawaii, 1882-1893.

"We took the Dole pineapple plant tour. The water tower for the plant is in the shape of a huge pineapple. They served us pineapple and juice. From there we went to the Punch Bowl, the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, and the Battle Memorial of the Pacific. We took a picture of the wreck of the U.S.S. Iowa. That night we went to a square dance for the Crusade kids.

"Every time we could find a spare minute, we usually visited some of the shops. One of my favorite was the International Market Place, in the heart of Waikiki.

"I was too tired to attend church the last day I was there, so I stayed in and rested while the others attended church on the beach. At 8:30 p.m. I left Hawaii and flew back to Dallas.

"Gerald and Betty met me at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and took me to their home in Fort Worth, where I visited and rested several days, and then flew on home (Lubbock). Sandra (Sams-Noland) met me at the airport and brought me home.

"When we drove up on my driveway, I was in for a greater surprise than being given the trip to Hawaii. My family and friends had not been idle while I was gone. My granddaughter Betty Maye (Sams-Boedeker), who lives at Loop, had scraped and painted the outside of my house, and to add my surprise, Garland had painted my 62 Ford! My neighbor, Bro. Glen Smith and son, had mowed and trimmed the shrubbery in my yard, and pinned to the door of the refrigerator was a greeting saying: 'WELCOME HOME GRANNY - WE LOVE YOU!'"

Barnett, Bybee Win First Contest

The first Lockney Beacon football contest of the 1979 season ended in a tie, with Lockneyites Lanny Barnett and Louie Bybee both submitting entries with seven wrong picks and identical guesses (Lockney to win, 24 points total) in the tie-breaker section. Barnett and Bybee thus split the first- and second-place prize money and wind up with eight dollars each.

There was a tie for third, too — Lisa Mosley of Lockney and former Lockneyite Jack Ragland of Odessa missed seven, picked the Longhorns to win in the tie-breaker, and guessed 21 for a game total in the Post-Lockney contest. (The actual total score was 26, with the Longhorns getting 20 of those points.) Lisa and Jack win a whopping two dollars each, dividing the four-dollar third prize.

Finishing just out of the money last week were Lockneyites Lela Warren, Carl Burt, Jared Mosley, Ritchie Thornton and Cathy Barnett, all of whom missed just seven games but were farther away with their tie-breaker guesses.

Missing eight games were the following contestants: Homer Ragland, Marlon McDonald, Boyd Lee, W.L. Carthel, Retha Wofford and Ricky Mosley, all of Lockney, and Tim Jeffress and Shelley Gammage, both of Plainview.

Biggest monkey wrench in the contest works last week was the 6-6 Abernathy-Petersburg tie, which everybody missed (you can pick a tie — just circle both teams' numbers on the entry blank). Nearly every contestant missed the 13-7 upset of heavily-favored Plainview by Estacado, but a couple of entrants correctly picked the Matadors. And lots of people missed the Stanton-Tahoka game (Stanton won it 28-14).

This week's contest appeared in the Sunday Beacon. Any number can play, so grab a Sunday Beacon and a pencil, and join us. Note a small rules change this year — entries no longer must be stamped by a participating merchant to be eligible for the prize money.

Iran's Oil Chief Simply Fails

To Understand The U.S. Senate

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on White Ribber this week discusses oil or rock bands, one or the other.

Dear editor:

There are two main reasons why the nations of the world can't get along. (1) They don't understand one another, and (2) they do understand one another.

The first of the two is what interests me this week, after I read what Iran's oil chief said the other day.

As we know, whether we understand it or not, the United States has sold 47 million dollars worth of scarce kerosene and heating oil to Iran, a country sitting on top of one of the world's biggest oil deposits.

A lot of people started hollering about this, despite the fact Washington pointed out it was an emergency situation and made sense, considering that Iran sells us 850,000 barrels of oil a day.

When the hollering reached the U.S. Senate, the oil chief of Iran said it ought to stop, or Iran might purchase and buy its own place else.

"I recommend to the Senate that they stop this nonsense, and warmed.

This is the kind of talking between nations that is causing the lack of understanding of the U.S. Senate. It's an unnecessary trying to send a message to Ayatollah, who has been in records in Iran on the following suit, may have but I don't know enough of Iranian mind to go into it.

I seriously doubt whether music does dull the mind, but there is no doubt about it. There is no doubt about it.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Cole, Bradford

Baskets of white gladioli with blue bows illuminated by tapers in candelabras framed the altar area of the First Baptist Church in Loop, Texas, as Lori Jean Cole and Charles H. Bradford Jr. exchanged wedding vows. The double ring ceremony, held Friday August 17 at 7:30 p.m., was officiated by the bride's father, Rev. Leo Cole, pastor of the church. The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Leo Cole of Loop and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bradford Sr. of Floydada. The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, John Cole of Socorro, New Mexico, and given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of chantilly lace over white satin, fashioned with a tight fitting bodice and long tapering sleeves. The four-tiered lace skirt extended into a long flowing train. The waist length veil of illusion was outlined with lace. To complete her ensemble, she carried a cascading bouquet of white roses with Germany static and a touch of crystal added.

The couple was honored with a reception in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace-edged cloth. The cake was three tiered, decorated with daisies and angelinos and topped with a miniature table was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli. Brides punch, heart-shaped mints and nuts were served from crystal and silver appointments.

Serving at the bride's table were Miss Cheryl Bagwell of Loop and Miss Terry Kinard of Lockney. Rice cups in the shape of bells covered with net and tied with ribbons were passed out to the guests. After a wedding trip to Idaho Falls, Idaho, the couple will return to Lubbock — the groom will return to the Navy.

During the ceremony the audience repeated the Lord's Prayer, and at the conclusion of the ceremony the couple lighted a memory candle.

Traditional wedding music by Vicki Unfred of Lubbock, organist, precluded the ceremony.

The maid of honor was Connie Bradford, sister of groom of Floydada. The bridesmaid was Mitzi McAllister of New Home. They wore light blue straight line floor length dresses with soft blouson bodice and spaghetti straps, combs with tiny white rose buds and blue ribbon in their hair, and wrist corsage of white roses and blue ribbons.

Guests were registered with a white plumed pen by Miss Cherrie Harris of Loop. The circular table was laid with a white hand-crocheted cloth over blue. Gracing the table was a nine-branch votive candelabrum holding a mass of greenery and blue and white silk carnations and blue candles.

Serving as best man was David Lee of Lockney. Sheldon Sue of Floydada was groomsmen.

Ushers were Wesley and Chuck Castle of Lubbock. Lighting candles were Kevin and Kerry Bagwell of Loop.

The groom was attired in an all-white seville tuxedo. The best man and groomsmen wore tuxedos of light blue.

Select Clothing For Safety

Select clothing with safety in mind, advises Becky Culp, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

What you wear can help reduce accidents at home, work or during leisure activities.

GARMENT DESIGN
Garment design is most crucial to preventing accidents, the specialist says.

Any garment that is long or flowing can get caught easily in doors, escalators or bicycle wheels.

Choose fitted or semi-full sleeves with cuffs or elastic that control fullness at the wrist. Avoid very full, loose sleeves.

Pants are generally safer than skirts especially when legs are narrow or tapered.

Helmets that sweep the floor — for either pants or skirts — can easily get caught or stepped on.

Anything that dangles is hazardous, she cautions.

Tuck in or wrap long scarves. Securely tie ties and shorten excessive lengths.

Avoid dangling jewelry, large buttons and belts.

Choose garments with detachable or fold-up hoods. Pull long hair firmly against the head and fasten.

SHOES
Sturdy shoes with medium to low heels are much safer

ACCESSORIES MAKE THE ROOM, and the wallcovering should complement — not compete. Here rustic "Barn-plank" paneling from Georgia-Pacific matches the country mood of the old quilt and antique pewter collection.

Floydada Nursing Home Happenings

By Dorothy Neff Monday Emmitt Lawrence, Francis Childs, Victoria Asher, Willie Stambaugh, Verna McSwain and Mammie Gray worked on cute little scented decorative hangers and owls.

Mr. Lawrence keeps us all entertained with his singing. Every day we work with crafts and he sings us a verse of "Old Joe Clark."

It's been so nice to have Anis Franks back in our exercise class and out for devotions this week. We hope she will continue to improve.

Mrs. Mollie Jones went to spend two or three days with her son Bill Jones of Matador this week, but fell during the night Wednesday, and had to be brought back to the hospital for X-rays. She is pretty uncomfortable but has no broken bones, thank goodness!

Mr. Eubank's son, W.H., brought the residents some fresh honey Wednesday morning and everyone is enjoying it for breakfast.

We want to thank Hillery Polvadore for the ten watermelons. They are served with lunch every day.

Victoria Asher, Docia Manning and I enjoyed a short trip to Lockney Wednesday afternoon. We stopped by Parker Furniture and got enough carpet samples to make several owls. Mr. Swepton donates the samples to our residents.

Emmitt Lawrence was top winner in bingo Thursday with three games. Mr. Alma Eubanks, Mammie Gray and Ray Reed won two games each and Clara Williamson and Willie Stambaugh won one game each.

We would like to thank Doris Drysdale for the sack of nice scraps. Wylie Rogers has visited in our home two days this week with several of the residents. Everyone enjoys Wylie's visits.

Twenty-four residents enjoyed a movie and popcorn in the lobby Friday afternoon. Other residents were served popcorn in their rooms.

Visitors: Wylie Rogers, Marie Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. M.H. Some Local Children Eligible For Free Or Reduced-Price Meals At Schools

Children from families whose income is at or below levels specified by the Floydada Independent School District may be eligible for free or reduced-price meals at city schools.

Children eligible for free meals are also eligible for free extra milk.

If the children's family income is greater than those shown on the accompanying chart, but the family has unusually high medical bills, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses from the mental or physical condition of the child or disaster or casualty losses, the children may still be eligible.

School children of parents or guardians who become unemployed are eligible for free reduced price meals and free milk during the period of unemployment, if the loss of income places the family at a level acceptable according to the scale.

Applications for the free or reduced-price meals may be obtained by contacting the principal of the child's school. All information is confidential.

The school will contact the parent within 10 days with the results of the application. Parents disagreeing with the school's decision will be given a hearing. This can be accomplished by contacting Jerry Cannon, superintendent, 208 S. Main St. Floydada, Texas, 79235. Cannon's telephone number is (806) 983-3498.

children are eligible for these benefits.

All children are treated the same, regardless of ability to pay, according to a district spokesperson. In the operation of child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color or national origin.

The numbers indicated in the "family size" column of the accompanying chart refer to the number of family members, not the number of children, according to the district.

The reduced price for breakfast and lunch is 10 cents. Regular prices for breakfast are 25 cents for breakfast at all schools, with adult meals costing 40 cents. Lunch at the high school and junior high is 70 cents. Lunch at Andrews Ward and Duncan schools is 60 cents, with adults at all schools paying $1. Extra milk is 5 cents for everyone at all schools.

Eat Slowly To Control Weight

Eat more slowly for weight control, advises Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

If a meal is eaten quickly, more food is put into the body before hunger is satisfied, she points out. It takes about 20 minutes to begin to digest food so that a person no longer feels hunger.

TIPS FOR EATING SLOWLY

Here are some ways to slow down eating:
Put fork, knife, spoon or finger foods (sandwich) down after every bite.
Taste, chew thoroughly and swallow the food before taking another bite. This is hard for a while if an individual is in the habit of loading up the fork before swallowing what is in the mouth.

Stop eating in the middle of the meal or snack, and wait two minutes by the clock, or count to 120. This gives the body more time to begin to digest the food and to feel satisfied before overeating.

Leave the table and come back after two minutes, or talk to someone during this time. Be sure it is a pleasant conversation.

Use a fork or spoon to eat everything. Avoid bending over the plate while eating. Sit up straight and bring the food to the mouth — not the mouth to the food.

Count the number of bites taken in one minute. A small punch counter may help.

Try to eat slowly enough to be the last one finished eating — without taking second helpings. Use a smaller plate than usual, and take smaller bites.

NEWS 'N' NOTES

County Extension Agent Rev Up For Brown-Bag Lunches

"Rev" up your ingenuity for brown-bag lunches — with nutrition, safety and enjoyment in mind.

Enjoyment depends on nutrition, safety and taste — so basic guidelines and imagination are all you need.

BASIC GUIDELINES
NUTRITION — A nutritious lunch includes foods from the basic-four food groups.

They are milk, meat, fruit-vegetable and bread-cereal. Meat-group foods can be meat, fish, poultry, eggs, beans or nuts.

SAFETY — First, be sure to wash your hands before preparing the foods, and use clean tablecloths, chopboards, utensils and other equipment.

Then, make sure to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold to insure safety.

Foods to keep cold include milk, meat, fish, poultry and eggs.

Also, to retain "appetite appeal," some fruits and vegetables and other foods should stay cold — such as crunchy-cold carrot or celery.

sticks, along with cheese cubes.
To keep foods cold, use a freeze-gel packet or margarine tub filled with frozen water. These items will keep foods cold even in an ordinary brown bag.

Also, you can freeze some foods — such as sandwiches — and pack them frozen. By lunchtime, they'll be thawed and ready to eat.

BROWN-BAG IDEAS
Try this idea for a tasty brown-bag lunch: a ham-and-cheese sandwich with lettuce, carrot strips, an apple and an oatmeal cookie.

Keep the ham-and-cheese sandwich cold for safety, and keep the lettuce and carrots cool for crispness.

Here's another idea — this one needs no refrigeration: a peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich, cheese straws, an orange or a banana and a slice of carrot cake.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, or origin.

BEFORE SEWING

Pre-shrink a plaid fabric because shrinking can affect matching. A woven plaid can shrink more in one direction than the other, the specialist points out.

Before placing the pattern pieces, look at the fabric to see if it is an even (balanced) plaid or an uneven (unbalanced) plaid.

More care is needed for matching uneven plaids and beginners should avoid them.

For greater accuracy, cut all plaids on a single layer, she suggests.

Check Tents For Fire Insurance

Check your tent before going camping to avoid potential hazards, advises Carla Shearer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Camping itself is not unsafe — in fact, its related injuries rank lower than any other sporting activities, she points out.

Most camping injuries stem from faulty equipment or its improper use. The Consumer Product Safety Commission has established flammability standards for tent manufacturers.

The Commission requires that those tents that do not meet specifications for flame resistant materials carry labels that indicate the tent is not flame resistant, the specialist says.

However, if a tent does not display this information, you can test it for flame resistance yourself.

To determine whether your tent is flame resistant, cut a small dry sample of the tent material. Hold it vertically with a pair of tongs or similar instrument—not your fingers—and touch a match flame to the underside of the fabric.

If the material continues to burn after the flame is removed, then the material is not flame resistant.

But, if the material extinguishes itself, then it is flame resistant.

Never consider a tent flame proof, Ms. Shearer cautions.

Take these precautions when camping:

1) Pitch the tent at least 15 feet upwind from fire places, grills and other sources of fire.

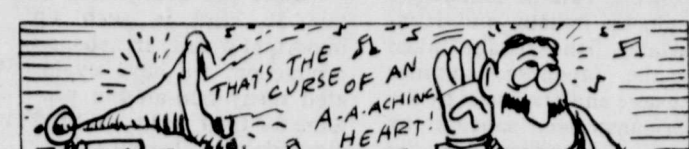

2) Use only battery-operated lights inside the tent.

3) Instruct everyone using the tent on how to escape in case of fire. This will include being prepared to cut your way out of the tent.

You can fix wicker furniture with wire twists from bread or garbage bags. Weave or glue them into the wicker and paint them to match.

State Of Texas Is Awarded Grant

The State of Texas has been awarded a grant of $191,200 for Training and Technical Assistance in association with the Department of Energy's Weatherization Assistance for Low-Income Persons Program in Texas, it was announced today by G. Dan Rambo, Regional Representative for the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE).

The grant will assist the State in improving the quality of workmanship that is essential in realizing the maximum amount of energy savings from the installation of weatherization materials. The Texas Program is part of a nationwide effort to reduce energy consumption and improve the dwelling unit environment of the low-income persons in the nation.

For further information regarding this program, contact Mr. Omar Harvey, Executive Director, Texas Department of Community Affairs, 210 Barton Springs Road, Austin, Texas.

An age-old method of meat preservation, sausage making, looks increasingly attractive because of space-age technology and scarce, expensive energy.

Sausages are not just the pork patties or links that many Americans eat with their breakfast. Actually, sausages include all meat products that are ground, chopped, mixed and/or seasoned and then encased to retain shape. A wide variety of ethnic foods are sausages, such as bratwurst, bologna, bockwurst, salami, weiners, luncheon meats, canned pasta, chili, spiced ham, etc.

Sausages are said to be the oldest preformulated convenience food: no bone; easy to carry and keep; and easy to eat, hot or cold.

Though many forms of sausage in the U.S. now require refrigeration, they have gotten away from the original purpose of sausage, according to Dr. Robert Terrell, who is in charge of Experiment Station research to improve sausage technology at Texas A&M University.

Many nations of the world do not have our refrigerated distribution system (trucks and highways) or with home refrigeration.

These nations must convert animals, including fish and fowl, into a form of sausage that will keep without refrigeration and that can be eaten either as is, or cooked.

Nearly every society of the world has a "unique" recipe for sausage, Terrell says.

Examples include the fermented salami sausages made by Italians and Hungarians; fish sausage made by the Japanese; summer sausage and bratwurst by the Germans; deer sausage by hunters; chorizo by the Spanish; kishka, a blood sausage, by the Poles; and pemmican by North American Indians.

The latter was a concentrated food made by pounding lean, dried meat into a powder, combining with dried berries and mixing with melted fat.

Energy conservation, meat quality improvement, and better utilization of animal products are among the reasons for expansion of research into improving sausage technology, Terrell says.

For example, breakfast links of sausage can use vast quantities of sheep and goat meat produced in Texas, for export as well as for selected U.S. markets.

Spoilage of processed meats can be avoided, as refrigeration becomes increasingly expensive, by low-dose irradiation with high-energy gamma rays.

Such treatment destroys the common spoilage bacteria, and sausages last longer at higher temperatures.

This process is not used in the U.S. at present because of government regulations but is being used in Italy, Germany, Holland and Israel not only meat but also potatoes, garlic, onions, and chickens.

Sources of protein other than animal are also products being tested for possible use.

in sausage, Terrell says. For example, flour made from glandless cottonseed produced in Texas can replace 5 to 10 percent of meat in frankfurters. Its taste is bland and acceptable, it's plentiful and it doesn't cost as much as beef.

Purified plasma protein, obtained by a process developed at Texas A&M, can be used at low levels of 1 percent in frankfurters to improve their firmness and texture.

"Since the ability of protein to bind is such an important quality in sausage production, we have evaluated many non-muscle proteins for their ability to bind meat pieces," Terrell says.

"Examples of such non-muscle proteins include sources such as soybeans, cottonseed, caseinate, non-fat dry milk, egg whites, plasma protein, and gluten from wheat or corn."

"A simple, reliable, and accurate process was developed to assess the binding abilities of these alternatives to meat-protein foods."

"Our graduates in food technology and animal science are already helping industry, government, and consumers in developing uses of sausage. Age-old processes, combined with advancements of modern science, can contribute to improving this area of meat processing," Terrell concluded.

THEN and NOW

Barbecuing History

THEN: Early settlers were taught the barbecue cooking method by local Indians.

The settlers passed the art down from one generation to the next and today many favorite dishes from all parts of the country are barbecued. From Western grilled steaks to New England barbecued seafood, regional favorites boast their mouth-watering smoky flavor.

Henry Ford made barbecuing even more popular by inventing the charcoal briquet. Coals are a convenient source of outdoor cooking fuel and impart that delicious smoky flavor to foods.

NOW: Today, the four out of five Americans who barbecue are still making history. They've expanded the range of their grills from charcoal broiling foods to poaching, roasting and even charcoal water smoking them. There's even a National Barbecue Week.

If you get out your charcoal grill, you can be part of it.

Center News

By Mrs. J.E. Green

Hello, everybody! I am home again after nearly five months downstate. I spent over six weeks in the Hubbard Hospital — a fine place to be when you find yourself helpless for a time. Then I recuperated in the home of my daughter and family — the Dr. Rymans. How wonderful everyone was to me.

We arrived (Margaret and daughter Donna) in the small hours of Saturday. We found evidence of much rain — weeds! But they can be reckoned with, I hope.

Saturday morning our first callers were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Latta. In the evening a friend of Donna's arrived from Lubbock. He spent the rest of the day, and soon Mr. and Mrs. Victor Green of Plainview came. They all had supper with us. Good time.

Sunday we enjoyed being in Calvary Church again the first time since April. Margaret and Donna left for home Sunday afternoon.

Monday morning Mrs. Mabel Foster and Mrs. Edna Phillips came by. Good to see everybody. Monday afternoon, son Clyde of Peralta, New Mexico, arrived to see that I don't fall and break another limb while I get around on a walker — (and he brought apples).

It was sad to miss the two loved members of our church who died recently, Mrs. Phillips and Mr. Odam. We also miss Tammy at the organ, but were so glad to see all the rest and hear Bro. Payne preach again.

Mrs. Leo Frizzell and others visited Saturday in the Lockney Rest home with her brother and wife, the Claud Carpenters and her sister, Mrs. Ethel Frizzell. Mr. Carpenter and Mrs. Ethel Frizzell have been very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Thomas were in Lockney two days last week seeing their doctor. Mrs. Mary Lee Warren visited Mrs. Thomas Monday.

Mrs. Thomas Warren visited Mrs. Ola Warren Sunday afternoon.

Miss Vera Meredith's company Tuesday were Bro. and Mrs. Clay Muncy and Mrs. Minnie Wright of Lockney. The Muncy's also came Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Amanda Patterson came Friday.

Barry Boteler and family of Oklahoma City spent the weekend with grandparents, the Marion Carpenters.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Carpenter and Mrs. Claudine Conway of Irving spent Wednesday visiting parents, the Claud Carpenters of the Lockney Rest Home, Mrs. Frizzell and the Marion Carpenters.

Mr. and Mrs. O.G. Mayfield spent the weekend two weeks ago in visiting their son Eugene and family in Henrietta, where the family recently moved. While the parents were there they received word that some of Mrs. Mayfield's relatives from California had arrived in Floydada, so they returned home Monday. The California relatives were Mr. and Mrs. Luther Green of Antioch, California.

I want to thank all concerned for the visits, flowers, cards, letters and prayers while in the hospital and afterward.

More than half of all the tea drunk in the U.S. is made with tea bags.
