

Floyd County voter turnout light

Expected light voter turnout, as voters Tuesday passed the state constitutional amendments and rejected a third.

One and Three, the appointment of notaries public by the state of loans for ranchers to buy land, won support in the county. According to Margaret Collier, the Floyd County clerk, a total of 4,851 persons were registered to vote in the county.

In the South Plains, only about 5.5 percent of the electorate turned out for the balloting, according to election officials.

Individual precinct returns for the election were:

—Pct. 1 (Southwest Floydada) No. 1 - 54 for, 32 against; No. 2-39 for, 46 against; No. 3 - 58 for, 28 against.

out to decide the farm loan proposal, with 313 for and 103 against the measure.

Floyd County did better in voter turnout than the South Plains area in general, with approximately 8.7 percent of the voters going to the polls. An estimated 420 persons, including absentee, cast ballots in the election.

LHS band gets "I" in marching... details Sunday

New DPS trooper

A new trooper has joined the Department of Public Safety force stationed in Floyd County.

For Trooper Joe Lopez, 25 years old, it is the first tour of duty with the state highway patrol.

Lopez began his duties in traffic supervision and accident investigation on rural highways in the county Oct. 19.

He graduated from the DPS academy in Austin on Oct. 12 and came immediately to Floyd County. Lopez said he asked to be assigned to Region Five, of which Floyd County is a part.

Lopez is a native of Cisco, Texas, where he graduated high school and received an associate of arts degree from the Cisco Junior College. He went on to graduate from Angelo State University with a bachelor of science degree in biology.

The new trooper said he was interested in law enforcement from an early age and was encouraged to apply for the DPS academy by his younger brother, Jaime, who is stationed with the drivers license department in Lubbock.

In completing the academy, Lopez also underwent 40 hours of instruction in first aid.

Lopez, who is single, currently resides in Floydada. On his time off he likes to hunt.

LONGHORNS HAVE OPEN DATE FRIDAY

The Longhorn football team has an open date this week. Final game of the season for the LHS gridders is next week, when they host Idalou on Friday (November 16).

SUNDAY EDITION OUT EARLY

The Sunday, November 9, edition of The Lockney Beacon will be delivered to local boxholders and rural-route subscribers on Saturday, November 8.

Museum coins selling well

The Floyd County Bicentennial commemorative coins offered by the county museum have been selling well, according to Georgia Finley, of the museum staff.

The museum staff estimated that more than $2,000 had been taken in through the sale of the coins.

The two-coin sets have been all sold out, Mrs. Finley said, but the museum still has some gold and silver singles and plenty of belt buckles and necklaces.

The coins may be purchased at the museum.

County population declining

County will have experienced a five percent population decline between 1970 and 1980, if a Department of Health estimate is accurate.

The county predicted that the population will contain a total of 10,544 when the 1980 census is taken. The 1970 U.S. Census showed the county with a population of 11,044.

Floydada accounted for 4,109 county residents ten years ago. Lockney had the outlying areas and cities made up the 4,841-resident difference.

By 1976, the county had already lost 3.8 percent of its population, according to the latest Census Bureau figures.

The Texas Employment Commission reported that the county labor force stood at 5,195 workers. By the end of July of this year, the county had an unemployment rate of 4.8 percent for the same period.

The per capita income, the amount of money taken in if distributed evenly among the working population, was $4,086 in 1976, the last year for which figures are available, according to TEC.

Lockney in UIL District 3-AAA next year

Lockney school athletes and scholars will compete in District 3-AAA (that's right — it's conference 3A) beginning with the 1980-81 school year. The Texas University Interscholastic League announced new classification and district alignments Monday.

District 3-AAA will comprise the same teams as the "old" District 4-AAA with one exception — Childress will be added to the five schools previously in the district. Childress, a perennial state football power, moves from the old District 2-AA. Lockney, Floydada, Abernathy, Tulia and Idalou remain in the renumbered and reclassified 4-AA.

The Longhorns' 1980-81 football schedule shows some changes in the non-district games, too. The "Horns" will play Post, Petersburg, Olton, Littlefield and Muleshoe before opening the district slate at Tulia October 17. They then'll play at Floydada, host Abernathy, go to Childress, and wind up the season playing Idalou here.

Lockney High School enrollment is approximately 290, or about 25 above the 2A - 3A dividing line, according to Jim Warren, LHS athletic director. The UIL breakdown in enrollments places schools with 1,310 or more students in Class AAAAA, 1,309 to 615 in AAAAA, 614 to 265 in AAA, 264 to 135 in AA, and 134 and below in A. Schools with less than 85 students may compete in the six-man conference in football.

Lockney telephone customers get IDDD

On Nov. 1, telephone customers in Lockney got IDDD.

Now, don't panic. That's not some new disease. It stands for International Direct Distance Dialing.

This new service, provided by Southwestern Bell, enables residents to dial their own direct calls to Mexico, Italy, Japan and 61 other foreign countries.

IDDD is faster and more convenient than previous operator-assisted calls.

"The whole process in allowing our local switching office to provide this service entails some minor changes in equipment," said Jim West, manager for Southwestern Bell in Plainview.

"Economically, it will relieve some of the load on our operators."

Although using IDDD may seem complicated at first and will mean dialing quite a few numbers, the whole system is very simple, West said. He explained IDDD this way:

First, to call a foreign country, dial the international access code number "011." This alerts the system a call to another country is being placed.

Then dial the country code, which can be a two or three-digit number. For example, Mexico's country code is 52, while Ireland's is 353.

Follow that with the city code, which ranges from one to five-digits, and complete the call with the local number.

When first dialing, don't hesitate too long after dialing "0," or the operator will come on the line. Also, be sure to wait at least 60 seconds for the call to be completed. It will ring at the other end. It's as easy as that.

For international calls that are person-to-person, collect, credit card or charged to another number, follow the same procedure, but use "011" for the international access code.

CONTROLLED MODEL PLANES

Lockneyites' team wins coast-to-coast airplane race

Lockneyites and a former resident are members of a team which recently won a coast-to-coast airplane race. The airplanes are controlled model planes. The both of Plainview, to "fly" one leg of a coast-to-coast model plane relay race last month.

They're members of the SPLAT

(South Plains Line And Transmitter) Model Airplane Club of Plainview. The group finished second on the Odessa-to-El Paso leg of the race, moving their team from second to third in the overall race standings. Their team eventually finished first of five teams in the coast-to-coast (and then some) relay race.

The "1979 Trans-America Radio Controlled Relay Race" route started at Washington, D.C. and went to Ontario, California and back to Las Vegas, Nevada. Proceeds from the race went to the Jerry Lewis muscular dystrophy drive.

The model airplanes are capable of speeds over 100 mph, but the automobiles from which they're controlled travelled on U.S. interstate highways during the race, so they were limited to a 55-mph rate, both legally and under contest rules. The fun comes in keeping the model planes flying at the "slow" highway speeds. Stansell said his group might have won their leg if they hadn't had to slow down, causing the airplane engine to stall and forcing the plane down. A wing was damaged in the resulting "crash."

In addition to the aptly-initialled (as it turned out) Plainview SPLAT Club, there were the "Windy Weather Wing Wagglers" from Midland, two groups from El Paso and one from Mexico City competing on the Odessa-to-El Paso leg of the race.

Cindy Means wins Beacon football contest

The Beacon football contest last week got downright interesting when members of the same family were first and second. The contest was all set to throw out the winner because of a tie which reads "One winner per week per family, please," when he remembered several weeks ago when prize money was awarded to two members of the same family. Things got even stickier when a three-way tie for third place developed.

Here's how the crisis was resolved:

Cindy Means got the $10 prize for first place. No doubt about that — she missed only one game and was just four points (with a guess of 26) away on the tie-breaker total, although she picked the wrong winner (Lockney).

Michael D. Means also missed just one game and circled Lockney in the tie-breaker section, but guessed 48 points would be scored, 18 points too high. He will receive $6 check for second place.

John Wisdom missed two games and picked Tulia in the tie-breaker. Seven other contestants also missed two, but Wisdom was the only one who picked the correct winner, and that's the first thing considered in breaking ties. So Wisdom will receive $6 for second place, which he is entitled to under the printed contest rules.

Department asking for biological info on cranes

The Texas parks and game department is cooperating with Fish and Wildlife Service and other crane hunting states in gathering biological information on cranes.

Three subspecies of sandhill cranes are hunted in West Texas and there are wide variations in their respective population levels. The survey will help determine the effects of hunting on each subspecies.

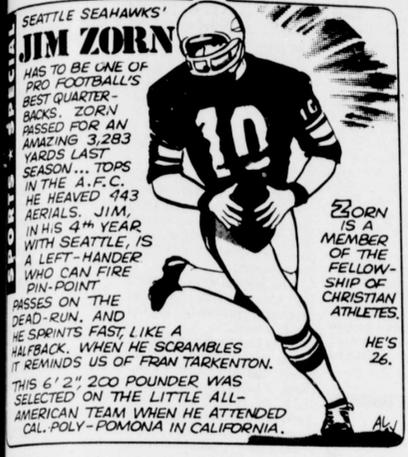

State and federal biologists will be in the field gathering data on age, sex, length and weight of sandhill cranes harvested during the 1979 hunt. Also, hunters in the Buffalo Lake and Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuges areas are asked to go by one of the following officer where a conservation effort will record the measurements. The entire process takes only a few minutes.

Three contestants — W.L. Carthel, Tim Jeffress and Jim Curtsinger — missed two games and picked Lockney in the tie-breaker, and all three were right on the money with 30-point guesses on the tie-breaker total. They split the $4 third prize three ways, each receiving $1.33 1/3, which was generously rounded up to $1.35.

That left the contest judge with the problem of what to do about the October 7 contest, in which the Davis brothers, Joey and Randy, were declared winners of the first- and third-place money. Monty Bybee, who should have won third place according to the rules, will receive a check for that week's contest.

In future contest, the one-winner-per-family-per-week rule will be followed, but it was decided that awarding duplicate prizes was the only fair way to resolve the mistake in the October 7 contest judging. Remember — for the final two weeks of the football contest this year, The Beacon will award only one prize per week per family.

Back to last week's contest — honorable mention goes to Randy Davis, Gavin Gilbert, Cathy Barnett and Boyd Lee, who missed two games, picked Lockney in the tie-breaker, and missed the actual total score by three to 12 points.

Hunting contest announced

The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee this week announced the deadlines for its annual 1979/80 Sports Committee Hunting Trophy Contest.

Hunters may enter in three categories — Aoudad, White Tail Deer and Mule Deer. First and second place winners will be awarded buck hunting knives in the seasonal hunts, according to Dick Bynum, Committee Chairman.

Deadline for Aoudad is noon, January 29, 1980; for White Tail Deer, noon, December 11, 1979, and for Mule Deer, noon, December 4, 1979.

Application forms must be obtained from a Texas State Department of Parks and Wildlife game warden, according to Bynum.

All entry forms must be submitted with a photo of the hunter and the trophy head.

Completed applications and the photo with the hunter and the trophy head will be submitted to the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce offices, Third and Polk Street in Amarillo.

Rural traffic deaths on rise

Recently-released Department of Transportation report on traffic casualties shows a 10 percent rise in traffic deaths on rural roads were more than 100 miles from a city.

Of 137 persons killed on Texas roads last month, 209, almost all, died in rural areas. Only one person involved in an injury was injured in a rural area by a car.

Last August, there were 15,148 traffic deaths nationwide, 3,685 of those happened on rural roads.

Of the 35,000 accidents, the rural areas accounted for only 10 percent, but the deaths are at approximately the same rate as in urban areas. The higher speed motorists often drive is blamed for the high death rate.

Gas tax law goes into effect in Texas on Jan. 1

The new law is similar to the decal system for agricultural vehicles except that the highway user has no limitation on the number of miles he may travel annually.

Cost of the decal is based on the gross registered weight of the vehicle and the class of use. Based on the average miles drive and the average miles per gallon for each weight category will be as follows:

- Decals for Class A vehicles weighing less than 4,000 pounds will cost $72;
- for Class B vehicles from 4,000 to 8,000 pounds the cost is $84;
- for Class C vehicles weighing between 8,001 and 12,500 pounds, the cost is $120;
- for Class D vehicles weighing from 12,501 to 22,500 pounds the cost is $168 and
- decals for Class E vehicles of 22,501 pounds or more will cost $300.

There are three special vehicle classes. A Class S decal, for purposes which do not require travel on public highways exceeding 5,000 miles annually will cost $48.

Transit carrier vehicles operated by a transit company will have to pay $300 annually for a decal.

Motor vehicles designed to carry fewer than 10 passengers and which are used for transporting persons for compensation will be taxed $204.

In addition to the state tax, there is a Federal tax on LP gas. If the supplier delivers fuel to the vehicle's tank directly, he must collect the Federal tax at that time.

LP gas may be delivered in bulk quantities by the supplier tax free. As the owner uses the fuel, he must report and pay the tax direct as he fills vehicles from a bulk storage tank.

Additional information on the Federal tax is available in Internal Revenue Service Publication 510.

State comptroller will issue a decal for each vehicle, stating that the tax has been paid. After purchasing the decal, the user has no other tax liability, including invoices, fuel monthly reports or audit liability. If a decal of a vehicle is issued, the owner will be refunded portion of the tax paid on a pro-rata basis. If LP gas carburetors installed during the year, the user pays for the months remaining in the year.

The law is keyed to the state's vehicle inspection sticker. Vehicles operating on LP gas will not be required to have a state inspection sticker unless they also have a valid tax decal.

Grandparents' letters held for children of 2029

Fifty years from now, in towns and cities throughout the United States, children will be opening letters written by their grandparents when they were children.

Some 45,000 letters have been written this year by the grade school readers of Weekly Reader. The letters will be stored in a time capsule by the magazine's parent company, Xerox Corporation, and will be delivered back to hometown city halls across America in 2029.

Weekly Reader Editors asked its seven million grade school readers to tell their grandchildren what they think—and hope—the world will be like in 2029, and what needs to be done in the meantime to make those hopes come true. The children were asked to supplement letters with drawings, photographs, tape recordings and poems.

Some of the letters make dire predictions for a future with pollution and crime and without food, trees or animals. Others foresee a garden world and a return to the days of the horse and buggy. Some children imagine a space age with robots doing chores, hovermobiles or spaceships for transportation and computers for teachers.

Here are a few examples: "In your year of 2029, I think there will be great big buildings shooting bombs. The good people in the buildings will shoot at spaceships. The cars will race and make pollution. That's why the sun will be unhappy." (Denver, Colo.)

"Life should be full of fun, too. Wouldn't it be terrific if you could push a button and disappear and appear if you wanted to? Just think, robots will do all the work." (Wantagh, N.Y.)

"I might be in the White House or on a ranch or in the mountains...or maybe I will just stay in San Jose..." (San Jose, Calif.)

"When I sent this letter I was only 12 and now I am 62. Tell your mother I love her." (Chicago)

Weekly Reader editorial director Dr. Terry Borton says the letters project was designed to enable children to express their hopes and ideas. The editors believe children's dreams of today may well become their plans of tomorrow and the reality of their future.

Borton, 40, is not satisfied to have merely started the project. "I plan to be there in 2029," he says, "and I am going to open the time capsule and see the letters distributed to children of the future."

From the spiritual journal of Karen Burton Mains "... We know that God has touched our lives. We cannot prove it logically. We cannot convince the skeptic. We can only give testimony to our belief that he performed an investiture of himself on our lives."

Karen, Karen is that special book which speaks to the human heart because it chronicles one woman's hunger and search for life's ultimate meaning. The author's soul-searching honesty brings identification and recognition to the reader's consciousness. It is a difficult task to share intimately one's inner spiritual struggles and triumphs in a way that is honest and helpful. Karen Mains has met the challenge.

For the person who has the responsibility of teaching young children in Sunday School the cassette tape CT219 "Principles of Story-Telling" would be helpful. This tape illustrates ways to make stories more interesting and helps the teller to know how to organize material for successful story-telling.

Also in our cassette tape collection are a series of seven tapes on the subject of applying Christian ethics to medical questions. This seminar includes subjects such as "Abortion: The Death of Fetal Life" by Paul D. Simmons and "Biomedical Issues and Reproduction" by Kenneth Vaux. These would be good resource material for students doing research papers on the subject.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn White, Nina Copeland, Joyce Williams and Beth Pratt were present Wednesday for the showing of the film "Color It Living." Plan to join the Munch Bunch on the First Wednesday in December for a relaxing and entertaining lunch hour. The next meeting will be at the Floyd County Library on December 5 at 12 noon.

Grandparents earn grand status

Though grandparents cannot demand respect from grandchildren just because they are older adults, they can — and usually do — "earn" respect.

Growing older together and sharing their generations develop love and respect for the young child and grandparents alike, says Dorothy Taylor.

Miss Taylor is a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Weekly Reader editorial director Dr. Terry Borton says the letters project was designed to enable children to express their hopes and ideas. The editors believe children's dreams of today may well become their plans of tomorrow and the reality of their future.

Borton, 40, is not satisfied to have merely started the project. "I plan to be there in 2029," he says, "and I am going to open the time capsule and see the letters distributed to children of the future."

Grandparents shouldn't feel any different — nothing has happened to them. The baby was born to their child, not to them, she reminds.

Some grandparents forget, though, that the new baby is not theirs and that he already has parents, she points out.

KINDS OF GRANDPARENTS
Grandparents come in all sizes, shapes, ages and temperaments.

The "typical grandparents maintain a sincere interest in close relationships with the grandchild and provide special treats and indulgences."

They baby-sit sometimes but leave the parenting of the baby to the parents.

Some grandparents are fun-seekers. They appear to be the grandchild's playmate and have very few rules of discipline, Miss Taylor continues.

Other grandparents serve as substitute parents. They take over full responsibility for the child — including discipline.

Sometimes grandparents have to do this for the sake of the child — other times they do it against the parent's wishes.

Most grandparents are wise because of experience, but when grandparents "know-it-all" it threatens the child's parents.

The least respected and cherished grandparents are the ones who buy everything but give nothing of themselves — especially love.

Truly wise grandparents acknowledge their new role in life as the opportunity to see that life goes on through their developing grandchild — and they should view that as one of their greatest rewards, in addition to "earning" their own special grand status.

Miss Taylor honored with bridal shower

Miss Rhonda Taylor of Plainview, bride-elect of Tim McCain, was honored with a wedding shower Saturday in the home of Mrs. B.J. Terrell.

Special guest at the shower was Miss Taylor's grandmother, Mrs. Leon Cartwright of Plainview.

bee, neice of the groom-to-be, served refreshments of spiced tea, coffee, assorted cookies, and sausage balls from silver appointments. The serving table was covered with a blue floor-length cloth, centered with white candleabra with wedding bells entwined, with blue votive candles.

Delinda Taylor, sister of the bride-to-be, Christi Widener and Mitzi (Terrell) Glenn, were in charge of the gift room.

The hostess gift was a set of cooking ware.

Hostesses were Mmes. B. J. Terrell, Pat Stansell, Melvin Thacker, Henry Sue, Bill Sherman, Rudy Zachary, Archie Bybee, Bobby Carthel, Jimmy Stennett, Audrey McCormick, Raymond Parker, Dub Mercer, Thomas Marr, Tom Duvall, Glen Cooper, Max Smith, Byron Ford, Buck Ford, and Doug Meriwether.

Winterize your mobile home

"Winterize" your mobile home before cold weather sets in, advises a housing and home furnishings specialist, Sue Young, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Seal cracks and openings "weather-tight," no matter how small, by tightening screws and applying caulking compound around joints, moldings, windows, doors, seams and vents.

Tighten or replace loose screws and fittings.

Seal all exterior connections, and cover and seal openings underneath the home.

Clean rubber and vinyl moldings around windows and doors, and lubricate the operating mechanisms so that doors and windows close and seal completely. Drain any exterior water faucets and lines, and disconnect hoses, and store them for the winter.

Consider the installment of storm windows since they prevent heat loss and will save considerably on the heat bill.

Inspect all seams, moldings, stacks and vents where they attach to the roof. Caulk or paint any separations or cracks with an asphalt-base aluminum paint.

Also, inspect and seal the seams over windows and doors.

Protect the air conditioner with a cover. A cover not only protects the unit, but also prevents heat loss from the home and cold air and moisture from entering the house.

COLLEGE STATION — Parents can help combat an illness' effect on a child by approaching it with a wholesome attitude, says Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Whether the illness is real or imagined, a parent's wholesome attitude will make its effect far less damaging, she adds.

"Any illness — physical or psychosomatic — brings changes in a child's development, his behavior, attitudes and personality," Miss Taylor explains.

"How severe and how long-lasting depends on the illness itself and on the child's attitude. His parents' attitude will influence how the child views his illness."

Research does not have all the answers to illnesses, of course, but it does show that psychosomatic diseases can be affected by germs or physical sources, the specialist says.

Also, research findings point to several associations among healthier children and to some among children with health problems:

— Three factors directly related to healthy children appear to be prenatal health, good nutrition and birth order.

— Children who have good nutrition before and after birth tend to be healthier and more resistant to diseases.

— First-born children tend to be less illness-prone than those born later to families.

ANSWERS TO SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS

Virginia DeWitt, Social Security Representative

Question: My husband has been unable to work for the past 4 months because of a severe illness. I should apply for disability benefits, but I don't think he is considered disabled. Does social security have a definition of a disability?

Answer: You are correct. "Disability" is defined as the inability to engage in any substantial gainful work because of a physical or mental impairment which prevents you from doing any gainful work and is expected to last for at least 12 months or to result in death. Factors such as education, experience and age may be considered in determining whether you are able to do gainful work. For information, contact your local social security office.

For further information regarding Social Security benefits please contact the Social Security Administration, 5th Street, Plainview office at your time and a telephone call.

Senate oks Bentsen amend

The Senate on Thursday approved legislation by Senator Lloyd Bentsen that will mean $4.1 million in education funds for Texas students during the current school year.

The legislation is the 1965 Higher Education Act to eliminate that adversely affects students in Texas. It proved unanimous in the Senate.

"This legislation to assure that $4.1 million in federal funds withheld from the State Student Grant program. It has been promised approximately 10,000 in my state, to possible for them tuition costs," Bentsen said in Senate debate.

The problem is statutory accreditation of institutions of education. The mandates that grants be distributed to non-profit institutions of higher education are in violation of the Constitution.

"The net effect of federal law is to state law, require Texas distribute money to whether they are or not," Bentsen said.

"Because of the between state and law, funds have held by the federal since Texas subsidize use schools."

The Bentsen amendment exempts Texas provision in federal law. Other legislation before Congress to exemption permanent.

"We cannot let consistency between and state laws be education funds to students this year," Bentsen said.

My amendment signed to free have been granted a state of Imbo, Bentsen said.

Hightower Blasts Railroad Commission for "conspiracy"

AUSTIN — Only ten days after the revelation of a Railroad Commission policy change allowing retroactive gas utility rate increases, Jim Hightower Friday told a Capitol news conference that another quiet, unrecorded policy change by the Commission represents a "conspiracy against the ratepayers of Texas" and an "unprecedented power grab."

Hightower, 36-year-old consumer advocate and former newspaper editor, is a candidate to unseat incumbent Commissioner Jim Nugent in next May's Democratic primary.

Hightower said the newly-noticed policy change occurred more than a year ago and that there was no prior notice or public input as is required for state agency policy changes under the state's Open Meetings Act.

He said the policy change involved the "test year" that a utility bases its request for a rate increase upon when it goes before a city council.

"In the summer of 1978," he explained, "Lone Star Gas wanted more money from its Fort Worth customers than the city thought they deserved, so the case came on appeal to the Railroad Commission. There's nothing new or unusual in this."

However, at about that time, the commissioners very quietly changed their rules regarding the test year. When the Fort Worth case came to them, the commissioners allowed the utility to use a more recent test year — and therefore inflated data — that the Fort Worth city council never got to look at, despite the fact that the original jurisdiction in gas utility cases in Texas is and always has been, by law, at the local level.

"The effect of this policy change was two-fold: First, it allowed Lone Star Gas to put into effect the rate increase granted by the Fort Worth city council and then take a brand new rate case, based on a new test year, to the Railroad Commission."

"No matter what they called it, it wasn't an appeal. What it is is double jeopardy for Texas consumers. It was a request for an additional rate increase right on top of the one already granted by the Fort Worth city council."

"Second, it forced the Fort Worth city staff to start over in their preparations to argue the so-called 'appeal' before the Railroad Commission. That cost Fort Worth taxpayers money. It also meant that Lone Star Gas staff spent dozens of hours compiling the new test year data, and you can be sure that expense will show up in Lone Star's next test year in their next request for more money."

"To my knowledge," Hightower continued, "in every case since then, the three commissioners have allowed the utilities to switch test years in midstream and get larger rate increases than the cities would allow."

"I believe their actions are totally improper and may be illegal. Both of these new policies were adopted without the benefit of the niceties required by the state's open meetings law."

"The commissioners are playing it cute with this point, claiming that their actions don't represent an actual change in Railroad Commission policy. Yet in the 21 gas rate cases that have been decided by the commissioners since the precedent-breaking July decision, the utilities have been given the retroactive benefit every time."

"If that's not a policy change, then a 50-pound sack of flour doesn't make a big biscuit. And if it is a policy change, it was adopted illegally."

Hightower said the policy change regarding the test year "combined with the Commission's July decision to allow retroactive rate increases — the Nugent surcharge — puts a double whammy on Texas consumers."

"The utilities have it pretty good in Texas these days. For the bad publicity of only one rate case, they get two rate increases. And if there's a delay in the second one, they just collect it later by tacking a surcharge onto our monthly bills."

"That means that as a reward for filing one rate increase request, they tack onto your bill (1) the increase granted by the city, (2) the additional increase granted by the Commission, and (3) the surcharge necessary to retroactively collect the new rate granted by the Commission."

"It seems appropriate that we're talking about this during the Halloween season. The consumers of this state are being tricked, and the utility companies are getting treated."

"Despite the best efforts of Lone Star Gas lobbyists last session," Hightower continued, "the original jurisdiction over gas rates still rests with local authorities. By allowing the utilities to shift their 'test year' and present an entirely new case on appeal, the commissioners are illegally usurping local power."

"If these policy changes were made in the open in pre-published and recorded Commission meetings, we anti-consumer and as demonstrations of the arrogance of the commissioners."

"But the very fact that the changes were made in secrecy, and that they were made to benefit the very industries that have so gen-

Hightower Blasts Railroad Commission for "conspiracy"

By ten days of the commission's July decision to allow retroactive rate increases — the Nugent surcharge — puts a double whammy on Texas consumers.

"The utilities have it pretty good in Texas these days. For the bad publicity of only one rate case, they get two rate increases. And if there's a delay in the second one, they just collect it later by tacking a surcharge onto our monthly bills.

"That means that as a reward for filing one rate increase request, they tack onto your bill (1) the increase granted by the city, (2) the additional increase granted by the Commission, and (3) the surcharge necessary to retroactively collect the new rate granted by the Commission.

"It seems appropriate that we're talking about this during the Halloween season. The consumers of this state are being tricked, and the utility companies are getting treated.

"Despite the best efforts of Lone Star Gas Lobbyists last session," Hightower continued, "the original jurisdiction over gas rates still rests with local authorities. By allowing the utilities to shift their 'test year' case on appeal, the commissioners are illegally usurping local power.

"If these policy changes were made in the open in pre-publicized and recorded Commission meetings, we would denounce them as anti-consumer and as demonstrations of the arrogance of the commissioners.

"But the very fact that the changes were made in secrecy, and that they were made to benefit the very industries that have so generously supported the commission members' campaigns, suggests a conspiracy to mislead consumers on the other hand, and a conspiracy against the state and city council members of Texas who try to gouge their citizens. The gas companies, in fact, have already filed against the Railroad Commission's unprecedented power grab. Every city and every city council member in every city in Texas needs to know what the commission is doing and ought to prevent. Commission's usurping local rate-making authority is a violation of the state constitution. The insurance and utility companies would notice or be notified of the Texas ratemakers' interests and local utilities need to make a noise against these changes."
