Hail hearing continues

BY CAROL LEA CLARK
dispute over the effects of hail suppression continued yesterday in a Water Commission hearing in Lockney.

Testimony was given by opponents of the Weather Improvement Association's (PWIA) application for a permit to conduct hail suppression in the counties of Hale, Castro, Floyd, and Garza.

Owen Thornton, Lockney retired farmer and landowner who is the vice president of the Mackenzie Municipal Water Board, testified that a "large reservoir" is required to get any runoff from the Mackenzie reservoir since the Mackenzie reservoir is filled from runoff of the dry creek system.

Thornton also said that you "wind up with water out of what looked like a hail storm" after clouds are suppressed.

According to Thornton the Mackenzie reservoir was closed in 1974 but there was no runoff into the reservoir until suppression activities were conducted in the area from 1970 to 1976.

Bruce Dod, an earth scientist with Grand Baptist College, testified that silver iodide from cloud seeding kills micro-organisms in the soil. He admitted that the levels required to have an effect on micro-organisms have not yet been determined.

Several High Plains farmers, Walter Graham, Owen Thornton, Nolan Hensen, testified they had observed substantial clouds that dispersed without producing rain after they were seeded by airplanes during the 1970-76 period.

Plains Weather Improvement Association attorney Gene Owens, in each case, disputed whether cloud seeding could actually be observed from the ground.

The farmers also testified they had experienced less rainfall on their lands in 1970-76, although rainfall levels in surrounding areas had not been reduced those years.

Owens, disputed their conclusions that rainfall was reduced only in areas with hail suppression activities, and as a result of cloud seeding.

After the Citizens for Natural Weather completed their case against the PWIA's proposed permit for weather suppression, Donald Walker, an attorney representing the Texas Water Commission's executive director, submitted into evidence records of rainfall on the High Plains for 1970-78.

Three days were originally allowed for the Texas Water Commission hearing on the weather modification program proposed by the Plains Weather Improvement Association. The hearing began last Wednesday, March 11, but testimony was no where near completion by the end of the day last Friday.

In testimony last week, Wilbur Brewer described the cloud seeding process. Brewer is the president of Weather Modification Inc., of North Dakota, which is the proposed operational contractor for the hail suppression program.

Brewer said that in cloud seeding for hail suppression, silver iodide is injected into storm clouds, with the main purpose being to suppress hail, but also with the hope of inducing some rain to fall from clouds which might otherwise fail to produce precipitation.

Meteorologists will make the ultimate decision of how much silver iodide is used, but the method to be used by Brewer's company is referred to as "heavy seeding," according to Mr. Brewer.

Dr. Pierre Amand, head of the Earth and Planet Science Division of the Naval Weapons Center at Channel Lake, California, also testified in favor of the PWIA project. Amand conducted weather modification programs during the Vietnam War which were intended to lengthen the monsoon season and thus inhibit Viet Cong offensives.

According to Amand, the proposed, High Plains project is the most restrictive he has seen because it is highly controlled and defined in scope.

He testified that he believes the program will not negatively affect those inside or outside the target area, and would result in increased rainfall for the area.

Witnesses called by the Citizens for Natural Weather last week painted a different picture of what will happen if hail suppression is approved as a result of the Texas Water Commission hearing.

A New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology professor who researches thunderclouds, Charles B. Moore, said, "We don't have enough information about what goes on in a cloud," to successfully suppress hail and enhance rain at the same time.

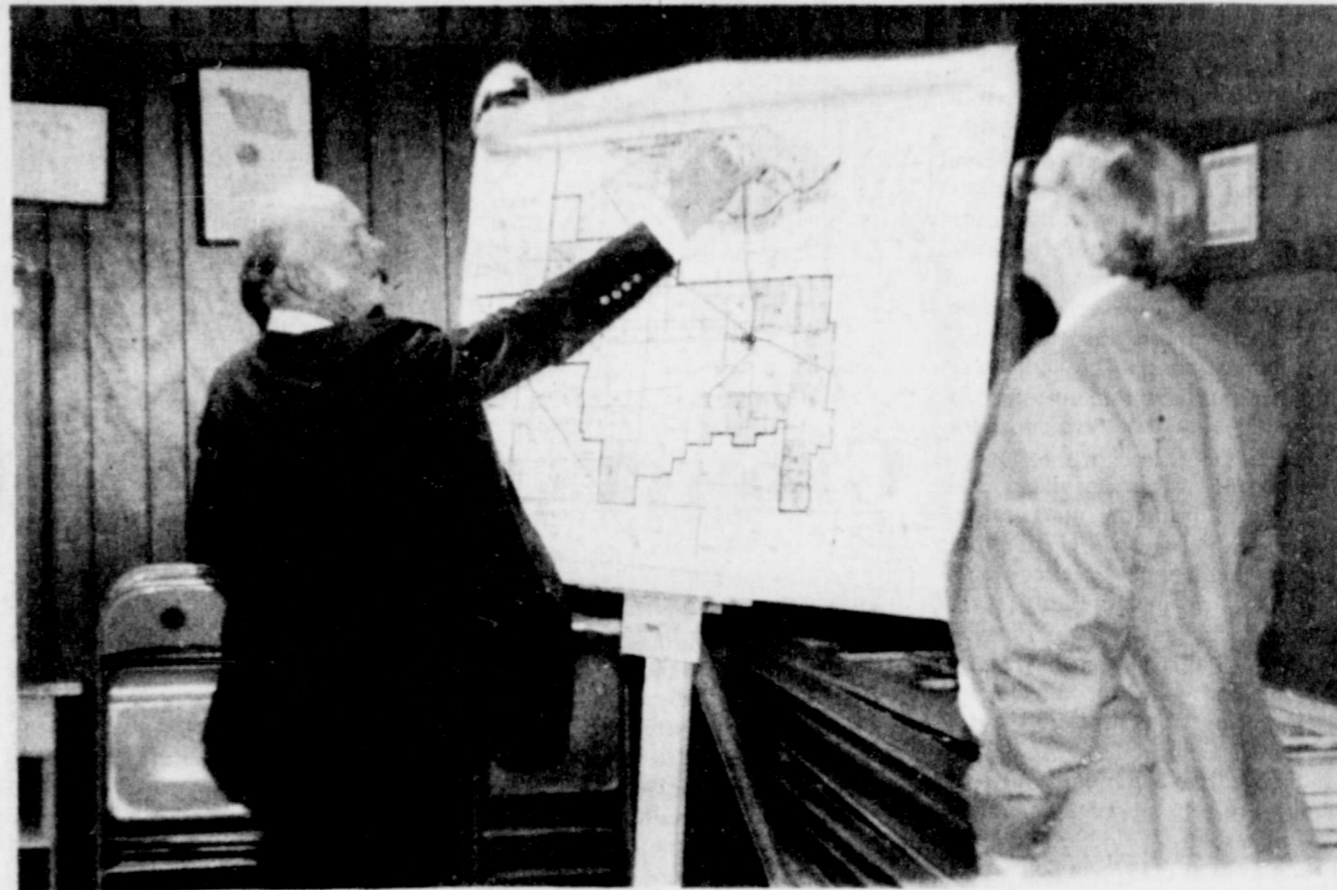

Moore also said cloud seeding with silver iodide could be very effective in suppressing hail, but that seeding in amounts necessary for hail suppression would decrease rainfall substantially.

Dan True, an Albuquerque television meteorologist who testified that he has had 25 years experience observing weather on the High Plains of Texas as a television meteorologist in Amarillo from 1954-76, said he noticed that weather patterns and storm systems on the High Plains had begun to change about 1970.

Weather modification activities were begun by PWIA in 1970.

True explained that before 1970, clouds that were storming in Hale, Lamb and Hockley counties usually would reach Randall and Potter counties before they were rained out.

After 1970 when hail suppression activities began, according to True,

OWEN THORNTON, vice president of the Mackenzie Weather Improvement Association weather suppression Municipal Water Board, points out the watershed of the Mackenzie reservoir to Citizens for Natural Weather attorney Don Bookout. Thornton testified at the Texas Water Commission hearing in Plainview that proposed Plains activities could reduce rainfall into the Mackenzie watershed which fills Mackenzie lake, reservoir for Lockney, Floydada, Silverton and Tulia.

Gale winds batter county

Gale-force winds gusting in excess of 60 miles per hour tore through Floyd County Tuesday causing the worst dust storm in the area in some three years.

The dust storm reduced visibility in the county to near zero at times. At least 20 traffic accidents were blamed on the storm which also knocked out electricity in some parts of Lockney for up to four hours.

Sixteen-year-old Russell Ford of Lockney was injured when the car he was driving went out of control east of Lockney and rolled over and hit a house according to Department of Public Safety Trooper Joe Lopez.

Ford was treated at Lockney General Hospital for a cut on the forehead and later transferred to a Lubbock hospital in satisfactory condition.

While Lopez was investigating the Ford accident, he received another call of a multiple-vehicle accident east of Floydada. Lopez said one car in that accident had apparently stopped and was struck from the rear by another vehicle at a time when visibility was less than a quarter-mile. Another car apparently involved in the collision had already left the scene by the time Lopez arrive.

Lopez said that apparently there were two separate accidents involving five vehicles.

According to the trooper, the first was a rear-end collision involving two cars and the other was a three car chain reaction collision. Lopez said the three car accident apparently occurred when two of the cars came upon the scene of the first accident and a third car crashed into the other vehicles, pushing one car into the other.

No injuries were reported in either accident.

At Lockney, a piece of metal blown into a distribution line knocked out electricity to the entire city about 4 p.m. The Southwestern Public Service manager in Lockney, Kenneth Tate, said the entire city was without service only for about 11 minutes. But, Tate said, there was a four square block area on College Street that did not have power restored for about four hours.

In addition, electric power outages were reported at Sterley and South Plains.

In Floydada the wind caused damage to fences, trees and blew out glass store windows.

A concrete fence was blown down at the Hollis Payne residence at 821 W. Grover.

Some small farm buildings were reported to have blown away.

Strips of tin blew off roofs. One such strip was reported to have blown off of the Floydada Gin and struck a pickup truck.

A power line was down 5 miles south of Floydada.

Plate glass windows were also blown out at the Western Auto store front in Floydada.

Miller gets Welfare board position

Bobie Miller has been named president of the newly formed Floyd County Child Welfare Board.

The fifteen member board was appointed by County Court.

The first project of the board will be to raise enough funds to handle an emergency requiring care of a child.

"Butch" Seay is heading up that committee.

A wardrobe of several sizes of childrens clothes will have to be accumulated. Charlene Brown is head of that committee.

The emergency funds would be needed "for expenses that are not met by state funds."

The Floydada Lions Club will be donating $15 per month. The Rotary has pledged an initial donation.

Seay said that he expected many private and personal donations to come in also.

The purpose of the Floyd County Child Welfare Board is to:

(a) To provide social service and care to children in need of such services within the limit of its budget and the availability of professional staff.

(b) To develop a program for the protection and well being of the dependent and neglected children of Floyd County.

(c) To encourage and engage in activities which will assist all children within its jurisdiction to experience emotional security, physical health and the opportunity to develop fully their own capacities for happiness and good citizenship.

Fire insurance premiums are going up in Lockney

Fire insurance premiums in Lockney will be going up five percent the first of April.

The State Board of Insurance Commissioners has reduced Lockney's good fire record credit for the coming year from 25 to 20 percent.

Insurance agent Bob Miller says the reason for the increase is technical rather than an increase in fires.

Miller says the good record is compiled on a five year average which this year encompasses the period between 1977 and 1981 inclusive. Miller says that 1976, which was an exceptionally good year in Lockney with little fire loss, is no longer being calculated in the five year average. As a result, the credit has been reduced.

Miller says that with a good year through the rest of 1981, the 25 percent credit may be restored next year.

Miller says the 25 percent credit will still be available to anyone who pays his fire insurance premium before the first of April.

Lockney Chamber banquet at school this evening

Spencer Guimarin of San Marcos will be speaker at the Lockney Chamber of Commerce banquet in Lockney Elementary School Cafetorium tonight.

The dinner begins at 7:30 p.m. Also scheduled at the banquet is announcement of the Outstanding Man and Woman of 1980. A committee of representatives of civic groups has chosen the winners.

Installation of new chamber officers and directors will be done at the banquet.

New officers are Gail Kring, president; Roy Holly, vice president; June Bybee, secretary; and J.D. Copeland, treasurer.

The speaker is director of the Health Resources Center of Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos. He is also senior vice president of Southwest Texas Health Systems, a consulting and management company.

Guimarin was a Floydada resident during the 1930's.

Tickets for the banquet are $6 and may be purchased at the door.

It's Not Easy

can drive, one can entertain, and rest. Unfortunately most sets of come in twos, so unless you are a grandparent along you are deemed to manage the best way you trip with my toddler requires organization. In addition to her books, I pack books and toys for her to play with along the way.

Not, however, put all the toys in basket. They must be stashed in strategic places in the car so that when interest in her three bears in the front seat there is a rubber ball in the back seat.

It is imperative for me to put all things safely in the trunk such as my bag or my husband's sock set that will make lovely toys by my daughter's standards but might never be the same again.

It is also necessary to accept that after four hours the car will probably be like it has been hit by a 30 pound sledge. Most of it can be cleaned up repaired when we reach our destination, so why worry?

After our daughter was born I realized that we buy one of those car seats that are supposed to be safe. My intentions were good, unfortunately my daughter reacted as if we were putting her in a padded crib. There was no hope that she would get used to it. She would cry herself into hysterics that made me feel like a child abuser. I hesitate to think what drivers might have thought. I know that her cries could be heard through plate glass.

So we try to keep her entertained, well fed, and hope that the motion of the car will lull her to sleep.

My daughter, however, has the unusual talent of never going to sleep in the car until fifteen minutes before we arrive at the destination, long after I have given up hope of a few minutes without little feet leaving imprints on my lap as she bounces from one side of the car to the other.

I remember my parents had two small children to contend with on those long leisurely car trips that consisted of six hundred miles everyday for a week to spend each night in a different campsite.

I don't know how they ever did it. I can remember many choruses of "On Top Of Old Smokey" that they used to distract my sister and me from killing each other in the back seat.

Maybe the energy crisis isn't so bad after all. At least we're looking for ways to spend weekends and vacations that require less gasoline and less hours on the road.

If we could get all our trips down to a distance of under four hours, the three of us might arrive in a condition so that we could walk away from the car in one piece.

Witnesses called by the Citizens for Natural Weather last week painted a different picture of what will happen if hail suppression is approved as a result of the Texas Water Commission hearing.

Wheat used for security

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said 4 million tons of wheat owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation will be used to constitute the nation's first food security reserve.

"With this action, we have realized a goal set by the Carter Administration to create a reserve which would help guarantee that this country will be able to meet its priority food aid commitments to developing nations. It will help ensure that the United States is a dependable supplier of food aid even in years of short supply," Bergland said.

Legislation to create such a reserve was introduced in 1978; however, it was not until last December that authorizing legislation was passed by the Congress and signed by the President.

"Wheat from this reserve will be used only for food aid and then, only when the domestic supply of wheat is so limited that sufficient quantities of wheat cannot be made available for disposition under P.L. 480 programs," Bergland said. "This insulates the security reserve from the marketplace and prevents the stored wheat from depressing commercial grain prices when supplies are more readily available."

The United States has been a major source of food aid to developing countries during the past 25 years. During that time, the United States has provided more than $27 billion worth of commodities to help meet food needs of these countries.

Between 1973 and 1975, when world grain supplies were in short supply, the United States cut back on its food assistance to meet commercial demands just when the need for food aid was abnormally large. The food security reserve will help permit this nation to maintain food assistance programs when supplies are short, Bergland said.

"Maintaining a regular level of food aid is also important to the economic well-being of U.S. agricultural producers and the economies of both the United States and recipient countries," Bergland said. "We know from past experience that many nations that have received significant quantities of food aid have become major commercial customers of U.S. agricultural products."

The CCC has already acquired the 4 million tons of wheat comprising the reserve as a result of direct purchases from producers and assumption of contracts cancelled by the suspension of sales to the Soviet Union. A small portion of the reserve—300,000 tons—can be used under Title II provisions without regard to domestic supply availabilities to meet urgent humanitarian relief in developing countries suffering a major disaster.

Irrigation costs can be reduced

(COLLEGE STATION) — Costs of irrigating cropland can be reduced by keeping irrigation pumps and power units in good repair to improve fuel efficiency.

Whether or not such repair pays depends on the current efficiency of the pumping unit, says Gary D. Condra of Fort Stockton, area economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

To evaluate the potential profitability of repairs to irrigation units, consider current pumping efficiency, depth from which water is lifted, interest rate, cost and expected life of the improvement, and current condition of the power unit and pump.

Condra uses the following example to illustrate the effect of the current efficiency factor on the profitability of repair work.

Assume an 800-gallon per minute (GPM) pump runs 3,000 hours per year lifting water from 300 feet with an electric motor using 5 cents per KWH electricity. A 10 percent increase in pump efficiency from 40 to 50 percent will reduce fuel costs for the year by about $3,800. However, a 10 percent increase in pump efficiency from 60 to 70 percent will only reduce yearly fuel costs by about $1,800.

Assuming improvements cost $5,000 at 15 percent interest, the increase in efficiency from 40 to 50 percent will pay repair costs in less than two years. On the other hand, increasing efficiency from 60 to 70 percent requires almost four years to pay repair costs.

Condra points out that today probably more pumping plants fall in the 40-50 percent range than the 60-70 percent range. Thus many producers can make profitable improvements in irrigation pumping efficiency before preplant irrigation starts this spring.

However, he adds the evaluation of the unit's current efficiency is critical as a first step.

I DON'T GET ALL THAT SAGEBRUSH REBELLION BUSINESS—THE GOVERNMENT'S JUST PROTECTING THE LAND!

Growers push soybean exports

(WASHINGTON) — Texas soybean growers have encouraged congressional and government leaders to support policies which will allow the uninterrupted growth of agricultural exports.

Texas Soybean Association National Director Robert Horn says soybean growers are concerned that government proposals, such as import restrictions on foreign autos and intervention in normal commercial trade, would invite foreign retaliation against U.S. agricultural exports.

"In 1980 the U.S. exported more than $40.5 billion in agricultural products with an agricultural trade surplus in excess of $23.4 billion," the Nomesoybean producer said after his meeting in Washington. "America's efficient agricultural industry, coupled with reduced trade barriers, has made our products competitive all around the world. We urge Congress to avoid any actions to impose protectionist import restrictions against foreign products as a means of protecting inefficient U.S. industries."

Soybean producers from Texas and 23

other soybean producing states also emphasized to congressional leaders that the role of the federal government in export policy be one of acquiring and maintaining maximum access for U.S. agricultural commodities abroad and in assisting producers in developing foreign demand. Federal intervention into normal commercial exports should be avoided, they stressed.

Another proposal requested that Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) market development funding reflect a percentage of total agricultural export value. FAS enters into contracts with non-profit commodity associations, such as the American Soybean Association, sharing the costs of programs which maintain, develop and expand foreign markets of U.S. agricultural commodities.

"In 1980 soybean growers invested $5 million of their own funds to expand markets — up from $1.3 million in 1974," says Horn. "FAS funding has only increased from $1.3 million in 1974 to $3.1 in 1981, not keeping pace with exports or inflation. Soybeans and their products are our top farm export and foreign exchange earner. The increased exports resulting from these programs benefit our entire economy and more than pay for the government's investment."

The 1981 Farm Bill represents another area of grower concern. Agricultural exports generated an estimated $83 billion of economic activity. Because of this vital role in America's economy, growers requested that Title I of the 1981 Farm Bill be entitled International Trade and be restricted to provisions designated to maximize agricultural exports. Soybeans account for a quarter of the $40.5 billion in farm exports and growers want soybeans to remain more dependent upon the international free market than on the federal government. Congress was urged to address soybeans in a separate section of the general farm bill.

Misconceptions over farm prices and food price inflation was another topic farmers discussed with Congress.

"We asked our legislators to inform their constituents and fellow legislators that food price inflation does not accurately reflect farm prices," says Horn. "Farmers receive only 30 cents of each retail food dollar, the remaining 70 cents pay for labor, transportation and other non-farm costs."

Discussing federally-funded agricultural research, producers said growing world demand for U.S. food and fiber, soaring production costs and conservation concerns make continued investment in agricultural research absolutely essential. Both public and private investment will improve production efficiency and develop new and improved products for the expanding domestic and world market.

Agricultural production and marketing require adequate transportation. Soybean growers urged their legislators to encourage cooperation between Congress, government agencies and private industry to implement programs to improve the U.S. transportation system and our nation's ability to market its farm products. Conservation of natural resources is another concern voiced by soybean growers.

Hahn is named for new Cotton Inc. position

The Board of Directors of Cotton Incorporated has named J. Nicholas Hahn to the newly created post of executive vice president.

According to the board's plan, the post designates the eventual successor to J. Dukes Wooters, Jr., who is scheduled to retire as company president in October 1982.

The move is designed to provide a smooth transition. The timetable calls for Hahn to assume authority as chief operating officer by October 1981, at which time the seven corporate divisions—sales/marketing, international marketing, marketing services/communications, agricultural research, textile research and development, economic research and development, and administration—will report to him.

In October 1982, Hahn is expected to become president and chief executive officer reporting directly to the board. Until then he will continue reporting to Wooters.

Hahn has served as vice president of sales/marketing since 1973. As such, he has fulfilled a key function for the fiber company of American cotton producers in building markets for U.S. cotton.

Hahn has been responsible for formulating sales/marketing objectives and priorities each year, and has been directly responsible for the management of the company's largest division comprising five operating departments—apparel mill marketing, apparel marketing, home fabrics and industrial marketing, fabric development and fashion marketing—in four locations: New York City, Los Angeles, Dallas and Greenville, South Carolina.

Hahn joined Cotton Incorporated in 1971, the year it was founded, as manager of regional offices based in Los Angeles. Prior to that he was with the Mission Valley Division of Dan River, Inc. Altogether, he has devoted 20 years of his career to the textile industry.

Floydada meeting set on new revenue bond law

A meeting has been planned March 24 for Floyd County businessmen and community leaders to acquaint them with the new Texas Industrial Revenue Bond Law.

Recently passed legislation allows a city or county to issue tax free bonds for the expansion of an approved industry. This must be done with the cooperation of an approved industrial foundation.

County Auditor, O.M. Watson Jr., is the county representative on the West Texas Economic Development Advisory Committee of the South Plains Association of Governments.

He said that this special meeting was arranged in order for Floyd County leaders and businessmen and women to have information about the possibilities for industrial development offered by the Industrial Revenue Bond Law.

Sylvia Clark, Director of Economic Development for SPAG will explain the new law for issuance of tax free bonds for the expansion of an approved industry.

The industry using the financing of the bonds to expand their facilities repays the bonds.

There is no obligation on the city, county, or industrial foundation.

The meeting will be held at Light-house Electric Coop meeting room at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

DOOR-TO-DOOR SALES—YOUR RIGHTS UNDER THE LAW

Ever had second thoughts about something you bought through door-to-door sales? Did you keep the item or cancel the contract agreement? You have certain rights when it comes to door-to-door sales under both a federal regulation and Texas law. Federal Trade Commission regulations and the Texas Home Solicitation Sales Act define the rights of consumers regarding door-to-door sales.

One right is a three-day "cooling-off" period. According to law, you have an absolute right to cancel the sales agreement until midnight of the third business day after signing the contract.

in cases involving door-to-door sales, lease or rental of goods or services costing $25 or more, when both the sales promotion and your agreement to buy are made somewhere other than the seller's place of business. To cancel, simply mail a written notice of cancellation to the company within the three-day period.

There's another section of the law that allows you to cancel at any time. Sales contracts you sign are required to tell you of your right to cancel under the three-day circumstances, and you must be given a separate "Notice of Cancellation" form for this purpose. If you do not receive the required cancellation notice and form, you may cancel at any time, not just during the three-day "cooling-off" period, according to Texas law.

After you cancel a contract, you must return the goods if the seller requests you to. If you are not requested to return the goods within 20 days, you are under no further obligation. The seller must refund all money you have paid within 10 days from the date of cancellation.

Of course, consumers can take two steps to protect themselves from unsatisfactory situations in door-to-door sales in the first place. Make sure you're dealing with a legitimate, authorized sales representative who conducts business fairly and ethically. Also, decide whether purchasing the product meets a real need or if you are acting impulsively.

Perspectives

I cannot take it anymore!

Now they tell me ("they" being researchers quoted in newspapers) there is a possible link between my morning cup of nectar, also called coffee, and pancreatic cancer. I can't even pronounce pancreatic without stuttering.

It seems these days that the old saw about things which are fun are automatically bad for you is becoming increasingly true.

Life cannot be lived without risk. There are dangers all around us. When we become too concerned about the possible risks we face, we eventually become paralyzed, able only to worry about what will get us next.

Many of my sincere friends are always telling me my body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, and I should take care of it.

This argument has been advanced for everything from getting me to give up smoking (I did), to getting me to quit eating refined sugar (I didn't), to getting me to exercise regularly (I try).

Now the context in which Paul was speaking when he uttered those famous words deals with sexual immorality, and the problem is becoming "one flesh" with a harlot, an event which most definitely does not glorify God. Paul then adjures us to glorify God with our bodies, because we are not our own having been bought with a price.

The point is we are supposed to use our bodies for godly purposes rather than ungodly. Whether eating refined sugar and white bread fit into those categories is up to you to decide.

As for me, I find it difficult to worry about those kinds of things. Certainly, I may extend my usefulness to God by not killing myself off at an early age, but my control over when I die is not entirely in my hands. Thus, I take refuge in Jesus' admonition to not worry about tomorrow because today has problems enough.

Meantime, I think I'll go eat some bacon and a donut, spill down some coffee, and try not to hope a health freak breaks his leg on the ski slopes.

Homemakers set district meeting

The District meeting is being held in Seminole for all Extension Homemakers in District 2 on Tuesday, March 24.

Some of the goals are: reaching more people, get more publicity, get a larger membership, organize more clubs and let more people know who we are, what we stand for and where we are going.

We are a part of the National Extension Homemakers Council, the largest organization of Homemakers in the U.S. We have a six point educational program. Currently we have a membership of 25,000 and hope to double that figure in the next 10 years.

Mrs. Jimmy Crawford of Ballinger our State Treasurer of extension homemakers will be the main speaker. We are also looking forward to hearing Wynon Mayes of Plainview, give what she calls "A Medley of Erma Bombeck."

Delegates from Floyd County are Mrs. Syble Teple, Bess Carr and Mattie Norrell. Alternates are Mrs. Trudy Taylor, Muri Mayfield. Several other members plan to attend as guests.

Baptist Women host Lockney Class of '81 with banquet

The Baptist Young Women and The Baptist Women's organizations of Lockney Baptist Church honored the members of the 1981 graduating class with a banquet at the church.

The banquet theme of "Rainbows and Dreams" was written in green foil on the fellowship hall wall next to a large rainbow.

Decorations to simulate raindrops and clouds, imprinted with 1981 and the name of a senior, hung from the ceiling. Happy-face flowers bordered the wall. Long tables, seating eight persons, were centered with artificial grass, mint green tapers and a rainbow.

Entertainment was by a gospel trio from the church. Members of the trio are Terry and Donnetta Keltz and Ken Watson. Mr. Keltz, church music and youth director, was also master of ceremonies.

Invocation was by church pastor the Rev. John Jenkins. The welcome was given by Mrs. Jenkins, who is Baptist Women's director. Senior class president John Fortenberry said the response. Benediction was by senior class member Roxanne Ford.

Special guests were class sponsors Cheryl Russell and Marsha Sharp.

Mrs. Don Vernon, president of Baptist Young Women, was chairman for the banquet. She was assisted by committee chairwomen Mrs. Jim Martin, program: Mrs. Keltz and Mrs. Watson, invitations; Mrs. Ralph Hennagan, food; and Mrs. Richard Cook, wall decorations.

What's behind our moral decline?

One does not have to be a prude to conclude that our country is suffering a serious moral decline. Our rulers and law enforcement agencies seem powerless to cope with it. Campaigns to check it seem vain. Americans have been warned time and again that the alarming rate of this downward trend spells ruin for America if it isn't checked soon. But what most people fail to realize is that behind this moral decline there is a spiritual decline. People have departed from God and His Word.

Paul's letter to the Romans tells us how the heathen got that way. Romans 1:21-22 says: "When they knew God they glorified Him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations and their foolish heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise they became fools," and the following verses tell how God finally had to "give them up" to "uncleanness" and "vile affections"—all because "they did not like to retain God in their knowledge" (ver. 28).

St. Paul further describes them in Ephesians 4:17-19, walking "in the vanity of their mind, having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart: who being past feeling (conscience) have given themselves over to lasciviousness, to work all uncleanness with greediness." This, sad to say, is an accurate description of increasing numbers in America today. They are throwing off restraint and going after uncleanness "with greediness."

But this is not liberty, this is enslavement. It is not a sign of strength, but of weakness. It does not indicate superior intelligence, but grossest ignorance, and results in alienation from God.

How much better off are those who have come to know God through Christ! Of these the apostle says: "And you, who were once alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath He reconciled, in the body of His flesh through death, to present you holy, and unblamable, and unreprouvable in His sight" (Col. 1:21,22). Through faith in Christ who died for our sins, then, we may be reconciled to God and delivered from "this present evil age" (Gal. 1:4).

Interest on checking and the strings attached.

In banking circles, it's almost revolutionary. All that hard-earned money in your checking account actually working for you. Collecting interest just like a savings account. Terrific, right? Absolutely. But behind the silver lining there are just a few pint-sized clouds. Minimum balance. Average balance. Limits on check writing. In other words, you can't treat your balance like a seesaw. Or sign checks like there's no tomorrow. Now, keeping track of it all doesn't take an Einstein, but it does take someone pretty smart. A Full Service Bank. The folks there invented modern checking, so you can count on getting good advice. Advice that can help you squeeze the most out of every cent you've got. Advice that's free, incidentally. No you-know-whats attached.

Girls win, boys 2nd in Lorenzo Relays

Lockney launched its 1981 track season with the girls' team finishing first and the boys team second in the Lorenzo Invitational meet.

The girls posted 94 points to edge Kress which finished with 92. Cooper was third with 84 points.

The boys posted 97 points, second only to Petersburg which finished with 128.

The Lady Horns were paced by Judy Davis who took first place in the 3,200 meter run, with a time of 13:03:33 and the 1,600 meter run with a time of 6:12:05.

The boys were led by Freddie Alaniz who finished first in the 1,600 meter run in a time of 5:05:03 and John Cummings who finished first in the high jump with a leap of six feet, four inches, one of the better marks in the area this year.

Cummings nicked the bar on a jump at six foot, six inches. The bar vibrated several seconds before, with the help of a strong wind, it fell, voiding the mark.

The Lockney Boys also finished second in the mile relay behind Hale Center, a performance that pleased Coach Dewayne Sexton since three of the relay team members...Jeff McCormick, Carl Race and Joe David Gonzales...had run in earlier events.

"I think the boys did a real good job," Sexton said of the meet as a whole. It's hard to tell what they could have done if the wind hadn't been blowing so hard and it hadn't rained."

The next meet is Saturday at Levelland.

Native Lockney girl on champion team

A Lockney native, Terri Baughman, was a member of the Canyon Eagles squad which captured the state AAAA basketball championship with a 64-53 victory over Bay City. The game was played in the Super Drum in Austin.

Miss Baughman, a three-year letterman and starting point guard for the Eagles, was selected to the district 4A all-tournament squad.

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. (Bo) Baughman of Amarillo. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Willis Reynolds and Mrs. Grace Baughman and the late Frank Baughman, all of Lockney.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baughman, Scott and Jami; Mr. and Mrs. Willis Reynolds; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reynolds and Rhonda of Crosbyton were in Austin for the state tournament. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wofford of Lockney also attended the tourney.

A 5'4" senior, Miss Baughman scored 21 points and had 17 assists in the two state tournament games. Canyon outlasted Magnolia 64-39 in a semifinal contest.

Teammates selected Miss Baughman to present the state championship trophy to the Canyon superintendent during a Monday assembly.

Looks can be deceiving

BY MARGIE SAVAGE

Horrors! How could I have done such a terrible thing! The evidence was clearly visible through my woven trash basket. There it was, a bright orange can nestled among discarded wads of paper. The evidence was against me. I had consumed a high-calorie soda instead of a low-calorie one. I could just see the pounds mounting on my frail body. How could I have done such a dastardly deed?

I always check labels for nutrients and calorie content before I buy anything. Except for the time I was reaching for the generic brownie mix (for my daughter) and got home with the creamy, white frosting mix. An easy mistake—they were both in the same unmarked packaging.

Or the time I carefully purchased sugar-free cookies only to find, after I had eaten the whole box (over a period of time, of course) that, indeed, they had no sugar, but they did have more calories than the regular kind.

Or maybe the time I grabbed up a couple of boxes of crackers on sale. I learned that none of my family cares much for saltless crackers. I blamed these mistakes on poor eyesight because I know that I'm not absent-minded.

But ordinarily I am very conscientious about what goes into my stomach. So how could I have drunk a regular soda? Quite inconceivable! I don't remember it tasting especially good. I do distinctly remember it leaving an after taste.

I even remember the day I bought that diet soda. I was standing before the open dairy case getting my glasses fogged up, my face frost-bitten, and icicles forming on my nose. I was trying in vain to get the can out of the plastic rings that invariably encase them, when I heard my mother's far-away voice say, "Margie Sue, close that refrigerator door."

In my haste to free the can, I laid my billfold on a shelf in the dairy case. Breaking three fingernails, I finally got the can free and slid the door shut.

There I was—my hair limp from the dampness, my glasses fogged up, my nose beginning to drip as the icicles melted, and my face and hands frostbitten—standing in front of the checkout counter with no money. I was so embarrassed!

I rummaged through my pockets trying to find some loose change. All I could find was a paper clip, a tissue, some lint, and a button. But no money. The soda was getting colder and colder in my bare hand. I was about to despair and return my diet soda to the dairy case, when a lady came up and laughingly handed me my billfold. I don't know how she knew I had been near the dairy case much less leaving my billfold there. Red-faced, I paid for my drink with cold cash and left.

It was imperative that I knew exactly how many calories I had consumed because I would have to give up something of equal caloric content to balance out the day (that's The Rule).

I picked up the can which was lying on its side with its top partly buried in the papers. Holding it up, the yellow letters fairly jumped out at me. "Diet." It said. Hurray! I was legal! I had not transgressed! I was saved!

The pounds quickly melted away from my round little body leaving it almost slim and trim again.

LOCKNEY JUNIOR HIGH STUDENTS Evelia Elias (left) and Tammy Holyfield receive checks from principal Raymond Lusk as winners in the junior essay contest sponsored by the Floyd County Soil and Water Conservation board. Second place winner Tammy Holyfield ($10) and third place winner Evelia Elias ($5) both wrote essays of 300 words on "Conservation, Our Best Insurance." First prize went to a student at Floydada Junior High.

A new fiber processing line, developed specifically to make cotton more competitive with synthetics may be just the answer cotton growers have been looking for. Dubbed a continuous action scouring and bleaching line, it may have several side benefits in addition to making cotton more competitive, especially in the large non-woven market. One of those is new technology for helping in compliance with cotton dust standards for textile mills. The new line significantly improves the range of cotton that can be processed as well as the quality of the end product, according to its designers (Cotton Incorporated). The line takes raw cotton fiber from the gin and converts it to a pristine white fiber suitable for surgical gowns, cosmetic wipes and other uses. Eleven mills have already purchased the line, a regular sign that cotton will remain ground lost to synthetics.

UPS increases rural delivery

A dramatic increase in package delivery service to the rural areas of Texas would be the immediate result if United Parcel Service were granted the right to pickup and deliver between all points in the state, UPS region manager Joe Dobransky said recently.

To gain those rights, UPS must be granted authority by the Texas Railroad Commission. However, the Commission has maintained for some years it has no jurisdiction to grant the type of all-points coverage UPS seeks to offer. Clarification of the Commission's jurisdiction is the subject of two bills currently before the state legislature—H.B. 1116 by Rep. Craig Washington (D-Houston) and S.B. 513 by Sen. Chet Brooks (D-Pasadena).

"Many rural communities desperately need direct service, or at least an alternative to the kind of service they're currently getting," Dobransky commented. "Our service is available today to every address in Texas that is reachable by road, but only for packages coming in or going out over state lines."

Even on a "half-service" basis, UPS delivers almost 300,000 packages a day to Texas residents and businesses and picks up another 150,000. Dobransky estimates over half of the stops made by the company's package vans are in communities of less than 10,000 people. "And thousands of stops a day are made to places that aren't near a town of any size. Places like drilling sites, ranches, souvenir shops, service stations and others off the beaten path are getting direct service every day."

Dobransky added: "It is not unusual for one of our drivers in area like the West Texas mountains, the Panhandle or the Rio Grande Valley to travel over 250 miles a day to make less than 50 delivery and pickup stops." UPS offers this service at rates comparable to U.S. parcel post.

The outcome of the proposed legislation, H.B. 1116 and S.B. 513, is expected in the near future. In addition to giving the Railroad Commission jurisdiction to hear applications for an as-needed, door-to-door service such as UPS wants to offer, the

Beedy earns "Distinguished Student" award

(COLLEGE STATION) — Tracy L. Beedy of Lockney, junior agronomy major, has earned "distinguished student" status at Texas A&M University.

Tracy is a Lockney High School graduate and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Beedy of Lockney.

Recipients of the "distinguished student" honor must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ratio, out of a possible 4.0, during the most recent grading period.

Fortenberry graduates from TSTI

(AMARILLO) — Bryan Fortenberry participated in graduation ceremonies at Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo. The ceremonies were held at the chapel on the TSTI Campus. Job L. "Nick" Hammond, personnel director for the City of Amarillo, was the guest speaker.

Bryan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Durrell Fortenberry of Lockney. He received a diploma from welding and fabrication program. He is also a graduate of Floydada High School.

bills mandate that carriers cannot pull service out of rural areas once they have sought and been granted the rights to do so, or their authority will be cancelled.

"This should be a relief to shippers and receivers in rural locations. Once they get full UPS service, they can always count on it in the future," Dobransky said.

"Besides, offering full service in rural areas does the same thing we're granted."

... days my husband says we should take on a wife. I tend to burn boiled eggs, lose car keys, and what I can do to a meat loaf he did not marry me as a wife or he would have divorced me years ago.

... really can't dispute that statement. The other hand he tends to leave his clothes neatly lined up under the coffee table, and I don't think that he has ever let a coat hanger face to face.

... Maybe we should take on a wife, if that means someone to wash the dishes that tend to inhabit our kitchen, the clothes that haven't been taught clean themselves like the self-cleaning oven.

... The problem is that while we women are allowed, or even encouraged to work outside the home, we don't have the technological support we need.
