Tax appraiser stresses 'equity' in meeting here

McMorries, of the Hereford firm has contracted to reappraise Floyd County agricultural land, met several Lockney businessmen in the Barker Insurance office Tuesday afternoon to "...talk about the tax situation we're all in..."

Four members of the Floyd County

Appraisal Board — Tom Duvall, Eddie Teeter, Jack Lackey and Adrain Helms — were present.

McMorries explained the state laws which mandate appraisal boards and require reappraisals throughout Texas. "Senate Bill 621, formerly known as 'The Peveco Bill,' created the central appraisal office, with five elected directors. It's in operation now," McMorries said.

"The bill makes central appraisal offices mandatory for all taxing agencies except the county government." Since the county must make the same appraisals as the other entities and bear the cost of doing the same thing, Floyd County decided to join in the central appraisal district, he told the group.

"House Bill 1060 provides for looking at agricultural value of land," he said. For his firm's purposes, every jurisdiction in the county must evaluate agricultural land to show both market value and agricultural value.

HB 1060 also exempts from taxation certain "intangibles" — such as money in the bank, stocks and bonds, and household furnishings — which had been taxable before, and allows for certain exemptions, such as the $5,000 homestead exemption and additional $10,000 homestead exemption for persons 65 or older. The homestead exemptions apply to school districts only.

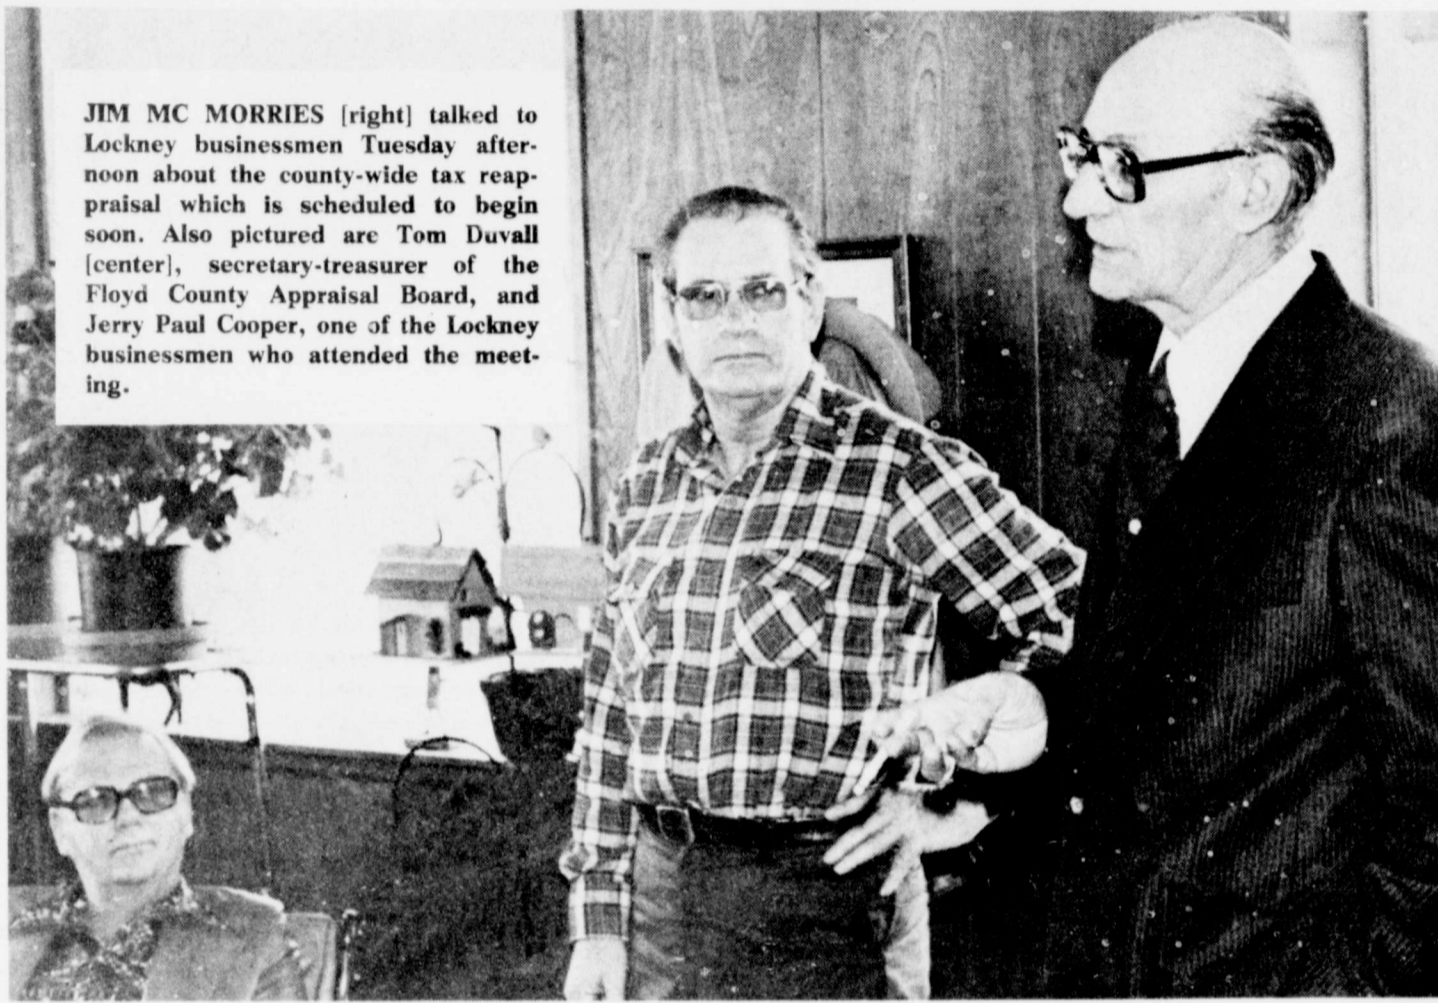

McMorries said his firm would probably start making calls in Floyd County sometime next week. He said a completely accurate appraisal would be impossible, but it was his intention to be equitable in the appraisal.

"In my recommendations on value, I think you will find me to be on the conservative side," McMorries said, "but I will not jeopardize the school districts." (School districts must justify their values to the state.)

McMorries' company will appraise real property, a Fort Worth firm will appraise utilities and railroads in the county, and the appraisal board is still looking for someone to do the personal property appraisal for Floyd County.

Anyone who is interested in doing the personal property appraisal is asked to contact any county appraisal board director (Duvall, Teeter, Lackey, Helms or Trave Jones).

McMorries is scheduled to speak at the Lockney Rotary Club meeting in February. Other Lockney organizations interested in hearing McMorries should contact an appraisal board member or Lockney school superintendent W.H. Hallmark.

JIM MC MORRIES (right) talked to Lockney businessmen Tuesday afternoon about the county-wide tax reappraisal which is scheduled to begin soon. Also pictured are Tom Duvall (center), secretary-treasurer of the Floyd County Appraisal Board, and Jerry Paul Cooper, one of the Lockney businessmen who attended the meeting.

YOU'RE NOT CHICKEN — Lockney School Students Arnold Alaniz and Smith help publicize the blood drive scheduled here tomorrow by displaying a poster urging Lockneyites not to be "chicken" about giving blood. South Plains Blood Services of Lubbock will conduct the drive; Athena Junior Study Club is the local sponsor.

Donors needed!

Blood drive set here tomorrow

Each able citizen of Lockney is being asked to donate a pint of blood tomorrow at Lockney Junior High School. South Plains Blood Services of Lubbock will conduct a blood drive from 6 to 8 p.m. tomorrow at junior high. Athena Junior Study Club is local sponsor for the drive. Lockney and Julia High School basketball teams will be playing during the hours in the school gym, so one of the school building can serve two purposes for local basketball fans.

Persons age 17-65 may donate blood if they weigh at least 110 pounds and are in good health. Donors should present Social Security cards for identification. It is best to eat a substantial meal before donating.

A "fair share" of blood donations for a town of 2,000 population is about 120 pints per year, according to a South Plains Blood Services spokesperson. Recent drives in Lockney have netted about 20 to 25 pints per year.

Floyd County Commissioners approve agriculture building remodeling changes Monday

The Floyd County commissioners court met in regular session Monday to conduct a routine slate of business.

Bill Colston, Kenneth Pitts and Albert Scheele, Floyd County Farm Bureau directors, led off the day's deliberations by asking the court to consider cleaning out the culverts in county roads in all four precincts.

The commissioners took the matter under consideration but took no immediate action on the request.

Jan Chapman, Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative, met with the court to explain a dental plan and an increase in the hospital room rate for county employees. Chapman will return at next month's court meeting to present the new rates for the expanded coverage. The new rates are expected to go into effect when the county contract with the insurance company expires in April.

The commissioners unanimously voted to pay county officers on a salary basis rather than on a fee basis for 1980. County judge Choise Smith explained that Floyd County had done away with the fee-basis payments years ago but the action was a necessary formality that had to be submitted to the state comptroller's office each year.

In another unanimous decision, the court agreed to transfer $40,000 from the Road and Bridge Fund to be divided among the four precincts. Each precinct will receive $10,000.

The court also agreed to allow Lubbock Development Co., Inc. to complete renovation of the north end of the county agriculture building. Judge Smith said that the changes in the remodeling plans would cost an additional $7,211.

In a drawing for names for the Grievance Committee, Judge Smith pulled the names of H.E. Frizzell, Mrs. Donice Casey and John Campbell. These persons will be notified of their selection by letter. If they choose not to serve, other names will be drawn at the February commissioners meeting.

The court allowed Sam Baker, of Baker Insurance Agency, to insure the justice of the peace and sheriff's office in Lockney with an annual plate glass policy. The insurance will cost the county $113 each year, with no deductible.

In final business, the commissioners agreed to allow Keith Reeves the use of a county lot adjacent to his property near Ollie Street in Floydada, with the understanding that Reeves will keep the lot clean and will vacate it upon notice by the commissioners court.

Judge Smith noted that Reeves would construct no structures on the county lot, but would have access to the land to park equipment.

Jonelle Fawver runs again for tax assessor

Jonelle Fawver this week announced her intention to seek reelection as the Floyd County tax assessor-collector.

Mrs. Fawver, 53, has been a Floyd County resident for the past 50 years. She has been active in charitable drives for the Floydada Chamber of Commerce Women's Division.

Mrs. Fawver and her husband, Leslie, have three grown children, Eilene Francis, Gavle and Larry. The couple attend the Methodist Church.

The candidate officially filed for reelection on Jan. 15.

Spence seeks commissioner seat

Sam A. Spence this week announced that he will seek election as county commissioner for precinct one.

Spence was the second candidate to announce for the seat currently held by Aaron Carthel.

For Spence, 58, it is the first elective office he has sought.

He was born and raised in Floyd County, graduating from Floydada High. He held a position in the Texas Highway Department's resident engineer's office here for 27 years until the local office closed in 1975. He also farmed in Floyd and Crosby Counties until 1970.

Since July, 1976, Spence has operated an insurance and real estate office in Floydada.

Spence belongs to the Floydada Chamber of Commerce, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and is a member and past Lion Tamer of the Floydada Lions Club.

Mrs. Audrey Spence is a math teacher at Floydada Junior High School. Spence has one child, Mary Kay Self, of Sherman, Texas, and a granddaughter, Leslie, who is five years old.

Shorthorn eighth topples Floydada

Lockney's eighth-grade boys pinned a 34-24 loss on Floydada Monday, but the Breezers won the seventh-grade game 34-27.

Robert Rendon's 21 points paced the eighth-grade Shorthorns. Jackie Cunyus added eight, Chris Torrez three, and Cooke Vasquez two.

"Aggressive defense won it for us," coach Greg Fuiten said. Fuiten mentioned good play by Randy Peralez, who came in off the bench and did a good job filling in. Torrez, Rendon and Cunyus were top rebounders for Lockney.

The Shorthorns scored just two points in the first quarter (Floydada had four), but they were ahead 12-11 at halftime and 24-16 going into the fourth quarter. The seventh-graders were behind by a single point (14-13) at halftime Monday, but Floydada outscored them 8-7 in the third period. The final stanza was even, with both teams scoring 12 points.

Floyd Philosopher says punishing Russia shouldn't be up just to farmers and athletes

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on White River gets a little serious this week. He'll get over it.

Dear editor: The idea of boycotting the Olympic games in Moscow next summer as another way of letting Russia know what the rest of the world thinks of her invasion of Afghanistan has brought cries of outrage from some of the athletes planning on participating in the games.

"We've trained hard for years to compete and it's unthinkable we should be prevented because of political reasons," they say. "The Olympic games should be one place that should not be politicized."

But commercialized, that's different. How's a man going to get a high-paying contract to sell cornflakes on TV unless he wins a gold medal at the Olympics? Cornflakes naturally brings up the question of the embargo on American grain to Russia. Like athletes, we've worked long and hard to produce stuff and are asking why it should be politicized. There is no such thing as a free lunch. It's either a Republican or a Democratic ear produced by a Mugwump. Oh occasionally there may be a weavil and governments it's the same. Where's the kid who whether his oatmeal or cream came from a state that went Republican or Democratic in the last election? Bread on tables from the Pacific Atlantic and right through Floyd is pretty much the same, however you slice it or whichever Olympic medalist advertises it.

The point is, if we're going to punish Russia know what we think of invasion of another country, we let everybody tell her, not just farmers.

New coach's goal: 'Go for the gold football'

Newly-hired Longhorn football coach Dewane Sexton plans to "go for the gold football," he said, referring to Lockey High School's small enrollment community. "From what I've seen so far, Lockey has some good kids — perhaps not great athletes, but kids who don't have to worry about as far as drugs and things like that go. I think this reflects on the parents of the community," Sexton said.

He said he plans to take the athletes as far as he can. He plans to point the Longhorns toward a long-range goal — winning the district championship, but it is a tough district, but it is a tough district, but it is a tough district.

Harmony Extension Club Meets

The Harmony Extension Club met in the Community Center Jan 14 for the first meeting of the year. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Bess Carr. Mrs. Carr read the scripture Romans 5:1. Roll call was answered by name. broken New Year's resolutions. The president announced the committees for the year.

Extension agent, Marilyn Tate, presented an interesting demonstration on tinseling. Each member made a picture using glass, India ink, gold and lead. It was a fascinating thing to do. Refreshments were served by the hostess to Mrs. Ruth Scott, Jeanita Pool, Anna Maude Hopper, Blanche Williams, Vivian Curtis and the agent, Marilyn Tate.

Arrangements of earth-tone silk flowers set amid a brass archway and hurricane candelabra, framed the altar area of the First Baptist Church in Floydada, as Miss Julie Dawn Poage and Jay Kee Lackey exchanged wedding vows Wednesday, December 19. Officiating at the 4:30 p.m. double-ring ceremony was Dr. Floyd C. Bradley, minister of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Poage of Floydada, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Gerald Lackey of Floydada and the late Mr. Lackey.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Victorian style gown of candlelight chiffon, accented in Schiffler lace. The moulded bodice featured a high neckline with a wedding-band collar of Schiffler lace. A long lace edged ruffle was attached to the yoke and covered the entire bodice, giving a capelet affect. Also featured were full sleeves, elasticized at the wrist, and a Schiffler lace encircled waistline from which flowed a floor-length skirt edged in a wide self-fabric flounce.

As something borrowed, the bride wore her mother's gold wedding band. Something blue was a garter; something new, the wedding attire; and something old, a linen handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother in Lewisville, Texas. She wore pennies minted in the year of her birth and in the year of the groom's birth. They were given to her by her brother Rande Poage. She carried a cascade bouquet of her chosen color of baby blue, showered with silk flowers in colors of beige, shrimp and champagne, and wore a halo-style headpiece of fresh baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Jill Deonne Poage, sister of the bride of San Angelo. She wore a floor-length apricot dress and wore fresh baby's breath on the side of her hair.

Ronnie Graham of Floydada was best man; and ushers were Rande Duane Poage, brother of the bride, and Jerry Lackey, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Perny Giesecke provided wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Stacey Smith, soloist, as she sang "The Wedding Song" and "Whither Thou Goest."

As guests entered the church, they were registered by Mrs. Kathy Carr of Earth. The bride's mother wore a blue floor-length dress; and the groom's mother wore a long dress of taupe with an earth tone silk flower corsage. Corsages also complemented the dresses worn by grandmothers, Mrs. Billie Pate of Ruidoso, New Mexico, and Mrs. Earl Poage of Plainview.

Reception

Following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the parlor of the church.

Attendants at the tables were Mrs. Holly Hendrix and Mrs. Nancy Kirk, both of Floydada, and Miss Kim Harrison of Lubbock. The table was covered with a floor-length cloth made of white bridal satin over which was a white organze ruffle. The ruffle was tied at the corners with greenery, blue silk flowers and brown satin bow. A silk centerpiece of earth tone, blue and greenery in a brass vase, and crystal and brass appointments added to the decor. The table holding the three-tiered candlelight colored cake with nosegays of earthtones and blue silk flowers, was laid with a brown floor-length cloth topped with a white flowered lace cloth. The bride's and her attendant's bouquets also graced the table. Floor baskets held earthtone-colored rice bags.

Courtesies

Mrs. Gerald Lackey, mother of the groom, was hostess to a rehearsal dinner Tuesday night at K-Bob's in Plainview. Special guests were the bride's grandparents.

Pre-nuptial courtesies for the bride included a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Betty Holmes, and a pantry kitchen shower given by friends from the Texas Tech admission office.

Wedding Tr

Following a wedding to Taos, New Mexico, couple is at home in Floydada, where the bride is self-employed in her own business. The bride and groom are both graduates of the High School. The bride attended South College, Angelo University and is a student at Texas Tech. The groom attended South College.

The Caprock Hospital Auxiliary met Monday, January 7 at 2:30 in the hospital dining hall with six members present.

The members discussed the need of another heart monitor and thought perhaps anyone wishing to donate to this needed equipment might contact any member of the Auxiliary. There is also a jar set up in the hospital office, where contributions may be left.

An interesting program was presented by Lillian Smith on the many important functions play for our body reminded us to donate organs for transplant. The treasure Whitaker, representing the Auxiliary, do so on the first of each month at the hospital dining Frances Barnhart envied girls who could wear fitted clothes-especially bikinis.

Thanks to Pat Walker's, she now has a 24" waistline

And that, she says, is something she never dreamed was possible.

But then, lots of dreams come true at Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons, International—and yours could be among them. Here's Ms. Barnhart's story:

Having been a housewife and mother for 10 years, I decided it was time for a change . . . to get out of the house and get a job. Hearing that a Pat Walker's Figure Salon was coming to [my] area, I got very excited and knew that I would enjoy that type of work.

I never liked to admit I had a weight problem, so I attributed my 33" waist to a large bone structure. I envied all the girls who could wear fitted clothes and especially bikinis. I had always worn long blouses and coverups to hide my large abdomen. When I did diet, I always lost weight in all the wrong places—my arms, legs and bust—but never where I needed it—my waist and tummy.

[At] Pat Walker's I learned I could still eat all the foods I enjoyed without giving up anything except the 27" I've lost . . . The beautiful part of it is that I did it with help from my co-workers and most enjoyably with my patrons. It's nice to know there is a place you can go when you need help with a figure problem and where people understand . . .

Ms. Barnhart now enjoys a career as manager of a Pat Walker Salon.

Don't wait any longer

. . . to find out what Pat Walker can do for YOU! Now is the best time. In fact, we invite you to come in for a FREE treatment and figure analysis, without charge or obligation. All you have to do is call to reserve time for your complimentary appointment. We await your call—and

Miss McPherson, Bobby Pool wed in Providence church

MRS. BOBBY GLENN POOL

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Glenn Pool have established a home in Amarillo. The couple was married Saturday afternoon in a double ring ceremony in Trinity Lutheran Church of Providence.

Elder Joe Jackson of Floydada Primitive Baptist Church directed the wedding service for Bobby Pool and the former Dar Lee McPherson.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Gale McPherson of Lockney. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Vivian L. Merrell of Quitaque and Mr. and Mrs. H.H. McPherson of Floydada.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Chandler Pool of Morse.

Mrs. Pool is a graduate of Lockney High School. She is a senior student at West Texas State University in Canyon where she is a nursing major. Her husband is a graduate of Stinnett High School. He has attended WTSU and Amarillo College.

Setting for the 3 p.m. exchange of wedding promises was the nuptial area of the church. Candelabras entwined with greenery and wine ribbons and holding ivory taper, were in flanking positions. Centering the area was a stand holding the ivory unity candle. Pews were marked with wine bows tied with greenery and baby's breath.

Miss Gail Partridge of Canyon was pianist for the program of wedding music and the traditional marches. She also was soloist.

Wedding guests were registered by Miss Melissa Weinzapf of Muenster. Ushers were the groom's brothers, Dub Pool of Morse and Danny Pool of Odessa; the bride's brother, Steve McPherson of Idalou, and Terry Collins of Fritch. Matron of honor was D'Lyn Morris of Floydada, and bridesmatron was Becky McPherson of Idalou, sister-in-law of the bride. They were gown in wine-colored Quiana dresses fashioned with floor-length A-line skirts. A short jacket completed the ensemble. Heavy lace adorned the jacket collar and cuffs. Each carried a nosegay bouquet of wine and dusty rose silk roses tied with wine ribbon and baby's breath and wore a headband of baby's breath and feathered carnations.

Serving as best man was Marcus Bradford from Stenett; Steve Hall, also of Canyon, was groomsmen.

Gale McPherson accompanied his daughter to the altar and presented her for marriage. Her wedding dress was a formal-length gown of ivory chiffon styled with a Victorian neckline above a sheer V-shaped yoke. Outlining the yoke was a ruffle of tucked chiffon and lace. Matching lace caught the sheer, full Bishop sleeves at the wrists. The empire waistline of the skirt was accented with an ivory satin ribbon tied in a bow in the back. The A-line skirt was highlighted with wide bands of Alencon lace at the hemline and flowed into a chapel-length train.

Her bouquet was of mixed silk flowers. Arranged in her hair was baby's breath. In bridal tradition, "something blue" was a garter; "something old" was her maternal grandmother's wedding ring, and "something borrowed" was an ankle chain from her sister-in-law.

Following the wedding, the bride's parents were hosts for a reception in the church hall. The bride's table was covered with an ecru hand-embroidered cloth. The three tiered wedding cake was iced in ivory with sugar bells, wine flowers and pink ribbon accents. Also on the table were the bride's and attendants' bouquets. Serving at the bride's table were Netta Hart of Tulia, Brenda Woods of Briscoe, Kathy McCarter of Lubbock and Karen Hooten of Lockney.

Mrs. R.C. Phillips of Plainview, the bride's great-aunt, loaned a hand crocheted and embroidered lace cloth for the groom's table. On the table was the unity candle used in the wedding service. A silver service was used to serve hot cider and coffee. Other refreshments were fruitcake, finger sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres. Serving at the groom's table were Christy McCulley of Canyon, Susan Jones of Albany and Rise Taylor of Canyon.

In the houseparty were Barbara Mathis, Virginia Taylor, Mervan Carthel, Pat Thornton, Hortense Jackson and Rachel Nance of Floydada, Vera Jo Bybee, Ruby Terrell, Barbara Cawley, Cynthia Bybee, Gayle Jackson, Donna Marricle of Canyon and Ronee Thornton.

The groom's parents were hosts for a buffet dinner Saturday evening for the wedding party and family members. The event was held in Plainview at the BPO Elks Lodge.

Study Club meets with Mrs. Goins

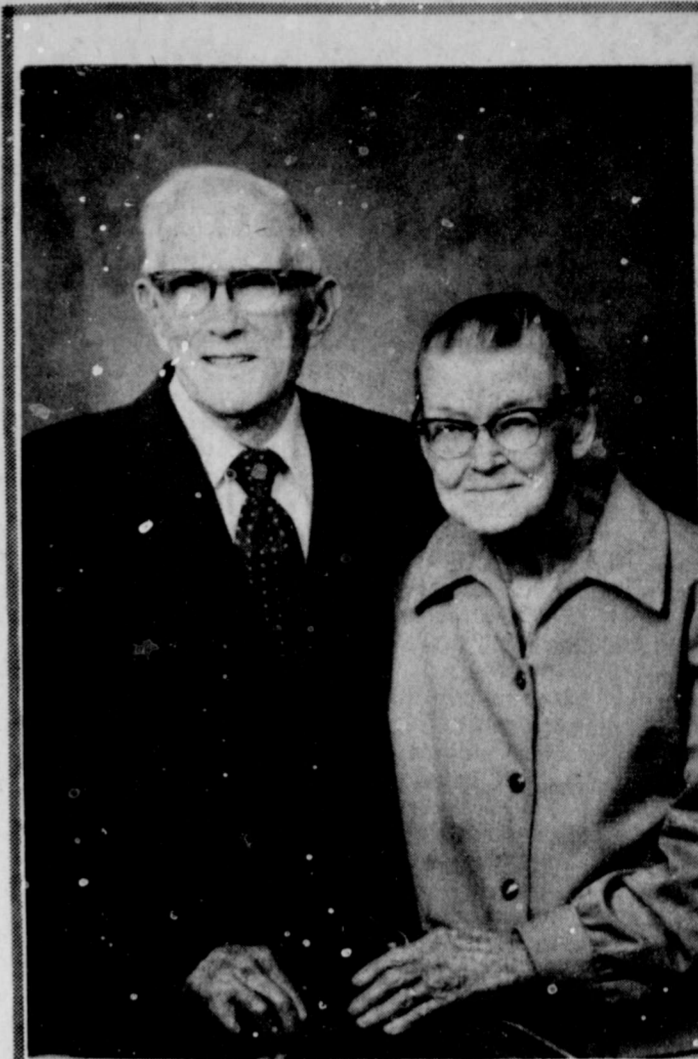

The 1929 Study Club met Thursday, January 10, in the home of Mrs. Cleo Goins at 3 p.m. Pres. Emma Lou Whitaker opened the meeting with the members repeating the club collect. Mrs. Beulah Denison read the minutes of the previous meeting.

Mrs. Whitaker reported the club had been requested to sponsor a program to benefit senior citizens of this area. The group decided to postpone any action until more information is obtained.

Anne Swepston was leader for the program and introduced Mrs. Tommy Wylie who presented an informative and enjoyable program on physical fitness.

Mrs. Wylie stressed the need of nutritional supplements in the modern diet and demonstrated moderate exercises, in which the members participated.

Mrs. Goins served delicious refreshments to the following: Mdmes. Vance Campbell, Ben Whitaker, C.M. Meredith, H.O. Cline, W.B. Parrack, C.W. Denison, Q.D. Williams, Miss Anne Swepston, and guest, Mrs. Tommy Wylie.

Host families sought for Scandinavian high students

American host families are being sought for 25 Scandinavian high school students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland for the high school year 1980-1981, in a program sponsored by American Scandinavian Student Exchange (ASSE).

Interested families in this area should contact Eleanor M. Tatch, 1500 Southmoor, Arlington, Texas 76010. Telephone: 817/469-1556.

Letters should contain the writer's phone number. The high school students, age 16 and 17, will arrive to the United States in late August 1980, attend the local high school, and return home in late June 1981. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in Scandinavia and have spending money and medical insurance.

American families with small children are welcome to participate in this program. All host families having a student can deduct $50 a month for income tax purposes.

ASSE is also seeking American high school students, age 16 to 17, who would like to spend a high school year with a Scandinavian family or participate in a five-week family stay in the summer of 1980.

American Scandinavian Student Exchange (ASSE) is the official Swedish high school exchange program in the United States operating under the auspices of the Royal Swedish Ministry of Education. The ASSA program is officially designated as an exchange/visitor program by the U.S. State Department. Since its inception in 1938, the program has resulted in over 150,000 student exchanges in Europe and the United States.

ENCOURAGING A CLEAN-UP OF OUR AIR

What's in a bubble? Maybe an idea that gives us clean air faster, and at less cost in energy and dollars. The Environmental Protection Agency has just adopted what it calls a "Bubble Policy" for air quality. Its aim is to encourage operators of basic industries to use their experience and know-how to clean up the air around their plants. Imagine that an industrial plant—or several plants side by side—were covered by a giant bubble. Your interest (and the EPA's) is the amount of dirt in the air that escapes the bubble into the outside atmosphere. If it exceeds air quality standards, it must be reduced. Under the old method, each source of pollution would be identified, and EPA would specify what type of control was needed.

This often resulted in court battles, excessive expense in terms of energy or dollars, and mixed results in terms of air quality.

The Bubble Policy changes that approach. Air quality standards are just as strict, but in effect, EPA now says to the owners and operators of a plant: Here's the problem and the deadline for solving it. But you know your business best—you tell us how you're going to solve the problem and prove that it will work. There are restrictions, of course—dirty air containing toxic materials comes under a more rigid set of rules.

But the concept is working: A brickmaker in Illinois developed an approach and which saved energy and money, and a power plant in Florida avoided a huge expense by changing the blend of fuel it used.

Another approach is being tested by Armco, a diversified Ohio steelmaker. When it studied how best to further improve air quality, Armco discovered more than half of the pollution was on-going "green plants" around the plant. So it has paved inner-plant roads with paved plant perimeter roads to their job site, and temporary roads treated with a dust-retardant. Operations with grass as an on-going "green plants" around the plant and sprays are being used to keep down dust from piles of raw materials storage. Chief environmental engineer John Barker says the "bubble" will capture some 80 percent of air-borne pollutants a year.

Moreover, the process would cost nearly $1 million to install (versus $10 million for all the "point source" controls) and use more than 33 kilowatt hours of electricity a year—enough to meet the needs of 3,450 families a year. The "bubble" is the "best of both worlds" solution. It can meet air quality standards, and it also saves industry's control costs energy too.

"We can afford Monday through Thursday. We're going to have to skip Friday, Saturday and Sunday."

A LESSON IN SCOTTISH LORE

By Jack Moore, The Director, Teacher's Scottish Information Center

The Cock o' The North

Scotland has produced many scientists and inventors. One of the foremost was John Napier of Edinburgh, the man who, in the 16th century, invented logarithms (a mathematical method for shortening calculations). Napier was a calculating person. He lived in Merchiston Castle near Edinburgh, and once when a valuable object was stolen from the castle, Napier made his servants file through his study and stroke the back of a black cock, which the superstitious thought was the Napier family spirit. The servants believed that the cock would crow when its back was touched by the thief.

The cock did not crow but Napier quickly knew who was the thief. He was the only one of the sixteen whose hand was not blackened by the soot Napier had smeared on the cock's back. John Napier, who lived between 1550 and 1617, not only conceived logarithms, says the Teacher's Scottish Information Center, but many other ideas including the tank and the submarine.

ENERGY UPDATE

THE IMPACT OF ALTERNATIVE POLICY REACTIONS TO THREE MILE ISLAND

By Dr. John Wile

Dr. John Wile is a Senior Consultant with National Economic Research Associates, Inc., where he is engaged in the evaluation of the effects of a broad range of energy and environmental policies. He previously taught economics at the State University of New York at Stony Brook and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. John Wile

In the wake of the Three Mile Island, Pennsylvania nuclear power plant accident, there have been increasing demands for cutbacks in nuclear power. An analysis recently completed by National Economic Research Associates, Inc. (NERA) indicates such curtailments would have substantial economic, energy, and environmental impacts, which should be considered if the role of nuclear power in the US is to be reassessed. The NERA Electricity Supply Optimization Model (NESOM) was used to evaluate the effects of two policies that would curtail nuclear power. The first would prohibit any additional nuclear generating capacity beyond that currently on-line; the second, and more severe policy, would require all nuclear capacity to be decommissioned by 1985.

If no new nuclear capacity were to come on-line, electric costs in the year 2000 would increase by $11 billion to $18 billion above the levels that would occur if nuclear capacity were to continue to expand. This would represent a 5 to 6 percent increase in revenue requirements for the electric utility industry. The increase in costs would be $18 billion to $27 billion if all existing nuclear plants were decommissioned—a 7 to 9 percent increase in industry revenue requirements. If there were environmental or other institutional limits on the ability of the industry to build new coal-fired plants, the increase in electricity costs for 2000 would be even higher—$27 billion if there were no nuclear plants and $57 billion if existing plants were decommissioned. This would result in an increase in revenue requirements of 10 to 15 percent. Nuclear curtailments could also cause oil and gas consumption by the electric utility industry to increase substantially. If oil prices were to rise at about the same rate as prices in general through the end of the century, oil and gas consumption in 2000 would be increased by an additional 2.2 to 2.6 million barrels per day if no new nuclear capacity were constructed, and by 2.8 to 3.2 million barrels per day if existing nuclear capacity were decommissioned. Should expansion of coal capacity be limited, then additional oil and gas consumption would be as high as 6.0 million barrels per day.

The curtailments in nuclear power would also result in substantial increases in sulfur dioxide emissions. In the absence of any new nuclear capacity, emissions in 2000 would be increased by 2.1 to 2.9 million tons or 11 to 15 percent. If existing nuclear capacity were decommissioned, emissions would be increased by 2.6 to 3.5 million tons or 14 to 18 percent. These increases would offset, to a great extent, reductions in emissions expected to be achieved under the 1977 Amendments to the Clean Air Act.

Diana Glover, artist of week

Diana Glover is now being featured as artist of the week at Art Southwest in Floydada. She has been painting as a hobby since she retired from teaching school in 1979, and has been a student of Winnie Carthel for the past nine months. Diana said, "Since my mother was an artist and writer, I have always had an interest in art. We (she and her husband Kyle) have a cabin in Tres Ritos, New Mexico, and I enjoy painting landscape scenes. I also do all kinds of handwork, from crocheting, knitting and crafts, to bread dough. Kyle is retiring from the position of rural mail carrier in February, and the Glovers are looking forward to spending more time at the cabin. The Glovers have two daughters, Pam and Lois, and four grandchildren—and Diana "loves to babysit." Diana's painting, "Sunset on the Mesa," is on display at Art Southwest.

Prematurity crisis calls for special help

When a premature baby is born, the child often enters the center of an intense emotional and medical struggle concentrating on the infant's survival. In many cases, the parents' intense struggle with their own special set of problems is overlooked.

Problems start for parents immediately after delivery. The mother must work through four major stages of the prematurity crisis: 1) preparing for possible loss of the baby; 2) acknowledging feelings of failure for having an unhealthy baby; 3) returning to readiness to relate to the baby once survival is assured; 4) coping with the infant's special needs.

The last special needs parents' troubles are not over even after the baby comes home from the hospital, according to an article in the January issue of Texas Medicine, the Texas Medical Association's monthly journal. After having doctors, nurses and advanced equipment around to take care of the baby, suddenly parents are left alone with a child that often still has several medical problems, cries a lot and requires frequent feedings. These stresses are compounded by parents' worries if the child develops slowly or has disturbances common to premature infants such as problem sleeping or paying attention.

Luckily medical treatment keeps many premature infants from suffering intellectual handicaps but many still run the risk of having learning disabilities or trouble with school work, especially reading and mathematics, that will show up as they grow older.

Regular check-ups to detect learning problems should start at an early age so any troubles can be corrected long before the premature child starts school, according to the article's authors, Murdina M. Desmond, M.D., Abbie L. Vorderman, M.D., and Martha Salinas. They all work at the Meyer Center for Developmental Pediatrics at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

How well parents cope with the long and short-term stresses of having a premature baby depends on what the article calls parents' "emotional bank account" and the support they have. Parents' physical and emotional maturity, a stable marriage, previous successful child-raising experience, and supportive family, friends and hospital staff all can help them cope. Dependable income, adequate insurance, the infant's hospital being located near the parents' home and having a doctor for post-hospital care whom the family knows and who knows about the case also can help parents adjust to prematurity problems.

First Baptist Church Floydada

BY BETH PRATT

Divorce is becoming as much the norm today as marriage according to statistical evidence. Dr. Brian Harbour says that he counted seven couples, active in his church, who were divorced in the six months period that the church pictorial directory was being prepared for publication. At this moment he became really aware of the instability of families. As a counselor to his congregation, he is also aware of the many psychological divorces...homes that are dead but not marked with the official tombstone of a legal divorce. He cites a study by Dr. James A. Peterson, marriage and family life counselor, indicating that of couples married between twenty and twenty-five years, only six out of one hundred felt satisfied in the relationship.

Harbour decided to take a look at marital relationships in the Bible and the result is Famous Couples of the Bible. Examples of some of the chapters are "Adam and Eve, Where Did They Go Wrong?" and "In the Worst of Times, Abigail and Nabal." Other famous couples include Hosea and Gomer, Aquila and Priscilla, Boaz and Ruth, Othniel and Achsah. This series of brief accounts prove that today's marrieds don't have anything on many married couples found in the Bible.

What quarterback is making a fourth trip to the Superbowl? In Terry Bradshaw: Man of Steel, Bradshaw with the assistance of David Diles shares times of professional glory and personal anguish. The last chapter deals with the difficulty he and skating star JoJo Starbuck are experiencing in building a marriage.

Of course, Terry doesn't ask much except total change! While he admits his selfishness, it is clear that deep down he thinks he's justified. Women are more often accused of marrying a man with the plan in mind to change him. However, the tendency to make another person fit one's own concept is not limited to the female sex. The manipulating person never stops to consider that in destroying a personality, that which attracted him in the first place is destroyed.

1950 Study Club meets

Tuesday evening, January 8, members of the 1950 Study Club and their guests journeyed to Casa Del Sol, the solar home of Mrs. Georgia Mae Ericson in Blanco Canyon. Mrs. Ericson, who is the granddaughter of Hank Smith, West Texas' first settler, gave club members a tour of the beautiful home and explained many of its features. The fireplace, which Mrs. Ericson had designed and built from native rock, were of special interest with each fireplace having in it a sun design made from stone. Mrs. Ericson explained the solar energy collectors and the process used to heat the water for the pool and whirlpool. She explained that in years to come, the house will be used by Texas Tech University, museums and hospitals in the area. She has also opened the house to all sorts of activities, church organizations and senior citizens groups. The tour was most enjoyable for the group.

President Shirley Morton presided over a brief business meeting of the club and guests were introduced by the members. Noma Lou Rainer and Charlotte Campbell served refreshments to the group and Nina Copeland served as program hostess.

Members present were Nell Abram, Charlotte Campbell, Nina Copeland, Margie Fowler, Jean Kendrick, Lovene Moore, Sue Moore, Shirley Morton, Jo Payne, Virginia Pyle, Noma Lou Rainer. Also present were guests Carol Bell, Billie Jordan, Peggy Dyess, Alyne Bradley, Sharon Vickers, Sue Higginbotham, Tammy Payne, Mattie Wester, Wanda Williams, Margie Womack and Winona Jackson.

The El Progreso Study Club met Wednesday Jan. 9, with Marie Brock in charge as our president was out of town.

Delicious refreshments of cake, coffee and tea were served as the guests arrived. Jim Word from Floydada gave a very interesting program on archaeology which everyone enjoyed. Those present were Ann Brock, Dimon Schacht, Alice Mitchell, Juanita Jenkins, Faye Ferguson, Katherine Ball Jeauette Marr, Pauline Sams, LaVern Sams, Dorothy Smith, Marie Brock, Ann Del Quebe, Josie Taylor, Cornelia Johnson, Faye Holms and Arla Copeland.

Tammy Adams speaks to Il Penseroso

Tammy Adams gave Il Penseroso Junior Study Club a slide presentation on her trip to Washington, D.C. to the National F.H.A. Convention.

Il Penseroso and Athena Junior Study Club helped to send Miss Adams to Washington by preparing baked goods for a local bake sale.

Club members were reminded that quilt squares for the annual club meet are due next meeting.

As an aid to positive thinking each club member was asked to tell something good about another club member seated at her table.

Approval was given for an additional co-hostess for each remaining session. Present for club were hostess Anita Bigham, co-hostess Cummings, Cindy Dyer, Karen Herber, Lynn Reves, Julie Hickerson, Janette Workman, Robin Stoerner, Reeda Cay Smith, Ginger Mathis, Kim Lambert, Kathy Kellison, Jessie Johnson, Judy Jackson, Gayle Jackson, Linda Gant, Lesca Durham, Cynthia Bybee, Cheryl Bradley and Treena Aston.

January 24 is the next meeting date. All club members will wear jeans and meet at the Lockney Fire Station.

The word "fungus" may not have an esthetically pleasing quality, but a large number of certain fungi are eaten by Americans everyday. The mushroom as we know it is the fruiting portion of a fungus mold with a cap, gills and stem. Mushrooms have gained tremendous popularity recently with consumption doubling in the past 10 years.

Mushrooms are classified as vegetables and are nutritious as well as relatively low in calories. They are available fresh, frozen, canned or freeze-dried. Fresh mushrooms are sized into three categories: Buttons—less than 1" inch cap diameter.

Unlike many other vegetables, size is not an indication of mushroom quality. Large ones are just as tender as small ones, but generally cost more because they look more appealing. The larger mushrooms are best for stuffing while smaller sizes are more economical for slicing or chopping.

You can judge the freshness of a mushroom by looking at the veil. Mushrooms with closed veils pulled up tightly around their stems are the freshest, although they are still perfectly good for use after the veil has opened and the gills are exposed. The outside color has little relation to quality or flavor of the mushroom, but those with badly braised or pitted caps should not be used.

If mushrooms are bought in film-sealed containers, they should be refrigerated in this carton until used. Puncture one or two small holes in the plastic film to allow air movement. Wash mushrooms gently just before using and let drain. All of the mushroom is usable and should not be peeled.

1979 Wildlife headlines

When President Carter beat off an attack by a "killer rabbit" with a caoae paddle last April, he put wildlife on page one of the nation's newspapers.

But the President's tilt with an aggressive, aquatic cottontail may not have been the most bizarre incident involving humans and wildlife last year, according to the National Wildlife Federation. 1979 was a wild year for wildlife, the citizens conservation group found in its annual survey of such happenings—a year in which the human and animal kingdoms traded insults, and also exchanged a few favors.

Human vandals assaulted wildlife, for instance, by draining or cutting off the water supply at two fish hatcheries—killing 450,000 trout and salmon near Rochester, N.Y., and 25,000 brown trout at Leetown, W. Va. A school of fish in Lake Huron struck back by clogging a water intake for an Ontario Hydro nuclear reactor, thus shutting down the Canadian power plant for 40 hours.

A Washington, D.C., physician beat a Canada goose to death with a golf club, allegedly after the bird's honking interfered with his putting. But other doctors made up for this lapse by rendering services to wildlife beyond the call of duty.

Soviet surgeons performed a successful cataract operation by inserting an artificial lens in the eye of a seal. When the operation was over the seal performed several tricks for the doctors. Another Russian surgeon, aboard a fishing trawler, successfully treated the wounds of a dolphin that had been attacked by a blue shark, then released the happy marine mammal.

For a black-crested night heron whose lower beak has snapped in two, a San Francisco dentist constructed a new beak out of the same pink acrylic that he uses for human dentures. He attached it with tiny wires in a six-hour operation and the heron is again spearing fish.

It was a year in which man discovered new ways to put wild critters to work, the NWF survey found. The West German city of Goppingen put some electrically-emitting goldfish into its municipal water supply to monitor its purity. If the water becomes polluted, the six Gnatonemus fish generate less current than usual, which sets off an alarm at the waterworks' headquarters.

In New York City the Museum of Natural History employed thousands of tiny dermestid beetles to dislodge matter from the bodies of tiny mammals without disturbing their delicate skeletal structures. And in Kailua, Hawaii, the U.S. Coast Guard revealed that it is now training eagle-eyed pigeons to search for people lost at sea.

It was again a newsy year for snakes. In Los Angeles, Cal., a man opened his door to a stranger who flashed a knife and a snake and threatened to turn the reptile loose. The thief escaped in the victim's car with $400 in cash and jewelry.

Italian customs agents seized a boa named Pedro that an American fighter wore into a boxing ring to psych his opponent. Australian customs officers frisked a nery traveler from Bali and impounded five pythons that he tried to smuggle into their country in his underpants, by latching onto the pants and in pouches strapped to his legs.

It was also a busy year for bees. An estimated 9 million of them swarmed in the Flintstone, Md., after the tractor-trailer in which they were riding overturned. Another swarm of school girls at a track meet in Vereeniging, South Africa. The bees were apparently attracted by the girls' hair-spray.

It was a year in which man devised some new institutions for animals, the NWF survey revealed. Bird lovers in the East Germar village of Loburg opened a hospital for storks, a threatened species in that country. In Sri Lanka, an orphanage was established for young elephants separated from their parents.

In Newport, Cal., a turtle named "No. 6" won a turtle race and then showed how he felt about one of man's racing institutions, the racing game, by latching onto the upper lip of his trainer, who sought to give him a congratulatory kiss. It took a dose of valium to unfasten his grip.

A couple of wildlife records were set. In the annual May's Frog Hop at Baltimore, Md., an entry named Cindy jumped to a height of 3 feet 9 inches, outdistancing one Lightfoot Louie. In San Antonio, a male whooping crane named Crip died at 33—a record for that rare bird in captivity. And Andre, the friendly 220-pound seal who swims each year from his winter home in a Boston aquarium to his summer home at Rockport, Me., set a new record for the 160-mile course—65 hours. Not breathtaking, to be sure, but 17 hours faster than last year's time.

Finally, it was a year in which a raccoon got caught in a drug bust. After one burglary in which narcotics were taken, a Falls Church, Va., physician trapped an intruder on a return visit to his office and found that it was—that's right—a "masked bandit" with a ringed-tail.

After being lured away from the hard stuff with peanut butter and sardines, the two-time offender was set loose in a woods several miles away for self-rehabilitation.
